his mother began to weep, and to say: Thou hast taken the staff of our old age, and sent him away from us. {24} I would the money had never been, for the which thou hast sent him. {25} For our poverty sufficed us, that we might account this thing riches, that we saw our son. {26} And Tobias said to her: Weep not, our son shall come thither save, and shall return safe to us, and thine eyes shall see him. {27} For I believe that the good Angel of God doth accompany him, & doth well dispose all things that are done about him, so that he shall return to us with joy. {28} At this voice his mother left weeping, and held her peace.

Chapter 6

By the Angel's advise young Tobias apprehendeth a fish, that assaulteth him: 5. reserveth the heart, gall, and liver for medicines. 10. They lodge at the house of Raguel, whose daughter Sara Tobias is to marry. 14. A devil hath heretofore slain her seven husbands. 16. but shall not hurt him.

{1} AND Tobias went forward, and a dog followed him, and he made his first abode by the river of Tygris. {2} And he went out to wash his feet, and behold an huge fish came forth to devour him. {3} Of whom Tobias being afraid, cried out with a loud voice, saying: Sir, he invadeth me. {4} And the Angel said to him: Take him by the gill, and draw him to thee. Which when he had done, he drew him on the dry land, and he began to struggle before his feet. {5} Then said the Angel to him: Take out the entrails of this fish, and his heart, and gall, and liver, keep to thee: for these are necessary & profitable for medicines. {6} Which when he had done, he roasted the flesh thereof, and they took it with them in the way: the rest they salted which might suffice them, till they came to Rages the city of Medes. {7} Then Tobias asked the Angel, & said to him: I beseech thee brother Azarias, tell me what remedies shall these things have, which thou hast bid me keep of the fish? {8} And the Angel answering, said to him: If thou put a little piece of his heart upon coals, the smoke thereof driveth out all kind of devils, either from man or from woman, so that it cometh no more unto them. {9} And the gall is available to anoint the eyes, in which there shall be white blemish and they shall be healed. {10} And Tobias said to him: Where wilt thou that we tarry? {11} And the Angel answering, said: Here is one named Raguel, a near kinsman of thy tribe, and he hath a daughter named Sara, and he hath neither man child, nor any woman child beside her. {12} All his substance is due to thee, and thou mayst take her to wife. {13} Ask her therefore of her father, and he will give her thee to wife. {14} Then Tobias answered, and said: I hear that she hath been delivered to seven husbands, and they are dead: yea and I have heard, that a devil killed them. {15} I am afraid therefore, lest these things may happen to me also: & whereas I am the only child of my parents, I may bring down their old age with sorrow unto hell. {16} Then the Angel Raphael said to him: Hear me, and I will shew thee who they are, on whom the devil can prevail. {17} For they that so receive matrimony, that they exclude God from themselves, & from their mind, & so give themselves to their lust, as horse and mule, which have not understanding, over them the devil hath power. {18} But thou when thou shalt take her, entering into the chamber, for three days be continent from her, and thou shalt give thy self to nothing else but to prayers with her. {19} And the same night, the liver of the fish set on the fire, the devil shall be driven away. {20} But the second night thou shalt be admitted in the copulation of the holy Patriarchs. {21} And the third night thou shalt obtain a blessing that sound children may be procreated of you. {22} And when the third night is past, thou shalt take the virgin, with the fear of our Lord, moved rather for love of children than for lust, that in the seed of Abraham thou mayst obtain blessing in children.

They are kindly entertained by Raguel. 10. Tobias demandeth Sara to wife, which Raguel.

encouraged by the Angel, granteth: 15. and the marriage is made.

{1} AND they went to Raguel, and Raguel received them with joy. beholding Tobias, said to Anna his wife: {2} And Raguel How like is this young man to my sister's son! {3} And when he had spoken these words, he said: Whence are ye young men our brethren? {4} But they said: We are the tribe of Nephthali, of the captivity of Ninive. {5} And Raguel said to them: Know you Tobias my brother? Who said: We know him. {6} And when he spake much good of him, the Angel said to Raguel: Tobias, of whom thou askest is this man's father. {7} And Raguel put forth himself, and with tears kissed him, and weeping upon his neck, said: Blessing, have thou my son, because thou art the son of a good and most virtuous man. {8} And Anna his wife, and Sara their daughter wept. {9} And after they had talked, Raguel commanded a wether to be killed, and a banquet to be prepared, And when he desired them to sit down to dinner, {10} Tobias said: I will not eat nor drink here this day, unless thou first assure my petition, and promise to give me Sara thy daughter. {11} Which word Raguel hearing, was sore afraid, knowing what had chanced to those seven husbands, which went in unto her: and he began to fear lest perhaps, it might chance to him also in like manner: and when he doubted, and gave no answer to him demanding, {12} the Angel said to him: Fear not to give her to this man, for to him fearing God is thy daughter due to be his wife: therefore an other could not have her. {13} Then said Raguel: I doubt not but God hath admitted my prayers and tears in his sight. {14} And I believe that therefore he hath made you come to me, that this maid might be joined to her kindred, according to the law of Moyses: and now have no doubt but I will deliver her to thee. {15} And taking his daughter by the right hand, gave it into the right hand of Tobias, saying: The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob be with you, and he join you together, and fulfill his blessing in you. {16} And taking paper they made a writing of the marriage. {17} And after these things they made merry, blessing God. {18} And Raguel called to him Anna his wife, and commanded her to prepare an other chamber. {19} And she brought Sara her daughter in thither, and she wept. {20} And she said to her: Be of good cheer my daughter, our Lord of heaven give thee joy for the tediousness which thou has suffered.

Tobias broiling part of the fish's liver, Raphael bindeth the devil. 4. Tobias and Sara pray. 11. Raguel fearing that Tobias is dead, maketh a grave for him, but understanding that he is well, filleth it up again. 21. prepareth a feast, giveth the half of his goods presently for Sara's dowry, the other half after her parent's death.

{1} AND after they had supped, they brought in the young man to her, remembering the Angel's word, brought {2} Tobias therefore forth out of his bag part of the liver, & laid it upon live coals. {3} Then Raphael the Angel took the devil, & bound him in the desert of higher Aegypt. {4} Then Tobias exhorted the virgin, & said to her: Sara arise, & let us pray to God to day, and to morrow, and the next morrow: because these three nights we are joined to God: & when the third night is past, we will be in our wedlock. {5} For we are the children of holy men, and we may not be joined together as gentiles, that know not God. {6} And they rising together, prayed both together that health might be given them. {7} And Tobias said: Lord God of our fathers, the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and fountains, and rivers, and all thy creatures that are in them, bless thee. {8} Thou madest Adam of the slime of the earth, and gavest him Eve an helper. {9} And now Lord thou knowest, that not for fleshly lust do I take my sister to wife, but only for the love of posterity, in the which thy name may be blessed for ever & ever. {10} Sara also said. Have mercy on us Lord, have mercy upon us, and let us grow old both together in health. {11} And it came to pass about the cocks' crowing, Raguel bade his servants to be called for, and they went with him together to dig a grave. {12}

For he said: Lest perhaps it may chance to him, as also to the other seven husbands that went in unto her. {13} And when they had prepared the pit, Raguel returning to his wife, said to her: {14} Send one of thy handmaids, & let her see if he be dead, that I may bury him before it be day. {15} But she sent one of her handmaids, who going into the chamber, found them safe & sound, sleeping both together. {16} And returning she brought good tidings: and they blessed our Lord, to wit, Raguel & Anna his wife, {17} & said: We bless thee Lord God of Israel, because it hath not chanced as we thought. {18} For thou hast done thy mercy with us, & hast excluded from us the enemy, that persecuted us. {19} And thou hast taken pity upon two, the only children. Make them Lord bless thee more fully, & to offer up to thee a sacrifice of thy praise, and of their health, that all nations may know, that thou art God only in all the earth. {20} And forthwith Raguel commanded his servants, that they should fill up the pit which they had made, before it were day. {21} And he bade his wife make ready a feast, and prepare all things, that for victuals were necessary to them that go a journey. {22} He caused also two fat kine, and four wethers to be killed, and great cheer to be prepared for all his neighbours and all his friends. {23} And Raguel adjured Tobias that he should abide with him two weeks. {24} And of all things which Raguel possessed, he gave the half part to Tobias, and made this writing, that the half part, which was remaining after their decease, should come to the dominion of Tobias.

The Angel Raphael goeth to Gabelus, receiveth the money, and bringeth him to the marriage. 8. They salute each other, and Gabelus wisheth all prosperity to young Tobias and his spouse.

{1} THEN Tobias called the Angel to him, whom he thought to be a man, and he said to him: Brother Azarias, I pray thee harken to my words: {2} If I should deliver my self to be thy servant I shall not deserve thy providence. {3} Howbeit I beseech thee, that thou take unto thee beasts and servants, and go to Gabelus into Rages the cities of Medes: and render him his hand writing, and receive of him the money, and desire him to come to my marriage. {4} For thy self knowest that my father numbereth the days: and if I slack one day more, his soul is made sorrowful. {5} And surely thou seest how Raguel hath adjured me, whose adjuring I can not despise. {6} Then Raphael taking four of Raguel's servants, and two camels, went into Rages the city of Medes: & finding Gabelus gave him his hand writing, and received of him all the money. {7} And he told him of Tobias the son of Tobias, all things that were done: & made him come with him to the marriage. {8} And when he was entered into Raguel's house, he found Tobias sitting at the table: and he leaping up, they kissed each other: and Gabelus wept, and blessed God, {9} and said: The God of Israel bless thee, because thou art the son of a very good man, and just, and that feareth God, and doth alms deeds: {10} and blessing be given upon thy wife, and upon your parents: {11} and that you may see your children, and your children's children, unto the third and fourth generation: and your seed be blessed of the God of Israel, who reigneth for ever and ever. {12} And when all had said, Amen, they went to the feast: but with the fear of our Lord also did they celebrate the feast of the marriage.

The parents lament the long absence of their son Tobias. 8. Whom when Raguel can not persuade to stay longer, 11. he wisheth much good unto him and his wife, admonishing her to be dutiful in all things.

{1} BUT when Tobias tarried long because of the marriage, Tobias his father was careful, saying: Why thinkest thou doth my son tarry, or why is he held there? {2} Is Gabelus dead thinkest thou, and no man will restore him the money? {3} And he began to be sorrowful exceedingly himself, and Anna his wife with him: &

they began both to weep together: because their son did not return to them the day appointed. {4} His mother therefore wept with uncomfortable tears, & said: Woe, woe is me, my son, why sent we thee to go to a strange country, the light of our eyes, the staff of our old age, the comfort of our life, the hope of our posterity? {5} We having all things together in thee only, ought not to have let thee go from us. {6} To whom Tobias said: Hold thy peace, and be not troubled, our son is safe, that man with whom we sent him is faithful enough. {7} Howbeit she could by no means be comforted, but daily running out looked about, and went about all ways by which there seemed hope he would return, that she might see him a far off, if it were possible, coming. {8} But Raguel said to his son in law: Tarry here, and I will send a messenger to Tobias thy father, that thou art in health. {9} To whom Tobias said: I know that my father and my mother do now count the days, and their spirit is tormented in them. {10} And when Raguel desired Tobias in many words, and he by no means would hear him, he delivered Sara unto him, & the half part of all his substance in men servants, & women servants, in cattle, in camels, and in kine, and in much money and dismiss him safe and joyful from him, {11} saying: The holy Angel of our Lord be in your journey, and bring you through safe, and that you may find all things well about your parents, and mine eyes may see your children before I die. {12} And the parents taking their daughter, kissed her, and let her go: {13} admonishing her to honour her father and mother in law, to love her husband, to rule the household, to govern the house, and to shew her self irreprehensible.

Leaving Sara with the rest of the company, and the flock to follow, the Angel Raphael and Tobias go before. 5. are joyfully received, 8. Tobias anointeth his father's eyes with the fish's gall, and he seeth. 18. Sara arriveth seven days after with her family and cattle.

{1} AND when they returned they came to Charan, which is in the mid-way against Ninive, the eleventh day. {2} And the Angel said: Brother Tobias thou knowest how thou didst leave thy father. {3} If it please thee therefore, let us go before, and let the families follow softly after us, together with thy wife, and with the beasts. {4} And when this pleased him that they should go, Raphael said to Tobias: Take with thee of the gall of the fish: for it shall be necessary. Tobias therefore took of that gall and they departed. {5} But Anna sat beside the way daily, in the top of a hill, from whence she might see a far off. {6} And whilst she watched his coming out of that place, she saw a far off, and by and by perceived her son coming: and running she told her husband saying: Behold thy son cometh. {7} And Raphael said to Tobias: But when thou art entered into thy house forthwith adore our Lord thy God: and giving thanks to him go to thy father, and kiss him. {8} And immediately anoint upon his eyes of this gall of the fish, which thou carriest with thee. For know thou that forthwith his eyes shall be opened, and thy father shall see the light of heaven, and shall rejoice in the sight of thee. {9} Then ran the dog before, which had been with them in the way, and coming as it were a messenger with the fawning of his tail rejoiced. {10} And his father that was blind rising up began to run stumbling with his feet: and giving a servant his hand, went to meet his son. {11} And receiving him kissed him, with his wife, and they began both to weep for joy. {12} And when they had adored God, and given thanks, they sat down together. {13} Then Tobias taking of the gall of the fish, anointed his father's eyes. {14} And he stayed as it were almost half an hour: and the white blemish began to come out of his eyes, as it were the skin of an egg. {15} Which Tobias taking drew from his eyes, and immediately he received sight. {16} And they glorified God, to wit, himself and his wife, and all that knew him. {17} And Tobias said: I bless thee Lord God of Israel, because thou hast chastised me, and thou hast saved me: and behold I see Tobias my son. {18} After seven days also came in Sara his son's wife, & all the family safe, & cattle, & the camels, and much money of his wives: and that money also, which he had received of Gabelus: {19} and he told his parents all the benefits of God, which he had done to him by the man that conducted him. {20} And Achior and Nabath, Tobias' sister's sons came, rejoicing at Tobias, and congratulating him for all good things that God had shewed towards him. {21} And for seven days making good cheer, they rejoiced all with great joy.

Old Tobias and his son offer the half of all the goods which they had newly received, to Raphael, for his wages. 6. Who then declareth to them that he was sent from God to help them, 15. and that he is an Angel. 20. He parteth away, and they render thanks to God.

{1} THEN Tobias called to him his son, and said to him: What may we give to this holy man, that is come with thee? {2} Tobias answering, said to his father: Father what reward shall we give him? Or what can be worthy of his benefits? {3} He hath led me & brought me again safe, he received the money of Gabelus, he caused me to have my wife, and the evil spirit he chased from her, he made joy unto her parents, my self he delivered from being devoured of the fish, thee also he hath made to see the light of heaven, and we are replenished with all good things by him. What can we give him worthy for these things? {4} But I beseech thee my father, that thou desire him, if perhaps he will vouchsafe to take unto him the one half of all things which are brought. {5} And they calling him, to wit the father and the son, took him aside: and began to desire him that he would vouchsafe to accept the half part of all things, that they had brought. {6} Then he said to them secretly: Bless ye the God of heaven, and before all that live confess to him, because he hath done mercy with you. {7} For to hide the secret of a king is good: but to reveal and confess the works of God is an honourable thing. {8} Prayer is good with fasting and alms, rather than to lay up treasures of gold: {9} because alms delivereth from death, and that is it which purgeth sins, and maketh to find mercy and life everlasting. {10} But they that commit sin and iniquity, are enemies to their own soul. {11} I open therefore unto you the truth, and I will not hide from you the secret word. {12} When thou didst pray with tears, and didst bury the dead, and left thy dinner, and diddest hide the dead by day in thy house, and by night didst bury them, I offered thy prayer to our Lord. {13} And because thou wast acceptable to God, it was necessary that temptation should prove thee. {14} And now our Lord sent me to cure thee, and to deliver Sara thy son's wife from the devil. {15} For I am Raphael an Angel, one of the seven, which assist before our Lord. {16} And when they had heard these things, they were troubled, and trembling fell upon the ground on their face. {17} And the Angel said to them: Peace be to you, fear not. {18} For when I was with you, by the will of God I was so: bless ye him, and sing to him. {19} I seemed indeed to eat with you, and to drink: but I use an invisible meat and drink, which can not be seen of men. {20} It is time therefore that I return to him, that sent me: but bless ye God, and tell all his marvelous works. {21} And when he had said these things, he was taken from their sight, and they could see him no more. {22} Then prostrate for three hours upon their face, they blessed God: and rising up they told all his marvelous works.

Tobias the father praiseth God, exhorting all Israel to do the same: 11. prophesieth the restoration and better state of Jerusalem.

{1} AND Tobias the elder opening his mouth, blessed our Lord, and said: Thou art great Lord for ever, and thy Kingdom world without end: {2} because thou scourgest, and savest: leadest down to hell, and bringest back again: and there is none that may escape thy hand. {3} Confess to our Lord ye children of Israel, and in the sight of the Gentiles praise him: {4} because he hath therefore dispersed you among the gentiles, which know not him, that you may declare his marvelous works, and make them know, that there is no other God omnipotent besides him. {5} He hath chastised us for our iniquities: and he will save us for his mercy. {6} Behold therefore what he hath done with us, and with fear & trembling confess ye to him: and extol the King of the worlds in your works. {7} And I in the land of my captivity will confess to him: because he hath shewed his majesty toward a sinful nation. {8} Convert therefore ye sinners, and do justice before God, believing that he will do his mercy with you. {9} And I and my soul will rejoice in him. {10} Bless ye our Lord all his elect, celebrate days of gladness, and confess to him. {11} Jerusalem the city of God, our Lord hath chastised thee in the works of thy hands. {12} Confess to our Lord in thy good things, and bless the God of the worlds, that he may re-edify his tabernacle in thee, and may call back all the captives to thee, and thou mayst rejoice for ever and ever. {13} Thou shalt shine with a glorious light: and all the coasts of the earth shall adore thee. {14} Nations from far shall come to thee: and bringing gifts, they shall adore our Lord in thee, and shall esteem thy land for sanctification. {15} For they shall invoke the great name in thee. {16} Cursed shall they be that shall contemn thee: and damned shall they be that shall blaspheme thee: and blessed shall they be that shall build thee. {17} And thou shalt rejoice in thy children, because they shall all be blessed, and shall be gathered together to our Lord. {18} Blessed are all that love thee, and that rejoice upon thy peace. {19} My soul, bless thou our Lord, because he hath delivered Jerusalem his city from all her tribulations, the Lord our God. {20} Blessed shall I be if there shall remain of my seed, to see the glory of Jerusalem {21} The gates of Jerusalem shall be built of Sapphire and the Emerald: and all the compass of the walls thereof of precious stone. {22} With white and clean stone shall all the streets thereof be paved: and in the streets thereof Alleluia shall be song. {23} Blessed be our Lord, which hath exalted it, and his Kingdom be for ever and ever over it. Amen.

Old Tobias dieth at the age of an hundred and two years, 5. exhorted his son and nephews to piety, foreshewing that Ninev shall be destroyed, and Jerusalem re-edified. 14. Younger Tobias returneth with his family to Raguel, and dieth happily as he had lived.

{1} AND the words of Tobias were ended. And after that Tobias was restored to his sight, he lived two and forty years, and saw the children of his nephews. {2} Therefore an hundred and two years being accomplished, he was buried honourably in Ninev. {3} For being six and fifty years old he lost the sight of his eyes, and being threescore he received it again. {4} And the rest of his life was in joy, and with great increase of the fear of God he went forward in peace. {5} And at the hour of his death he called unto him Tobias his son, and his seven young sons, his nephews, and said to them. {6} The destruction of Ninev is near: for the word of our Lord faileth not: and our brethren, which are dispersed from the land of Israel, shall return to it. {7} And all the desert land thereof shall be replenished, & the house of God which is burnt in it, shall again be re-edified: and thither shall all return that fear God, {8} and the Gentiles shall forsake their idols, and shall come into Jerusalem; and shall inhabit in it, {9} and all the kings of the earth shall rejoice in it, adoring the king of Israel. {10} Hear ye therefore my children your father: serve our Lord in truth, and seek to do the things that please him: {11} and command your children that they do justices and alms-deeds, that they be mindful of God, and bless him at all time in truth, and in all their power. {12} Now therefore children hear me, and do not tarry here: but what day soever you shall bury your mother by me in one sepulchre, from thenceforth direct your steps to depart hence: {13} for I see that the iniquity thereof will give it an end. {14} And it came to pass after the death of his mother, Tobias departed out of Ninive with his wife, and children, and children's children, and returned to his father and mother in law. {15} And he found them in health in good old age: and he took care of them, and he closed their eyes: and all the inheritance of Raguel's house he received: and he saw the fifth generation, his children's children. {16} And ninety nine years being accomplished in the fear of our Lord, with joy they buried him. {17} And all his kindred, and all his generation continued in good life, and in holy conversation, so that they were acceptable both to God, and to men, and to all the inhabitants in the land.

THE BOOK OF JUDITH

Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians overcometh Arphaxad king of the Medes: 7. summoneth many other nations to submit themselves to his Empire: 11. which they refusing he threateneth revenge.

{1} ARPHAXAD therefore king of the Medes had subdued many nations to his empire, and he built a most mighty city, which he called Ecbatani, {2} of stones squared and hewed: he made walls thereof in height seventy cubits, and in breadth thirty cubits, and the towers thereof he made in height an hundred cubits. {3} But each side of them was in four square twenty foot long, and he made the gates thereof according to the height of the towers: {4} and he gloried as mighty in the force of his army, and in the glory of his chariots. {5} In the twelfth year of his reign:

Nabuchodonosor the king of the Assyrians, who reigned in Nineve the great city, fought against Arphaxad, and overcame him {6} in the great field, which is called Ragau, about Euphrates, and Tigris, and Jadason in the field of Erioch the king of the Elicians. {7} Then was the Kingdom of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his heart was elevated: and he sent to all that dwelt in Cilicia and Damascus, and Libanus, {8} and to the nations, that are in Carmelus, and Cedar, and the inhabitants of Galilee in the great field of Esdrelon, {9} and to all that were in Samaria, and beyond the river Jordan even to Jerusalem, and all the land of Jesse till you come to the borders of Aethiopia. {10} To all these Nabuchodonosor king of the Assyrians sent messengers: {11} Who all with one mind said nay, and sent them back empty, and rejected them without honour. {12} Then Nabuchodonosor the king taking indignation against all that land, swore by his throne and kingdom that he would revenge himself of all those countries.

Nabuchodonosor sendeth Holofernes his General to waste all countries of the west, 7. with a great army, and abundant munition. 11. They subdue many places, and others are stricken with great fear.

{1} IN the thirteenth year of king Nabuchodonosor, the two and twentieth day of the first month, the word was given out in the house of Nabuchodonosor the king of the Assyrians, that he would revenge himself. {2} And he called all the ancients, & all the captains, and his men of war, and communicated with them the secret of his counsel: {3} & he said that his cogitation was upon that, to subdue all the earth to his empire. {4} Which saying when it had pleased them all, Nabuchodonosor the king called Holofernes the General of his wars, {5} and said to him: Go forth against every Kingdom of the west, and against them especially, that contemned my commandment. {6} Thine eye shall spare no Kingdom, and every fenced city thou shalt subdue to me. {7} Then Holofernes called the captains and magistrates of the power of the Assyrians: and he mustered men for the expedition, as the king commanded him, an hundred twenty thousand fighting men on foot, and twelve thousand archers horsemen. {8} And he made all his expedition to go before in a multitude of innumerable camels, with those things that might suffice the armies abundantly, herds of oxen also, & flocks of sheep, {505} which had no number. {9} He appointed corn to be prepared out of all Syria in his passage. {10} But gold & silver he took out of the king's house exceeding much. {11} And he went forth and all the army, with the chariots, & horsemen, & the archers, which covered the face of the earth as locusts. {12} And when he had passed through the coasts of the Assyrians, he came to the great mountains of Ange, which are on the left hand of Cilicia: and he went up into all their castles, and won every fortress. {13} And he brake down the renowned city of Melothus, and spoiled all the children of Tharsis, and the children of Ismael, which were against the face of the desert, and on the south of the land of Cellon. {14} And he passed over Euphrates, & came into Mesopotamia: & he brake all the high cities, that were there, from the torrent of Mambre, till ye come to the sea: {15} and he took the borders thereof, from Cilicia unto the coasts of Japheth, which are toward the south. {16} And he carried away all the children of Madian, & spoiled all their riches, and all that resisted him he slew in the edge of the sword. {17} And after these things he went down into the fields of Damascus in the days of harvest, and he set all the corn on fire, & he made all the trees and vineyards to be cut down; {18} and the fear of him fell upon all the inhabitants of the land.

Many kings and other Princes submit themselves to Holofernes. 8. He receiveth them, and taketh of their chief men to reinforce his army, 11. nevertheless destroyeth their cities, and their Gods, that Nabuchodonosor only might be called God.

{1} THEN the kings and Princes of all cities and Provinces, namely of Syria and Mesopotamia, and Syria Sobal, and Libya, and Cilicia sent their ambassadors, which coming to Holofernes, said: {2} Let thy indignation toward us cease: For it is better that living we fear Nabuchodonosor the great king, and be subject to thee, than dying, we should with our destruction suffer the damages of our servitude. {3} Every city of ours, and all our possession, all mountains, and hills, and fields, and herds of oxen, and flocks of sheep, and goats, and of horses, and camels, and all our goods, and families are in thy sight: {4} Let all our things be under thy law. {5} We also, and our children are thy servants. {6} Come to us a peaceable Lord, and use our service, as it shall please thee. {7} Then went he down from the mountains with horsemen in a great power, and took every city, and every inhabiter of the land. {8} And of all the cities he took to help him valiant men, and chosen for battle. {9} And so great fear lay upon all those Provinces, that the inhabitants of all cities, Princes, and honourable persons, together with the people went out to meet him coming, {10} receiving him with garlands, and torches, dancing with timbrels, and shalms. {11} Neither doing these things, could they for all that, mitigate the fierceness of his stomach: {12} for he did both destroy their cities, and cut down their groves. {13} For Nabuchodonosor the king had commanded him, that he should destroy all the gods of the earth, that he only might be called god of those nations, which could be subdued with the might of Holofernes. {14} And passing through all Syria Sobal, and all Apamea, and all Mesopotamia, he came to the Idumeians into the land of Gabaa, {15} and took their cities, and sat there for thirty days, in which days he commanded all the army of his power to be united.

The children of Israel exceedingly fearing Holofernes' forces. 3. provide to resist him, by the exhortation of the High Priest, using both human 8. and divine means.

{1} THEN the children of Israel, which dwelt in the Land of Juda, hearing these things, were sore afraid of his presence. {2} Trembling also, & horror invaded their senses, {506} lest he would do that to Jerusalem and to the temple of our Lord, which he had done to other cities, & their temples. {3} And they sent into all Samaria round about, as far as Jericho, and preoccupied all the tops of mountains: {4} and they compassed their towns with walls, and gathered together corn for provision of battle. {5} Eliachim the Priest wrote to all, that were against Esdrelon, which is against the face of the great field beside Dothain, and to all, by whom there might be passage of way, {6} that they should take the ascents of the mountains, by which there might be way to Jerusalem, and should keep watch, where the way was narrow between the mountains. {7} And the children of Israel did according as the Priest of our Lord Eliachim had appointed them. {8} And all the people cried to our Lord with great instance, and they humbled their souls in fastings, and prayers, they and their wives. {9} And the Priests put on hair-cloths, and they laid the infants prostrate against the face of the temple of our Lord, and the altar of our Lord they covered with hair-cloth: {10} and they cried to our Lord the God of Israel with one accord, that their infants might not be given into prey, and their wives into spoil, & their cities into destruction, and their holy things into pollution, and they be made a reproach to the Gentiles. {11} Then Eliachim the high Priest of our Lord went about all Israel and spake to them, {12} saying: Know ye, that our Lord will hear your prayers, if continuing you continue in fastings and prayers in the sight of our Lord. {13} Be mindful of Moyses the servant of our Lord, who overthrew Amalek trusting in his power, and in his might, and in his army, & in his shields, and in his chariots, and in his horsemen, not by fighting, but with holy prayers: {14} so shall all the enemies of Israel be, if you persevere in this work, which you have begun. {15} They therefore at this exhortation of his, beseeching our Lord, continued in the sight of our Lord, {16} so that they also which offered the holocausts to our Lord, did offer the sacrifices to our Lord girded with hair-cloths, and there were ashes upon their head. {17} And they all prayed God with all their heart, that he would visit his people Israel.

Holofernes hearing that the Israelites prepare to resist him, in great rage demandeth diverse particulars concerning that people. 5. Achior an Ammonite telleth the marvelous works of God towards them, 22. adviseth him not to fight against them. 26. The chief captains are offended, and threaten Achior.

{1} AND it was told Holofernes the General of the wars of the Assyrians, that the children of Israel prepared themselves to resist, and had shut up the ways of the mountains, {2} and with exceeding fury he chased in great anger, & called all the Princes of Moab and dukes of Ammon, {3} and he said to them: Tell me what is this people which beseteth the mountains: or what, and of what sort, and how great their cities are: also what their power is, or what is their multitude: or who is the king of their warfare: {4} and why above all that dwell in the East, have these contemned us, & have not come forth to meet us, that they might receive us with peace? {5} Then Achior captain of all the children of Ammon answering, said: If thou vouchsafe my Lord to hear, I will tell the truth in thy sight, of this people, which dwelleth in the mountains, & there shall not a false word come forth of my mouth. {6} This people is of the progeny of the Chaldees. {7} The same dwelt first in Mesopotamia, because they would not follow the gods of their fathers, which were in the land of the Chaldees. {8} Forsaking therefore the ceremonies of their fathers, which were in multitude of gods, {9} they worshipped one God of heaven, who also commanded them that they should depart from thence, and should dwell in Charan. And when there was famine over all the land, they went down into Aegypt, and there for four hundred years were so multiplied, that the host of them could not be numbered. {10} And when the king of Aegypt oppressed them, and in the buildings of his cities had subdued them in brick and clay, they cried to their Lord, and he struck the whole Land of Aegypt with diverse plagues. {11} And when the Aegyptians had cast them out from them, and the plague had ceased from them, and they would take them again, and call them back to their service, {12} these flying away, the God of heaven opened the sea, so that the waters were consolidated as a wall, on either side, and they walking through the bottom of the sea passed dry-foot. {13} In which place whilst an innumerable army of the Aegyptians pursued them, they were so overwhelmed with the waters, that there was not one remaining, to tell the fact to posterity. {14} Also being past the red sea, they possessed the deserts of Mount Sinai, in which never man could dwell, or son of man rested. {15} There bitter fountains were made sweet for them to drink, and for forty years they received meat from heaven. {16} Wheresoever they entered without bow and arrow, and without shield and sword, their God fought for them, and overcame. {17} And there was not that did insult against this people, but when they departed from the worship of the Lord their God. {18} But as often as beside their own God they worshipped another, they were given to prey, and into the sword, and to reproach. {19} And as often as they were penitent for that they revolted from the worship of their God, the God of heaven gave them power to resist. {20} Finally the king of the Chananeites, and of the Jebuseites, and of the Pherezeites, and of the Hetheites, and of the Heveites, and of the Amorrheites, and all the mighty in Hesebon they overthrew, and they possessed their lands, and their cities: {21} and as long as they sinned not in the sight of their God, it was well with them, for their God hateth iniquity. {22} For these years also past when they had revolted from the way, which God had given them, that they should walk in it, they were destroyed in battles by many nations, and very many of them were led captive into a strange land. {23} But of late returning to the Lord their God, from the dispersion wherein they were dispersed, they are united and are come up into all these mountains, and possess Jerusalem again where their Holies are. {24} Now therefore my Lord, search if there be any iniquity of theirs in the sight of their God: and let us go up to them, because their God delivering will deliver them to thee, and they shall be subdued under the yoke of thy power: {25} but if there be no offence of this people before their God, we can not resist them, because their God will defend them: and we shall be a reproach to the whole earth. {26} And it came to pass, when Achior had ceased to speak these words, all the great men of Holofernes were angry, and they thought to kill him, saying to each other: {27} who is this, that saith the children of Israel can resist king Nabuchodonosor, and his armies, men unarmed, and without force, and without skill of the feats of war? {28} That Achior therefore may know that he deceiveth us, let us go up into the mountains: and when their mighty ones shall be taken, then shall he with them be stricken through with the sword: {29} that every nation may know that Nabuchodonosor is god of the earth, and besides him there is none other.

Holofernes in great rage sendeth Achior to Bethulia, that he may there be slain with the Israelites. 8. He is left bound to a tree. 10. from whence the Israelites taking him, he telleth them the cause. 14. They entertain him courteously, and earnestly pray to God for help.

{1} AND it came to pass when they had ceased to speak, Holofernes being sore offended, said to Achior: {2} Because thou hast prophesied unto us saying, that the nation of Israel is defended of their God, that I may shew thee that there is no God but Nabuchodonosor, {3} when we shall have struck them all as one man, then thy self with them shalt die by the sword of the Assyrians, & all Israel with thee shall perish by destruction: {4} and thou shalt prove that Nabuchodonosor is Lord of the whole earth: and then the sword of my warfare shall pass through thy sides, & pierced, thou shalt fall among the wounded of Israel, & thou shalt no more fetch breath, till thou be destroyed with them. {5} But if thou think thy prophecy true, let not thy countenance quail, and the paleness that is in thy face, let it depart from thee, if thou think these my words can not be accomplished. {6} And that thou mayst know that thou shalt prove these things together with them, behold from this hour thou shalt be associate to their people, that whiles they shall receive worthy punishment of my sword, thou withal may be subject to the vengeance. {7} Then Holofernes commanded his servants that they should take Achior, and lead him into Bethulia, & should deliver him into the hands of the children of Israel. {8} And the servants of Holofernes taking him, went through the champion: but when they came near the mountains, the slingers came forth against them. {9} And they returning out of the way by the side of the mountain, tied Achior to a tree, hand and foot, and so left him bound with wites, and returned to their lord. {10} Moreover the children of Israel descending from Bethulia, came to him. Whom loosing they brought to Bethulia, and setting him in the midst of the people, demanded what was the matter, that the Assyrians had left him bound. {11} In those days the Princes there, were Ozias the son of Micha of the tribe of Simeon, and Charmi, who also is Gothoniell. {12} In the midst therefore of the ancients, and in the sight of all, Achior told all things that he had spoken being asked of Holofernes: and how the people of Holofernes would have killed him for this word, {13} and how Holofernes himself being angry commanded him to be delivered for this cause to the Israelites: that when he should overcome the children of Israel, then he might command Achior also himself to die by diverse torments, for this that he had said: The God of heaven is their defender. {14} And when Achior had declared all these things, all the people fell on their face, adoring our Lord, and with common lamentation and weeping they poured out their prayers with one accord to our Lord, {15} saying: Lord God of heaven and earth, behold their pride, and have regard to our humility, and attend the face of thy saints, and shew that thou forsakest not them that presume to thee, and that thou humblest them that presume of themselves, and glory of their power. {16} Their weeping therefore being ended, and the people's prayer by the whole day being finished, they comforted Achior, {17} saying: The God of our fathers, whose power thou hast set forth, he will give thee this recompense, that thou rather shalt see their destruction. {18} And when the Lord our God shall give this liberty to his servants, be God with thee also in the midst of us: that as it shall please thee, so thou with all thine mayst converse with us. {19} Then Ozias, the counsel being ended, received him into his house, and made him a great supper. {20} And all the ancients being called, they refreshed themselves together after the fasting was ended. {21} But afterward all the people was called together, & all the night long within the Church, they prayed desiring help of the God of Israel.

Holofernes besiegeth Bethulia, 6. cutteth their conduit of water, 9. keepeth their fountains. 12. The people murmur and mutiny, 18. yet they pray to God, 23. and the high Priest determineth, if aid come not within five days, to deliver the city to the Assyrians.

{1} BUT Holofernes the next day commanded his armies, that they should go up against Bethulia. {2} And there were of war foot-men an hundred twenty thousand, and horse-men two and twenty thousand, besides the preparations of those men, whom the captivity had taken, and had been led away out of the Provinces & cities, of all youth. {3} All prepared themselves together to the fight against the children of Israel, and they came by the hill side unto the top, which looketh toward Dothaim, from the place which is called Belma unto Chelmon, which is against Esdrelon. {4} But the children of Israel, as they saw the multitude of them, laid themselves prostrate upon the earth, casting ashes upon their heads, praying with one accord, that the God of Israel would shew his mercy upon his people. {5} And taking their weapons of war, they sat at the places, which by a narrow path-way lead directly between the mountains, and they were keeping them all day and night. {6} Moreover Holofernes, whilst he compasseth round about, found that the fountain which ran in, went directly to their conduit on the south side without the city: and he commanded their conduit to be cut asunder. {7} Nevertheless there were fountains not far from the walls, out of which secretly they seemed to draw water to refresh themselves, rather than to drink. {8} But the children of Ammon and Moab came to Holofernes, saying: The children of Israel trust not in spear, nor in arrow, but the mountains defend them, and the hills standing marvelous steep guard them. {9} Therefore that thou mayst overcome them without joining battle, set keepers of the fountains, that they may not draw water of them, and without sword thou shalt kill them, or at the least being wearied they will yield their city, which they think being set in the mountains, can not be overcome. {10} And these words pleased Holofernes and his soldiers, and he placed round about an hundred men at every fountain. {11} And when that watch had been fully kept for twenty days, the cisterns failed, and the collections of waters to all the inhabitants of Bethulia, so that there was not within the city whereof they might be satisfied, no not for one day, because water was daily given to the people by measure. {12} Then all the men, and women, young men, and children, being gathered together to Ozias, all together with one voice, {13} said: God judge between us and thee, because thou hast done evil against us, in that thou wouldest not speak peaceably with the Assyrians, and for this cause God hath sold us into their hands. {14} And there is none to help, whereas we lie prostrate before their eyes in thirst, and great destruction. {15} And now assemble ye all, that are in the city, that we may of our own accord yield us all to the people of Holofernes. {16} For it is better, that captives we bless our Lord living, than we should die, and be a reproach to all flesh, when we shall see our wives and our infants die before our eyes. {17} We call to witness this day heaven and earth, and the God of our fathers, which taketh vengeance of us according to our sins, that now you deliver the city into the hand of Holofernes' army, that our end may be short in the edge of the sword, which is made longer in the drought of thirst. {18} And when they had said these things, there was made great weeping and howling of all in the assembly, and for many hours with one voice they cried to God, saying: {19} We have sinned with our fathers, we have done unjustly, we have committed iniquity. {20} Thou because thou art gracious, have mercy upon us, or in thy scourge revenge our iniquities, and deliver not them that trust in thee to a people, that knoweth not thee, {21} that they say not among the Gentiles: Where is their God? {22} And when they, wearied with these cries, and tired with these weepings, had held their peace, {23} Ozias rising up imbruied with tears, said: Be of good cheer brethren, and these five days let us expect mercy of our Lord. {24} For peradventure he will cut off his indignation, and will give glory to his name. {25} But if after five days be past there come no aid, we will do these words, which you have spoken.

Judith a most virtuous, rich, fair, and renowned widow, 9. rebuketh the high Priest and ancients, for their determination to deliver the city, if aid come not in five days: 14. exhorteth all to penance. 28. They all agree to her godly advise, 30. praying for good success of her intention, which they yet know not.

{1} AND it came to pass, when Judith a widow had heard these words, which was the daughter of Merari, the son of Idox, the son of Joseph, the son of Ozias, the son of Elai, the son of Jamnor, the son of Gedeon, the son of Raphaim, the son of Achitob, the son of Melchias, the son of Enan, the son of Nathania, the son of Salathiel, the son of Simeon, the son of Israel: {2} and her husband was Manasses, who died in the days of barley harvest: {3} for he was occupied with them that bound sheaves in the field, and the heat came upon his head, and he died in Bethulia his city, and was buried there with his father. {4} And Judith was left his widow now three years & six months. {5} And in the higher parts of her house she made her self a secret chamber, in which she abode shut up with her maids. {6} and having cloth of hair upon her loins, she fasted all the days of her life, but Sabbaths, and new moons, and the feasts of the house of Israel. {7} And she was of an exceeding beautiful countenance, to whom her husband had left much riches, & a great family, and possessions full of herds of oxen, and flocks of sheep. {8} And she was among all most famous, because she feared our Lord very much, neither was there that spake an ill word of her. {9} When she therefore had heard that Ozias had promised, that after the fifth day were past he would yield the city, she sent to the ancients Chabri & Charmi. {10} And they came to her, and she said to them: What is this word, wherein Ozias hath consented, to yield the city to the Assyrians, if within five days there come no aid to us? {11} And what are you, that tempt our Lord? {12} This is no word that may provoke mercy, but rather that may raise up wrath, and inflame fury. {13} You have set a time for the mercy of our Lord, and according to your pleasure, you have appointed him a day. {14} But because our Lord is patient, let us be penitent for this same thing, and shedding tears let us desire his pardon: {15} for not as man, so will God threaten, neither as the son of man will he be inflamed to anger. {16} And therefore let us humble our souls to him, & being settled in an humble spirit, serving him: {17} let us say weeping to our Lord, that according to his will so he do his mercy with us: that as our heart is troubled in their pride, so also we may glory in our humility: {18} because we have not followed the sins of our fathers, which forsook their God, and adored strange gods, {19} for which abomination they were given into the sword, & into confusion to their enemies: but we know no other God but him. {20} Let us humbly expect his consolation, and he will require our blood of the afflictions of our enemies, and he will humble all Nations, what soever shall rise up against us, and the Lord our God will make them without honour. {21} And now brethren, because you are ancients in the people of God, and their souls depend of you: by your speech comfort their hearts, that they be mindful, that our fathers were tempted to be proved, whether they did worship their God truly. {22} They must be mindful how our father Abraham was tempted, and by many tribulations proved, was made the friend of God. {23} So Isaac, so Jacob, so Moyses, and all that have pleased God, through many tribulations have passed faithful. {24} But they that did not receive the temptations with the fear of our Lord, and uttered their impatience and reproach of their murmuring against our Lord, {25} were destroyed of the destroyer, and perished by serpents. {26} And we therefore let us not revenge our selves for these things, which we suffer, {27} but reputing these very punishments to be the scourges of our Lord less than our sins, wherewith as servants we are chastised, let us think them to have chanced to our amendment, and not to our destruction. {28} And Ozias and the ancients said to her: All things which thou hast spoken be true, and there is no reprobation in thy words. {29} Now therefore pray for us, because thou art a holy woman, and fearing God. {30} And Judith said to them: As you know, that which I could speak to be of God, {31} so that which I have disposed to do, prove if it be of God, and pray that God establish my counsel. {32} You shall stand at the gate this night, and I will go out with mine Abra: and pray ye, that as you have said, in five days our Lord respect his people Israel. {33} But I will not that you search my doing, and till I bring you word, let nothing else be done, but pray for me to our Lord God. {34} And Ozias the Prince of Juda said to her: Go in peace, and our Lord be with thee to the revenge of our enemies. And returning they departed.

Chapter 9

Judith in hair-cloth & ashes prayeth for the delivery of the people, remembering like benefits of God: 12. craveth power to overthrow Holofernes.

{1} WHO going away, Judith went into her oratory: and clothing her self with hair-cloth, put ashes upon her head: and falling prostrate to our Lord, she cried to our Lord, saying: {2} Lord God of my father Simeon, who gavest him a sword for defence against strangers, which were ravishers in their coquination, & discovered the virgin unto confusion: {3} and gavest their women into prey, and their daughters into captivity: and all the prey to be divided to thy servants, which were zealous in thy zeal: help I beseech thee, o Lord God, me a widow. {4} For thou hast done the things heretofore, and hast purposed one thing after an other: and that hath been done which thou wouldest. {5} For all thy ways are ready, and thy judgments thou hast put in thy providence. {6} Look upon the camp of the Assyrians now, as thou didst vouchsafe to see the camp of the Aegyptians, when they ran armed after thy servants, trusting in chariots, and in their horsemen, and in a multitude of men of war. {7} But thou didst look over their camp, and darkness wearied them. {8} The depth held their feet, and the waters overwhelmed them. {9} So let these also be made o Lord, which trust in their multitude, and in their chariots, and in pikes, and in shields, and in their arrows, and glory in their spears, {10} and know not thy self art our God, which destroyest wars from the beginning, and Lord is thy name. {11} Lift up thine arm as from the beginning, & dash their power in thy power: let their power fall in thy wrath, which promise that they will violate thy holy things, and pollute the tabernacle of thy holy name, & with their sword throw down the horn of thine altar. {12} Bring to pass Lord, that his pride be cut off with his own sword, {13} let him be caught with the snares of his eyes in me, & thou shalt strike him from the lips of my charity. {14} Give me constancy in mind, that I may contemn him: and power that I may overthrow him. {15} For this shall be a memorial of thy name, when the hand of a woman shall overthrow him. {16} For not in multitude is thy power o Lord, neither in strength of horses is thy will, neither have the proud pleased thee from the beginning: but the prayer of the humble and meek hath always pleased thee. {17} God of the heavens, creator of the waters, & Lord of every creature, hear me wretch, praying and presuming of thy mercy. {18} Remember Lord thy testament, and give a word in my mouth, and strengthen counsel in my heart, that thy house may continue in thy sanctification: {19} and all Nations may acknowledge that thou art God, and there is no other besides thee.

Judith excellently adorned, and very beautiful goeth with her handmaid towards the camp, 11. is taken by the watch, 16. and brought to Holofernes.

{1} AND it came to pass, when she had ceased to cry to our Lord, she rose from the place, wherein she lay prostrate to our Lord. {2} And she called her Abra, and going down into her house she took from her the hair-cloth, & put off the garments of her widowhood, {3} and washed her body, and anointed her self with ointment, and plaited the hair of her head, and put a crown upon her head, and clothed her self with the garments of her joyfulness, and put pantofles on her feet, & took bracelets, and Lilies, and earlets, and rings, and with all her ornaments she adorned her self. {4} To whom also our Lord gave beauty: because all this trimming did not depend of sensuality, but of virtue: and therefore our Lord amplified this beauty on her, that she might appear to all men's eyes of incomparable comeliness. {5} She therefore laid upon her Abra a bottle of wine, and a vessel of oil, and polent, and dry figs, and bread, and cheese, and went forward. {6} And when they were come to the gate of the city, they found Ozias expecting, and the ancients of the city. {7} Who when they saw her, being astonished marveled at her beauty exceedingly. {8} Yet asking her no question, they let her pass, saying: The God of our fathers give thee grace, and strengthen all the counsel of thy heart, with his power, that Jerusalem may glory upon thee, and thy name may be in the number of the holy and just. {9} And they that were there said all with one voice: So be it, so be it. {10} But Judith praying our Lord, passed through the gates, she & her Abra. {11} And it came to pass, when she went down the hill, about break of day the watchmen of the Assyrians met her, & held her, saying: whence comest thou? Or whither goest thou? {12} Who answered, I am a daughter of the Hebrews, therefore am I fled from their face because I knew it should come to pass, that they should be given you unto spoil, because that contemning you, they would not of their own accord yield themselves, that they might find mercy in your sight. {13} For this cause I thought with my self, saying: I will go to the presence of the Prince Holofernes, that I may tell him their secrets, and shew him by what entrance he may win them, so that there shall not fall one man of his army, {14} And when those men had heard her words, they considered her face, and she was a wonder in their eyes, for they marveled at her beauty exceedingly. {15} And they said to her: Thou hast saved thy life, in that thou hast found such counsel, that thou wouldest come down to our Lord. {16} And this know thou, that when thou shalt stand in his sight, he will deal well with thee, and thou shalt be most gracious in his heart. And they brought her to the tabernacle of Holofernes, telling him of her. {17} And when she was entered before his face, forthwith Holofernes was caught in his eyes. {18} And his guard said to him: Who can contemn the people of the Hebrews, which have so beautiful women, that we should not worthily fight against them for these? {19} Judith therefore seeing Holofernes sitting in a canopy, which was woven of purple, and gold, and emerald, and precious stones: {20} and when she had looked in his face, she adored him, falling prostrate upon the ground. And the servants of Holofernes lifted her up, their lord commanding it.

Holofernes demanding Judith the cause of her coming: 4. she deceiveth him with a probable narration.

{1} THEN Holofernes said to her: Be of good cheer, and fear not in thy heart: because I have never hurt man, that would serve Nabuchodonosor the king. {2} And thy people, if they had not contemned me, I would never have lifted up my spear over them. {3} But now tell me, for what cause hast thou departed from them, and it hath pleased thee to come to us? {4} And Judith said to him: take the words of thy handmaid, for if thou wilt follow the words of thy handmaid, our Lord will do with thee a perfect thing. {5} For Nabuchodonosor the king of the earth liveth, and his power liveth which is in thee to the chastising of all straying souls: that not only men serve him by thee, but also the beasts of the field obey him. {6} For the industry of thy mind is reported to all nations, and it is declared to all the world, that thou only art good, and mighty in all his Kingdom, and thy discipline is bruited to all provinces. {7} Neither is that unknown which Achior speake, neither are we ignorant of that, thou hast commanded to come upon him. {8} For it is certain that our God is so offended with sins, that he hath sent word by his Prophets to the people, that he will deliver them for their sins. {9} And because the children of Israel know they offended their God, thy dread is upon them. {10} Moreover also famine hath invaded them, and for drought of water they are now esteemed among the dead. {11} Finally, they ordain this, to kill their cattle, and to drink the blood of them, {12} and the holy things of our Lord their God, which God commanded not to be touched, in corn, wine, and oil, these have they purposed to bestow, and they will consume the things which they ought not to touch with their hands: therefore because they do these things, it is sure that they shall be given into perdition. {13} Which I thy handmaid knowing, am fled from them, & our Lord hath sent me to tell thee these very things. {14} For I thy handmaid worship God, even now being with thee, and thy handmaid will go forth, and I will pray God, {15} and he will tell me when he will repay them their sins, and I coming will tell thee, so that I may bring thee through the midst of Jerusalem, and thou shalt have all the people of Israel, as sheep that have no pastor, & there shall not so much as one dog bark against thee: {16} because these things are told me by the providence of God. {17} And because God is angry with them, I am sent to tell these very things to thee. {18} And all these words pleased Holofernes, and his servants, and they marveled at her wisdom, and one said to an other: {19} There is not such a woman upon the earth in look, in beauty, and in sense of words. {20} And Holofernes said to her: God hath done well, which sent thee before the people, that thou mightest give them into our hands: {21} and because thy promise is good, if thy God shall do this for me, he shall also be my God, and thou shalt be great in the house of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shall be renowned in all the earth.

Judith is brought into Holofernes' treasure-house, 2. hath leave to abstain from the Gentiles' meats, 5. and to go forth in the night to pray. 10. The fourth day she cometh to Holofernes banquet; 16. he is taken with concupiscence, and drinketh very much wine.

{1} THEN he bade her go in where his treasures were laid up, and bade her tarry there, and he appointed what should be given her of his own banquet. {2} To whom Judith answered, and said: Now I can not eat of these things, which thou commandest to be given me, lest there come displeasure upon me: but I will eat of these things, which I have brought. {3} To whom Holofernes said: If these things which thou hast brought with thee shall fail thee, what shall we do to thee? {4} And Judith said: Thy soul liveth my lord, that thy handmaid shall not spend all these things, till God do by my hand these things, which I have purposed. And his servants brought her into the tabernacle, which he had commanded. {5} And whilst she went in, she desired that she might have licence to go forth in the night and before day to prayer, & to beseech our Lord. {6} And he commanded his chamberlains, that as it pleased her, she should go out & come in to adore her God for three days. {7} And she went forth in the nights into the vale of Bethulia, & washed her self in a fountain of water. {8} And as she came up, she prayed our Lord the God of Israel, that he would direct her way to the delivery of his people. {9} And going in, she remained pure in the tabernacle, until she took her own meat in the evening. {10} And it came to pass in the fourth day, Holofernes made a supper to his servants, and said to Vagao his eunuch: Go, and persuade that Hebrew woman, that she consent to her own accord to dwell with me. {11} For it is a foul thing with the Assyrians, if a woman mock a man in doing, that she pass free from him. {12} Then Vagao went into Judith, & said: Let not the good young maid fear to go in to my lord, that she may be honoured before his face, that she may eat with him & drink wine in joyfulness. {13} To whom Judith answered: Whom am I, that I should gain say my lord? {14} All that shall be good & best before his eyes, will I do. And whatsoever shall please him, that shall be best to me all the days of my life. {15} And she arose, and decked herself with her garments, and going in she stood before his face. {16} And the heart of Holofernes was stricken: for he burnt in the concupiscence of her. {17} And Holofernes said to her: Drink now, & sit down in joyfulness, because thou hast found grace before me. {18} And Judith said: I will drink my lord, because my soul is magnified this day above all my days. {19} And she took, and did eat, & drank before him those things, which her handmaid had prepared her. {20} And Holofernes was made pleasant toward her, & drank wine exceeding much, so much as he had never drunk in his life?

Holofernes lying in a drunken sleep, Judith cutteth off his head, 12. so returneth with her maid through the guard, as it were to pray, cometh to Bethulia 16. exhorteth all to thank God, and sheweth them the head. 22. She is blessed, of all. 27. Achior also praiseth God and Judith.

{1} AND when it was waxen late, his servants made haste to their lodgings, and Vagao shut the chamber doors, and went his way. {2} And they were all overladen with wine. {3} And Judith was alone in the chamber. {4} Moreover Holofernes lay in his bed, fast asleep with very much drunkenness. {5} And Judith said to her maid that she should stand without, before the chamber, & watch. {6} And Judith stood before the bed, praying with tears, & with moving of her lips in silence, {7} saying: Confirm me o Lord God of Israel and in this hour have respect to the works of my hands, that as thou hast promised, thou mayst advance Jerusalem thy city: and I may bring to pass that which I believing that it may be done by thee, have purposed. {8} And when she had said these things, she went to the pillar, that was at his bed's head, and his sword that hung tied on it, she loosed. {9} And when she had drawn it out, she took him by the hair of his head, and said: Confirm me, o Lord God, in this hour, {10} and she struck twice upon his neck, and cut off his head, and took his canopy from the pillars, and rolled aside his body a trunk. {11} And after a while she went out, and delivered the head of Holofernes to her maid, and bade her put it into her wallet. {12} And they two went forth, according to their custom, as it were to prayer, and they passed the camp, and compassing the valley, they came to the gate of the city. {13} And Judith a far off said to the keepers of the walls: Open the gates, because God is with us, which hath wrought power in Israel. {14} And it came to pass, when the men had heard her voice, they called the ancients of the city. {15} And they ran all to meet her, from the least to the greatest: because they hoped not that now she would come. {16} And they lighting lights gathered round about her every one: and she going up into a higher place, commanded silence to be made. And when all had held their peace, {17} Judith said: Praise ye the Lord our God, who hath not forsaken them that hope in him: {18} and in me his handmaid he hath fulfilled his mercy, which he promised to the house of Israel: and he hath killed by my hand the enemy of his people this night. {19} And bringing forth the head of Holofernes out of the wallet, she shewed it them, saying: Lo the head of Holofernes the General of the army of the Assyrians, & behold his canopy, wherein he lay in is drunkenness, where the Lord our God struck him by the hand of a woman. {20} But the same our Lord liveth, that his Angel hath kept me, both going hence, and abiding there, and from thence returning hither: and our Lord hath not suffered me his handmaid to be defiled, but without pollution of sin he hath called me back to you, rejoicing in this victory, in my escape, and in your delivery. {21} Confess ye all to him, because he is good, because his mercy is for ever. {22} And they all adoring our Lord, said to her: Our Lord hath blessed thee in his power, because by thee he hath brought our enemies to nothing. {23} Moreover Ozias the Prince of the people of Israel, said to her: Blessed art thou daughter of our Lord the high God, above all women upon the earth. {24} Blessed be our Lord, which made heaven & earth, which hath directed thee unto the wounds of the head of the Prince of our enemies. {25} Because this day he hath so magnified thy name, that thy praise shall not depart out of the mouth of men, which shall be mindful of the power of our Lord for ever, for that thou hast not spared thy life for the distresses and tribulation of thy kindred, but hast holpen the ruin before the presence of our God. {26} And all the people said: So be it, so be it. {27} Moreover Achior being called, came, and Judith said to him: The God of Israel, to whom thou gavest testimony, that he revengeth himself of his enemies, he hath cut off the head of all the unfaithful this night by my hand. {28} And that thou mayst prove that it is so, lo the head of Holofernes, who in the contempt of his pride contemned the God of Israel: and threatened thee death, saying: When the people of Israel shall be taken, I will command thy sides to be pierced with a sword. {29} But Achior seeing the head of Holofernes, being in anguish for fear, fell on his face upon the earth, and his soul was sore troubled. {30} But after taking spirit again he was refreshed, and fell down at her feet, and adored her, and said: {31} Blessed art thou of thy God in every tabernacle of Jacob, because in every nation, which shall hear thy name, the God of Israel shall be magnified in thee.

Holofernes' head is hanged on the wall. 6. Achior is circumcised. 7. The Israelites assault the Assyrians. 8. who going to awake their General, find him slain, 17. and are all confounded with fear.

{1} AND Judith said to all the people: Hear me brethren, hang ye this head upon our walls: {2} and it shall be, when the sun shall rise, let every man take his armour, & issue ye forth with violence, not that you go down beneath, but as it were invading violently. {3} Then the watchmen must of necessity run to raise up their Prince to battle. {4} And when the captains of them shall run to the tabernacle of Holofernes, and shall find him headless rolled in blood, fear will fall upon them. {5} And when you shall know that they fly, go after them securely, because our Lord will destroy them under your feet. {6} Then Achior seeing the power, that God of Israel wrought, forsaking the rite of gentility, believed God, and circumcised the flesh of his prepuce, and was joined to the people of Israel, and all the succession of his kindred until this present day. {7} And immediately as day brake, they hung the head of Holofernes upon the walls, & every man took his armour, & they went forth with great noise & shouting. {8} Which the watchmen seeing, ran to the tabernacle of Holofernes. {9} Moreover they that were in the tabernacle coming, and before the door of the tabernacle making a noise to raise him, they endeavoured by art to disquiet him, that Holofernes might awake not by them raising him, but by them making a noise. {10} For no man durst by knocking, or entering, to open the chamber of the chief of the Assyrians. {11} But when his Dukes and tribunes were come, and all the chief of the army of the king of the Assyrians, they said to the chamberlains: {12} Go in, and awake him, because the mice issuing out of their holes, have presumed to provoke us to battle. {13} Then Vagao entering into his chamber, stood before the curtain, & made a clapping with his hands: for he thought that he slept with Judith. {14} But when with the sense of his ears he perceived no motion of person lying, he came near to the curtain, and lifting it up, and seeing the body without the head of Holofernes weltered in his blood lie upon the ground, cried out in a loud voice with weeping, and rent his garments. {15} And going into the tabernacle of Judith, he found her not, and he lept forth to the people, {16} and said: One Hebrew woman hath made confusion in the house of king Nabuchodonosor: for behold Holofernes lieth upon the ground and his head is not upon him. {17} Which when the Princes of the power of the Assyrians had heard, they all rent their garments, & intolerable fear and dread fell upon them, and their minds were troubled exceedingly. {18} And there was made an incomparable cry in the midst of their camp.

The Assyrians fly for fear, 3. the Hebrews pursue them, 7. and are enriched by the spoils. 9. The high Priest with others come from Jerusalem and praise Judith. 14. The goods of Holofernes are given to her.

{1} AND when all the army heard that Holofernes was beheaded, courage and counsel fell from them, and being shaken with trembling only and fear, they help themselves by flight, {2} so that none spake with his neighbour, but hanging the head, all things left behind, they made haste to escape the Hebrews, whom they heard to come armed upon them, flying by the ways of the fields, and the paths of the hills. {3} The children of Israel therefore seeing them flying, followed them. And they went down sounding with trumpets, and shouting after them. {4} And because the Assyrians were not united together, they went headlong into flight: but the children of Israel pursuing in one company, discomfited all that they could find. {5} Ozias therefore sent messengers through all the cities and countries of Israel. {6} Every country therefore, and every city sent chosen youth armed after them, and they pursued them in the edge of the sword, until they came to the extremity of their borders. {7} And the rest that were in Bethulia, entered into the camp of the Assyrians, and took away the prey, which the Assyrians flying had left, and were loaden exceedingly. {8} But they that were returned conquerors to Bethulia, took away with them all things that were theirs, so that there was no number in cattle, and beasts, and all their moveables, that from the least unto the greatest all were made rich of their preys. {9} And Joachim the high Priest came from Jerusalem into Bethulia with all his ancients to see Judith. {10} Who when she was come out to him, they all blessed her with one voice, saying: Thou art the glory of Jerusalem, thou the joy of Israel, thou the honour of our people: {11} because thou hast done manfully, and thy heart was strengthened, for that thou had loved chastity, and after thy husband not known any other: therefore also the hand of our Lord hath strengthened thee, and therefore shall thou be blessed for ever. {12} And all the people said: So be it, so be it. {13} And for thirty days, scarce were the spoils of the Assyrians gathered of the people of Israel. {14} Moreover all things, that were proved to be the peculiar goods of Holofernes, they gave to Judith, in gold, and silver, and garments, and precious stones, and all stuff, and all the things were delivered her of the people. {15} And all the people rejoiced with women, and virgins, and youngmen, on instruments and harps.

Judith singeth a canticle of thanks-giving to our Lord. 22. The people go to Jerusalem and offer sacrifices. 25. She in great honour liveth a widow till her death in good old age. 30. The people have long peace, and a festival day is instituted in perpetual memory of her fact.

{1} THEN sang Judith this song to our Lord, saying: sing ye to our Lord in cymbals, tune to him {2} Begin ye to our Lord in timbrels, a new Psalm, rejoice, and invocate his name. {3} Our Lord confoundeth battles, Lord is his name. {4} Who hath set his camp in the midst of his people, that he might deliver us from the hand of all our enemies. {5} Assur came out of the mountains from the North in the multitude of his strength: whose multitude stopped up the torrents, and their horses covered the valleys. {6} He said that he would set my borders on fire, and kill my young men with the sword, to give my infants into prey, and virgins into captivity. {7} But our Lord omnipotent hath hurt him, and hath delivered him into the hands of a woman, and hath pierced him. {8} For, not by young men is their mighty one fallen, neither have the sons of Titan stricken him, neither did the high giants set themselves upon him, but Judith the daughter of Merari in the beauty of her face dissolved him. {9} For she put from her the garments of widowhood, and put on her the garments of joy, in the rejoicing of the children of Israel. {10} She anointed her face with ointment, and tied together her locks with a crown, she took a new stole to deceive him. {11} Her sandals ravished his eyes, her beauty made his soul captive, she with a sword cut off his head. {12} The Persians did quake at her constancy, and the Medes at her boldness. {13} Then did the camp of the Assyrians howl, when my humble ones appeared, withering in thirst. {14} The sons of young women have pierced them, and they have killed them as boys flying away: they have perished in battle before the face of the Lord my God. {15} Let us sing an hymn to our Lord, let us sing a new hymn to our God. {16} Adonai o Lord, great art thou, and noble in thy power, and whom no man can overcome. {17} Let every creature of thine serve thee: because thou saidst, and they were made: thou didst send thy spirit, and they were created, and there is none that can resist thy voice. {18} The mountains with the waters shall be moved with the foundations: the rocks shall melt as wax before thy face. {19} But they that fear thee, shall be great with thee in all things. {20} Woe be to the nation, that riseth up upon my kindred: for our Lord omnipotent will be revenged on them, in the day of judgment he will visit them. {21} For he will give fire, and worms into their flesh, that they may be burnt, and may feel for ever. {22} And it came to pass after these things, all the people after the victory came into Jerusalem to adore our Lord: and forthwith as they were purified, they all offered holocausts, and vows, and their promises. {23} Moreover Judith offered for an anathema of oblivion all the instruments of war of Holofernes, which the people gave her, and the canopy that her self had taken away out of his chamber. {24} And the people was pleasant according to the face of saints, and for three months the joy of this victory was celebrated with Judith. {25} And after those days every man returned into his house, and Judith was made great in Bethulia, and she was more glorious to all the land of Israel. {26} There was also chastity joined to her virtue, so that she knew not man all the days of her life, after that Manasses her husband was dead. {27} And on festival days she came forth with great glory. {28} And she abode in her husband's house an hundred five years, and dismiss her Abrax free, & she died and was buried with her husband in Bethulia. {29} And all the people mourned for her seven days. {30} And in all the space of her life there was not that troubled Israel, and after her death many years. {31} But the day of the festivity of this victory is received of the Hebrews in the number of holy days, and is worshipped of the Jews from that time until this present day. Esther

King Assuerus celebrateth a great banquet to shew his glory. 10. calleth queen Vasthi thereto. Who refusing to come, is by advise of his Counsel deposed.

{1} IN the days of Assuerus, who reigned from India unto Aethiopia over an hundred twenty seven provinces: {2} when he sat in the throne of his Kingdom, the city Susan was in the beginning of his Kingdom. {3} In the third year therefore of his empire he made a great feast to all the Princes, and to his servants, to the most valiant of the Persians, and the nobles of the Medes, and the rulers of the Provinces in his sight, {4} that he might shew the riches of the glory of his Kingdom, and the greatness, and vaunting of his might, a great time, to wit, an hundred an fourscore days. {5} And when the days of the feast were accomplished, he invited all people, that was found in Susan, from the greatest to the least: and commanded seven days a feast to be prepared in the entrance of the garden, & of the wood, which was planted with royal garnishing and with hand. {6} And there hung on every side hangings of sky-colour, and green, and hyacinthine colour, held up with cords of silk, & of purple, which were put into rings of ivory, and were held up with marble pillars. Beds also of gold and silver were placed in order upon the floor paved with the emerald, and the touch-stone: which painting adorned with marvelous variety. {7} And they that were invited, drank in golden cups, & the meats were brought in chane of vessels. Wine also plenteous and the best was set down, as was worthy of a king's magnificence. {8} Neither was there that compelled them to drink that would not, but as the king had appointed, making each of his Princes overseer of every table, that every man might take what he would. {9} Vasthi also the queen made a feast for the women in the palace, where king Assuerus had accustomed to remain. {10} Therefore the seventh day, when the king was merrier, and after very much drinking was well warmed with wine, he commanded Maumam, & Bazatha, & Harbona, & Bagatha, & Abgatha, & Zethar, & Charchas, the seven eunuchs, that ministered in his sight, {11} that they should bring in queen Vasthi before the king, the crown set upon her head, that he might shew her beauty to all the peoples and Princes: for she was exceeding beautiful. {12} Who refused, and contemned to come at the king's commandment, which he had commanded by the eunuchs. Whereupon the king being wrath, & chaffed with exceeding fury, {13} asked the wisemen, which after the manner of a king were always present with him, & he did all things by their counsel, which knew the laws, and rights of the elders: {14} (and the chief & nearest him were, Charsena, & Sethar, and Admatha, & Tharsis, and Mares, and Marsana, and Mamuchan, seven dukes of the Persians, and of the Medes, which saw the face of the king, & were wont to sit first after him) {15} to what sentence Vasthi the queen should be subject, that would not do Assuerus' the king's commandment, which he had commanded by the eunuchs. {16} And Mamuchan answered, the king hearing, and the Princes: queen Vasthi hath not only hurt the king, but also all peoples, & Princes, that are in all the provinces of king Assuerus. {17} For the word of the queen will go forth to all women, that they will contemn their husbands, and will say: King Assuerus commanded that the queen Vasthi should come in to him, and she would not. {18} And by this example all the wives of the Princes of the Persians and the Medes, will little esteem the commandments of their husbands: wherefore the king's indignation is just. {19} If it please thee, let an edict go forth from thy face, and let it be written according to the law of the Persians and of Medes, which is not lawful to be transgressed, that Vasthi come in no more to the king, but an other that is better than she, take her Kingdom. {20} And let this be published into all the empire of thy Provinces (which is most large) and let all the wives, as well of the greater as of the lesser give honour to their husbands. {21} His counsel pleased the king, and the Princes: and the king did according to the counsel of Mamuchan, {22} and he sent letters to all the Provinces of his Kingdom, as every nation could hear and read, in diverse languages and characters, that the husbands should be Princes and masters in their houses: and that this should be published through all peoples.

Inquiry being made of the best and fairest virgins. 5. Esther the unknown niece of Mardocheus a Jew, is preferred. 18. and made queen in place of Vasthi; a marriage feast made, and presents given. 21. Mardocheus detecteth traitors, and his service is recorded in the register.

{1} THESE things so done, after the indignation of king Assuerus was assuaged, he remembered Vasthi, & what she had done, or what she had suffered: {2} and the king's servants and his ministers said: Let there be maidens sought for the king, virgins and beautiful, {3} and let there be sent that may view through all Provinces beautiful maidens & virgins: and let them bring them to the city of Susan, and deliver them into the house of women under the hand of Egeus the eunuch, who is overseer of the king's women: and let them receive women's ornaments, and other things necessary to be used. {4} And which so ever among all shall please the king's eyes, let her reign for Vasthi. The word pleased the king: and so as they had suggested, he commanded to be done. {5} There was a man in the city of Susan a Jew, named Mardocheus, the son of Jair, the son of Semei, the son of Cis, of the stock of Jemini, {6} who had been transported from Jerusalem the same time that Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon transported Jechonias the king of Juda, {7} who was the foster-father of his brother's daughter Edissa, which by an other name was called Esther: & she had lost both her parents: exceeding beautiful, and of comely face. And her father and mother being dead, Mardocheus adopted her for his daughter. {8} And when the king's commandment was bruited abroad, and according to his commandment many fair virgins were brought to Susan, and were delivered to Egeus the eunuch: Esther also among the rest of the maidens was delivered to him, that she might be kept in the number of the women. {9} Who pleased him, and found grace in his sight. And he commanded the eunuch, that he should hasten the women's ornaments, and should deliver her her parts, and seven the most beautiful maidens of the king's house, and should adorn and deck both her and her waiting maids. {10} Who would not tell him her people & country. For Mardocheus had commanded her, that of this thing she should altogether keep silence: {11} who walked daily before the entrance of the house, wherein the chosen virgins were kept, taking care of Esther's welfare, and desirous to know what should chance unto her. {12} And when the time of every virgin in order was come, that they should go in to the king, all things accomplished that pertained to women's ornaments, it was the twelfth month: yet so, that for six months they were anointed with oil of myrtle, and other six months they used certain paintings & sweet spices. {13} And going in to the king, what soever they asked that pertained to adorning, they received: and being trimmed, as it pleased them, they passed from the chamber of the women to the king's chamber. {14} And she that went in at evening, came out in the morning, and from thence she was brought to the second house, that was under the hand of Susagazus the eunuch, who was chief over the king's concubines: neither had she power to return any more to the king, unless the king had willed, and had commanded her to come by name. {15} And the time by order coming about, the day was at hand that Esther the daughter of Abihail the brother of Mardocheus, whom he had adopted for his daughter, should go in to the king. Who sought not women's ornaments, but whatsoever Egeus the eunuch the keeper of the virgins would, those things he gave her to her adorning. For she was exceeding fair, and of incredible beauty, she seemed to all men's eyes gracious and amiable. {16} She therefore was brought to the chamber of king Assuerus the tenth month, which is called Tebeth, in the seventh year of his reign. {17} And the king loved her more than all the women, and she had grace and mercy before him above all the women, and he put the crown of the Kingdom on her head, and made her reign in stead of Vasthi. {18} And he commanded a very magnifical feast to be prepared to all the Princes, and to his servants, for the conjunction and marriage of Esther. And gave rest to all the Provinces, and bestowed gifts according to princely magnificence. {19} And when virgins were sought the second time and gathered together, Mardocheus tarried at the king's gate: {20} neither had Esther as yet uttered her country, & people, according to his commandment. For whatsoever he commanded, Esther observed: & she did all things so as she was wont at that time, when he nourished her a little one. {21} At that time therefore, when Mardocheus abode at the king's gate, Bagathan & Thares were angry, two of the king's eunuchs, that were porters, & were chief in the first entry of the palace: and they would make insurrection against the king, and kill him. {22} Whereof Mardocheus got notice, & immediately he told it to queen Esther: & she to the king in the name of Mardocheus, who had reported the thing unto her. {23} It was examined and found: and they were both hanged on a gibbet. And it was put in the histories, and registered in the chronicles before the king.

Aman advanced by the king, is much offended that Mardocheus doth not adore him, 6. and therefore procureth the king's decree, to destroy the whole nation of the Jews.

{1} AFTER these things king Assuerus advance Aman the son of Amadathi, which was of the stock of Agag: and he put his throne above all the Princes which he had. {2} And all the king's servants, that were in the doors of his palace, bowed their knees, and adored Aman: for so the Emperor had commanded them: only Mardocheus did not bow his knee, nor adore him. {3} To whom the king's servants, that were chief at the doors of the palace, said: Why doest thou above the rest not observe the king's commandment? {4} And when they said this often, and he would not hear, they told Aman, desirous to know whether he would persevere in his sentence: for he had told them that he was a Jew. {5} Which Aman had heard, & had proved by experience that Mardocheus bowed not his knee unto him, nor adored him, he was angry exceedingly. {6} And he counted it a matter of nothing to lay his hands upon Mardocheus alone: for he had heard that he was of the Jews, and he would rather destroy all the nation of the Jews, that were in the Kingdom of Assuerus. {7} The first month (which is called Nisan) in the twelfth year of the reign of Assuerus, the lot was cast into a pot which in Hebrew is called Phur, before Aman, in what day and what month the nation of the Jews should be slain; and there came forth the twelfth month, which is called Adar. {8} And Aman said to king Assuerus: There is a people dispersed through all the Provinces of thy kingdom, and separated one from an other, using new laws and ceremonies, moreover also contemning the king's ordinances: And thou knowest very well that it is not expedient for thy kingdom that they wax insolent by liberty. {9} If it please thee, decree that they may perish, & I will pay ten thousand talents to the offerers of the treasure. {10} The king therefore took the ring that he used, from his hand, and gave it to Aman the son of Amadathi of the progeny of Agag, the enemy of the Jews, {11} and he said to him: The silver which thou doest promise, be it thine: but concerning the people do that which pleaseth thee. {12} And the king's scribes were called in the first month, Nisan, the thirteenth day of the same month: and it was written, as Aman had commanded, to all the king's lieutenants, and judges of the Provinces, and of diverse nations, as every nation could read, and hear according to the variety of languages, in the name of king Assuerus: and the letters signed with his ring, {13} were sent by the king's posts to all provinces, that they should kill and destroy all the Jews, from boy unto old man, children, and women, in one day, that is, in the thirteenth of the twelfth month, which is called Adar, and should spoil them of their goods. {14} And the content of the letters was this, that all Provinces might know, and prepare themselves against the day aforesaid. {15} The posts that were sent, made haste to fulfill the king's commandment. And immediately the edict hung in Susan, the king and Aman feasting, and all the Jews that were in the city weeping.

All the Jews lament their imminent danger. 5. Mardocheus willeth Esther to entreat the king for their safety. 11. She fearing to go to the king contrary to his law uncalled, 15. yet they all fasting and praying for her, she doth it.

{1} WHICH things when Mardocheus had heard, he rent his garments, and was clothed with sackcloth, sprinkling ashes on his head: and in the street of the midst of the city he cried with a loud voice, shewing the anguish of his mind, {2} and with this wailing going even to the doors of the palace: for it was not lawful for one clothed with sack-cloth to enter the king's court. {3} In all Provinces also, towns, and places, to which the king's cruel decree was come, there was great mourning with the Jews, fasting, howling, and weeping, many using sack-cloth and ashes for their couch. {4} And Esther's maids and the eunuchs went in, & told her. Which she hearing was astonished: & she sent a garment, that the sack-cloth being taken away, they should put it on him: which he would not take. {5} And calling for Athach the eunuch, whom the king had given her for a servant to Mardocheus, commanded him to go and to learn of him, why he did this. {6} And Athach going forth went to Mardocheus standing in the street of the city before the palace door: {7} who told him all things that had chanced, how Aman had promised, that he would bring silver into the king's treasures for the slaughter of the Jews. {8} He gave him also a copy of the edict which hung in Susan, that he should shew it to the queen, and should admonish her to enter in to the king, and to entreat him for her people. {9} Athach returning told Esther all things, that Mardocheus had said. {10} Who answered him, and bade that he should say to Mardocheus: {11} All the king's servants, and all the Provinces that are under his dominion, know, that whether man, or woman, not called, shall enter in to the king's inner court, he must immediately be slain without all delay: unless perhaps the king stretch forth a golden rod unto him, for a sign of clemency, and so he may live. I therefore, how can I enter in to the king, which now these thirty days have not been called unto him? {12} Which when Mardocheus had heard, {13} he sent word to Esther again, saying: Think not that thou mayst deliver thy own life only, because thou art in the king's house, above all the Jews: {14} for if thou wilt now hold thy peace, the Jews shall be delivered by an other occasion: and thou, and thy father's house shall perish. And who knoweth whether thou camest to the Kingdom therefore, that in such a time thou mightest be ready? {15} And again Esther sent to Mardocheus in these words: {16} Go, and gather together all the Jews, whom thou shalt find in Susan, and pray ye for me. Eat ye not, and drink not in three days, and three nights: and I with my handmaids in like manner will fast, and then will I go in to the king, doing against the law, not called, and delivering my self to death and to peril. {17} Mardocheus therefore went, and did all things that Esther had commanded him.

Esther standing in the king's sight he calleth her, 4. she requesteth that he and Aman will dine with her. 7. Again she inviteth them. 9. Aman is more incensed against Mardocheus, prepareth high gallows to hang him on.

{1} AND the third day Esther put on royal garments, and stood in the court of the king's house, which was the inner against the king's hall: but he sat upon his throne in the consistory of the palace, against the door of the house. {2} And when he had seen Esther the queen standing, she pleased his eyes, and he put forth toward her the golden rod, which he held in his hand: who going near, kissed the top of his rod. {3} And the king said to her: What wilt thou queen Esther? What is thy request? Yea if thou wilt ask the half part of the kingdom, it shall be given thee. {4} But she answered: If it please the king, I beseech thee that thou come to me this day, and Aman with thee to a banquet, which I have prepared. {5} And the king forthwith, Call ye Aman, quoth he, quickly, that he may obey Esther's will. The king therefore and Aman came to the banquet, which the queen had prepared for them. {6} And the king said to her, after that he had drunk wine abundantly. What doest thou desire to be given thee? And for what thing askest thou? Although thou ask the half part of my Kingdom, thou shalt obtain. {7} To whom Esther answered: My petition & requests are these: {8} If I have found grace in the king's sight, and if it please the king to give that which I ask, and to fulfill my petition: let the king and Aman come to the banquet which I have prepared them, and to morrow I will open my will to the king. {9} Aman therefore went forth that day joyful and merry. And when he had seen Mardocheus sitting before the doors of the palace, and not only not to have risen up to him, but not so much as to have moved from the place where he sat, he was wrath exceedingly: {10} and dissembling his anger, and returning into his house, he called together unto him his friends, and Zares his wife: {11} and he declared to them the greatness of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and with how great glory the king had advanced him above all his princes and servants. {12} And after these things he said: Queen Esther also hath called none other to the banquet with the king, but me: with whom to morrow also I shall dine with the king. {13} And whereas I have all these things, I think I have nothing, so long as I shall see Mardocheus the Jew sitting before the king's doors. {14} And Zares his wife, and the rest of his friends answered him: Command a great beam to be prepared, having fifty cubits in height, and speak in the morning to the king, that Mardocheus may be hanged upon it, and so thou shalt go joyful with the king to the banquet. The counsel pleased him, and he commanded an high gallows to be prepared.

Chapter 6

The king hearing the good service of Mardocheus in detecting traitors, read in the chronicle (for which he had yet no reward) 4. commandeth Aman to honour him next to the king. 11. which he performeth.

{1} THAT night the king passed without sleep, and he commanded the histories and chronicles of former times to be brought him. Which when they were read in his presence, {2} they came to that place where it was written,{523} how Mardocheus had uttered the treason of Bagathan and Thares the eunuchs, coveting to kill king Assuerus. {3} Which when the king had heard, he said: What honour and reward hath Mardocheus received for this fidelity? His servants & ministers said to him: He hath received no reward at all. {4} And the king by and by, Who is, quoth he, in the court? For Aman had entered the inner court of the king's house, that he might suggest to the king, and he might command Mardocheus to be hanged fast on the gibbet, which was prepared for him. {5} The servants answered: Aman standeth in the court. And the king said: Let him come in. {6} And when he was come in, he said to him: What ought to be done to the man, whom the king is desirous to honour? But Aman thinking in his heart, and supposing that the king would honour no other but himself, {7} answered: The man, whom the king desireth to honour, {8} ought to be clothed with the king's garments, and to be set upon the horse that is for the king's saddle, and to take the king's crown upon his head, {9} and let the chief of the king's Princes and nobles hold his horse and going through the street of the city cry and say: So shall he be honoured, whom soever the king will honour. {10} And the king said to him: Make haste, and taking a robe and a horse, do that thou hast spoken, to Mardocheus the Jew, which sitteth before the doors of the palace: Beware thou pretermit nothing of those things, which thou hast spoken. {11} Aman therefore took a robe and a horse, and putting it on Mardocheus, & setting him on the horse, in the street of the city went before him, and cried: This honour is he worthy of, whomsoever the king is willing to honour. {12} And Mardocheus returned to the palace gate: & Aman made haste to go into his house, mourning and his head covered: {13} and he told Zares his wife and his friends all things that had chanced him. To whom the wise men whom he had in counsel, and his wife answered: If Mardocheus be of the Jew's seed, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou canst not resist him, but thou shalt fall in his sight. {14} As they were yet speaking, the king's eunuchs came, and compelled him to go quickly to the banquet which the queen had prepared.

Esther entertaining the king and Aman again at a feast, is promised to obtain whatsoever she will ask. 3. She demandeth safety for her self, and all the people, against Aman's cruelty. 6. and Aman is hanged on the gallows, which he had prepared for Mardocheus.

{1} THE king therefore and Aman went in, to drink with the queen. to her also the second day, after he was {2} And the king said warm with wine: What is thy petition Esther, that it may be given thee? And what wilt thou, have done? Although thou shalt ask the half part of my Kingdom, thou shalt obtain. {3} To whom she answered: If I have found grace in thine eyes o king, and if it please thee, give me my life for the which I make request, and my people for the which I beseech. {4} For we are delivered I and my people, to be destroyed, murdered, and to perish. And would to God we were sold for bondmen & bond-women: it were a tolerable evil, and mourning I would hold my peace: but now it is our enemy, whose cruelty redoundeth upon the king {5} And king Assuerus answering, said: Who is this, and of what might, that he dare do these things? {6} And Esther said: It is this Aman our adversary and most wicked enemy. Which he hearing forthwith was astonished, not enduring to bear the countenance of the king and of the queen. {7} But the king being wrath rose up, and from the place of the banquet went into the garden set with trees. Aman also rose up, to entreat Esther the queen for his life, for he understood that there was evil prepared him of the king. {8} Who when he was returned out of the garden set with trees, and had entered into the place of the banquet, he found Aman to have fallen upon the bed, wherein Esther lay, and he said: The queen also he will force in my presence, in my house. Neither was the word yet passed from the king's mouth, and immediately they covered his face. {9}

And Harbona, one of the eunuchs which stood waiting of the king, said: Behold the gibbet, which he had prepared for Mardocheus, that spake for the king, standeth in Aman's house, having in height fifty cubits. {10} To whom the king said: Hang him upon it. Aman therefore was hanged on the gibbet, which he had prepared for Mardocheus: and the king's wrath ceased.

Esther informeth the king that Mardocheus is her uncle, he is advanced in authority. 3. and contrary letters are sent that the Jews be saved, 11. and their enemies slain, 15. Mardocheus is in high honour, and his whole nation is esteemed and feared by other people.

{1} THAT day king Assuerus gave unto Esther the queen the house of Aman the Jew's adversary, and Mardocheus went in before the king's presence. For Esther confessed to him that he was her uncle. {2} And the king took the ring, which he had commanded to be taken again from Aman, and delivered it to Mardocheus. And Esther appointed Mardocheus also over her house. {3} Neither content with these things, she fell down at the king's feet, and she wept and speaking to him prayed him, that he would command that the malice of Aman the Agagite, and his most wicked devices, which he had invented against the Jews, should be of none effect. {4} But he after the manner put forth the golden sceptre with his hand, by the which the sign of clemency was shewed: and she rising up stood before him, {5} and said: If it please the king, and if I have found grace in his eyes, and my request seem not contrary to him, I beseech thee, that the old letters of Aman the traitor and enemy of the Jews, wherein he commanded that in all the king's provinces they should perish, may by new letters be corrected. {6} For how can I abide the murder and slaughter of my people? {7} And king Assuerus answered Esther the queen, and Mardocheus the Jew: Aman's house I have given to Esther, and himself I have commanded to be hanged on the gallows, because he durst lay hands on the Jews. {8} Write ye therefore to the Jews as pleaseth you, in the king's name, signing the letters with my ring. For this was the custom, that no man durst speak against the letters, which were sent in the king's name, and were signed with his ring. {9} And the king's scribes and secretaries being called for (and it was the time of the third month, which is called Siban) the three and twentieth day thereof letters were written, as Mardocheus would, to the Jews, and to the Princes, & the lieutenants and judges, which were rulers over the hundred and seven and twenty Provinces, from India even to Aethiopia: to Province and Province, to people and people, according to their languages and characters, and to the Jews, according as they could read, and hear. {10} And the said letters, which were sent in the king's name, were signed with his ring, and sent by riding posts: which running through all the Provinces, should prevent the old letters with the new messages. {11} To whom the king gave commandment, that they should speak to the Jews in every city, and should command them to be gathered together in one, that they might stand for their lives, and might kill and destroy all their enemies with their wives and children and all their houses, and to take the spoil of them. {12} And there was appointed through all the Provinces one day of revenge, that is, the thirteenth of the twelfth month Adar. {13} And this was the content of the letter, that in all lands and peoples which were subject to the empire of king Assuerus, it should be notified, the Jews to be ready to be revenged of their enemies. {14} And there went forth swift posts carrying the messages, and the king's edict hung in Susan. {15} But Mardocheus going forth out of the palace, and from the king's presence, shining in royal garments, to wit, hyacinthine and sky colour, bearing a golden crown on his head, and clothed with a silk and purple cloak. And the city rejoiced, and was glad. {16} But to the Jews there seemed a new light to rise, joy, honour, and dancing. {17} With all peoples, cities, and Provinces, whither soever the king's commandments came, marvelous rejoicing, feasts and banquets, and holy day: in so much that many of the other nation and sect, were joined to their religion and ceremonies. For great terror of the name of the Jews had invaded them all.

The Jews kill their enemies which would have killed them, 6. namely the ten sons of Aman are hanged on gallows, 13. more slain the next day. 17. The day following is made holy, and so to be kept every year.

{1} THEREFORE in the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which we have said now before to be called Adar, when slaughter was prepared for all the Jews, and their enemies gaped after their blood, the case being changed to the contrary, the Jews began to be superiors, and to revenge themselves of their adversaries. {2} And they were gathered together in every city, and town, & place, to extend their hand against their enemies and their persecutors. And none durst resist, because the fear of their greatness did penetrate all peoples. {3} For both the judges of the Provinces, and captains, and lieutenants, and every dignity that was chief over every place and work, extolled the Jews for fear of Mardocheus: {4} Whom they knew to be Prince of the palace, and to be able to do very much: the fame also of his name increased daily, and flew abroad through all men's mouths. {5} Therefore the Jews struck their enemies with a great slaughter, and slew them, repaying them that which they had prepared to do to them: {6} in so much that in Susan also they killed five hundred men, besides the ten sons of Aman the Agagite the enemy of the Jews: whose names be these: {7} Pharsandatha, and Delphon, and Espathatha, {8} and Phoratha, and Adalia, & Aridatha, {9} and Phermesta, and Arisai, and Aridai, and Jezatha. {10} Whom when they had slain, they would not take preys of their goods. {11} And by and by the number of them that were killed in Susan, was brought to the king. {12} Who said to the queen: In the city of Susan the Jews have killed five hundred men, besides the ten sons of Aman: how great a slaughter thinkest thou do they make in all the Provinces? What askest thou more, and what withl thou that I command to be done? {13} To whom she answered: If it please the king, let there authority be given to the Jews, that as they have done today in Susan, so also they may do to morrow, and that the ten sons of Aman be hanged on gibbets. {14} And the king commanded that it should be so done. And forthwith the edict hung in Susan, and the ten sons of Aman were hanged. {15} The fourteenth day of the month Adar, the Jews being gathered together, there were killed in Susan three hundred men: neither was their substance spoiled by them. {16} Yea and through all Provinces, which were subject to the king's dominion, the Jews stood for their lives, their enemies and persecutors being slain: in so much that there was fully seventy five thousand of them that were killed, and no man took any of their goods. {17} And the thirteenth day of the month Adar was the first day with them all, of the slaughter, & the fourteenth day they ceased to kill. Which they ordained to be solemn, so that in it at all times afterward they gave themselves to good cheer, mirth and banquets. {18} But they that made the slaughter in the city of Susan, were occupied in the slaughter the thirteenth and fourteenth day of the same month: and in the fifteenth day they ceased to kill. And therefore they ordained the same a solemn day of good cheer and joyfulness. {19} But those Jews, that abode in towns not walled and villages, ordained the fourteenth day of the month Adar for banquets and joy, so that they rejoice in it, and send one an other portions of banquets and meats. {20} Mardocheus therefore wrote all these things, and being comprised in letters sent them to the Jews, that abode in all the king's Provinces, as well those that lay near, as far off, {21} that they should take the fourteenth and fifteenth day of the month Adar for feasts, and the year always returning should celebrate them with solemn honour: {22} because in the same days the Jews revenged themselves of their enemies, and mourning and sorrow were turned into mirth and joy, and that these should be days of good cheer and gladness, and they should send one to an other portions of meats, and should give gifts to the poor. {23} And the Jews received into a solemn rite all things, which they had begun to do at that time, and which Mardocheus by letters had commanded to be done. {24} For Aman, the son of Amadathi of the stock of Agag, the enemy & adversary of the Jews, purposed evil against them, to kill them and destroy them: & he cast Phur, which in our language is turned, a lot. {25} And afterward Esther went in to the king, beseeching that his endeavours might by the king's letters be made void: & the evil that he had intended against the Jews, might return upon his own head. Finally, they hung both him and his sons upon the gallows, {26} and since that time these days are called Phurim, that is, of Lots: because Phur, that is, a lot, was cast into the pot. And all things that were done, are contained in the volume of this epistle, that is, of this Book: {27} and the things that they sustained, and that were afterward changed, the Jews took upon themselves and their seed, & upon all that would be joined to their religion, that it should be lawful for none to pass without solemnity these days: which the writing testifieth, and certain times require; as years continually succeed one an other. {28} These are days, which no oblivion shall ever put out: and all Provinces in all the world shall celebrate throughout all generations: neither is there any city, wherein the days of Phurim, that is, of lots, must not be observed of the Jews, and of their progeny, which is bound to these ceremonies. {29} And Esther the queen the daughter of Abihail, & Mardocheus the Jew wrote also the second epistle, that with all diligence this day should be established solemn for the time to come. {30} and they sent to all the Jews, that were in the hundred and seven and twenty Provinces of king Assuerus, that they should have peace, and receive truth, {31} observing the Days of lots, and in their time should celebrate them with joy: as Mardocheus and Esther had appointed, and they took upon them to be observed of themselves, and of their seed, fasts, and cries, and the days of lots, {32} and all things, which are contained in the history of this Book, which is called Esther.

Assuerus subdued many countries. 4. Mardocheus understandeth, and declareth his dream. 9. God separateth his people from other nations by a better lot.

{1} BUT king Assuerus made all the earth, and all the islands of the sea tributaries. {2} Whose strength and empire, and the dignity and highness, wherewith he exalted Mardocheus, are written in the books of the Medes, and of the Persians: {3} and how Mardocheus of the Jew's kindred was second after king Assuerus: and great with the Jews, and acceptable to the people of his brethren, seeking good to his people, and speaking those things, which pertained to the good of his seed. {4} And Mardocheus said: These things are done of God. {5} I remember the dream that I saw, signifying these very things: neither was any of them frustrate. {6} The little fountain which grew into a river, and was turned into light, and into the sun, and abounded into many waters, is Esther, whom the king took to wife, and made her to be queen. {7} But the two dragons: I am, and Aman. {8} The nations, that were assembled: are they that endeavoured to destroy the name of the Jews. {9} And my nation: is Israel, which cried to our Lord, and our Lord hath saved his people: and he hath delivered us from all evils, and hath done great signs and wonders among the nations: {10} and he commanded that there should be two lots, one of the people of God, and the other of all Nations. {11} And both lots are come to the day appointed even now from that time before God to all nations: {527} {12} and our Lord hath remembered his people, and hath had mercy on his inheritance. {13} And these days shall be observed in the month of Adar the fourteenth, and fifteenth day of the same month, with all diligence, and joy of the people gathered into one assembly, throughout all the generations here-after of the People of Israel.

An Appendix and conclusion of this history. 2. The dream of Mardocheus.

{1} IN the fourth year when Ptolomee and Cleopatra reigned, Dositheus, which named himself a Priest, and of the Levitical kindred, and Ptolomee his son brought this epistle of Phurim, which they said Lysimachus the son of Ptolomee did interpret in Jerusalem. {2} In the second year, when Artaxerxes the greatest reigned, in the first day of the month Nisan, Mardocheus the son of Jairi, the son of Semei, the son of Cis, of the tribe of Benjamin, {3} a Jew which dwelt in the city of Susan, a great man and among the first of the king's court, saw a dream. {4} And he was of that number of captives, whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had transported from Jerusalem with Jechonias the king of Juda: {5} and this was his dream: There appeared voices, and tumults, and thunders, and earth-quakes, and perturbation upon the earth. {6} and behold two great dragons, prepared one against an other into battle. {7} At whose cry all nations were raised up to fight against the nation of the just. {8} And that was a day of darkness and danger, of tribulation and distress, and great fear upon the earth. {9} And the nation of the just fearing their evils, was troubled, and prepared to death. {10} And they cried to God: and they crying, a little fountain grew into a very great river, and abounded into very many waters. {11} Light and the sun arose, & the humble were exalted, & they devoured the glorious. {12} Which when Mardocheus had seen, and risen out of his bed, he mused what God would do: and he had it fixed in his mind, desirous to know what the dream should signify.

The conspiracy of two eunuchs detected by Mardocheus, is repeated, 6. and Aman's malice against him for the same.

{1} AND he abode that time in the king's court with Bagatha and Thara the king's eunuchs, which were porters of the palace. {2} And when he understood their cogitations, and had thoroughly seen their cares, he learned that they went about to lay hands on king Artaxerxes, and he told the king thereof. {3} Who having them both in examination, when they had confessed he commanded them to be led to death. {4} But the king wrote that which was done, in the commentaries: and Mardocheus also committed the memory of the thing to writing. {5} And the king commanded him, that he should abide in the court of the palace, giving him gifts for the delation. {6} But Aman the son of Amadathi the Bugeite was most glorious before the king, and would hurt Mardocheus, and his people, for the two eunuchs of the king, which were put to death. And should spoil their goods.

A copy of the epistle which Aman sent to all provinces to destroy the Jews. 8. And Mardocheus his prayer for the people.

{1} AND this was the copy of the letter. The most great king Artaxerxes from India unto Aethiopia, to the Princes of an hundred and seven & twenty provinces, and to the captains that are subject to his empire, greeting. {2} Whereas I reigned over many nations, and had subdued all the world to my dominion, I would not abuse the greatness of my might, but with clemency & lenity govern my subjects, that passing their life quietly without any terror, they might enjoy peace wished of all men. {3} But when I demanded of my counsellors how this might be accomplished, one that excelled the rest in wisdom & fidelity, & was second after the king, Aman by name, {4} told me that there was a people dispersed through the whole world, which used new laws, and doing against the customs of all Nations, contemned the commandments of kings, and brake the concord of all nations by their dissension. {5} Which when we had learned, seeing one nation rebellious against all kind of men to use perverse laws, & to go against our commandments, and to disturb the peace and concord of the Provinces subject to us, {6} we have commanded that whomsoever Aman shall shew, who is chief over all the Provinces, and second after the king, and whom we honour in stead of a father, they with their wives and children be destroyed of their enemies, and that none have pity on them the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar of this present year: {7} that the wicked men going down to hell in one day, may restore the peace to our empire, which they had disturbed. And Mardocheus going forth, did all things that Esther had commanded him. {8} But Mardocheus besought our Lord, mindful of all his works, {9} and said: Lord Lord King omnipotent, for in thy dominion are all things set, and there is none that can resist thy will, if thou determine to save Israel. {10} Thou madest heaven and earth, and whatsoever is contained in the compass of heaven. {11} Thou art Lord of all, neither is there that can resist thy majesty. {12} Thou understandest all things, and knowest that I have not done this for pride and contumely, and any desire of glory, that I adored not the proud Aman, {13} (for gladly would I be ready for the salvation of Israel to kiss even the steps of his feet,) {14} but I feared lest I should transfer the honour of my God to a man, and lest I should adore any except my God. {15} And now o Lord King, the God of Abraham have mercy upon thy people, because our enemies will destroy us, and extinguish thine inheritance. {16} Despise not thy portion, which thou hast redeemed to thy self out of Aegypt. {17} Hear my prayer, and be propitious to thy lot and cord, and return our mourning into joy, that living we may praise thy name o Lord, and do not shut the mouths of them that sing to thee. {18} All Israel also with like mind and supplication cried to our Lord, because certain death did hang over them.

Esther prayeth in humility of spirit, that God will deliver the people from the cruelty of Aman.

{1} ESTHER also the queen fled to our Lord, fearing the peril that was at hand. {2} And when she had laid off her royal garments, she took cloths meet for weeping and mourning, & for diverse ointments, filled her head with ashes & dung, & her body she humbled with fasts: and all the places, in which before she was accustomed to rejoice, she filled with tearing of her hairs. {3} And she besought our Lord the God of Israel, saying: My Lord, which only art our King, help me solitary woman, and which have no other helper beside thee. {4} My peril is in my hands. {5} I have heard of my father that thou Lord didst take Israel out from all Gentiles, and our fathers out of all their predecessors before, that thou mightest possess an everlasting inheritance, and thou hast done to them as thou hast spoken. {6} We have sinned in thy sight, and therefore thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies: {7} for we have worshipped their gods. Thou art just o Lord. {8} And now it sufficeth them not, that they oppress us with most hard servitude, but imputing the force of their hands to the might of their idols, {9} they will change thy promises, and destroy thine inheritance, and shut the mouths of them that praise thee, and extinguish the glory of thy temple and altar, {10} that they may open the mouths of Gentiles, and praise the strength of idols, and magnify a carnal king for ever. {11} Deliver not o Lord thy sceptre to them that are not, lest they laugh at our ruin: but turn their counsel upon them, {529} & destroy him, that hath begun to do cruelly against us. {12} Remember o Lord: and shew thy self to us in the time of our tribulation, and give me confidence Lord King of gods, and of all power: {13} give me speech well framed in my mouth, in the presence of the lion, and turn his heart into the hatred of our enemy, that both himself may perish, and the rest that consent unto him. {14} But deliver us in thy hand, and help me, having no other help but thee o Lord, which hast the knowledge of all things, {15} and knowest that I hate the glory of the wicked, and detest the bed of the uncircumcised, and of every stranger. {16} Thou knowest my necessity, that I abhor the sign of my pride & glory, which is upon my head in the days of my ostentation, and detest it as the cloth of a woman in her monthly flowers, and wear it not in the days of my silence, {17} and that I have not eaten at Aman's table, neither the king's banquet hath pleased me, and that I have not drunk the wine of libaments: {18} & that thy handmaid did never rejoice, since I was transported hither unto this day, but in thee o Lord the God of Abraham. {19} O God strong above all, hear the voice of them, that have no other hope, and deliver us from the hand of the wicked, and deliver me from my fear.

Mardocheus causeth Esther to go to the king and entreat for the people. 10. She is terrified by his countenance, but God turneth his heart, and he calleth her courteously to him.

{1} AND he commanded her (no doubt but Mardocheus commanded Esther) that she should go unto the king, & make petition for her people and for her country. {2} Remember (quoth he,) the days of thy humility, how thou wast brought up in my hand, because Aman the second after the king hath spoken against us unto death: {3} & do thou invoke our Lord, and speak to the king for us, and deliver us from death. {4} And in the third day she laid away the garments which she wore, and was clothed in her glory. {5} And when she glistened in royal apparel, and had invoked God the ruler and saviour of all, she took two waiting maids, {6} and upon the one indeed she leaned, as it were for delicateness & very much tenderness not able to bear up her body: {7} but the other of the maids followed her Lady, bearing up her garments trailing on the ground. {8} But her self in all her countenance of colour like the rose, also with gracious and shining eyes hid her mind full of sorrow, & exceeding fear. {9} She therefore entering through all the doors in order, stood before the king, where he sat upon the throne of his kingdom, clothed with royal garments, & glittering in gold, and precious stones, and he was terrible to behold. {10} And when he had lifted up his face, and with burning eyes had shewed the fury of his breath, the queen fell down, & her colour being changed into paleness, she rested her weary head upon her handmaid. {11} And God turned the king's spirit into mildness, & in haste & fearing he lept out of the throne, & holding her up in his arms, till she came to her self, spake her fair with these words: {12} What aileth thee Esther? I am thy brother, fear not. {13} Thou shalt not die: for this law is not made for thee, but for the common sort. {14} Come near therefore, and touch the sceptre. {15} And when she held her peace, he took the golden rod, & put it upon her neck, & kissed her, & said: Why speakest thou not to me? {16} Who answered: I saw thee, my lord as an angel of God, and my heart was troubled for the fear of thy glory. {17} For thou, my lord, art exceeding marvelous, and thy face is full of graces. {18} And when she spake, she fell down again, and was almost in a swoon. {19} But the king was troubled, and all his servants did comfort her.

A copy of king Artaxerxes' letters, which he sent for the safety of the Jews, 10. declaring the insolency of Aman, and dutiful service of Mardocheus and Esther, 20. commanding all his Princes to assist the Jews, and with them to celebrate the day which is changed from sorrow to joy.

{1} THE great king Artaxerxes, from India to Aethiopia, to the dukes and Princes of an hundred twenty seven Provinces, which obey our commandment, sendeth greeting. {2} Many have abused unto pride the goodness of Princes, and the honour, that hath been bestowed upon them: {3} and they do not only endeavour to oppress the king's subjects, but not bearing the glory that is given them, they work treason against them that gave it. {4} Neither are they content not to give thanks for the benefits, and to violate in themselves the laws of humanity, but they think they can escape the sentence of God also who seeth all things. {5} And they have burst forth into so great madness, that such as observe diligently the offices committed unto them, and do all things so that they are worthy of all men's praise, them they endeavour to overthrow by subtle means of lies, {6} whilst with crafty fraud they deceive the simple ears of Princes, and esteeming others by their own nature. {7} Which thing is proved both out of old histories, and by these things, which are done daily, how the enterprises of kings are depraved by the evil suggestions of certain men. {8} Wherefore we must provide for the peace of all Provinces. {9} Neither must you think, if we command diverse things, that it cometh of the lightness of our mind, but that we give sentence according to the quality and necessity of times, as the profit of the common wealth requireth. {10} And that you may more plainly understand, that which we say, Aman the son of Amadathi, both in mind & country a Macedonian, & an alien from the Persians' blood, and with his cruelty staining our piety, was received of us a stranger: {11} and found our humanity so great towards him, that he was called our father, & was adored of all, second after the king: {12} who was puffed up with so great swelling of arrogancy, that he went about to deprive us of Kingdom and life. {13} For by certain new devises and not heard of before he hath sought to kill Mardocheus, by whose fidelity and benefits we live, and Esther the fellow of our Kingdom with all their nation: {14} thinking this that they being slain, he might work treason to our solitariness, and might transfer the Kingdom of the Persians to the Macedonians. {15} But we have found the Jews, which were by that most wicked of men appointed to be slain, in no fault at all, but contrary wise using just laws, {16} and the children of the highest and the greatest, and always loving God, by whose benefit the Kingdom was given both to our fathers and to us, and is kept unto this day. {17} Wherefore know ye those letters, which he directed in our name, to be of none effect. {18} For the which heinous fact, before the gates of this city, that is of Susan, both himself that devised it, and all his kindred hang on gibbets: not we, but God repaying him that which he hath deserved. {19} But this edict, which we now send, let it be set forth in all cities, that it be lawful for the Jews to use their own laws. {20} Whom you must help, that those which had prepared themselves to their slaughter, they may kill, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is called Adar. {21} For God omnipotent hath turned this day of sadness and mourning into joy to them. {22} Wherefore count you also this day among other festival days, and celebrate it with all joy, that hereafter also it may be known, {23} that all, which faithfully obey the Persians, receive worthy reward for their fidelity: and they that lie in wait against their Kingdom, perish for their wicked fact. {24} And every Province and city, that will not be partaker of this solemnity, let it perish by sword and fire, and let it so be destroyed, that not only men, but also beasts have no access thereto for ever, for an example of contempt, and disobedience.

THE BOOK OF JOB

Holy Job offereth sacrifice for every one of his children, 6. whose good estate Satan envying, by God's permission spoileth him of all his goods, and children, 20. for which he being pensive offendeth not, but thanketh God for all.

{1} THERE was a man in the Land of Hus, named Job, and that man was simple, and right, and fearing God, and departing from evil. {2} And there were born to him seven sons and three daughters. {3} And his possession was seven thousand sheep, & three thousand camels, also five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, and a family exceeding great: and that man was great among all them of the East. {4} And his sons went, and made a feast by houses, every one in his day. And sending they called their three sisters to eat & drink with them. {5} And when the days of feasting had passed about in course, Job sent to them, and sanctified them: and rising up early offered holocausts for every one. For he said: Lest perhaps my sons have sinned, and have blessed God in their hearts. So did Job all the days. {6} But on a certain day when the sons of God were come to assist before our Lord, Satan also was present among them. {7} To whom our Lord said: From whence comest thou? Who answering, said: I have gone round about the earth, & walked through it. {8} And our Lord said to him: Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is not the like to him in the earth, a man simple, and right, and fearing God, and departing from evil? {9} To whom Satan answering, said: Why, doth Job fear God in vain? {10} hast not thou fenced him, and his house, and all his substance round about, blessed the works of his hands, and his possession hath increased on the earth? {11} But stretch forth thy hand a little, and touch all things that he possesseth, unless he bless thee in the face. {12} Our Lord therefore said to Satan: behold, all things that he hath, are in thy hand, only upon him extend not thy hand. And Satan went forth from the face of our Lord. {13} And when upon a certain day his sons and daughters did eat, and drink wine in the house of their eldest brother, {14} there came a messenger to Job, which said: The oxen ploughed, and the she-asses fed beside them, {15} and the Sabeians came in violently, and have taken all things, and have stricken the servants with the sword, and I only have escaped to tell thee. {16} And when he yet spake, an other came, and said: The fire of God fell from heaven, and striking the sheep and the servants hath consumed them, and I only have escaped to tell thee. {17} But whilst he also was yet speaking, there came an other and said: The Chaldees made three troops, and have invaded the camels, and taken them, moreover the servants also they have stricken with the sword, and I alone am fled to tell thee. {18} He yet spake, and behold an other came in, and said: Thy sons and daughters eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother, {19} suddenly a vehement wind came violently from the country of the desert, and shook the four corners of the house, which falling oppressed thy children and they are dead, and I alone have escaped to tell thee. {20} Then Job rose up, and rent his garments, & with polled head falling on the ground, adored, {21} and said: Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: Our Lord gave, and our Lord hath taken away: as it hath pleased our Lord, so is it done: the name of our Lord be blessed. {22} In all these things Job sinned not with his lips, neither spake he any foolish thing against God.

Satan by God's permission, 7. striketh Job with sores from the sole of his foot to the top of his head. 9. His wife also insulteth against him, but he sinneth not. 11. Three friends coming to visit and comfort him, sit silent by him seven days.

{1} AND it came to pass when on a certain day the sons of God were come and stood before our Lord, and Satan came among them, and stood in his sight, {2} that our Lord said to Satan: From whence comest thou? Who answering said: I have gone round about the earth, and walked through it. {3} And our Lord, said to Satan: Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is not the like to him in the earth, a man simple, and right, and fearing God, and departing from evil, and yet retaining innocency? But thou hast moved me against him, that I should afflict him in vain. {4} To whom Satan answering, said: Skin for skin, and all things that a man hath, he will give for his life: {5} otherwise put thy hand, and touch his bone and flesh, and then shalt thou see that he will bless thee in the face. {6} Our Lord therefore said to Satan: Behold he is in thy hand, but yet save his life. {7} Satan therefore going out from the face of our Lord, struck Job with a very sore boil, from the sole of the foot even to the top of his head: {8} who with a shell scraped the corruption, sitting on a dunghill. {9} And his wife said to him: Doest thou yet continue in thy simplicity? Bless God and die. {10} Who said to her: Thou hast spoken like one of the foolish women: if we have received good things of the hand of God, evil things why should we not receive? In all these things Job sinned not with his lips. {11} Therefore Job's three friends hearing all the evil, that had chanced to him, came every one out of their place, Eliphaz a Themanite, and Baldad a Suhite, and Sophar a Naamathite. For they had appointed, that coming together they would visit him, and comfort him. {12} And when they had lifted up their eyes a far off, they knew him not, and crying out they wept, and renting their cloths sprinkled dust over their head toward heaven. {13} And they sat with him on the ground seven days and seven nights, and no man spake to him a word: for they saw the pain to be vehement.

Job lamenteth, describing his own, and the general calamities of man, 13. and shewing how they escape many miseries which either are never born, or die presently after their birth.

{1} AFTER these things Job opened his mouth, and cursed his day, {3} Perish may the day wherein I was born, {2} and spake. & the night wherein it was said: A man is conceived. {4} Be that day turned into darkness, God require it not from above, and let it not be lightened with light. {5} Let darkness, and the shadow of death obscure it, let a mist possess it, and be it wrapped in bitterness. {6} A darksome hurl wind possess that night, be it not counted in the days of the year, nor numbered in the months. {7} Be that night solitary, nor praise-worthy. {8} Let them curse it which curse the day, which are ready to raise up Leviathan. {9} Let the stars be darkened with the mist thereof: let it expect light and let it not see, neither the rising of the appearing morning. {10} Because it shut not up the doors of the womb that bare me, nor took away evils from mine eyes. {11} Why died I not in the matrice, perished not forthwith being come forth of the womb? {12} Why received upon the knees: why nursed with the breasts? {13} For now sleeping I should be quiet, and should rest in my sleep: {14} With kings and consuls of the earth, which build themselves solitary places: {15} Or with Princes, that posses gold, and replenish their houses with silver: {16} Or as a thing untimely born that is hid I should not be, or as they that being conceived have not seen the light. {17} There the impious have ceased from tumult, & there the wearied with strength have rested. {18} And they sometime bound together without grief, have not heard the voice of the exactor. {19} Little and great are there, and the servant free from his master. {20} Why is there light given to a miserable man, and life to them, that are in bitterness of soul, {21} that expect death, and it cometh not, as they that dig up treasure, {22} and they rejoice exceedingly when they have found the grave? {23} To a man whose life is hid, and God hath compassed him with darkness? {24} Before I eat I sigh: and as it were overflowing waters, so my roaring: {25} Because the fear which I feared, hath chanced to me: and that which I was afraid of, hath happened. {26} Have I not dissembled? Have I not kept silence? Have I not been at ease? And indignation is come upon me.

Eliphaz blameth Job as guilty of impatience, arguing thereupon that he was not so perfect in virtue as he seemed, 7. and therefore is now punished by God, who (as Eliphaz falsely supposeth) afflicceth not innocent men : 12. alleging for proof an imaginary vision.

{1} BUT Eliphaz the Themanite answering, said: {2} perhaps thou wilt take it grievously, but If we shall begin to speak to thee, the word conceived who can hold? {3} Behold thou hast taught many, and weary hands thou hast strengthened. {4} Them that wavered thy words have confirmed, and trembling knees thou hast strengthened: {5} But now a plague is come upon thee, & thou hast fainted: hath touched thee, and thou art troubled. {6} Where is thy fear, thy strength, thy patience, and the perfection of thy ways? {7} Remember I beseech thee, who ever being innocent hath perished? Or when have the just been destroyed? {8} Yea rather I have seen them that work iniquity, and sow sorrows, and reap them, {9} to have perished by the blast of God, and with the spirit of his wrath to have been consumed. {10} The roaring of the lion, and the voice of the lioness, and the teeth of the whelps of lions are bruised: {11} The tiger hath perished, because he had no prey, and the lion's whelps are destroyed. {12} Moreover to me there was spoken a secret word, and as it were by stealth hath mine ear received the veins of the whispering thereof. {13} In the horror of a vision by night, when deep sleep is wont to hold men, {14} fear held me, and trembling, and all my bones were made sore afraid: {15} And when the spirit passed in my presence, the hairs of my flesh stood upright. {16} There stood one, whose countenance I knew not, an image before mine eyes, and I heard the voice as it were of a gentle wind: {17} What, shall man be justified in comparison of God, or shall a man be more pure than his maker? {18} Behold they that serve him are not stable, and in his Angels he found wickedness: {19} How much more they that inhabit houses of clay, which have an earthly foundation, shall be consumed as it were of the moth? {20} From morning until evening they shall be cut down: and because none understandeth, they shall perish for ever. {21} And they that shall be left, shall be taken away from them: they shall die, and not in wisdom.

Eliphaz prosecuteth his discourse to convince Job of great sins, because he is so vehemently afflicted: 17. exhorteth him therefore to acknowledge his sins, so all things shall succeed prosperously.

{1} CALL therefore if there be that will answer thee, and turn to some of the Saints. {2} Anger indeed killeth the foolish, and envy slayeth the little one. {3} I have seen a fool with firm root, and I cursed his beauty by and by. {4} His children shall be made far from salvation, and shall be destroyed in the gate, and there shall be none to deliver. {5} Whose harvest the hungry shall eat, and the armed shall take him by violence, and the thirsty shall drink his riches. {6} Nothing in the earth is done without a cause, and out of the ground sorrow shall not rise. {7} Man is born to labour, and the bird to flight. {8} For the which thing I will beseech our Lord, and toward God I will set my speech: {9} Who doeth great and unsearchable and marvelous things without number: {10} Who giveth rain upon the face of the earth, and watereth all things with waters: {11} Who setteth the humble on high, and them that are in heaviness he comforteth with health: {12} Who dissipateth the cogitations of the malignant, that their hands can not accomplish that which they began: {13} Who apprehendeth the wise in their subtlety, and dissipateth the counsel of the wicked: {14} By day they shall incur darkness, and as it were in the night, so shall they grope at noon days. {15} Moreover he shall save the needy from the sword of their mouth, and the poor from the hand of the violent. {16} And to the needy there shall be hope, but iniquity shall draw together her mouth. {17} Blessed is the man that is corrected of God: refuse not therefore the chastising of our Lord: {18} Because he woundeth, and cureth: striketh, & his hands shall heal. {19} In six tribulations he shall deliver thee, and in the seventh evil shall not touch thee. {20} In famine he shall deliver thee from death, and in battle from the hand of the sword. {21} From the scourge of the tongue thou shalt be hid; and thou shalt not fear calamity when it cometh. {22} In waste and famine thou shalt laugh, & the beasts of the earth thou shalt not fear. {23} But with the stones of the lands thy covenant, and the beasts of the earth shall be peaceable to thee. {24} And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle hath peace, and visiting thy beauty, thou shalt not sin. {25} Thou shalt know also that thy seed shall be manifold, and thy progeny as the grass of the earth. {26} Thou shalt enter into the grave in abundance, as a heap of wheat is carried in his time. {27} Behold, this is even so, as we have searched out: which thou having heard revolve in thy mind.

Job answereth the objections of Eliphaz, shewing that indeed the calamity which he suffereth is much greater than his sins deserve; and therefore his lamentation is excusable: 8. wishest (if it so please God) that he may die: 13. complaineth that his friends are become his adversaries: 16. gravely expostulathet that they reprehend him, 12. and help him not.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: sins were weighed, whereby I have deserved wrath, and the calamity, which I {2} would God my suffer, in a balance. {3} As the sand of the sea this would appear heavier, wherefore my words also are full of sorrow: {4} Because the arrows of our Lord be in me, the indignation whereof drinketh up my spirit, & the terrors of our Lord war against me. {5} Will the wild ass roar when he hath grass? Or the oxe loweth when he shall stand before the full manger? {6} Or can an unsavoury thing be eaten, that is not seasoned with salt? Or can a man taste that which being tasted bringeth death? {7} The things which before, my soul would not touch, now for anguish are my meats. {8} Who will grant that my petition may come: and that God would give me that which I expect? {9} And he that hath begun, the same would loose his hand, and cut me off? {10} And this might be my comfort, that afflicting me with sorrow, he spare not, nor I gainsay the words of the Holy one. {11} For what is my strength, that I can sustain it? Or what is mine end, that I should do patiently? {12} Neither is my strength the strength of stones, neither is my flesh of brass. {13} Behold there is no help for me in myself, and my familiar friends also are departed from me. {14} He that taketh away mercy from his friend, forsaketh the fear of our Lord. {15} My brethren have passed by me, as the torrent that passeth swiftly in the valleys. {16} They that fear the hoarfrost, snow shall fall upon them. {17} At the time, when they shall be dissipated they shall perish: & after they wax hot they shall be dissolved out of their place. {18} The paths of their steps are entangled: they shall walk in vain, & shall perish. {19} Consider ye the paths of Thema, the ways of Saba, and expect a little while. {20} They are confounded, because I have hoped: they are come also even unto me, and are covered with shame. {21} Now you are come: and even now seeing my plague you are afraid. {22} Have I said: Bring ye to me, and of your substance give to me? {23} Or deliver me from the hand of the enemy, and out of the hand of the strong deliver me? {24} Teach ye me, and I will hold my peace: and if I perhaps have been ignorant in any thing, instruct ye me. {25} Why have you detracted from the words of truth, whereas there is none of you that can control me? {26} To rebuke only you frame speeches, and you utter words in the wind. {27} You rush in upon a pupil, and you endeavour to overthrow your friend. {28} Notwithstanding accomplish that which you have begun: give ear, and see whether I lie. {29} Answer I beseech you without contention: and speaking that which is just, judge ye. {30} And you shall not find iniquity in my tongue, neither shall folly sound in my jaws.

Job explicateth diverse calamities of man's life, and namely of his own. 6. supposing it not likely that he shall return to former prosperous state, 15. desireth to die.

{1} THE life of man upon earth is a warfare, and his days, as the days of an hired man. {2} As a servant desireth the shadow, and as the hired man tarrieth for the end of his work: {3} so I also have had vain months, & have numbered to my self laborious nights. {4} If I sleep, I shall say: When shall I arise? & again I shall expect the evening, & shall be replenished with sorrows even until darkness. {5} My flesh is clothed with rotteness & filth of dust, my skin is withered, & drawn together. {6} My days have passed more swiftly, than the web is cut of the weaver, and are consumed without any hope. {7} Remember that my life is a wind, & mine eye shall not return to see good things. {8} Neither shall the sight of man behold me: thine eyes upon me, and I shall not stand. {9} As a cloud is consumed, and passeth away: so he that shall descend to hell shall not ascend. {10} Neither shall he return any more into his house, neither shall his place know him any more. {11} Wherefore I also will not spare my mouth, I will speak in the tribulation of my spirit: I will talk with the bitterness of my soul. {12} Why, am I a sea, or a whale, that thou hast compassed me with a prison? {13} If I say: My little bed shall comfort me, and I shall be relieved speaking with my self in my couch: {14} Thou wilt terrify me by dreams, and by visions shake me with horrour. {15} For the which thing my soul hath chosen hanging, and my bones death. {16} I have despaired. I shall now live no longer: Spare me, for my days are nothing. {17} What is man that thou magnifiest him? Or why settest thou thy heart toward him? {18} Thou doest visit him early, and suddenly thou provest him: {19} How long doest thou not spare me, nor suffer me that I swallow my spittle? {20} I have sinned, what shall I do to thee, o keeper of men? Why hast thou set me contrary to thee, and I am become burdenous to my self? {21} Why doest thou not take away my sin, and why doest thou not take away mine iniquity? Behold now I shall sleep in the dust: and if thou seek me in the morning, I shall not be.

Baldad chargeth Job to have spoken unjustly, exhorting him to turn to God, and so he shall prosper better than heretofore: 13. shewing that hypocrites shall not prosper, 20. inferreth falsely that God afflicteth not the sincere, nor helpeth the malignant.

{1} BUT Baldad the Suhite answering, said: {2} & shall the spirit of the word of thy mouth How long wilt thou speak such things, {536} be multiplied? {3} Why, doth God supplant judgment? Or doth the Omnipotent subvert that which is just? {4} Although thy children have sinned to him, and he hath left them in the hand of their iniquity: {5} Yet if thou wilt arise early to God, & wilt beseech the Omnipotent: {6} If thou wilt walk clean & upright, he will forthwith awake unto thee, and will make the habitation of thy justice peaceable: {7} In so much, that if thy former things have been little, thy later things may be multiplied exceedingly. {8} For ask the old generation, and search diligently the memory of the fathers. {9} (For we are but as yesterday, & are ignorant that our days upon the earth are as a shadow.) {10} And they shall teach thee: they shall speak to thee, and from their heart shall utter words. {11} Can the rush be green without moisture? Or a sedgy place grow without water? {12} When it is yet in his flower, and is not plucked with the hand, it withereth before all herbs: {13} Even so the ways of all, that forget God, and the hope of the hypocrite shall perish: {14} His folly shall not please him, and his confidence as the spider's web. {15} He shall lean upon his house, and it shall not stand: he shall stay it up, and it shall not rise: {16} He seemeth moistened before the sun come, & in his rising his blossom shall go forth. {17} Upon a heap of rocks his roots shall be thick, and among stones he shall abide. {18} If he swallow him up out of his place, he will deny him, and will say: I know thee not. {19} For this is the joy of his way, that others may spring again of the earth. {20} God will not reject the simple, nor reach his hand to the malignant. {21} Until thy mouth be filled with laughter, & thy lips with jubilation. {22} They that hate thee, shall be clothed with confusion: and the tabernacle of the impious shall not stand.

Job approveth that no man avouching his own justice before God is justified. 22. Teacheth that affliction of the innocent standeth well with God's justice, wisdom, and power.

{1} AND Job answering, said: is so, and that man is not justified compared with God. {3} If he will content {2} Indeed I know it with him, he can not answer him one for a thousand. {4} He is wise of heart, and strong of force: who hath resisted him, and hath had peace? {5} He that transported mountains, and they whom he subverted in his fury, knew not. {6} He that removeth the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof are shaken. {7} He that commandeth the sun, and it riseth not: and shutteth up the stars as it were under a seal: {8} He that alone spreadeth the heaven, & goeth upon the waves of the sea. {9} He that maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and Hyades, and the inner parts of the south. {10} He that doth great things and incomprehensible, and marvelous, of the which there is no number. {11} If he come to me, I shall not see him: if he depart, I shall not understand. {12} If suddenly he ask, who shall answer him? Or who can say: Why doest thou so? {13} God whose wrath no man can resist, and under whom they stoop that carry the world. {14} How great am I then, that I may answer him, and speak in my words with him? {15} Who although I have any just thing, will not answer, but will beseech my judge. {16} And when he shall hear me invocating, I do not believe that he hath heard my voice. {17} For in a hurlwind shall he break me, and shall multiply my wounds yea without cause. {18} He granteth not my spirit to rest, and he filleth me with bitterness. {19} If strength be demanded, he is most strong: if equity of judgment, no man dare give testimony for me. {20} If I will justify my self, mine own mouth shall condemn me: if I will shew my self innocent, he shall prove me wicked. {21} Although I shall be simple, the self-same shall my soul be ignorant of, and I shall be weary of my life, {22} One thing there is that I have spoken, both the innocent and the impious he consumeth. {23} If he scourge, let him kill at once, and not laugh at the pains of innocents. {24} The earth is given into the hands of the impious, he covereth the face of the judges thereof: and if it be not he, who is it them? {25} My days have been swifter than a post: they have fled and have not seen good. {26} They have passed by as ships carrying fruits, as an eagle flying to meat. {27} When I shall say: I will not speak so, I change my face, & am tormented with sorrow. {28} I feared all my works, knowing that thou didst not spare the offender. {29} But if so also I am impious, why have I laboured in vain? {30} If I be washed as it were with snow-waters, & my hands shall shine as most clean: {31} Yet shall thou dip me in filth, and my garments shall abhor me. {32} For neither I will answer a man that is like my self: nor that may be heard with me equally in judgment. {33} There is none that may be able to reprove both, and to put his hand between both. {34} Let him take his rod from me, and let not his dread terrify me. {35} I will speak, and will not fear him: for I can not answer fearing.

Job scarce able to speak, yet sheweth that there is no injustice nor ignorance in God, neither is his sin the cause of so great afflictions. 9. Acknowledgeth God's love and benefits towards himself. 15. and dreadeth his strict judgement.

{1} MY soul is weary of my life, I will let my speech pass against my self. I will speak in the bitterness of my soul. {2} I will say to God: Condemn me not: tell me why thou judgest me so. {3} Doth it seem good to thee, if thou calumniate me, and oppress me, the work of thy hands, and help the counsel of the impious? {4} Hast thou eyes of flesh: or as a man seeth, shalt thou also see? {5} Are thy days as the days of man, and are thy years as the times of men: {6} That thou seekest my iniquity, and searchest my sin? {7} And thou mayst know that I have done no impious thing, whereas there is no man that can deliver out of thy hand. {8} Thy hands have made me, & framed me wholly round-about, & dost thou so suddenly cast me down headlong? {9} Remember I beseech thee that as clay thou madest me, & into dust thou wilt bring me again. {10} Hast thou not as milk milked me, and curdled me as cheese? {11} With skin & flesh thou hast clothed me: with bones and sinews thou hast compacted me. {12} Life and mercy thou hast given to me, and thy visitation hath kept my spirit. {13} Although thou conceal these things in thy heart, yet I know that thou rememberest all things. {14} If I have sinned and thou hast spared me for an hour: why doest thou not suffer me to be clean from mine iniquity? {15} And if I shall be impious, woe is to me: and if just, I shall not lift up my head, filled with affliction and misery. {16} And for pride as a lioness thou wilt take me, and returning thou doest marvelously torment me. {17} Thou renewest thy witnesses against me, & multipliest thy wrath toward me, and pains do war upon me. {18} Why didst thou bring me forth out of the matrice? Who would God, I had been consumed, that eye might not see me. {19} I had been as if I were not, carried from the womb to the grave. {20} Shall not the fewness of my days be ended shortly? suffer me therefore, that I may a little lament my sorrow: {21} Before I go, and return not, unto the dark land, that is covered with the mist of death: {22} A land of misery and darkness, where is the shadow of death, and no order, but everlasting horror inhabiteth.

Sophar imputeth Job's discourse, about the cause of his so great afflictions, to insolency of mind, and loquacity of tongue, persuading him to acknowledge grievous sins, that so he may have the reward of a just man.

{1} BUT Sophar the Naamathite answering, said: things, not hear also? Or shall a man full {2} Why, shall he that speaketh many of words be justified? {3} To thee only shall men hold their peace? & when thou hast mocked others, shalt thou be confuted of none? {4} For thou hast said: My word is pure, and I am clean in thy sight. {5} And I would wish that God would speak with thee, and would open his lips to thee. {6} That he might shew thee the secrets of wisdom, and that his law is manifold, and thou mightest understand that thou art exacted much lesser things of him than thy iniquity deserveth. {7} Peradventure thou wilt comprehend the steps of God, and wilt find out the Omnipotent perfectly? {8} He is higher than heaven, and what wilt thou do? Deeper than hell, and how wilt thou know? {9} The measure of him is longer than the earth, & broader than the sea. {10} If he shall overthrow all things, or shall straiten them into one, who shall say against him? {11} For he knoweth the vanity of men, & seeing iniquity doth he not consider? {12} A vain man is extolled into pride, & thinketh himself born free as a wild ass's colt. {13} But thou hast confirmed thy heart, & hast spread thy hands to him. {14} If thou shalt take away from thee the iniquity that is in thy hand, & injustice remain not in thy tabernacle: {15} Then mayst thou lift up thy face without spot, & thou shalt be stable, & shalt not fear. {16} Thou shalt also forget misery, & shalt remember it as waters that are passed. {17} And the brightness as it were of noon days, shall arise to thee at evening: and when thou shalt think thy self consumed, thou shalt rise as the day star. {18} And thou shalt have confidence, hope being set before thee, & buried thou shalt sleep secure. {19} Thou shalt rest, and there shall be none to terrify thee: and very many shall beseech thy face. {20} But the eyes of the impious shall decay, and escape shall fail them, and their hope the abomination of the soul.

Job sheweth the knowledge, which his friends much boasts of, to be the common known doctrine of God's servants. He more truly, and more profoundly discourses of God's power and wisdom, still defending his own innocency in respect of great sins.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: men alone, & shall wisdom die with you? {2} Are you then {3} I also have a heart even as you, neither am I inferior to you: for who is ignorant of these things, which you know? {4} He that is mocked of his friend as I, shall invoke God, and he will hear him: for the simplicity of the just man is scorned. {5} The lamp contemned in the cogitations of the rich, is prepared to the time appointed. {6} The tabernacles of robbers abound, and they provoke God boldly, whereas he hath given all things into their hands. {7} For ask the beasts, and they shall teach thee: and the fowls of the air, and they shall tell thee. {8} Speak to the earth, and it shall answer thee, and the fishes of the sea shall tell. {9} Who is ignorant that the hand of our Lord hath made all these things? {10} In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the spirit of all the flesh of man. {11} Doth not the ear discern words, and the jaws of him that eateth, the taste? {12} In the ancients is wisdom, and in long time prudence. {13} With him is wisdom and strength, he hath counsel and understanding. {14} If he shall destroy, there is no man that can build: if he shut up a man, there is none that can open. {15} If he hold in the waters, all things shall be dried: and if he send them forth, they shall overthrow the earth. {16} With him is strength and wisdom: he knoweth both the deceiver, and him that is deceived. {17} He bringeth counsellors to a foolish end, & judges to astonishment. {18} He looseth the belt of kings, & girdeth their reins with a cord. {19} He leadeth away Priests without glory, & supplanteth the great men. {20} Changing the lip of the true, and taking away the doctrine of the ancients. {21} He poureth out contempt upon Princes, relieving them that had been oppressed. {22} Who revealeth profound things out of darkness, and bringeth forth the shadow of death into light. {23} Who multiplieth nations, & destroyeth them, and restoreth the destroyed whole again. {24} Who changeth the heart of the Princes of the people of the earth, and deceiveth them, that they may go in vain where is no passage. {25} They shall grope as in the dark, and not in the light, and he shall make them go amiss as drunken men.

Of their words Job confuseth his adversaries, that they have spoken that which they know not: 13. defendeth his own innocency: 22. desiring of God, if he be afflicted for secret sins, that he may know them.

{1} BEHOLD mine eye hath seen all these things, and mine ear hath heard, and I have understood every thing. {2} According to your knowledge I also do know: neither am I inferior to you. {3} But yet I will speak to the Omnipotent, and I covet to dispute with God. {4} First shewing you to be forgers of lying, and maintainers of perverse opinions. {5} And would God ye would hold your peace, that you might be thought to be wise men. {6} Hear ye therefore my corrections, and attend the judgment of my lips. {7} Hath God need of your lie, that for him you speak guiles? {8} Do you take his person, and do you endeavour to judge for God? {9} Or shall it please him from whom nothing can be concealed, or shall he be deceived as a man, with your fraudulent dealings? {10} He shall reprove you, because in secret you take his person. {11} Forthwith as he shall move himself, he shall trouble you: and his terror shall come violently upon you. {12} Your memory shall be compared to ashes, and your necks shall be brought into clay. {13} Hold your peace a little while, that I may speak whatsoever my mind shall prompt me. {14} Why do I tear my flesh with my teeth, and carry my soul in my hands? {15} Although he shall kill me, I will trust in him: but yet I will reprove my ways in his sight. {16} And he shall be my saviour: for no hypocrite shall come in his sight. {17} Hear ye my word, and receive the obscure sayings with your ears. {18} If I shall be judged, I know that I shall be found just. {19} What is he that will be judged with me? Let him come: why am I consumed holding my peace? {20} Two things only do not to me, and then shall I not be hid from thy face: {21} Make thy hand far from me, and let not thy fear terrify me. {22} Call me, and I will answer thee: or else I will speak, and do thou answer me. {23} How great iniquities and sins I have, my wicked deeds and my offences shew thou me. {24} Why hidest thou thy face, and thinkest me thine enemy? {25} Against the leaf, that is violently taken with the wind, thou shewest thy might, and persecutest dry stubble. {26} For thou wriest bitterness against me, and wilt consume me with the sins of my youth. {27} Thou hast put my feet in the stocks, and hast observed all my paths, and hast considered the steps of my feet. {28} Who as rottenness am to be consumed, and as a garment, that is eaten of the moth.

Again Job describeth the miseries of man's life. 3. Nevertheless God's great providence towards him: 7. professeth his belief of the Resurrection.

{1} MAN born of woman, living a short time, is replenished with many miseries. {2} Who as a flower cometh forth and is destroyed, and flyeth as a shadow, and never abideth in the same state. {3} And doest thou count it a worthy thing to open thine eyes upon such an one, and to bring him with thee into judgment? {4} Who can make clean him that is conceived of unclean seed? Is it not thou which only art? {5} The days of man are short, and the number of his months is with thee, thou hast appointed his limits which can not be passed. {6} Depart a little from him, that he may rest, until his day wished for come, even as the hired man's. {7} A tree hath hope: if it be cut, it waxeth green again, and the boughs thereof spring. {8} If his root be old in the earth, and the trunk thereof be dead in the dust, {9} At the scent of water it shall spring, and bring forth leaves, as when it was first planted. {10} But when man shall be dead, and naked, and consumed, where is he I pray? {11} As if the waters should depart out of the sea, and a river made empty should be dried up. {12} So man when he is asleep shall not rise again, {540} till heaven perish, he shall not awake, nor rise up out of his sleep. {13} Who will grant me this, that in hell thou protect me, and hide me till thy fury pass, and appoint me a time, wherein thou wilt remember me? {14} Shall man that is dead, thinkest thou, live again? All the days, in which I am now in warfare, I expect until my change do come. {15} Thou shalt call me, and I shall answer thee: to the work of thy hands thou shalt reach thy right hand. {16} Thou in deed hast numbered my steps: but thou wilt spare my sins. {17} Thou hast sealed my offences as it were in a bag, but hast cured mine iniquity. {18} A mountain falling slideth down, and a rock is removed out of his place. {19} Waters make stones hollow, and with inundation, the earth by little and little is consumed: and men therefore thou shalt destroy in like manner. {20} Thou hast strengthened him a little, that he might pass away for ever: thou shalt change his face, and shalt send him forth. {21} Whether his children shall be noble, or unnable, he shall not understand. {22} But yet his flesh whilst he shall live shall have sorrow, and his soul shall mourn upon himself.

Eliphaz again chargeth Job to have spoken presumptuously, and blasphemously: 14. avoucheth that no man is innocent nor just: 20. describing the malediction of the impious and hypocrites.

{1} BUT Eliphaz the Themanite answering, said: {2} speaking into the wind, and fill his Will a wise man answer as it were stomach with burning? {3} Thou reproveth him in words, that is not equal to thee, & speakest that which is not expedient for thee. {4} As much as is in thee, thou hast evacuated fear, and hast taken away prayers before God. {5} For thine iniquity hath taught thy mouth, and thou doest imitate the tongue of blasphemers. {6} Thine own mouth shall condemn thee, and not I: and thy lips shall answer thee. {7} Wast thou the first man born, and formed before the little hills? {8} Hast thou heard God's counsel, and shall his wisdom be inferior to thee? {9} What doest thou know, that we are ignorant of? What doest thou understand that we know not? {10} There are both old men & ancients among us, much elder than thy fathers. {11} Is it a great matter that God should comfort thee? But thy naughty words hinder it. {12} Why doth thy heart elevate thee, & as thinking great things, hast thou astonished eyes? {13} Why doeth thy spirit swell against God, to utter such words out of thy mouth? {14} What is man, that he should be without spot, & that the born of a woman should appear just? {15} Behold among his saints none is immutable, & the heavens are not clean in his sight. {16} How much more is man abominable, and unprofitable, who drinketh iniquity as it were water? {17} I will shew thee, hear me: that which I have seen I will tell thee. {18} Wise men confess and hide not their fathers: {19} to whom only the earth was given, and stranger hath not passed by them. {20} The impious is proud all his days, and the number of the years of his tyranny is uncertain. {21} The sound of terror is always in his ears: and when there is peace, he always suspecteth treason. {22} He believeth not that he may return from darkness to light, looking round about for the sword on every side. {23} When he shall move himself to seek bread, he knoweth that the day of darkness is prepared in his hand. {24} Tribulation shall terrify him, and distress shall compass him, as a king that is prepared to battle. {25} For he hath stretched his hand against God, & is strengthened against the Omnipotent. {26} He hath run against him with neck set upright, and is armed with a fat neck. {27} Fatness hath covered his face, and from his sides there hangeth tallow. {28} He hath dwelt in desolate cities, and in desert houses, that are brought into hillocks. {29} He shall not be enriched, neither shall his substance continue, neither shall he put his root in the earth. {30} He shall not depart out of darkness, the flame shall dry his boughs, and he shall be taken away with the spirit of his own mouth. {31} He shall not believe, vainly deceived with error, {541} that he may be redeemed with any price. {32} Before his days be accomplished, he shall perish: and his hands shall wither. {33} His cluster in the first flower shall be hurt as a vine, and as the olive tree casting his flower. {34} For the congregation of the hypocrite is barren, and fire shall devour their tabernacles, which gladly take gifts. {35} He conceived sorrow, and hath brought forth iniquity, and his womb prepareth guiles.

Job moved by his importune friends, 4. expositate their severity, 12. further describeth his afflictions, and appealeth to God's judgement, that he suffereth more than his sins deserve.

{1} BUT Job answering said: oftentimes such things, heavy comforters you are all. {3} Shall words full of wind {2} I have heard have an end? Or is any thing troublesome to thee, if thou speak? {4} I also could speak things like to you: and would God your soul were for my soul. {5} I also would comfort you with words, and would wag my head upon you. {6} I would strengthen you with my mouth, and would move my lips, as sparing you. {7} But what shall I do? If I speak, my pain will not rest: and if I hold my peace, it will not depart from me. {8} But now my sorrow hath oppressed me, & all my limbs are brought to nothing. {9} My wrinkles give testimony against me, and a false speaker is raised up against my face contradicting me. {10} He hath gathered his fury upon me, and threatening me hath gnashed against me with his teeth, mine enemy hath beheld me with terrible eyes. {11} They have opened their mouths upon me, and exprobating have stricken my cheek, they are filled with my pains. {12} God hath shut me up with the wicked man, and hath delivered me to the hands of the impious. {13} I sometime that wealthy-one suddenly am broken: he hath held my neck, broken me, and set me to himself as it were a mark. {14} He hath compassed me with his spears, he hath wounded my loins, he hath not spared, and hath poured out on the earth my bowels. {15} He hath cut me with wound upon wound, he hath come violently upon me as it were a giant. {16} I have sowed sackcloth upon my skin, and have covered my flesh with ashes. {17} My face is swollen with weeping, and my eye-lids are dim. {18} These things have I suffered without the iniquity of my hand, whereas I had clean prayers to God. {19} Earth cover not my blood, neither let my cry find place in thee to be hid. {20} For behold my witness is in heaven, and he that knoweth my conscience on high. {21} My friends full of words: mine eye distillett unto God. {22} And would God a man might so be judged with God, as the son of man is judged with his companion. {23} For behold the short years pass away, and I walk the path, by the which I shall not return.

For the grievousness of his pain Job expecteth speedy death, 4. chargeth his friends with folly for holding only remuneration in this life. 6. Himself hopeth happy rest in the other world.

{1} MY spirit shall be extenuated, my days shall be shortened, and the grave only remaineth for me. {2} I have not sinned, and mine eye abideth in bitterness. {3} Deliver me, and set me beside thee, and let any man's hand fight against me. {4} Thou hast made their heart far from discipline, and therefore they shall not be exalted. {5} He promiseth a prey to his fellows, and the eyes of his children shall fail. {6} He hath set me as it were for a proverb of the common people, and I am an example before them. {7} Mine eye is dim for indignation, and my members are brought as it were to nothing. {8} The just shall be astonished upon this, and the innocent shall be raised up against the hypocrite. {9} And the just shall hold his way, & with clean hands shall add strength. {10} Be all you therefore converted, and come, and I shall not find among you any wise man. {11} My days have passed, my cogitations are dissipated, tormenting my heart: {12} Night they have turned into day, and again after darkness I hope for light. {13} If I shall expect, hell is my house, and in darkness I have made my bed. {14} I have said to rottenness: Thou art my father, my mother, and my sister, to worms. {15} Where is now then my expectation, and my patience who considereth. {16} All my things shall descend into most deep hell: there at the least, shall I have rest thinkest thou?

Baldad setteth upon Job again, charging him with present impatience and former impiety. 6. and that therefore he suffereth worthy punishment.

{1} BUT Baldad the Suhite answering, said: {2} words? Understand ye first, and so let us How long will ye speak vaunting speak. {3} Why are we reputed as beasts, and accounted vile before you? {4} Which destroyest thy soul in thy fury, shall the earth be forsaken for thee, and shall rocks be transported out of their place? {5} Shall not the light of the impious be extinguished, and the flame of his fire not shine? {6} The light shall be dark in his tabernacle, and the candle that is over him, shall be extinguished. {7} The steps of his power shall be straitened, and his own counsel shall cast him down headlong. {8} For he hath thrust his feet into a net, and walketh in the mashes thereof. {9} The sole of his foot shall be held in a snare, and thirst shall burn against him. {10} His gin is hid in the earth, and his spring upon the path. {11} Fears shall terrify him on every side, and his feet shall entangle him. {12} Let his strength be extenuated with famine, and let hunger invade his ribs. {13} Let it devour the beauty of his skin, let death the first-born consume his arms. {14} Let his confidence be plucked away out of his tabernacle, and let destruction as a king tread upon him. {15} Let the companions of him, that is not, dwell in his tabernacle, let brimstone be sprinkled in his tent. {16} Let his roots be dried downward, and his harvest destroyed upward. {17} Let the memory of him perish from the earth, and let not his name be renowned in the streets. {18} He shall expel him out of light into darkness, and shall transport him out of the world. {19} His seed shall not be, nor his progeny in his people, nor any remnants in his countries. {20} In his day, the last shall be astonished, and horror shall invade the first. {21} These are then the tabernacles of the wicked man, and this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

Job lamenteth his friend's cruelty, 6. affirmeth that his so great affliction is not for his sins, 25. and comforteth himself with his undoubted belief of the Resurrection.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: you afflict my soul, and wear me with words? {3} Behold, ten times you confound {2} How long do me, and are not ashamed oppressing me. {4} For although I have been ignorant, mine ignorance shall be with me. {5} But you are set up against me, & reprove me with reproaches. {6} At the least now understand ye, that God hath afflicted me not with equal judgment, and hath compassed me with his scourges. {7} Behold I shall cry suffering violence, and no man will hear: I shall cry out, and there is none to judge. {8} He hath hedged my path round about and I can not pass, and in my way hath put darkness. {9} He hath spoiled me of my glory, and hath taken the crown from my head. {10} He hath destroyed me on every side, and I perish, and as it were from a tree plucked hath he taken away my hope. {11} His fury is wrath against me, and he hath so accounted me as his enemy. {12} His servants have come together, and have made themselves a way by me, and have besieged my tabernacle round about. {13} He hath made my brethren far from me, and my acquaintance as strangers have departed from me. {14} My kinsmen have forsaken me, and they that knew me have forgotten me. {15} The guests of my house, and my maidservants have counted me an alien, and I have been as it were a stranger in their eyes. {16} I called my servant, and he did not answer me, with mine own mouth I besought him. {17} My wife hath abhorred my breath, and I prayed the children of my womb. {18} Fools also despised me, and when I was departed from them, they backbited me. {19} My counsellors sometime have abhorred me: & he whom I loved most hath turned against me. {20} The flesh being consumed, my bone hath cleaved to my skin, and there are left only lips about my teeth. {21} Have mercy upon me, have mercy upon me, at the least you my friends, because the hand of our Lord hath touched me. {22} Why do you as God persecute me, and are filled with my flesh? {23} Who will grant me that my words may be written? Who will give me that they may be drawn in a Book, {24} with iron pen, & in plate of lead, or else with stile might be graven in flint-stone? {25} For I know that my Redeemer liveth, & in the last day I shall rise out of the earth. {26} And I shall be compassed again with my skin, and in my flesh I shall see God. {27} Whom I my self shall see, & mine eyes shall behold, & none other: this my hope is laid up in my bosom. {28} Why then do you say now: Let us persecute him, & let us find root of word against him? {29} Fly therefore from the face of the sword, because the sword is the revenger of iniquities: and know ye that there is judgment.

Sophar avoucheth that some wicked men flourish for a time, but are afterward justly plagued. 29. Thereupon condemneth Job as an hypocrite.

{1} BUT Sophar the Naamathite answering, said: succeed one an other, and my mind is rapt {2} Therefore my diverse cogitations into sundry things. {3} The doctrine, wherewith thou reprovest me, I will hear, and the spirit of my understanding shall answer me. {4} This I know from the beginning, since man was placed upon the earth, {5} That the praise of the impious is short, and the joy of the hypocrite as it were for a moment: {6} If his pride rise up even to the heaven, and his head touch the clouds: {7} As a dunghill in the end he shall be destroyed, and they that had seen him, shall say: Where is he? {8} As a dream that flyeth away he shall not be found, he shall pass as a vision by night: {9} The eye that had seen him, shall not see him, neither shall his place behold him any more. {10} His children shall come to naught with poverty, and his hands shall render him his sorrow. {11} His bones shall be filled with the vices of his youth, & they shall sleep with him in the dust. {12} For when evil shall be sweet in his mouth, he will hide it under his tongue. {13} He will spare it, & not leave it, and will hide it in his throat. {14} His bread in his belly shall be turned into the gall of asps within him. {15} The riches which he hath devoured, he shall vomit out, & God shall draw them forth out of his belly. {16} He shall suck the head of asps, and the vipers tongue shall kill him. {17} (Let him not see the streams of the river, the torrents of honey, & of butter.) {18} He shall be punished for all things that he did, & yet not be consumed: according to the multitude of his inventions so also shall he suffer. {19} Because breaking in, he hath made the poor naked: he hath violently taken a house, & built it not. {20} Neither is his belly filled: and when he shall have the things he coveted, he can not possess them. {21} There remained not of his meat, & therefore nothing shall continue of his goods: {22} When he shall be filled, he shall be straitened, he shall burn, and all sorrow shall fall upon him. {23} Would God his belly were filled, that he may send forth the wrath of his fury upon him, and rain his battle upon him. {24} He shall fly weapons of iron, and shall fall upon a bow of brass. {25} The sword plucked out, and coming forth of his scabbard, and glistering in his bitterness: the horrible shall go and come upon him. {26} All darkness is hid in his secrets: fire that is not kindled shall devour him, he shall be afflicted left in his tabernacle. {27} The heavens shall reveal his iniquity, and the earth shall rise against him. {28} The blossom of his house shall be opened, he shall be plucked down in the day of God's fury. {29} This is the portion of an impious man from God, & the inheritance of his words from our Lord.

Job requiring his friends to hear him, 7. discourses of the cause, why some evil men prosper all this life.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: you my words, and do penance. {3} Bear with me, that I also may speak, {2} Hear I beseech and after my words, if it shall seem good, laugh ye. {4} Is my disputation against man, that I ought not worthily to be sorry? {5} Harken to me, and be astonished, and put the finger upon your mouth. {6} And I, when I shall remember, am afraid, and trembling shaketh my flesh. {7} Why then do the impious live, are they advanced, & strengthened with riches? {8} Their seed continueth before them, a multitude of kinsmen, & of nephews in their sight. {9} Their houses be secure & peaceable, & the rod of God is not upon them. {10} Their bullock hath conceived, & hath not made abortion: their cow hath calved, and is not deprived of her calf. {11} Their little ones go forth as flocks, and their infants rejoice with pastimes. {12} They hold the timbrel, & the harp, & rejoice at the sound of the organ. {13} They lead their days in wealth, and in a moment they go down to hell. {14} Who said to God: depart from us, we will not the knowledge of thy ways. {15} Who is the Omnipotent, that we should serve him? And what doth it profit us if we shall pray him? {16} But yet because their good things are not in their hand, be the counsel of the impious far from me. {17} How often shall the candle of the impious be extinguished, and inundation come upon them, and shall he divide the sorrows of his fury? {18} They shall be as chaff before the face of the wind, and as ashes, which the whirlwind scattereth. {19} God shall reserve the sorrow of the father to his children: and when he shall have rendered it, then shall he know. {20} His eyes shall see his own slaughter, and he shall drink the fury of the Omnipotent. {21} For what doth it pertain to him concerning his house after him: although the number of his months be diminished the half? {22} Shall any man teach God knowledge, who judgeth the high ones? {23} This man dieth strong and in health, rich and happy. {24} His bowels be full of fat, and his bones be embroiled with marrow. {25} But an other dieth in bitterness of soul without any riches: {26} And yet they shall sleep together in the dust, and worms shall cover them. {27} Surely I know your cogitations, & unjust sentences against me. {28} For you say: Where is the house of the Prince? & where are the tabernacles of the impious? {29} Ask any of the wayfaring men, & you shall understand that he knoweth these self-same things. {30} Because the evil man is kept unto the day of perdition, and he shall be led to the day of fury. {31} Who shall reprove his way before him? And who shall repay him the things that he hath done? {32} He shall be brought to the graves, and shall watch in the head of the dead. {33} He hath been sweet to the grave of Cocytus, and after him he shall draw every man, and before him innumerable. {34} How therefore do ye comfort me in vain, whereas your answer is shewed to be repugnant to the truth?

Eliphaz contendeth that God is not pleased with a just man's afflictions: 5. falsely imputeth enormous crimes to holy Job, 12. and gross errors. 21. Wisheth him therefore to repent, that so he may prosper.

{1} BUT Eliphaz the Themanite answering, said: {2} though he be of perfect knowledge? Can man be compared with God, yea {3} What doth it profit God if thou be just? Or what doest thou advantage him if thy way be unspotted? {4} Shall he be afraid to reprove thee, and come with thee into judgment: {5} And not for thy very great malice, and thine infinite iniquities? {6} For thou hast taken away the pledge of thy brethren without cause, and the naked thou hast spoiled of cloths. {7} Water to the weary thou hast not given, and from the hungry thou hast withdrawn bread. {8} In the strength of thine arm thou didst possess the earth, and being the mightiest thou didst obtain it. {9} Widows thou hast sent away empty, and the arms of pupils thou hast broken in pieces. {10} Therefore art thou compassed with snares, and sudden fear troubleth thee. {11} And thoughtest thou that thou shouldst not see darkness, and that thou shouldst not be oppressed with the violence of overflowing waters? {12} Doest thou not think that God is higher than heaven, and is exalted above the top of the stars? {13} And thou sayst: For what knoweth God? And he judgeth as it were by a mist. {14} The clouds are his covert, neither doth he consider our things, and he walketh about the poles of heaven. {15} Doest thou covet to keep the path of worlds, which wicked men have trodden? {16} Who were taken away before their time, and a flood hath overthrown their foundation. {17} Who said to God: Depart from us; and as though the Omnipotent could do nothing, they esteemed him: {18} Whereas he had filled their houses with good things, whose sentence be far from me. {19} The just shall see, & shall rejoice, & the innocent man shall scorn them. {20} Is not their exaltation cut down, and hath not fire devoured the remnants of them? {21} Agree thou therefore to him, and have peace: and by these things thou shalt have the best fruits. {22} Receive the law of his mouth, and put his words in thy heart. {23} If thou wilt return to the Omnipotent, thou shalt be builded up, and shalt make iniquity far from thy tabernacle. {24} He shall give for earth flint, and for flint torrents of gold. {25} And the Omnipotent shall be against thine enemies, and silver shall be heaped together unto thee. {26} Then shalt thou abound in delights upon the Omnipotent, and shalt lift up thy face to God. {27} Thou shalt ask him, and he will hear thee, and thou shalt pay thy vows. {28} Thou shalt decree a thing, and it shall come to thee, and light shall shine in thy ways. {29} For who will be humbled, shall be in glory: & he that will bow down his eyes, he shall be saved. {30} The innocent shall be saved, but shall be saved in the cleanness of his hands.

Job expecteth help and sentence of God, 6. with just fear, yet with good conscience maintaineth his own innocency.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: talk is in bitterness, and the hand of my plague is aggravated upon my mourning. {2} Now also my {3} Who will grant me that I may know and find him, & come even to his throne? {4} I will set judgement before him, and will fill my mouth with accusations. {5} That I may know the words that he will answer me, and understand what he will speak to me. {6} I will not that he contend with me with much strength, nor that he oppress me with the weight of his greatness. {7} Let him propose equity against me, and my judgment shall come to victory. {8} If I shall go to the East, he appeareth not: if to the West, I shall not understand him. {9} If to the left hand, what shall I do? I shall not apprehend him: if I turn my self to the right hand, I shall not see him. {10} But he knoweth my way, and hath proved me as gold that passeth through the fire: {11} My foot hath followed his steps, I have kept his way, & have not declined out of it. {12} From the commandments of his lips I have not departed, and I have hid the words of his mouth in my bosom. {13} For he is alone, and no man can turn away his cogitation: and whatsoever his soul would, that hath he done. {14} And when he shall have fulfilled his will in me, many things also are at hand with him. {15} And therefore I am troubled at his face, and considering him I am made pensive with fear. {16} God hath mollified my heart, and the Omnipotent hath troubled me. {17} For I have not perished because of the imminent darkness, neither hath the mist covered my face.

God in his providence knoweth when he will punish the wicked, which his true servants know not, much less the impious.

{1} TIMES are not hid from the Omnipotent: but they that know him, know not his days. {2} Some have transferred bounds, spoiled flocks, & fed them. {3} They have driven away the ass of pupils, and have taken away the widow's oxe for a pledge. {4} They have subverted the way of the poor, and have oppressed together the meek of the earth. {5} Others as wild asses in the desert go forth to their work: watching to the prey, do prepare bread for their children. {6} They reap the field that is not theirs, and gather the grapes of his vineyard, whom by violence they have oppressed. {7} They send men away naked taking away their cloths, which have no covering in the cold. {8} Whom the showers of the mountains do wash, & not having a covert, they embrace stones. {9} They did violence spoiling the pupils, & the common poor people they spoiled. {10} From the naked & them that go without clothing, and the hungry they have taken away the ears of corn. {11} They have rested the noontide among their heaps, which having trodden the wine presses are a thirst. {12} Out of the cities they have made men to mourn, and the soul of the wounded hath cried, & God doth not suffer it to pass unrevenged: {13} They have been rebellious to the light, they have not known his ways, neither did they return by his paths. {14} At the very break of day the murderer riseth, he killeth the needy, and the poor man: but by night he will be as a thief. {15} The eye of the adulterer observeth darkness, saying: Eye shall not see me: and he will cover his face. {16} He diggeth through houses in the dark, as in the day they had appointed with themselves, and they have not known the light. {17} If suddenly the morning shall appear, they think it the shadow of death: and they walk so in darkness as it were in light. {18} He is light above the face of the water: cursed be his portion in the earth, neither walk he by the way of the vineyards. {19} Let him pass from snow waters to exceeding heat, and his sin even unto hell. {20} Let mercy forget him: worms his sweetness: be he not in remembrance, but be he broken in pieces as an unfruitful tree. {21} For he hath fed the barren, and her that beareth not, and to the widow he hath not done good. {22} He hath pulled down the strong in his strength and when he shall stand, he will not credit his life. {23} God hath given him place for penance, and he abusest it unto pride: but his eyes be upon his ways. {24} They are elevated for a little, and shall not stand, and shall be humbled as all things, and shall be taken away, and as the tops of the ears of corn they shall be broken. {25} And if it be not so, who can reprove me that I have lied, and set my words before God?

Baldad endeavoureth again to terrify Job with God's judgement, from appealing thereto, and from avouching his own innocency.

{1} BUT Baldad the Suhite answering, said: {2} maketh concord in his high ones. Power and terror is with him, that {3} Is there any number of his soldiers? And upon whom shall not his light arise? {4} Can man be justified compared with God, or the born of a woman appear clean? {5} Behold the moon also doth not shine, and the stars are not clean in his sight. {6} How much more man rottenness, and the son of man a worm?

Job refuteth his adversary's needless and common arguments, by more sound discoursing of God's power, and wisdom.

{1} BUT Job answering, said: are thou? His that is weak? And doest thou {2} Whose helper hold up the arm of him, that is not strong? {3} To whom hast thou given counsel? Perhaps to him, that hath not wisdom, and thy prudence hast thou shewed very great. {4} Whom wouldest thou teach? Not him that made breath? {5} Behold the giants groan under the waters, & they that dwell with them. {6} Hell is naked before him, & there is no covert to perdition. {7} Who stretcheth out the north-wind over the vacant, and hangeth the earth upon nothing. {8} Who bindeth the waters in his clouds, that they break not forth together downward. {9} Who holdeth the countenance of his throne, & spreadeth his cloud over it. {10} He hath made a limit about the waters, till light and darkness be ended. {11} The pillars of heaven tremble, and dread at his beck. {12} In his strength suddenly the seas are gathered together, and with his wisdom he struck the proud man. {13} His spirit hath adorned the heavens & his hand being the mid-wife, the winding serpent is brought forth. {14} Lo, these things are said in part, of his ways: and where as we have heard scarce a little drop of his word, who shall be able to behold the thunder of his greatness?

More and more Job confirmeth his innocency, avouching that God not presently judging, 11. will in time condemn the wicked.

{1} JOB also added, taking his parable, and said: my judgment, and the Omnipotent, which {2} God liveth, who hath taken away hath brought my soul to bitterness. {3} That as long as breath remaineth in me, and the spirit of God in my nostrils, {4} My lips shall not speak iniquity, neither shall my tongue meditate lying. {5} God forbid that I should judge you to be just: till I fail, I will not depart from mine innocency. {6} My justification which I have begun to hold, I will not forsake for my heart doth not reprehend me in all my life. {7} Let mine enemy be as the impious, and mine adversary as the wicked one. {8} For what is the hypocrite's hope, if covetously he take by violence, and God deliver not his soul? {9} Will God hear his cry, when distress shall come upon him? {10} Or can he be delighted in the Omnipotent, and invoke God at all time? {11} I will teach you by the hand of God, what the Omnipotent hath, neither will I hide it. {12} Lo, you do all know, and why speak you vain things without cause? {13} This is the portion of an impious man with God, and inheritance of the violent, which they shall receive of the Omnipotent. {14} If his children be multiplied, they shall be in the sword, & his nephews shall not be filled with bread. {15} They that shall be left of him, shall be buried in death, and his widows shall not weep. {16} If he shall heap together silver as earth, and as clay shall prepare garments: {17} He shall prepare indeed, but the just man shall be clothed with them: and the innocent shall divide the silver. {18} He hath built his house as a moth, and as a keeper hath he made a bower. {19} The rich man when he shall sleep shall take away nothing with him: he shall open his eyes, and find nothing. {20} Poverty as water shall apprehend him, in the night a tempest shall oppress him.

{21} The burning wind shall take him up, and carry him away, and as a whirlwind shall pull him violently out of his place. {22} And he shall cast upon him, and shall not spare: out of his hand flying he shall fly. {23} He shall clasp his hands upon him, and shall hiss upon him, beholding his place.

The marvelous works of God, the author of nature, shew his power and wisdom, 12. and that true riches consist not in temporal creatures, but in wisdom, 28. and fear of God.

{1} SILVER hath beginnings of her veins, and gold hath a place, wherein it is molten. {2} Iron is taken out of the earth, & stone resolved with heat, is turned into brass. {3} He hath set a time for darkness, & the end of all things he considereth, the stone also of darkness, and the shadow of death. {4} The torrent divideth from the pilgrim people, them whom the foot of the needy man hath forgotten, and to whom there is no way. {5} The land, out of which bread grew in his place, is destroyed with fire. {6} The place of the sapphire the stones thereof, and the clods of it gold. {7} The bird hath not known the path, neither hath the eye of the vulture beheld it. {8} The children of merchants have not trodden it, neither hath the lioness passed by it. {9} He hath stretched forth his hand to the flint, he hath overthrown mountains from the roots. {10} In the rocks he hath cut out rivers, and his eye hath seen every precious thing. {11} The depths also of rivers he hath searched, & hid things he hath brought forth to light: {12} But where is wisdom to be found, and what is the place of understanding? {13} Man knoweth not the price thereof, neither is it found in the land of them that live pleasantly. {14} The depth saith: It is not in me: and the sea speaketh: It is not with me. {15} The finest gold shall not be given for it, neither shall silver be weighed in the change thereof. {16} It shall not be compared with the dyed colours of India, nor with Sardonyx the most precious stone, or with the Sapphire. {17} Gold or glass shall not be equal to it, neither shall vessels of gold be changed for it. {18} High and eminent things shall not be mentioned in comparison of it: and wisdom is drawn out of secret places. {19} The topazius of Aethiopia shall not be equal to it, neither shall it be compared to the cleanest dying. {20} From whence then cometh wisdom? And what is the place of understanding? {21} It is hid from the eyes of all living, the fowls of the air also know it not. {22} Perdition & death have said: With our ears we have heard the same thereof. {23} God understandeth the way of it, & he knoweth the place thereof. {24} For he beholdeth the ends of the world, & looketh on all things that are under heaven. {25} Who made a poise to the winds, & weighed the waters in a measure. {26} When he gave a law to the rains, & a way to the sounding storms. {27} Then he saw it, and declared, and prepared, and searched it. {28} And he said to man: Behold the fear of our Lord, that is wisdom: and to depart from evil, understanding.

Again Job recounteth God's former benefits, as well his grace, whereby he did good works, 5. as temporal prosperity: 9. and wisdom above other Princes.

{1} JOB also added, taking his parable, and said: according to the former months, according {2} Who will grant me, that I may be to the days in which God kept me? {3} When his lamp shined over my head, & I walked by his light in darkness? {4} As I was in the days of my youth, when God was secretly in my tabernacle? {5} When the Omnipotent was with me: and my servants round about me? {6} When I washed my feet with butter, and the rock poured the rivers of oil? {7} When I went forth to the gate of the city, and in the street they prepared me a chair? {8} Young men saw me, and hid themselves: and old men rising up stood. {9} The Princes ceased to speak, and did put the finger upon their mouth. {10} Dukes held in their voice, and their tongue cleaved to their throat.

{11} The ear hearing counted me blessed, and the eye seeing gave testimony to me: {12} For that I had delivered the poor man crying out, and the pupil, that had no helper. {13} The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me, and I comforted the heart of the widow. {14} I was clothed with justice: and I revested me with my judgment, as with a garment and crown. {15} I was an eye to the blind, and a foot to the lame. {16} I was the father of the poor: and the cause which I knew not, I searched most diligently. {17} I brake the jaws of the wicked man, and out of his teeth I took away the prey. {18} And I said: I will die in my little nest, and as a palmtree will multiply days. {19} My root is opened beside the waters, and dew shall continue in my harvest. {20} My glory shall always be renewed, and my bow in my hand shall be repaired. {21} They that heard me, expected sentence, and attent held their peace at my counsel. {22} To my words they durst add nothing, and my speech distilled upon them. {23} They expected me as rain, and they opened their mouth as it were to a lateward shower. {24} If at any time I laughed on them, they believed not, and the light of my countenance fell not on the earth. {25} If I would have gone to them, I sat first, and when I sat as a king with his army standing about him, yet was I a comforter of them that mourned.

Holy Job sheweth the great change of his temporal estate, from welfare into great calamity.

{1} BUT now they of younger time scorn me, whose fathers I vouchsafed not to put with the dogs of my flock: {2} The force of whose hands was to me as nothing, & they were thought unworthy of life it-self. {3} Barren with poverty and famine, who gnawed in the wilderness, ill favoured by calamity and misery. {4} And they did eat grass, and the barks of trees, and the root of junipers was their meat. {5} Who taking these things violently out of the valleys, when they had found every thing, they ran to them with a cry. {6} They dwelt in the deserts of torrents, and in caves of the earth, or upon gravel. {7} Who rejoiced among these kind of things, and counted it delicacies to be under the briars. {8} The children of foolish and base men, and in the earth not appearing at all. {9} Now am I turned into their song, and become a proverb with them. {10} They abhor me, and fly far from me, and are not afraid to spit in my face. {11} For he hath opened his quiver, and hath afflicted me, and hath put a bridle into my mouth. {12} At the right hand of me rising, my calamities forthwith arose: they have overthrown my feet, & as with waves have oppressed with their paths. {13} They have dissipated my ways, they have lien in wait against me, and they have prevailed, and there was not that would help. {14} As when a wall is broken, and the gate opened, they have broken violently upon me, and are come tumbling down to my miseries. {15} I am brought to nothing: as a wind thou hast taken away my desire: and my prosperity hath passed away as a cloud. {16} And now my soul withereth in my self, and the days of affliction possess me. {17} In the night my bone is pierced with sorrows: and they that eat me, sleep not. {18} In the multitude of them my garment is consumed, and they have girded me about, as it were with the collar of a coat. {19} I am compared to dirt, and am resembled to embers and ashes. {20} I cry to thee, and thou hearest me not: I stand, and thou doest not respect me. {21} Thou art changed to be cruel toward me, and in the hardness of thy hand thou art against me. {22} Thou didst lift me up, and setting me as it were upon the wind thou hast mightily dashed me. {23} I know that thou wilt deliver me to death, where a house is appointed for every one that liveth. {24} But yet not to my consumption doest thou send forth thy hand: and if they shall fall, thou wilt save. {25} I wept sometime upon him that was afflicted, & my soul had compassion on the poor. {26} I expected good things, and evils are come upon me: tarried for light, and darkness brake forth. {27} My inner parts have boiled without any rest, the days of affliction have prevented me. {28} I went mourning without fury, rising up, I cried in the multitude. {29} I was the brother of dragons, and fellow of Ostriches: {30} My skin is made black upon me, and my bones are dried with heat. {31} My harp is turned into mourning, and my instrument into the voice of weepers.

Holy Job reciteth sincerely his own virtues, shewing thereby that he is not punished so grievously for his sins, but by God's providence for some other cause.

I have made a covenant with mine eyes, that I would not so much as think of a virgin. {2} For what part should God from above have in me, and inheritance the Omnipotent from on high? {3} Is there not perdition to the wicked man, and alienation to them that work injustice? {4} Doth not he consider my ways, and number all my steps? {5} If I have walked in vanity, and my foot hath hastened in guile: {6} Let him weigh me in a just balance, and let God know my simplicity. {7} If my step have declined out of the way, and if my heart hath followed mine eyes, and if spot hath cleaved to my hands: {8} Let me sow, and let an other eat it: and let my progeny be plucked up by the roots. {9} If my heart hath been deceived upon a woman, and if I have lien in wait at my friend's door: {10} Let my wife be the harlot of an other man, and let other men lie with her. {11} For this is a heinous thing, and most great iniquity. {12} It is a fire devouring even to perdition, and rooting up all things that spring. {13} If I have contemned to abide judgment with my man-servant, & my maid-servant, when they had any controversy against me. {14} For what shall I do when God shall rise to judge? And when he shall ask, what shall I answer him? {15} Did not he make me in the womb that made him also: & did not one form me in the matrice? {16} If I have denied to the poor, that which they would, & have made the eyes of the widow to expect: {17} If I have eaten my morsel alone, and the pupil hath not eaten thereof with me {18} (Because from mine infancy mercy hath grown with me: and from my mother's womb it came forth with me.) {19} If I have despised him that perisheth, for that he had not clothing, and the poor man without wherewithal to cover him: {20} If his sides have not blessed me, and he was not warmed with the fleece of my sheep: {21} If I have lifted up my hand over the pupil, yea when I saw my self in the gate the superior: {22} Let my shoulder fall from his juncture, and let my arm with his bones be broken. {23} For I have always feared God as waves swelling upon me, & his weight I could not bear. {24} If I have thought gold my strength, and have said to fine gold: My confidence. {25} If I have rejoiced upon my great riches, and because my hand found many things. {26} If I saw the sun when it shined, and the moon going clearly: {27} And my heart in secret rejoiced, and I kissed my hand with my mouth. {28} Which is most great iniquity, and a denial against God the most high? {29} If I have been glad of his fall that hated me, and have rejoiced that evil had found him. {30} For I have not given my throat to sin, that cursing I wished his soul. {31} If the men of my tabernacle have not said: Who will give of his flesh that we may be filled? {32} The stranger tarried not without, my door was open to the wayfaring man. {33} If as man I have hid my sin, and have concealed my iniquity in my bosom. {34} If I have been afraid at a very great multitude, and the contempt of kinsmen hath terrified me: and I have not rather held my peace, & not gone out of the door. {35} Who will grant me an hearer, that the Omnipotent would hear my desire: and that himself that judgeth would write a book. {36} That I may carry it on my shoulder, and put it about me as a crown? {37} At every step of mine I will pronounce it, and as to the Prince I will offer it. {38} If my land cry against me, & with it the furrows thereof lament: {39} If I have eaten the fruits thereof without money, and have afflicted the soul of the tillers thereof. {40} For wheat let the briar grow to me, and for barley the thorn.

Eliu a young man, being angry that Job persisted in his opinion, and that his three friends could not convince him, 8. taketh upon him to confute Job, which they could not do.

{1} BUT these three men omitted to answer Job, for that he seemed just to himself. {2} And Eliu the son of Barachel a Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, was angry and took indignation: and he was angry against Job, for that he said himself to be just before God. {3} Moreover against his friends he had indignation, for that they had not found a reasonable answer, but only had condemned Job. {4} Therefore Eliu expected Job speaking, because they were his elders that spake. {5} But when he saw that the three were not able to answer, he was wrath exceedingly. {6} And Eliu the son of Barachel a Buzite answering, said: I am younger in time, and you more ancient, therefore casting down my head, I was afraid to shew you my sentence. {7} For I hoped that longer age would speak, and that a multitude of years would teach wisdom. {8} But as I see, there is a Spirit in men, and the inspiration of the Omnipotent giveth understanding. {9} They of many years are not the wise men, neither do the ancients understand judgment. {10} Therefore will I speak: Hear ye me, I also will shew you my wisdom. {11} For I have expected your words, I have heard your wisdom, as long as you contended in words. {12} And as long as I thought you said somewhat, I considered: but as I see, here is none of you that can reprove Job, and answer to his words. {13} Lest perhaps you may say: We have found wisdom, God hath rejected him, not man. {14} He hath spoken nothing to me, and I will not answer him according to your words. {15} They were afraid, and answered no more, and they have taken away talk from themselves. {16} Therefore because I have expected, and they spake not: they stood, and answered no more: {17} I also will answer my part, & will shew my knowledge. {18} For I am full of words, and the spirit of my belly straiteneth me. {19} Behold, my belly is as new wine without a vent, which breaketh new vessels. {20} I will speak, and take breath a little: I will open my lips, and will answer. {21} I will not accept the person of a man, & I will not make God equal to man. {22} For I know not how long I shall continue, and whether after a while my maker will take me away.

Eliu endeavoureth to prove by Job's speech that he is unjust: 13. arguing that God (by afflicting him) hath already so judged. 23. But if by an Angel's admonition he repent, all shall be remitted.

{1} HEAR therefore Job my sayings, and harken to all my words. {2} Behold I have opened my mouth, let my tongue speak within my jaws. {3} My words are of my simple heart, and my lips shall speak a pure sentence. {4} The Spirit of God made me, and the breadth of the Omnipotent gave me life. {5} If thou canst, answer me, and stand against my face. {6} Behold God hath made me also even as thee, and of the same clay I also was formed. {7} But yet let not my miracle terrify thee, and let not my eloquence be burdensome to thee. {8} Thou therefore hast said in my ears, and I have heard the voice of thy words: {9} I am clean, and without sin: unspotted, and there is no iniquity in me. {10} Because he hath found quarrels in me, therefore hath he thought me his enemy. {11} He hath put my feet in the stocks, he hath observed all my ways. {12} This therefore is it, wherein thou art not justified: I will answer thee, that God is greater than man. {13} Doest thou contend against him because he hath not answered thee to all words? {14} God, speaketh once, and repeateth not the self-same the second time. {15} By a dream in a vision by night, when heavy sleep falleth upon men, and they sleep in their bed. {16} Then doth he open the ears of men, and teaching instructeth them with discipline. {17} That he may turn a man from these things, which he doth, and may deliver him from pride: {18} Delivering his soul from corruption: and his life, that it pass not unto the sword. {19} He rebuketh also by sorrow in the bed, and he maketh all his bones to wither. {20} Bread is become abominable to him in his life, and to his soul the meat before desired. {21} His flesh shall consume, and the bones that had been covered, shall be made naked. {22} His soul hath approached to corruption, and his life to things causing death. {23} If there shall be an Angel speaking for him, one of thousands, to declare man's equity. {24} He shall have mercy on him, and shall say: deliver him, that he descend not into corruption: I have found wherein I may be propitious to him. {25} His flesh is consumed with punishments, let it return to the days of his youth. {26} He shall beseech God, and he will be pacified towards him: and he shall see his face in jubilation, and he will render to a man his justice. {27} He shall behold men, and shall say: I have sinned, and indeed I have offended, and as I was worthy, I have not received. {28} He hath delivered his soul that it should not go into death, but living should see the light. {29} Behold all these things doth God work three times in every one. {30} That he may reclaim their souls from corruption, and illuminate them with the light of the living. {31} Attend Job, and hear me: and hold thy peace, whilst I speak. {32} But if thou hast what to speak, answer me, speak, for I would thee to appear just. {33} And if thou have not, hear me: hold thy peace, & I will teach thee wisdom.

Again Eliu chargeth Job with blasphemy, and other crimes, 10. sheweth the equity of God's judgement: 20. and that all things are subject to God's power and knowledge.

{1} ELIU therefore pronouncing spake these words also: and ye learned harken to me: {2} Hear ye wise men my words: {3} For the ear proveth words, and the throat discerneth meats by the taste. {4} Let us choose us judgment, and among us let us see what is the better. {5} Because Job said: I am just, and God hath subverted my judgment. {6} For in judging me there is a lie: mine arrow is violent without any sin. {7} What man is there as is Job, that drinketh scorning as it were water? {8} What goeth with them that work iniquity, and walketh with impious men? {9} For he hath said: Man shall not please God although he run with him. {10} Therefore ye discrete men hear me, far from God be impiety, and iniquity from the Omnipotent. {11} For he will render a man his work, & according to the ways of every one he will recompense them. {12} For in very deed God will not condemn without cause, neither will the Omnipotent subvert judgment. {13} What other hath he appointed over the earth or whom hath he set over the world, which he made? {14} If he direct his heart to him, he shall draw his spirit and breath unto him. {15} All flesh shall fail together, and man shall return into ashes. {16} If then thou have understanding, hear that is said, and harken to the voice of my speech. {17} Can he that loveth not judgment, be healed? And how doest thou so far condemn him that is just? {18} That saith to the king, Apostata: that calleth dukes impious: {19} Who accepteth not the persons of Princes: nor hath known the tyrant, when he contended against the poor man: for all are the work of his hands. {20} They shall suddenly die, and at mid-night peoples shall be troubled, & shall pass, & take away the violent without hand. {21} For his eyes are upon the ways of men, and he considereth all their steps. {22} There is not darkness, & there is not shadow of death, that they may be hid there which work iniquity. {23} For it is no more in man's power to come to God into judgment. {24} He shall destroy many, & innumerable, & shall make other to stand for them. {25} For he knoweth their works: and therefore he shall bring night, and they shall be destroyed. {26} As impious men he hath stricken them in the place of them that see. {27} Who as it were of purpose have revolted from him, & would not understand all his ways: {28} That they might cause the cry of the needy man to come to him, & he heard the voice of the poor. {29} For he granting peace, who is there that can condemn? After he shall hide his countenance, who is there that may behold him, both upon nations, and upon all men? {30} Who maketh a man that is an hypocrite reign for the sins of the people. {31} Therefore because I have spoken to God, thee also I will not prohibit. {32} If I have erred, teach thou me: If I have spoken iniquity, I will add no more. {33} Doth God require it of thee, because it hath displeased thee? For thou beganst to speak, and not I: but if thou know any better thing, speak. {34} Let men of understanding speak to me, and let a wiseman hear me. {35} But Job hath spoken foolishly, and his words sound not discipline. {36} O my father, let Job be proved even to the end: cease not from the man of iniquity. {37} Who addeth blasphemy upon his sins, let him be restrained in the mean time among us: and then let him provoke God to judgment with his speeches.

Eliu pretending that Job had said God to be unjust, sheweth that man's piety nor impiety neither profiteth nor disprofiteth God: 13. and that he judgeth all things rightly.

{1} THEREFORE Eliu again spake these words: {2} that thou saidst: I am juster than God? Doth thy cogitation seem just to thee, {3} For thou saidst: That which is right doth not please thee: or what will it profit thee if I sin? {4} Therefore will I answer to thy words, and to thy friends with thee. {5} Look up to heaven and see, and behold the sky, that it is higher than thou. {6} If thou sin, what shalt thou hurt him? And if thine iniquities be multiplied, what shall thou do against him? {7} Moreover if thou do justly, what shalt thou give him, or what shall he receive of thy hand? {8} Man that is like to thee, thy impiety shall hurt: and thy justice shall help the son of man. {9} Because of the multitude of calumniators they shall cry: and shall wail for the force of the arm of tyrants. {10} And he hath not said: Where is God, that made me, that hath given songs in the night? {11} Who teacheth us above the beasts of the earth, and instructeth us above the fowls of the air. {12} There shall they cry, and he will not hear, because of the pride of the evil. {13} God therefore will not hear without cause, and the Omnipotent will behold the causes of every one. {14} Yea when thou shalt say: He considereth not: be judged before him, and expect him. {15} For he doth not now infer his fury, neither doth he revenge wickedness exceedingly. {16} Therefore Job in vain openeth his mouth, and without knowledge multiplieth words.

Yet further Eliu sheweth, that God by his power and wisdom giveth to every one that is just. 16. Inferring (falsely) that all Job's affliction is for his sins: 22. discoursing still of God's power, wisdom, and providence.

{1} ELIU also adding spake these words: {2} thee: for as yet I have what to speak for Bear with me a little, and I will shew to God. {3} I will repeat my knowledge from the beginning, and I will prove my maker just. {4} For indeed my words are without lie, & perfect knowledge shall be proved to thee. {5} God doth not cast away the mighty, whereas himself also is mighty. {6} But he saveth not the impious, and he giveth judgment to the poor. {7} He shall not take away his eyes from the just man, and he placeth kings in the throne for ever, and there they are exalted. {8} And if they shall be in chains, & be bound with the ropes of poverty. {9} He shall shew them their works, and their wicked deeds, because they have been violent. {10} He also shall reveal their ear, to chastise them: & shall speak, that they may return from iniquity: {11} If they shall hear and observe, they shall accomplish their days in good, and their years in glory. {12} But if they hear not, they shall pass by the sword, and shall be consumed in folly. {13} Dissemblers and crafty men provoke the wrath of God, neither shall they cry when they are bound. {14} Their soul shall die in tempest, and their life, among the effeminate. {15} He shall deliver the poor out of his distress, and shall reveal his ear in tribulation. {16} Therefore he shall save thee most largely out of the narrow mouth, and not having foundation under it: and the quietness of thy table shall be full of fatness. {17} Thy cause is judged as an impious man's, cause and judgment thou shalt receive. {18} Let not therefore anger overcome thee, that thou oppress any man: neither let multitude of gifts incline thee. {19} Lay down thy greatness without tribulation, & all the puissant of strength. {20} Protract not the night, that peoples may come up for them. {21} Beware thou decline not to iniquity: for thou hast begun to follow it after misery. {22} Behold, God is high in his strength, and none is like to him among the law givers. {23} Who can search his ways? Or who can say to him: Thou hast wrought iniquity? {24} Remember that thou knowest not his work, whereof men have song. {25} All men see him, every one beholdeth far off. {26} Behold, God is great surmounting our knowledge: the number of his years is inestimable. {27} Who taketh away the drops of rain, & poureth out showers as it were gifts of water. {28} Which flow out from the clouds, that cover all things from above. {29} If he will stretch forth clouds as his tent, {30} And lighten with his light from above, he shall cover also the ends of the sea. {31} For by these he judgeth peoples, and giveth victuals to many mortal men. {32} In his hands he hideth the light, & commandeth it that it come again. {33} He sheweth his friend thereof, that it is his possession, and that he may ascend to it.

Eliu continueth his discourse, shewing God's wisdom, power, and justice, by his marvelous works of Meteors, 14. and use thereof to man's commodity: 18. which the wisest men sufficiently understand not, much less may presume (as he unjustly chargeth Job) to contend with God.

{1} UPON this my heart is sore afraid, and is moved out of his place, speech in the terror of his voice, and the {2} Hear ye his sound proceeding out of his mouth. {3} Under all the heavens he considereth, and his light is upon the ends of the earth. {4} After him shall sounding roar, he shall thunder with the voice of his greatness, and shall not be found out when his voice shall be heard. {5} God shall thunder in his voice marvelously, he that doeth great & unsearchable things. {6} He that commandeth the snow to descend upon the earth, and the winter rains, and the shower of his strength. {7} He that signeth in the hand of all men, that every one may know his works. {8} The beast shall enter into his covert, and shall abide in his den. {9} From the inner parts shall a tempest come forth, & cold from Arcturus. {10} When God bloweth frost congealeth, and again waters are poured most largely. {11} Corn desireth clouds, & the clouds spread their light. {12} Which go round about, whither-soever the will of the governer shall lead them, to all that he shall command them upon the face of the whole earth. {13} Whether in one tribe, or in his land, or in what place soever of his mercy he shall command them to be found. {14} Harken to these things Job: stand, and consider the marvels of God. {15} Doest thou know when God commanded the rains, that they shew the light of his clouds? {16} Knowest thou the great paths of the clouds, and the perfect knowledges? {17} Are not thy garments hot, when the earth shall be blown with the South wind? {18} Thou perhaps madest the heavens with him, which are most sound, cast as it were of brass. {19} Shew us what we may say to him: for we are wrapped in darkness. {20} Who shall tell him the things that I speak? Yea if man shall speak, he shall be devoured. {21} But now they see not the light: suddenly the air shall be thickened into clouds, and the wind passing by shall drive them away. {22} From the North gold cometh, & toward God fearful praising. {23} We can not find him worthily: great of strength, and judgment, and justice, and he can not be uttered. {24} Therefore shall men fear him, and all that seem to themselves to be wise, shall not dare to behold him.

God after terror of a whirlwind, by way of examining his client Job of diverse creatures about their nature, sheweth that no man hath perfect knowledge of them, much less of God's immensity.

{1} BUT our Lord answering Job out of a whirlwind, said: wrappeth in sentences with unskilful {2} Who is this that words? {3} Gird thy loins as a man: I will ask thee,{555} and answer thou me. {4} Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? Tell me if thou hast understanding. {5} Who set the measures thereof, if thou know: or who stretched out the line upon it? {6} Upon what are the foundations thereof grounded? Or who let down the corner stone thereof, {7} when the morning stars praised me together, and all the sons of God made jubilation? {8} Who shut in the sea with doors when it brake forth, proceeding as it were out of a matrice: {9} When I made a cloud the garment thereof, and wrapped it in darkness as in clouts of infancy. {10} I compassed it with my bounds, and put bar and doors. {11} And I said. Hitherto thou shalt come, and shalt not proceed farther, and here thou shalt break thy swelling waves. {12} Didst thou after thy birth command the morning, and shew the dawning his place? {13} And didst thou hold the extremities of the earth shaking them & hast thou shaken the impious out of it? {14} The seal shall be restored as clay, and shall stand as a garment: {15} From the impious their light shall be taken away, and the high arm shall be broken. {16} Hast thou entered into the depths of the sea, and walked in the lowest parts of the great depth? {17} Have the gates of death been open to thee, & hast thou seen the darksome doors? {18} Hast thou considered the breadth of the earth? Tell me if thou know all things, {19} In what way the light dwelleth, & what is the place of darkness. {20} That thou canst bring every thing to his borders, & understand the paths of the house thereof. {21} Didst thou know them that thou shouldest be born? & didst thou know the number of thy days? {22} Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow, or hast thou beheld treasures of hail? {23} Which I have prepared for the time of the enemy, for the day of fight & battle? {24} What way is the light spread, is heat divided upon the earth? {25} Who gave course to the most vehement shower, and the way of the sounding thunder: {26} That it should rain upon the earth, without man in the desert, where no mortal man abideth: {27} That it should fill the desert and desolate ground, and should bring forth green grass? {28} Who is the father of rain? Or who begot the drops of dew? {29} Out of whose womb came forth ice? And frost from heaven who engendered? {30} Waters are hardened like stone, and the face of the depth is congealed. {31} Shalt thou be able to join together the shining stars Pleiades, or canst thou dissipate the circuit of Arcturus? {32} Doest thou bring forth the day star in his time, & make the evening star to rise upon the children of the earth? {33} Doest thou know the order of heaven, and shalt thou put down the reason thereof on the earth? {34} Shalt thou elevate the voice in the cloud, & the violence of the waters cover thee? {35} Shalt thou send lightnings, and will they go, and returning shall they say to thee: Here we are? {36} Who put wisdom in the heart of man or who gave the cock understanding? {37} Who shall declare the manner of the heavens, and the harmony of heaven who shall make to sleep? {38} When was the dust poured on the earth, and the clods compact together? {39} Shalt thou take a prey for the lioness and fill the appetite of her whelps. {40} When they lie in the dens, & in holes sit in wait? {41} Who prepareth for the raven her meat, when her young ones cry to God, wandering about, because they have not meat?

God Almighty prosecuteth his discourse, shewing his admirable power and providence in living creatures. 24. Whereupon Job acknowledgeth his own oversight in some light words.

{1} HAST thou known the time when the wild goats bring forth young among the rocks, or hast thou observed the hinds when they fawn? {2} Hast thou numbered the months of their conceiving, and known the time of their bearing? {3} They bow down themselves to bring forth young, and they cast them, and make roarings. {4}

Their young are separated, and go to feed: they go forth, and return not to them. {5} Who hath dismissest the wild ass free, and who hath loosed his bonds? {6} To whom I have given a house in the wilderness, and his tabernacles in the land of saltiness. {7} He contemneth the multitude of the city, the cry of the exactor he heareth not. {8} He looketh about the mountains of his pasture, and seeketh out all green places. {9} Will the Rhinoceros serve thee, and will he tarry at thy stall? {10} Shalt thou tie the Rhinoceros with thy collar to plough, or will he break the clods of the valleys after thee? {11} Shalt thou have confidence in his great strength, and leave thy labours unto him? {12} Wilt thou credit him that he will render thee the seed, and gather together thy barn floor? {13} The wing of the Ostrich is like to the wings of the Herodius, and of the hawk. {14} When she leaveth her eggs on the earth, thou perhaps wilt heat them in the dust. {15} She forgeteth that foot may tread upon them, or beast of the field break them. {16} She is hardened toward her young, as though they were not hers, she hath laboured in vain no fear compelling her. {17} For God hath deprived her of wisdom, neither hath he given her understanding. {18} When time shall be, she setteth up the wings on high: she scorneth the horse and his rider. {19} Shalt thou give strength to the horse, or put neighing about his neck? {20} Shalt thou raise him up as Locusts? The glory of his nostrils is terror. {21} He diggeth the earth with his hoof, he pranceth boldly, he goeth forward to meet the armed men. {22} He contemneth fear, neither yieldeth he to the sword. {23} Upon him shall the quiver sound, the spear shall glister and the shield. {24} Fervent and fuming he suppeth the earth, neither doth he make account when the noise of the trumpet soundeth. {25} When he shall hear the trumpet he saith: Vah, he smelleth battle far off, the exhortation of the captains, and the cry of the army. {26} Doth the hawk wax feathered by thy wisdom, spreading her wings to the South? {27} Shall the eagle mount at thy commandment, and put her nest in high places? {28} She abideth in rocks, and tarrieth among cragged flints, and stony hills where is no access. {29} Thence she beholdeth the prey, and her eyes see a far off. {30} Her young ones shall lick blood: and wheresoever the carcass shall be, she is present by and by. {31} And our Lord added, and spake to Job: {32} He that contendeth with God is he quieted so easily? Verily he that reproveth God, ought to answer him. {33} But Job answering our Lord, said: {34} I that have spoken lightly what can I answer? I will put my hand upon my mouth. {35} One thing I have spoken, which I would I had not said: and an other, to the which things I will add no more.

Our Lord further sheweth that man's power, nor justice, is not comparable to God's: 10. as appeareth in overcoming Behemoth 20. and Leviathan.

{1} AND our Lord answering Job out of the whirlwind, said: I will ask thee, & do thou tell me. {2} Gird thy loins as a man: {3} Shalt thou make my judgment of none effect: and condemn me, that thou mayst be justified? {4} And hast thou an arm as God, and dost thou thunder with like voice? {5} Put beauty about thee, and set up thy self aloft, and be glorious, and put on goodly garments. {6} Disperse the proud in thy fury, and beholding every arrogant man, humble him. {7} Behold all the proud, and confound them, and destroy the impious in their place. {8} Hide them in the dust together, and plunge their faces in the pit. {9} And I will confess, that thy right hand is able to save thee. {10} Behold Behemoth whom I made with thee, shall eat hay as it were an oxe. {11} His strength is in his loins, and his power in the navel of his belly. {12} He gathereth together his tail as the cedar tree, the sinews of his stones are perplex. {13} His bones are as pipes of brass, his gristle as it were plates of iron. {14} He is the beginning of the ways of God, which made him, he shall apply his sword. {15} To him the mountains bear grass: all the beasts of the field shall play there.

{16} He sleepeth under the shadow, in the secret of the reed, and in moist places. {17} Shadows do protect his shadow, the willows of the torrent shall compass him. {18} Lo, he shall sup up the river, & shall not marvel: and he hath confidence that Jordan may run into his mouth. {19} In his eyes as with a hook he shall take him, and with stakes he shall bore through his nostrils. {20} Canst thou draw out the Leviathan with a hook, and with a rope shalt thou tie his tongue? {21} Shalt thou put a ring in his nostrils, or bore through his jaw with a buckle? {22} Will he multiply prayers to thee, or speak to thee gentle words? {23} Will he make a covenant with thee, and shalt thou take him to be a servant for ever? {24} Shalt thou delude him as a bird, or tie him for thy handmaids? {25} Shall friends cut him, merchants divide him? {26} Shalt thou fill nests with his skin, and the cabin of fishes with his head? {27} Lay thy hand upon him: remember battle, and add to speak no more. {28} Behold his hope shall frustrate him, and in the sight of all he shall be cast down headlong.

Leviathan is further described by the peculiar parts of his body, and terrible composition of all his members.

{1} NOT as cruel will I raise him: for who can resist my countenance? me before, that I may render unto him? All {2} Who hath given things that are under heaven be mine. {3} I will not spare him, and his mighty words, and framed to beseech. {4} Who shall reveal the face of his garment: and who shall enter into the midst of his mouth? {5} Who shall open the gate of his countenance? Dread is round about his teeth. {6} His body as shields that are cast, compact with scales fast cleaving together. {7} One is joined to an other, and not so much as any air entereth between them: {8} One shall stick to an other, and holding each other, they shall not be separated. {9} His sneezing is as the shining of fire, and his eyes as the twinklings of the morning. {10} Out of his mouth proceed lamps, as it were torches of lighted fire. {11} Out of his nostrils proceedeth smoke, as it were of a pot heated and boiling. {12} His breath maketh coals to burn, & a flame cometh forth out of his mouth. {13} In his neck shall strength abide, and neediness goeth before his face. {14} The members of his flesh cleave together one to an other: he shall send lightnings against him, and he shall not be carried to an other place. {15} His heart shall be hardened as a stone, and shall be stiffly compact as the smith's stithy. {16} When he shall be taken away, the Angels shall fear, and being feared shall be purged. {17} When the sword shall apprehend him, neither spear, nor breast-plate shall be able to abide. {18} For he shall esteem iron as chaff, & brass, as rotten wood. {19} The bow-man shall not put him to flight, the stones of the sling, to him are turned into stubble. {20} As stubble will he esteem the hammer, and he will laugh him to scorn that shaketh the spear. {21} The beams of the sun shall be under him, & he shall strew gold under him as durt. {22} He shall make the deep sea to boil as a pot, and shall put it as when ointments boil. {23} A path shall shine after him, he shall esteem the depth as waxing old. {24} There is no power upon the earth, that may be compared with him, who is made to fear no man {25} He seeth every high thing, he is king over all the children of pride.

Holy Job instructed and comforted by God's discourse, acknowledgeth his fault, and craveth pardon for his oversight in speech or cogitation. 7. God justifieth his cause against his friends. 9. They offer sacrifice for their offence. 10. All things prosper with Job, double to that he had before: 16. and he dieth happily.

{1} AND Job answering our Lord, said: that thou canst do all things, and no cogitation is hid from thee. {3} Who is this, {2} I know that concealleth counsel without knowledge? Therefore have I spoken unwisely, and the things that did exceed my knowledge beyond measure. {4} Hear (I beseech thee) and I will speak: I will ask thee, and do thou tell me. {5} With the hearing of the ear I have heard thee, but now my eye seeth thee. {6} Therefore I reprobate my self, and I do penance in embers and ashes. {7} And after our Lord spake these words to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Themanite: My fury is wrath against thee, and against thy two friends, because you have not spoken right before me, as my servant Job. {8} Take therefore unto you seven oxen, and seven rams, & go to my servant Job, and offer holocaust for your selves: and my servant Job shall pray for you: his face I will receive, that the folly be not imputed to you: for you have not spoken right things before me, as my servant Job. {9} Eliphaz therefore the Themanite, and Baldad the Suhite, and Sophar the Naamathite went, and did as our Lord had spoken to them, and our Lord received the face of Job. {10} Our Lord also was turned at the penance of Job, when he prayed for his friends. And our Lord added all things whatsoever had been Job's, double. {11} And all his brethren came to him, and all his sisters, and all that knew him before, and they did eat bread with him in his house: and wagged the head upon him, & comforted him upon all the evil that God had brought in upon him. And every man gave him one ewe, and one earlet of gold. {12} And our Lord blessed the last days of Job more than his beginning. And he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she asses. {13} And he had seven sons, and three daughters. {14} And he called the name of one Dies, and the name of the second Cassia, and the name of the third Cornustibii. {15} And there were not found in all the earth women so beautiful as the daughters of Job: and their father gave them inheritance among their brethren. {16} And Job lived after these things, an hundred forty years, and he saw his children, and his children's children, unto the fourth generation, and he died an old man, and full of days.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS

The Royal Prophet David placed this Psalm as a Prefacer to the rest, containing 1. true happiness, which consisteth in flying sins, and serving God. 3. The good do prosper, 5. not the wicked: 6. as will appear in the end of this world.

{1} BLESSED is the man, that hath not gone in the counsel of the impious, & hath not stood in the way of sinners, and hath not sat in the chair of pestilence: {2} But his will is in the way of our Lord, and in his law he will meditate day and night. {3} And he shall be as a tree, that is planted nigh to the streams of waters, which shall give his fruit in his time. And his leaf shall not fall: and all things whatsoever he shall do, shall prosper. {4} The impious not so, not so: but as dust, which the wind driveth from the face of the earth. {5} Therefore the impious shall not rise again in judgment: nor sinners in the Council of the just. {6} For our Lord knoweth the way of the just, and the way of the impious shall perish.

Christ's glory, the world repining thereat, 4. shall be propagated in all the world. 7. His divine power as well spiritual in converting men's hearts, as external, in severe justice, is prophesied.

{1} WHY did the Gentiles rage, and peoples meditate vain things? earth stood up, and the Princes came {2} The kings of the together in one against our Lord, and against his Christ. {3} Let us break their bonds a-sunder: and let us cast away their yoke from us. {4} He that dwelleth in the heavens shall laugh at them: and our Lord shall scorn them. {5} Then shall he speak to them in his wrath, & in his fury he shall trouble them. {6} But I am appointed king by him over Sion his holy hill, preaching his precept. {7} The Lord said to me: Thou art my Son, I this day have begotten thee. {8} Ask of me, and I will give thee the Gentiles, for thine inheritance, and thy possession the ends of the earth. {9} Thou shalt rule them in a rod of iron, and as a potter's vessel thou shalt break them in pieces. {10} And now ye kings understand: take instruction you that judge the earth. {11} Serve our Lord in fear: and rejoice to him with trembling. {12} Apprehend discipline lest sometimes our Lord be wrath, and you perish out of the just way. {13} when his wrath shall burn in short time, blessed are all that trust in him.

King David recounteth his danger, when his son Absalom conspired against him: 4. and thanketh God for his delivery: 9. acknowledging all help to be from God. Mystically, Christ's persecution, Death, Burial, and Resurrection.

{1} THE Psalm of David, when he fled from the face of Absalom his son they multiplied that trouble me? Many rise {2} Lord why are up against me. {3} Many say to my soul: There is no salvation for him in his God. {4} But thou Lord art my protector, my glory, & exalting my head. {5} With my voice I have cried to our Lord: and he hath heard me from his holy hill. {6} I have slept, and have been at rest; and have risen up, because our lord hath taken me. {7} I will not fear thousands of people compassing me: arise Lord, save me my God. {8} Because thou hast stricken all that are my adversaries without cause: thou hast broken the teeth of sinners. {9} Salvation is our Lord's: and thy blessing upon thy people.

The holy Prophet teacheth, by his own example, to fly to God in all tribulation: 3. that other refuges are insufficient, 9. and God's help most assured.

{1} UNTO the end in songs, the Psalm of David. {2} heard me: in tribulation thou hast When I invoked, the God of my justice enlarged to me. Have mercy on me, and hear my prayer. {3} Ye sons of men how long are you of heavy heart? Why love you vanity, and seek lying? {4} And know ye that our Lord hath made his holy one marvelous: our Lord will hear me, when I shall cry to him. {5} Be ye angry, and sin not: the things that you say in your hearts, in your chambers be ye sorry for. {6} Sacrifice ye the sacrifice of justice, and hope in our Lord. Many say: Who sheweth us good things? {7} The light of thy countenance, o Lord is signed upon us: thou hast given gladness in my heart. {8} By the fruit of their corn, and wine, and oil, they are multiplied. {9} In peace in the self same I will sleep, and rest: {10} Because thou Lord hast singularly settled me in hope.

Just men in affliction appeal to God, the revenger of injuries. 5. knowing and professing that God hateth iniquity. 9. Therefore remit their cause to him, 11. recite certain enormous vices of the wicked, 13. and expect God's final judgement of good and bad.

{1} UNTO the end, for her that obtaineth the inheritance. The Psalm of David. {2} Receive, o Lord my words with thine ears, understand my cry. {3} Attend to the voice of my prayer, my King and my God. {4} Because I will pray to thee: Lord in the morning thou wilt hear my voice. {5} In the morning I will stand by thee and will see: because thou art not a God that wilt iniquity. {6} Neither shall the malignant dwell near thee: neither shall the unjust abide before thine eyes. {7} Thou hatest all that work iniquity: thou wilt destroy all that speak lie. The bloody and deceitful man our Lord will abhor: {8} But I in the multitude of thy mercy, I will enter into thy house: I will adore toward thy holy temple in thy fear. {9} Lord conduct me in thy justice: because of mine enemies direct my way in thy sight. {10} Because there is no truth in their mouth: their heart is vain. {11} Their throat is an open sepulchre, they did deceitfully with their tongues, judge them o God. Let them fail of their cogitations, according to the multitude of their impieties expel them, because they have provoked thee o Lord. {12} And let all be glad, that hope in thee, they shall rejoice for ever: and thou shalt dwell in them. And all that love thy name shall glory in thee, {13} because thou wilt bless the just. Lord, as with a shield of thy good will, thou hast crowned us.

David's earnest and hearty prayer after he had grievously sinned. 5. Which being grounded in filial, not servile fear, 9. concludeth with assured hope, and confidence in God's mercy.

{1} UNTO the end in songs, the Psalm of David for the octave. thy fury; nor chastise me in thy wrath. {2} Lord, rebuke me not in {3} Have mercy on me Lord, because I am weak: heal me Lord, because all my bones be troubled. {4} And my soul is troubled exceedingly: but thou Lord how long? {5} Turn thee, o Lord, and deliver my soul: save me for thy mercy. {6} Because there is not in death that is mindful of thee: and in hell who shall confess to thee? {7} I have laboured in my sighing, I will every night wash my bed; I will water my couch with my tears. {8} My eye is troubled for fury: I have waxen old among all mine enemies. {9} Depart from me all ye that work iniquity: {561} because our Lord hath heard the voice of my weeping. {10} Our Lord hath heard my petition, our Lord hath received my prayer. {11} Let all mine enemies be ashamed, & very sore troubled: let them be converted and ashamed very quickly.

David in confidence of his just cause, and unjust persecution, prayeth for God's help, 7. and just revenge of his enemies: 15. describing their malicious intention, and ruin.

{1} THE Psalm of David which he sung to our Lord, for the words of Chusi the son of Jemini. {2} O Lord my God I have hoped in thee: save me from all that persecute me, and deliver me. {3} Lest sometime he as a Lion violently take my soul, whilst there is none to redeem, nor to save. {4} O Lord my God if I have done this, if there be iniquity in my hands: {5} If I have rendered to them that repaid me evils, let me worthily fall empty from mine enemies. {6} Let the enemy persecute my soul, and take it, and tread down my life in the earth, and bring down my glory into the dust. {7} Arise Lord in thy wrath: and be exalted in the coasts of mine enemies. {8} And arise, o Lord my God, in the precept which thou hast commanded: and a synagogue of peoples shall compass thee. {9} And for it return on high: our Lord judgeth peoples. Judge me, o Lord, according to my justice, and according to my innocency upon me. {10} The wickedness of sinners shall be consumed, and thou shalt direct the just, which searchest the heart and reins, o God. {11} My just help is from our Lord, who saveth those that be right of heart. {12} God is a just judge, strong, & patient: is he angry every day? {13} Unless you will be converted, he shall shake his sword, he hath bent his bow, and prepared it. {14} And in it he hath prepared the vessels of death: he hath made his arrows for them that burn. {15} Behold he hath bred with injustice: he hath conceived sorrow, and brought forth iniquity. {16} He hath opened a pit, and digged it up: and he is fallen into the ditch, which he made. {17} His sorrow shall be turned upon his head: and his iniquity shall descend upon his crown. {18} I will confess to our Lord according to his justice: and will sing to the name of our Lord most high.

God is magnified & praised for his marvelous work of creatures, 5. but especially of mankind, singularly exalted by the Incarnation of Christ.

{1} UNTO the end for presses, the Psalm of David. is thy name in the whole earth! Because {2} O Lord our Lord, how marvelous thy magnificence is elevated above the heavens. {3} Out of the mouth of infants & sucklings, thou hast perfected praise because of thine enemies, that thou mayest destroy the enemy & revenger. {4} Because I shall see thy heavens, the works of thy fingers: the moon and the stars, which thou hast founded. {5} What is man, that thou art mindful of him? Or the son of man, that thou visitest him? {6} Thou hast diminished him a little less than Angels: with glory and honour thou hast crowned him: {7} And hast appointed him over the works of thy hands. {8} Thou hast subjected all things under his feet, all sheep and oxen: moreover also the beasts of the field. {9} The birds of the air, & fishes of the sea; that walk the paths of the sea. {10} O Lord our Lord, how marvelous is thy name in the whole earth!

The Church praiseth God for her protection, 4. in repelling the enemy's force, 8. in punishing the wicked, and rewarding the just.

{1} UNTO the end, for the secrets of the son, the Psalm of David. thee, o Lord, with all my heart: I will tell {2} I will confess to all thy marvelous things. {3} I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing to thy name, o most High. {4} In turning mine enemy backward: they shall be weakened, and perish before my face. {5} Because thou hast done my judgment and my cause: thou hast sit upon the throne which judgest justice. {6} Thou hast rebuked the Gentiles, and the impious hath perished: their name thou hast destroyed for ever, and for ever and ever. {7} The swords of the enemy have failed unto the end: and their cities thou hast destroyed. {8} Their memory hath perished with a sound: and our Lord abideth for ever. He hath prepared his throne in judgment {9} and he will judge the whole world in equity, he will judge the people in justice. {10} And our Lord is made a refuge for the poor: an helper in opportunities, in tribulation. {11} And let them hope in thee that know thy name: because thou hast not forsaken them that seek thee, o Lord. {12} Sing to our Lord, which dwelleth in Sion: declare his studies among the Gentiles. {13} Because requiring blood he hath remembered them: he hath not forgotten the cry of the poor. {14} Have mercy on me, o Lord: See my humiliation by my enemies. {15} Which exaltest me from the gates of death, that I may declare all thy praises in the gates of the daughter of Sion. {16} I will rejoice in thy salvation: the Gentiles are fastened in the destruction, which they made. In this snare, which they hid, is their foot taken. {17} Our Lord shall be known doing judgments: the sinner is taken in the works of his own hands. {18} Let sinners be turned into hell, all nations that forget God. {19} Because to the end there shall not be oblivion of the poor man: the patience of the poor, shall not perish in the end. {20} Arise Lord, let not man be strengthened? Let the Gentiles be judged in thy sight? {21} Appoint Lord a Law-giver over them: that the Gentiles may know that they be men. {22} Why Lord hast thou departed far off, despisest in opportunities, in tribulation? {23} Whilst the impious is proud, the poor is set on fire: they are caught in the counsels which they devise. {24} Because the sinner is praised in the desires of his soul: and the unjust man is blessed. {25} The sinner hath exasperated our Lord, according to the multitude of his wrath he shall not seek. {26} There is no God in his sight: his ways are defiled at all time. Thy judgments are taken away from his face: he shall rule over all his enemies. {27} For he hath said in his heart: I will not be moved from generation unto generation without evil. {28} Whose mouth is full of cursing, and bitterness, and guile: under his tongue labour and sorrow. {29} He sitteth in wait with the rich in secret places, to kill the innocent. {30} His eyes look upon the poor: he lieth in wait in secret, as a lion in his den. {31} He lieth in wait to take the poor man violently, violently to take the poor man whilst he draweth him. In his snare he will humble himself, and shall fall when he shall have dominion over the poor. {32} For he hath said in his heart: God hath forgotten, he hath turned away his face not to see for ever. {33} Arise Lord God, let thy hand be exalted: forget not the poor. {34} Wherefore hath the impious provoked God? For he hath said in his heart: He will not inquire. {35} Thou seest, that thou considerest labour & sorrow: that thou mayest deliver them into thy hands. To thee is the poor left: to the orphan thou wilt be an helper. {36} Break the arm of the sinner and malignant: his sin shall be sought, and shall not be found. {37} Our Lord shall reign for ever, and for ever and ever: ye Gentiles shall perish from his land. {38} Our Lord hath heard the desire of the poor: thy ear hath heard the preparation of their heart. {39} To judge for the pupil and the humble, that man add no more to magnify himself upon the earth.

David's friends advising him to fly from the persecution of Saul, he answereth, that his trust is in God's protection. 2. Though the persecutor be very malicious, 4. yet God will overthrow him, 5. and deliver the just.

{1} UNTO the end the psalm of David. I Trust in our Lord, how say ye to my soul: Pass over unto the mountain as a sparrow? {2} For behold sinners have bent the bow, they have prepared their arrows in the quiver, that they may shoot in the dark, at them that be right of heart. {3} For they have destroyed the things, which thou didst perfid: but the just what hath he done? {4} Our Lord is in his holy temple, our Lord his seat is in heaven. {5} His eyes have respect unto the poor: his eye-lids examine the sons of men. {6} Our Lord examineth the just and the impious but he that loveth iniquity, hateth his own soul. {7} He shall rain snares upon sinners: fire and brimstone, and blast of storms the portion of their cup. {8} Because our Lord is just and hath loved justice: his countenance hath seen equity.

The Prophet describeth the paucity of just men, and abundance of wicked, both at Christ's first coming in flesh, 6. and second in majesty, in the end of the world.

{1} UNTO the end for the octave, the Psalm of David. hath failed because verities are diminished {2} Save me Lord, because the holy from among the children of men. {3} They have spoken vain things every one to his neighbour, deceitful lips, they have spoken in heart and heart. {4} Our Lord destroy all deceitful lips, & the tongue that speaketh great things. {5} Which have said: We will magnify our tongue, our lips are of us, who is our Lord? {6} For the misery of the needy, and mourning of the poor, now will I arise, saith our Lord: I will put in a salvation, I will do confidently in him. {7} Words of our lord be chaste words: silver examined by fire, tried from the earth, purged seven fold. {8} Thou Lord wilt preserve us: and keep us from this generation for ever. {9} The impious walk round about: according to thy highness thou hast multiplied the children of men.

A general prayer of the Church, in tribulation, either temporal or spiritual.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David. How long, o Lord wilt thou forget me unto the end? How long doest thou turn away thy face from me? {2} How long shall I put counsels in my soul, sorrow in my heart by day? {3} How long shall mine enemies be exalted over me? Regard and hear me, o Lord my God. {4} Illuminate mine eyes that I sleep not in death at any time: lest sometime mine enemy say: I have prevailed against him. {5} They that trouble me, will rejoice if I be moved: but I have hoped in thy mercy. {6} My heart shall rejoice in thy salvation: I will sing to our Lord, which giveth me good things: and I will sing to the name of our Lord most high.

After general gross ignorance and impiety in the world 7. Christ shall be incarnate the Redeemer of mankind.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David. The fool hath said in his heart: There is no God. They are corrupt, and are become abominable in their studies: there is not that doth good, no not one. {2} Our Lord hath looked forth from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there be that understandeth, and seeketh after God. {3} All have declined, they are become unprofitable together: there is not that doth good, no not one. Their throat is an open sepulchre, with their tongues they did deceitfully, the poison of asps under their lips. Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness: their feet swift to shed blood. Destruction and infelicity in their ways, and the way of peace they have not known: there is no fear of God before their eyes. {4} Shall not all they know that work iniquity, that devour my people as food of bread? {5} They have not invoked our Lord, there have they trembled for fear, where no fear was. {6} Because our Lord is in the just generation, you have confounded the counsel of the poor man: because our Lord is his hope. {7} Who will give from Sion the salvation of Israel? When our Lord shall have turned away the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

For attaining eternal glory in heaven, it is necessary to fly from sins and do good works.

{1} THE Psalm of David. Lord who shall dwell in thy tabernacle? Or who shall rest in thy holy hill? {2} He that walketh without spot, and worketh justice. {3} He that speaketh truth in his heart, that hath not done guile in his tongue. Not hath done evil to his neighbour, and hath not taken reproach against his neighbour. {4} The malignant is brought to nothing in his sight: but them that fear our Lord, he glorifieth. He that sweareth to his neighbour, and deceiveth not, {5} That hath not given his money to usury, and hath not taken gifts upon the innocent, He that doth these things, shall not be moved for ever.

Christ, by the mouth of David, declareth his future victory and triumph over the world, 9. and death.

{1} THE inscription of the title to David himself. Preserve me, o Lord, because I have hoped in thee. {2} I have said to our Lord: Thou art my God, because thou needest not my goods. {3} To the Saints that are in his land, he hath made all my wills marvelous in them. {4} Their infirmities were multiplied: afterward they made haste. I will not assemble their conventicles of blood: neither will I be mindful of their names by my lips. {5} Our Lord the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup: thou art he, that will restore mine inheritance unto me. {6} Cords are fallen to me in goodly places: for mine inheritance is goodly unto me. {7} I will bless our Lord, who hath given me understanding: moreover also even till night my veins have rebuked me. {8} I foresaw our Lord in my sight always: because he is at my right hand, that I be not moved. {9} For this thing my heart hath been glad, and my tongue hath rejoiced: moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope. {10} Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell: neither wilt give thy holy one to see corruption. Thou hast made the ways of life known to me, thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance: delectations on thy right hand, even to the end.

A just man's prayer in tribulation, 10. describing his enemies' cruelty, 13. by way of imprecation foresheweth their destruction, 15. and declareth that the just shall be satisfied in glory.

{1} THE prayer of David. Hear, o Lord my justice: attend my petition. With thine ears hear my prayer, not in deceitful lips. {2} From thy countenance let my judgment proceed: let thine eyes see equities. {3} Thou hast proved my heart, and visited it by night: by fire thou hast examined me, and there is no iniquity found in me. {4} That my mouth speak not the works of men: for the words of thy lips I have kept the hard ways. {5} Perfid my passes in thy paths, that my steps be not moved. {6} I have cried, because thou hast heard me, o God: incline thine ear to me, and hear my words. {7} Make thy mercies marvelous, which savest them that hope in thee. {8} From them that resist thy right hand keep me, as the apple of the eye. Under the shadow of thy wings protect me: {9} from the face of the impious, that have afflicted me. Mine enemies have compassed my soul, {10} they have shut up their fat: their mouth hath spoken pride. {11} Casting me forth now have they compassed me: they have set their eyes to bend them unto the earth. {12} They have taken me as a lion ready to the prey: and as a lion's whelp dwelling in hid places. {13} Arise Lord, prevent him, and supplant him: deliver my soul from the impious, thy sword {14} from the enemies of thy hand. Lord from a few out of the land divide them, in their life: their belly is filled of thy secrets. They are filled with children: and they have left their remnants to their little ones. {15} But I in justice shall appear to thy sight: I shall be filled when thy glory shall appear?

King David's thanks to God for his often delivery from great dangers. First in general, 9. then more particularly describeth God's terrible manner of fighting for him, 18. against his cruel, and otherwise potent enemies: 22. attributing the same to God's good pleasure, and justice of his cause. 31. Praiseth God, 33. his only protector, 41. and depresser of his enemies.

{1} UNTO the end, to the servant of our Lord David, who spake to our Lord the words of this canticle, in the day, that our Lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul, and he said: I will love thee o Lord my strength: {2} Our Lord is my firmament, and my refuge, and my deliverer. {3} My God is my helper, and I will hope in him. My protector and the horn of my salvation, and my receiver. {4} Praising I will invoke our Lord: & I shall be saved from mine enemies. {5} The sorrows of death have compassed me: and torrents of iniquity have troubled me. {6} The sorrows of hell have compassed me: the snares of death have prevented me. {7} In my tribulation I have invoked our Lord, and have cried to my God: And he hath heard my voice from his holy temple: and my cry in his sight, hath entered into his ears. {8} The earth was shaken & trembled: the foundations of mountains were troubled, and were moved, because he was wrath with them. {9} Smoke arose in his wrath: and fire flamed up from his face: coals were kindled from him. {10} He bowed the heavens, and descended: and darkness under his feet. {11} And he ascended upon the cherubs, and flew: he flew upon the wings of winds. {12} And he put darkness his covert, his tabernacle is round about him: darksome water in the clouds of the air. {13} Because of the brightness in his sight the clouds passed, hail and coals of fire. {14} And our Lord thundered from heaven, and the Highest gave his voice: hail and coals of fire. {15} And he shot his arrows, and dissipated them: he multiplied lightnings, and troubled them. {16} And the fountains of waters appeared, and the foundations of the world were revealed. At thy rebuke, o Lord, at the blast of the spirit of thy wrath. {17} He sent from on high, and took me: and he received me out of many waters. {18} He delivered me from my most strong enemies, and from them that hated me: because they were made strong over me. {19} They prevented me in the day of mine affliction: and our Lord was made my protector. {20} And he brought me out into largeness: he saved me, because he would me. {21} And our Lord will reward me according to my justice, and according to the purity of my hands he will reward me. {22} Because I have kept the ways of our Lord, neither have I done impiously from my God. {23} Because all his judgments are in my sight: and his justices I have not repelled from me. {24} And I shall be immaculate with him, and shall keep me from mine iniquity. {25} And our Lord will reward me according to my justice: & according to the purity of my hands in the sight of his eyes. {26} With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the innocent man thou shalt be innocent. {27} And with the elect thou shalt be elect: and with the perverse thou shalt be perverted. {28} Because thou wilt save the humble people: and the eyes of the proud thou wilt humble. {29} Because thou dost illuminate my lamp o Lord: my God illuminate my darkness. {30} Because in thee I shall be delivered from temptation, and in my God I shall go over the wall. {31} My God his way is unpolluted: the words of our Lord are examined by fire: he is protector of all that hope in him. {32} For who is God but our Lord? Or who is God but our God? {33} God that girded me with strength: and made my way immaculate. {34} That perfited my feet as it were of harts: and setting me upon high things. {35} That teacheth my hands to battle: and hast put mine arms as a bow of brass. {36} And hast given me the protection of thy salvation: & thy right hand hath received me. And thy discipline hath corrected me unto the end: and thy discipline, the same shall teach me. {37} Thou hast enlarged my passes under me: and my steps are not weakened: {38} I will pursue mine enemies, and overtake them: and will not return till they fail. {39} I will break them, neither shall they be able to stand: they shall fall under my feet. {40} And thou hast girded me with strength to battle: and hast supplanted them that rise against me under me. {41} And mine enemies thou hast given me their back, & them that hate me thou hast destroyed. {42} They cried, neither was there that would save them, to our Lord, neither did he hear them. {43} And I will break them to powder, as the dust before the face of wind: as the durt of the streets I will destroy them. {44} Thou wilt deliver me from the contradictions of the people: thou wilt appoint me to be head of the Gentiles. {45} A people which I knew not hath served me: in the hearing of the ear it hath obeyed me. {46} The children being aliens have lied to me, the children aliens are inveterated, and have halted from their paths. {47} Our Lord liveth, and blessed be my God, and the God of my salvation be exalted. {48} O God which givest me revenges, & subduest peoples under me, my deliverer from mine angry enemies. {49} And from them that rise up against me thou wilt exalt me: from the unjust man thou wilt deliver me. {50} Therefore will I confess to thee among nations, o Lord: and will say a Psalm to thy name. {51} Magnifying the salutations of his king, and doing mercy to his Christ David, and to his seed for ever.

God's perfect goodness and glory is shewed by his great works, and by his Apostles, sent with heavenly commission to preach in all tongues to all nations. 6. Christ's coming into the world, and return unto heaven: 8. his immaculate Law: 13. wherein notwithstanding the just shall have need to pray for remission of smallest and daily sins.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David. {2} The heavens shew forth the glory of God, and the firmament declareth the works of his hands. {3} Day unto day uttereth word: and night unto night sheweth knowledge. {4} There are no languages, nor speeches, whose voices are not heard. {5} Their sound hath gone forth into all the earth; and unto the ends of the round world the words of them. {6} He put his tabernacle in the sun: & himself as a bridegroom coming forth of his bride-chamber. He hath rejoiced as a giant to run the way, {7} his coming forth from the top of heaven: And his recourse even to the top thereof: neither is there that can hide himself from his heat. {8} The law of our Lord is immaculate converting souls: the testimony of our Lord is faithful, giving wisdom to little ones. {9} The justices of our Lord be right, making hearts joyful: the precept of our Lord lightsome, illuminating the eyes. {10} The fear of our Lord is holy, permanent for ever and ever: the judgments of our Lord be true, justified in themselves. {11} To be desired above gold and much precious stone: and more sweet above honey and the honey-comb. {12} For thy servant keepeth them, in keeping them is much reward. {13} Sins who understandeth? From my secret sins cleanse me: {14} and from other mens spare thy servant. If they shall not have dominion over me, then shall I be immaculate; and shall be cleansed from the greatest sin. {15} And the words of my mouth shall be such as may please: and the meditation of my heart in thy sight always. O Lord my helper and my Redeemer.

Faithful people join their prayer for their Prince or Prelate, 4. with sacrifice offered for his preservation, and prosperous success.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David. {2} tribulation: the name of the God of Jacob Our Lord hear thee in the day of protect thee. {3} Send he aid to thee from the holy place: and from Sion defend he thee. {4} Be he mindful of all thy sacrifice: and be thy holocaust made fat. {5} Give he unto thee according to thy heart: and confirm he all thy counsel. {6} We shall rejoice in thy salvation: and in the name of our God we shall be magnified. {7} Our Lord accomplish all thy petitions: now have I known that our Lord hath saved his CHRIST. He shall hear him from his holy heaven: the salvation of his right hand is in powers. {8} These in chariots, and these in horses: but we will invocate in the name of the Lord our God. {9} They are bound, & have fallen: but we have risen & are set upright. {10} Lord save the king, and hear us in the day, that we shall invocate thee

Praise to God for Christ's exaltation after his passion: 9. and depression of his enemies.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David. {2} glad: and upon thy salvation he shall Lord in thy power the king shall be rejoice exceedingly. {3} The desire of his heart thou hast given him: and of the will of his lips thou hast not defrauded him. {4} Because thou hast prevented him in blessings of sweetness, thou hast put on his head a crown of precious stone. {5} He asked life of thee: and thou gavest him length of days for ever, and for ever and ever. {6} Great is his glory in thy salvation: glory and great beauty thou shalt put upon him. {7} Because thou shalt give him to be a blessing for ever and ever: thou shalt make him joyful in gladness with thy countenance. {8} Because the king hopeth in our Lord: and in the mercy of the Highest he shall not be moved. {9} Let thy hand be found of all thy enemies: let thy right hand find all that hate thee. {10} Thou shalt put them as an oven of fire in the time of thy countenance: our Lord in his wrath shall trouble them, and fire shall devour them. {11} Their fruit thou shalt destroy from the land: and their seed from the children of men. {12} Because they have turned the evils upon thee: they have devised counsels, which they could not establish. {13} Because thou shalt put them back: in thy remnants thou shalt prepare their countenance. {14} Be exalted Lord in thy power: we will chant and sing thy powers.

Christ prayeth in his Passion, 7. describeth the acerbity thereof; 20. foresheweth by way of prayer his Resurrection: 23. More clearly the foundation and propagation of his church (27. & 30. interposing the singular food of the most Blessed Sacrament) even to the ends of the earth in all nations.

{1} UNTO the end for the morning enterprise, the Psalm of David. respect to me: why hast thou forsaken me? {2} God my God have Far from my salvation are the words of my sins. {3} My God I shall cry by day, thou wilt not hear: and by night, and not for folly unto me. {4} But thou dwellest in the holy place, the praise of Israel. {5} In thee our fathers have hoped: they hoped, and thou didst deliver them. {6} They cried to thee, and were saved: they hoped in thee, and were not confounded. {7} But I am a worm and no man: a reproach of men and outcast of the people. {8} All that see me have scorned me: they have spoken with the lips, & wagged the head. {9} He hoped in the Lord, let him deliver him: let him save him, because he will him. {10} Because thou art he that hast drawn me out of the womb: my hope from the breasts of my mother. {11} Upon thee I have been cast from the matrice: from my mother's womb thou art my God, {12} depart not from me. Because tribulation is very nigh: because there is not that will help. {13} Many calves have compassed me: fat bulls have besieged me. {14} They have opened their mouth upon me, as a lion ravening and roaring. {15} As water I am poured out: and all my bones are dispersed. My heart is made as wax melting in the midst of my belly. {16} My strength is withered as a potsherd, and my tongue cleaved to my jaws: and thou hast brought me down into the dust of death. {17} Because many dogs have compassed me: the counsel of the malignant hath besieged me. They have digged my hands and my feet: {18} they have numbered all my bones. But themselves have considered and beheld me: {19} they have divided my garments among them: and upon my vesture they have cast lot. {20} But thou Lord prolong not thy help from me: look toward my defence. {21} Deliver, o God, my soul from the sword: and mine only one from the hand of the dog. {22} Save me out of the lion's mouth: and my humility from the horns of unicorns. {23} I will declare thy name to my brethren: in the midst of the Church I will praise thee, {24} Ye that fear our Lord praise him: all the seed of Jacob glorify ye him. {25} Let all the seed of Israel fear him: because he hath not contemned nor despised the petition of the poor. Neither hath he turned away his face from me: and when I cried to him he heard me, {26} With thee is my praise in the great Church: I will render my vows in the sight of them that fear him. {27} The poor shall eat, and shall be filled: and they shall praise our Lord that seek after him: their hearts shall live for ever and ever. {28} All the ends of the earth shall remember, and be converted to our Lord. And all the families of the Gentiles shall adore in his sight. {29} Because the kingdom is our Lord's: and he shall have dominion over the Gentiles. {30} All the fat ones of the earth have eaten, and adored: in his sight shall all fall that descend into the earth. {31} And my soul shall live to him: and my seed shall serve him. {32} The generation to come shall be shewed to our Lord: and the heavens shall shew forth his justice to the people that shall be born, whom our Lord hath made.

A form of thanks-giving for all spiritual benefits (described under the metaphor of temporal prosperity) even from a sinner's first conversion, to final perseverance, and eternal beatitude.

{1} THE Psalm of David. Our Lord ruleth me, and nothing shall be wanting to me: {2} in place of pasture there he hath placed me. Upon the water of refection he hath brought me up: {3} he hath converted my soul. He hath conducted me upon the paths of justice, for his name. {4} For although I shall walk in the midst of the shadow of death, I will not fear evils: because thou art with me. Thy rod and thy staff: they have comforted me. {5} Thou hast prepared in my sight a table against them that trouble me. Thou hast fatted my head with oil: and my chalice inebriating how goodly is it! {6} And thy mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. And that I may dwell in the house of our Lord, in longitude of days.

Christ is Lord of the whole earth, being Creator, and Redeemer of man. 3. Good life (with faith in him) is the way to heaven: 7. whither Christ ascending with triumph, Angels admire him.

{1} THE first of the Sabbath, the Psalm of David. The earth is our Lord's, and the fullness thereof: the round world, and all that dwell therein. {2} Because he hath founded it upon the seas: and upon the rivers hath prepared it. {3} Who shall ascend into the mount of our Lord? Or who shall stand in his holy place? {4} The innocent of hands, and of clean heart, that hath not taken his soul in vain, nor sworn to his neighbour in guile. {5} He shall receive blessing of our Lord: and mercy of God his Saviour. {6} This is the generation of them that seek him, of them that seek the face of the God of Jacob. {7} Lift up your gates ye Princes, and be ye lifted up, o eternal gates: and the King of glory shall enter in. {8} Who is this King of glory? Our Lord, strong & mighty, our Lord mighty in battle. {9} Lift up your gates ye Princes, and be ye lifted up, o eternal gates: and the King of glory shall enter in. {10} Who is this King of glory? The Lord of powers, he is the King of glory.

A general prayer of the faithful against all enemies, 4. with desire to be directed in the way of godliness, 7. and to be pardoned for sins past, 9. acknowledging God's meekness, 17. our weakness, necessity of help, and hope in God: 22. concludeth with prayer for the whole Church.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David. To thee, O Lord, I have lifted up my soul: in thee is my confidence, let me not be {2} my God ashamed. {3} Neither let mine enemies scorn me: for all that expect thee, shall not be confounded. {4} Let all be confounded that do unjust things in vain. Lord shew me thy ways: and teach me thy paths. {5} Direct me in thy truth, and teach me: because thou art God my Saviour, and thee have I expected all the day. {6} Remember, O Lord, thy commiserations, and thy mercies: that are from the beginning of the world. {7} The sins of my youth, and my ignorances do not remember. According to thy mercy remember thou me: for thy goodness, O Lord. {8} Our Lord is sweet, and righteous: for this cause he will give a law to them that sin in the way. {9} He will direct the mild in judgment: he will teach the meek his ways. {10} All the ways of our Lord be mercy and truth, to them that seek after his testament and his testimonies. {11} For thy name, o Lord, thou wilt be propitious to my sin: for it is much. {12} Who is the man that feareth our Lord? He appointeth him a law in the way that he hath chosen. {13} His soul shall abide in good things: and his seed shall inherit the land. {14} Our Lord is a firmament to them that fear him: & his testament that it may be made manifest to them. {15} Mine eyes are always to our Lord: because he will pluck my feet out of the snare. {16} Have respect to me, and have mercy on me: because I am alone and poor. {17} The tribulations of my heart are multiplied: deliver me from my necessities. {18} See my humiliation and my labour, and forgive all my sins. {19} Behold mine enemies, because they are multiplied, and with unjust hatred hated me. {20} Keep my soul, and deliver me: I shall not be ashamed, because I hoped in thee. {21} The innocent and righteous have cleaved to me: because I expected thee. {22} Deliver Israel, o God, out of all his tribulations.

David in banishment among the Philistines, trusteth in the justice of his cause, 9. and prayeth God earnestly to deliver him, that he may with more freedom and commodity serve him as he desireth.

{1} UNTO the end the Psalm of David. Judge me, o Lord, because I have walked in my innocence: and hoping in our Lord I shall not be weakened. {2} Prove me Lord, and tempt me: burn my reins and my heart. {3} Because thy mercy is before mine eyes: and I am well pleased in thy truth. {4} I have not sitten with the Council of vanity: and with them that do unjust things I will not enter in. {5} I have hated the Church of the malignant: and with the impious I will not sit. {6} I will wash my hands among innocents: and will compass thy altar, o Lord: {7} That I may hear the voice of praise, and shew forth all thy marvelous works. {8} Lord I have loved the beauty of thy house, and the place of the habitation of thy glory. {9} Destroy not, o God, my soul with the impious, and my life with bloody men. {10} In whose hands are iniquities: their right hand is replenished with gifts. {11} But I have walked in mine innocence: redeem me, and have mercy on me. {12} My foot hath stood in the direct way: in the Churches I will bless thee o Lord.

David being in great distress through persecution, and having assured confidence in God, describeth the great security of God's protection, 7. sheweth the same experienced in himself, 12. prayeth for continuance thereof 13. and encourageth his own soul, in hope of life everlasting, to persevere in virtue.

{1} THE Psalm of David before he was anointed. Our Lord is my illumination, and my salvation, whom shall I fear? Our Lord is the protector of my life, of whom shall I be afraid? {2} Whilst the harmful approach upon me, to eat my flesh. Mine enemies that trouble me, themselves are weakened and are fallen. {3} If camps stand together against me, my heart shall not fear. If battle rise up against me, in this will I hope. {4} One thing I have asked of our Lord, this will I seek for, that I may dwell in the house of our Lord all the days of my life. That I may see the pleasantness of our Lord, and visit his temple. {5} Because he hath hid me in his tabernacle: in the day of evils he hath protected me, in the secret of his tabernacle. {6} In a rock he hath exalted me: and now he hath exalted my head over mine enemies. I have gone round about, and have immolated in his tabernacle an host of jubilation: I will sing, and say a Psalm to our Lord. {7} Hear, o Lord, my voice, wherewith I have cried to thee: have mercy on me, and hear me. {8} My heart hath said to thee, my face hath sought thee out: thy face, o Lord, I will seek. {9} Turn not away thy face from me: decline not in wrath from thy servant. Be thou my helper: forsake me not, neither despise me, o God my Saviour. {10} because my father and my mother have forsaken me: but our Lord hath taken me. {11} Give me a law, o Lord, in thy way: and direct me in the right path, because of mine enemies. {12} Deliver me not into the souls of them that trouble me: because unjust witnesses have risen up against me: and iniquity hath lied to it-self. {13} I believe to see the good things of our Lord, in the land of the living. {14} Expect our Lord, do manfully: and let thy heart take courage, and expect thou our Lord.

David prayeth to be defended from the eternal destruction of the wicked, 4. which (by way of imprecation, or conformity to God's justice) he prophesieth. 6. Feeling by inspiration that his prayer is heard, rendereth thanks to God, 9. and prayeth for all the people.

{1} A Psalm to David himself. To thee, o Lord, I will cry, my God keep not silence from me: lest at any time thou hold thy peace from me, & I shall be like to them that go down into the lake. {2} Hear, o Lord, the voice of my petition whilst I pray to thee: whilst I lift up my hands to thy holy temple. {3} Draw me not together with sinners: and with them that work iniquity destroy me not. Which speak peace with their neighbour, but evils in their hearts. {4} Give them according to their works, & according to the wickedness of their inventions. According to the works of their hands give unto them: render them their retribution. {5} Because they have not understood the works of our Lord, and in the works of his hands thou shalt destroy them, & not build them up. {6} blessed be our Lord: because he hath heard the voice of my petition. {7} Our Lord is my helper, and my protector: in him my heart hath hoped, and I was holpen. And my flesh flourished again: & with my will I will confess to him. {8} Our Lord is the strength of his people: and he is the protector of the salvation of his anointed. {9} Save thy people, o Lord, and bless thine inheritance: and rule them, and extol them for ever.

The royal Prophet seeing in spirit the most sacred Mysteries, brought by Christ into this world, inviteth all to offer their best things, even themselves wholly, as sacrifice of thanks, for so excellent benefits, preached with magnificence. 5. Whereby innumerable are gathered into his Church, here replenished with grace, and in heaven with glory.

{1} THE Psalm of David, in the consummation of the tabernacle. Bring to our Lord ye children of God: bring to our Lord the sons of rams. {2} Bring to our Lord glory and honour, bring to our Lord glory unto his name: adore ye our Lord in his holy court. {3} The voice of our Lord upon waters, the God of majesty hath thundered: Our Lord upon many waters. {4} The voice of our Lord in power: the voice of our Lord in magnificence. {5} The voice of our Lord breaking cedars: and our Lord shall break the cedars of Libanus: {6} And he shall break them in pieces as a calf of Libanus. And the beloved as the son of unicorns. {7} The voice of our Lord dividing the flame of fire. {8} The voice of our Lord shaking the desert, and our Lord shall move the desert of Cades. {9} The voice of our Lord preparing harts, and he shall discover thick woods: and in his temple all shall say glory. {10} Our Lord maketh to inhabit the flood: and our Lord shall sit King for ever. {11} Our Lord will give strength to his people: our Lord will bless his people in peace.

King David by voice and instrument rendereth thanks to God for his peaceable state in the Kingdom, 5. inviteth others to rejoice in God's benefits, teaching by his own example that God sometimes giveth more comfort, sometimes sheweth his wrath, but all for our good.

{1} A Psalm of Canticle, in the dedication of David's house. because thou hast received me: neither {2} I will exalt thee, o Lord hast delighted mine enemies over me. {3} O Lord my God I have cried to thee, and thou hast healed me. {4} Lord thou hast brought forth my soul out of hell: thou hast saved me from them that go down into the lake. {5} Sing to our Lord ye his Saints: and confess to the memory of his holiness. {6} Because wrath is in his indignation: and life in his will. At evening shall weeping abide: and in the morning gladness. {7} And I said in my abundance: I will not be moved for ever. {8} O Lord in thy will thou hast given strength to my beauty. Thou hast turned away thy face from me, and I became troubled. {9} To thee o Lord I will cry: and I will pray to my God. {10} What profit is in my blood, whilst I descend into corruption? Shall dust confess to thee, or declare thy truth? {11} Our Lord hath heard, and had mercy on me: our Lord is become my helper. {12} Thou hast turned my mourning into joy unto me: thou hast cut my sackcloth, and hast compassed me with gladness. {13} That my glory may sing to thee, and I be not compunct: Lord my God for ever will I confess to thee.

Psalm 30

A prayer of a just man exceedingly afflicted, still confident in God. 11. Describing his many calamities (in respect of his enemies) undeserved, 18. prayeth for his own delivery, and their just punishment. 20. Praiseth and thanketh God for his goodness. 24. exhorteth all others to do the same.

{1} UNTO the end, the Psalm of David, for excess of mind. hoped, let me not be confounded for ever: {2} In thee o Lord have I in thy justice deliver me. {3} Incline thine ear to me, make haste to deliver me. Be unto me for a God protector: and for a house of refuge, that thou mayst save me. {4} Because thou art my strength, and my refuge: and for thy name thou wilt conduct me, and wilt nourish me. {5} Thou wilt bring me out of this snare, which they have hid for me: because thou art my protector. {6} Into thy hands I command my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, o Lord God of truth. {7} Thou hast hated them that observe vanities, unprofitably. But I have hoped in our Lord: {8} I shall rejoice and be joyful in thy mercy. Because thou hast respected my humility, thou hast saved my soul out of necessities. {9} Neither hast thou shut me up in the hands of the enemy: thou hast set me feet in a large place. {10} Have mercy upon me, o Lord, because I am in tribulation: mine eye is troubled for wrath, my soul, and my belly: {11} Because my life is decayed for sorrow: and my years for groanings. My strength is weakened for poverty; and my bones are troubled. {12} Above all mine enemies I am made a reproach, both to my neighbours exceedingly: and a fear to my acquaintance. They that saw me, fled forth from me: {13} I am forgotten, from the heart as one dead. I am made as a vessel destroyed: {14} because I have heard the reprobation of many that abide round about: In that whilst, they assembled together against me, they consulted to take my soul. {15} But I have hoped in thee. O Lord: I said. Thou art my God: {16} my lots are in thy hands. Deliver me out of the hands of my enemies, and from them that persecute me. {17}

Illustrate thy face upon thy servant, save me in thy mercy: {18} Lord let me not be confounded, because I have invoked thee. Let the impious be ashamed, and brought down into hell: {19} let the deceitful lips be made mute. Which speak iniquity against the just in pride and abuse. {20} How great is the multitude of thy sweetness, o Lord which thou hast hid for them that fear thee. Thou hast perfited it for them that hope in thee, in the sight of the children of men. {21} Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy face from the disturbance of men. Thou shall protect them in thy tabernacle from the contradiction of tongues. {22} Blessed be our Lord: because he hath made his mercy marvelous to me in the fenced city. {23} But I have said in the excess of my mind: I am cast away from the sight of thine eyes. Therefore thou hast heard the voice of my prayer, whilst I cried to thee. {24} Love our Lord all ye his Saints: because our Lord will require truth, & will repay them abundantly that do proudly. {25} Do ye manfully, and let your heart take courage, all ye that hope in our Lord.

Forgiveness of sins is a happy thing: 3. whereto many are brought by affliction giving them understanding, so moving them to confess their sins. 6. pray for remission, 10. not despair, but hope in God's mercy, and so rejoice with sincere heart.

{1} TO David himself understanding. Blessed are they, whose iniquities are forgiven: and whose sins be covered. {2} Blessed is the man, to whom our Lord hath not imputed sin, neither is there guile in his spirit. {3} Because I held my peace, my bones are inveterated, whilst I cried all the day. {4} Because day & night thy hand is made heavy upon me: I am turned in my anguish, whilst the thorn is fastened. {5} I have made my sin known to thee: and my injustice I have not hid. I said: I will confess against me my injustice to our Lord: and thou hast forgiven the impiety of my sin. {6} For this shall every holy one pray to thee, in time convenient. But yet in the flood of many waters, they shall not approach to him. {7} Thou art my refuge from tribulation, which hath compassed me: my exultation, deliver me from them that compass me. {8} I will give thee understanding, and will instruct thee in the way, that thou shalt go: I will fasten mine eyes upon thee. {9} Do not become as horse and mule, which have no understanding. In bit and bridle bind fast their cheeks that approach not to thee. {10} Many are the scourges of a sinner, but him that hopeth in our Lord mercy shall compass. {11} Be joyful in our Lord and rejoice ye just, and glory all ye right of heart.

The Prophet exhorteth to praise God, 4. describing his power, providence, mercy, and wisdom. 16. No salvation but by him: 20. And therefore prayeth for his help.

{1} THE Psalm of David. Rejoice ye just in our Lord; praising becometh the righteous. {2} Confess ye to our Lord on the harp: on a psalter of ten strings sing to him. {3} Sing ye to him a new song: sing well to him in jubilation. {4} Because the word of our Lord is right, and all his works are in faith. {5} He loveth mercy and judgment: the earth is full of the mercy of our Lord. {6} By the word of our Lord the heavens are established: and by the spirit of his mouth all the power of them, {7} Gathering together the waters of the sea, as it were in a bottle: putting the depths in treasures. {8} Let all the earth fear our Lord: and let all the inhabitants of the world be moved at him. {9} Because he said, and they were made: he commanded and they were created, {10} Our Lord dissipateth the counsels of nations: and he reproveth the cogitations of people, and he reproveth the counsels of princes. {11} But the counsel of our Lord abideth for ever, the cogitations of his heart in generation and generation. {12} Blessed is the nation, whose God is our Lord: the people whom he hath chosen for his inheritance. {13} Our Lord hath looked from heaven: he hath seen all the children of men. {14} From his prepared habitation he hath looked upon all that inhabit the earth {15} Who made their hearts severally: who understandeth all their works. {16} The king is not saved by much power: and the giant shall not be saved in the multitude of his strength. {17} The horse faileth to safety, and in the abundance of his force he shall not be saved. {18} Behold the eyes of our Lord be upon them that fear him: and on them, that hope upon his mercy. {19} That he may deliver their souls from death: and nourish them in famine. {20} Our soul expecteth our Lord: because he is our helper and protector. {21} Because in him our heart shall rejoice: and we have trusted in his holy name. {22} Let thy mercy, o Lord, be made upon us, as we have hoped in thee.

King David by his own example being delivered from danger, exhorteth all men to render thanks for God's benefits: 12. shewing wherein justice consisteth, 16. and God's special providence towards the just.

{1} TO David, when he changed his countenance before Abimelech, and he dismissest him, and he went away {2} I will bless our Lord at all time: his praise always in my mouth. {3} In our Lord my soul shall be praised: let the mild hear, and rejoice. {4} Magnify ye our Lord with me: and let us exalt his name for ever. {5} I have sought out our Lord, and he hath heard me: and from all my tribulations he hath delivered me. {6} Come ye to him, and be illuminated: and your faces shall not be confounded. {7} This poor man hath cried, and our Lord hath heard him: and from all his tribulations he hath saved him. {8} The Angel of our Lord shall put in himself about them that fear him: and shall deliver them. {9} Taste ye, and see that our Lord is sweet: blessed is the man, that hopeth in him. {10} Fear ye our Lord all ye his Saints: because there is no lack to them that fear him. {11} The rich have wanted, and have been hungry: but they that seek after our Lord shall not be diminished of any good. {12} Come children, hear me: I will teach you the fear of our Lord. {13} who is the man that will have life: loveth to see good days? {14} Stay thy tongue from evil: and thy lips that they speak not guile. {15} Turn away from evil, and do good: seek after peace and pursue it. {16} The eyes of our Lord upon the just: and his ears unto their prayers. {17} But the countenance of our Lord is upon them that do evil things: to destroy their memory out of the earth. {18} The just have cried, and our Lord hath heard them: and out of all their tribulations he hath delivered them. {19} Our Lord is nigh to them, that are of a contrite heart: and the humble of spirit he will save. {20} Many are the tribulations of the just: and out of all these our Lord will deliver them. {21} Our Lord keepeth all their bones: there shall not one of them be broken. {22} The death of sinners is very ill: and they that hate the just shall offend. {23} Our Lord will redeem the souls of his servants: and all that hope in him shall not offend.

David in figure of Christ, prophetically by way of invoking God's help, foreseweth his persecution, and the just revenge upon his persecutors, 9. with praise to God. 13. his charity towards his cruel adversaries, 17. whom nevertheless God punisheth, 20. for pretending peace in words, and in fact persecuting: 23. rendering to all as they deserve.

{1} TO David himself. Judge o Lord them that hurt me: overthrow them that impugn me. {2} Take armour and shield: and rise up to help me. {3} Bring forth the sword, and shut up against them, that persecute me: say to my soul: I am thy salvation. {4} Let them be confounded & ashamed, that seek my soul. Let them be turned backward, and be confounded that think evil against me. {5} Be they made as dust before the face of wind; and the Angel of our Lord straitening them {6} Let their way be made darkness and slipperiness: and the Angel of our Lord pursuing them. {7} Because they have hid the destruction of their snare for me without cause: in vain have they upbraided my soul. {8} Let the snare which he knoweth not, come on him; and the net, which he hath hid, catch him: and let him fall into the very same snare. {9} But my soul shall rejoice in our Lord: and shall be delighted upon his salvation. {10} All my bones shall say: Lord, who is like to thee? Delivering the needy from the hand of them that are stronger than he: the needy and poor from them that spoil him. {11} Unjust witnesses rising up, asked me things that I knew not. {12} They repaid me evil thing for good, sterility to my soul. {13} But I when they were troublesome to me, did put on cloth of hair. I humbled my soul in fasting: and my prayer shall be turned into my bosom. {14} As a neighbour, as our brother, so did I please: as mourning and sorrowful so was I humbled. {15} And they rejoiced against me, and came together: scoures were gathered together upon me, and I was ignorant. {16} They were dissipated, and not compunct, they tempted me, they scorned me with scorning: they gnashed upon me with their teeth. {17} Lord when wilt thou regard? Restore thou my soul from their malignity, mine only one from the lions. {18} I will confess to thee in the great Church, in a grave people I will praise thee. {19} Let them not rejoice over me that are my adversaries unjustly: that hate me without cause, and twinkle with the eyes. {20} Because they spake indeed peaceably to me: and in the anger of the earth speaking they meant guiles. {21} And they opened their mouth awide upon me: they said, Well, well, our eyes have seen. {22} Thou hast seen, o Lord, keep not silence: Lord depart not from me. {23} Arise and attend to my judgment: my God, and my Lord unto my cause. {24} Judge me according to thy justice, o Lord my God, and let them not rejoice over me. {25} Let them not say in their hearts: Well, well, to our soul: neither let them say, We have devoured him. {26} Let them blush and be ashamed together, that rejoice at my evils. Let them be clothed with confusion and shame, that speak great things upon me. {27} Let them rejoice and be glad, that will my justice: and let them say always: Our Lord be magnified, that will the peace of his servant. {28} And my tongue shall meditate thy justice, thy praise all the day.

The Prophet describeth the wicked malice of obstinate sinners. 6. Against which he opposeth God's infinite goodness, 9. with his provident mercy towards the worst, and just reward of the good; 12. praying to escape the dangerous gulf of pride.

{1} UNTO the end, to the servant of our Lord David himself. within himself, that he would sin: there is {2} The unjust hath said no fear of God before his eyes. {3} Because he hath done deceitfully in his sight: that his iniquity may be found unto hatred. {4} The words of his mouth are iniquity, and guile: he would not understand that he might do well. {5} He hath meditated iniquity in his bed: he hath set himself on every way not good, and malice he hath not hated. {6} Lord thy mercy is in heaven: and thy truth even to the clouds. {7} Thy justice as the hills of God: thy judgments are great depth. Men & beasts thou wilt save, o Lord, {8} as thou hast multiplied thy mercy, o God. But the children of men shall hope in the covert of thy wings. {9} They shall be inebriated with the plenty of thy house: and with the torrent of thy pleasure thou shalt make them drink. {10} Because with thee is the fountain of life: and in thy light we shall see light. {11} Extend thy mercy to them that know thee, and thy justice to them, that are of a right heart. {12} Let not the foot of pride come to me: and let not the hand of a sinner move me. {13} There have they fallen that work iniquity: they were expelled, neither could they stand.

An exhortation not to envy nor imitate the evil, who for most part prosper in this world, and are damned eternally: but to fly evil and do good, duly considering that God diversly permitteth and punishment the wicked, and likewise comforteth and affliccith the just, all for their good.

{1} A Psalm to David himself. Have no emulation toward the malignant: neither envy them that do iniquity. {2} Because they shall quickly wither as grass: and as the blossoms of herbs they shall soon fall. {3} Hope in our Lord and do good: and inhabit the land, and thou shalt be fed in the riches thereof. {4} Be delighted in our Lord: & he will give thee the petitions of thy heart. {5} Reveal thy way to our Lord, and hope in him: and he will do it. {6} And he will bring forth thy justice as light: and thy judgment as midday: {7} Be subject to our Lord, and pray him. Have no emulation in him, that prospereth in his way: in a man that doth injustices. {8} Cease from wrath, and leave fury: have not emulation that thou be malignant. {9} Because they that are malignant, shall be cast out: but they that expect our Lord, the same shall inherit the land. {10} And yet a little while, and the sinner shall not be: and thou shalt seek his place, and shall not find it. {11} But the meek shall inherit the land, and shall be delighted in multitude of peace. {12} The sinner shall observe the just: & shall gnash upon him with his teeth. {13} But our Lord shall scorn him: because he foreseeth that his day shall come. {14} Sinners have drawn out the sword: they have bent their bow; That they may deceive the poor and needy: that they may murder the right of heart. {15} Let their own swords enter into their hearts: and let their bow be broken. {16} Better is a little to the just, above much riches of sinners. {17} Because the arms of sinners shall be broken in pieces: but our Lord confirmeth the just. {18} Our Lord knoweth the days of the immaculate: and their inheritance shall be for ever. {19} They shall not be confounded in the evil time, and in the days of famine they shall be filled: {20} because the sinners shall perish. But the enemies of our Lord forthwith as they shall be honoured and exalted, vanishing shall vanish as smoke. {21} The sinner shall borrow, and not pay: but the just is merciful and will give. {22} Because they that bless him shall inherit the land: but they that curse him shall perish. {23} With our Lord the step of man shall be directed: and he shall like well of his way. {24} When he shall fall, he shall not be bruised: because our Lord putteth his hand under. {25} I have been young, for I am old: and I have not seen the just forsaken, nor his seed seeking bread. {26} All the day he is merciful and lendeth: & his seed shall be in blessing. {27} Decline from evil, & do good: and inhabit for ever & ever. {28} Because our Lord loveth judgment, and he will not forsake his saints: they shall be preserved for ever. The unjust shall be punished: and the seed of the impious shall perish. {29} But the just shall inherit the land: and shall inhabit for ever and ever upon it. {30} The mouth of the just shall meditate wisdom, and his tongue shall speak judgment. {31} The law of his God in his heart: and his steps shall not be supplanted. {32} The sinner considereth the just: and seeketh to murder him. {33} But our Lord will not leave him in his hands: neither will he condemn him, when judgment shall be given of him. {34} Expect our Lord, and keep his way: and he will exalt thee, that thou mayst inherit the land: when the sinners shall perish, thou shalt see. {35} I have seen the impious highly exalted, and advance as the cedars of Libanus. {36} And I passed by, and behold he was not: and I sought him, and his place was not found. {37} Keep innocency, and see equity: because there are remains for the peaceable man. {38} But the unjust shall perish together: the remains of the impious shall perish. {39} But the salvation of the just is of our Lord: and he is their protector in the time of tribulation. {40} And our Lord will help them, and deliver them: and he will take them away from sinners, and save them, because they have hoped in him.

King David, or any other penitent, earnestly prayeth God to remit his sins, and mitigate the pains which he acknowledgeth himself to have deserved. 12. lamenting the afflictions which he suffereth by such as sometimes were his friends, 14. whose temptations he now resisteth, trusting in God, resigning himself to God's will, confessing his own iniquity, and humbly praying for God's help.

{1} A Psalm of David, in recordation of the sabbath, nor chastise me in wrath. {2} Lord rebuke me not in thy fury: {3} Because thy arrows are fast sticked in me: and thou hast fastened thy hand upon me. {4} There is no health in my flesh at the face of thy wrath: my bones have no peace at the face of my sins. {5} Because mine iniquities are gone over my head: and as a heavy burden are become heavy upon me. {6} My scars are putrified and corrupted, because of my foolishness. {7} I am become miserable, and am made crooked even to the end: I went sorrowful all the day. {8} Because my loins are filled with illusions: and there is no health in my flesh. {9} I am afflicted and am humbled exceedingly: I roared for the groaning of my heart. {10} Lord before thee is all my desire: and my groaning is not hid from thee. {11} My heart is troubled, my strength hath forsaken me: and the light of mine eyes, and the same is not with me. {12} My friends, and my neighbours have approached, & stood against me. And they that were near me, stood far off: {13} and they did violence which sought my soul. And they that sought me evils spake vanities: and meditated guiles all the day. {14} But I as one deaf did not hear: and as one dumb not opening his mouth. {15} And I became as a man not hearing: and not having reproofs in his mouth. {16} Because in thee, o Lord have I hoped, thou wilt hear me, o Lord my God. {17} Because I said: Lest sometime mine enemies rejoice over me, and whilst my feet are moved, they spake great things upon me. {18} Because I am ready for scourges: and my sorrow is in my sight always: {19} Because I will declare my iniquity: and I will think for my sin. {20} But mine enemies live, and are confirmed over me: and they are multiplied that hate me unjustly. {21} They that repay evil things for good, detracted from me: because I followed goodness. {22} Forsake me not, o Lord my God, depart not from me. {23} Attend unto my help, o Lord the God of my salvation.

A just man in remediless persecution reserveth to suffer all with peace and silence: 5. praying God to take him from this world, confessing the vanity thereof, 8. and relying on God's providence (11. who punishmenteth man for his sins) prayeth for release.

{1} UNTO the end, to Idithun himself, a canticle of David. ways, that I offend not in my tongue. {2} I have said: I will keep my have set a guard to my mouth, when the sinner stood against me. {3} I was dumb and humbled, and kept silence from good things: and my sorrow was renewed. {4} My heart waxed hot within me: & in my meditation a fire shall burn. {5} I have spoken in my tongue: Lord make mine end known to me. And the number of my days what it is: that I may know what is lacking to me. {6} Behold thou hast put my days measurable, and my substance is as nothing before thee. Doubtless all things are vanity, every man living. {7} Surely man passeth as an image, yea and he is troubled in vain. He gathereth treasure, and knoweth not to whom he shall gather them. {8} And now what is my expectation? Is not our Lord? And my substance is with thee. {9} From all mine iniquities deliver me: a reproach to the foolish thou hast given me. {10} I was dumb, and opened not my mouth, because thou didst it: {11} Remove thy scourges from me. {12} By the strength of thy hand I have fainted in reprehensions, for iniquity thou hast chastised man. And thou hast made soul pine away as a spider: but vainly is every man troubled. {13} Hear my prayer, o Lord, and my petition; with thine ears receive my tears. Keep not silence: because I am a stranger with thee, and a pilgrim, as my fathers. {14} Forgive me, that I may be refreshed before I depart: and shall be no more.

Christ's faithful members after long expectation congratulate his coming in flesh. 6. He directing his speech to his Father, professeth to perform the Redemption of mankind, and to denounce the same in the whole world: 12. prayeth for his servants, undertaking to satisfy for their sins.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm to David himself. {2} hath attended to me. Expecting I expected our Lord, and he {3} And he heard my prayers, and brought me out of the lake of misery, and from the mire of dregs. And hath set my feet upon a rock: and hath directed my steps. {4} And he hath put a new canticle into my mouth: a song to our God. Many shall see, and shall fear: and they shall hope in our Lord. {5} Blessed is the man, whose hope is in the name of our Lord: and hath not had regard to vanities and false madness. {6} Thou hast done many thy marvelous things, o Lord my God: & in thy cogitations there is none that may be like to thee. I have declared and have spoken: they multiplied above number. {7} Sacrifice and oblation thou wouldest not: but ears thou hast perfited to me. Holocaust and for sin thou didst not require: {8} then said I, Behold I come. In the head of the book it is written of me, {9} that I should do thy will: my God I would, and thy law in the midst of my heart. {10} I have declared thy justice in the great Church, lo I will not stay my lips: Lord thou hast known it. {11} Thy justice I have not hid in my heart: thy truth and thy salvation I have spoken. I have not hid thy mercy, and thy truth from the great Council. {12} But thou, o Lord, make not thy commiserations far from me: thy mercy, and thy truth have always received me. {13} Because evils have compassed me, which have no number: mine iniquities have overtaken me, & I was not able to see. They are multiplied above the hairs of my head: and my heart hath forsaken me. {14} It may please thee, o Lord, to deliver me: Lord have respect to help me. {15} Let them be confounded and ashamed together, that seek my soul to take it away. Let them be turned backward, and be ashamed that will me evils. {16} Let them forthwith receive their confusion, that say to me: Well, well. {17} Let all that seek thee rejoice and be glad upon thee: and let them that love thy salvation, say always: Our Lord be magnified: {18} But I am a beggar, and poor: Our Lord is careful to me. Thou art my helper, & my protector: my God be not slack.

The Prophet pronounceth them happy that will believe in Christ, coming in humility and poverty. 5. Christ describeth his own poor afflicted state in this life, by reason he is to satisfy for the sins of the world; the malice of his adversaries, 10. especially of Judas, 11. and by way of prayer, prophesieth his own Resurrection.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm to David himself. {2} concerning the needy, and the poor: in the Blessed is the man that understandeth evil day our Lord will deliver him. {3} Our Lord preserve him, and give him life, and make him blessed in the land: and deliver him not unto the will of his enemies. {4} Our Lord help him upon the bed of his sorrow: thou hast turned all his couch in his infirmity. {5} I said: Lord have mercy on me: heal my soul, because I have sinned to thee. {6} Mine enemies have spoken evils to me: When shall he die and his name perish? {7} And if he came in to see, he spake vain things: his heart hath gathered together iniquity to himself. He went forth, and spake together. {8} All mine enemies whispered against me: they did think evils to me. {9} They have determined an unjust word against me: shall not he that sleepeth add to rise again? {10} For the man also of my peace, in whom I hoped: who did eat my breads, hath greatly trodden me under-foot. {11} But thou, o Lord, have mercy upon me, and raise me up again: and I will repay them. {12} In this I have known that thou wouldest me: because mine enemy shall not rejoice over me. {13} But me thou hast received because of innocency: and thou hast confirmed me in thy sight for ever. {14} Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel from the beginning of the world, and for evermore: Be it, be it.

The fervent desire of the just, 6. much afflicted in this life, 12. and assured hope of eternal joy.

{1} UNTO the end, understanding to the sons of Core, fountains of waters: so doth my soul {2} Even as the hart desireth after the desire after thee, o God. {3} My soul hath thirsted after God the strong living: when shall I come and appear before the face of God? {4} My tears have been breads unto me day and night: whilst it is said to me daily: Where is thy God? {5} These things have I remembered, and have poured out my soul in me, because I shall pass into the place of a marvelous tabernacle, even to the house of God. In the voice of exultation, and confession: the sound of one feasting. {6} Why art thou sorrowful my soul? & why dost thou trouble me? Hope in God, because yet I will confess to him: the salvation of my countenance, {7} and my God. My soul is troubled toward my self; therefore will I be mindful of thee from the land of Jordan, and Hermonium from the little mountain. {8} Depth calleth on depth, in the voice of thy flood-gates. All thy high things, and thy ways have passed over me. {9} In the day our Lord hath commanded his mercy: and in the night a song of him. With me is prayer to the God of my life: {10} I will say to God: Thou art my defender. Why hast thou forgotten me? And why go I sorrowful, whilst mine enemy afflicteth me? {11} Whilst my bones are broken, mine enemies that trouble me have upbraided me: Whilst they say to me day by day: Where is thy God? {12} Why art thou heavy, o my soul? & why dost thou trouble me? Hope in God, because yet I will confess to him: the salvation of my countenance, and my God.

The just invocateth God's sentence against the deceitful, that seek his spiritual overthrow. 4. acknowledge his help, from Almighty God the B. Trinity, in whose vision glory consisteth.

{1} A Psalm of David. Judge me, o God, & discern my cause from the nation not holy, from the unjust and deceitful man deliver me. {2} Because thou art God my strength: why hast thou repelled me? And why go I sorrowful whilst the enemy afflicteth me. {3} Send forth thy light and thy truth: they have conducted me, and have brought me into thy holy hill, and into thy tabernacles. {4} And I will go in to the altar of God: to God, which maketh my youth joyful. I will confess to thee on the harp o God my God: {5} why art thou sorrowful, o my soul? And why dost thou trouble me? Hope in God, because yet will I confess to him: the salvation of my countenance, and my God.

The Prophet describeth the first calling, and difficult state of the Jewish nation, 6. their prosperity at other times. 10. Again their afflictions in captivity, and persecutions.

{1} UNTO the end, for the sons of Core to understanding. with our ears: our fathers have declared to {2} O God we have heard us. The work that thou hast wrought in their days: & in the days of old. {3} Thy hand destroyed the nations, and thou didst plant them: thou didst afflict the peoples, and expel them. {4} For not by their own sword did they possess the land, and their own arm did not save them: But thy right hand, and thine arm, and the illumination of thy countenance: because thou wast pleased in them. {5} Thou art the same my King and my God: which commandest the salutations of Jacob. {6} In thee we shall turn out our enemies with the horn, & in thy name we shall contemn them that rise up against us. {7} For I will not hope in my bow: and my sword will not save me. {8} For thou hast saved us from them that afflict us: and them that hate us thou hast confounded. {9} In God we shall be praised all the day: and in thy name we will confess for ever. {10} But now thou hast repelled and confounded us: and thou wilt not go forth, o God, in our hosts. {11} Thou hast turned us back behind our enemies: and they that hated us spoiled for themselves. {12} Thou hast given us as sheep that are to be eaten: and thou hast dispersed us among the nations. {13} Thou hast sold thy people without price: and there was no multitude in the exchanges of them. {14} Thou hast made us a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and mocking stock to them that are round about us. {15} Thou hast made us for a parable to the Gentiles: a wagging of the head among the peoples. {16} All the day my shame is against me, and the confusion of my face hath covered me. {17} At the voice of the upbraider, and the reproacher: at the face of the enemy and persecutor. {18} All these things have come upon us, neither have we forgotten thee: and we have not done wickedly in thy testament.

{19} And our heart hath not revolted backward: & thou hast declined our paths from thy way. {20} Because thou hast humbled us in the place of affliction, and the shadow of death hath covered us. {21} If we have forgotten the name of our God, and if we have spread forth our hands to a strange god, {22} Will not God enquire of these things? For he knoweth the secrets of the heart. Because for thee we are killed all the day: we are esteemed as sheep of slaughter. {23} Arise, why sleepest thou, o Lord? Arise, and expel us not to the end. {24} Why dost thou turn away thy face, forgettest our poverty and our tribulation? {25} Because our soul is humbled in the dust: our belly is glued in the earth. {26} Arise Lord, help us: and redeem us for thy name.

David singularly moved in heart and tongue, 3. prophesieth Christ's excellency, endowing his Church with most worthy dowries. 11. By way of exhortation foreshewing her internal and external beauty: 17. with perpetual succession of Pastors feeding the flock even to world's end.

{1} UNTO the end, for them, that shall be changed, to the sons of Core for understanding, Canticle for the beloved. {2} My heart hath uttered a good word: I tell my works to the king. My tongue is the pen of a scribe, that writeth swiftly. {3} Goodly of beauty above the sons of men, grace is poured abroad in thy lips: therefore hath God blessed thee for ever. {4} Be girded with thy sword upon thy thigh, o most mighty. {5} With thy beauty and fairness intend, proceed prosperously, and reign, Because of truth, and mildness, and justice: and thy right hand shall conduct thee marvelously. {6} Thy sharp arrows, the peoples underneath thee shall fall into the hearts of the king's enemies. {7} Thy seat o God for ever and ever: a rod of direction the rod of thy Kingdom. {8} Thou hast loved justice, and hast hated iniquity: therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows. {9} Myrrh, and Aloes, and Cassia from thy garments, from houses of ivory, out of the which {10} the daughters of kings have delighted thee in thy honour. {11} The queen stood on thy right hand in golden raiment: {580} compassed with variety. Hear daughter, and see, and incline thine ear: and forget thy people, and the house of thy father. {12} And the King will covet thy beauty: because he is the Lord thy God, and they shall adore him. {13} And the daughters of Tyre with gifts, all the rich of the people shall beseech thy countenance. {14} All the glory of that daughter of the King is within, in borders of gold, {15} clothed round about with varieties. Virgins shall be brought to the King after her: her neighbours shall be brought to thee. {16} They shall be brought in joy and exultation: they shall be brought into the temple of the King. {17} For thy fathers there are born sons to thee: thou shalt make them Princes over all the earth. {18} They shall be mindful of thy name in all generation and generation. Therefore shall peoples confess to thee for ever: and for ever and ever.

The Church in persecution acknowledgeth God's perpetual defence, 5. making her thereby more glorious, 10. sometimes granting rest (11. God himself checking the persecutors) and ever protecting her.

{1} UNTO the end, to the sons of Core, for the secrets. strength: an helper in tribulations, which {2} Our God is a refuge and have found us exceedingly. {3} Therefore will we not fear when the earth shall be troubled: and mountains transported into the heart of the sea. {4} Their waters have sounded, and were troubled: the mountains were troubled in his strength. {5} The violence of the river maketh the city of God joyful: the Highest hath sanctified his tabernacle. {6} God is in the midst thereof, it shall not be moved: God will help it in the morning early. {7} Nations are troubled, and Kingdoms are inclined: he gave his voice, the earth was moved. {8} The Lord of hosts is with us: the God of Jacob is our defender. {9} Come ye, & see the works of our Lord, what wonders he hath put upon the earth: {10} taking away wars even unto the end of the earth. He shall destroy bow, & break weapons: and shields he shall burn with fire. {11} Be quiet, and see that I am God: I shall be exalted among the gentiles, and I shall be exalted in the earth. {12} The Lord of hosts is with us: the God of Jacob is our defender.

Gentiles are called, and invited to praise God for his magnificence: for Christ's Ascension and power.

{1} UNTO the end, for the sons of Core. Nations clap hands: make jubilation to God in the voice of exultation. {2} All ye {3} Because our Lord is high, terrible: a great King over all the earth. {4} He hath made peoples subject to us: & gentiles under our feet. {5} He hath chosen his inheritance in us: the beauty of Jacob which he loved. {6} God is ascended in jubilation: and our Lord in the voice of trumpet. {7} Sing ye to our God, sing ye: Sing ye to our King, sing ye. {8} Because God is King of all the earth: sing ye wisely. {9} God shall reign over the gentiles: God sitteth upon his holy seat. {10} Princes of peoples are gathered together with the God of Abraham: because the strong gods of the earth are exceedingly advanced.

God most and every where laudable, is especially praised in the Church of Christ (prefigured by Sion, and there begun.) 9. All things being fulfilled in the Church, even as they were prophesied and promised, 12. the faithful are exhorted to consider and congratulate the same.

{1} A Psalm of Canticle to the sons of Core, the second of the Sabbath. Lord, and to be praised exceedingly, in the {2} Great is our city of our God, in his holy mount. {3} Mount Sion is founded with the exultation of the whole earth, the sides of the North, the city of the great King. {4} God shall be known in the houses thereof, when he shall receive it. {5} For behold the kings of the earth were gathered together: they assembled in one. {6} They seeing it so were in admiration, were troubled, were moved: {7} Trembling took them. Their sorrows as a woman travailing. {8} In a vehement spirit thou shalt break the ships of Tharsis. {9} As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the Lord of hosts in the city of our God: God hath founded it for ever. {10} We have received thy mercy, o God, in the midst of thy temple. {11} According to thy name, o God, so also is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of justice. {12} Let mount Sion be glad, and the daughters of Juda rejoice, because of thy judgments, o Lord. {13} Compass Sion, and embrace ye her: tell ye in her towers. {14} Set your hearts on her strength: and distribute ye her houses, that you may declare it in an other generation. {15} Because this is God, our God for ever, and for ever and ever: he shall rule us evermore.

The royal Prophet inviting all states and sorts of men to hear him attentively, 6. sheweth that all ought to fear eternal damnation, that live wickedly; 9. vainly and foolishly seeking (13. even like brute beasts) carnal pleasures, which they can not long enjoy, nor long escape hell: 16. confidently animating himself, and all good men, that trust not in this world.

{1} UNTO the end, to the sons of Core a Psalm. {2} receive with your ears all ye that inhabit Hear these things all ye Gentiles: the earth. {3} All ye earthly persons, and children of men: together in one, the rich and the poor. {4} My mouth shall speak wisdom, and the meditation of my heart prudence. {5} I will incline mine ear unto a parable: I will open my proposition on a Psalter. {6} Why shall I fear in the evil day? The iniquity of my heel shall compass me. {7} They that trust in their strength: and glory in the multitude of their riches. {8} A brother doth not redeem, man shall redeem: he shall not give unto God his reconciliation. {9} And the price of the redemption of his own soul: and he shall labour for ever, {10} and shall live yet unto the end. {11} He shall not see death, when he shall see the wise dying, the unwise, and the fool shall perish together. And they shall leave their riches to strangers: {12} and their sepulchres their houses for ever. Their Tabernacles in generation and generation: they have renowned their names in their lands. {13} And man when he was in honour did not understand: he was compared to beasts without understanding, and became like to them. {14} This their way is a scandal to them: and afterward in their mouth they shall take pleasure. {15} As sheep they are put in hell: death shall feed upon them. And the just shall rule over them in the morning: and their aid shall wax old in hell from their glory. {16} Nevertheless God will redeem my soul out of the hand of hell, when he shall take me, {17} Fear not when a man shall be made rich: and when the glory of his house shall be multiplied. {18} Because when he shall die, he shall not take all things: neither shall his glory go down with him. {19} Because his soul in his life shall be blessed: he will confess to thee when thou shalt do him good. {20} He shall enter in, even to the progenies of his fathers: and he shall not see light for ever. {21} Man, when he was in honour, did not understand: he was compared to beasts without understanding, and became like to them.

Christ in his first coming calleth all Nations: 3. in his second will judge the world. 7. In the mean time God exhorteth all men to serve him in purity of virtue, which he much preferreth before external sacrifice of the old law: 17. reprobating such as profess or teach the right way, and live wickedly.

{1} A Psalm to Asaph. The God of gods our Lord hath spoken: and he hath called the earth, from the rising of the sun even to the going down. {2} Out of Sion the beauty of his comeliness. {3} God will come manifestly: our God and he will not keep silence. Fire shall burn forth in his sight: and round about him a mighty tempest. {4} He shall call the heaven from above: and the earth to discern his people. {5} Gather ye together his Saints unto him: which ordain his testament above sacrifices. {6} And the heavens shall shew forth his justice: because God is Judge. {7} Hear, o my people, and I will speak: Israel, and I will testify to thee: God thy God am I. {8} I will not rebuke thee in thy sacrifices: and thy holocausts are in my sight always. {9} I will not take calves out of thy house: nor buck-goats out of thy flocks. {10} Because all the wild beasts of the woods be mine, the cattle in the mountains and oxen. {11} I have known all the fowls of the air: and the beauty of the field is with me. {12} If I shall be hungry, I will not tell thee: for the round earth is mine, and the fullness thereof. {13} Will I eat the flesh of oxen? Or will I drink the blood of buck-goats? {14} Immolate to God the sacrifice of praise, and pay thy vows to the Highest. {15} And invoke me in the day of tribulation: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me. {16} But to the sinner God hath said: Why doest thou declare my justices, and takest my testament by thy mouth? {17} But thou hast hated discipline & cast my words behind thee. {18} If thou didst see a thief, thou didst run with him: and with adulterers thou didst put thy portion. {19} Thy mouth hath abounded with malice: and thy tongue forged guiles. {20} Sitting thou spakest against thy brother, and against thy mother's son thou didst put a scandal: {21} these things hast thou done, and I have held my peace. Thou hast thought unjustly that I will be like thee: I will reprove thee, and set it against thy face. {22} Understand these things you that forget God: lest sometime he take you violently and there be none to deliver you. {23} The sacrifice of praise shall glorify me: and there is the way, by which I will shew him the salvation of God.

King David in great sorrow for his sins: of adultery and murder, most seriously prayeth God of his manifold mercy to remit and purge all his offenses, and pains due for them: 12. to restore unto him the grace of the Holy Ghost, lost by his sins: 15. that he may teach others (as indeed his singular example may teach the whole world true penance) 19. contrition of heart, worthily to offer sacrifice, for the whole Church.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David, {2} after that he had sinned with Bethsabee when Nathan the Prophet came to him, {3} Have mercy on me, o God, according to thy great mercy. And according to the multitude of thy commiserations, take away mine iniquity. {4} Wash me more amply from mine iniquity: & cleanse me from my sin. {5} Because I do know mine iniquity: and my sin is before me always. {6} To thee only have I sinned, and have done evil before thee: that thou mayst be justified in thy word, and mayst overcome when thou art judged. {7} For behold I was conceived in iniquities: & my mother conceived me in sins. {8} For behold thou hast loved truth: the uncertain and hidden things of thy wisdom thou hast made manifest to me. {9} Thou shalt sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be cleansed: thou shalt wash me, and I shall be made whiter than snow. {10} To my hearing thou shalt give joy and gladness, and the bones humbled shall rejoice. {11} Turn away thy face from my sins: and wipe away all mine iniquities. {12} Create a clean heart in me, o God: and renew a right spirit in my bowels. {13} Cast me not away from thy face: and thy Holy spirit take not from me. {14} Render unto me the joy of thy salvation? And confirm me with the principal spirit. {15} I will teach the unjust thy ways: and the impious shall be converted to thee. {16} Deliver me from bloods, o God, the God of my salvation: and my tongue shall exult thy justice. {17} Lord thou wilt open my lips: & my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. {18} Because if thou wouldest have had sacrifice, I had verily given it: with holocausts thou wilt not be delighted. {19} A sacrifice to God is an afflicted spirit: a contrite and humbled heart, o God, thou wilt not despise. {20} Deal favourably, o Lord, in thy good will with Sion: that the walls of Jerusalem may be built up. {21} Then shall thou accept sacrifice of justice, oblations, & holocausts: then shall they lay calves upon thine altar.

Holy David inveigheth against wicked Doeg a traitor, 7. prophesieth his ruin, 10. and his own exaltation.

{1} UNTO the end, understanding to David, {2} told Saul: David is come into the house of When Doeg the Idumeite came and Achimelech. {3} Why doest thou glory in malice, which are mighty in iniquity? {4} All the day hath thy tongue thought injustice: as a sharp razor thou hast done guile. {5} Thou hast loved malice more than benignity: iniquity rather than to speak equity. {6} Thou hast loved all words of precipitation, a deceitful tongue. {7} Therefore will God destroy thee for ever, he will pluck thee out, & remove thee out of thy tabernacle: & thy root out of the land of the living. {8} The just shall see, and fear, and shall laugh at him, and they shall say: {9} Behold the man, that hath not put God for his helper. But hath hoped in the multitude of his riches, and hath prevailed in his vanity. {10} But I as a fruitful olive tree in the house of God, have hoped in the mercy of God for ever: and for ever and ever. {11} I will confess to thee for ever, because thou hast done it: and I will expect thy name, because it is good in the sight of thy Saints.

As in the thirteenth Psalm, Christ's incarnation is prophesied, after that sin abounded in the world: so here is foreshewed that after general wickedness, 5. Christ will come to judge the bad, 7. and deliver the good.

{1} UNTO the end, for Maeleth, understandings of David. The fool hath said in his heart: There is no God. {2} They are corrupt, and become abominable in iniquities: there is not that doth good. {3} God hath looked forth from heaven, upon the children of men: to see if there be that understandeth, or seeketh after God. {4} All have declined, they are become unprofitable together: there is not that doth good, no there is not one. {5} Shall they not all know that work iniquity, that devour my people as food of bread? {6} God they have not invoked: there have they trembled for fear, where no fear was. Because God hath dissipated the bones of them that please men: they are confounded, because God hath despised them. {7} Who will give out of Sion the salvation of Israel? When God shall convert the captivity of his people: Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

David in distress crieth to God for help, 6. Confidently trusting therein, 8. and promising sacrifice of thanks-giving.

{1} UNTO the end, in songs understanding for David and said to Saul: Is not David hid with us? {2} when the Zipheites were come, {3} O God save me in thy name: and in thy strength judge me. {4} O God hear my prayer with thine ears: receive the words of my mouth. {5} Because strangers have risen up against me, & the strong have sought my soul: and they have not set God before their eyes. {6} For behold God helpeth me: and our Lord is the receiver of my soul. {7} Turn away the evils of mine enemies: and in thy truth destroy them. {8} I will voluntarily sacrifice to thee, and will confess to thy name o Lord, because it is good: {9} Because thou hast delivered me out of all tribulation: and mine eye hath looked down upon mine enemies.

The Prophet (as well in his own, as other just men's person) describeth great calamities suffered, 10. prayeth against the wicked, 13. lamenting especially that those which profess friendship, are adversaries, 17. and declareth God's providence in protecting the good, and destroying the bad.

{1} UNTO the end in songs, understanding to David. not my petition. {2} Hear my prayer, o God despise {3} Attend to me and hear me. {4} I am made sorrowful in my exercise: and am troubled at the voice of the enemy: and at the tribulation of the sinner. Because they have wrested iniquities upon me: & in anger they were troublesome to me. {5} My heart is troubled in me: & the fear of death is fallen upon me. {6} Fear and trembling are come upon me: and darkness hath covered me. {7} And I said: Who will give me wings as of a dove, and I will fly: and rest? {8} Lo I have gone far flying away: and I abode in the wilderness. {9} I expected him, that saved me from pusillanimity of spirit, and tempest. {10} Precipitate, o Lord, and divide their tongues: because I have seen iniquity, and contradiction in the city. {11} Day and night shall iniquity compass it upon the walls thereof, and labour in the midst thereof, and injustice. {12} And there hath not ceased out of the streets thereof usury and guile. {13} For if mine enemy had spoken evil to me, I would verily have born it. And if he that hated me had spoken great things upon me: I would perhaps have hid my self from him. {14} But thou a man of the same mind: my guide, and my familiar. {15} Which didest take sweet meats together with me: in the house of God we walked with consent. {16} Let death come upon them: and let them go down quick into hell. Because there is wickedness in their habitations, in the midst of them. {17} But I have cried to God, and our Lord will save me. {18} In the evening, and morning, & at midday, I will speak, and declare, and he will hear my voice. {19} He will redeem my soul in peace from them, that approach to me: because among many they were with me. {20} God will hear, and he which is before the worlds will humble them. {21} For there is no change with them, & they feared not God: he hath stretched forth his hand in repaying. {22} They have contaminated his testament, they are divided by the wrath of his countenance; and his heart hath approached. His words are made softer than oil: and the same are darts. {23} Cast thy care upon our Lord: and he will nourish thee: he will not give fluctuation to the just for ever. {24} But thou, o God, wilt bring them down into the pit of destruction. Bloody and deceitful men shall not live half their days, but I will hope in thee, o Lord.

David being in danger before Achis King of Geth, confidently imploreh God's help, against the great malice and power of his enemies; 8. foresheweth their ruin, his own exaltation, 12. and offereth praises and thanks.

{1} UNTO the end, for a people, that is made far from the Saints, David in the inscription of the title, when the foreigners held him in Geth {2} Have mercy on me, o God, because man hath trodden upon me: all the day impugning he hath afflicted me. {3} Mine enemies have trodden upon me all the day: because they are many that war against me. {4} From the height of the day I shall fear: but I will trust in thee. {5} In God I will praise my words, in God have I hoped: I will not fear what flesh may do to me. {6} All the day did they detest my words; against me all their cogitations are unto evil. {7} They will inhabit and keep secret: they will observe my heel. As they have expected my soul, {8} for nothing shalt thou save them: in wrath thou wilt break peoples. O God {9} I have shewed my life to thee: thou hast set my tears in thy sight. As also in thy promise: {10} then shall mine enemies be turned backward. In what day soever I shall invoke thee: lo I have known that thou art my God. {11} In God I will praise the word, in our Lord will I praise thee saying: I have hoped in God, I will not fear what man can do to me. {12} In me, o God are thy vows, which I will render, praises to thee. {13} Because thou hast delivered my soul from death, and my feet from falling: that I may please before God, in the light of the living.

The Prophet prayeth in tribulation, 4. testifieth God's help, 6. praiseth his greatness: 8. promising and inviting all nations to praise him.

{1} UNTO the end, destroy not, to David in the inscription of the title, when he fled from the face of Saul into the cave. {2} Have mercy on me, o God, have mercy on me: because my soul hath trusted in thee. And I will hope in the shadow of thy wings, until iniquity pass. {3} I will cry to God the highest: God that hath done me good. {4} He sent from heaven, and delivered me: he hath given into reproach them that trod upon me. God hath sent his mercy and his truth, {5} and hath delivered my soul out of the midst of lion's whelps: I slept troubled. The sons of men, their teeth are weapons and arrows: and their tongue a sharp sword. {6} Be exalted above the heavens, o God: and thy glory upon all the earth. {7} They prepared a snare for my feet: and bowed down my soul. They digged a pit before my face: and they are fallen into it. {8} My heart is ready, o God, my heart is ready: I will sing, and say a Psalm. {9} Arise my glory, arise psalter and harp: I will arise early. {10} I will confess to thee among peoples, o Lord: and I will say a Psalm to thee among the Gentiles. {11} Because thy mercy is magnified even to the heavens, and thy truth even to the clouds. {12} Be exalted above the heavens o God: and thy glory upon all the earth.

Holy David inveigheth against dissembling wicked men: 7. describeth their manifold punishment, 11. wherein the just shall be comforted.

{1} UNTO the end, destroy not, to David, in the inscription of the title. you speak justice: judge right things ye {2} If in very deed sons of men. {3} For in the heart you work iniquities: in the earth your hands forge injustice. {4} Sinners are alienated from the matrice, they have erred from the womb: they have spoken false things. {5} They have fury according to the similitude of a serpent: as of the asp that is deaf, and stoppeth his ears. {6} Which will not hear the voice of the enchanters, and of the sorcerer enchanting wisely. {7} God shall break their teeth in their mouth, the cheek-tooth of the lions, our Lord will break in pieces. {8} They shall come to nothing as water running down: he hath bent his bow till they be weakened. {9} As wax that melteth, shall they be taken away: fire hath fallen on them, and they have not seen the sun. {10} Before your thorns did understand the old briar: as living so in wrath he swalloweth them. {11} The just shall rejoice when he shall see revenge: he shall wash his hands in the blood of a sinner. {12} And man shall say: If certes there be fruit to the just: there is a God certes judging them on the earth.

Holy David (being besieged in his own house by men sent to kill him confidently prayeth God to deliver him, 6. and all faithful nations in like danger: 7. and praiseth God.

{1} UNTO the end, destroy not, to David in the inscription of the title, when Saul sent, and watched his house to kill him. {2} Deliver me from mine enemies, o my God: and from them that rise up against me defend me. {3} Deliver me from them that work iniquity: and from bloody men save me. {4} Because lo they have taken my soul: the strong have fallen violently upon me. {5} Neither is it mine iniquity, nor my sin, o Lord: without iniquity have I run, and gone directly. {6} Rise up to meet me, and see: and thou, o Lord, the God of powers, God of Israel, attend to visit all nations: have no mercy on all that work iniquity. {7} They will return at evening: and they shall suffer famine as dogs, and shall compass the city. {8} Behold they will speak in their mouth, and a sword in their lips: because who hath heard? {9} And thou, o Lord wilt scorn them: thou wilt bring to nought all the nations. {10} I will keep my strength to thee: because thou art my receiver: {11} my God, thy mercy shall prevent me. {12} God will shew unto me concerning mine enemies, kill them not lest sometime my peoples forget. Disperse them in thy strength: and depose them, my protector, o Lord. {13} The sin of their mouth, the word of their lips: and let them be taken in their pride. And for cursing and lying they shall be talked of {14} in consummation: in wrath of consummation and they shall not be. And they shall know that God will rule over Jacob: and over the ends of the earth. {15} They shall be turned at evening, and shall suffer famine as dogs: & shall compass the city. {16} They shall be dispersed to eat: and if they be not filled, they will murmur also. {17} But I will sing thy strength: and will exalt thy mercy in the morning. Because thou art become my receiver, and my refuge in the day of my tribulation. {18} My helper, I will sing to thee, because thou art God my receiver: my God, my mercy.

King David after his own and the people's many tribulations, 8. rendereth thanks for their renowned victories, 11. achieved by God's only power.

{1} UNTO the end, for them that shall be changed, in the inscription of the title to David himself, for doctrine, {2} when he set fire on Mesopotamia of Syria, and in Soba, and Joab returned, and struck Idumaea in the valley of salt-pits twelve thousand. {3} O God thou hast repelled us, & hast destroyed us: thou wast angry and hast had mercy on us. {4} Thou hast moved the earth, and hast troubled it: heal the breaches thereof, because it is moved. {5} Thou hast shewed unto thy people hard things: thou hast made us drink the wine of compunction. {6} Thou hast given a signification to them that fear thee: that they fly from the face of the bow. {7} That thy beloved may be delivered, save me with thy right hand, and hear me. {8} God hath spoken in his holy: I shall rejoice, and shall divide Sichem: and shall measure the valley of tabernacles. {9} Galaad is mine, and Manasses is mine: and Ephraim the strength of my head. {10} Juda my king: Moab the pot of my hope. Into Edom I will stretch out my shoe: the foreigners are subject to me. {11} Who shall conduct me into a fenced city? Who shall conduct me even into Idumea? {12} Shall not thou, o God, that hast expelled us: and wilt not thou o God, go forth in our hosts? {13} Give us aid from tribulation: because man's salvation is vain.

{14} In God we shall do strength: and he shall bring to nothing them that afflict us.

Faithful people of the whole earth pray, and acknowledge that God mercifully heareth their prayer. 6. Expect the eternal kingdom of Christ, in which they shall praise him for evermore.

{1} UNTO the end, in hymns to David. {2} prayer. Hear, o God, my petition: attend to my {3} From the ends of the earth I have cried to thee: whilst my heart was in anguish, thou didst exalt me on a rock. {4} Thou hast conducted me, because thou art made my hope: a tower of strength from the face of the enemy. {5} I shall inhabit in thy tabernacle for ever: I shall be protected in the covert of thy wings. {6} Because thou my God hast heard my prayer: thou hast given inheritance to those that fear thy name. {7} Thou wilt add days upon the days of the king: his years even unto the day of generation and generation. {8} He is permanent for ever in the sight of God: his mercy and truth who shall require? {9} So will I say a Psalm to thy name for ever and ever: that I may render my vows from day to day.

A just man encourageth his own soul to serve God in sincere humility, 9. exhorted also all others to trust in God, not in false and worldly policy, wealth, because God's power & mercy will render to every one as they deserve.

{1} UNTO the end, for Idithun a Psalm of David. {2} For of him is my salvation. Shall not my soul be subject to God? {3} For he is my God, and my saviour: my receiver, I shall be moved no more. {4} How long set you violently upon a man: you all do kill, as it were upon a wall that is leaning, and a wall shaken. {5} But yet they thought to repel my price. I ran in thirst: they blessed with their mouth, and cursed with their heart. {6} But yet my soul be thou subject to God: because my patience is from him. {7} Because he is my God, and my saviour: my helper I shall not remove. {8} In God is my salvation, and my glory: the God of my help, and my hope is in God. {9} Hope in him all ye the congregation of people: pour out your hearts before him: God is our helper for ever. {10} But yet the children of men are vain, the children of men are liars in balances: that they may deceive by vanity together. {11} Hope not in iniquity, and covet not robberies: if riches abound set not your heart upon them. {12} Once hath God spoken, these two things have I heard: {13} That power is God's, and mercy, o Lord, is to thee: because thou wilt render to every one according to his works.

David in banishment with great affection desireth to unit himself with God in meditation 4. purposing and promising ever to praise him: 10. prophesieth the vain endeavours, and condemnation of his enemies and his own advancement.

{1} A Psalm of David when he was in the desert of Juda. from the morning light. My soul hath {2} O God my God to thee I watch, thirsted to thee, my flesh to thee very many ways. {3} In a desert land, and inaccessible, and without water, so in the holy have I appeared to thee, that I might see thy strength, and thy glory. {4} Because thy mercy is better than lives, my lips shall praise thee. {5} So will I bless thee in my life: and in thy name I will lift up my hands. {6} As with marrow and fatness let my soul be filled: and my mouth shall praise with lips of exultation. {7} If I have been mindful of thee upon my bed, in the morning I will meditate on thee: {8} because thou hast been my helper. {9} And in the covert of thy wings I will rejoice, my soul hath cleaved after thee: thy right hand hath received me. {10} But they in vain have sought my soul, they shall enter into the inferior parts of the earth. {11} They shall be delivered into the hands of the sword, they shall be the portions of foxes. {12} But the king shall rejoice in God, all shall be praised that swear by him: because the mouth is stopped of those that speak wicked things.

A prayer of the just reposing their whole trust in God: 7. and rejoicing that the enemies' machinations are frustrate.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David. {2} petition: from the fear of my enemy Hear o God my prayer when I make deliver my soul. {3} Thou hast protected me from the assembly of the malignant: from the multitude of them that work iniquity. {4} Because they have sharpened their tongues as a sword: they have bent the bow a bitter thing, {5} that they may shoot in secrets at the immaculate. {6} Suddenly they will shoot at him, and will not fear: they have confirmed to themselves a wicked word. They have talked to hide snares: they have said, Who shall see them? {7} They have searched iniquities: they have failed searching with scrutiny. {8} Man shall come to a deep heart: and God shall be exalted. Children's arrows are made their wounds: {9} and their tongues are weakened against them. All that saw them were troubled: {10} and every man feared. And they shewed forth the works of God: and they understood his doings. {11} The just shall rejoice in our Lord, and shall hope in him, & all the right of heart shall be praised.

God is rightly praised in Sion and Jerusalem (in his Church only) for his benefits bestowed and promised, 8. unto which also in the time of grace all nations shall be called.

{1} TO the end, a Psalm of David, the Canticle of Jeremy, and Ezechiel, to the people of the transmigration, when they began to go forth. {2} An hymn, o God, becometh thee in Sion: & a vow shall be rendered to thee in Jerusalem. {3} Hear my prayer: all flesh shall come to thee. {4} The words of the wicked have prevailed upon us: and thou wilt be propitious to our impieties. {5} Blessed is he whom thou hast chosen and taken: he shall dwell in thy courts. {6} We shall be replenished in the goods of thy house: holy is thy temple, marvelous in equity. Hear us, o God our saviour, the hope of all the ends of the earth, and in the sea far. {7} Preparing mountains in thy strength, girded with might: {8} which troublest the depths of the sea, the sound of the waves thereof. {9} The Gentiles shall be troubled, and they that inhabit the borders shall be afraid of thy signs: the out-goings of the morning and evening thou shalt delight. {10} Thou hast visited the earth, and hast inebriated it: thou hast multiplied to enrich it. The river of God is replenished with waters, thou hast prepared their meat: because so is the preparation thereof. {11} Inebriate her rivers, multiply her fruits: in her drops she shall rejoice springing. {12} Thou wilt bless the crown of the year of thy goodness: and thy fields shall be replenished with plenty. {13} The beautiful places of the desert shall be fat: and the little hills shall be girded about with exultation. {14} The rams of the sheep are clothed, and the valleys shall abound with corn: they will cry, yea they will say an hymn.

The prophet inviteth all men to praise God for his marvelous works, and benefits done to the Jews. 7. Who being ungrateful, 8. Gentiles are called, 16. and bring forth better fruit.

{1} UNTO the end, a Canticle of resurrection. Make ye jubilation to God all the earth, {2} say a Psalm to his name: give glory to his praise. {3} Say ye to God: How terrible are thy works, o Lord! In the multitude of thy strength thine enemies shall lie to thee. {4} Let all the earth adore thee, and sing to thee: let it sing a Psalm to thy name. {5} Come ye, and see the works of God: terrible in counsels over the children of men. {6} Who turneth the sea into dry land, in the river they shall pass on foot, there we shall rejoice in him. {7} Who ruleth in his strength for ever his eyes look upon the gentiles: they that exasperate him let them not be exalted in themselves. {8} Ye Gentiles bless our God: and make the voice of his praise heard. {9} Who hath put my soul in life: and hath not given my feet to be moved. {10} Because thou hast proved us, o God: by fire thou hast tried us, as silver is tried. {11} Thou hast brought us into a snare, thou hast laid tribulations on our back: thou hast set men upon our heads. {12} We have passed through fire and water: and thou hast brought us out into refreshing. {13} I will go into thy house with holocausts: I will render thee my vows: {14} which my lips have distinguished. And my mouth hath spoken in my tribulation. {15} Holocausts with marrow will I offer to thee, with incense of rams: I will offer to thee oxen with buck goats. {16} Come ye, hear, and I will tell all ye that fear God, what great things he hath done for my soul. {17} To him have I cried with my mouth, and have exulted under my tongue. {18} If I have beheld iniquity in my heart, our Lord will not hear. {19} Therefore hath God heard, and hath attended to the voice of my petition. {20} Blessed be God who hath not removed my prayer, and his mercy from me.

The prophet prayeth for (and withal foresheweth) the propagation of the Church of Christ.

{1} UNTO the end, in hymns, a Psalm of Canticle to David. us, and bless us: illuminate his {2} God have mercy upon countenance upon us, and have mercy on us. {3} That we may know thy way upon earth: in all nations thy salvation. {4} Let peoples, o God, confess to thee: let all peoples confess to thee. {5} Let nations be glad & rejoice: because thou judgest peoples in equity, and the nations in earth thou doest direct. {6} Let peoples, o God, confess to thee, let all peoples confess to thee: {7} the earth hath yielded her fruit. God, our God bless us, {8} God bless us: and let all the ends of the earth fear him.

Notwithstanding great persecutions the Church prospereth. 10. Especially in the new testament, by Apostolical function, 18. ministry of Angels, Christ's Ascension, coming of the Holy Ghost, 31. confirming the faithful, repressing the insolent, and converting many. 35. For all which the prophet inviteth all men to praise God.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of Canticle, to David himself. enemies be dispersed, and let them that {2} Let God arise, and let his hate him fly from his face. {3} As smoke vanisheth, let them vanish away: as wax melteth at the presence of fire, so let sinners perish at the presence of God. {4} And let the just make merry, and rejoice in the sight of God: and let them be delighted in mirth. {5} Sing to God, say a Psalm to his name: make way to him, who mounteth upon the west, Lord is his name. Rejoice ye in his sight, they shall be troubled at the presence of him: {6} the father of orphans, and judge of widows. God in his holy place: {7} God that maketh men to inhabit of one manner in a house. That bringeth forth them that be bound in strength, likewise them that exasperate, that dwell in sepulchres. {8} O God when thou wentest forth in the sight of thy people, when thou didst pass through the desert. {9} The earth was moved, and the heavens also distilled, at the presence of the God of Sina, at the face of the God of Israel. {10} Voluntary rain shalt thou separate, o God, to thine inheritance: and it was weakened, but thou hath perfidit it. {11} Thy living creatures shall dwell in it: thou hast prepared in thy sweetness for the poor, o God. {12} Our Lord shall give the word to them that evangelize, with great power. {13} The King of hosts the beloved of the beloved: and to the beauty of the house, to divide the spoils. {14} If ye sleep among the midst of the lots, the wings of a dove laid over with silver, and the hinder parts of her back in the paleness of gold. {15} Whilst the heavenly discerneth kings over her, with snow they shall be made white in Selmon. {16} The mountain of God a fat mountain. A mountain curdled as cheese, a fat mountain: {17} why suppose you curdled mountains? A mountain, in which it hath well pleased God to dwell therein: for indeed our Lord will dwell even to the end. {18} The chariot of God is ten thousand fold, thousands of them that rejoice, our Lord in them, in Sina in the holy place. {19} Thou art ascended on high, thou hast taken captivity: thou hast received gifts in men: for even those that do not believe, our Lord God to inhabit. {20} Blessed be our Lord day by day: the God of our salutations will make us a prosperous journey. {21} Our God is the God of saving: and the issues of death are of our Lord, our Lord. {22} But yet God still break the heads of his enemies: the hair crown of them, that walk in their sins. {23} Our Lord said: Out of Basan I will convert, I will convert into the depth of the sea. {24} That thy foot may be dipped in blood: the tongue of thy dogs with the same of the enemies. {25} They have seen thy enterings in, o God, the enterings of my God: of my King who is in the holy place. {26} Princes came before joined with them that sang, in the midst of young women playing on timbrels. {27} In Churches bless ye God our Lord, of the fountains of Israel. {28} There Benjamin a young man, in excess of mind. The Princes of Juda their leaders: the Princes of Zabulon, the Princes of Nephthali. {29} Command thy strength, o God: confirm this, o God, which thou hast wrought in us. {30} From thy temple in Jerusalem, kings shall offer gifts to thee. {31} Rebuke the wild beasts of the reed, the congregation of bulls in the kine of thy peoples: that they may exclude them, which are tried with silver. Dissipate the nations that will wars: {32} Legates shall come out of Aegypt: Aethiopia shall prevent his hands to God. {33} Ye Kingdoms of the earth sing to God: sing to our Lord: {34} Sing ye to God, that mounteth upon the heaven of heaven, to the East. Behold he will give to his voice the voice of strength: {35} give you glory to God upon Israel, his magnificence, and his power in the clouds. {36} God is marvelous in his Saints, the God of Israel he will give power and strength to his people, God be blessed.

Christ in midst of afflictions (as one in dangerous waters) 5. describing the malice of persecutors, and his own true zeal, 14. prayeth his heavenly Father for help. 23. By way of just imprecation foresheweth the severe punishment of his adversaries, 30. his own glorious Resurrection, and prosperous building of his Church. For which he inviteth all creatures to praise God.

{1} UNTO the end, for them that shall be changed, to David. because waters are entered into my soul. {2} Save me, o God: {3} I stick fast in the mire of the depth: and there is no sure standing. I am come into the depth of the sea: and a tempest hath overwhelmed me. {4} I have laboured crying, my jaws are made hoarse: my eyes have failed, whilst I hope in my God. {5} They are multiplied above the hairs of my head, that hate me without cause. Mine enemies are made strong, that have persecuted me unjustly: then did I pay the things that I took not. {6} O God thou knowest my foolishness: and mine offences are not hid from thee. {7} Let them not be ashamed upon me, which expected thee, o Lord, Lord of hosts. Let them not be confounded upon me that seek thee, o God of Israel. {8} Because for thee have I sustained reproach, confusion hath covered my face. {9} I am become a foreigner to my brethren, and a stranger to the sons of my mother. {10} Because the zeal of thy house hath eaten me: and the reproaches of them that reproached thee, fell upon me. {11} And I covered my soul in fasting: and it was made a reproach to me. {12} And I put hair cloth my garment, & I became a parable to them. {13} They spake against me that sat in the gate; and they sung against me that drank wine. {14} But I, my prayer to thee, o Lord: a time of thy good pleasure, o God. In the multitude of thy mercy hear me, in the truth of thy salvation: {15} Deliver me out of the mire, that I stick not fast: deliver me from them that hate me, and from the depths of waters. {16} Let not the tempest of water drown me, nor the depth swallow me: neither let the pit shut his mouth upon me. {17} Hear me, o Lord, because thy mercy is benign: according to the multitude of thy commiserations have respect to me. {18} And turn not away thy face from thy servant: because I am in tribulation, hear me speedily. {19} Attend to my soul, and deliver it: because of mine enemies deliver me. {20} Thou knowest my reproach & my confusion, & my shame. {21} In thy sight are all they that afflict me, my heart hath looked for reproach and misery. And I expected some body that would be sorry together with me, and there was none: and that would comfort me, and I found not. {22} And they gave gall for my meat: & in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink. {23} Let their table be made a snare before them, & for retrIBUTions, and for a scandal. {24} Let their eyes be darkened that they see not: and make their back crooked always. {25} Pour out thy wrath upon them: and let the fury of thy wrath overtake them. {26} Let their habitation be made desert: and in their tabernacles let there be none to dwell. {27} Because whom thou hast stricken, they have persecuted: and upon the sorrow of my wounds they have added. {28} Add thou iniquity upon their iniquity: and let them not enter into thy justice. {29} Let them be put out of the book of the living: and with the just let them not be written. {30} I am poor and sorrowful: thy salvation, o God, hath received me. {31} I will praise the name of God with canticle: and will magnify him in praise. {32} And it shall please God more than a young calf: that bringeth forth horns and hoofs. {33} Let the poor see and rejoice: seek ye God, and your soul shall live. {34} Because our Lord hath heard the poor: and he hath not despised his prisoners. {35} Let the heavens and earth praise him, the sea, and all the creeping beasts in them. {36} Because God will save Sion: and the cities of Juda shall be built up. And they shall inhabit there, & by inheritance, they shall get it. {37} And the seed of his servants shall possess it, and they that love his name shall dwell in it.

An other prayer of David, when he was persecuted by Absalom: made in a Psalm after his delivery.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David, in remembrance, that our Lord saved him. {2} O God intend unto my help: Lord make haste to help me. {3} Let them be confounded and be ashamed, that seek my soul. {4} Let them be turned away backward, and be ashamed that will me evils. Let them be turned away forthwith ashamed, that say to me: Well, well. {5} Let all that seek thee rejoice, and be glad in thee, and let them say always: Our Lord be magnified: which love thy salvation. {6} But I am needy and poor: O God help me, thou art my helper, and deliverer: o Lord be not slack.

King David, or any other just person prayeth God to continue his grace and protection against the malice of the enemy. 5. Recounteth God's mercy in delivering him from falling into temptations: 6. prayeth for the same in old age, or weakness of body and spirit, 20. and promiseth perpetual gratitude and praises.

{1} A Psalm for David, of the sons of Jonadab, and the former captives. In thee o Lord I have hoped, let me not be confounded for ever: {2} in thy justice deliver me, and receive me. Incline thine ear to me and save me. {3} Be unto me for a God protector, and for a fenced place: that thou mayst save me: Because thou art my firmament, and my refuge. {4} My God deliver me out of the hand of the sinner, and out of the hand of him that doth against the law, and of the unjust. {5} Because thou art my patience, o Lord; o Lord my hope from my youth. {6} Upon thee have I been confirmed from the womb: from my mother's belly thou art my protector. In thee is my singing always: {7} I was made to many as a wonder: & thou art a strong helper. {8} Let my mouth be filled with praise, that I may sing thy glory: all the day thy greatness. {9} Reject me not in the time of old age: when my strength shall fail, forsake me not. {10} Because mine enemies have said to me: and they that watched my soul consulted together. {11} saying: God hath forsaken him, pursue, and take him: because there is none to deliver. {12} O God be not far from me: my God have respect to mine aid. {13} Let them be confounded & fail that detract from my soul: let them be covered with confusion and shame, that seek evils to me. {14} But I will always hope: and will add upon all thy praise. {15} My mouth shall shew forth thy justice: all the day thy salvation. Because I have not known learning, I will enter into the powers of our Lord: {16} Lord I will be mindful of thy justice only. {17} O God thou hast taught me from my youth: and until now I will pronounce thy marvelous works. {18} And unto ancient age, and old age: o God, forsake me not? Until I shew forth thy arm to all the generation, that is to come. Thy might, {19} and thy justice, o God, even to the highest, great marvels, which thou hast done: O God who may be like to thee? {20} How great tribulations hast thou shewed me, many and evil: and turning thou hast quickened me: and from the depths of the earth thou hast brought me back again. {21} Thou hast multiplied thy magnificence: and being turned thou hast comforted me. {22} For I also will confess to thee in the instruments of Psalm thy truth: O God, I will sing to thee on the harp, holy one of Israel. {23} My lips shall rejoice when I shall sing to thee; and my soul which thou hast redeemed. {24} Yea and my tongue all the day shall meditate thy justice: when they shall be confounded and ashamed that seek evils to me.

By way of prayer the Psalmist prophesieth Christ's coming, our King and Judge: 4. the deliverer of mankind from the thralldom of the devil. 8. The greatness of his spiritual kingdom in the Gentiles, 16. and his continual glory and praise.

{1} CONCERNING Salomon, judgment to the king: and thy justice to the son of the king. To judge thy people in {2} O God give thy justice, and thy poor in judgment. {3} Let the mountains receive peace for the people: and the little hills justice. {4} He shall judge the poor of the people, and shall save the children of the poor: and he shall humble the calumniator. {5} And he shall continue with the sun, and before the moon in generation and generation. {6} He shall descend as rain upon a fleece: and as drops distilling upon the earth. {7} There shall rise in his days justice, and abundance of peace, until the moon be taken away. {8} And he shall rule from sea unto sea: and from the river even to the ends of the round world. {9} Before him shall the Aethiopians fall down: and his enemies shall lick the earth. {10} The kings of Tharsis, and the Islands shall offer presents: the kings of the Arabians, and of Saba shall bring gifts. {11} And all kings of the earth shall adore him: all nations shall serve him. {12} Because he shall deliver the poor from the mighty: and the poor which had no helper. {13} He shall spare the poor and needy: and he shall save the souls of the poor. {14} From usuries and iniquity he shall redeem their souls: and their name shall be honourable before him. {15} And he shall live, and there shall be given him of the gold of Arabia, and they shall adore it always: all the day they shall bless him. {16} And there shall be a firmament in the earth in the tops of mountains, the fruit thereof shall be extolled far above Libanus: and they shall flourish of the city, as the grass of the earth. {17} Be his name blessed for ever: before the sun his name is permanent. And all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in him: all nations shall magnify him. {18} Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel, who only doth marvelous things. {19} And blessed be the name of his majesty for ever: and all the earth shall be filled with his majesty. Be it, be it. {20} The praises of David, the son of Jesse are ended.

The royal Prophet, first professing the unspeakable goodness of God, 2. in the person of the weak complaineth, that the wicked prosper and the just are afflicted: 15. reprehendeth the murmuration, for though we can not comprehend the secret judgements of God, 18. yet they are most just. 25. So with desire to rest in God, he promiseth ever to praise him.

{1} A Psalm to Asaph. How good is God to Israel, to them that are of a right heart! {2} But my feet were almost moved, my steps almost slipped. {3} Because I have had zeal upon the wicked, seeing the peace of sinners. {4} Because there is no respect to their death: and stability in their plague. {5} In the labours of men they are not, and with men they shall not be scourged. {6} Therefore hath pride held them, they are covered with their iniquity and impiety. {7} Their iniquity hath proceeded as it were of fat: they have passed into the affection of the heart. {8} They have thought and have spoken wickedness: they have spoken iniquity on high. {9} They have set their mouth unto heaven: and their tongue hath passed in the earth. {10} Therefore will my people return here: and full days shall be found in them. {11} And they have said: How doth God know, and is there knowledge in the highest? {12} Lo the sinners themselves, and they that abound in the world, have obtained riches. {13} And I said: Then have I justified my heart without cause, and have washed my hands amongst innocents: {14} And have been scourged all the day, and my chastising in the mornings. {15} If I said: I will speak this: behold I reproved the nation of thy children. {16} I thought to know this thing, it is labour before me: {17} Until I may enter into the sanctuary of God: and may understand concerning their latter ends. {18} But yet for guiles thou hast put it to them: thou hast cast them down whilst they were elevated. {19} How are they brought into desolation, they have failed suddenly: they have perished for their iniquity. {20} As the dream of them that rise, o Lord, in thy city thou shalt bring their image to nothing. {21} Because my heart is inflamed, and my reins are changed: {22} And I am brought to nothing, and knew not. {23} As a beast am I become with thee: and I always with thee. {24} Thou hast held my right hand: and in thy will thou hast conducted me, and with glory thou hast received me. {25} For what is to me in heaven? And besides thee what would I upon the earth? {26} My flesh hath fainted, and my heart: God of my heart, and God my portion for ever. {27} For behold, they that make themselves far from thee, shall perish: thou hast destroyed all that fornicate from thee. {28} But it is good for me to cleave to God: to put my hope in our Lord God. That I may shew forth all thy praises, in the gates of the daughter of Sion.

Faithful people pressed with persecution lamentably complaining, beseecheth God to respect his own inheritance, cruelly afflicted, 10. and left long without help, 12. whereas heretofore he relieved his people in like distresses. 18. And therefore confidently hopeth he will revenge the blasphemers of his name.

{1} UNDERSTANDING to Asaph. Why hast thou, o God, repelled for ever: is thy fury wrath upon the sheep of thy pasture? {2} Be mindful of thy congregation, which thou hast possessed from the beginning. Thou hast redeemed the rod of thine inheritance: mount Sion, in which thou hast dwelt. {3} Lift up thy hands upon their prides for ever: how great things hath the enemy done malignantly in the holy place? {4} And they that hate thee have gloried: in the midst of thy solemnity. They have set their signs, for signs: {5} and have not known, as in the issue on high. As in a wood of trees they have with axes {6} cut out the gates thereof together: in hatchet and chip-axe they have cast it down. {7} They have burnt thy sanctuary with fire: they have polluted the tabernacle of thy name in the earth. {8} Their kindred together have said in their heart: Let us make all the festival days of God to cease from the earth. {9} Our signs we have not seen, there is now no Prophet: and he will know us no more. {10} How long, o God, shall the enemy upbraid: the adversary provoke thy name for ever? {11} Why doest thou turn away thy hand, and thy right hand, out of the midst of thy bosom for ever? {12} But God our King before the worlds: he hath wrought salvation in the midst of the earth. {13} Thou in thy strength hast confirmed the sea: thou hast crushed the head of Dragons in the waters. {14} Thou hast broken the heads of the dragon: thou hast given him for meat to the peoples of the Aethiopians. {15} Thou hast broken up fountains, and torrents, thou hast dried the rivers of Ethan. {16} The day is thine, and the night is thine: thou hast made the morning and the sun. {17} Thou hast made all the coasts of the earth: {594} the summer and the spring thou hast formed them. {18} Be mindful of this, the enemy hath upbraided our Lord: and a foolish people hath provoked thy name. {19} Deliver not to beasts the souls that confess to thee: and the souls of the poor forget not for ever. {20} Have respect unto thy testament: because they that are obscure of the earth, are filled with houses of iniquities. {21} Let not the humble be turned away being confounded: the poor and needy shall praise thy name. {22} Arise God, judge thy cause: be mindful of those thy reproaches, that are from the foolish man all the day. {23} Forget not the voices of thine enemies: the pride of them that hate thee, hath ascended always.

Christ (with his Assessors) will judge the whole world at the last day: in the mean time exhorteth sinners to amend their life; 7. for none shall escape just judgement. 12. The wicked shall be punished, and the good rewarded.

{1} UNTO the end, Corrupt not, a Psalm of Canticle to Asaph. thee, o God: we will confess, and will {2} We will confess to invocate thy name. We will tell thy marvelous works: {3} when I shall take a time, I will judge justices. {4} The earth is melted, and all that dwell in it: I have confirmed the pillars thereof. {5} I said to the wicked: Do not wickedly; and to them that offend: Exalt not the horn. {6} Exalt not your horn on high: speak not iniquity against God. {7} For neither from the East, nor from the West, nor from the desert mountains: {8} because God is Judge. This man he humbleth, and him he exalteth: {9} because there is a cup in the hand of our Lord of mere wine full of mixture. And he hath poured it out of this into that, but yet the dregs thereof are not emptied: all the sinners of the earth shall drink. {10} But I will shew forth for ever: I will sing to the God of Jacob. {11} And I will break all the horns of sinners: and the horns of the just shall be exalted.

The Royal Prophet singeth God's praises, for his particular providence towards the Jews: 10. Further to be extended to all the meek of the whole earth.

{1} UNTO the end, in praises, a Psalm to Asaph, a Canticle to the Assyrians. known in Jewry: in Israel his name is great. {2} God is {3} And his place is made in peace; and his habitation in Sion. {4} There he brake the powers of bows, the shield, the sword, and the battle. {5} Thou doest illuminate marvelously from the eternal mountains: {6} all the foolish of heart were troubled. They slept their sleep: and all the men of riches found nothing in their hands. {7} At thy reprehension, o God of Jacob, they have all slumbered that mounted on horses. {8} Thou art terrible, and who shall resist thee? From that time thy wrath. {9} From heaven thou hast made thy judgment heard: the earth trembled and was quiet. {10} When God arose unto judgment, that he might save all the meek of the earth. {11} Because the cogitation of man shall confess to thee: and the remains of the cogitation shall keep festival day to thee. {12} Vow ye and render to our Lord your God: all ye that round about him bring gifts. To the terrible, {13} and him that taketh away the spirit of Princes, terrible to the kings of the earth.

Any faithful devout person meditating God's benefits, 7. examineth his conscience, that nothing be in his soul, that may offend God. Who is always ready to forgive: 11. and therefore he still reneweth his purpose to serve God sincerely, 15. particularly remembering the delivery of Israel from Aegypt.

{1} UNTO the end, for Idithun, a psalm to Asaph. Lord: with my voice to God and he {2} With my voice I have cried to our attended to me. {3} In the day of my tribulation I sought God, with my hands in the night before him: {595} and I was not deceived.

My soul refused to be comforted, {4} I was mindful of God and was delighted, and was exercised: and my spirit fainted. {5} Mine eyes prevented the watch: I was troubled & spake not. {6} I thought upon old days: and the eternal years I had in mind. {7} And I meditated in the night with my heart, and I was exercised, and I swept my spirit. {8} Why, will God reject for ever: or will he not add to be better pleased as yet? {9} Or will he cut off his mercy for ever, from generation unto generation? {10} Or will God forget to have mercy? Or will he in his wrath keep in his mercies? {11} And I said: Now have I begun; this is the change of the right hand of the Highest. {12} I have been mindful of the works of our Lord: because I will be mindful from the beginning of thy marvelous works. {13} And I will meditate in all thy works: and in thy inventions I will be exercised. {14} O God in the holy is thy way: what god is great as our God? {15} thou art the God that doest marvelous things. Thou hast made thy power known among peoples: {16} thou hast with thine arm redeemed thy people, the children of Jacob, and Joseph. {17} The waters saw thee, o God, the waters saw thee: and they were afraid, and the depths were troubled. {18} A multitude of the sounding of waters: the clouds gave a voice. For indeed arrows do pass: {19} the voice of thy thunder in a wheel. Thy lightnings shined to the round world: the earth was moved and troubled. {20} Thy way in the sea, and thy paths in many waters: and thy steps shall not be known. {21} Thou hast conducted thy people as sheep: in the hand of Moyses and Aaron.

The Royal Prophet exhorting the people to attend, 5. reciteth many great benefits of God towards their forefathers (whose ingratitude, often rebellion, and chastisement he still noteth) 9. as in their entrance into the land of Chanaan: 12. also before the same in Aegypt, and in the desert. 42. How God plagued the Aegyptians: 52. protected, and conducted his people into the promised land. 56. Where likewise they often offended, were punished: 65. yet were still conserved: 69. and the tribe of Juda exalted in King David.

{1} UNDERSTANDING to Asaph. My people attend ye to my law: incline your ear unto the words of my mouth. {2} I will open my mouth in parables: I will speak propositions from the beginning. {3} How great things have we heard and have known them, and our fathers have told us. {4} They were not hid from their children, in an other generation. Telling the praises of our Lord, and his powers, and his marvelous works which he hath done. {5} And he raised up a testimony in Jacob: and made a law in Israel. How great things he commanded our fathers, to make the same known to their children: {6} that an other generation may know. The children that shall be born, and shall rise up, and shall tell their children. {7} That they may put their hope in God, and may not forget the works of God: and may seek after his commandments. {8} That they become not as their fathers: a perverse generation and exasperating. A generation, that hath not directect their heart, their spirit hath not been faithful toward God. {9} The children of Ephrem bending, and shooting with bow: were turned in the day of battle. {10} They kept not the testament of God: and in his law they would not walk. {11} And they forgot his benefits, and his marvelous works, which he shewed them. {12} Before their fathers he did marvelous things in the land of Aegypt, in the field of Tanis. {13} He divided the sea & brought them through: and he made the waters to stand as in a bottle. {14} And he conducted them in a cloud by day: and all the night by light of fire. {15} He struck the rock in the desert: and gave them water to drink as in a great depth. {16} And he brought forth water out of the rock: and made waters run down as rivers. {17} And they added as yet to sin unto him: they provoked the Highest to wrath in the place without water. {18} And they tempted God in their hearts: so that they asked meats for their lives. {19} And they spake evil of God, they said: Can God prepare a table in the desert? {596} {20} Because he struck the rock and waters ran, & torrents flowed: Can he also give bread, or prepare a table for his people? {21} Therefore our Lord heard, and made delay: and fire was kindled in Jacob, and wrath ascended upon Israel. {22} Because they believed not in God, nor hoped in his salvation. {23} And he commanded the clouds from above, and opened the gates of heaven. {24} And he rained them Manna to eat, and bread of heaven he gave to them. {25} Bread of Angels did man eat: he sent them victuals in abundance. {26} He transported the South-wind from heaven: and in his power he brought in the South-west-wind. {27} And he rained upon them flesh as dust: and as the sand of the sea feathered fowls. {28} And they fell in the midst of their camp: about their tabernacles. {29} And they did eat and were filled exceedingly, and their desire he brought to them: {30} They were not defrauded of their desire. As yet their meats were in their mouth: {31} And the wrath of God ascended upon them. And he killed their fat ones, and the chosen of Israel he hindered. {32} In all these things they sinned as yet: and they believed not in his marvelous works. {33} And their days failed in vanity: and their years in haste. {34} When he slew them, they sought him: and they returned, and early they came to him. {35} And they remembered that God is their helper: and the high God is their redeemer. {36} And they loved him with their mouth, and with their tongue they did lie to him. {37} But their heart was not right with him: neither were they counted faithful in his testament. {38} But he is merciful, and will be propitious to their sins: and he will not destroy them. And he abounded to turn away his wrath: and he kindled not all his wrath. {39} And he remembered that they are flesh: spirit going, and not returning. {40} How often have they exasperated him in the desert: provoked him to wrath in the place without water. {41} And they returned, and tempted God: and the holy one of Israel they exasperated. {42} They did not remember his hand: in the day that he redeemed them from the hand of the afflicter. {43} As he put his signs in Aegypt, and his wonders in the field of Tanis. {44} And he turned their rivers into blood, & their showers that they might not drink. {45} He sent upon them a swarm of flies, and it eat them: and the frog, and it destroyed them. {46} And he gave their fruits to the blast, and their labours to the locust. {47} And he killed their vineyards with hail: and their mulberry trees with hoar-frost. {48} And he delivered their beast to hail: and their possession to fire. {49} He sent upon them the wrath of his indignation: indignation, & wrath, and tribulation: immissions by evil angels. {50} He made a way to the path of his wrath, he spared not their lives from death: and their cattle he shut up in death. {51} And he struck all the first-born in the land of Aegypt: the first fruits of all their labours in the tabernacles of Cham. {52} And he took away his people as sheep: and led them as a flock in the desert. {53} And he brought them forth in hope, and they feared not: and the sea covered their enemies. {54} And he brought them into the mount of his sanctification, the mount, which his right hand purchased. And he cast out the gentiles from their face: and by lot he divided the land of them in a cord of distribution: {55} And he made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tabernacles. {56} And they tempted, and exasperated God the highest, and they kept not his testimonies. {57} And they turned away themselves, & kept not the covenant: even as their fathers, they were turned as a crooked bow. {58} They incensed him to wrath in their hills: and in their gravens they provoked him to emulation. {59} God heard, and contemned: and he brought Israel to nothing exceedingly {60} And he rejected the tabernacle of Silo, his tabernacle, where he dwelt among men. {61} And he delivered their force into captivity: and their beauty into the hands of the enemy. {62} And he shut up his people in the sword: and he despised his inheritance. {63} Fire devoured their young men: and their virgins were not lamented. {64} Their Priests fell by the sword: and their widows were not wept for. {65} And our Lord was raised up as one that sleepeth: as a mighty man having surfeited of wine. {66} And he struck his enemies on the hinder parts: an everlasting reproach he gave to them. {67} And he rejected the tabernacle of Joseph: and the tribe of Ephraim he chose not. {68} But he chose the tribe of Juda, mount Sion which he loved. {69} And he built his sanctuary as of unicorns in the land, which he hath founded for ever. {70} And he chose David his servant, and took him from the flocks of sheep: from after the ewes with young he took him. {71} To feed Jacob his servant, and Israel his inheritance. {72} And he fed them in the innocency of his heart: and in the understandings of his hands he conducted them.

The Prophet, in person of the Church, lamenteth the cruelty of persecutors (both in the old and new testament) 5. prayeth for release, with just revenge against God's enemies, that blasphemeth his name, 3. and promiseth to be grateful in divine praises.

{1} A Psalm to Asaph. O God the Gentiles are come into thine inheritance, they have polluted thy holy temple: they have made Jerusalem as a watch tower of fruits. {2} They have made the carcasses of thy servants, meats for the fowls of the air: the flesh of thy Saints for the beasts of the land. {3} They have poured out their blood as water round about Jerusalem: and there was none to bury them. {4} We are become a reproach to our neighbours: a scorn and mock to them that are round about us. {5} How long, o Lord, wilt thou be angry for ever: shall thy zeal be kindled as a fire? {6} Pour out thy wrath upon the Gentiles, that have not known thee: & upon the Kingdoms, that have not invoked thy name. {7} Because they have devoured Jacob: and his place they have made desolate. {8} Remember not our old iniquities, let thy mercies quickly prevent us: because we are become exceeding poor. {9} Help us, o God our Saviour: and for the glory of thy name o Lord deliver us: and be propitious to our sins for thy name's sake. {10} Lest they say perhaps amongst the Gentiles: where is their God? And be notified in the nations before our eyes. The revenge of the blood of thy servants, which hath been shed: {11} let the groaning of the fettered enter in thy sight. According to the greatness of thine arm possess thou the children of them that are put to death. {12} And render to our neighbours sevenfold in their bosom: their reproach wherewith they have reproached thee, o Lord. {13} But we thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture, will confess to thee for ever. Unto generation and generation we will shew forth thy praise.

The Prophet prayeth for the release of Israel in great tribulation. 15. Foresheweth the coming of Christ to redeem man from sin, and from thralldom of the devil.

{1} UNTO the end, for them that shall be changed, testimony to Asaph, a Psalm. {2} Thou that rulest Israel, attend: that conductest Joseph as a sheep. Which sittest upon the Cherubs be manifest {3} before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasses. Raise up thy might, and come to save us. {4} O God convert us: and shew thy face, & we shall be saved. {5} O Lord the God of hosts, how long wilt thou be angry upon the prayer of thy servant? {6} Thou wilt feed us with the bread of tears: and give us drink with tears in measure. {7} Thou hast made us to be a contradiction to our neighbours: and our enemies have scorned us. {8} O God of hosts convert us: and shew thy face, and we shall be saved. {9} Thou didst transport the vineyard out of Aegypt: thou didst cast out the Gentiles, and plantedst it. {10} Thou wast the guide of the way, in the sight thereof: thou didst plant the roots thereof, and it filled the earth. {11} The shadow of it covered the mountains: and the boughs of it the cedars of God. {12} It extended her branches even to the sea; and her boughs unto the river. {13} Why hast thou destroyed the hedge thereof: and all that pass by the way do pluck it. {14} The boar of the wood hath destroyed it: and the singular wild beast hath eaten it. {15} O God of hosts return: {598} regard from heaven, and see, and visit this vineyard. {16} And perfit it, which thy right hand hath planted: and upon the son of man whom thou hast confirmed to thee. {17} Things burnt with fire, and digged down at the increpation of thy countenance shall perish. {18} Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand: and upon the son of man, whom thou hast confirmed to thee. {19} And we depart not from thee, thou wilt quicken us: and we will invoke thy name. {20} O Lord the God of hosts convert us: and shew thy face, and we shall be saved.

The Prophet declareth, 2. that God reprehendeth unjust Judges and Magistrates: premonisheth them of his severe & eternal punishment: 8. whereto the prophet conforming his will prayeth for the same.

{1} A Psalm to Asaph. God stood in the assembly of gods, and in the midst he judgeth gods. {2} How long judge ye iniquity: and accept ye the persons of sinners. {3} Judge ye for the needy and the pupil: justify ye the humble, and the poor. {4} Take away the poor: and deliver the needy from the hand of the sinner. {5} They knew not, neither did they understand, they walk in darkness: all the foundations of the earth shall be moved. {6} I said: You are gods, and the sons of the highest all. {7} But you shall die as men: and fall as one of the Princes. {8} Arise, o God, judge the earth: because thou shalt inherit in all the Gentiles.

Hold not thy peace, neither be thou appeased, o God: {2} O God who {3} for behold thine enemies have made a sound: they that hate thee have lifted up the head. {4} They have taken malignant counsel upon thy people: and they have devised against thy Saints. {5} They have said: Come, and let us destroy them out of the nation: and let the name of Israel be remembered no more. {6} Because they have devised with one consent:{599} they have together made a covenant against thee. {7} The tabernacles of the Idumeians, and the Ismahelites, Moab, and the Agarens. {8} Gebal, and Ammon, Amalec: the foreigners, with the inhabitants of Tyre. {9} Yea and Assur also is come with them: they are made an aid to the children of Lot. {10} Do to them as to Madian, and Sisara: as to Jabin in the torrent Cisson. {11} They perished in Endor: they were made as the dung of the earth. {12} Put their Princes as Oreb, and Zeb, and Zebee, and Salmana. All their Princes: {13} which have said: Let us possess the Sanctuary of God for an inheritance. {14} My God put them as a wheel: and as stubble before the face of the wind. {15} Even as fire that burneth a wood: & as a flame that burneth the mountains. {16} So shalt thou pursue them in thy tempest: and in thy wrath thou shalt trouble them. {17} Fill their faces with ignominy: and they will seek thy name, o Lord. {18} Let them be ashamed, and troubled for ever and ever: and let them be confounded, and perish. {19} And let them know that Lord is thy name, thou only the Highest in all the earth.

Devout persons fervently desire eternal glory, 6. accounting it in the mean time, a happy state to be in the militant Church, 12. where God first giving grace, will give glory in the triumphant.

{1} UNTO the end, for wine presses, to the children of Core, a Psalm. are thy tabernacles, o Lord of hosts! {2} How beloved {3} my soul coveteth and fainteth unto the courts of our Lord. My heart and my flesh have rejoiced toward the living God. {4} For the sparrow also hath found her an house: and the turtle-dove a nest for herself, where she may lay her young ones. Thine altars, o Lord of hosts: my King, and my God. {5} Blessed are they that dwell in thy house, o Lord: for ever and ever they shall praise thee. {6} Blessed is the man, whose help is from thee: he hath disposed ascensions in his heart, {7} in the vale of tears, in the place which he hath appointed. {8} For the law-giver shall give blessing, they shall go from virtue into virtue: the God of gods shall be seen in Sion. {9} Lord God of hosts hear my prayer: receive with thine ear, o God of Jacob. {10} Behold, o God our protector: and look upon the face of thy Christ. {11} Because better is one day in thy courts, above thousands. I have chosen to be an abject in the house of my God: rather than to dwell in the tabernacles of sinners. {12} Because God loveth mercy and truth: our Lord will give grace and glory. {13} He will not deprive them of good things, that walk in innocency: o Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that hopeth in thee.

With commemoration of God's former benefits, 5. Christ's Incarnation is prophesied, 9. bringing peace and salvation, 11. mercy and justice concurring together.

Or wilt thou extend thy wrath from generation unto generation? {7} O God thou being turned shalt quicken us: and thy people shall rejoice in thee. {8} Shew us, o Lord, thy mercy and give us thy salvation. {9} I will hear what our Lord God will speak in me: because he will speak peace upon his people. And upon his saints: and upon them, that are converted to the heart. {10} But yet his salvation is nigh to them that fear him: that glory may inhabit in our land. {11} Mercy and truth have met each other: justice and peace have kissed. {12} Truth is risen out of the earth: and justice hath looked down from heaven. {13} For our Lord certes will give benignity: and our land shall give her fruit. {14} Justice shall walk before him: and shall set his steps in the way.

In consideration of his own imperfections, the royal prophet, or other faithful person prayeth God, 5. according to his mercy and goodness, 9. shewed in converting Gentiles, 13. and in delivering the suppliant him self from the state of damnation, 16. that he will still direct and defend him against all enemies.

{1} A prayer to David himself. Incline thine ear, o Lord, & hear me: because I am needy and poor. {2} Keep my soul, because I am holy: save thy servant my God, that hopeth in thee. {3} Have mercy on me, o Lord, because I have cried to thee all the day: {4} make joyful the soul of thy servant, because to thee, o Lord, have I lifted up my soul. {5} Because thou, o Lord, art sweet, and mild: and of much mercy to all that invoke thee. {6} Receive, o Lord, my prayer with thine ears: and attend to the voice of my petition. {7} In the day of my tribulation I have called to thee: because thou hast heard me. {8} There is not the like to thee amongst gods, o Lord: and there is not according to thy works. {9} All nations whatsoever thou hast made, shall come, and shall adore before thee, o Lord: and they shall glorify thy name. {10} Because thou art great and doing marvelous things: thou only art God. {11} Conduct me, o Lord, in thy way, and I will walk in thy truth: let my heart rejoice that it may fear thy name. {12} I will confess to thee, o Lord my God, with all my heart, and will glorify thy name for ever. {13} Because thy mercy is great upon me: & thou hast delivered my soul out of the lower hell. {14} O God the wicked are risen up upon me, and the synagogue of the mighty have sought my soul: and they have not set thee in their sight. {15} And thou, o Lord, the God of compassion and merciful, patient, and of much mercy, and true. {16} Have respect to me and have mercy on me, give thine empire to thy servant: and save the son of thy handmaid. {17} Make with me a sign unto God, that they may see which hate me, and may be confounded: because thou o Lord hast holpen me.

The Church of Christ beginning in Jerusalem, 3. is extended to all Nations, 5. glorious, 9. and permanent 7. in holy joy.

{1} TO the children of Core, a Psalm of Canticle. The foundations thereof in the holy mountains: {2} our Lord loveth the gates of Sion above all the Tabernacles of Jacob. {3} Glorious things are said of thee, o city of God. {4} I will be mindful of Rahab, and Babylon knowing me. Behold the foreigners, and Tyre, & the people of the Aethiopians, these were there. {5} Shall it not be said of Sion: Man and man, is born in her; and the Highest himself founded her? {6} Our Lord will declare in scriptures of peoples, and of Princes: of those that have been in her. {7} The habitation in thee, is as it were of all rejoicing.

A faithful person sore and long afflicted, lamentably complaineth, praying God, 15. not still to repel him, being left desolate 19. without all consolation of friends.

{1} ACanticle of a Psalm, to the children of Core, unto the end, for Maheleth to answer, of understanding to Eman the Ezrahite. {2} O Lord the God of my salvation: in the day have I cried, and in the night before thee. {3} Let my prayer enter in thy sight: incline thine ear to my petition. {4} Because my soul is replenished with evils: & my life hath approached to hell. {5} I am accounted with them that descend into the lake. I am become as a man without help, {6} free among the dead, as the wounded sleeping in the sepulchres, of whom thou art mindful no more: and they are cast off from thy hand. {7} They have put me in the lower lake: in the dark places, and in the shadow of death. {8} Thy fury is confirmed upon me: and all thy waves thou hast brought in upon me. {9} Thou hast made my familiars far from me: they have put me abomination to themselves. I was delivered and came not forth: {10} mine eyes languished for poverty. I cried to thee o Lord all the day: I stretched out my hands to thee. {11} Wilt thou do marvels to the dead: or shall physicians raise to life, and they confess to thee? {12} Shall any in the sepulchre declare thy mercy, and thy truth in perdition? {13} Shall thy marvelous works be known in darkness: and thy justice in the land of oblivion. {14} And I o Lord have cried to thee: and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee. {15} Why doest thou, o Lord, reject my prayer: turnest away thy face from me? {16} I am poor, and in labours from my youth: and being exalted, humbled, and troubled. {17} Thy wraths have passed upon me: and thy terrors have troubled me. {18} They have compassed me as water all the day: they compassed me together. {19} Thou hast made friend, and neighbour far from me and my familiars because of misery.

God's mercy and truth, with his great promises to David, 6. his power in the whole world, and just judgements, are the true joy of his servants. 20. Christ's kingdom shall remain for ever: 31. yea many offending yet all shall not perish, 39. but after great affliction, 47. God will respect man's infirmity, 50. his own promise, and the enemies reproaching his servants and himself: 53. who is blessed for ever.

{1} OF understanding to Ethan the Ezrahite. {2} ever. In generation and generation I will The mercies of our Lord I will sing for shew forth thy truth in my mouth. {3} Because thou saidst: Mercy shall be built up for ever in the heavens: thy truth shall be prepared in them. {4} I have ordained a testament with mine elect, I have sworn to David my servant: {5} for ever will I prepare thy seed. And I will build thy seat unto generation and generation. {6} The heavens shall confess thy marvelous works, o Lord: yea and thy truth in the Church of Saints. {7} For who in the clouds shall be equal to our Lord: shall be like to God among the sons of God? {8} God who is glorified in the counsel of Saints, great and terrible over all that are round about him. {9} O Lord God of hosts, who is like to thee? Thou art mighty, o Lord, and thy truth round about thee. {10} Thou rulest over the power of the sea: and the moving of the waves thereof thou doest mitigate. {11} Thou humbledst the proud one, as one wounded: in the arm of thy strength thou hast dispersed thine enemies. {12} The heavens are thine, and the earth is thine, the round earth, and the fullness thereof thou hast founded: {13} the north and the sea thou hast created. Thabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name: {14} thy arm is with might. Let thy hand be confirmed, and thy right hand exalted: {15} justice and judgment is the preparation of thy seat. Mercy and truth shall go before thy face: {16} blessed is the people that knoweth jubilation. Lord they shall walk in the light of thy countenance, {17} and in thy name they shall rejoice all the day: and in thy justice they shall be exalted. {18} Because thou art the glory of their strength: and in thy good pleasure shall our horn be exalted. {19} Because our protection is of our Lord: and of the holy one of Israel our King. {20} Then didst thou speak in vision to thy Saints, and saidst: I have put help on the mighty one: & have exalted an elect one of my people. {21} I have found David my servant: with mine holy oil have I anointed him. {22} For mine hand shall help him: and mine arm shall strengthen him. {23} The enemy shall nothing prevail in him: and the son of iniquity shall not add to hurt him. {24} And I will cut down his enemies before his face: and them that hate him I will put to flight. {25} And my truth, and my mercy with him: and in my name shall his horn be exalted. {26} And I will put his hand in the sea: and his right hand in the rivers. {27} He shall invoke me: Thou art my Father: my God, and the protector of my Salvation. {28} And I will put him the first-begotten, high above the kings of the earth. {29} I will keep my mercy unto him for ever: and my testament faithful to him. {30} I will put his seed for ever and ever: and his throne as the days of heaven. {31} But if his children shall forsake my law: and will not walk in my judgments. {32} If they shall profane my justices: and not keep my commandments {33} I will visit their iniquities with a rod: and their sins with stripes. {34} But my mercy I will not take away from him: neither will I hurt in my truth. {35} Neither will I profane my testament: and the words that proceed from my mouth I will not make frustrate. {36} Once I have sworn in my holy, if I lie to David: {37} his seed shall continue for ever. {38} And his throne as the Sun in my sight, and as the Moon perfect for ever: and a faithful witness in heaven. {39} But thou hast repelled and despised: thou hast deferred thy Christ. {40} Thou hast overthrown the testament of thy servant: thou hast profaned his sanctuary on the earth. {41} Thou hast destroyed all the hedges thereof: thou hast made the firmament thereof fear. {42} All that pass by the way have spoiled him: he is become a reproach to his neighbours. {43} Thou hast exalted the right hand of them that oppress him: thou hast made all his enemies joyful. {44} Thou hast turned away the help of his sword: and hast not holpen him in battle. {45} Thou hast destroyed him from emundation: and his seat thou hast broken down to the ground. {46} Thou hast lessened the days of his time: thou hast overwhelmed him with confusion. {47} How long, o Lord, doest thou turn away for ever: shall thy wrath burn as a fire? {48} Remember what my substance is: for hast thou made all the children of men in vain? {49} Who is the man that shall live, and shall not see death: shall deliver his soul from the hand of hell? {50} Where are thine old mercies, o Lord, as thou swarest to David in thy truth? {51} Be mindful, o Lord, of the reproach of thy servants (which I have held in my bosom) of many nations. {52} Which thine enemies have reproached, o Lord, which they have reproached the commutation of thy Christ. {53} Blessed be our Lord for ever: Be it, be it.

Under the form of the prayer, the Psalmist describeth the shortness of man's life & other calamity: God's strict judgement, 13. but first his comfortable mercy, 16. and perpetual regard of his own work.

{1} A prayer of Moyses the man of God. Lord, thou art made a refuge for us: from generation unto generation. {2} Before the mountains were made, or the earth and the world formed, from everlasting even unto everlasting thou art God. {3} Turn not away man into humiliation: thou saidst: Be converted ye children of men. {4} Because a thousand years before thine eyes, are as yesterday that is past. And as a watch in the night, {5} things that are counted nothing shall their years be. {6} In the morning as an herb he shall pass, in the morning he shall flourish, and pass: in the evening he shall fall, be hardened, and withered. {7} Because we have fainted in thy wrath, and in thy fury we are troubled. {8} Thou hast put our iniquities in thy sight: our age in the light of thy countenance. {9} Because all our days have failed, and in thy wrath we have failed. Our years shall be considered as a spider: {10} the days of our years in them are seventy years. And if in strong ones eighty years: and the more of them, labour & sorrow. Because mildness is come upon us: and we shall be chastised. {11} Who knoweth the power of thy wrath: and for fear {12} to number thy wrath? So make thy right hand known: and men learned in heart, in wisdom. {13} Turn, o Lord, how long? And be entreated for thy servants. {14} We are replenished in the morning with thy mercy: and we have rejoiced, and art delighted all our days. {15} We have rejoiced for the days wherein thou hast humbled us: the years, wherein we have seen evils. {16} Look upon thy servants, and upon thy works: and direct their children. {17} And let the brightness of our Lord God be upon us, and direct thou the works of our hands over us: and the work of our hands do thou direct.

Whosoever faithfully and firmly trusteth in God's providence, is secure from all dangers of secret, subtle, and open enemies. 7. his adversaries shall come to ruin. 11. Angels shall defend him: 13. no kind of serpent, nor beast shall hurt him. God himself assureth him of his protection, and of eternal salvation.

{1} PRAISE of a Canticle to David. He that dwelleth in the help of the Highest, shall abide in the protection of the God of heaven. {2} He shall say to our Lord: Thou art my protector, and my refuge: my God I will hope in him. {3} Because he hath delivered me from the snare of the hunters, and from the sharp word. {4} With his shoulders shall he overshadow thee: and under his wings thou shalt hope. {5} With shield shall his truth compass thee: thou shalt not be afraid of the fear in the night. {6} Of the arrow flying in the day, of business walking in darkness: of invasion, and the midday devil. {7} A thousand shall fall on thy side, & ten thousand on thy right hand: but to thee it shall not approach. {8} But thou shalt consider with thine eyes: and shalt see the retribution of sinners. {9} Because thou o Lord art my hope: thou hast made the Highest thy refuge. {10} There shall no evil come to thee: and scourge shall not approach to thy tabernacle. {11} Because he hath given his Angels charge of thee: that they keep thee in all thy ways. {12} In their hands they shall bear thee: lest perhaps thou knock thy foot against a stone. {13} Upon the asp and the basiliscus thou shall walk: & thou shalt tread upon the lion, and the dragon. {14} Because he hath hoped in me, I will deliver him: I will protect him, because he hath known my name. {15} He shall cry to me, and I will hear him: with him I am in tribulation: I will deliver him, and will glorify him. {16} With length of days I will replenish him: and I will shew him my salvation.

God is by all manner of voices and instruments to be praised in his admirable works. 7. which the foolish not doing are punished; 11. and the wise are rewarded.

{1} A Psalm of Canticle, in the sabbath day. {2} sing to thy name, o Highest. It is good to confess to our Lord: and to {3} To shew forth thy mercy in the morning: and thy truth in the night. {4} In the instrument of ten strings, in Psalter: with Canticle, on the Harp. {5} Because thou hast delighted me, o Lord, in thy workmanship: and in the works of thy hands I will rejoice. {6} How are thy works magnified, o Lord! Thy cogitations are made very profound. {7} The unwise man will not know; and the fool will not understand these things. {8} When sinners shall spring up as grass: and all that work iniquity shall appear. That they may perish for ever: {9} but thou the Highest for ever, o Lord. {10} Because lo thine enemies, o Lord, because lo thine enemies shall perish: and all that work iniquity shall be dispersed. {11} And my horn shall be exalted, as the unicorn's: and my old age in plentiful mercy. {12} And mine eye hath looked upon mine enemies: and the malignant rising up against me, mine ears shall hear. {13} The just shall flourish as a palm tree: as the cedar of Libanus shall he be multiplied. {14} They that are planted in the house of our Lord, shall flourish in the courts of the house of our God. {15} As yet shall they be multiplied in plentiful old age: and they shall be well affected, {16} that they may shew forth: That the Lord our God is righteous, and there is no iniquity in him.

Christ reigneth for ever in his Church: 3. notwithstanding many and great persecution against the faithful.

{1} PRAISE of Canticle to David himself in the day before the sabbath, when the earth was founded. Our Lord hath reigned, he hath put on beauty: our Lord hath put on strength, and hath girded himself. For he hath established the round world, which shall not be moved. {2} Thy seat is prepared from that time: thou art from everlasting. {3} The rivers o Lord have lifted up: the rivers have lifted up their voice. The rivers have lifted up their waves, {4} above the voices of many waters. The surges of the sea are marvelous, marvelous is our Lord on high. {5} Thy testimonies are made credible exceedingly: holiness becometh thy house, o Lord for length of days.

The faithful servant of God assuredly professeth, that all the pride, 5. cruelty, 7. foolish imaginations, and secret thoughts of the wicked, are manifest to God. 12. Acknowledgeth himself happy, that he is better instructed of God: whereas he had otherwise been damned. 20. Sharply reprehendeth those that consider not of God's judgements: concluding that the just shall be glorified, and the wicked damned.

{1} TO David himself, in the fourth of the sabbath. Our Lord God of revenges: the God of revenges hath done freely. {2} Be exalted thou that judges the earth: render retribution to the proud. {3} How long shall sinners, o Lord: how long shall sinners glory? {4} Shall they utter, and speak iniquity? Shall all they speak that work injustice? {5} Thy people, o Lord, they have humbled: and thine inheritance they have vexed. {6} The widow, and the stranger they have slain: and the pupils they have killed. {7} And they have said: The Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob understand. {8} Understand ye foolish in the people: and ye fools be wise at sometime. {9} He that planted the ear, shall he not hear? Or he that made the eye doth he not consider? {10} He that chastiseth nations, shall he not rebuke: he that teacheth man knowledge? {11} Our Lord knoweth the cogitations of men: that they be vain. {12} Blessed is the man whom thou shalt instruct, o Lord, and shalt teach out of thy law. {13} That thou mayst give him quietness from the evil days: till a pit be digged for the sinner. {14} Because our Lord will not reject his people: and his inheritance he will not forsake. {15} Until justice be turned into judgment: and they who are near it, are all that are right of heart. {16} Who shall rise for me against the malignant? Or who shall stand with me against them that work iniquity? {17} But that our Lord hath holpen me: within very little my soul had dwelt in hell. {18} If I said: My foot is moved: thy mercy, o Lord, did help me. {19} According to the multitude of my sorrows in my heart: thy consolations have made my soul joyful. {20} Doth the seat of iniquity cleave to thee: which maketh labour in precept? {21} They will hunt after the soul of the just: and will condemn innocent blood. {22} And our Lord became my refuge: and my God the help of my hope. {23} And he will repay them their iniquity: and in their malice he will destroy them: the Lord our God will destroy them.

An invitation to serve and adore Christ our Lord and Messias, 3. as well for the benefits of creating all things, 7. as for his Incarnation, and not to harden our hearts as the Jews did.

{1} PRAISE of Canticle, to David himself. Come, let us rejoice to our Lord: let us make jubilation to God our saviour. {2} Let us prevent his face in confession: and in Psalms let us make jubilation to him. {3} Because our Lord is a great God: and a great King above all gods. {4} Because in his hand are the ends of the earth: and the heights of the mountains be his. {5} Because the sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land. {6} Come let us adore, and fall down: and weep before our Lord, that made us. {7} Because he is the Lord our God, and we the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. {8} To day if ye shall hear his voice, harden not your hearts. {9} As in the provocation according to the day of the temptation in the desert: where your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works. {10} Forty years was I offended with that generation, and said: These always err in heart. {11} And these have not known my ways: as I swear in my wrath: if they shall enter into my rest.

All peoples & nations are invited to praise the blessed Trinity, 3. for Christ's Incarnation, and spiritual kingdom in all the world. 10. even senseless creatures acknowledging his majesty, 13. and judicial power.

{1} A Canticle to David himself, when the house was built after the captivity. Sing ye to our Lord a new song: sing to our Lord all the earth. {2} Sing ye to our Lord, and bless his name: shew forth his salvation from day to day. {3} Shew forth his glory among the Gentiles, his marvelous works in all peoples. {4} Because our Lord is great, and exceeding laudable: he is terrible above all gods. {5} Because all the gods of the Gentiles are devils, but our Lord made the heavens. {6} Confession and beauty in his sight: holiness and magnificence in his sanctification. {7} Bring to our Lord ye families of Gentiles, bring ye to our Lord glory and honour: {8} bring to our Lord glory unto his name. Take up hosts, and enter into his courts: {9} adore ye our Lord in his holy court. Let all the earth be moved before his face: {10} Say ye among the Gentiles that our Lord hath reigned. For he hath corrected the round world, which shall not be moved: he will judge peoples in equity. {11} Let the heavens be glad, and the earth rejoice, the sea be moved, and the fullness thereof: {12} the fields shall be glad, and all things that are in them. Then shall the trees of the woods rejoice {13} before the face of our Lord, because he cometh: because he cometh to judge the earth. He will judge the round world in equity, and peoples in his truth.

All the earth is invited to rejoice in Christ's Kingdom, 3. with description of the signs coming before the day of Judgement. 7. Idolaters shall be confounded. 8. Holy Angels and just men shall adore Christ, and rejoice.

{1} TO this David, when his land was restored again to him. Our Lord hath reigned, let the earth rejoice: let many Islands be glad. {2} Cloud and mist round about him: justice and judgment the correction of his seat. {3} Fire shall go before him, and shall inflame his enemies round about. {4} His lightnings shined to the round world, the earth saw: and was moved. {5} The mountains melted as wax, before the face of our Lord: before the face of our Lord all the earth. {6} The heavens have shewed forth his justice: and all peoples have seen his glory. {7} Let them all be confounded, that adore sculptiles: and that glory in their idols. Adore him all ye his Angels: {8} Sion heard, and was glad. And the daughters of Juda rejoiced, because of thy judgments, o Lord. {9} Because thou Lord most high over all the earth: thou art exalted exceedingly above all gods. {10} You that love our Lord, hate ye evil, our Lord keepeth the souls of his saints, out of the hand of the sinner he will deliver them. {11} Light is risen to the just, and joy to the right of heart. {12} Be glad ye just in our Lord: and confess ye to the memory of his sanctification.

All men are again invited joyfully to celebrate the marvelous conquest of Christ in all nations, 4. with harp, voice, and instruments: 8. all creatures acknowledging his coming to judge the world.

{1} A Psalm to David himself. Sing ye to our Lord a new song: because he hath done marvelous things. His right hand hath wrought salvation to himself: and his arm is holy. {2} Our Lord hath made known his salvation: in the sight of the Gentiles he hath revealed his justice. {3} He hath remembered his mercy, and his truth to the house of Israel. All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. {4} Make ye jubilation to God all the earth: chant, and rejoice, and sing. {5} Sing to our Lord on harp, on harp and voice of Psalm: {6} on long drawn trumpets, and voice of cornet of horn. Make jubilation in the sight of the King our Lord: {7} let the sea be moved, and the fullness thereof: the round world, and they that dwell therein. {8} The rivers shall clap with hand: the mountains together shall rejoice {9} at the sight of our Lord: because he cometh to judge the earth. He will judge the round earth in justice, and the peoples in equity.

Christ reigneth, notwithstanding his enemies repine, is adored (5. also his foot stool) 6. whom ancient Prophets did invocate.

{1} A Psalm to David himself. Our Lord hath reigned, let peoples be angry: he that sitteth upon the Cherubs, let the earth be moved. {2} Our Lord great in Sion: and high above all peoples. {3} Let them confess to thy great name: because it is terrible and holy. {4}

And the honour of the King loveth judgment. Thou hast prepared directions: thou hast done judgment and justice in Jacob. {5} Exalt ye the Lord our God, and adore his foot-stool: because it is holy. {6} Moyses and Aaron in his Priests: and Samuel among them that invoke his name: They invoked our Lord and he heard them: {7} in a pillar of a cloud he spake to them. They kept his testimonies, & the precept which he gave them. {8} O Lord our God thou heardest them: God thou wast propitious to them, and taking vengeance upon all their inventions. {9} Exalt ye the Lord our God, and adore ye in his holy mount: because the Lord our God is holy.

All are invited to rejoice in God, Creator of all.

{1} A Psalm in confession, to God all the earth: serve ye our Lord in gladness. Enter ye in before his sight, in {2} Make ye jubilation exultation. {3} Know ye that our Lord he is God: he made us, & not we our selves. His people, and the sheep of his pasture: {4} enter ye into his gates in confession, his courts in hymns, confess ye to him. Praise ye his name: {5} because our Lord is sweet, his mercy for ever, and his truth even unto generation and generation.

King David gratefully celebrateth the two general divine virtues, Mercy and Justice: 2. by his own example exhorteth all, especially superiors, to direct their ways in sincerity, 4. and to separate the wicked from conversation of the good.

{1} A Psalm to David himself. Mercy and judgment I will sing to thee, o Lord: I will sing, {2} and I shall understand in the immaculate way, when thou shalt come to me. I walked through in the innocence of my heart, in the midst of my house. {3} I did not propose before mine eyes any unjust thing: I hated them that do prevarication. {4} A perverse heart hath not cleaved to me: the malignant declining from me I knew not. {5} One secretly detracting from his neighbour, him did I persecute. One of a proud eye, and unsatiable heart, with him I did not eat. {6} Mine eyes are towards the faithful of the earth that they may sit with me. A man that walketh in the immaculate way he did minister to me. {7} He that doth proudly shall not dwell in the midst of my house: he that speaketh unjust things, hath not directed in the sight of mine eyes. {8} In the morning did I kill all the sinners of the earth: that I might destroy out of the city of our Lord all those that work iniquity.

J A sinner in affliction of mind prayeth God to deliver him, 10. desolate of all other help. 13. Conceiveth comfort in God's eternal goodness, and singular mercy, in redeeming mankind, and propagating the Church. 24. Prayeth to be made mature in virtue before he die, that he may live with God: 26. Who only and wholly being immutable, establisheth his servants for ever.

{1} THE prayer of the poor, when he shall be anxious, and shall make his petition before our Lord. {2} Lord hear my prayer: and let my cry come to thee. {3} Turn not away thy face from me: in what day soever I am in tribulation, incline thine ear to me. In what day soever I shall invoke thee, hear me speedily. {4} Because my days have vanished as smoke: and my bones are withered as a dry burnt firebrand. {5} I am stricken as grass, and my heart is withered: because I have forgotten to eat my bread. {6} For the voice of my groaning, my bone hath cleaved to my flesh. {7} I am become like a pelican of the wilderness: I am become as a night crow in the house. {8} I have watched, and am become as a sparrow solitary in the house-top. {9} All the day did mine enemies upbraid me: and they that praised me sware against me. {10} Because I did eat ashes as bread, & mingled my drink with weeping. {11} At the face of thy wrath and indignation: because lifting me up thou hast thrown me down. {12} My days have declined as a shadow: and I am withered as grass. {13} But thou o

Lord endurest for ever: and thy memorial in generation and generation. {14} Thou rising up shalt have mercy on Sion: because it is time to have mercy on it, because the time cometh. {15} Because the stones thereof have pleased thy servants: and they shall have pity on the earth thereof. {16} And the Gentiles shall fear thy name o Lord, and all the kings of the earth thy glory. {17} Because our Lord hath built Sion: and he shall be seen in his glory. {18} He hath had respect to the prayer of the humble: and he hath not despised their petition. {19} Let these things be written unto an other generation: and the people that shall be created shall praise our Lord. {20} Because he hath looked forth from his high holy place: our Lord from heaven hath looked upon the earth. {21} That he might hear the groanings of the fettered: that he might loose the children of them that are slain: {22} That they may shew forth the name of our Lord in Sion: and his praise Jerusalem. {23} In the assembling of the people together in one, and kings to serve our Lord. {24} He answered him in the way of his strength: Shew me the feyness of my days. {25} Call me not back in the half of my days: thy years are unto generation and generation. {26} In the beginning, o Lord, thou didst found the earth: and the heavens are the works of thy hands. {27} They shall perish, but thou are permanent: and they shall all wax old as a garment. And as a vesture thou shalt change them, and they shall be changed: {28} but thou art the self-same, and thy years shall not fail. {29} The children of thy servants shall inhabit: and their seed shall be directed for ever.

Thanks to God for private 6. and public benefits. 17. His mercy, justice, and other properties are immutable. 20. Angels and all other creatures are invited to praise him.

{1} TO David himself. My soul bless thou our Lord: and all things, that are within me, his holy name. {2} My soul bless thou our Lord: and forget not all his retributions. {3} Who is propitious to all thine iniquities: who healeth all thine infirmities. {4} Who redemeth thy life from deadly falling: who crowneth thee in mercy and commiserations. {5} Who replenisheth thy desire in good things: thy youth shall be renewed as the eagle's. {6} Our Lord doth mercies: and judgment to all that suffer wrong. {7} He made his ways known to Moyses, his wills to the children of Israel. {8} Our Lord is pitiful, and merciful: long suffering, and very merciful. {9} He will not be angry always: neither will he threaten for ever. {10} He hath not done to us according to our sins: neither according to our iniquities hath he rewarded us. {11} For according to the height of heaven from the earth: hath he strengthened his mercy upon them that fear him. {12} As far as the East is distant from the West: hath he made our iniquities far from us. {13} As a father hath compassion of his children, so hath our Lord compassion on them that fear him: {14} because he hath known our making. He remembered that we are dust: {15} man, his days are as grass, as the flower of the field, so shall he flourish. {16} Because the spirit shall pass in him, and he shall not stand: and he shall know his place no more. {17} But the mercy of our Lord from everlasting, and unto everlasting upon them that fear him. And his justice is upon the children's children, to them that keep his testament. {18} And are mindful of his commandments to do them. {19} Our Lord hath prepared his seat in heaven: and his Kingdom shall have dominion over all. {20} Bless our Lord all ye his Angels: mighty in power, doing his word, that fear the voice of his words. {21} Bless our Lord all ye his hosts: you his ministers, that do his will. {22} Bless ye our Lord all his works: in every place of his dominion, my soul bless thou our Lord.

The Psalmist inviteth himself and others to praise God, for his marvelous works in the heavens, 5. the earth, and water, 9. limiting their bonds, producing all things necessary for all living creatures, in convenient seasons. 27. With continual providence of all.

{1} TO David himself. My soul bless thou our Lord: o Lord my God thou art magnified exceedingly. {2} Thou hast put on confession and beauty: being clothed with light as with a garment. Stretching out the heaven as a skin: {3} which coverest the higher parts thereof with waters. Which makest the cloud for thee to ascend on: which walkest upon the wings of winds. {4} Which makest spirits thine Angels: and thy ministers a burning fire. {5} Which hast founded the earth upon the stability thereof: it shall not be inclined for ever and ever. {6} The depth as a garment is his clothing: upon the mountains shall waters stand. {7} At thy reprobation they shall fly: at the voice of thy thunder they shall fear. {8} The mountains ascend: and the plain fields descend into the place, which thou hast founded for them. {9} Thou hast set a bound, which they shall not pass over: neither shall they return to cover the earth. {10} Which sendest forth fountains in the valleys: between the midst of mountains shall waters pass. {11} All the beasts of the field shall drink: the wild asses shall expect in their thirst. {12} Over them shall the fowls of the air inhabit: out of the midst of rocks they shall give forth voices. {13} Watering the mountains from higher places: of the fruit of thy work shall the earth be filled. {14} Bringing forth grass for beasts, and herb for the service of men. That thou mayst bring forth bread out of the earth: {15} & wine may make the heart of man joyful. That he may make the face cheerful with oil: and bread may confirm the heart of man. {16} The trees of the field shall be filled, and the cedars of Libanus, which he hath planted: {17} there, sparrows shall make their nest. The house of the heron is the leader of them: {18} the high mountains for harts: the rock a refuge for the Irchins. {19} He made the moon for seasons: the sun knoweth his going down. {20} Thou didst appoint darkness, and night was made: in it shall all the beasts of the wood pass. {21} The whelps of lions roaring, to raven, and to seek of God meat for themselves. {22} The sun is risen, & they are gathered together: and in their couches they shall be placed. {23} Man shall go forth to his work: and to his working until evening. {24} How magnified are thy works, o Lord! Thou hast made all things in wisdom: the earth is filled with thy possession. {25} This great sea, and very large, there are creeping beasts, whereof there is no number. Little beasts with great: {26} there ships shall pass. This dragon, whom thou madest to delude: {27} all expect of thee that thou give them meat in season. {28} Thou giving unto them, they shall gather it: thou opening thy hand, all shall be filled with bounty. {29} But thou turning away the face, they shall be troubled: thou shalt take away their spirit, and they shall fail, and shall return into their dust. {30} Thou shalt send forth thy spirit, and they shall be created: and thou shalt renew the face of the earth. {31} Be the glory of our Lord for ever: our Lord will rejoice in his works. {32} Who looketh upon the earth, & maketh it to tremble: who toucheth the mountains, and they smoke. {33} I will chant to our Lord in my life: I will sing to my God as long as I am. {34} Let my speech be acceptable to him: but I will take delight in our Lord. {35} Let sinners fail from the earth, and the unjust, so that they be not: my soul bless thou our Lord.

The Israelites are exhorted to sing praises to God, 5. for his marvelous benefits towards Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 11. Whose particular family, being then small, went from Chanaan into Aegypt. (17. Whither Joseph by God's providence was carried before) there increased in number was persecuted, 26. delivered by Moyses and Aaron, working many great miracles, 36. protected, and fed in the desert, 44. and finally possessed Chanaan.

{1} ALLELUIA. Confess ye to our Lord, and invoke his name: shew forth his works among the Gentiles. {2} Chant to him, and sing to him: tell ye all his marvelous works. {3} Praise ye him in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek our Lord. {4} Seek ye our Lord, and be confirmed: seek his face always. {5} Remember ye his marvelous works, which he hath done: his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth. {6} The seed of Abraham his servants: the children of Jacob his elect. {7} He is the Lord our God: in all the earth are his judgments. {8} He hath been mindful for ever of his testament; of the word which he commanded unto a thousand generations. {9} Which he disposed to Abraham: and of his oath to Isaac. {10} And he appointed it to Jacob for a precept: and to Israel for an eternal testament. {11} saying: To thee will I give the land of Chanaan, the cord of your inheritance. {12} When they were of small number, very few and sojourners thereof: {13} And they passed from nation into nation, & from Kingdom to an other people. {14} He left not a man to hurt them: and he rebuked kings for their sake: {15} Touch not my anointed, and toward my Prophets be not malignant. {16} And he called a famine upon the land: and he destroyed all the strength of bread. {17} He sent a man before them: Joseph was sold to be a servant. {18} They humbled his feet in fetters, iron passed through his soul, {19} until his word came. The word of our Lord inflamed him: {20} the king sent, and loosed him; the Prince of the people, and released him. {21} He appointed him lord of his house: and Prince of all his possession. {22} That he might instruct his Princes as himself: and might teach his ancients wisdom. {23} And Israel entered into Aegypt, and Jacob was a sojourner in the land of Cham. {24} And he increased his people exceedingly: and strengthened them over their enemies. {25} He turned their heart that they hated his people: and to work guile toward his servants. {26} He sent Moyses his servant: Aaron himself whom he chose. {27} He did put in them the words of his signs, and of his wonders in the Land of Cham. {28} He sent darkness, and obscured: and did not exasperate his words. {29} He turned their waters into blood: and killed their fishes. {30} Their land brought forth frogs in the inner chambers of their kings. {31} He said, and the caenomyia came: and the sciniphs in all their coasts. {32} He made their rains hail: fire burning in their land. {33} And he struck their vines, and their fig-trees: and he destroyed the wood of their coasts. {34} He said, & the locust came, & the bruchus whereof there was no number. {35} And it did eat all the grass in their land: and it did eat all the fruit of their land. {36} And he struck every first begotten in their land: the first fruits of all their labour. {37} And he brought them forth with gold and silver, {610} and there was not in their tribes a feeble person. {38} Aegypt was glad at their departure: because the fear of them lay upon them. {39} He spread a cloud for their protection, and fire to shine unto them by night. {40} They made petition, and the quail came: and he filled them with the bread of heaven. {41} He divided the rock, and waters flowed: rivers ran in the dry ground. {42} Because he was mindful of his holy word, which he had uttered to Abraham his servant. {43} And he brought forth his people in exultation, and his elect in joy. {44} And he gave them the countries of the Nations: and they possessed the labours of peoples: {45} That they might keep his justifications, and seek after his law.

The Prophet exhortheth the people to render thanks and praise to God, 6. for remitting their manifold sins, in the desert. 34. and in the conquered land: 38. foreshewing like sins to come, God's wrath and punishment for the same. 44. & that he will give grace of repentance to some 47. for which he prayeth and praiseth God.

{1} ALLELUIA. Confess ye to our Lord because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. {2} Who shall speak the powers of our Lord, shall make all his praises to be heard? {3} Blessed are they, that keep judgment, & do justice at all time. {4} Remember us, o Lord in the good pleasure of thy people: visit us in thy salvation: {5} To see in the goodness of thine elect, to rejoice in the joy of thy nation: that thou mayst be praised with thine inheritance. {6} We have sinned with our fathers: we have dealt unjustly, we have done iniquity. {7} Our fathers in Aegypt did not understand thy marvelous works: they were not mindful of the multitude of thy mercy. And they provoked thee to wrath going up unto the sea, the Red sea. {8} And he saved them for his name sake; that he might make his power known. {9} And he rebuked the Red sea, and it was made dry: and he led them in the depths as in a desert. {10} And he saved them from the hand of them that hated them: and he redeemed them out of the hand of the enemy. {11} And water overwhelmed those that afflicted them: there did not one of them remain. {12} And they believed his words: and they sang his praises. {13} They had quickly done, they forgot his works: and they expected not his counsel. {14} And they coveted concupiscence in the desert: and tempted God in the place without water. {15} He gave them their petition: and sent satyrity into their souls. {16} And they provoked Moyses in the camp: Aaron the holy of our Lord. {17} The earth was opened, and swallowed Dathan, and overwhelmed the congregation of Abiron. {18} And a fire flamed up in their synagogue: the flame burnt the sinners. {19} And they made a calf in Horeb: and they adored the sculptile. {20} And they changed their glory into the similitude of a calf that eateth grass. {21} They forgoat God, which saved them, which did great things in Aegypt, {22} marvelous things in the land of Cham, terrible things in the Red sea. {23} And he said to destroy them: if Moyses his elect had not stood in the way before him. To turn away his wrath that he should not destroy them: {24} and they esteemed for naught the land that was to be desired. They did not believe his word. {25} and they murmured in their tabernacles: they heard not the voice of our Lord. {26} And he lifted up his hand over them: to overthrow them in the desert: {27} And to cast down their seed among the Nations: & to disperse them in the countries. {28} And they were professed to Beelphegor: and they did eat the sacrifices of the dead. {29} And they provoked him in their inventions: & ruin was multiplied on them. {30} And Phinees stood, and pacified: and the slaughter ceased. {31} And it was reputed to him unto justice, in generation and generation even for ever. {32} And they provoked him at the waters of contradiction: and Moyses was vexed for them: {33} because they exasperated his spirit. And he plainly affirmed in his lips: {34} they destroyed not the nations, of which our Lord spake to them. {35} And they were mingled among the nations, and learned their works: {36} and they served their sculptiles: and it became a scandal to them. {37} And they immolated their sons, and their daughters to devils. {38} And they shed innocent blood: the blood of their sons and of their daughters, which they sacrificed to the sculptiles of Chanaan. And the land was infected with blood, {39} & was contaminated in their works: and they did fornicate in their inventions. {40} And our Lord was wrath with fury upon his people: and he abhorred his inheritance. {41} And he delivered them into the hands of the nations: and they that hated them had the dominion of them. {42} And their enemies afflicted them, and they were humbled under their hands: {43} he did often deliver them. But they exasperated him in their counsel: and they were humbled in their iniquities. {44} And he saw when they were afflicted: and he heard their prayer. {45} And he was mindful of his testament: and it repented him according to the multitude of his mercy. {46} And he gave them into mercies in the sight of all, that had taken them. {47} Save us, o Lord our God: and gather us out of the Nations. That we may confess to thy holy name: & may glory in thy praise. {48} Blessed be our Lord the God of Israel from everlasting unto everlasting: and all the people shall say: Be it, be it.

Again the Psalmist inviteth all men to render thanks to God for their delivery from dangers, or evils in general: 4. particularly from dangers in journey, 10. in prison or captivity, 17. in sickness spiritual and corporal, 23. in navigation, 33. describing the changeable course of things in this world, 38. especially of men's states; 42. for all which the just will praise God.

{1} ALLELUIA. Confess ye to our Lord, because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. {2} Let them say that are redeemed of our Lord, whom he redeemed out of the hand of the enemy: and out of the countries he gathered them: {3} From the rising of the sun, and the going down: from the north, and the sea. {4} They wandered in the wilderness, in a place without water: the way of city for habitation they found not. {5} Hungry and thirsty: their soul fainted in them. {6} And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he delivered them out of their necessities. {7} And he conducted them into the right way: to go into a city of habitation. {8} Let the mercies of our Lord confess to him: and his marvelous works to the children of men. {9} Because he hath filled the empty soul: and the hungry soul he hath filled with good things. {10} Them that sat in darkness, and in the shadow of death: bound in neediness, and iron. {11} Because they exasperated the words of God: and they provoked the counsel of the Highest. {12} And their heart was humbled in labours: they were weakened, neither was there any to help. {13} And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he delivered them out of their necessities. {14} And he brought them out of darkness, and the shadow of death: and brake their bonds asunder. {15} Let the mercies of our Lord confess to him: & his marvelous works to the children of men. {16} Because he hath destroyed the gates of brass; and the bars of iron he hath broken. {17} He hath received them out of the way of their iniquity: for they were humbled for their injustices. {18} Their soul did abhor all meat: & they approached even to the gates of death. {19} And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation: and he delivered them out of their necessities. {20} He sent his word, and healed them: and delivered them out of their destructions. {21} Let the mercies of our Lord confess to him: & his marvellous works to the children of men. {22} And let them sacrifice the sacrifice of praise: & shew forth his works in exultation. {23} They that go down into the sea in ships, making traffic in the great waters. {24} They have seen the works of our Lord, and his marvelous things in the depth. {25} He said, and the blast of the storm stood: and the waves thereof were exalted. {26} They ascend even to the heavens, {612} and they descend even to the depths: their soul pined away in evils. {27} They were troubled, and were moved as a drunken man: and all their wisdom was devoured. {28} And they cried to our Lord when they were in tribulation, and he brought them out of their necessities. {29} And he turned his storm into calm: & the waves thereof were quiet. {30} And they rejoiced because they were quiet: and he conducted them into the haven of their will. {31} Let the mercies of our Lord confess to him: and his marvelous works to the children of men. {32} And let them exalt him in the Church of the people: and the chair of the ancients let them praise him. {33} He turned the rivers into a desert: and the issues of waters into dryness. {34} The fruitful land into a salt ground, for the malice of them that inhabit it. {35} He turned the desert into pools of waters: and the land without water into issues of waters. {36} And he placed the hungry there, and they built a city of habitation. {37} And they sowed fields and planted vineyards: and they made fruit of nativity. {38} And he blessed them, and they were multiplied exceedingly: and their beasts he lessened not. {39} And they were made few: and were vexed by the tribulation of evils, and with sorrow. {40} Contempt was poured out upon Princes: and he made them wander where was no way, and not in the way. {41} And he did help the poor out of poverty: and made families as sheep. {42} The just shall see, and shall rejoice: & all iniquity shall stop her mouth. {43} Who is wise and will keep these things? And will understand the mercies of our Lord?

The royal Prophet promiseth, 5. and rendereth praises to God, 7. for his delivery from troubles, and advancement in the kingdom, 13. praying God still to help man's infirmity.

{1} A canticle of Psalm, to David himself. {2} ready: I will chant and will sing in my My heart is ready, o God, my heart is glory. {3} Arise my glory, arise psalter and harp: I will arise early. {4} I will confess to thee in peoples, o Lord: and I will sing to thee in the Nations. {5} Because thy mercy is great above the heavens: & thy truth even to the clouds. {6} Be exalted above the heavens o God, and thy glory over all the earth: {7} that thy beloved may be delivered. Save with thy right hand, and hear me: {8} God spake in his holy: I will rejoice, and will divide Sichem, and I will measure the vale of tabernacles. {9} Galaad is mine, and Manasses is mine: and Ephraim the protection of my head. Juda is my king: {10} Moab the pot of my hope. Upon Idumea I will extend my shoe: the strangers are made my friends. {11} Who will conduct me into a fenced city? Who will conduct me into Idumea? {12} Wilt not thou, o God, which hast repelled us, and wilt not thou go forth, o God, in our hosts? {13} Give us help out of tribulation: because man's salvation is vain. {14} In God we shall do strength: and he will bring our enemies to nothing.

Christ (by the mouth of David) requesteth of God to be justly declared innocent, and his enemies punished, 6. particularly describing Judas the traitor's malice, 21. and his own temporal afflictions: 26. prayeth, 30. and praiseth God for his delivery.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David. conceal not my praise: because the mouth of the sinner, and the mouth of the {2} O God deceitful man is open upon me. {3} They have spoken against me with deceitful tongue, and with words of hatred they have compassed me: and they have impugned me without cause. {4} For that they should love me, they backbited me: but I prayed. {5} And they set against me evil things for good: and hatred for my love. {6} Appoint a sinner over him: and let the devil stand on his right hand. {7} When he is judged, let him come forth condemned: and let his prayer be turned into sin. {8} Let his days be made few: and let an other take his bishoprick. {9} Let his children be made orphans: and his wife a widow. {10} Let his children be transported wandering, and let them beg: and let them be cast out of their habitations. {11} Let the usurer search all his substance: and let strangers spoil his labours. {12} Let there be none to help him: neither let there be any to have pity on his pupils. {13} Let his children come to destruction: in one generation let his name be clean put out. {14} Let the iniquity of his fathers return to memory in the sight of our Lord: and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out. {15} Let them be before our Lord always, and let the memory of them perish out of the earth: {16} For that he remembered not to do mercy. {17} And he persecuted the poor, and needy man, and the compunct in heart to kill him. {18} And he loved cursing, and it shall come to him: and he would not blessing, and it shall be far from him. And he put on cursing as a garment, and it entered as water into his inner parts, and as oil in his bones. {19} Be it to him as a garment, wherewith he is covered: and as a girdle, wherewith he is always girded. {20} This is the work of them that detract from me before our Lord: and that speak evils against my soul. {21} And thou Lord, Lord, do with me for thy name's sake: because thy mercy is sweet. Deliver me {22} because I am needy and poor: and my heart is troubled within me. {23} As a shadow when it declineth, am I taken away: and I am shaken as locusts. {24} My knees are weakened with fasting: and my flesh is changed by reason of oil. {25} And I am made a reproach to them: they saw me, and wagged their heads. {26} Help me, o Lord my God: save me according to thy mercy. {27} And let them know that this is thy hand: & thou, o Lord, hast done it. {28} They will curse, and thou shalt bless: let them that rise up against me be confounded: but thy servant shall rejoice. {29} Let them that detract from me, be clothed with shame: and let them be covered with their confusion, as with a double patched cloak. {30} I will confess to our Lord exceedingly with my mouth: and in the midst of many I will praise him. {31} Because he hath stood on the right hand of the poor, that he might save my soul from the persecutors.

Christ rising and ascending into heaven sitteth on the right hand of God: 2. beginning in Jerusalem reigneth in the Church of the whole earth: 4. useth the Priesthood of Melchisedech's order to the end of the world. 6. And shall judge the world.

{1} A Psalm of David. Our Lord said to my Lord: Sit on my right hand: till I make thine enemies, the foot-stool of thy feet. {2} Our Lord will send forth the rod of thy strength from Sion: rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. {3} With thee the beginning in the day of thy strength: in the brightness of holy things: from the womb before the day star I begat thee. {4} Our Lord sware, and it shall not repent him: Thou art a Priest for ever according to the order of Melchisedech. {5} Our Lord on thy righthand hath broken kings in the day of his wrath. {6} He shall judge in nations, he shall fill ruins, he shall crush the heads in the land of many. {7} Of the torrent in the way he shall drink: therefore shall he exalt the head.

Praise of God for benefits, 4. especially for the B. Sacrament of the Eucharist, 6. with other graces imparted to the Catholic Church.

{1} ALLELUIA. I will confess to thee, o Lord, with all my heart: in the counsel of the just, and the congregation. {2} The works of our Lord are great: exquisite according to all his wills. {3} Confession and magnificence his work: and his justice continueth for ever and ever. {4} He hath made a memory of his marvelous works; a merciful & pitiful Lord: {5} he hath given meat to them that fear him. He will be mindful for ever of his testament: {6} the force of his works he will shew forth to his peoples: {7} To give them the inheritance of the gentiles: the works of his hands truth and judgment. {8} All his commandments are faithful: confirmed for ever and ever, made in truth and equity. {9} He sent redemption to his people: he commanded his testament for ever. Holy and terrible is his name: {10} the fear of our Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Understanding is good to all that do it: his praise remaineth for ever and ever.

True happiness consisteth in fearing God, keeping his commandments, 5. and in doing works of mercy. 10. The contrary bringeth to misery.

{1} ALLELUIA. Of the return of Aggeus and Zachary. Blessed is the man that feareth our Lord: he shall have great delight in his commandments. {2} His seed shall be mighty in the earth: the generation of the righteous shall be blessed. {3} Glory and riches in his house: and his justice abideth for ever and ever. {4} Light is risen up in darkness to the righteous: he is merciful, and pitiful, and just. {5} Acceptable is the man, that is merciful and lendeth, that shall dispose his words in judgment: {6} Because he shall not be moved for ever. {7} The just shall be in eternal memory: he shall not fear at the hearing of evil. His heart is ready to hope in our Lord, {8} his heart is confirmed: he shall not be moved till he look over his enemies. {9} He distributed, he gave to the poor: his justice remaineth for ever and ever, his horn shall be exalted in glory. {10} The sinner shall see, and will be angry, he shall gnash his teeth and pine away: the desire of sinners shall perish.

God is to be praised, who being high, regardeth and provideth for the needy in this world.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise our Lord ye children: praise ye the name of our Lord, name of our Lord blessed, from henceforth {2} Be the now and for ever, {3} From the rising of the sun unto the going down, the name of our Lord is laudable. {4} Our Lord is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens. {5} Who is as the Lord our God, that dwelleth on high, {6} and beholde the low things in heaven and in earth? {7} Raising up the needy from the earth, and lifting up the poor out of the dung: {8} To place him with Princes, with the Princes of his people. {9} Who maketh the barren woman to dwell in a house, a joyful mother of children.

For the marvelous passage of Israel out of Aegypt, 3. the red sea, the river of Jordan, 7. and the hills giving them place, 8. the rocks yielding them water, 9. God, not themselves, is to be praised. 12. Idols and Idolaters are vain, and shall be confounded. 17. The faithful trust in God. 20. are blessed, and for ever praise God.

{1} ALLELUIA. In the coming forth of Israel out of Aegypt: of the house of Jacob from the barbarous people. {2} Jewry was made his sanctification, Israel his dominion. {3} The sea saw, and fled: Jordan was turned backward. {4} The mountains leaped as rams: and the little hills as the lambs of sheep. {5} What aileth thee o sea that thou didst fly: and thou o Jordan, that thou was turned backward. {6} Ye mountains leaped as rams, and ye little hills as the lambs of sheep. {7} At the face of our Lord was the earth moved, at the face of the God of Jacob. {8} Who turned the rock into pools of waters, and stony hill into fountains of waters. {9} NOT TO US O LORD, NOT TO US: but to thy name give the glory. {10} For thy mercy, and thy truth: lest at any time the Gentiles say: Where is their God? {11} But our God is in heaven: he hath done all things what soever he would. {12} The idols of the gentiles are silver, and gold, the works of men's hands. {13} They have mouth, and shall not speak: they have eyes, an shall not see. {14} They have ears, and shall not hear: they have nostrils and shall not smell. {15} They have hands, and shall not handle: they have feet, and shall not walk: they shall not cry in their throat. {16} Let them that make them become like to them: and all that have confidence in them. {17} The house of Israel hath hoped in our Lord: he is their helper and their protector. {18} The house of Aaron hath hoped in our Lord: he is their helper and their protector. {19} They that fear our Lord have hoped in our Lord; he is their helper and their protector. {20} Our Lord hath been mindful of us: and hath blessed us. He hath blessed the house of Israel: he hath blessed the house of Aaron. {21} He hath blessed all that fear our Lord, the little with the great. {22} Our Lord add upon you: upon you, & upon your children. {23} Blessed be you of our Lord, which made heaven and earth. {24} The heaven of heaven is to our Lord: but the earth he hath given to the children of men. {25} The dead shall not praise thee, o Lord: nor all they that go down into hell: {26} but we that live do bless our Lord, from this time, and for ever.

The prayer of a just man in tribulation, with confidence and gratitude towards God.

{1} ALLELUIA. I have loved, because our Lord will hear the voice of my prayer. {2} Because he hath inclined his ear to me: and in my days I will invoke. {3} The sorrows of death have compassed me: and the perils of hell have found me. I have found tribulation and sorrow: {4} and I invoked the name of our Lord. O Lord deliver my soul: {5} our Lord is merciful, and just, and our God doth mercy. {6} Our Lord keepeth little ones: I was humbled, and he hath delivered me. {7} Turn o my soul into thy rest: because our Lord hath done good to thee. {8} Because he hath delivered my soul from death: mine eyes from tears, my feet from sliding. {9} I will please our Lord in the country of the living.

A just man acknowledging that spiritual life beginneth by faith, and by public profession thereof, 4. gratefully accepteth of Christ's Redemption, 5. dedicateth his life and all he hath to God's service.

{1} ALLELUIA. I believed for which cause I spake: but I was humbled exceedingly. {2} I said in mine excess: Every man is a liar. {3} What shall I render to our Lord, for all things that he hath rendered to me? {4} I will take the chalice of salvation: and I will invocate the name of our Lord. {5} I will render my vows to our Lord before all his people: {6} precious in the sight of our Lord is the death of his Saints. {7} O Lord because I am thy servant: I am thy servant, and the son of thy handmaid. Thou hast broken my bonds: {8} I will sacrifice to thee the host of praise, and I will invocate the name of our Lord. {9} I will render my vows to our Lord in the sight of all his people: {10} in the courts of the house of our Lord, in the midst of thee, o Jerusalem.

Psalm 116

God's mercy is largely extended to all Gentiles by Christ, and his promise withal is performed to the Jews.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise our Lord all ye Gentiles: praise him all ye peoples. {2} Because his mercy is confirmed, upon us: and his truth remaineth for ever.

Faithful people collected in the Church of Christ, exhort each other to render thanks to God, for their delivery from spiritual and temporal tribulations. 16. The Laity demand participation of Christ's Mysteries, promising to serve him duly: 25. Which the Pastors freely impart, and together with the people, solemnly celebrate God's praise.

{1} ALLELUIA. Confess ye to our Lord because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. {2} Let Israel now say that he is good: that his mercy is for ever. {3} Let the house of Aaron now say: that his mercy is for ever. {4} Let them now say which fear our Lord: that his mercy is for ever. {5} From tribulation I invocated our Lord: and our Lord heard me in largeness. {6} Our Lord is my helper: I will not fear what man can do to me. {7} Our Lord is my helper: and I will look over mine enemies. {8} It is good to hope in our Lord, rather than to hope in man. {9} It is good to hope in our Lord, rather than to hope in Princes. {10} All nations have compassed me: and in the name of our Lord am I revenged on them. {11} Compassing they have compassed me: and in the name of our Lord I was revenged on them. {12} They compassed me as bees, and were inflamed as fire in thorns: and in the name of our Lord I was revenged on them. {13} Being thrust, I was overturned to fall: and our Lord received me. {14} Our Lord is my strength, and my praise: and he is made my salvation. {15} The voice of exultation, and of salvation in the tabernacles of the just. {16} The right hand of our Lord hath wrought strength: the right hand of our Lord hath exalted me, the right hand of our Lord hath wrought strength. {17} I shall not die, but shall live: and I will tell the works of our Lord. {18} Our Lord chastising hath chastised me: and to death he hath not delivered me. {19} Open ye the gates of justice to me, being entered into them I will confess to our Lord: {20} this is the gate of our Lord, the just shall enter into it. {21} I will confess to thee because thou hast heard me: and art become my salvation. {22} The stone, which the builders rejected: the same is made into the head of the corner. {23} This was done by our Lord: and it is marvelous in our eyes. {24} This is the day, which our Lord made: let us rejoice, and be glad therein. {25} O Lord save me, o Lord give good success: Blessed be he that cometh in the name of our Lord. {26} We have blessed you of the house of our Lord: {27} our Lord is God, and he hath given light to us. Appoint a solemn day with thick boughs, even to the horn of the altar. {28} Thou art my God, and I will confess to thee: thou art my God, and I will exalt thee. I will confess to thee because thou hast heard me: and art become my salvation. {29} Confess ye to our Lord because he is good: because his mercy is for ever.

A perpetual recommendation of the singular excellency, absolute necessity, and eternal heavenly profit of God's law: with frequent aspirations to perfection, hatred of sin, love of virtue, and fervent desire to rest in God.

{1} ALLELUIA. Aleph. Doctrine. Blessed are the immaculate in the way: which walk in the law of our Lord. {2} Blessed are they that search his testimonies: that seek after him with all their heart. {3} For they that work iniquity, have not walked in his ways. {4} Thou hast very much commanded thy commandments to be kept. {5} Would God my ways might be directed, to keep thy justifications. {6} Then shall I not be confounded, when I shall look thoroughly in all thy commandments. {7} I will confess to thee in direction of heart: in that I have learned the judgments of thy justice. {8} I will keep thy justifications: forsake me not wholly. {9} Beth. House. Wherein doth a young man correct his way? In keeping thy words. {10} With my whole heart I have sought after thee: repel me not from thy commandments. {11} In my heart I have hid thy words: that I may not sin to thee. {12} Blessed art thou, o Lord: teach me thy justifications. {13} In my lips I have pronounced all the judgments of thy mouth. {14} I am delighted in the way of thy testimonies, as in all riches. {15} I will be exercised in thy commandments: and I will consider thy ways. {16} I will meditate in thy justifications: I will not forget thy words. {17} Gimel. Fullness. Render to thy servant, quicken me: and I shall keep thy words. {18} Reveal mine eyes: and I shall consider the marvelous things of thy law. {19} I am a sojourner in the land, hide not thy commandments from me. {20} My soul hath coveted to desire thy justifications, at all time. {21} Thou hast rebuked the proud: cursed are they that decline from thy commandments. {22} Take from me reproach, and contempt: because I have sought after thy testimonies. {23} For Princes sat, and they spake against me: but thy servant was exercised in thy justifications. {24} For both thy testimonies are my meditation: and thy justifications my counsel. {25} Daleth. Of Tables. My soul hath cleaved to the pavement: quicken me according to thy word. {26} I have uttered my ways, and thou hast heard me: teach me thy justifications. {27} Instruct me the way of thy justifications: and I shall be exercised in thy marvelous works. {28} My soul hath slumbered for tediousness: confirm me in thy words. {29} Remove from me the way of iniquity: and according to thy law, have mercy on me. {30} I have chosen the way of truth: I have not forgotten thy judgments. {31} I have cleaved to the testimonies, o Lord: do not confound me. {32} I ran the way of thy commandments: when thou didst dilate my heart. {33} He. This thing. Set me a law, o Lord, the way of thy justifications: and I will seek after it always. {34} Give me understanding, and I will search thy law: and I will keep it with my whole heart. {35} Conduct me into the path of thy commandments: because I would it. {36} Incline my heart into thy testimonies: and not into avarice. {37} Turn away mine eyes that they see not vanity: in thy way quicken me. {38} Establish thy word to thy servant, in thy fear. {39} Take away my reproach, which I have feared: because thy judgments are pleasant. {40} Behold I have coveted thy commandments: in thine equity quicken me. {41} Vau. And. And let thy mercy come upon me, o Lord: thy salvation according to thy word. {42} And I shall answer a word to them that upbraid me: because I have hoped in thy words. {43} And take not away out of my mouth the word of truth utterly: because I have much hoped in thy judgments. {44} And I will keep thy law always: for ever, and for ever and ever. {45} And I walked in largeness: because I have sought after thy commandments. {46} And I spake of thy testimonies in the sight of kings: and was not confounded. {47} And I meditated in thy commandments, which I loved. {48} And I have lifted up my hands to thy commandments, which I loved: and I was exercised in thy justifications. {49} Zain. This. Be mindful of thy word to thy servant, wherein thou hast given me hope. {50} This hath comforted me in my humiliation: because thy word hath quickened me. {51} The proud did unjustly exceedingly: but I declined not from thy law. {52} I have been mindful of thy judgments from everlasting, o Lord: and was comforted. {53} Fainting possessed me, because of sinners forsaking thy Law. {54} Thy justifications were song by me, in the place of my peregrination. {55} I have been mindful in the night of thy name, o Lord: and have kept thy law. {56} This was done to me: because I sought after thy justifications. {57} Heth. Life. My portion, o Lord, I said to keep thy law. {58} I besought thy face, with all my heart: have mercy on me according to thy word. {59} I thought upon my ways: and converted my feet unto thy testimonies. {60} I am prepared, and am not troubled: to keep thy commandments. {61} The cords of sinners have wrapped me round about: and I have not forgotten thy law. {62} At mid-night I rose to confess to thee, for the judgments of thy justification. {63} I am partaker of all that fear thee: and that keep thy commandments. {64} The earth, o Lord, is full of thy mercy: teach me thy justifications. {65} Teth. Good. Thou hast done bounty with thy servant, o Lord: according to thy word. {66} Teach me goodness, and discipline, and knowledge: because I have believed thy commandments. {67} Before I was humbled I offended: therefore have I kept thy word. {68} Thou art good: and in thy goodness teach me thy justifications. {69} The iniquity of the proud is multiplied upon me: but I in all my heart will search thy commandments. {70} Their heart is curdled together as milk: but I have meditated thy law. {71} It is good for me that thou hast humbled me: that I may learn thy justifications. {72} The law of thy mouth is good unto me, above thousands of gold and silver. {73} Jod. Beginning. Thy hands have made me, and formed me: give me understanding, and I will learn thy commandments. {74} They that fear thee shall see me, & shall rejoice: because I have much hoped in thy words. {75} I know, o Lord, that thy judgments are equity: and in thy truth thou hast humbled me. {76} Let thy mercy be done to comfort me, according to thy word unto thy servant. {77} Let thy commiserations come to me, and I shall live: because thy law is my meditation. {78} Let the proud be confounded, because they have done unjustly toward me: but I will be exercised in thy commandments. {79} Let them be converted to me that fear thee: and that know thy testimonies. {80} Let my heart be made immaculate in thy justifications, that I be not confounded. {81} Caph. Hand, or Palm of the hand. My soul hath fainted for thy salvation: and I have much hoped in thy word. {82} Mine eyes have failed for thy word, saying: When wilt thou comfort me? {83} Because I am made as a bottle in the hoar frost: I have not forgotten thy justifications. {84} How many are the days of thy servant: when wilt thou do judgment on them that persecute me? {85} The unjust have told me fables: but not as thy law. {86} All thy commandments are truth: they have unjustly persecuted me, {87} They have well near made end of me in the earth: but I have not forsaken thy commandments. {88} According to thy mercy quicken me: and I shall keep the testimonies of thy mouth. {89} Lamed. Discipline. For ever Lord thy word is permanent in heaven. {90} Thy truth in generation and generation: thou hast founded the earth, and it is permanent. {91} By thy ordinance the day continueth: because all things serve thee. {92} But that thy law is my meditation: I had then perhaps perished in my humiliation. {93} I will not forget thy justifications for ever: because in them thou hast quickened me. {94} I am thine, save me: because I have sought out thy justifications. {95} Sinners have expected me to destroy me: I understood thy testimonies. {96} Of all consummation I have seen the end: thy commandment is exceeding large. {97} Mem. Of them. How have I loved thy law, o Lord! All the day it is my meditation. {98} Above mine enemies thou hast made me wise by thy commandment: because it is to me for ever. {99} Above all that taught me have I understood: because thy testimonies are my meditation. {100} Above ancients have I understood: because I have sought thy commandments. {101} I have stayed my feet from all evil way: that I may keep thy words. {102} I have not declined from thy judgments: because thou hast set me a law. {103} How sweet are thy words to my jaws. More than honey to my mouth! {104} By thy commandments I have understood: therefore have I hated all the way of iniquity. {105}

Nun. Everlasting. Thy word is a lamp to my feet, and a light to my paths. {106} I swear, and have determined to keep the judgments of thy justice. {107} I am humbled exceedingly, o Lord: quicken me according to thy word. {108} The voluntaries of my mouth make acceptable, o Lord: and teach me thy judgments. {109} My soul is in my hands always: and I have not forgotten thy law. {110} Sinners laid a snare for me: and I have not erred from thy commandments. {111} For inheritance I have purchased thy testimonies for ever: because they are the joy of my heart. {112} I have inclined my heart to do thy justifications for ever, for reward. {113} Samech. Help. I have hated the unjust: and I have loved thy law. {114} Thou art my helper, and protector: and upon thy word I have much hoped. {115} Depart from me ye malignant: and I will search the commandments of my God. {116} Receive me according to thy word, and I shall live: and confound me not of mine expectation. {117} Help me, and I shall be saved: and I will meditate in thy justifications always. {118} Thou hast despised all that revolt from thy judgments: because their cogitation is unjust. {119} All the sinners of the earth I have reputed prevaricators: therefore have I loved thy testimonies. {120} Pierce my flesh with thy fear: for I am afraid of thy judgments. {121} Ain. A fountain or an eye. I have done judgment and justice: deliver me not to them that calumniate me. {122} Receive thy servant unto good: let not the proud calumniate me. {123} Mine eyes have failed after thy salvation: and for the word of thy justice. {124} Do with thy servant according to thy mercy: and teach me thy justifications. {125} I am thy servant: give me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies. {126} It is time to do, o Lord: they have dissipated thy law. {127} Therefore have I loved thy commandments, above gold and topazius. {128} Therefore was I directed to all thy commandments: all wicked way I have hated. {129} Phe. Mouth. Thy testimonies are marvelous: therefore hath my soul searched them. {130} The declaration of thy words doth illuminate: and giveth understanding to little ones. {131} I opened my mouth, and drew breath: because I desired thy commandments. {132} Look upon me, and have mercy on me, according to the judgment of them that love thy name. {133} Direct my steps according to thy word: and let not any injustice have dominion over me. {134} Redeem me from the calumnies of men: that I may keep thy commandments. {135} Illuminate thy face upon thy servant: and teach me thy justifications. {136} Mine eyes have gushed forth issues of waters: because they have not kept thy law. {137} Sade. Justice. Thou art just, o Lord: and thy judgment is right. {138} Thou hast commanded justice thy testimonies: and thy verity exceedingly. {139} My zeal hath made me to pine away: because mine enemies have forgotten thy words. {140} Thy word is fired exceedingly: and thy servant hath loved it. {141} I am a youngman, and contemned: I have not forgotten thy justifications. {142} Thy justice is justice for ever: and thy law is verity. {143} Tribulation and distress have found me: thy commandments are my meditation. {144} Thy testimonies are equity for ever, give me understanding, and I shall live. {145} Coph. Vocation. I have cried in my whole heart, hear me, o Lord: I will seek after thy justifications. {146} I have cried to thee, save me: that I may keep thy commandments. {147} I have prevented in maturity, and have cried: because I hoped much in thy words. {148} Mine eyes have prevented early unto thee: that I might meditate thy words. {149} Hear my voice according to thy mercy, o Lord: and according to thy judgment quicken me. {150} They that persecute me have approached to iniquity: but from thy law they are made far off. {151} Thou art nigh, o Lord: and all thy ways are truth. {152} From the beginning I knew of thy testimonies: that thou hast founded them for ever. {153} Res. Head. See my humiliation, and deliver me: because I have not forgotten thy law. {154} Judge my judgment, & redeem me: for thy word quicken thou me. {155} Salvation is far from sinners: because they have not sought after thy justifications. {156} Thy mercies are many, o Lord: according to thy judgment quicken me. {157} There are many that persecute me, and afflict me: I have not declined from thy testimonies. {158} I saw the prevaricators, and I pined away: because they kept not thy words. {159} See that I have loved thy commandments, o Lord: in thy mercy quicken me. {160} The beginning of thy words is truth: all the judgments of thy justice are for ever. {161} Sin. Tooth. Princes have persecuted me without cause: and my heart hath been afraid of thy words. {162} I will rejoice at thy words: as he that findeth many spoils. {163} I have heard iniquity, and abhorred it: but thy law I have loved. {164} Seven times in the day I have said praise to thee, for the judgments of thy justice. {165} There is much peace to them that love thy law: & there is no scandal to them. {166} I expected thy salvation, o Lord: and have loved thy commandments. {167} My soul hath kept thy testimonies: & hath loved them exceedingly. {168} I have kept thy commandments, and thy testimonies: because all my ways are in thy sight. {169} Tau. Sign. Let my petition approach in thy sight, o Lord: according to thy word give me understanding. {170} Let my request enter in thy sight: according to thy word deliver me. {171} My lips shall utter an hymn, when thou shalt teach me thy justifications. {172} My tongue shall pronounce thy word: because all thy commandments are equity. {173} Let thy hand be to save me: because I have chosen thy commandments. {174} I have coveted thy salvation, o Lord: and thy law is my meditation. {175} My soul shall live, and shall praise thee: and thy judgments shall help me. {176} I have strayed as a sheep that is lost: seek thy servant, because I have not forgotten thy commandments.

The Jews in captivity of Babylon, Christians in persecution, or other great tribulation, pray with confidence to be delivered from danger, and slander of wicked tongues, 5. lamenting their long endurance.

{1} A gradual Canticle. When I was in tribulation I cried to our Lord: and he heard me. {2} O Lord deliver my soul from unjust lips, and from a deceitful tongue. {3} What may be given thee, or what may be added unto thee to a deceitful tongue? {4} The sharp arrows of the mighty, with coals of desolation. {5} Woe is to me, that my sojourning is prolonged: I have dwelt with the inhabitants of Cedar: {6} My soul hath been long a sojourner. {7} With them that hated peace I was peaceable: when I spake to them, they impugned me without cause.

The just rejoice that their prayer is heard, and that God continually protecteth them.

{1} A gradual Canticle. I have lifted up mine eyes unto the mountains, from whence help shall come to me {2} My help is from our Lord, who made heaven and earth. {3} Give he not thy foot to be moved: neither do he slumber that keepeth thee. {4} Lo he shall not slumber nor sleep, that keepeth Israel. {5} Our Lord keepeth thee, our Lord is thy protection, upon thy right hand. {6} By day the sun shall not burn thee: nor the moon by night. {7} Our Lord doth keep thee from all evil: our Lord keep thy soul. {8} Our Lord keep thy coming in, and thy going out: from hence forth now, and for ever.

Under the figure of return to Jerusalem, vehemently desired by the Jews in captivity, the Psalmist describeth the desire, and hope of the just to possess heaven.

{1} A gradual Canticle. I rejoiced in these things, which were said to me: We shall go into the house of our Lord. {2} Our feet were standing, in thy courts, o Jerusalem. {3} Jerusalem, which is built as a city: whose participation is together in it-self. {4} For thither did the tribes ascend, the tribes of our Lord: the testimony of Israel to confess unto the name of our Lord. {5} Because seats sat there in judgment, seats upon the house of David. {6} Ask ye the things that are for the peace of Jerusalem: and abundance to them that love thee. {7} Peace be made in thy strength: and abundance in thy towers. {8} For my brethren, and my neighbour's sakes, I spake peace of thee: {9} For the house of our Lord God, I have sought good things to thee.

A fervent and attentive prayer, to be delivered from captivity, or any other affliction.

{1} A gradual Canticle. To thee have I lifted up mine eyes, which dwellest in the heavens. {2} Behold as the eyes of servants, are on the hands of their masters. As the eyes of the handmaid on the hands of her mistress: so are our eyes to our Lord God until he have mercy on us. {3} Have mercy on us, o Lord, have mercy on us: because we are much replenished with contempt. {4} Because our soul is much replenished: reproach to them that abound, and contempt to the proud.

The whole Church, and every just person, gratefully confesseth, that by God's protection they are secure, without which none could escape ruin.

{1} A gradual Canticle. But that our Lord was in us, let Israel now say, was in us. When men rose up against us, {2} but that our Lord {3} perhaps they had swallowed us alive: When their fury was angry against us, {4} perhaps water had swallowed us. {5} Our soul hath passed through a torrent: perhaps our soul had passed through an intolerable water. {6} Blessed be our Lord which hath not given us for a prey to their teeth. {7} Our soul as a sparrow is delivered from the snare of the fowlers: The snare is broken, and we are delivered. {8} Our Help is in the name of our Lord, who made heaven and earth.

The Church, and holy members thereof, are always protected by God: 5. The wicked being suffered for a while, are at last punished.

{1} A gradual Canticle. They that trust in our Lord, as mount Sion: he shall not be moved for ever that dwelleth {2} in Jerusalem. Mountains round about it: and our Lord round about his people, from hence forth now and for ever. {3} Because our Lord will not leave the rod of sinners upon the lot of the just: that the just reach not their hands to iniquity. {4} Do well, o Lord, to the good, and right of heart. {5} But those that decline into obligations, our Lord will bring with them that work iniquity: peace upon Israel.

Israelites released from captivity of Babylon, much more the blessed both of the old and new Testament delivered by Christ from captivity of sin, do rejoice: 5. Who nevertheless must pass through tribulation to eternal felicity.

{1} A gradual Canticle. When our Lord turned the captivity of Sion: we were made as men comforted. {2} Then was our mouth replenished with joy: and our tongue with exultation. Then shall they say among the Gentiles: Our Lord hath done magnificently with them. {3} Our Lord hath done magnificently with us: we are made joyful. {4} Turn our captivity, o Lord, as a torrent in the South. {5} They that sow in tears shall reap in joyfulness. {6} Going they went and wept, casting their seeds. But coming they shall come with exultation, carrying their sheaves.

Neither house nor city can be built, or kept without God's special providence and help, 3. those that trust in him shall prosper in their endeavours.

{1} A gradual Canticle of Solomon. Unless our Lord build the house, they have laboured in vain that build it. Unless our Lord keep the city, he watcheth in vain that keepeth it. {2} It is vain for you to rise before light: rise ye after ye have sitten, which eat the bread of sorrow. {3} When he shall give sleep to his beloved: behold the inheritance of our Lord are children: the reward, the fruit of the womb. {4} As arrows in the hand of the mighty: so are the children of them that are shaken. {5} Blessed is the man that hath filled his desire of them: he shall not be confounded when he shall speak to his enemies in the gate.

Happiness both of this life and of the next, is obtained by fearing, and sincerely serving God.

{1} A gradual Canticle. Blessed are all that fear our Lord, that walk in his ways. {2} Because thou shalt eat the labours of thy hands: blessed art thou, and it shall be well with thee. {3} Thy wife as a fruitful vine, in the sides of thy house. Thy children as young plants of olive-trees, round about thy table. {4} Behold so shall the man be blessed, that feareth our Lord. {5} Our Lord out of Sion bless thee: and that thou mayst see the good things of Jerusalem all the days of thy life. {6} And that thou mayst see thy children's children, peace upon Israel.

The Church often (3. and much) impugned, is not overcome. 4. Her persecutors are destroyed, 6. contemned, 8. and cursed.

{1} A gradual Canticle. Often have they impugned me from my youth, let Israel now say: {2} Often have they impugned me from my youth: but they have not prevailed against me. {3} Sinners have builded upon my back: they have prolonged their iniquity. {4} Our just Lord will cut the necks of sinners: {5} let them all be confounded and turned backward, that hate Sion. {6} Let them be made as grass in the tops of houses: which is withered before it be plucked up. {7} Whereof the reaper hath not filled his hand, and he that gathereth the sheaves his bosom. {8} And they said not that passed by: The blessing of our Lord be upon you: we have blessed you in the name of our Lord.

The Jews, or other people in tribulation for sin, or temporal captivity, cry to God to be delivered: 4. trusting and encouraging each other in God's accustomed mercy, assuredly hoping that he will redeem & deliver them.

{1} A gradual Canticle. From the depths I have cried to thee, o Lord: voice: Let thine ears be intent to the voice {2} Lord hear my of my petition. {3} If thou shalt observe iniquities, o Lord: Lord who shall sustain it? {4} Because with thee there is propitiation: and for thy law I have expected thee, o Lord. My soul hath expected in his word: {5} my soul hath hoped in our Lord. {6} From the morning watch even until night: let Israel hope in our Lord. {7} Because with our Lord there is mercy: and with him plenteous redemption. {8} And he shall redeem Israel, from all his iniquities.

Any just soul in humble confidence offereth his innocency, as a spiritual and grateful sacrifice to God, 3. exhorting all God's servants ever to hope in him.

{1} A gradual Canticle of David. Lord my heart is not exalted: neither are mine eyes lofty. Neither have I walked in great matters: nor in marvelous things above me. {2} If I was not humbly minded: but exalted my soul: As the weaned child is toward his mother, so retribution in my soul. {3} Let Israel hope in our Lord, from henceforth now and for ever.

The Psalmist earnestly prayeth God to give him leave, & to shew him where to build a Temple. But more especially prayeth for, and prophesieth the coming of Christ, the promised Son of David: 14. signifying God's promise thereof, and of establishing his Church.

{1} A gradual Canticle. Remember David, o Lord, and all his meekness: to our Lord, vowed a vow to the God of {2} As he sware Jacob. {3} If I shall enter into the tabernacle of my house, if I shall ascend into the bed of my couch. {4} If I shall give sleep to mine eyes, and slumbering to mine eye lids: {5} And rest to my temples: until I find a place for our Lord, a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. {6} Behold we have heard of it in Ephrata: we have found it in the fields of the wood. {7} We will enter into his tabernacle: we will adore in the place where his feet stood. {8} Arise Lord into thy rest, thou, and the ark of thy sanctification. {9} Let thy Priests be clothed with justice: & let thy saints rejoice. {10} For David thy servant's sake turn not away the face of thy Christ. {11} Our Lord hath sworn truth to David, and he will not disappoint it: Of the fruit of thy womb I will set upon thy seat. {12} If thy children shall keep my testament, and these my testimonies which I will teach them: Their children also even for ever, shall sit upon thy seat. {13} Because our Lord hath chosen Sion: he hath chosen it for an habitation to himself. {14} This is my rest for ever and ever: here will I dwell because I have chosen it. {15} Blessing I will bless her widow: her poor I will fill with breads. {16} Her Priests I will clothe with salvation: and her saints shall rejoice with joyfulness. {17} Thither will I bring forth a horn to David, I have prepared a lamp to my Christ. {18} His enemies I will clothe with confusion: but upon him shall my sanctification flourish.

Fraternal concord is commended to all in the Church, as necessary and delectable in it self, and blessed of God.

{1} A gradual Canticle of David. Behold how good and how pleasant a thing it is, for brethren to dwell in one. {2} As ointment on the head, which ran down upon the beard, the beard of Aaron, which ran down unto the hem of his garment. {3} As the dew of Hermon, which runneth down upon mount Sion. Because there hath our Lord commanded blessing, and life even for ever.

All, and especially clergy men that serve the Church, are invited to praise God by day and by night, so shall they be blessed of God.

{1} A gradual Canticle. Lo now bless our Lord, all ye the servants of our Lord: Which stand in the house of our Lord, in the courts of the house of our God. {2} In the nights lift up your hands unto the holy places, and bless ye our Lord. {3} Our Lord out of Sion bless thee, who made heaven and earth.

God who only is omnipotent, and fountain of all goodness, is of all to be praised. 8. He is the special protector of his elected people. 15. Contrarywise false gods are impotent, vain, and can not help those that serve them. 19. Only the Church doth rightly praise him.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise ye the name of our Lord, ye servants praise our Lord. stand in the house of our Lord, in the {2} Ye that courts of the house of our God. {3} Praise ye our Lord, because our Lord is good: sing ye to his name, because it is sweet. {4} Because our Lord hath chosen Jacob to himself, Israel for his own possession. {5} Because I have known that our Lord is great, and our God above all gods. {6} All things whatsoever our Lord would he hath done, in heaven, in earth, in the sea, and in all the depths. {7} Bring forth clouds from the uttermost of the earth: lightnings he hath turned into rain. Who bringeth forth the winds out of his treasure: {8} who struck the first begotten of Aegypt from man even to beast. {9} He sent forth signs and wonders in the midst of thee, o Aegypt: upon Pharao, and upon all his servants. {10} Who struck many nations: and slew strong kings: {11} Sehon the king of the Amorrheites, & Og the king of Basan, and all the Kingdoms of Chanaan. {12} And he gave their land for inheritance, for an inheritance to Israel his people. {13} Lord thy name is for ever: Lord thy memorial is unto generation and generation. {14} Because our Lord shall judge his people: and will be entreated toward his servants. {15} The idols of the Gentiles are silver, and gold, the works of men's hands. {16} They have mouth, & shall not speak: they have eyes, and shall not see. {17} They have ears, and shall not hear: for neither is there breath in their mouth. {18} Let them that make them become like to them: and all that have confidence in them. {19} Ye house of Israel bless our Lord: ye house of Aaron bless our Lord. {20} Ye house of Levi bless our Lord: you that fear our Lord, bless ye our Lord. {21} Blessed be our Lord out of Sion, who dwelleth in Jerusalem.

God being marvelous in himself. 4. hath shewed his power and goodness in his works, as well in general to all the world, 10. as in particular towards his elected people.

{1} ALLELUIA. Confess ye to our Lord because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. {2} Confess ye to the God of gods: because his mercy is for ever. {3} Confess ye to the Lord of lords: because his mercy is for ever {4} Who only doth great marvels: because his mercy is for ever. {5} Who made the heaven in understanding: because his mercy is for ever. {6} Who established the earth over the waters: because his mercy is for ever. {7} Who made the great lights: because his mercy is for ever. {8} The sun to rule the day: because his mercy is for ever. {9} The moon and stars to rule the night: because his mercy is for ever. {10} Who struck Aegypt with their first-begotten: because his mercy is for ever. {11} Who brought forth Israel out of the midst of them: because his mercy is for ever. {12} In a mighty hand and lofty arm: because his mercy is for ever. {13} Who divided the Red sea into divisions: because his mercy is for ever. {14} And brought forth Israel through the midst thereof: because his mercy is for ever. {15} And he overthrew Pharao, and his host in the Red sea: because his mercy is for ever. {16} Who led his people through the desert: because his mercy is for ever. {17} Who struck great kings: because his mercy is for ever. {18} And slew strong kings: because his mercy is for ever. {19} Sehon the king of the Amorrheites: because his mercy is for ever. {20} And Og the king of Basan: because his mercy is for ever: {21} And he gave their land for an inheritance: because his mercy is for ever. {22} For an inheritance to Israel his servant: because his mercy is for ever. {23} For in our humiliation he was mindful of us: because his mercy is for ever. {24} And he redeemed us from our enemies: because his mercy is for ever. {25} Who giveth food to all flesh: because his mercy is for ever. {26} Confess ye to the God of heaven: because his mercy is for ever. Confess ye to the Lord of lords: because his mercy is for ever.

The Prophet describeth how lamentably the people in captivity of Babylon will bewail the want of means to serve God, and of their native soil: 7. with just desire of their enemies' punishment.

{1} A Psalm of David for Jeremy. Upon the rivers of Babylon, there we sat and wept: whilst we remembered Sion. {2} On the willows in the midst thereof, we hanged up our instruments. {3} Because there they that led us captive, demanded of us words of songs. And they that led us away: Sing ye an hymn to us of the songs of Sion. {4} How shall we sing the song of our Lord in a strange land? {5} If I shall forget thee, o Jerusalem, let my right hand be forgotten. {6} Let my tongue cleave to my jaws, if I do not remember thee: If I shall not set Jerusalem in the beginning of my joy. {7} Be mindful, o Lord, of the children of Edom, in the day of Jerusalem: That say: Rase it, rase it, even unto the foundation thereof. {8} Daughter of Babylon miserable: blessed is he, that shall repay thee thy payment, which thou hast paid us. {9} Blessed is he that shall hold, and shall dash thy little ones against the rock.

The whole Church, or any just person, rendereth thanks to God for his benefits 4, praying that all Kings and Kingdoms may do the same, 4, because God being high respecteth and advanceth the humble.

{1} TO David himself. I will confess to thee, o Lord, in my whole heart: because thou hast heard the words of my mouth. In the sight of Angels I will sing to thee: {2} I will adore toward thy holy temple, and will confess to thy name: For thy mercy, and thy truth: because thou hast magnified above every thing thy holy name. {3} In what day soever I shall invoke thee, hear me: thou wilt multiply strength in my soul. {4} Let all the kings of the earth, o Lord, confess to thee: because they have heard all the words of thy mouth: {5} And let them sing in the ways of our Lord: because great is the glory of our Lord. {6} Because our Lord is high, and he beholdeth low things: and high things he knoweth far off. {7} If I shall walk in the midst of tribulation, thou wilt quicken me: and upon the wrath of mine enemies thou hast extended thy hand, and thy right hand hath saved me. {8} Our Lord will repay for me: o Lord thy mercy is for ever: despise not the works of thy hands.

God's knowledge, 7, and presence (10, without the help, or hinderance of any thing) extendeth to all things, times, and places. 17, He giveth exceeding great honour to his saints, 20, the wicked, as enemies of God, are justly hated, 23, the just pray for God's perpetual direction.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David. Lord thou hast proved me, and hast known me: {2} thou hast known my sitting down, and my rising up. {3} Thou hast understood my cogitations far off: my path, and my cord thou hast searched out. {4} And thou hast foreseen all my ways: because there is not a word in my tongue. {5} Behold, o Lord, thou hast known all the last things, & them of old: thou hast formed me, and hast put thy hand upon me. {6} Thy knowledge is become marvelous of me: it is made great, and I can not reach to it. {7} Whither shall I go from thy spirit? And whither shall I fly from thy face? {8} If I shall ascend into heaven, thou art there: if I descend into hell, thou art present. {9} If I shall take my wings early, and dwell in the extreme parts of the sea. {10} Certes thither also shall thy hand conduct me: and thy right hand shall hold me. {11} And I said: Perhaps darkness shall tread over me: and the nigh is mine illumination in my delights. {12} For darkness shall not be darkened from thee, and the night shall be lightened as the day: as the darkness thereof, so also the light thereof. {13} Because thou hast possessed my reins: thou hast received me from my mother's womb. {14} I will confess to thee, because thou art terribly magnified: thy works are marvelous, & my soul knoweth exceedingly. {15} My bone is not hid from thee, which thou madest in secret: and my substance in the lower parts of the earth. {16} Mine imperfection thine eyes have seen, & in thy book all shall be written: days shall be formed, & no man in them. {17} But to me thy friends, o God, are become honourable exceedingly: their principality is exceedingly strengthened. {18} I will number them, and they shall be multiplied above the sand: I rose up and I am yet with thee. {19} If thou shalt kill sinners, o God: ye men of blood depart from me. {20} Because you say in thought: they shall receive thy cities in vain. {21} Did not I hate them that hate thee, o Lord: and pined away because of thine enemies? {22} with perfect hatred did I hate them: they are become enemies to me. {23} Prove me, o God, and know my heart: examine me, and know my paths. {24} And see, if the way of iniquity be in me: and conduct me in the everlasting way.

The just diversly afflicted by the wicked, pray to be defended, 7, repose their confidence in God. 10, Who will adjudge the reprobate to eternal punishment, 13, and reward the good with the fruition of himself.

{1} UNTO the end, a Psalm of David. {2} from the unjust man rescue me. Deliver me, o Lord, from the evil man: {3} Which have devised iniquity in their heart: all the day they did appoint battles. They have whet their tongues as that of a serpent: {4} the venom of asps is under their lips. {5} Keep me, o Lord, from the hand of the sinner: and from unjust men deliver me. {6} Who have devised to supplant my steps: the proud have hid a snare for me: And they have stretched out ropes for a snare: they have laid a stumbling block for me near the way. {7} I said to our Lord: Thou art my God: hear, o Lord, the voice of my petition. {8} O Lord, Lord the strength of my salvation: thou hast overshadowed my head in the day of battle. {9} Yield me not, o Lord, from my desire to the sinner: they have devised against me, forsake me not, lest they perhaps be proud. {10} The head of their compass: the labour of their lips shall cover them. {11} Coals shall fall upon them, thou shalt cast them down into fire: in miseries they shall not stand up. {12} A man full of tongue shall not be directed in the earth: evils shall take the unjust man into destruction. {13} I have known that our Lord will do the judgment of the needy: and the revenge of the poor. {14} But as for the just, they shall confess to thy name: and the righteous shall dwell with thy countenance.

The Church prayeth that her children may avoid sinful words, 4, not make excuses of sins committed, not communicate with others in sin, nor to hearken to flatterers: 6, but to pray that they may amend (the Psalmist by the way prophesieth that many shall be converted.) 8, Though sometimes persecution be great, the Church faileth not.

{1} A Psalm of David. Lord I have cried to thee, hear me: attend to my voice when I shall cry to thee. {2} Let my prayer be directed as incense in thy sight: the elevation of my hands as evening sacrifice. {3} Set o Lord a watch to my mouth: and a door round about to my lips. {4} Decline not my heart into words of malice, to make excuses in sins. With men that work iniquity: and I will not communicate with the chief of them. {5} The just shall rebuke me in mercy, and shall reprehend me: but let not the oil of a sinner fat my head. Because yet also my prayer is in their good pleasures: {6} their judges are swallowed up joined to the rock. They shall hear my words because they have prevailed: {7} as the grossness of the earth is broken out upon the earth. Our bones are dissipated near to hell: {8} for to thee, o Lord, Lord are mine eyes; in thee have I hoped, take not away my soul. {9} Keep me from the snare, which they have set for me: and from the scandals of them that work iniquity. {10} Sinners shall fall in his net: I am alone until I pass.

Holy David being fled into a cave, and besieged round about by Saul's army, explicating his distress, 6, prayeth to be delivered.

{1} OF understanding to David, when he was in the cave, a prayer.

{1} Reg. 24. voice I have cried to our Lord: with my {2} With my voice I have prayed to our Lord: {3} I pour out my prayer in his sight, and I pronounce my tribulation before him. {4} When my spirit faileth of my self, and thou hast known my paths. In this way, which I walked, they hid a snare for me. {5} I looked toward the right hand, and saw: and there was none that would know me. Flight hath failed me: and there is none to require my soul. {6} I have cried to thee, o Lord, I have said: Thou art my hope, my portion in the land of the living. {7} Attend to my petition: because I am humbled exceedingly. Deliver me from them that persecute me: because they are made strong over me. {8} Bring forth my soul out of prison, to confess unto thy name: the just expect me, till thou reward me.

King David (or any other) in spiritual or temporal tribulation, not trusting in his own justice, layeth open his calamity, 5. considering God's benignity, 6. prayeth to be speedily delivered; 11. and confidently assureth himself thereof.

{1} A Psalm of David, when Absalom his son persecuted him. Lord hear my prayer: with thine ears receive my petition in thy truth: hear me in thy justice. {2} And enter not into judgment with thy servant: because no man living shall be justified in thy sight. {3} Because the enemy hath persecuted my soul: he hath humbled my life in the earth. He hath set me in obscure places as the dead of the world: {4} and my spirit is in anguish upon me, within me my heart is troubled. {5} I was mindful of old days, I have meditated in all thy works: in the facts of thy hands did I meditate. {6} I have stretched forth my hands to thee: my soul is as earth without water unto thee. {7} Hear me quickly, o Lord: my spirit hath fainted. Turn not away thy face from me: and I shall be like to them that descend into the lake. {8} Make me hear thy mercy in the morning: because I have hoped in thee. Make the way known to me, wherein I may walk: because I have lifted up my soul to thee. {9} Deliver me from mine enemies, o Lord, to thee I have fled: {10} teach me to do thy will, because thou art my God. Thy good spirit will conduct me into the right way: {11} for thy name sake, o Lord, thou wilt quicken me in thine equity. Thou wilt bring forth my soul out of tribulation: {12} and in thy mercy thou wilt destroy mine enemies. And thou wilt destroy all that afflict my soul: because I am thy servant.

The royal Prophet thanketh God for all his victories, & possession of the Kingdom. 3. Admiring God's benignity towards man, 5. prayeth to be still defended from all enemies, 9. promiseth a new song of praise, 11. describeth the vanity of worldly men, 15. concluding that true felicity is in serving God.

{1} A Psalm of David, against Goliath. Blessed be our Lord my God, who teacheth my hands to battle, and my fingers to war. {2} My mercy, and my refuge: my defender, and my deliverer. My protector; and I have hoped in him, who subdueth my people under me. {3} Lord what is man, that thou art made known to him? Or the son of man, that thou esteemest him? {4} Man is made like to vanity: his days pass as a shadow. {5} Lord incline thy heavens, and descend: touch the mountains, and they will smoke. {6} Lighten lightning, and thou shalt disperse them: shoot out thine arrows, and thou shalt destroy them. {7} Send forth thy hand from on high, take me out, and deliver me from many waters: from the hand of children strangers. {8} Whose mouth hath spoken vanity: and their right hand is the right hand of iniquity. {9} O God I will sing to thee a new song: in the psalter of ten strings, I will sing to thee. {10} Who givest salvation to kings: who hast redeemed David thy servant from the malignant sword: {11} deliver me. And rescue me out of the hand of children strangers, whose mouth hath spoken vanity: and their right hand, is the right hand of iniquity. {12} Whose sons, are as new plants in their youth. Their daughters comely trimmed: decked about after the similitude of a temple. {13} Their store-houses full, flowing out of this into that. Their ewes full of young, abounding in their going forth: {14} their oxen are fat. There is no ruin of wall, nor passage, nor cry in their streets. {15} They have said, that it is a happy people, which hath these things: blessed is the people, whose God is our Lord.

God is, and for ever ought to be praised, 3. for his immensive, infinite, glorious Majesty, marvelous works, merciful benefits; for his power, wisdom, justice, 19. who will reward the good, and destroy the wicked.

{1} PRAISING, to David himself. I will exalt thee my God the King: and I will bless thy name for ever and for ever. {2} Every day will I bless thee: and will praise thy name for ever, and for ever and ever. {3} Great is our Lord and exceeding laudable, and of his greatness there is no end. {4} Generation and generation shall praise thy works: and they shall pronounce thy power. {5} They shall speak the magnificence of the glory of thy holiness: and shall tell thy marvelous works. {6} And they shall tell the force of thy terrible things: and shall declare thy greatness: {7} They shall utter the memory of the abundance of thy sweetness: and in thy justice they shall rejoice. {8} Our Lord is pitiful and merciful: patient and very merciful. {9} Our Lord is sweet to all: and his commiserations are over all his works. {10} Let all thy works, o Lord, confess to thee: and let thy Saints bless thee. {11} They shall tell the glory of thy kingdom: and shall speak thy might. {12} That they may make thy might known to the children of men: and the glory of the magnificence of thy kingdom. {13} Thy kingdom is a kingdom of all worlds: and thy dominion in all generation and generation. Our Lord is faithful in all his words, and holy in all his works. {14} Our Lord liftest up all that fall: and setteth up all that are bruised. {15} The eyes of all hope in thee, o Lord: and thou givest their meat in time convenient. {16} Thou openest thy hand: and fillest every living creature with blessing. {17} Our Lord is just in all his ways: and holy in all his works. {18} Our Lord is near to all that invocate him: to all that invocate him in truth. {19} He will do the will of them that fear him, and will hear their prayer, and save them. {20} Our Lord keepeth all that love him: and he will destroy all sinners. {21} My mouth shall speak the praise of our Lord: and let all flesh bless his holy name for ever, and for ever and ever.

The Psalmist excitateth himself, and all others to praise God for his singular regard, & providence of all that trust in him: 3. shewing that neither Princes, nor other men are able to help, 5. but God can and doth continually relieve all sorts of necessities.

{1} ALLELUIA of Aggaeus and Zacharie. {2} praise our Lord in my life: I will sing to my Soul praise thou our Lord, I will God as long as I shall be. Put not confidence in Princes: {3} in the sons of men: in whom there is no salvation. {4} His spirit shall go forth, and he shall return into his earth: in that day all their cogitations shall perish. {5} Blessed is he, whose helper is the God of Jacob, his hope in our Lord his God: {6} who made heaven and earth, the sea, and all things that are in them. {7} Which keepeth truth for ever, doth judgment for them that suffer wrong: giveth food to the hungry. Our Lord looseth the fettered: {8} our Lord illuminateth the blind. Our Lord liftest up the bruised, our Lord loveth the just. {9} Our Lord keepeth strangers, the pupil and widow he will receive: and the ways of sinners he will destroy. {10} Our Lord will reign for ever, thy God, o Sion in generation & generation.

God is also to be praised by his peculiar people, for particular benefits, 4. & for his omnipotent power, wisdom, goodness, in creating and governing this whole world, 11. and most special benignity towards those that trust in him.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise ye our Lord because Psalm is good: to our God let there be pleasant and comely praise. {2} Our Lord building up Jerusalem: will gather together the dispersions of Israel. {3} Who healeth the contrite of heart: and bindeth up their sores. {4} Who numbereth the multitude of stars: & giveth names to them all. {5} Great is our Lord, and great is his strength: and of his wisdom there is no number. {6} Our Lord receiving the meek: & humbling sinners even to the ground. {7} Sing ye to our Lord in confession: sing ye to our God on harp. {8} Who covereth the heaven with clouds: and prepareth rain for the earth. Who bringeth forth grass in the mountains: and herb for the service of men. {9} Who giveth to beasts their food: and to the young ravens that call upon him. {10} He shall not have pleasure in the strength of an horse: nor in the legs of a man shall he be well pleased. {11} Our Lord is well pleased toward them that fear him: and in them that hope upon his mercy.

Again God is to be praised for his goodness towards his peculiar people, 4. yea towards all the world: but most abundantly towards his Church.

{1} ALLELUIA. O Jerusalem praise our Lord: praise thy God, o Sion. strengthened the locks of thy gates: he {2} Because he hath hath blessed thy children in thee. {3} Who hath set thy borders peace: and filleth thee with the fat of corn {4} Who sendeth forth his speech to the earth: his word runneth swiftly. {5} Who giveth snow as wool: scattereth mist as ashes. {6} He casteth his crystal as morsels: before the face of his cold who shall endure? {7} He shall send forth his word, and shall melt them: his spirit shall blow, and waters shall flow. {8} Who declareth his word to Jacob: his justices and judgments to Israel. {9} He hath not done in like manner to any nation: and his judgements he hath not made manifest to them. Alleluia.

Psalm 148

All creatures spiritual and corporal, are invited to praise God, their Creator and Conserver, 13. as incomparably excellent.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise ye our Lord from the heavens: praise ye him in the high places. {2} Praise ye him all his Angels: praise ye him all his hosts: {3} Praise ye him sun and moon: praise him all ye stars, and light. {4} Praise him ye heavens of heavens: and the waters that are above the heavens, {5} let them praise the name of our Lord. Because he said, and they were made: he commanded, and they were created. {6} He established them for ever, and for ever and ever: he put a precept, and it shall not pass. {7} Praise our Lord from the earth: ye dragons, and all depths. {8} Fire, hail, snow, ice, spirit of storms: which do his word: {9} Mountains, and all little hills: trees that bear fruit, and all cedars. {10} Beasts, and all cattle: serpents, and feathered fowls: {11} Kings of the earth, & all peoples: Princes, and all judges of the earth. {12} Young men and virgins: old with young let them praise the name of our Lord: {13} because the name of him alone is exalted. {14} The confession of him above heaven and earth: and he hath exalted the horn of his people. An hymn to all his saints: to the children of Israel a people approaching unto him. Alleluia.

The Church is most singularly bound to praise God, 4. for the grace, sanctity, victory, glory, 7. and judicial power, which he giveth to his Saints.

{1} ALLELUIA. Sing ye to our Lord a new song: let his praise be in the Church of saints. {2} Let Israel be joyful in him, that made him: and let the children of Sion rejoice in their King. {3} Let them praise his name in choir: on timbrel and psalter let them sing to him. {4} Because our Lord is well pleased in his people: and he will exalt the meek unto salvation. {5} The saints shall rejoice in glory: they shall be joyful in their beds. {6} The exaltations of God in their throat: and two edged swords in their hands. {7} To do revenge in the nations: chastisements among the peoples. {8} To bind their kings in fetters: and their nobles in iron manacles. {9} That they may do in them the judgment that is written: this glory is to all his saints. Alleluia.

Psalm 150

God absolutely most excellent is to be praised, 3. with all sorts of instruments, and by all other means.

{1} ALLELUIA. Praise ye our Lord in his holies: praise ye him in the firmament of his strength. {2} Praise ye him in his powers:

praise ye him according to the multitude of his greatness. {3} Praise ye him in the sound of trumpet: praise ye him on psalter and harp. {4} Praise ye him on timbrel and choir: praise ye him on strings and organ. {5} Praise ye him on well sounding cymbals: praise ye him on cymbals of jubilation: {6} let every spirit praise our Lord. Alleluia.

THE BOOK OF PROVERBS

Parables are profitable to those that love and will learn wisdom. 10. All are admonished not to follow the allurements of sinners, 20. but to embrace wisdom. 24. And ruin is threatened to the contemners.

{1} THE Parables of Salomon, the son of David, king of Israel. discipline: {3} to understand the words of {2} To know wisdom, and prudence: and to receive instruction of doctrine, justice, and judgment, and equity: {4} that subtlety may be given to little ones, knowledge and understanding to the youngman. {5} the wise man hearing shall be wise: and he that understandeth shall possess governments. {6} He shall understand a parable, and interpretation, the words of the wise, and their dark sayings. {7} The fear of our Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Fools despise wisdom and doctrine. {8} My son, hear the discipline of thy father, and leave not the law of thy mother: {9} that grace may be added to thy head, and a chain of gold to thy neck. {10} My son, if sinners shall entice thee, condescend not to them. {11} If they shall say: Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood, let us hide snares against the innocent without cause: {12} let us swallow him alive as hell, and whole as one descending into the lake. {13} We shall find all precious substance, we shall fill our house with spoils. {14} Cast in thy lot with us, let there be one purse of us all. {15} My son, walk not with them, stay thy foot from their paths. {16} For their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed blood. {17} But a net is cast in vain before the eyes of them that have wings. {18} Themselves also lie in wait against their own blood, & practise deceits against their own souls. {19} So the paths of every covetous man, take violently the souls of the possessors. {20} Wisdom preacheth abroad, she giveth her voice in the streets. {21} In the head of multitudes she cryeth, in the doors of the gates of the city she uttereth her words, saying: {22} O children how long do you love infancy, and fools covet those things, which are hurtful to themselves, and the unwise hate knowledge {23} Turn ye at my correction: behold I will utter my spirit to you, and will shew you my words. {24} Because I called, and you refused: I stretched out my hand, and there was none that regarded. {25} You have despised all my counsel, and have neglected my reprehensions. {26} I also will laugh in your destruction, and will scorn, when that shall come to you, which you feared. {27} When sudden calamity shall fall on you, and destruction as a tempest shall be at hand: when tribulation and distress shall come upon you: {28} Then shall they invocate me, and I will not hear: in the morning shall they arise, and shall not find me: {29} for that they have hated discipline, and not received the fear of our Lord, {30} nor consented to my counsel, & detracted from all my correction. {31} They shall eat therefore the fruits of their way, and shall be filled with their own counsels. {32} The aversion of little ones shall kill them, and the prosperity of fools shall destroy them. {33} But he that shall hear me, shall rest without terror, and shall enjoy abundance, fear of evils being taken away.

Chapter 2

Gaining of wisdom bringeth much good, 10. and avoideth much evil: 16. delivering from error of Idolaters and Heretics.

{1} MY son, if thou wilt receive my words, and wilt hide my commandments with thee, {2} that thine ear may hear wisdom: incline thine heart to know prudence. {3} For if thou shalt call for wisdom, and incline thine heart to prudence: {4} If thou shalt seek her as money, and as treasures shalt dig her up: {5} then shalt thou understand the fear of our Lord, and shalt find the knowledge of God. {6} Because our Lord giveth wisdom: and out of his mouth prudence and knowledge. {7} He will keep the salvation of the righteous, & protect them that walk simply. {8} Keeping the paths of justice, & guarding the ways of Saints. {9} Then shalt thou understand justice, and judgment, and equity, and every good path. {10} If wisdom shall enter into thy heart, and knowledge please thy soul: {11} counsel shall keep thee, and prudence shall preserve thee, {12} that thou mayst be delivered from the evil way, and from the man that speaketh perverse things: {13} who leave the right way, and walk by dark ways: {14} who are glad when they have done evil, and rejoice in most wicked things: {15} whose ways are perverse, and their steps infamous. {16} That thou mayst be delivered from the strange woman, and from the foreigner, which mollifieth her words, {17} forsaketh the guide of her youth, {18} and hath forgotten the covenant of her God. For her house is bowed down to death, and her paths to hell. {19} All that go in unto her, shall not return, neither shall they apprehend the paths of life. {20} That thou mayst walk in a good way: and mayst keep the paths of the just. {21} For they that are right, shall dwell in the earth, and the simple shall continue in it. {22} But the impious shall be destroyed from the earth: and they that do unjustly shall be taken away from it.

Wisdom exhorteth to keep God's law (giving long life) to observe mercy, and truth. 5. to confide in God, 7. to fear, 9. and honour him, 11. to take his correction gladly (13. for all good things follow wisdom.) 27. to relieve the needy without delay, 30. not to contend with the wicked, nor to imitate them. 33. The evil shall fail, and the godly shall prosper.

{1} MY son, forget not my law, and let thy heart keep my precepts. thee length of days, and years of life, and {2} For they shall add to peace. {3} Let not mercy and truth leave thee, put them about thy throat and write them in the tables of thy heart: {4} and thou shalt find grace; and good discipline before God and men. {5} Have confidence in our Lord with all thy heart and lean not upon thine own prudence. {6} In all thy ways think on him, and he will direct thy steps. {7} Be not wise in thine own conceit: fear God, and depart from evil: {8} for it shall be health to thy navel, and watering of thy bones. {9} Honour our Lord with thy substance, and give to him of the first of all thy fruits: {10} and thy barns shall be replenished with fullness, and thy presses shall run-over with wine. {11} My son, cast not away the discipline of our Lord: neither do thou faint when thou art chastised of him: {12} for whom our Lord loveth he chastiseth: and as a father in the son he pleaseth himself. {13} Blessed is the man that findeth wisdom, and floweth with prudence: {14} better is the purchasing thereof than merchandise of silver, and her fruit than chief and the purest gold: {15} she is more precious than all riches: and all things that are desired, are not able to be compared with her. {16} Length of days in her right hand, & in her left hand riches and glory. {17} Her ways are beautiful ways, and all her paths peaceable. {18} She is a tree of life to them that shall apprehend her: and he that shall hold her is blessed. {19} Our Lord by wisdom foundeth the earth, established the heavens by prudence. {20} By his wisdom the depths have broken forth, and the clouds wax thick with dew. {21} My son, let not these things depart from thine eyes: keep the law & counsel: {22} and there shall be life to thy soul, and grace to thy jaws. {23} Then shalt thou walk confidently in thy way, and thy foot shall not stumble: {24} if thou sleep, thou shalt not fear: thou shalt rest, and thy sleep shall be sweet. {25} Dread not at sudden terror, and the power of the impious falling upon thee. {26} For our Lord will be at thy side, and will keep thy foot that thou be not taken. {27} Do not prohibit him to do good, that is able: if thou be able, thy self also do good. {28} Say not to thy friend: go, and return; and to morrow I will give to thee: whereas thou mayst give forthwith. {29} Practise not evil against thy friend, when he hath affiance in thee. {30} Contend not against man without cause, whereas he hath done thee no evil. {31} Do not envy an unjust man, nor imitate his ways: {32} because every defuder is an abomination of our Lord, and his communication is with the simple. {33} There is poverty from our Lord in the house of the impious: but the habitations of the just shall be blessed. {34} He shall delude the deluders, and to the mild he will give grace. {35} The wise shall possess glory: the exaltation of fools ignominy.

The wiseman exhorteth others by his own example to seek wisdom. 14. to decline from the wicked, and to imitate the just, 23. to guide well the heart, mouth, and feet.

{1} CHILDREN hear ye the father's discipline, and attend that you may know prudence. {2} I will give you a good gift, forsake not my law. {3} For I also was the son of my father, tender and as the only-begotten in my mother's sight: {4} and he taught me, & said: Let thy heart receive my words, keep my precepts, and thou shalt live. {5} Possess wisdom, possess prudence: forget not, neither decline from the words of my mouth. {6} Leave her not, and she will keep thee: love her, and she will preserve thee. {7} The beginning of wisdom, possess wisdom, and in all thy possession purchase prudence: {8} take her quickly, and she will exalt thee: thou shalt be glorified of her, when thou shalt embrace her. {9} She will give to thy head increase of graces, and with a noble crown she will protect thee. {10} Hear my son, and receive my words, that years of life may be multiplied to thee. {11} The way of wisdom I will shew to thee, I will lead thee by the paths of equity. {12} Which when thou shalt have entered, thy steps shall not be straitened, and running thou shalt not have a stumbling block. {13} Hold discipline, leave it not: keep it, because the same is thy life. {14} Be not delighted in the paths of the impious, neither let the way of the evil please thee. {15} Fly from it, neither pass thou by it: go aside, and forsake it. {16} For they sleep not unless they have done ill: and they take no sleep unless they supplant. {17} They eat the bread of impiety, and drink the wine of iniquity. {18} But the path of the just, as shining light, proceedeth even to perfect day. {19} The way of the impious is darksome: they know not where they fall. {20} My son hear my words, and incline thine ear to my sayings. {21} Let them not depart from thine eyes, keep them in the midst of thy heart. {22} For they are life to those that find them, and health to all flesh. {23} With all guard keep thy heart, because life proceedeth from it. {24} Remove from thee a froward mouth, and let detracting lips be far from thee. {25} Let thine eyes see right things, & let thine eye-lids go before thy steps. {26} Direct the path to thy feet, and all thy ways shall be established. {27} Decline not to the right hand, nor to the left: turn away thy foot from evil. For our Lord knoweth the ways that are on the right hand: but those are perverse, which are on the left hand. But he will make thy courses right, and thy ways he will bring forward in peace.

Again wisdom dehorteth from fornication (carnal and spiritual) 6. shewing that in the end sinners shall see and feel the effect of their folly: 20. which God seeth and will punish.

{1} MY son, attend to my wisdom, and to my prudence incline thine ear, mayst keep cogitations, and thy lips {2} that thou preserve discipline. {3} Attend not to the deceit of a woman: for the lips of an harlot are as a honey comb distilling, and her throat neater than oil. {4} But her later ends are bitter as wormwood, and sharp as a two edged sword. {5} Her feet go down into death, and her steps penetrate unto hell. {6} They walk not by the path of life, her steps are wandering, and unsearchable. {7} Now therefore my son hear me, and depart not from the words of my mouth. {8} Make thy way far from her, and approach not to the doors of her house. {9} Give not thy honour to strangers, and thy years to the cruel. {10} Lest perhaps strangers be filled with thy strength, and thy labours be in an other man's house, {11} and thou mourn in the end, when thou shalt have spent thy flesh and thy body, and say: {12} Why have I detested discipline, and my heart consented not to reprehensions, {13} nor I heard the voice of them that taught me, and have not inclined mine ear to masters? {14} I have almost been in all evil, in the midst of the Church and of the synagogue. {15} Drink water of thine own cistern, and the streams of thy well: {16} Let thy fountains be derived abroad, and in the streets divide thy waters, {17} Have them alone, neither let strangers be partakers with thee. {18} Let thy vein be blessed, and rejoice with the woman of thy youth: {19} a hind most dear, and a most grateful fawn: let her breasts inebriate thee at all time, in her love be thou delighted continually. {20} Why art thou seduced my son of a strange woman, and art cherished in the bosom of an other? {21} Our Lord beholdeth the ways of man, and considereth all his steps. {22} His own iniquities take the impious, and he is fast bound with the ropes of his sins. {23} He shall die because he hath not had discipline, and in the multitude of his folly he shall be deceived.

He that is surely for an other, must have care to discharge that he promiseth. 6. The slothful must learn diligence of the emmot, 12. The description of an Apostata. 16. Above other six bad things, God detesteth the sower of discord. 20. All are exhorted to keep God's law, 24. namely to flee fornication, and all occasions thereof.

{1} MY son if thou shalt be surely for thy friend, and hast made fast thy hand to a stranger, {2} thou art entrapped with the words of thy mouth, & caught with thine own words. {3} Do therefore my son that which I say, and deliver thy self, because thou art fallen into the hand of thy neighbour. Run diverse ways, make haste, raise thy friend. {4} Give not sleep to thine eyes, neither let thine eye-lids slumber. {5} Deliver thyself as a little doe from the hand, and as a bird from the hand of the fowler. {6} Go to the emmot, o sluggard, and consider her ways, and learn wisdom. {7} Who whereas she hath no guide, nor master, nor captain, {8} prepareth meat for herself in the summer, and gathereth in the harvest for to eat. {9} How long wilt thou sleep, o sluggard? When wilt thou rise out of thy sleep? {10} Thou shalt sleep a little, a little shalt thou slumber, a little shalt thou join thy hands to sleep: {11} and penury shall come to thee, as a wayfaring man, and poverty as a man armed. But if thou be not sluggish, thy harvest shall come as a fountain, and penury shall fly far from thee. {12} A man that is an Apostata, a man unprofitable, goeth with perverse mouth, {13} winketh with the eyes, treadeth with the foot, speaketh with the finger, {14} with wicked heart he deviseth evil, and at all time he soweth brawls. {15} To him his destruction shall come forthwith, and he shall suddenly be destroyed, neither shall he have remedy any more. {16} Six things there are which our Lord hateth, and the seventh his soul detesteth: {17} Lofty eyes, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent blood, {18} a heart that deviseth most wicked devises, feet swift to run into evil, {19} a deceitful witness that uttereth lies, and him that among brethren soweth discords. {20} My son keep the precepts of thy father, and leave not the law of thy mother. {21} Bind them in thy heart continually, and put them about thy throat. {22} When thou shalt walk, let them go with thee: when thou shalt sleep, let them keep thee, and awaking talk with them. {23} Because the commandment is a lamp, and the law a light, and the way of life the increpation of discipline: {24} that they may keep thee from the evil woman, and from the fair spoken tongue of the stranger. {25} Let not thy heart covet her beauty, be not caught with her becks: {26} for the price of an harlot is scarce worth one loaf: but a woman catcheth the precious soul of man. {27} Can a man hide fire in his bosom, that his garments burn not?

{28} Or walk upon hot coals, that his soles be not burnt? {29} so he that goeth in unto his neighbour's wife, shall not be clean when he shall touch her. {30} It is no great fault, when a man shall have stolen: for he stealeth to fill his hungry soul: {31} also being taken he shall restore sevenfold, and shall give up all the substance of his house. {32} But he that is an adulterer, for penury of heart shall destroy his own soul: {33} shame and ignominy he gathereth to himself, & his reproach shall not be blotted out. {34} Because the zeal and fury of the husband will not spare in the day of revenge, {35} neither will he yield to any man's prayers, neither will he take for redemption very many gifts.

He further exhorteth young men to seek wisdom, 5. especially to fly from the enticements of harlots, largely describing the same, 22. and the ruin of them that are so deluded.

{1} MY son keep my words, and my precepts hide with thee. Son, commandments, and thou shalt live: and {2} keep my law as the apple of thine eye: {3} bind it on thy fingers, write it in the tables of thy heart. {4} Say to wisdom, thou art my sister: & call prudence thy friend, {5} that she may keep thee from the strange woman, and from the foreigner which maketh her words sweet. {6} For out of the window of my house I looked out through the lattice, {7} and I see little ones, I behold a foolish youngman, {8} which passeth through the streets by the corner, and goeth nigh the way of her house, {9} in the dark the day being toward evening, in the darkness of the night, and dimness. {10} And behold the woman meeteth him in harlot's attire, prepared to deceive souls: babbling and wandering, {11} impatient of rest, nor able to consist in the house on her feet, {12} now abroad, now in the streets, now lying in wait near the corners. {13} And taking the youngman she kisseth him, and with malapert countenance speaketh fair, saying: {14} I vowed victims for welfare, this day I have payed my vows. {15} Therefore I am come forth to meet thee, desirous to see, and I have found thee. {16} I have woven my bed with cords, I have adorned it with tapestry pictured out of Aegypt. {17} I have sprinkled my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon. {18} Come let us be inebriated with breasts, and let us enjoy desired embracings, till the day appear. {19} For my husband is not at home, he is gone a very long journey. {20} he carried with him a bag of money: in the day of the full moon he will return to his house. {21} She entangled him with many words, and with flattery of lips drew him. {22} Immediately he followeth her as an oxe led to be a victim, & as a lamb playing the wanton, and not knowing that he is drawn as a fool to bonds, {23} till the arrow pierce his liver: as if a bird should make haste to the snare, and knoweth not that his life is in danger. {24} Now therefore my son, hear me, and attend to the words of my mouth. {25} Let not thy mind be drawn away in her ways: neither be thou deceived with her paths. {26} For she hath cast down many wounded, and all the most strong are slain by her. {27} Her house the ways of hell, penetrating to the inner parts of the death.

Wisdom is preached in conspicuous and most frequented places, that none may pretend want of admonition, 7. her doctrine is true, godly, profitable, & necessary to all sorts of men. 12. Wisdom (increased which is God himself) is eternal, 32. and bringeth eternal happiness.

{1} DOTH not wisdom cry, and prudence give her voice? tops over the way, in the midst of the {2} Standing in the high & lofty paths, {3} beside the gates of the city in the very doors she speaketh, saying: {4} O men, to you I cry, and my voice is to the children of men. {5} O little ones understand subtily, and ye unwise, mark. {6} Hear ye, because I will speak of great things: and my lips shall be opened to preach right things. {7} My throat shall meditate truth, and my lips shall detest the impious. {8} All my words are just, there is no wicked, nor perverse thing in them.

{9} They are right to them that understand, and just to them that find knowledge. {10} Receive ye discipline, & not money: choose doctrine rather than gold. {11} For wisdom is better than all most precious riches: and whatsoever is to be desired can not be compared to it. {12} I wisdom dwell in counsel, and am present in learned cogitations. {13} The fear of our Lord hateth evil: arrogancy, and pride, and wicked way, and a double tongued mouth I do detest. {14} Mine is counsel & equity, prudence is mine, strength is mine. {15} By me kings do reign, and the makers of laws decree just things. {16} By me Princes rule, and the mighty decree justice. {17} I love them that love me: and they that watch toward me shall find me. {18} With me are riches, and glory, glorious riches, and justice. {19} For my fruit is better than gold and precious stone, and my blossoms than chosen silver. {20} I walk in the ways of justice, in the midst of the paths of judgment, {21} that I may enrich them that love me, and may replenish their treasures. {22} Our Lord possessed me in the beginning of his ways, before he had made any thing from the beginning. {23} From eternity I was ordained & of old before the earth was made. {24} The depths were not as yet, and I was now conceived, neither had the fountains of waters as yet gushed forth: {25} the mountains with heavy hugeness stood not as yet: before the little hills I was brought forth: {26} he had not yet made the earth, and the rivers, and the poles of the round world. {27} When he prepared the heavens, I was present: when with a certain law and circuit he compassed the depths: {28} When he established the firmament above, & poised the fountains of water: {29} when he compassed the sea with her limits, and set a law to the waters that they should not pass their bounds: when he hanged the foundations of the earth, {30} I was with him framing all things: and was delighted every day, playing before him at all time, {31} playing in the world: & my delights to be with the children of men. {32} Now therefore children hear me: Blessed are they that keep my ways. {33} Hear ye discipline, and be wise, and reject it not. {34} Blessed is the man that heareth me, & that watcheth at my doors daily, & waiteth at the posts of my door. {35} He that shall find me shall find life, and shall draw salvation of our Lord: {36} but he that shall sin against me, shall hurt his own soul. All that hate me, love death.

Wisdom having built her house with seven pillars, inviteth all to a prepared banquet: 11. promising to multiply joyful days. 12. Folly incieth to her contrary banquet of stolen water and hid bread.

{1} WISDOM hath built herself an house, she hath cut out seven pillars. immolated her victims, mingled her wine, {2} She hath and set forth her table. {3} She hath sent her hand-maids to call to the tower, and to the walls of the city: {4} If any be a little one, let him come to me. And to the unwise she spake: {5} Come eat ye my bread, & drink the wine which I have mingled for you. {6} Leave infancy, and live, and walk by the ways of prudence. {7} He that teacheth a scorner doth injury to himself; and he that rebuketh the impious, purchaseth a blot to himself. {8} Rebuke not the scorner lest he hate thee. Rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee. {9} Give occasion to a wise man, and wisdom shall be added to him. Teach the just, and he shall make haste to take it. {10} The beginning of wisdom, the fear of our Lord: and the knowledge of the holy, prudence. {11} For by me shall thy days be multiplied, and years of life shall be added to thee. {12} If thou be wise, to thy self thou shalt be: and if a scorner, thou alone shalt bear the evil. {13} A foolish woman and clamorous, and full of allurements, and knowing nothing at all, {14} sat in the doors of her house upon a seat in a high place of the city, {15} to call them that pass by the way, and go on their journey: {16} he that is a little one, let him turn to me. And to the fool she spake: {17} Stolen waters are sweeter, and hidden bread more pleasant. {18} And he was ignorant that giants are there, and her guests in the depths of hell.

{1} A wise son maketh the father glad: but a foolish son is the sorrow of his mother. {2} The treasures of impiety shall profit nothing: but justice shall deliver from death. {3} Our Lord will not afflict with famine the soul of the just, and the deceitful practices of the impious he will overthrow. {4} The slothful hand hath wrought poverty: the hand of the strong getteth riches. Who so trusteth to lies feedeth the winds: and the self-same man followeth the flying birds. {5} He that gathereth in the harvest, is a wise son: but he that snorteth in summer, is the son of confusion. {6} The blessing of our Lord is upon the head of the just: but iniquity covereth the mouth of the impious. {7} The memory of the just is with praises: and the name of the impious shall rot. {8} The wise of heart shall receive precepts: a fool is beaten with lips. {9} He that walketh plainly, walketh confidently: but he that depraveth his ways, shall be manifest. {10} He that winketh with the eye, shall give sorrow: and the fool in lips shall be beaten. {11} A vein of life, the mouth of the just: and the mouth of the impious covereth iniquity. {12} Hatred raiseth brawls: and charity covereth all sins. {13} In the lips of the wise wisdom is found: and a rod on his back that lacketh wit. {14} Wise men hide knowledge: but the mouth of the fool is next to confusion. {15} The substance of a rich man, is a city of his strength: the fear of the poor their poverty. {16} The work of the just unto life: but the fruit of the impious unto sin. {17} The way of life, to him that keepeth discipline: but he that forsaketh reprehensions, erreth. {18} Lying lips hide hatred: he that uttereth contumely is unwise. {19} In much talk there shall not want sin: but he that moderateth his lips is most wise. {20} The tongue of the just, is chosen silver: but the heart of the impious is nothing worth. {21} The lips of the just teach very many: but they that are untaught, shall die in the penury of wit. {22} The blessing of our Lord maketh men rich: neither shall affliction be joined to them. {23} A fool worketh mischief as it were by laughter: but wisdom is prudence to a man. {24} That which the impious feareth, shall come upon him: to the just their desire shall be given. {25} As a tempest passing, the impious shall not be: but the just as an everlasting foundation. {26} As vinegar to the teeth, and smoke to the eyes, so a sluggard to them that sent him. {27} The fear of our Lord shall add days: and the years of the impious shall be shortened. {28} The expectation of the just is joy: but the hope of the impious shall perish. {29} The strength of the simple, the way of our Lord: and fear is to them that work evil. {30} The just for ever shall not be moved: but the impious shall not dwell on the earth. {31} The mouth of the just shall bring forth wisdom: the tongue of the froward shall perish. {32} The lips of the just, consider grateful things: and the mouth of the impious perverse things.

{1} A deceitful balance, is abomination before God: and an equal weight is his will. {2} Where pride shall be, there shall be contumely also: but where humility, there also wisdom. {3} The simplicity of the just shall direct them: and the supplanting of the perverse shall waste them. {4} Riches shall not profit in the day of revenge: but justice shall deliver from death. {5} The justice of the simple shall direct his way: and the impious shall fall in his impiety. {6} The justice of the righteous shall deliver them: and the unjust shall be caught in their deceitful practices. {7} The impious man being dead, there shall be no hope any more: and the expectation of the careful shall perish. {8} The just is delivered from distress: and the impious shall be given for him. {9} The dissembler with his mouth deceiveth his friend: but the just shall be delivered by knowledge. {10} In the good things of the just the city shall rejoice; and in the destruction of the impious there shall be praise. {11} With the benediction of the just the city shall be exalted: and by the mouth of the impious it shall be subverted. {12} He that despiseth his friend, lacketh heart: but the wise man will hold his peace. {13} He that walketh fraudulently, revealeth secrets: but he that is faithful, concealeth the thing committed of his friend. {14} Where there is no governor, the people shall fall: but there is health where is much counsel. {15} He shall be afflicted with evil, that is surely for a stranger: but he that is ware of the snares, shall be secure. {16} A gracious woman shall find glory: and the strong shall have riches. {17} A merciful man doth good to his kindred also. Benefacit animad suae vir misericors; qui autem crudelis est, etiam propinquos abjicit. {18} The impious maketh an unstable work: but to him that soweth justice, is a faithful reward. {19} Clemency prepareth life: & the pursuing of evil things death. {20} A perverse heart is abominable to our Lord: and his will is in them that walk simply. {21} Hand in hand the evil man shall not be innocent: but the seed of the just shall be saved. {22} A ring of gold in a swine's snout, a fair woman & a fool. {23} The desire of the just is all good: the expectation of the impious fury. {24} Some divide their own goods, and are made richer: others take violently not their own, and are always in poverty. {25} The soul which blesseth, shall be made fat: and he that inebriateth, himself shall also be inebriated. {26} He that hideth corn, shall be cursed among the peoples: but blessing upon the head of them that sell. {27} Well riseth he early who seeketh good things: but he that is a searcher after evil things, shall be oppressed of them. {28} He that trusteth in his riches shall fall: but the just shall spring as a green leaf. {29} He that troubleth his house, shall possess the winds: and he that is a fool shall serve the wise. {30} The fruit of the just man a tree of life: and he that gaineth souls, is wise. {31} If the just man receive in the earth, how much more the impious and sinner?

{1} HE that loveth discipline, loveth knowledge: but he that hateth reprobations is unwise. {2} He that is good, shall draw grace from our Lord: but he that trusteth in his own cogitations, doth impiously. {3} Man shall not be strengthened by impiety: and the root of the just shall not be moved. {4} A diligent woman is a crown to her husband: and putrefaction in his bones, she that doth things worthy of confusion. {5} The cogitations of the just are judgments: & the counsels of the impious are fraudulent. {6} The words of the impious lie in wait for blood: the mouth of the just shall deliver them. {7} Turn the impious, and they shall not be: but the house of the just shall be permanent. {8} A man shall be known by his doctrine: but he that is vain and foolish, shall lie open to contempt. {9} Better is the poor and sufficient to himself, than he that is glorious and wanteth bread. {10} The just knoweth the lives of his beasts: but the bowels of the impious are cruel. {11} He that tilleth his land, shall be filled with breads: but he that pursueth idleness is a very fool. He that is delighted in much quaffing of wine, leaveth contumely in his munitions. {12} The desire of the impious is the muniment of the most wicked: but the root of the just shall prosper. {13} For the sins of the lips' ruin approacheth to the evil man: but the just escapeth out of distress. {14} Of the fruit of his own mouth shall every man be replenished with good things, and according to the works of his hands it shall be repaid him. {15} The way of a fool is right in his eyes: but he that is wise heareth counsels. {16} A fool by & by sheweth his anger: but he that dissembleth injuries is wise. {17} He that speaketh that which he knoweth, is an utterer of justice: but he that lieth, is a fraudulent witness. {18} There is that promiseth, and is pricked as it were with the sword of conscience: but the tongue of the wise is health. {19} The lips of truth shall be stable for ever: but he that is an hasty witness, frameth a tongue of lying. {20} Guile is in the heart of them that think evil things: but joy followeth them that give counsels of peace. {21} It shall not make the just sorry what soever shall fall to him: but the impious shall be replenished with evil. {22} Lying lips are an abomination to our Lord: but they that do faithfully please him. {23} A circumspect man concealeth knowledge: and the heart of the unwise provoketh folly. {24} The hand of the strong shall rule, but that which is slothful, shall serve under tributes. {25} Pensiveness in the heart of a man shall humble him, & with a good word he shall be made glad. {26} He that neglecteth damage for a friend, is just: but the way of the impious shall deceive them. {27} The fraudulent man shall not find gain: and the substance of a man shall be the price of gold. {28} In the path of justice, life: but the by-way leadeth to death.

{1} A wise son is the doctrine of the father: but he that is a scorner, heareth not when he is rebuked. {2} Of the fruit of his own mouth man shall be filled with good things: but the soul of the prevaricators is wicked. {3} He that keepeth his mouth, keepeth his soul: but he that is unadvised to speak shall feel evils. {4} The sluggard will and will not: but the soul of them that work, shall be made fat. {5} The just shall detest a lying word: but the impious confoundeth, and shall be confounded. {6} Justice keepeth the way of the innocent: but impiety supplantheth the sinner. {7} There is one as it were with riches whereas he hath nothing: and there is as it were poor, whereas he is in much riches. {8} The redemption of a man's life, his riches: but he that is poor, beareth not reprehension. {9} The light of the just maketh glad: but the candle of the impious shall be extinguished. {10} Among the proud there are always brawls: but they that do all things with counsel, are ruled by wisdom. {11} Substance hastened shall be diminished: but that which by little and little is gathered with the hand, shall be multiplied. {12} Hope that is deferred afflicteth the soul: a tree of life the desire of ekoning. {13} Who so detracteth from any thing, he bindeth himself for the time to come: but he that feareth the precept, shall converse in peace. Guileful souls err in sins: the just are merciful & have pity. {14} The law of a wise man a fountain of life, that he may decline from the ruin of death. {15} Good doctrine shall give grace: in the way of contemners a whirlpool. {16} The subtle man doth all things with counsel: but he that is a fool openeth folly. {17} The messenger of the impious shall fall into evil: but a faithful legate, is health. {18} Poverty, and ignominy, to him that forsaketh discipline: but he that yieldeth to him that rebuketh, shall be glorified. {19} Desire if it be accomplished, delighteth the soul: fools detest them that fly evil things. {20} He that walketh with the wise, shall be wise: a friend of fools shall be made like. {21} Evil pursueth sinners, and to the just good things shall be repaid. {22} The good man leaveth heirs, sons, and nephews: and the substance of the sinner is kept for the just. {23} Much meat in the tilled grounds of the fathers: and to others they are gathered without judgment. {24} He that spareth the rod, hateth his child: but he that loveth him doth instantly nurture him. {25} The just eateth and filleth his soul: but the belly of the impious unsatisfiable.

hands destroy that also which is built. {2} He that walketh in the right way, & feareth God, is despised of him, that goeth an infamous way. {3} In the mouth of a fool the rod of pride: but the lips of the wise keep them. {4} Where oxen are not, the stall is empty: but where much corn is, there is the ox's strength manifest. {5} A faithful witness will not lie: but a deceitful witness uttereth a lie. {6} A scorner seeketh wisdom and findeth it not: the doctrine of the prudent is easy. {7} Go against a foolish man, and he knoweth not the lips of prudence. {8} The wisdom of a discrete man is to understand his way: and the imprudence of fools erreth. {9} A fool will laugh at sin, & among the just grace shall abide. {10} The heart that knoweth the bitterness of his soul, in his joy shall not the stranger be mingled. {11} The house of the impious shall be razed: the tabernacles of the just shall spring. {12} There is a way, which seemeth to a man just: but the later ends thereof lead to death. {13} Laughter shall be mingled with sorrow, and mourning occupieth the later ends of joy. {14} A fool shall be replenished with his ways, and the good man shall be above him. {15} The innocent believeth every word: the discrete man considereth his steps. {16} A wise man feareth and declineth from evil: the fool leapeth over and is confident. {17} The impatient man shall work folly: and the subtle man is odious. {18} The childish man shall possess folly, and the prudent shall expect knowledge. {19} The evil shall lie down before the good, and the impious before the gates of the just. {20} The poor shall be odious even to his neighbour: but the friends of the rich be many. {21} He that despiseth his neighbour, sinneth: but he that hath pity on the poor, shall be blessed. {22} They err that work evil: mercy and truth prepare good things. {23} In every work there shall be abundance: but where many words are, there is oftentimes poverty. {24} The crown of the wise, their riches: the folly of fools, imprudence. {25} A faithful witness delivereth souls: and the dissembler uttereth lies. {26} In the fear of our Lord is confidence of strength, and to his children there shall be hope. {27} The fear of our Lord a fountain of life, that he may decline from the ruin of death. {28} In the multitude of people the dignity of the king: and in fewness of people the ignominy of the Prince. {29} He that is patient, is governed with much wisdom: but he that is impatient, exalteth his folly. {30} Health of heart, the life of the flesh: envy, the putrefaction of the bones. {31} He that doth calumniate the needy, upbraidth his maker: but he honoureth him, that hath pity on the poor. {32} The impious shall be expelled in his malice: but the just hopeth in his death. {33} In the heart of the prudent resteth wisdom, & it shall instruct all the unlearned. {34} Justice advanceth a nation: but sin maketh peoples miserable. {35} A servant that understandeth is acceptable to the king: he that is unprofitable shall sustain his anger.

{1} A soft answer breaketh anger: and a hard word raiseth up fury. wise adorneth knowledge: the mouth of {2} The tongue of the fools boileth forth folly. {3} In every place the eyes of our Lord behold the good and the evil. {4} A peaceable tongue is a tree of life: but that which is immoderate, shall break the spirit. {5} A fool scorneth the discipline of his father: but he that regardeth reprehensions, shall become more prudent. In abundant justice there is greater force: but the cogitations of the impious shall be rooted out. {6} The house of the just is very much strength: and in the fruits of the impious is perturbation. {7} The lips of the wise shall sow knowledge: the heart of fools shall be unlike. {8} The victims of the impious are abominable to our Lord: the vows of the just are acceptable. {9} The way of the impious is abomination to our Lord: he that followeth justice is beloved of him. {10} The doctrine is evil of them that forsake the way of life: he that hateth reprehensions shall die. {11} Hell and perdition are before our Lord: how much more the hearts of the children of men? {12} The pestilent man loveth not him that rebuketh him: nor goeth to the wise. {13} A glad heart cheereth the face: in pensiveness of mind the spirit is cast down. {14} The heart of the wise seeketh doctrine: and the mouth of fools is fed with unskillfulness. {15} All the days of the poor are evil: a secure mind is as it were a continual feast. {16} Better is a little with the fear of our Lord, than great treasures and unsatisfiable. {17} It is better to be called to herbs with charity: than to a fatted calf with hatred. {18} An angry man stirreth brawls: he that is patient appeaseth those that are raised. {19} The way of the slothful is as an hedge of thorns: the way of the just is without offence. {20} A wise son maketh the father joyful: and the foolish man despiseth his mother. {21} Folly is joy to a fool: and the wise man directeth his steps. {22} Cogitations are dissipated where there is no counsel: but where many counsellors are, they are confirmed. {23} A man rejoiceth in the sentence of his mouth: and a word in due time is best. {24} The path of life above the learned, that he may decline from the lowest hell. {25} Our Lord will destroy the house of the proud: and will make sure the borders of the widow. {26} Evil cogitations are an abomination to our Lord: and pure speech most beautiful shall be confirmed of him. {27} He that pursueth avarice disturbeth his house: but he that hateth gifts shall live. By mercy and faith sins are purged: and by the fear of our Lord every one declineth from evil. {28} The mind of the just meditateth obedience: the mouth of the impious redoundeth with evils. {29} Our Lord is far from the impious: and he will hear the prayers of the just. {30} The light of the eyes rejoiceth the soul: a good name fatteth the bones. {31} The ear that heareth the reprehensions of life, shall abide in the midst of the wise. {32} He that rejecteth discipline, despiseth his soul: but he that yieldeth to reprehensions, is a possessor of the heart. {33} The fear of our Lord, the discipline of wisdom: and humility goeth before glory.

{1} IT pertaineth to man to prepare the heart: and to our Lord to govern the tongue. {2} All the ways of man are open to his eyes: our Lord is the weigher of spirits. {3} Reveal thy works to our Lord: and thy cogitations shall be directed. {4} Our Lord hath wrought all things for himself: the impious also to the evil day. {5} Every arrogant man is an abomination to our Lord: although hand shall be to hand he is not innocent. The beginning of a good way, is to do justice: and it is more acceptable with God, than to immolate hosts. {6} By mercy and truth iniquity is redeemed: and in the fear of our Lord evil is avoided. {7} When the ways of man shall please our Lord, he will convert also his enemies to peace. {8} Better is a little with justice, than much fruit with iniquity. {9} The heart of man disposeth his way: but it pertaineth to our Lord to direct his progress. {10} Divination is in the lips of the king, his mouth shall not err in judgment. {11} Weight and balance are judgments of our Lord: and his work all the stones of the bag. {12} They are abominable to the king that do impiously: because the throne is established by justice. {13} The will of kings are just lips: he that speaketh right things shall be beloved. {14} The king's indignation, messengers of death: and the wise man will pacify it. {15} In the cheerfulness of the king's countenance is life: and his clemency is as the later shower. {16} Possess wisdom, because it is better than gold: and get prudence, because it is more precious than silver. {17} The path of the just avoideth evils: the keeper of his soul keepeth his way. {18} Pride goeth before destruction, and before ruin the spirit shall be exalted. {19} It is better to be humbled with the meek, than to divide spoils with the proud. {20} The learned in word shall find good things: and he that hopeth in our Lord, is blessed. {21} He that is wise in heart, shall be called prudent: and he that is sweet in speech shall find greater things. {22} A fountain of life the learning of him that possesseth it: the doctrine of fools foolishness. {23} The heart of the wise shall instruct his mouth: and shall add grace to his lips. {24} Well set words are a honey comb: sweetness of the soul the health of the bones. {25} There is a way that seemeth to a man right: and the later ends thereof lead to death. {26} The soul of him that laboureth doth labour to himself, because his mouth hath compelled him. {27} The impious man diggeth evil, and in his lips fire burneth. {28} A perverse man raiseth contentions: and one full of words separateth Princes. {29} An unjust man allureth his friend: and leadeth him by a way not good. {30} He that with astonished eyes thinketh wicked things, biting his lips bringeth evil to pass. {31} A crown of dignity old age, which shall be found in the ways of justice. {32} Better is the patient than a strong man: and he that ruleth his mind, than the overthower of cities. {33} Lots are cast into the bosom, but they are ordered of our Lord.

{1} BETTER is a dry morsel with joy, than a house full of victims with brawling. {2} A wise servant shall rule over foolish children, and divide inheritance among brethren. {3} As silver is tried by fire, and gold in the furnace: so our Lord proveth the hearts. {4} The evil man obeyeth an unjust tongue: and the deceitful obeyeth lying lips. {5} He that despiseth the poor, upbraideth his maker: and he that rejoiceth at an other man's ruin, shall not be unpunished. {6} The crown of old men the children's children: and the glory of children their fathers. {7} Eloquent words become not a fool, nor lying lips a Prince. {8} A most grateful pearl, the expectation of him that expecteth: whither soever he turneth himself, he understandeth wisely. {9} He that concealeth offence, seeketh friendships: he that in other word repeateth it, separateth the confederate. {10} Reprehension doth more profit with a wiseman, than an hundred stripes with a fool. {11} An evil man always seeketh brawls: but a cruel angel shall be sent against him. {12} It is better to meet a bear when her young are taken away, than a fool trusting to himself in his own folly. {13} He that rendereth evil things for good, evil shall not depart from his house. {14} He that letteth water go, is the head of brawls: & before he suffer contumely, he forsaketh judgment. {15} He that justifieth the impious, and he that condemneth the just, both are abominable before God. {16} What doth it profit a fool to have riches, whereas he can not buy wisdom? He that maketh his house high, seeketh ruin: and he that refuseth to learn, shall fall into evils. {17} He loveth at all time that is a friend: and a brother is proved in distresses. {18} A foolish man will clap the hands, when he is surely for his friend. {19} He that meditateth discords, loveth brawls: and he that exalteth the door, seeketh ruin. {20} He that is of a perverse heart, shall not find good: and he that turneth his tongue, shall fall into evil. {21} A fool is born to his own ignominy: but neither shall the father rejoice in a fool. {22} A joyful mind maketh a flourishing age, a sorrowful spirit dryeth up the bones. {23} The impious receiveth gifts out of the bosom, that he may pervert the paths of judgment. {24} In the face of the prudent wisdom shineth: the eyes of fools are in the ends of the earth. {25} A foolish son is the anger of the father: and the sorrow of the mother that bare him. {26} It is not good to do hurt to the just: nor to strike the Prince, which judgeth right. {27} He that moderateth his words, is learned and prudent: and the learned man is of a precious spirit. {28} The fool also if he hold his peace, shall be reputed wise: and if he close his lips, a man of understanding.

{1} HE seeketh occasions that will depart from a friend: he shall ever be subject to reproach. {2} A fool receiveth not the words of prudence: unless thou say those things which are in his heart. {3} The impious when he shall come into the depth of sins, contemneth: but ignominy and reproach follow him. {4} Deep water, words from the mouth of a man: and a stream overflowing the fountain of wisdom. {5} To accept the person of the impious in judgment is not good, that thou decline from the truth of judgment. {6} The lips of a fool mingle him with strife: and his mouth provoketh brawls. {7} The mouth of a fool is his destruction: and his lips are the ruin of his soul. {8} The words of the double tongued, as it were simple: and the same come even to the inner part of the belly. Fear casteth down the slothful: and the souls of the effeminate shall be hungry. {9} He that is soft and dissolute in his work, is the brother of him that destroyeth his own works. {10} A most strong tower, the name of our Lord: the just runneth to it, and shall be exalted. {11} The substance of the rich man a city of his strength: and as a strong wall compassing him about. {12} Before he be broken, the heart of a man is exalted: and before he be glorified, it is humbled. {13} He that answereth before he hear, sheweth himself to be a fool, and worthy of confusion. {14} The spirit of a man upholdeth his imbecility: but a spirit that is easy to be angry who can sustain? {15} A wise heart shall possess knowledge: and the ear of the wise seeketh doctrine. {16} The gift of a man enlargeth his way, & maketh him room before Princes. {17} The just is first accuser of himself: his friend cometh, and shall search him. {18} Lot suppresseth contradictions, and between the mighty also it determineth. {19} Brother that is holpen of brother, is a strong city: and judgments are as the bars of cities. {20} Of the fruit of man's mouth his belly shall be filled: and the offsprings of his lips shall fill him. {21} Death and life in the hand of the tongue: they that love it, shall eat the fruits thereof. {22} He that hath found a good wife, hath found a good thing, and hath received a pleasure of our Lord. {23} The poor speaketh with supplications, and the rich will speak roughly. {24} A man amiable to society, shall be more friendly than a brother.

{1} BETTER is a poor man, that walketh in his simplicity, than a rich writhing his lips, and unwise. {2} Where is no knowledge of the soul, is not good: and he that is hasty with his feet shall stumble. {3} The folly of a man supplanteth his steps: and he boileth in his mind against God. {4} Riches add many friends: but from the poor they also which he had are separated. {5} A false witness shall not be unpunished: & he that speaketh lies, shall not escape. {6} Many worship the person of the mighty, and are friends of him that giveth gifts. {7} The brethren of the poor man hate him: moreover also his friends have departed far from him. {8} He that pursueth words only, shall have nothing: but he that is possessor of the mind, loveth his soul, and the keeper of prudence shall find good things. {9} A false witness shall not be unpunished: and he that speaketh lies shall perish. {10} Delicacies become not a fool: nor a servant to rule over Princes. {11} The doctrine of man is known by patience: and his glory is to overpass unjust things. {12} As the roaring of a lion, so also the anger of a king: and as dew upon grass, so also his cheerfulness. {13} The sorrow of the father, a foolish son: and roofs continually dropping through, a woman full of brawling. {14} House and riches are given of the parents: but of our Lord properly a prudent wife. {15} Slothfulness bringeth drowsiness, and a dissolute soul shall be an hungered. {16} He that keepeth the commandment, keepeth his soul: but he that neglecteth his way, shall die. {17} He lendeth our Lord that hath mercy on the poor: and he will repay him the like. {18} Nurture thy son, despair not: but to the killing of him set not thy soul. {19} He that is impatient shall sustain damage: and when he shall take away violently, he shall add an other thing. {20} Hear counsel, and receive discipline, that thou mayst be wise in thy later ends. {21} Many cogitations in the heart of a man: but the will of our Lord shall be permanent. {22} A needy man is merciful: and better is the poor than the lying man. {23} The fear of our Lord unto life: and in fullness he shall abide, without the visitation most noisome: {24} The slothful hideth his hand under the arm-hole, neither doth he put it to his mouth. {25} The pestilent man being whipped, the fool shall be wiser: but if thou rebuke a wiseman he will understand discipline. {26} He that afflicteth his father, and flyeth from his mother, is ignominious and unhappy. {27} Cease not, o son, to hear doctrine, neither be ignorant of the words of knowledge. {28} An unjust witness scorneth judgment: and the mouth of the impious devoureth iniquity. {29} Judgments are prepared for scorners: & hammers striking for the bodies of fools.

{1} WINE is a luxurious thing, & drunkenness tumultuous: whosoever is delighted therewith shall not be wise. {2} As the roaring of a lion, so also the terror of a king: he that provoketh him, sinneth also against his own soul. {3} It is honour to a man that separateth himself from contentions: but all fools meddle with contumelies. {4} Because of cold the slothful would not plow: he shall beg therefore in the summer, and it shall not be given him. {5} As deep water, so counsel in the heart of a man: but a wise man shall draw it out. {6} Many men are called merciful: but a faithful man who shall find? {7} The just that walketh in his simplicity, shall leave blessed children. {8} The king that sitteth in the throne of judgment, dissipateth all evil with his look. {9} Who can say: My heart is clean, I am pure from sin? {10} Weight and weight, measure and measure: both are abominable before God. {11} By his conversation a child is perceived, if his works be clean and right. {12} The ear hearing, and the eye seeing, our Lord made both. {13} Love not sleep, lest poverty oppress thee: open thine eyes and be filled with breads. {14} It is naught, it is naught, saith every buyer: and when he is departed he will boast. {15} There is gold, and multitude of pearls: but a precious vessel the lips of knowledge. {16} Take his garment, that was the surety of a stranger, and for strangers take a pledge from him. {17} The bread of lying is sweet to a man: and afterward his mouth shall be filled with the gravel stone. {18} Cogitations are strengthened by counsels: and battles are to be handled by governments. {19} Meddle not with him that revealeth mysteries, and walketh fraudulently, and dilateth his lips. {20} He that curseth his father, and mother, his lamp shall be extinguished in the midst of darkness. {21} The inheritance whereunto haste is made in the beginning, in the later end shall lack blessing. {22} Say not, I will requite evil: expect our Lord, and he will deliver thee. {23} Weight and weight are abomination with our Lord: a deceitful balance is not good. {24} The steps of man are directed of our Lord: but who of men can understand his own way? {25} It is ruin to a man to devour saints, and afterward to retract the vows. {26} A wise king dissipateth the impious, and bentheth over them a triumphant arch. {27} The Lamp of our Lord the breath of a man, which searcheth all the secrets of the belly. {28} Mercy & truth keep the king, and his throne is strengthened by clemency. {29} The joy of youngmen their strength: and the dignity of oldmen a gray head. {30} The blueness of the wound shall wipe away evils: and stripes in the more secret place of the belly.

{1} AS divisions of waters, so the heart of the king is in the hand of our Lord: whither soever he will, he shall incline it. {2} Every way of a man seemeth to himself right: but our Lord weigheth the hearts. {3} To do mercy and judgment, doth more please our Lord than victims. {4} Exaltation of the eyes is the dilation of the heart: the lamp of the impious, sin. {5} The cogitations of the strong are always in abundance: but every sluggard is always in poverty. {6} He that gathereth treasures with a lying tongue is vain and witless, and shall stumble at the snares of death. {7} The robberies of the impious shall draw them down, because they would not do judgment. {8} The perverse way of a man is strange: but he that is clean, his work is right. {9} It is better to sit in a corner of the house top, than with a brawling woman, and in a common house. {10} The soul of the impious desireth evil, he will not have pity on his neighbour. {11} The pestilent man being punished, the little one will be wiser: and if he follow the wiseman, he will take knowledge. {12} The just deviseth concerning the house of the impious, that he may draw the impious from evil. {13} He that stoppeth his ear at the cry of the poor, himself also shall cry and shall not be heard. {14} A gift hid quencheth angers: and a gift in the bosom the greatest indignation. {15} It is a joy to the just to do judgment: and dread to them that work iniquity. {16} A man, that shall err from the way of doctrine, shall abide in the assembly of giants. {17} He that loveth good cheer, shall be in poverty: he that loveth wine, and fat things, shall not be rich. {18} The impious shall be given for the just: and the unjust for the righteous. {19} It is better to dwell in a desert land, than with a brawling and angry woman. {20} Treasure to be desired, and oil in the habitation of the just: and the unwise man shall dissipate it. {21} He that followeth justice and mercy, shall find life, justice, and glory. {22} The wise hath scaled the city of the strong, and hath destroyed the confidence thereof. {23} He that keepeth his mouth, and his tongue, keepeth his soul from distresses. {24} The proud and arrogant is called unlearned, which in anger worketh pride. {25} Desires kill the slothful: for his hands would not work any thing: {26} all the day he longeth and desireth: but he that is just, will give, and will not cease. {27} The hosts of the impious abominable, because they are offered of wickedness. {28} A lying witness shall perish: an obedient man shall speak victory. {29} The impious man malapertly hardeneth his countenance: but he that is righteous, correcteth his way. {30} There is no wisdom, there is no prudence, there is no counsel against our Lord. {31} The horse is prepared to the day of battle: but our Lord giveth salvation.

{1} BETTER is a good name, than much riches: above silver and gold, good grace. {2} The rich and poor have met one an other: our Lord is the maker of both. {3} The subtle saw evil, and hid himself: the innocent passed by, and was afflicted with damage. {4} The end of modesty the fear of our Lord, riches and glory and life. {5} Armour and swords in the way of the perverse: but the keeper of his own soul departeth far from them. {6} It is a proverb: A youngman according to his way, when he is old will not depart from it. {7} The richman ruleth over the poor: and he that borroweth is the servant of him that lendeth. {8} He that soweth iniquity, shall reap evils, and with the rod of his wrath, he shall be consumed. {9} He that is prone to mercy shall be blessed: for of his breads he hath given to the poor. He that giveth gifts shall purchase victory and honour: but he that receiveth taketh away the soul of the giver. {10} Cast out the scorner, and brawling shall go forth with him, and cause shall cease and contumelies. {11} He that loveth cleanliness of heart, for the grace of his lips shall have the king his friend. {12} The eyes of our Lord keep knowledge: and the words of the just are supplanted. {13} The slothful saith: A lion is without, in the midst of the streets I am to be slain. {14} A deep pit the mouth of a strange woman: he with whom our Lord is angry, shall fall into it. {15} Folly is tied together in the heart of a child, and the rod of discipline shall drive it away. {16} He that doth calumniate the poor to increase his riches, himself shall give to a richer, and shall be in need. {17} Incline thine ear, and hear the words of wisemen: and set thy heart to my doctrine: {18} which shall be beautiful for thee, when thou shalt keep it in thy belly, and it shall flow in thy lips. {19} That thy confidence may be in our Lord, wherefore I have shewed also it to thee this day. {20} Behold I have described it to thee three manner of ways: in cogitations and knowledge: {21} that I might shew thee the stability, and the words of truth, out of these to answer them that sent thee. {22} Do not violence to the poor, because he is poor: neither oppress the needy in the gate: {23} because our Lord will judge his cause, and will pierce them, that have pierced his soul. {24} Be not friend to an angry man, nor walk with a furious man: {25} lest perhaps thou learn his paths, and take scandal to thy soul. {26} Be not with them that stick down their hands, and that offer themselves sureties for debts: {27} for if thou have not wherewith to restore, what cause is there that he should take the covering from thy bed? {28} Transgress not the ancient bounds, which thy fathers have put. {29} Hast thou seen a man quick in his work? He shall stand before kings, neither shall he be before the un noble.

{1} WHEN thou shalt sit to eat with a Prince, attend diligently what things are set before thy face: {2} and set a knife in thy throat, if notwithstanding thou have thy soul in thine own power. {3} Desire not his meats, in which is the breath of lying. {4} Labour not to be rich: but set a mean to thy prudence. {5} Lift not up thine eyes to the riches, which thou canst not have: because they shall make to themselves wings as of an eagle, and shall fly into heaven. {6} Eat not with an envious man, and desire not his meats. {7} Because after the similitude of a soothsayer, and diviner, he esteemeth that which he knoweth not. Eat and drink, will he say to thee: and his mind is not with thee. {8} The meats which thou hadst eaten thou shalt vomit up: and shalt lose thy beautiful words. {9} Speak not in the ears of the unwise: because they will despise the doctrine of thy speech. {10} Touch not the bounds of little ones: and into the field of pupils enter not. {11} For their near kinsman is strong: and he will judge their cause against thee. {12} Let thy heart enter into doctrine: and thine ears to words of knowledge. {13} Withdraw not discipline from a child: for if thou shalt strike him with the rod, he shall not die. {14} Thou shalt strike him with the rod: and deliver his soul from hell. {15} My son, if thy mind shall be wise, my heart shall be glad with thee: {16} And my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips shall speak right things. {17} Let not thy heart envy sinners: but in the fear of our Lord be thou all the day: {18} because thou shalt have hope in the later end, and thine exaltation shall not be taken away. {19} Hear my son, & be wise: & direct thy mind in the way. {20} Be not in the feasts of great drinkers, nor in their comissions, which contribute flesh together to eat: {21} because they that are given to drinking, and that pay shots, shall be consumed, {647} and drowsiness shall be clothed with rags. {22} Hear thy father, that begot thee: and contemn not thy mother when she is old. {23} Buy truth, and sell not wisdom, and doctrine, and intelligence. {24} The father of the just rejoiceth with gladness: he that hath begotten a wiseman, shall rejoice in him. {25} Let thy father be glad and thy mother, and let her rejoice that bare thee. {26} My son give me thy heart: & let thine eyes keep my ways. {27} For an harlot is a deep ditch: & a strange woman a narrow pit. {28} She lieth in wait in the way as a robber, and whom she shall see not circumspect, she will kill. {29} To whom is woe? To whose father woe? To whom brawls? To whom ditches? To whom wounds without cause? To whom blood-shedding eyes? {30} Is it not to them that pass their time in wine, and study to drink out their cups? {31} Behold not wine when it waxeth yellow, when the colour thereof shall shine in the glass: it goeth in pleasantly. {32} but in the end, it will bite like a snake, and as a basilisk it will pour abroad poisons. {33} Thine eyes shall see strange women, and thy heart shall speak perverse things. {34} And thou shalt be as one sleeping in the midst of the sea, and as the governor fast asleep, the stern being lost. {35} And thou shalt say: They have beaten me, but I was not grieved: they drew me, and I felt not: When shall I awake, and find wines again?

{1} EMULATE not evil men, neither desire thou to be with them: doth meditate robberies, and their lips {2} because their mind speak deceits. {3} By wisdom the house shall be built, and by prudence it shall be strengthened. {4} In doctrine the cellars shall be replenished with all precious and most beautiful substance. {5} A wiseman is strong: and a learned man, strong and valiant. {6} Because war is managed by due ordering: & there shall be salvation where many counsels are. {7} Wisdom is high for a fool, in the gate he shall not open his mouth. {8} He that thinketh to do evils, shall be called a fool. {9} The cogitation of a fool is sin: and a detractor the abomination of men. {10} If thou despair being weary in the day of distress: thy strength shall be diminished. {11} Deliver them that are led to death: and those that are drawn to death cease not to deliver. {12} If thou say, I am not of force: he that seeth into the heart, he understandeth, and nothing deceiveth the keeper of thy soul, and he shall render to man according to his works. {13} Eat honey my son, because it is good, and the honey-comb most sweet to thy throat: {14} so also the doctrine of wisdom to thy soul: which when thou shalt find, thou shalt have hope in the later end, and thy hope shall not perish. {15} Lie not in wait, nor seek impiety in the house of the just, nor spoil his rest. {16} For seven times shall the just fall, and shall rise again: but the impious shall fall into evil. {17} When thine enemy shall fall, be not glad, and in his ruin let not thy heart rejoice: {18} Lest perhaps our Lord see, and it displease him, and he take away his wrath from him. {19} Contend not with the most wicked, nor emulate the impious: {20} because evil men have not hope of things to come, and the lamp of the impious shall be extinguished. {21} Fear our Lord, my son, and the king: & with detractors meddle not: {22} because their perdition shall suddenly rise; and the ruin of both who knoweth? {23} These things also to the wise: to know a person in judgement is not good. {24} They that say to the impious: Thou art just; peoples shall curse them, and tribes shall detest them. {25} They that rebuke him, shall be praised: and blessing shall come upon them. {26} He shall kiss the lips, who answereth right words. {27} Prepare thy work abroad, and diligently till thy ground: that afterward thou mayst build thy house. {28} Be not witness without cause against thy neighbour: neither allure any man with thy lips. {29} Say not, As he hath done to me, so will I do to him: I will render to every one according to his work. {30} I passed by the field of the slothful man, and by the vineyard of a foolish man: {31} and behold nettles had filled it wholly, and thorns had covered the face thereof, and the wall of stones was destroyed. {32} Which when I had seen, I laid it in my heart, and by the example I learned discipline. {33} A little I say, thou shalt sleep, a little thou shalt slumber, a little shalt thou join thy hands together to rest: {34} and as a post, poverty shall come to thee, & beggary as a man armed.

{1} THESE also are the parables of Salomon, which the men of Ezechias king of Juda wrote out. {2} It is the glory of God to conceal the word, and the glory of kings to search the speech. {3} The heaven above, and the earth beneath, and the heart of kings is unscrutable. {4} Take away the rust from silver, and there shall come forth a most pure vessel: {5} Take away impiety from the king's countenance, and his throne shall be established with justice. {6} Appear not glorious before the king, and in the place of great men stand not. {7} For it is better that it be said to thee: Come up hither, than that thou be humbled before the Prince. {8} The things which thy eyes have seen, utter not quickly in a brawl: lest afterward thou canst not amend it, when thou hast dishonoured thy friend. {9} Treat thy cause with thy friend, and reveal not a secret to a stranger: {10} lest perhaps he insult against thee when he heareth, and cease not to upbraid thee. Grace and friendship deliver: which keep to thy self, lest thou become reproachful. {11} Apples of gold in silver beds, he that speaketh a word in his time. {12} A golden earlet, and a shining precious stone, he that rebuketh a wiseman, and an obedient ear. {13} As the cold of snow in the day of harvest, so a faithful legate to him that sent him, maketh his soul to rest. {14} Clouds, and wind, and no rain following, a glorious man, and not accomplishing his promises. {15} By patience the Prince shall be pacified, and a soft tongue shall break hardness. {16} Thou hast found honey, eat that which sufficeth thee, lest perhaps being filled thou vomit it up. {17} Withdraw thy foot from the house of thy neighbour, lest sometime having his fill he hate thee. {18} A dart, and sword, and a sharp arrow, a man that speaketh false testimony against his neighbour. {19} A rotten tooth, and weary foot, he that hopeth upon the unfaithful in the day of distress, {20} and that loseth his cloak in the day of cold. Vinegar in nitre, he that singeth songs to a naughty heart. As a moth the garment, and a worm the wood: so the sadness of a man hurteth the heart. {21} If thine enemy shall hunger, give him meat: if he thirst, give him water to drink: {22} for thou shalt heap hot coals upon his head, and our Lord will reward thee. {23} The north-wind dissipateth rains, & a sad look the tongue that detracteth. {24} It is better to sit in a corner of the house top, than with a brawling woman, and in a common house. {25} Cold water to a thirsty soul, and good tidings from a far country. {26} A fountain troubled with the foot, and a vein corrupted, the just falling before the impious. {27} As he that eateth much honey, it is not good for him: so he that is a searcher of the majesty, shall be oppressed of the glory. {28} As a city being open and without compass of walls, so a man that can not repress his spirit in speaking.

{1} AS snow in the summer, and rain in the harvest: so is glory undecent for a fool. {2} As a bird flying to other places, & a sparrow going whither he lift: so a curse uttered in vain shall light upon some man. {3} A whip for a horse, and a snaffle for an ass, and a rod on the back of the unwise. {4} Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou be made like to him. {5} Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he seem to himself to be wise. {6} Lame of feet, and drinking iniquity, he that sendeth words by a foolish messenger. {7} As a lame man hath fair legs in vain: so a parable is undecent in the mouth of fools. {8} As he that casteth a stone into the heap of Mercury: so he that giveth honour to the unwise. {9} As if a thorn should grow in the hand of the drunkard: so a parable in the mouth of fools. {10} Judgement determineth causes: and he that putteth a fool to silence, appeaseth angers. {11} As a dog that returneth to his vomit, so the unwise that reiterateth his folly. {12} Hast thou seen a man seem to himself wise? The fool shall have hope rather than he. {13} The slothful saith: A lion is in the way, and a lioness in the journeys: {14} as a door turneth on his hinge so the slothful in his bed. {15} The slothful hideth his hand under the arm-hole, and is grieved if he turneth it to his mouth. {16} The slothful seemeth wiser to himself, than seven men speaking sentences. {17} As he that taketh a dog by the ears, so he that passeth by impatient, and meddleth with an other man's brawl. {18} As he is hurtful that shooteth arrows and spears unto death: {19} so a man that hurteth his friend fraudulently: and when he is taken withal saith: I did it in jest. {20} When wood faileth, the fire shall be extinguished: and the whisperer taken away, brawls cease. {21} As coals to burning coals, and wood to fire, so an angry man raiseth brawls. {22} The words of the whisperer as it were simple, and the same come to the inmost parts of the belly. {23} As if thou wouldest adorn an earthen vessel with drossy silver, so swelling lips joined with a most wicked heart. {24} An enemy is perceived by his lips, when he shall handle deceipts in his heart. {25} When he shall submit his voice, believe him not: because there are seven mischiefs in his heart. {26} He that covereth hatred fraudulently, his malice shall be revealed in the councel. {27} He that diggeth a pit, shall fall into it: and he that rolleth a stone, it shall return to him. {28} A deceitful tongue loveth not truth, and a slippery mouth worketh ruins.

{1} BOAST not for to morrow, being ignorant what the day to come may bring forth. {2} Let an other praise thee, and not thine own mouth: a stranger and not thine own lips. {3} A stone is heavy, and sand weighty: but the anger of a fool is heavier than both. {4} Anger hath no mercy, nor fury breaking forth: and the violence of a moved spirit who can sustain? {5} Better is manifest correction, than love hidden. {6} Better are the wounds of him that loveth, than the fraudulent kisses of him that hateth. {7} A soul that is full shall tread upon the honeycomb: and a soul that is hungry shall take bitter also for sweet. {8} As a bird fleeting from her nest, so a man that forsaketh his place. {9} The heart is delighted with ointment and diverse odours: and with the good counsels of a friend the soul is sweetened. {10} Thy friend, and thy father's friend do not leave: and go not into thy brother's house in the day of thine affliction. Better is a neighbour near than a brother far off. {11} Study wisdom my son, & make my heart joyful, that thou mayst make answer to the upbraider. {12} The subtle man seeing evil, hideth himself: little ones passing through have sustained evil detriments. {13} Take his garment that hath been surety for a stranger: and for aliens take from him a pledge. {14} He that blesseth his neighbour with a loud voice, rising in the night, he shall be like him that curseth. {15} Roofs dropping through in the day of cold, and a brawling woman are compared together: {16} He that retaineth her, as he that should hold the wind, and shall call it the oil of his right hand. {17} Iron is sharpened with iron, and a man sharpeneth the face of his friend. {18} He that keepeth the figtree, shall eat the fruits thereof: and he that is the keeper of his master, shall be glorified. {19} As in waters the countenance of them that look therein shineth, so the hearts of men are manifest to the prudent. {20} Hell and perdition are never filled: in like manner also the eyes of men are unsatisfiable. {21} As silver is tried in the forge, and gold in the furnace: so a man is proved by the mouth of him that praiseth. The heart of the wicked seeketh after evils, but the righteous heart seeketh after knowledge. {22} If thou shall bray a fool in a mortar, as when a pestle striketh upon ptisane, his folly shall not be taken from him. {23} Know diligently the countenance of thy cattle, and consider thy flocks: {24} For thou shalt not have power always: but a crown shall be given into generation and generation. {25} The meadows are open, and the green herbs have appeared, and the grass is gathered out of the mountains. {26} Lambs for thy garment: and kids the price of the field. {27} Let the milk of the goats suffice thee for thy meats, and for the necessities of thy house: and for victual to thy hand-maids.

{1} THE impious flyeth, no man pursuing: but the just confident as a lion, shall be without terror. {2} For the sins of the land the Princes thereof shall be many: & for the wisdom of a man, & the knowledge of those things that are said, the life of the Prince shall be longer. {3} A poor man calumniating the poor, is like a vehement shower, whereby famine is gotten. {4} They that forsake the law, praise the impious: they that keep it, are set on fire against him. {5} Evil men think not on judgment: but they that seek after our Lord, mark all things. {6} Better is a poor man walking in his simplicity, than the rich in crooked ways. {7} He that keepeth the law is a wise son, but he that feedeth gluttons, shameth his father. {8} He that heareth together riches by usuries and ocker, gathereth them for him that is liberal to the poor. {9} He that turneth away his ears from hearing the law, his prayer shall be execrable. {10} He that deceiveth the just in a wicked way, shall fall into his destruction: and the simple shall possess his goods. {11} The rich man seemeth to himself wise: but the poor man being prudent shall search him. {12} In the exultation of the just there is much glory: when the impious reign, ruins of men. {13} He that hideth his wicked deeds, shall not be directed: but he that shall confess, and shall forsake them, shall obtain mercy. {14} Blessed is the man that is always fearful: but he that is of an obstinate mind, shall fall into evil. {15} A roaring lion, and hungry bear, an impious Prince over the poor people. {16} A Prince lacking prudence, shall oppress many by calumny: but he that hateth avarice, his days shall be made long. {17} A man that doth calumniate the blood of a soul, if he shall fly into a lake, no man abideth. {18} He that walketh simply shall be saved: he that goeth perverse ways, shall fall once. {19} He that tilleth his ground, shall be filled with breads: but he that pursueth idleness, shall be replenished with poverty. {20} A faithful man shall be much praised: but he that hasteneth to be rich, shall not be innocent. {21} He that knoweth a person in judgement, doth not well: this man even for a morsel of bread forsaketh the truth. {22} A man that hasteneth to be rich, and enviieth others, is ignorant that poverty shall come upon him. {23} He that rebuketh a man, shall afterward find favour with him, more than he that by flatteries of tongue deceiveth. {24} He that pilfereth any thing from his father, and from his mother: & saith this is no sin, is the partaker of a mankiller. {25} He that exalteith and dilateth himself, raiseth brawls: but he that trusteth in our Lord, shall be healed. {26} He that hath confidence in his own heart, is a fool: but who so walketh wisely shall be saved. {27} He that giveth to the poor, shall not lack: he that despiseth him that asketh shall sustain penury. {28} When the impious shall rise, men shall be hid: when they shall perish, the just shall be multiplied.

{1} THE man that with stiff neck contemneth him that rebuketh, sudden destruction shall come upon him: and health shall not follow him. {2} In the multiplication of just men, the common people shall rejoice: when the impious shall take princedom, the people shall mourn. {3} A man that loveth wisdom, maketh his father glad: but he that maintaineth harlots, shall destroy his substance. {4} A just king setteth up the land, a covetous man shall destroy it. {5} A man that with fair and feigned words speaketh to his friend, spreadeth a net to his steps. {6} A snare shall entangle the wicked man sinning: and the just shall praise and rejoice. {7} The just knoweth the cause of the poor: the impious is ignorant of knowledge. {8} Pestilent men dissipate a city: but the wise turn away fury. {9} A wise man, if he contend with a fool, whether he be angry, or whether he laugh, shall not find rest. {10} Men of blood hate the simple: but just men seek his soul. {11} A fool

uttereth all his spirit: a wiseman deferreth and reserveth till afterward. {12} A Prince that gladly heareth words of lying, hath all his servants impious. {13} The poor man and the creditor have met one an other: our Lord is illuminator of both. {14} The king that judgeth the poor in truth, his throne shall be replenished for ever. {15} Rod and rebuke giveth wisdom: but the child that is left to his own will, confoundeth his mother. {16} In the multiplication of the impious, wickedness shall be multiplied, and the just shall see the ruins of them. {17} Nurture thy son, and he shall refresh thee, and shall give delights to thy soul. {18} When prophecy shall fail, the people shall be dissipated: but he that keepeth the Law, is blessed. {19} A servant can not be taught by words: because he understandeth that which thou sayst, and contemneth to answer. {20} Hast thou seen a man swift to speak? Folly is rather to be hoped, than his amendment. {21} He that nourished his servant delicately from his childhood, afterward shall feel him stubborn. {22} An angry man provoketh brawls: and he that is easy to indignation, shall be more prone to sin. {23} Humiliation followeth the proud: and glory shall receive the humble of spirit. {24} He that is partaker with a thief, hateth his own soul: he heareth one adjuring, and telleth not. {25} He that feareth man, shall soon fall: he that trusteth in our Lord shall be lifted up. {26} Many seek after the face of the Prince: & the judgement of every one cometh forth from our Lord. {27} The just abhor an impious man: & the impious abhor them that are in the right way. The son that keepeth the word, shall be out of perdition.

A right wiseman thinketh humbly of himself 4. knowing that God's works are inscrutable, and perfect: 8. desireth truth in all things, & mediocrity in riches 11. Abhorreth certain sorts of men, 15. & certain execrable things. 18. Noteith certain things hard to be known: 21. other things intolerable, 24. others admirable. 32. The tongue dangerous.

{1} THE words of the Gatherer the son of Vomiter. The vision, that the man spake, with whom God is, and who being strengthened by God abiding with him, said: {2} I am most foolish of men, & the wisdom of men is not with me. {3} I have not learned wisdom, and have not known the science of saints. {4} Who hath ascended into heaven and descended? Who hath contained the spirit in his hands? Who hath bound the waters together as in a garment? Who hath raised up all the borders of the earth? What is his name, and what is the name of his son, if thou know? {5} Every word of God tried by fire, is a buckler to them that hope in him: {6} Add not any thing to his words, and so thou be reproved and found a liar. {7} Two things I have asked thee, deny them not to me before I die. {8} Vanity, and lying words make far from me. Beggary, and riches give me not: give only things necessary for my sustenance: {9} lest perhaps being filled I be allured to deny, and may say: Who is the Lord? Or being compelled by poverty I may steal, and forswear the name of my God. {10} Accuse not a servant to his master, lest perhaps he curse thee, and thou fall. {11} There is a generation that curseth their father, and that blesseth not their mother. {12} A generation, that seemeth to it-self clean, & yet is not washed from their filthiness. {13} A generation, whose eyes are lofty, and the eye-lids thereof set up on high. {14} A generation, that for teeth hath swords, and chaweth with their grinding teeth, that they may eat the needy out of the earth, and the poor from among men. {15} The horseleech hath two daughters that say: Bring, bring. Three things are unsatisfiable, the fourth never saith it sufficeth. {16} Hell, and the mouth of the matrice, & the earth which is not satisfied with water: but the fire never saith it sufficeth. {17} The eye that scorneth his father, & that despiseth the travail of his mother in bearing him, let the ravens of the torrents pick it out, and the young of the eagle eat it. {18} Three things are hard to me, and of the fourth I am utterly ignorant. {19} The way of an eagle in the air, the way of a serpent upon a rock, the way of a ship in the midst of the sea, and the way of a man in youth. {20} Such is also the way of an adulterous woman, which eateth, and wiping her mouth saith: I have done no evil. {21} By three things the earth is moved, and the fourth it cannot sustain. {22} By a servant when he shall reign: by a fool when he shall be filled with meat: {23} by an odious woman when she shall be taken in matrimony: & by a bond-woman when she shall be heir to her mistress. {24} There are four the least things of the earth, and they are wiser than the wise. {25} The ants, a weak people, which prepareth in the harvest meat for themselves: {26} The leveret, a people not strong, which placeth his bed in the rock: {27} The locust hath no king, and they go out all by their troops: {28} The stellion stayeth on his hands, & tarrieth in king's houses. {29} There are three things which go well, and the fourth that goeth happily. {30} The lion, the strongest of beasts shall fear at the meeting of none: {31} the cock girded about the loins, and the ram: also the king, against whom none can resist. {32} There is that hath appeared a fool after that he was lifted up on high: for if he had understood, he would have laid his hand upon his mouth. {33} And he that strongly presseth the paps to wring out milk, straineth out butter, and he that violently cleanseth his nose, wringeth out blood: & he that provoketh angers, bringeth forth discords.

An exhortation to chastity, temperance, 8. and to works of mercy. 10. with praise of a valiant wise woman.

{1} THE words of Lamuel the king. The vision wherewith his mother instructed him. {2} What o my beloved, what o the beloved of my womb, what o beloved of my vows? {3} Give not thy substance to women, & thy riches to destroy kings. {4} Give not to kings, o Lamuel, give not wine to kings: because there is no secret where drunkenness reigneth, {5} & lest perhaps they drink, & forget judgments, & change the cause of the children of the poor. {6} Give strong drink to them that be sad, and wine unto them that are of a pensive mind: {7} let them drink, and forget their poverty, and not remember their sorrow any more. {8} Open thy mouth to the dumb, & to the causes of all the children that pass: {9} open thy mouth, decree that which is just, & judge the needy & poor. {10} A valiant woman who shall find? Far, and from the utmost borders is the price of her. {11} The heart of her husband trusteth in her, and he shall not need spoils. {12} She shall render good, and not evil, all the days of her life. {13} She hath sought wool and flax, and hath wrought by the counsel of her hands. {14} She is become as a merchant's ship, bringing her bread from far. {15} And she hath risen in the night, and given prey to her household, and meats to her handmaids. {16} She hath viewed a field, and bought it, of the fruit of her hands she hath planted a vineyard. {17} She hath girded her loins with strength, and hath strengthened her arm. {18} She hath tasted, and seen that her traffic is good: her lamp shall not be extinguished in the night. {19} She hath put her hand to strong things, and her fingers have taken hold of the spindle. {20} She hath opened her hand to the needy, and stretched out her palms to the poor. {21} She shall not fear for her house in the colds of snow: for all her household are clothed with double. {22} Tapestry clothing she hath made to herself: silk and purple is her garment. {23} Her husband is noble in the gates, when he shall sit with the senators of the land. {24} She made sindon, and sold it, and delivered a girdle to the Chananeite. {25} Strength and beauty is her garment, and she shall laugh in the later day. {26} She hath opened her mouth to wisdom, and the law of clemency is in her tongue. {27} She hath considered the paths of her house, and hath not eaten her bread idle. {28} Her children arose, and commended her to be most blessed: her husband, and he praised her. {29} Many daughters have gathered together riches: thou hast passed them all. {30} Grace is deceitful and beauty is vain: the woman that feareth our Lord shall be praised. {31} Give ye to her of the fruit of her hands, and let her works praise her in the gates.

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES

All temporal things (in comparison of true felicity) are vain, 4. because they are mutable, 8. neither can any man attain perfect knowledge to his satisfaction: 12. as appeareth by Salomon's own experience.

{1} THE words of Ecclesiastes, the son of David, king of Jerusalem. said Ecclesiastes: vanity of vanities, and all {2} Vanity of vanities, things are vanity. {3} What hath a man more of all his labour, whereby he laboureth under the sun? {4} Generation passeth, and generation cometh: but the earth standeth for ever. {5} The sun riseth, and goeth down, and returneth to his place: and there rising again, {6} compasseth by the South, and bentheth to the North: compassing all things, goeth forward in circuit, & returneth unto his circles. {7} All rivers enter into the sea, and the sea overfloweth not: to the place, whence the rivers issue forth, they do return, that they may flow again. {8} All things are hard: man can not explicate them in word. The eye is not filled with seeing, neither is the ear filled with hearing. {9} What is that hath been? The same thing that shall be. What is that hath been done? The same that is to be done. {10} Nothing under the sun is new, neither is any man able to say: Behold this is new: for it hath already gone before in the ages that were before us. {11} There is no memory of former things: but neither of those things verily, which hereafter are to come, shall there be remembrance with them, that shall be in the later end. {12} I, Ecclesiastes have been king of Israel in Jerusalem, {13} and have proposed in my mind to seek and search wisely of all things, that are done under the sun. This very evil occupation hath God given to the children of men, that they might be occupied in it. {14} I have seen all things, that are done under the sun, and behold all are vanity, & affliction of spirit. {15} The perverse are hardly corrected, and the number of fools is infinite. {16} I have spoken in my heart, saying: Lo I have been made great, and have gone beyond all in wisdom, that were before me in Jerusalem: and my mind hath contemplated many things wisely, and I have learned. {17} And I have given my heart to know prudence, and doctrine, and errors, and folly: and I have perceived that in these also there was labour, and affliction of spirit, {18} for that in much wisdom there is much indignation: and he that addeth knowledge, addeth also labour.

Human delights are all vain: 4. as gorgeous buildings, fruitful vineyards, plenty of fish, cattle, servants, silver, gold, music: not satisfying man's desire. 18. Neither can any man know how his heir will behave himself.

{1} I said therefore in my heart: I will go, & flow in delights, and enjoy good things. And I saw that this also was vanity. {2} Laughter I have reputed error: and to joy I have said: Why art thou deceived in vain? {3} I have thought in my heart to withdraw my flesh from wine, that I might transfer my mind to wisdom, and might avoid folly, till I might see what should be profitable for the children of men: what is needful to be done under the sun, in the number of the days of their life. {4} I have magnified my works, I have built me houses, & planted vineyards, {5} I have made gardens, and orchards, and set them with trees of all kinds, {6} and I have made me ponds of waters, to water the wood of springing trees, {7} I have possessed men-servants and women-servants, and have had a great family: herds also, and great flocks of sheep, above all that were before me in Jerusalem: {8} I have heaped together to myself silver, and gold, and the substance of kings, and provinces: I made me singing men, & singing women, and the delights of the children of men: cups, and goblets to serve to pour out wines: {9} and I surpassed in riches all that were before me in Jerusalem: wisdom also hath persevered with me. {10} And all things that mine eyes desired, I have not denied to them: neither have I stayed my heart, but that it enjoyed all pleasure, & delighted it-self in these things, which I had prepared: and this I esteemed my portion, if I did use my labour. {11} And when I had turned myself to all the works which my hands had done, & to the labours wherein I had sweat in vain, I saw in all things vanity, and affliction of mind, & nothing to be permanent under the sun. {12} I passed further to contemplate wisdom, and errors, and folly (what is man, quoth I, that he can follow the King his Maker?) {13} and I saw that wisdom so much excelled folly, as light differeth from darkness. {14} The eyes of a wiseman are in his head: the fool walketh in darkness: and I have learned that there was one death of both. {15} And I said in my heart: if the fall of the fool & mine shall be one, what doth it profit me, that I have bestowed greater labour for wisdom? And speaking with my mind, I perceived that this also was vanity. {16} For there shall be no memory of the wise in like manner as of the fool for ever, and the times to come shall cover all things together with oblivion: the learned dieth in like manner as the unlearned. {17} And therefore I have been weary of my life, seeing all things under the sun to be evil, and all things vanity and affliction of spirit. {18} Again, I detested all mine industry, wherewith I have laboured under the sun most studiously, being like to have an heir after me: {19} whom I know not, whether he will be a wiseman or a fool, and he shall rule in my labours, wherewith I have sweat and have been careful: and is there any thing so vain? {20} Wherefore I ceased, and my heart hath renounced to labour any more under the sun. {21} For whereas one laboureth in wisdom, and doctrine, and carefulness, he leaveth the things gotten to an idle man: and this therefore is vanity, and great evil. {22} For what profit shall be to a man of all his labour, and affliction of spirit, wherewith he is vexed under the sun? {23} All his days are full of sorrows and miseries, neither by night doth he rest in mind: and is not this vanity? {24} Is it not better to eat and drink, and shew unto his soul good things of his labours? & this is of the hand of God. {25} Who shall so devour, and flow with delights as I? {26} To a man good in his sight, God hath given wisdom, and knowledge, and joy: but to the sinner he hath given affliction, and superfluous care, to add, and to gather together, and deliver it to him that hath pleased God: but this also is vanity, & vain carefulness of the mind.

Contrary things succeed in their seasons, and pass away: 9. whereof man getteth no perfect knowledge, how long soever he liveth, and laboureth to know them: 16. neither will there be equity where it ought to be in this world: 21. but in the next, good and evil shall be separated, and judged according to their deserts.

{1} ALL things have a time, and in their spaces all things pass under heaven, be born, & a time to die. A time to plant, {2} A time to & a time to pluck up that which was planted. {3} A time to kill, and a time to heal. A time to destroy, and a time to build. {4} A time to weep, & a time to laugh. A time to mourn, and a time to dance. {5} A time to disperse stones, and a time to gather. A time to embrace, and a time to be far from embracings. {6} A time to get, and a time to lose. A time to keep, and a time to cast away. {7} A time to rent, and a time to sow together. A time to keep silence, & a time to speak. {8} A time to love, and a time of hatred. A time of war, and a time of peace. {9} What hath man more of his labour? {10} I have seen the affliction, which God hath given to the children of men, that they may be distracted in it. {11} He hath made all things good in their time, and hath delivered the world to their disputation, and that man can not find the work, which God hath wrought from the beginning unto the end. {12} And I have known that there was no better thing than to rejoice, and to do well in his life. {13} For every man, that eateth and drinketh, and seeth good of his labour, this is the gift of God. {14} I have learned that all the works, which God hath made, persevere for ever: we can not add any thing, nor take away from those things, which God hath made that he may be feared. {15} That which hath been made, the same is permanent: the things that shall be, have already been: and God restoreth that which is past. {16} I saw under the sun in the place of judgement impiety, and in the place of justice iniquity. {17} And I said in my heart: the just and the impious God will judge, and then shall be the time of every thing. {18} I said in my heart of the children of men, that God would prove them, and shew them to be like beasts. {19} Therefore there is one death of man, and beasts, and the condition of both equal: as man dieth, so they also die: all things breathe alike, and man hath nothing more than beast: all things are subject to vanity, {20} and all things pass to one place: of earth they were made, and into earth they return together. {21} Who knoweth if the spirit of the children of Adam ascend upward, and if the spirit of beasts descend downward? {22} And I have found that nothing is better than for a man to rejoice in his work, and that this is his portion. For who shall bring him to know the things that shall be after him?

In this world many innocents are oppressed, 4. the potent sometimes envied, contemned, 15. and forsaken by their subjects, 17. especially when the superiors obey not God.

<{1} I turned my self to other things, and I saw the oppressions, that are done under the sun, and the tears of the innocents, and no comforter: & that they can not resist their violence, being destitute of all men's help. {2} And I praised rather the dead, than the living: {3} and happier than both have I judged him that is not yet born, nor hath seen the evils that are done under the sun. {4} Again I have contemplated all the labours of men, and their industries I have perceived to lie open to the envy of their neighbour: and in this therefore there is vanity, and superfluous care. {5} A fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh, saying: {6} Better is an handful with rest, than both hands full with labour and affliction of mind. {7} Considering I found also an other vanity under the sun: {8} There is one, and he hath not a second, not a son, not a brother, and yet he ceaseth not to labour, neither are his eyes satisfied with riches, neither doth he recount, saying: For whom do I labour, and defraud my soul of good things? In this also is vanity, and very ill affliction. {9} It is better therefore that two be together, than one: for they have profit of their society: {10} if one fall, he shall be stayed up of the other. Woe to him that is alone: because when he falleth, he hath none to lift him up. {11} And if two sleep together, they shall warm each other: one how shall he be warmed? {12} And if a man prevail against one, two resist him: a triple cord is hardly broken. {13} Better is a child that is poor and wise, than a king old and foolish, that knoweth not to foresee for hereafter. {14} Because out of the prison and chains sometime there cometh one forth to a Kingdom: and an other born in his Kingdom, is consumed with poverty. {15} I saw all men alive, that walk under the sun, with the second youngman, which shall rise up for him. {16} The number of the people, of all that have been before him is infinite: and they that shall be afterward, shall not rejoice in him. But this also is vanity, and affliction of spirit. {17} Take heed to keep thy foot, when thou enterest into the house of God, and approach thou to hear. For much better is obedience, than the victims of fools, who know not what evil they do.

Chapter 5

An exhortation to speak discreetly and reverently of God; 3. to perform vows; 6. not to be troubled with imaginations, nor present oppressions of the poor. 9. Avarice is never satiate, 11. riches sometimes cause sickness, ruin of the body, 18. and oblivion of God.

{1} SPEAK not any thing rashly, neither let thy heart be swift to utter a word before God. For God is in heaven, and thou upon the earth: therefore let thy words be few. {2} Dreams do follow many cares, and in many words folly will be found. {3} If thou hast vowed any thing to God, defer not to pay it: for an unfaithful and foolish promise displeaseth him. But whatsoever thou hast vowed, pay it: {4} and it is much better not to vow, than after a vow not to perform the things promised. {5} Give not thy mouth to make thy flesh to sin: neither say thou before the angel: There is no providence; lest perhaps God being wrath against thy words, dissipate all the works of thy hands. {6} Where many dreams are, there are many vanities, and words innumerable: but do thou fear God. {7} If thou shalt see the oppressions of the poor, and violent judgements, and justice to be subverted in the province, marvel not at this matter: because there is an other higher than the high, and over these also there are others more eminent: {8} and besides, the King of all the earth reigneth over his servant. {9} A covetous man shall not be filled with money: and he that loveth riches, shall take no fruit of them: and this therefore is vanity. {10} Where great riches are, there are also many that eat them. And what doth it profit the owner, but that he seeth the riches with his eyes? {11} Sleep is sweet to him that worketh, whether he eat much or little: but the satiety of the rich doth not suffer him to sleep. {12} There is also an other very ill infirmity, which I have seen under the sun: riches kept to the hurt of the owner. {13} For they perish in very evil affliction: he hath begotten a son, which shall be in great poverty. {14} As he came forth naked from his mother's womb, so shall he return, and shall take nothing away with him of his labour. {15} An infirmity utterly miserable; as he came, so shall he return. What doth it then profit him, that he hath laboured into the wind? {16} All the days of his life he eateth in darkness, and in misery, and in heaviness. {17} This therefore hath seemed good to me, that a man eat, and drink, and take joy of his labour, wherewith he hath laboured under the sun, the number of the days of his life, which God hath given him, and this is his portion. {18} And to every man, unto whom God hath given riches, and substance, and hath given him power to eat of them, and to enjoy his portion, and to rejoice of his labour: this is the gift of God. {19} For he shall not greatly remember the days of his life, because God doth occupy his heart with delights.

Riches make not men happy, because many die shortly: 3. and many rich men will not use their riches. 8. Likewise study to know all secret things is vanity, not felicity.

{1} THERE is also an other evil, which I have seen under the sun, and that frequent with men: {2} A man to whom God hath given riches, and substance, and honour, and nothing is lacking to his soul of all things, which he desireth: neither doth God give him power to eat thereof: but a strange man shall eat it up. This is vanity and great misery. {3} If a man shall beget an hundred children, and shall live many years, and have many days of age, and his soul use not the goods of his substance, and he lack burial: of this man I pronounce, that the untimely born is better than he. {4} For he came in vain, and passeth to darkness, and his name shall be clean forgotten. {5} He hath not seen the sun, nor known the distance of good and evil: {6} although he lived two thousand years, and hath not enjoyed good things: do not all things hasten to one place? {7} All the labour of man is in his mouth: but his soul shall not be filled. {8} What hath the wiseman more than the fool? And what the poor man, but to pass thither, where life is? {9} Better it is to see that, which thou mayst covet, than to desire that, which thou canst not know. But this also is vanity, and presumption of spirit. {10} He that shall be, his name is already called: and it is known, that he is a man, and can not contend in judgement against a stronger than himself. {11} There be many words, that have much vanity in disputing.

It is in vain to seek, and impossible to know all natural things. 2. It importeth to lead this short life in mortification, 4. penance, 8. and patience: 12. seeking wisdom, with competent temporal means; 15. providing for the next world; 24. not yielding to concupiscence.

{1} WHAT needeth a man to seek things greater than himself, whereas he is ignorant, what is profitable for him in his life, in the number of the days of his peregrination, and the time that passeth as a shadow? Or who can tell him what shall be after him under the sun? {2} Better is a good name than precious ointments: and the day of death, than the day of nativity. {3} It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to the house of banqueting, for in that the end of all men is signified, and he that liveth thinketh what shall be. {4} Anger is better than laughter: because by sadness of the countenance, the mind of the offender is corrected. {5} The heart of wisemen where sadness is, and the heart of fools where mirth. {6} It is better to be rebuked of a wiseman, than to be deceived with the flattery of fools. {7} Because as the sound of thorns burning under a pot, so the laughter of a fool: but this also is vanity. {8} Oppression troubleth the wise, and shall destroy the strength of his heart. {9} Better is the end of a speech, than the beginning. Better is the patient man than the arrogant. {10} Be not quickly angry, because anger resteth in the bosom of a fool. {11} Say not: What is the cause thinkest thou that the former times were better than they are now? For this manner of question is foolish. {12} Wisdom with riches is more profitable, and doth more profit them that see the sun. {13} For as wisdom protecteth, so money protecteth. But learning and wisdom have this much more, that they give life to their owner. {14} Consider the works of God, that no man can correct whom he hath despised. {15} In the good day enjoy good things, and beware before of the evil day. For as this, so that also hath God made, that man find not against him just complaints. {16} These things also I saw in the days of my vanity: The just man perisheth in his justice, and the impious liveth a long time in his malice. {17} Be not just too much: neither be more wise than is necessary, lest thou become more dull. {18} Do not impiously much: and be not foolish, lest thou die not in thy time. {19} It is good that thou hold up the just, yea and from him withdraw not thy hand: because he that feareth God, neglecteth nothing. {20} Wisdom hath strengthened the wise above ten Princes of the city. {21} For there is no just man in the earth, that doth good, and sinneth not. {22} But to all words also that are spoken, do not apply thy heart: lest perhaps thou hear thy servant cursing thee. {23} For thy conscience knoweth, that thou also hast cursed others. {24} I have proved all things in wisdom. I have said: I will become wise, & it departed farther from me {25} much more than it was: and a deep profoundy, who shall find it? {26} I have viewed all things with my mind, that I might know, and consider, and might seek wisdom and reason: and that I might know the impiety of the fool, and the error of the imprudent: {27} and I have found that a woman is more bitter than death, who is the snare of hunters, and her heart a net, her hands are bands. He that pleaseth God, will avoid her: but he that is a sinner, will be caught of her. {28} Lo this have I found, said Ecclesiastes, one thing and an other, that I might find reason, {29} which yet my soul seeketh, and I have not found it. A man of a thousand I have found one, a woman of all I have not found. {30} Only this I have found, that God made man right, and he hath entangled himself with infinite questions. Who is such a one as the wise? And who hath known the resolution of the word.

A sign of true wisdom appeareth in observing God's commandments, 6. in this short time of meriting eternal reward. 9. Rule of others, 11. and want of fear hurt many. 14. Why God suffereth the wicked to prosper, and the just to be afflicted in this life, no mortal man can know.

{1} THE wisdom of a man shineth in his countenance, and the most mighty will change his face. {2} I observe the mouth of the king, and the precepts of the oath of God. {3} Hasten not to depart from his face, nor continue thou in an evil work: because all that he pleaseth he will do, {4} and his word is full of power: neither can any man say to him. Why dost thou so: {5} He that keepeth the precept, shall find no evil. The heart of a wiseman understandeth time and answer. {6} There is a time for all business, and opportunity, and much affliction of man: {7} because he is ignorant of things past, and things to come he can know by no messenger. {8} It is not in man's power to prohibit the spirit, neither hath he power in the day of death, neither is he suffered to rest when war is at hand, neither shall impurity save the impious. {9} All these things I have considered, and gave my heart on all the works that are done under the sun. Sometime man ruleth over man to his own hurt. {10} I saw the impious buried: who also when they yet lived, were in holy place, and were praised in the city as men of just works. But this also is vanity. {11} Because sentence is not speedily pronounced against the evil, the children of men commit evils without any fear. {12} But yet a sinner by this that he doth evil an hundred times, & by patience is borne withal, I know that it shall be good to them that fear God, which dread his face. {13} Let there be no good to the impious, neither let his days be prolonged, but as a shadow let them pass, that fear not the face of our Lord. {14} There is also an other vanity, which is done upon the earth. There are just men, to whom evils happen, as though they had done the works of the impious: and there are impious men, which are so secure, as though they had the deeds of the just. But this also I judge most vain. {15} I therefore have praised mirth, that there was no good thing for a man under the sun, but that he should eat, and drink, and be glad: and this only he should take away with him of his labour in the days of his life, which God hath given him under the sun. {16} And I have set my heart to know wisdom, and to understand the distraction that is in the earth: There is a man that days and nights taketh no sleep with his eyes. {17} And I understood that man can find no reason of all those works of God, that are done under the sun: and the more he shall labour to seek. So much the less he can find: yea if the wiseman shall say that he knoweth, he is not able to find it.

None knoweth (certainly and ordinarily) whether they be in God's grace or no. 4. The evil are in worse case dead than alive: 11. neither can we know the event of temporal things, nor the term of our life, nor how grateful others will be towards us. 16. Sure it is, that wisdom is better than strength.

{1} ALL these things have I discoursed in my heart, that I might curiously understand them: there are just men and wise: and their works are in the hand of God: and yet man knoweth not whether he be worthy of love or hatred: {2} but all things are reserved uncertain for the time to come, because all things do equally chance to the just and impious, to the good and the evil, to the clean and unclean, to him that immolateth victims, and him that contemneth sacrifices. As the good, so also is the sinner: as the perjured, so he also that sweareth truth. {3} This is a very evil thing among all which are done under the sun, that the same things chance to all men. Whereby also the hearts of the children of men are filled with malice, and with contempt in their life, and after that they shall be brought down to hell. {4} There is no man that may live always, and that can have confidence of this thing: better is a dog living than a lion dead. {5} For the living know that they shall die, but the dead know nothing more, neither have they reward any more: because the memory of them is forgotten. {6} Love also and hatred, and envies have perished together, neither have they part in this world, and in the work that is done under the sun. {7} Go therefore and eat thy bread in joy, & drink thy wine with gladness: because thy works please God. {8} At all time let thy garments be white, and let not oil fall from off thy head. {9} Enjoy life, with thy wife whom thou lovest, all the days of the life of thy instability, which are given to thee under the sun, all the time of thy vanity: for this is the portion in life, and in thy labour, wherewith thou labourest under the sun. {10} Whatsoever thy hand is able to do, work it instantly: for neither work, nor reason, nor wisdom, nor knowledge shall be in hell, whither thou dost hasten. {11} I turned me to an other thing, and I saw under the sun, that neither running is of the swift, nor war of the strong, nor bread of the wise, nor riches of the learned, nor grace of the artificers: but time and chance in all. {12} Man knoweth not his own end: but as fishes are taken with the hook, and as birds are caught with the snare, so men are taken in the evil time, when it shall suddenly come upon them. {13} This wisdom also I have seen under the sun and have proved it to be very great: {14} A little city, and few men in it: there came against it a great king, and compassed it, and buldled forts round about, and the siege was perfited. {15} And there was found in it a man poor and wise, and he delivered the city by his wisdom, and no man afterward remembered that poorman. {16} And I said, that wisdom is better than strength: how then was the wisdom of the poorman contemned, & his words were not heard? {17} The words of the wise are heard in silence, more than the cry of a Prince among fools. {18} Better is wisdom, than weapons of war: and he that shall offend in one point, shall lose many good things.

Considering the great difference between wisdom and folly. 4. it behoveth to resist vehement temptations diligently. 5. As when evil & ignorant men have authority over the wise. 8. The wicked often fall into their own snares. 10. are hard, yet not impossible to be corrected. 11. Detractors are like serpents. 12. wise grave Princes are profitable; childish are hurtful to the commonwealth; 18. which by their negligence tendeth to ruin: 20. yet subjects ought not to judge evil of them.

{1} FLIES dying mar the sweetness of ointment. Wisdom and glory is more precious, than a little and temporal folly. {2} The heart of a wiseman is in his right hand, and the heart of a fool is in his left hand. {3} Yea and the fool walking in the way, whereas himself is unwise, esteemeth all men fools. {4} If the spirit of him that hath power, ascend upon thee, leave not thy place: because carefulness will make the greatest sins to cease. {5} There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, as it were by error proceeding from the face of the Prince: {6} a fool set in high dignity, and the rich to sit beneath. {7} I have seen servants upon horses: and Princes walking on the ground as servants. {8} He that diggeth a pit, shall fall into it: and he that breaketh the hedge, a serpent shall bite him. {9} He that removeth stones, shall be afflicted in them: and he that cutteth trees, shall be wounded of them. {10} If the iron shall be blunt, and that not as before, but shall be made blunt, it shall be sharpened by great labour: and after industry shall wisdom follow. {11} If a serpent bite in silence, nothing less than it hath he, that detracteth secretly. {12} The words of the mouth of a wiseman grace: and the lips of the unwise shall throw him down headlong. {13} The beginning of his words is folly, and the later end of his mouth is most wicked error. {14} A fool multiplieth words. A man is ignorant what hath been before him: and what shall be after him, who can tell him? {15} The labour of fools shall afflict them, that know not to go into the city. {16} Woe to thee o land, whose king is a child, and whose Princes eat in the morning. {17} Blessed is the land whose king is noble, & whose Princes eat in their time, to refection, and not to riotousness. {18} In slothfulness the roof of the house shall go to ruin, & in the infirmity of the hands the house shall drop through. {19} They make bread for laughter, and wine, that living they may make merry: and to money all things obey. {20} In thy cogitation detract not from the king, and in the secret of thy chamber curse not the richman: because even the birds of the air will carry thy voice, and he that hath wings will declare the sentence.

Works of mercy are necessary, whilst we have time, 3. because after death none can merit: 4. neither must we differ to begin, nor cease from good deeds, 8. but still be mindful of death and judgement: 10. avoiding wrath and malice.

{1} CAST thy bread upon the passing waters: because after much time thou shalt find it. {2} Give a portion to seven, and also to eight: because thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth: {3} If the clouds be full, they will pour out rain upon the earth. If the tree shall fall to the South, or the North, in what place soever it shall fall there shall it be. {4} He that observeth the wind, soweth not: and he that considereth the clouds, shall never reap. {5} As thou art ignorant which is the way of the spirit, & how the bones are framed together in the womb of her that conceiveth child: so thou knowest not the works of God, who is the maker of all. {6} In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening let not thy hand cease: for thou knowest not which may rather spring, this or that: and if both together, it shall be the better. {7} The light is sweet: and it is delectable for the eyes to see the sun. {8} If a man shall live many years, and shall have rejoiced in them all, he must remember the darksome time, and many days, which when they shall come, the things past shall be reproved of vanity. {9} Rejoice therefore youngman in thy youth, and let thy heart be in good, in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thy heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: and know that for all these God will bring thee into judgement. {10} Take away anger from thy heart, and remove malice from thy flesh. For youth and pleasure are vain.

In youth is fittest time, and most meritorious to serve God. In age the same is more and more necessary, but harder than to begin, and less grateful. 8. In this book the preacher hath shewed, that all worldly things are vanity, 13. and that true felicity is only procured by wisdom, which consisteth in the fear of God, and observation of his commandments.

{1} REMEMBER thy creator in the days of thy youth, before the time of affliction come, & the years approach, of which thou mayst say: They please me not: {2} before the sun, and light, and moon, and stars be dark, and the clouds return after the rain: {3} when the keepers of the house shall be moved, and the strongest men shall stagger, and the grinders shall be idle in a small number: and they shall wax dark that look through the holes: {4} and they shall shut the doors in the street, at the baseness of the grinder's voice, and they shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of song shall be deaf. {5} The high things also shall fear, and they shall be afraid in the way, the almond tree shall flourish, the locust shall be fatted, and the caper tree shall be destroyed: because man shall go into the house of his eternity, and the mourners shall go round about in the street. {6} Before the silver cord be broken, and the golden head-band recur, and the water-pot be broken upon the fountain, and the wheel be broken upon the cistern, {7} and the dust return into his earth, from whence it was, and the spirit return to God, who gave it. {8} Vanity of vanities, said Ecclesiastes, and all things vanity. {9} And whereas Ecclesiastes was most wise, he taught the people, and declared the things that he had done: and searching forth made many parables. {10} He sought profitable words, and wrote words most right, and full of truth. {11} The words of wisemen are as pricks, and as nails deeply stricken in, which by the counsel of masters are given of one pastor. {12} More than these my son require not. Of making many books there is no end: and often meditation is affliction of the flesh. {13} Let us all hear together the end of speaking. Fear God, and observe his commandments: for this is every man: {14} and all things that are done, God will bring into judgement for every error, whether it be good or evil.

THE CANTICLE OF CANTICLES

{1} LET him kiss me with the kiss of his mouth: because thy breasts are better than wine. {2} smelling fragrantly of the best ointments. Oil poured out is thy name: therefore have young maids loved thee. {3} Draw me: we will run after thee in the odour of thine ointments. The king hath brought me into his cellars: we will rejoice & be glad in thee, mindful of thy breasts above wine: the righteous love thee. {4} I am black but beautiful, o ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tabernacles of Cedar, as the skins of Salomon. {5} Do not consider me that I am brown, because the sun hath altered my colour: the sons of my mother have fought against me, they have made me a keeper in the vineyards: my vineyard I have not kept. {6} Shew me o thou, whom my soul loveth, where thou feedest, where thou liest in the midday, lest I begin to wander after the flocks of thy companions. {7} If thou know not thy self, o most fairest among women, go forth, and follow after the steps of the flocks, and feed thy kids beside the tabernacles of the pastors. {8} To my company of horsemen, in the chariots of Pharao, have I likened thee, o my love. {9} Thy cheeks are beautiful as the turtle-doves, thy neck as jewels. {10} We will make thee chains of gold, enamelled with silver. {11} Whilst the king was at his repose, my spikenard gave the odour thereof. {12} A bundle of myrrh my beloved is to me, he shall abide between my breasts. {13} A cluster of cypress my love is to me, in the vineyards of Engaddi. {14} Behold thou art fair, o my love, behold thou art fair, thine eyes are as of doves'. {15} Behold thou are fair my beloved, & comely: our little bed is flourishing. {16} The beams of our houses are of cedar, our rafters of cypress trees.

{1} I am the flower of the field, and the lily of the valleys. thorns, so is my love among the {2} As the lily among the daughters. {3} As the apple-tree among trees of the woods, so is my beloved among the sons. Under his shadow, whom I desired, I sat: and his fruit was sweet unto my throat. {4} He brought me into the wine cellar, he hath ordered in me charity. {5} Stay me up with flowers, compass me about with apples: because I languish with love. {6} His left hand under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me. {7} I adjure you o daughters of Jerusalem, by the roes, and the harts of the fields that you raise not, nor make the beloved to awake, until her self will. {8} The voice of my beloved, behold he cometh leaping in the mountains, leaping over the little hills: {9} my beloved is like unto a roe, and to a fawn of harts. Behold he standeth behind our wall, looking through the window, looking forth by the grates. {10} Behold my beloved speaketh to me: Arise, make haste my love, my dove, my beautiful one, and come. {11} For winter is now past, the rain is gone, and departed. {12} The flowers have appeared in our land, the time of pruning is come: the voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land: {13} the fig-tree hath brought forth her green figs: the flourishing vineyards have given their savour. Arise my love, my beautiful one, & come. {14} My dove in the holes of the rock, in the hollow places of the wall, shew me thy face, let thy voice sound in mine ears: for thy voice is sweet, and thy face comely. {15} Catch us the little foxes, that destroy the vineyards: for our vineyard hath flourished. {16} My beloved to me, and I to him, who feedeth among the lilies, {17} till the day break, and the shadows decline. Return: be like, my beloved, to a roe, and to the fawn of harts upon the mountains of Bether.

{1} IN my little bed in the nights I have sought him whom my soul loveth, I have sought him, and have not found. {2} I will rise, and will go about the city: by the streets and high ways I will seek him whom my soul loveth: I have sought him, and have not found. {3} The watchmen which keep the city found me: Have you seen him, whom my soul loveth? {4} When I had a little passed by them, I found him whom my soul loveth: I held him: neither will I let him go, till I bring him into my mother's house, and into the chamber of her that bare me. {5} I adjure you, o daughters of Jerusalem by the roes, and the harts of the fields, that you raise not up, nor make the beloved to awake, till herself will. {6} What is she, that ascendeth by the desert, as a little rod of smoke of the aromatical spices of myrrh and frankincense, & of all powder of the apothecary? {7} Behold threescore valiants of the most valiant of Israel, compass the little bed of Salomon: {8} all holding swords, and most cunning to battles: every man's sword upon his thigh for fears by night. {9} King Salomon hath made him a portable throne of the wood of Libanus: {10} the pillars thereof he hath made of silver, the seat of gold, the going up of purple: the midst he hath paved with charity for the daughters of Jerusalem. {11} Go forth ye daughters of Sion, and see king Salomon in the diadem, wherewith his mother hath crowned him in the day of his despousing, and in the day of the joy of his heart.

{1} HOW beautiful art thou my love, how beautiful art thou! Thine eyes as it were of doves', besides that which lieth hid within. Thy ears as the flocks of goats, which have come up from mount Galaad. {2} Thy teeth as flocks of them that are shorn, which have come up from the lavatory, all with twins, and there is no barren among them. {3} Thy lips as a scarlet lace: and thy speech sweet. As a piece of a pomegranate, so are also thy cheeks, besides that which lieth hid within. {4} Thy neck is as the tower of David, which is built with bulwarks: a thousand targets hang on it, all the armour of the valiants. {5} Thy two breasts as two fawns the twins of a row, which feed among the lilies, {6} till the day aspire, and the shadows decline. I will go to the mount of myrrh, and to the little hill of frankincense. {7} Thou art all fair o my love, and there is not a spot in thee. {8} Come from Libanus my spouse, come from Libanus, come: thou shalt be crowned from the head of Amana, from the top of Sanir & Hermon, from the dens of lions, from the mountains of leopards. {9} Thou hast wounded my heart, my sister, spouse, thou hast wounded my heart in one of thine eyes, and in one hair of thy neck. {10} How beautiful are thy breasts my sister, spouse! Thy breasts are more beautiful than wine, and the odour of thine ointments above all aromatical spices. {11} Thy lips my spouse are as an honey-comb distilling, honey and milk are under thy tongue: and the odour of thy garments as the odour of frankincense. {12} My sister, spouse is a garden inclosed, a garden inclosed, a fountain sealed up. {13} Thy offsprings a paradise of pomegranates with orchard fruits. Cypress with spikenard, {14} spikenard, and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon, with all the trees of Libanus, myrrh and aloes with all the chief ointments. {15} The fountain of gardens: the well of living waters, which run with violence from Libanus. {16} Arise Northwind, & come Southwind, blow through my garden, and let the aromatical spices thereof flow.

{1} LET my beloved come into his garden, and eat the fruit of his apple-trees. I am come into my garden o my sister, spouse, I have reaped my myrrh, with mine aromatical spices: I have eaten the honey-comb with mine honey, I have drunk my wine with my milk: eat o friends, and drink, and be inebriated my dearest. {2} I sleep, and my heart watcheth: the voice of my beloved knocking: Open to me my sister, my love, my dove, mine immaculate: because my head is full of dew, and my locks of the drops of the nights. {3} I have spoiled my self of my robe, how shall I be clothed with it? I have washed my feet, how shall I defile them? {4} My beloved put his hand through the hole, and my belly trembled at his touch. {5} I arose, that I might open to my beloved: my hands have distilled myrrh, and my fingers are full of most approved myrrh. {6} I opened the bolt of my door to my beloved: but he had turned aside, and was passed. My soul melted, as he spake: I sought, and found him not: I called, and he did not answer me. {7} The keepers that go about the city found me: they struck me, and wounded me: the keepers of the walls took away my cloak. {8} I adjure you o daughters of Jerusalem, if you shall find my beloved, that you tell him that I languish with love. {9} What manner of one is thy beloved of the beloved, o most beautiful of women? What manner of one is thy beloved of the beloved, that thou hast so adjured us? {10} My beloved is white and ruddy, chosen of thousands. {11} His head is as the best gold: his hairs as the branches of palm-trees, black as a raven. {12} His eyes as doves upon the little rivers of waters, which are washed with milk, and sit beside the most full streams. {13} His cheeks are as little beds of aromatical spices set of the pigmentaries. His lips are as lilies distilling principal myrrh. {14} His hands wrought round of gold, full of hyacinths. His belly of ivory, distinguished with sapphires. {15} His thighs as pillars of marble, that are upon feet of gold. His form as of Libanus, elect as the cedars. {16} His throat most sweet, and he whole to be desired: such an one is my beloved, and he is my friend, o daughters of Jerusalem. {17} Whither is thy beloved gone o most beautiful of women? Whither is thy beloved turned aside? And we will seek him with thee.

{1} MY beloved is gone down into the garden, to the bed of aromatical spices, to feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies. {2} I to my beloved, and my beloved to me, who feedeth among the lilies. {3} Thou art fair o my love, sweet, and comely as Jerusalem: terrible as the army of a camp set in array. {4} Turn away thine eyes from me, because they have made me fly away. Thy hairs as a flock of goats, which have appeared from Galaad. {5} Thy teeth as a flock of sheep, which have come up from the lavatory, all with twins, and there is no barren among them. {6} As the bark of a pomegranate, so are thy cheeks, beside thy hidden. {7} There are threescore queens, & fourscore concubines, and of young maids there is no number. {8} My dove is one, my perfect one, she is the only of her mother, elect to her that bare her. The daughters have seen her, and declared her to be most blessed: the queens and concubines, and have praised her. {9} What is she, that cometh forth as the morning rising, fair as the moon, elect as the sun, terrible as the army of a camp set in array? {10} I came down into the garden of nuts, to see the fruits of the valleys, and to look if the vineyard had flourished, and the pomegranates budded. {11} I knew not: my soul troubled me for the chariots of Aminadab. {12} Return, return o Sulamitess: return, return, that we may behold thee.

{1} WHAT shalt thou see in the Sulamitess but the companies of camps? How beautiful are thy passes in shoes, o prince's daughter! The joints of thy thighs are as jewels, that are made by the hand of the artificer. {2} Thy navel as a round bowl, never wanting cups. Thy belly as an heap of wheat, compassed about with lilies. {3} Thy two breasts, as two fawns the twins of a roe. {4} Thy neck as a tower of ivory. Thine eyes as the fish-pools in Hesebon, which are in the gate of the daughter of the multitude. Thy nose as the tower of Libanus, that looketh against Damascus. {5} Thy head as Carmelus: and the hairs of thy head as a king's purple tied to conduit pipes. {6} How beautiful art thou, and how comely my dearest, in delights! {7} Thy stature is like to a palm-tree, & thy breasts to clusters of grapes. {8} I said: I will go up into the palm-tree, and will take hold of the fruits thereof: and thy breasts shall be as the clusters of a vineyard: and the odour of thy mouth as it were of apples. {9} Thy throat as the best wine, worthy for my beloved to drink, & for his lips and his teeth to ruminate. {10} I to my beloved, and his turning is toward me. {11} Come my beloved, let us go forth into the field, let us abide in the villages. {12} Let us rise early to the vineyards, let us see if the vineyard flourish, if the flowers be ready to bring forth fruits, if the pomegranates flourish: there will I give thee my breasts. {13} The Mandragorae have given a smell. In our gates all fruits: the new and the old, my beloved, I have kept for thee.

{1} WHO shall give to me thee my brother, sucking the breasts of my mother, that I may find thee without, and kiss thee, and now no man despise me? {2} I will take hold of thee, and will bring thee into my mother's house: there thou shalt teach me, and I will give thee a cup of spiced wine, and new wine of my pomegranates. {3} His left hand under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me. {4} I adjure you o daughters of Jerusalem, that you raise not up, nor make the beloved to awake till herself will. {5} Who is this, that cometh up from the desert, flowing with delights, leaning upon her beloved? Under the apple-tree I raised thee up: there thy mother was corrupted, there she was deflowered that bare thee. {6} Put me as a seal upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm: because love is strong as death: jealousy is hard as hell, the lamps thereof lams of fire and flames. {7} Many waters can not quench charity, neither shall floods overwhelm it: if a man shall give all the substance of his house for love, as nothing he shall despise it. {8} Our sister is little, and hath no breasts. What shall we do to our sister in the day when she is to be spoken unto? {9} If she be a wall, let us build upon it bulwarks of silver: if she be a door, let us join it together with boards of cedar. {10} I am a wall: and my breasts are as a tower, since I was made before him as one finding peace. {11} The peace-maker had a vineyard, in that which hath peoples: he delivered the same to keepers, a man brought for the fruit thereof a thousand pieces of silver. {12} My vineyard is before me. A thousand are thy peace-makers, and two hundred for them, that keep the fruits thereof. {13} Thou dwellest in the gardens, the friends do harken: make me hear thy voice. {14} Fly, o my beloved, and be like to the roe, and to the fawn of harts upon the mountains of aromatical spices.

THE BOOK OF WISDOM

Superiors are admonished to do justice, sincerely seeking God: 7. who being everywhere seeth all things. 11. Murmuration, detraction, and lying bring to perdition. 13. God created men to live, but they brought death upon themselves.

{1} LOVE justice, you that judge the earth. Think of our Lord in goodness, and in simplicity of heart seek him: {2} because he is found of them that tempt him not: and he appeareth to them that have faith in him. {3} For perverse cogitations separate from God: and proved power chasteneth the unwise: {4} because wisdom will not enter into a malicious soul, nor dwell in a body subject to sins. {5} For the Holy Ghost of discipline will fly from him that feigneth, and will withdraw himself from the cogitations that are without understanding, and he shall be chastened of iniquity ensuing. {6} For the spirit of wisdom is gentle, and will not deliver the curser from his lips: because God is witness of his reins, and he is a true searcher of his heart, and an hearer of his tongue. {7} Because the Spirit of our Lord hath replenished the whole world: and that which containeth all things, hath the knowledge of voice. {8} For this cause he that speaketh unjust things, can not be hid, neither shall the chastising judgement pass him. {9} For in the cogitations of the impious there shall be examination: and the hearing of his works shall come to God, to the chastising of his iniquities. {10} Because the ear of jealousy heareth all things, and the tumult of murmurings shall not be hid. {11} Keep your selves therefore from murmuring, which profiteth nothing, and refrain your tongue from detraction, because an obscure speech shall not pass in vain: and the mouth that lieth, killeth the soul. {12} Zeal not death in the error of your life, neither procure ye perdition by the works of your hands. {13} Because God made not death, neither doth he rejoice in the perdition of the living. {14} For he created all things to be: and he made the nations of the earth to health: and there is no medicine of destruction in them, nor Kingdom of hell in the earth. {15} For justice is perpetual and immortal. {16} But the impious with hands & words have provoked it: and esteeming it a friend, have fallen to decay, and have made covenants with it: because they are worthy to be of the part thereof.

Such as hope not of life to come, 6. addict themselves to present pleasures: 10. and persecute the just, especially our Saviour Christ, as contrary to their wickedness. 23. Death came upon man by the devil's envy.

{1} FOR they have said thinking with themselves not well: Little, and with tediousness is the time of our life: and in the end of a man there is no recovery, and there is none known that hath returned from hell: {2} because of nothing were we born, and after this we shall be as if we had not been: because the breath is a smoke in our nostrils: & speech a spark to move our heart. {3} Which being extinguished, our body shall be ashes, and the spirit shall be poured abroad as soft air, and our life shall pass as the trace of a cloud, and shall be dissolved as a mist, {668} which is driven away by the beams of the sun, and oppressed with the heat thereof: {4} and our name in time shall be forgotten, and no man shall have remembrance of our works. {5} For our time is the passing of a shadow, and there is no return of our end: because it is sealed, and no man returneth. {6} Come therefore, and let us enjoy the good things that are, and let us quickly use the creature as in youth. {7} Let us fill our selves with precious wine, and ointments: and let not the flower of the time pass us. {8} Let us crown our selves with roses, before they wither: let there be no meadow, which our riot shall not pass through. {9} Let none of us be exempted from our riotousness: every-where let us leave signs of joy: because this is our portion, and this our lot. {10} Let us oppress the poor just man, and not spare the widow, nor reverence the old man's grey head of long time. {11} But let our strength be the law of justice: for that which is weak, is found unprofitable. {12} Let us therefore circumvent the just, because he is unprofitable to us, and he is contrary to our works, and reproachfully objecteth unto us the sins of the law, and defameth in us the sins of our discipline. {13} He boasteth that he hath the knowledge of God, and nameth himself the son of God. {14} He is made unto us to the defaming of our cogitations. {15} He is grievous unto us even to behold, because his life is unlike to others, & his ways are changed. {16} We are esteemed of him as triflers, and he abstaineth from our ways as from uncleanness, and he preferreth the later ends of the just, and glorieth that he hath God for his father. {17} Let us see therefore if his words be true, and let us prove what things shall come to him, and we shall know what shall be his later end. {18} For if he be the true son of God, he will defend him, & will deliver him from the hands of the adversaries. {19} By contumely and torment let us examine him, that we may know his reverence, and prove his patience. {20} To a most shameful death let us condemn him: for there shall be respect had unto him by his words. {21} These things have they thought, and have erred: for their malice hath blinded them. {22} And they have not known the sacraments of God, nor hoped for the reward of justice, nor esteemed the honour of holy souls. {23} For God created man incorruptible, and to the image of his own likeness he made him. {24} But by the envy of the devil, death entered into the world: {25} and they follow him that are of his part.

The just condemned by the wicked, and proved by temptations are happy: 10. and the wicked unhappy. 12. Chastity shall be rewarded, & adulterous generations shall not prosper.

{1} BUT the souls of the just are in the hand of God, and the torment of death shall not touch them. {2} They seemed in the eyes of the unwise to die: and their decease was counted affliction: {3} and that which with us is the way, is destruction: but they are in peace. {4} And though before men they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortality. {5} Vexed in few things, in many they shall be well disposed of: because God hath tempted them, and hath found them worthy of himself. {6} As gold in the furnace he hath proved them, and as an host of holocaust he hath received them, & in time there shall be respect of them. {7} The just shall shine, and as sparks in a place of reeds they shall run abroad. {8} They shall judge nations, & have dominion over peoples, and their Lord shall reign for ever. {9} They that trust in him, shall understand truth: & the faithful in love shall rest in him: because rest and peace is to his elect. {10} But the impious according to the things which they have thought, shall have correction: which have neglected the just, & have revolted from our Lord. {11} For he that rejecteth wisdom and discipline, is unhappy: and their hope is vain, and labours without fruit, & their works unprofitable. {12} Their wives are senseless, and their children most wicked. {13} Cursed is their creature: because happy is the barren woman: and the undefiled,{669} which hath not known bed in sin, she shall have fruit in visitation of holy souls: {14} and the eunuch that hath not wrought iniquity with his hands, nor thought most wicked things against God: for the chosen gift of faith shall be given to him, and a most acceptable lot in the temple of God. {15} For of good labour there is glorious fruit, and the root of wisdom which falleth not. {16} But the children of adulterers shall be in consummation, and the seed of the unlawful bed shall be destroyed. {17} And if certes they be of long life, they shall be reputed for nothing, & their last old-age shall be without honour. {18} And if they die quickly they shall have no hope, nor speech of comfort in the day of acknowledging. {19} For of a wicked nation the ends are cruel.

Great difference between chaste and adulterous generations. 7. Speedy death of the just is recompensed by God's providence. 19. but the wicked incur greater damnation by living long.

{1} HOW beautiful is the chaste generation with glory! For the memory thereof is immortal: because it is known both with God and with men. {2} When it is present, they imitate it, and they desire it when it hath withdrawn it-self, and it triumpheth crowned for ever, winning the reward of undefiled conflicts. {3} But the multitude of the impious that hath many children, shall not be profitable, and bastard plants shall not take deep root, nor lay sure foundation. {4} And if in the boughs for a time they shall spring being weakly set, they shall be moved of the wind, and by the vehemency of the winds they shall be rooted out. {5} For the unperfect boughs shall be broken, and their fruits shall be unprofitable, and sour to eat, and meet for nothing. {6} For the children that be born of wicked sleeps, are witnesses of wickedness against the parents in their examination. {7} But the just if he be prevented with death, shall be in a place of refreshing. {8} For venerable old age is not that of long time, nor accounted by the number of years: but the understanding of a man are grey hairs: {9} and an immaculate life is old age. {10} Pleasing God he is made beloved, and living among sinners he was translated. {11} He was taken away lest malice should change his understanding, or lest any guile might deceive his soul. {12} For the bewitching of vanity obscurereth good things, and the inconstancy of concupiscence perverteth the understanding that is without malice. {13} Being consummate in short space he fulfilled much time: {14} for his soul pleased God: for this cause he hastened to bring him out of the midst of iniquities: but the peoples that are seeing, and not understanding, nor putting such things in their hearts: {15} that the grace of God, and mercy is toward his saints, and respect toward his elect. {16} But the just dead condemneth the impious alive, and youth soon ended, the long life of the unjust. {17} For they shall see the end of the wise, and shall not understand what God hath thought of him, and why our Lord hath fenced him. {18} For they shall see and shall condemn him: but our Lord shall laugh them to scorn, {19} and they shall fall after this without honour, and in contumely among the dead for ever: because he shall break them puffed up without voice, and shall remove them from the foundations, and they shall be made desolate unto the highest degree: and shall be mourning, and the memory of them shall perish. {20} They shall come fearful in cogitation of their sins, and their iniquities on the contrary shall convince them.

In the general judgement, the wicked seeing the just, whom they had contemned, to be in great honour, shall bewail their own misery, 9. considering that their pleasure was short, 16. and the joy of the blessed shall be for ever. 18. God will arm himself, and all creatures, to punish the impious.

{1} THEN shall the just stand in great constancy against those that have afflicted them, and taken away their labours. {2} They seeing shall be troubled with horrible fear, and shall marvel at the suddenness of unexpected salvation, {3} saying within themselves, repenting, and sighing for anguish of spirit: These are they, whom we had sometime in derision, and in a parable of reproach. {4} We senseless esteemed their life madness, and their end without honour. {5} Behold how they are counted among the children of God, and their lot is among the saints. {6} We therefore have erred from the way of truth, and the light of justice hath not shined to us, and the sun of understanding rose not to us. {7} We are wearied in the way of iniquity and perdition, and have walked hard ways, but the way of our Lord we have not known. {8} What hath pride profited us? Or what commodity hath the vaunting of riches brought to us? {9} All those things are passed away as a shadow, and as a messenger running before, {10} and as a ship, that passeth through the surging waters: whereof, when it is past, the trace can not be found nor the path of that ship's keel in the waves: {11} or as a bird, that flyeth through in the air, of which there is no token can be found of her passage, but only a sound of the wings beating the light wind: and by vehemency of going cutting the air, moving the wings she is flown through, and afterward there is no sign found of her way: {12} or as when an arrow is shot forth to a set mark, the divided air is forthwith closed in it-self again, so that the passage thereof is not known: {13} so we also being born forthwith ceased to be: and of virtue certes have been able to shew no sign: but in our naughtiness we are consumed. {14} Such things said they in hell, which sinned: {15} because the hope of the impious is as dust, which is taken away with the wind: and as a thin froth, which is dispersed by the storm: and as smoke that is scattered abroad by the wind: and as the memory of a guest of one day that passeth. {16} But the just shall live for ever, and their reward is with our Lord, and cogitation of them with the Highest. {17} Therefore shall they receive a Kingdom of honour, & a crown of beauty at the hand of our Lord: because with his right hand he will cover them, and within his holy arm he will defend them. {18} And his zeal will take armour, and he will arm the creature to the revenge of the enemies. {19} He will put on justice for a breast-plate, & will take sincere judgement for an helmet: {20} he will take equity for an invincible shield: {21} and he will sharpen fierce wrath for a spear, & the round world shall fight with him against the senseless. {22} The shots of lightnings shall go directly, & as it were from a bow of the clouds well bent they shall be cast forth, and shall light on a certain place. {23} And from rocked wrath shall thick hail-stones be cast, the water of the sea shall rage against them, and the rivers shall run together roughly. {24} A spirit of power shall stand against them, and as a hurlwind shall divide them: and their iniquity shall bring all the land to a desert, and naughtiness shall overthrow the seats of the mighty.

Kings and all Magistrates are again admonished to exercise justice: 7. otherwise they shall be more grievously punished. 13. Wisdom may easily be found 18. by those that sincerely desire it. 22. And is very profitable (25. excepting the envious, or ill disposed) 26. both to Prince and people.

{1} WISDOM is better than strength: and a wise man than a strong kings, & understand, learn ye judges of {2} Hear therefore ye the ends of the earth. {3} Give ear ye that rule multitudes, and that please your selves in multitudes of nations: {4} because the power is given you of our Lord, and strength by the Highest, who will examine your works, and search your cogitations: {5} because when you were the ministers of his Kingdom, you judged not rightly, nor kept the law of justice, nor have walked according to the will of God. {6} Horribly and quickly will he appear to you: because most severe judgement shall be done on them, that bear rule. {7} For to the little one mercy is granted: but the mighty shall mightily suffer torments. {8} For God will not except any man's person, neither will fear the greatness of any man: because he made the little and the great, & he hath equally care of all. {9} But to the stronger more strong torment is imminent. {10} To you therefore o kings are these my words, that you may learn wisdom, and not fall. {11} For they that have kept just things justly, shall be justified: and they that have learned these things, shall find what they may answer. {12} Covet ye therefore my words, and love them, and you shall have discipline. {13} Wisdom is clear, and such as never fadeth, and is easily seen of them that love her, and is found of them that seek her. {14} She preventeth them that covet her, that she first may shew herself unto them. {15} He that awaketh early to her, shall not labour: for he shall find her sitting at her doors. {16} To think therefore of her, is perfect understanding: and he that watcheth for her, shall quickly be secure. {17} Because she goeth about seeking them that be worthy of her, and in the ways she will shew her self to them cheerfully, and in all providence she will meet them. {18} For the beginning of her is the most true desire of discipline. {19} The care therefore of discipline, is love: and love is keeping of her laws: and the keeping of the laws, is the consummation of incorruption: {20} and incorruption maketh to be next to God. {21} Therefore the desire of wisdom leadeth to the everlasting Kingdom. {22} If therefore you be delighted with thrones, and with sceptres, o ye kings of the people, love wisdom, that you may reign for ever. {23} Love the light of wisdom all ye that bear rule over peoples. {24} But what wisdom is, and how she was made, I will declare: and I will not hide from you the mysteries of God, but from the beginning of her nativity I will search out, and set the knowledge of her into light, and will not let pass the truth: {25} neither will I go with pining envy: because such a man shall not be partaker of wisdom. {26} But the multitude of the wise is the health of the round world: and a wise king is the stability of the people. {27} Therefore take ye discipline by my words, and it shall profit you.

Whereas all men have the like birth and death, 7. wisdom maketh great difference, bringing all goodness, 13. and knowledge. 17. as well of natural things, 22. as moral: 25. which heavenly gift is a sparkle, and participation of wisdom increased, God himself.

<{1} I also certes am a mortal man, like to all, and of the earthly kindred of him that was made first, and in the womb of my mother was I fashioned flesh, {2} the time of ten months was I brought together in blood, of the seed of man, and the delectation of sleep concurring. {3} And I being born received the common air, and fell upon the earth that is made alike, and the first voice like to all men did I put forth weeping. {4} I was nourished in swaddling cloths, and great cares. {5} For none of the kings had other beginning of nativity. {6} There is one entrance therefore into life to all men, and like departure. {7} For this cause I wished, and understanding was given me: and I invoked, and the spirit of wisdom came upon me: {8} and I preferred her before Kingdoms and thrones, and riches I counted to be nothing in comparison of her. {9} Neither did I compare the precious stone to her: because all gold in comparison of her, is a little sand, and silver in the sight of her shall be esteemed as clay. {10} Above health and beauty did I love her, and purposed to have her for light: because her light can not be extinguished. {11} And all good things came to me together with her, and very much honesty by her hands, {12} and I rejoiced in all: because this wisdom went before me, and I was ignorant that she is the mother of all these. {13} Which I learned without fiction, and do communicate without envy, and her honesty I hid not. {14} For she is an infinite treasure to men: which who so have, are made partakers of the friendship of God commended for the gifts of discipline. {15} And to me God hath given to speak according to my mind, and to presume things worthy of those, that are given me: because he is the guide of wisdom, and the Creator of the wise: {16} For in his hand are both we, & our words, and wisdom, and the knowledge & discipline of works. {17} For he gave me the true knowledge of those things which are: that I may know the disposition of the round world, and the virtues of the elements, {18} the beginning, & end, & midst of times, the permutations of changeable seasons, and consummations of times, {19} the courses of the year, and dispositions of the stars, {20} the natures of beasts, and furies of wild beasts, the force of winds, and the cogitations of men, the differences of plants, and virtues of roots, {21} & whatsoever are hid things and not foreseen, I have learned: for wisdom the worker of all taught me. {22} For in her is the spirit of understanding, holy, only, manifold, subtle, eloquent, moveable, undefiled, sure, sweet, loving, good, sharp, who nothing hindereth well-doing, {23} gentle, benign, stable, certain, secure, having all power, foreseeing all things, and that containeth all spirits: intelligible, clean, subtle. {24} For wisdom is more moveable than all moveable things: and reacheth every-where because of her cleanliness. {25} For she is a vapour of the power of God, & a certain sincere emanation of the glory of God omnipotent: and therefore no defiled thing cometh unto her. {26} For she is the brightness of eternal light, & the unspotted glass of God's majesty, and the image of his goodness. {27} And whereas she is one, she can do all things: and permanent in her self she reneweth all things, and by nations transporteth herself into holy souls, she maketh the friends of God, and Prophets. {28} For God loveth none, but him that dwelleth with wisdom. {29} For she is more beautiful than the sun, and above all disposition of the stars, being compared to light she is found the first. {30} For night succeedeth to it, but malice overcometh not wisdom.

Wisdom excelling all things that can be desired, 9. is worthily preferred as the cause of much estimation, 13. and of immortal glory, 16. without molestation. 21. All which is God's gift.

{1} SHE reacheth therefore from end unto end mightily, and disposeth all things sweetly. {2} Her have I loved, and have sought her out from my youth, and have sought to take her for my spouse, and I was made a lover of her beauty. {3} She glorifieth her nobility, having consociation with God: yea and the Lord of all hath loved her. {4} For she is the mistress of the discipline of God, & the chooser of his works. {5} And if riches be desired in life, what is richer than wisdom, which worketh all things? {6} And if understanding do work: who is the worker of those things that are, more than she? {7} And if a man love justice: her labours have great virtues: for she teacheth sobriety, and prudence, and justice, and strength, than the which nothing is more profitable in life to men. {8} And if a man desire multitude of knowledge, she knoweth things past, & conjectureth of things to come: she knoweth the subtleties of words, and the solutions of arguments: she knoweth signs and wonders before they be done, and the events of times and ages. {9} I purposed therefore to bring her to me to live together: knowing that she will communicate unto me of good things, and will be a comfort of my cogitation & tediousness. {10} I shall have for her sake glory with the multitudes and honour with the ancient being young: {11} and I shall be found sharp in judgement, and in the sight of the mighty I shall be marvelous, and the faces of Princes will marvel at me. {12} Holding my peace they shall expect me, and whilst I speak many words, they shall lay their hands on their mouth. {13} Moreover by her I shall have immortality: and I shall leave an eternal memory to them, that shall be after me. {14} I shall dispose peoples, and nations shall be subject to me. {15} Horrible kings hearing shall fear me: in the multitude I shall seem good, and in battle strong. {16} Entering into my house, I shall rest with her: for her conversation hath no bitterness, nor her company tediousness, but joy and gladness. {17} Thinking these things with my self, and recording in my heart, that immortality is in the kindred of wisdom, {18} and good delectation in her friendship, and in the works of her hands honesty without defect, and wisdom in the disputation of her talk, and glory in the communication of her words: I went about seeking, that I might take her to me. {19} And I was a witty child, and had gotten a good soul. {20} And whereas I was more good, I came to a body undefiled. {21} And as I knew that I could not otherwise be continent, unless God gave it, this very thing also was wisdom, to know whose this gift was: I went to our Lord, and besought him, and said from my whole heart:

A prayer (made by Solomon) for wisdom, 9. whereby Superiours are able to govern: 13. which by only human wisdom, they can not rightly perform.

{1} GOD of my fathers, and Lord of mercy, which madest all things with thy Word, {2} and by thy Wisdom didst appoint man, that he should have dominion of the creature, that was made by thee, {3} that he should dispose the round world in equity and justice, and execute judgement in direction of heart: {4} give me wisdom the assistant of thy seats, and repel me not from thy children: {5} because I am thy servant, and the son of thy handmaid, a weak man and of small time, and less to the understanding of judgement and laws. {6} And if one be perfect among the children of men, and thy wisdom be absent from him, he shall be counted for nothing. {7} Thou hast chosen me king to thy people, and judge of thy sons and daughters: {8} and badest me build a temple in thy holy mount, and an altar in the city of thy habitation, a similitude of thy holy tabernacle, which thou didst prepare from the beginning: {9} and thy wisdom with thee, which knew thy works, which then also was present when thou madest the round world, and knew what was pleasing to thine eyes, and what was direct in thy precepts. {10} Send her from thy holy heavens, and from the seat of thy greatness, that she may be with me, and may labour with me, that I may know what is acceptable with thee: {11} for she knoweth all things & understandeth, and shall conduct me in my works soberly, & shall keep me with her might. {12} And my works shall be acceptable, and I shall govern thy people justly, and shall be worthy of the seats of my father. {13} For who of men is able to know the counsel of God? Or who can think what God will? {14} For the cogitations of mortal men be fearful, and our providences uncertain. {15} For the body that is corrupted burtheneth the soul, and the earthly habitation presseth down the understanding that thinketh many things. {16} And we do hardly conjecture the things that are in the earth: and the things that are in sight, we find with labour. But the things that are in the heavens who shall search out? {17} And thy sense who shall know, unless thou give wisdom, and send thy holy Spirit from on high: {18} and so the paths of them that are on the earth, may be corrected, and men learn the things that please thee? {19} For by wisdom they were healed, whosoever have pleased thee o Lord from the beginning.

The benefits of wisdom are declared by examples, in Adam, 4. Noe, 5. Abraham, 6. Lot, 10. Jacob, 13. Joseph, 15. and the people of Israel.

{1} SHE kept him, that was first made of God father of the world, when he was created alone, {2} and she brought him out of his sin, and gave him power to contain all things. {3} After the unjust departed in his anger from her, {674} by the fury of brother's manslaughter he perished. {4} For whose cause, when water destroyed the earth, wisdom healed it again, governing the just by contemptible wood. {5} She even in the consent of wickedness, when the nations had confederated themselves, knew the just, and preserved him without blame to God, and in his son's mercy kept the strong. {6} She delivered the just, flying from the impious that perished, when the fire came down upon Pentapolis: {7} to whom for a witness of their wickedness the desert land standeth smoking, and trees having fruits at uncertain season; and the memory of an incredulous soul a standing pillar of salt. {8} For pretermittit wisdom they did not only slip in this, that they were ignorant of good things, but they left also unto men a memory of their foolishness, that in those things, in which they sinned in, they could not be hid neither. {9} But wisdom hath delivered them that observe her from sorrows. {10} And the just flying his brother's wrath, she conducted by the right ways, and shewed him the kingdom of God, and gave him the knowledge of the holy, did honest him in labours, and accomplished his labours. {11} In the fraud of the circumventers of him she was present with him, and made him honourable. {12} She kept him from the enemies, and from seducers she defended him, and gave him a strong fight, that he might overcome, and know that wisdom is mightier than all. {13} She forsook not the just being sold, but delivered him from sinners: and she went down with him into the pit, {14} and in bands left him not, till she brought him the sceptre of a Kingdom, and might against them that oppressed him: and shewed them to be liars, that spottet him, and gave him eternal glory. {15} The just people, and seed without blame she delivered from the nations, that oppressed them. {16} She entered into the soul of the servant of God, and stood against dreadful kings in wonders and signs. {17} And she rendered to the just the hope of their labours, and conducted them in a marvelous way: and she was unto them for a cover in the day, and for the light of stars by night: {18} and she transported them through the Red sea, and carried them over through a great water. {19} But their enemies she drowned in the sea, and from the depth of hell she brought them out. Therefore the just took the spoils of the impious, {20} and they sang thy holy name o Lord, and thy victorious hand they praised together: {21} because wisdom hath opened the mouth of the dumb, and the tongues of infants she hath made eloquent.

Chapter 11

Other benefits of wisdom, protecting the Israelites in the desert: 3. overthrowing their enemies; 4. giving them water out of a rock; 8. plaguing the Aegyptians, 28. yet not all suddenly, but by often admonitions, that they might have repented if they would.

{1} SHE directed their works in the hands of a holy Prophet. through the deserts, that were not {2} They made a journey inhabited: and in desert places they pitched cottages. {3} They stood against the adversaries, and revenged themselves of the enemies. {4} They thirsted, and invoked thee, and water was given them out of a most high rock, and quenching of their thirst out of the hard stone. {5} For by the things whereby their enemies suffered punishment, for defect of their drink, and therein, when the children of Israel abounded, they did rejoice: {6} by these things, when others lacked the same, it went well with them. {7} For in stead of the fountain of an everlasting river, thou gavest man's blood to the unjust. {8} Who when they were diminished in the destruction of the murdered infants, thou gavest them abundant water unlooked for: {9} shewing by the thirst, that then was, how thou didst exalt thine, & didst kill their adversaries. {10} For when they were tempted, and indeed with mercy taking discipline, they knew how the impious being judged with wrath did suffer torments. {11} These certes admonishing as a father thou didst prove: but them examining as a hard king thou didst condemn. {12} For the absent and the present were tormented alike. {13} For double tediousness had taken them, and sighing with the memory of good things past. {14} For when they understood by their punishment that it went well with them, they remembered our Lord, marvelling at the end of the event. {15} For whom before they derided, being cast forth in that wicked laying out to perish, him they marveled at in the end of the event: not thirsting in like manner to the just. {16} But for senseless cogitations of their iniquities, for that some erring did worship dumb serpents and superfluous beasts, thou didst send upon them a multitude of dumb beasts for revenge: {17} that they might know that by what things a man sinneth, by the same also he is tormented. {18} For thine omnipotent hand, which made the world of invisible matter, was not unable to send upon them a multitude of bears, or fierce lions, {19} or unknown beasts full of anger of a new kind; or breathing the vapour of fires, or casting forth the savour of smoke, or shooting horrible sparks from their eyes: {20} of which not only their hurt was able to destroy them, but also their sight to kill them for fear. {21} Yea and without these with one spirit they might have been slain suffering persecution of their own facts, and dispersed by the spirit of thy power: but thou hast disposed all things in measure, and number, and weight. {22} For, to be of great force rested always in thee only: & who shall resist the power of thine arm? {23} Because as the least weight of the balance, so is the round world before thee, and as a drop of the dew before day, that falleth upon the earth. {24} But thou hast mercy on all, because thou canst do all things, and dissemblest the sins of men for repentance. {25} For thou lovest all things that are, and hatest nothing of those which thou hast made: for thou didst not ordain or make any thing hating it. {26} And how could any thing continue, unless thou wouldest? Or be preserved which was not called of thee? {27} But thou sparest all: because they are thine o Lord, which louest souls.

God's wisdom and mercy in destroying the wicked inhabitants of Chanaan, by parts (10. that they might have amended) whom he could have slain suddenly. 15. In that God never condemneth the just, 19. his people are instructed to confide in him, 25. and sinners to turn unto him.

<{1} O how good and sweet is thy spirit o Lord in all! parts thou doest chastise: and doest {2} And therefore those that err, by admonish, and speak to them, concerning the things wherein they sin: that leaving naughtiness, they may believe in thee o Lord. {3} For those old inhabitants of thy holy land, whom thou didst abhor, {4} because they did works odious to thee by sorceries, and unjust sacrifices, {5} and the murderers of their own children without mercy, and eaters of men's bowels, and devourers of blood from the midst of thy sacrament, {6} and the parents, authors of aidless souls, thou wouldest destroy by the hands of our parents, {7} that they might receive a peregrination worthy of the children of God, which is a land of all most dear to thee. {8} But them also as men thou didst spare, and didst send forerunners of thine host, wasps, that by little and little they might destroy them. {9} Not because thou wast unable in battle to subdue the impious to the just, or with cruel beasts, or with a sharp word to destroy them together: {10} but judging by parts thou gavest place of repentance, being not ignorant, that the nation of them is wicked, and their malice natural & that their cogitation could not be changed for ever. {11} For it was a cursed seed from the beginning: neither fearing any, didst thou give pardon to their sins. {12} For who shall say to thee: what hast thou done? Or who shall stand against thy judgement? Or who in thy sight shall come revenger of the wicked men? Or who shall impute it to thee, if the nations perish, which thou hast made? {13} For there is no other God but thou, who hast care of all, that thou mayst shew that thou doest not give judgement unjustly. {14} Neither king, nor tyrant in thy sight shall inquire of them, whom thou hast destroyed. {15} For so much then, as thou art just, thou doest dispose all things justly: thou also esteemest it disagreeable from thy power to condemn him, who ought not to be punished. {16} For thy power is the beginning of justice: and for this that thou art Lord of all, thou makest thy self to spare all. {17} For thou shwest power, which art not thought to be absolute in power, and thou convincest the boldness of them, that know thee not. {18} But thou dominatour of power, judgest with tranquility, and with great reverence disposest of us: for it is in thy power when thou wilt, to be able. {19} And thou hast taught thy people by such works, that they must be just and gentle, and hast made thy children of good hope: because judging thou givest in sins place of repentance. {20} For if thou didst punish the enemies of thy servants, and that deserved to die, with so great consideration, giving time and place, whereby they might be changed from their wickedness: {21} with what diligence hast thou judged thy children, to whose parents thou gavest oaths and covenants of good promises? {22} Therefore when thou givest us discipline, thou scourgest our enemies very many ways, that judging we may think upon thy goodness: and when we are judged, we may hope for thy mercy. {23} Wherefore to them also, which in their life have lived foolishly & unjustly, thou hast given great torments by the same things, which they did worship. {24} For they wandered long in the way of error, esteeming for gods those things, that in beasts are superfluous, living after the manner of senseless infants. {25} For this cause thou hast given judgement on them as on senseless children to be in derision. {26} But they that were not amended by scorns and reprehensions, have tried the worthy judgment of God. {27} For in what things they suffering took indignation, by those whom they thought gods, when seeing they were destroyed in them, him, whom in time past they denied that they knew, they acknowledged the true God: for the which cause the end also of their condemnation shall come upon them.

Men following their fantasies knew not God by his creatures, but honoured the creatures for God. 10. Most sottishly also worshipped things fashioned by men's hands, as gods.

{1} BUT all men be vain, in whom there is not the knowledge of God: and of these good things which are seen they could not understand him that is, neither attending to the works have they agnised who was the workman: {2} but either the fire, or the wind, or the swift air, or a circle of stars, or exceeding much water, or the sun and moon, they thought to be gods, rulers of the world. {3} With whose beauty if being delighted they thought them gods: let them know how much the Lord of them is more beautiful than they. For the author of beauty made all those things. {4} Or if they marveled at their virtue, & operations, let them understand by them, that he which made these, is stronger than they: {5} for by the greatness of the beauty, and of the creature, the Creator of them may be seen, to be known thereby. {6} But notwithstanding there is yet in these less complaint. For they also perhaps err, seeking God, and desirous to find him. {7} For whereas they converse in his works, they inquire: & they are persuaded that the things be good which are seen. {8} But again neither ought these to be pardoned. {9} For if they could know so much, that they were able to estimate the world: how did they not more easily find the Lord thereof? {10} But they are unhappy, & their hope is among the dead, who have called the works of men's hands gods, gold & silver, the invention of art, and the similitudes of beasts, or an unprofitable stone the work of an old hand. {11} Or if an artificer a carpenter, cut straight timber out of the wood, & pare off all the bark thereof cunningly, and using his art diligently frameth a vessel profitable for the common use of this life, {12} and useth the chips of that work to dress his meat: {13} and maketh that which is left thereof, which is for no uses, but being a crooked piece of wood, and full of knobs, carveth it diligently in the hollowness thereof, and by the skill of his art fashioneth it, and maketh it like to the image of a man, {14} or compareth it to some beast, straking it over with red, and with painting making the colour thereof ruddy, and layeth a colour over every spot that is in it: {15} and maketh a worthy habitation for it, and setting it in a wall, and fastening it with iron {16} lest perhaps it fall, providing for it, knowing that it can not help it self: for it is an image, and it needeth help. {17} And concerning his substance, & his children, & for marriage, making a vow he seeketh to it. He is not ashamed to speak with him, that is without soul: {18} and for health certes he beseecheth the weak, and for life asketh the dead, and for help invocateth him that is unprofitable: {19} and for a journey asketh him, that can not walk: and for getting, and for working, and for the event of all things he asketh him, that in all is unprofitable.

Foolish men intending to sail, honour wooden idols, in regard of the profit they receive by ships: 6. by which some were saved in the general deluge. 8. Idols, and idol-makers are cursed. 12. They were not from the beginning. 15. but were devised for memory of the dead, and worshipped with divine honour. 22. So men forgetting God, proceeded in idolatry, with other abominable and cruel enormities.

{1} AGAIN an other thinking to sail, and beginning to make a journey through the fierce waves, invocateth wood more frail than the wood that carrieth him. {2} For covetousness of getting invented it, and the craftsman by his wisdom framed it. {3} But thy providence, o Father, doth govern: because thou hast given a way even in the sea, and among the waves a most sure path, {4} shewing that thou art able to save out of all things, yea if a man go to the sea without art. {5} But that thy works might not be void of wisdom: for this cause also men commit their lives even to a little wood, and passing over the sea are delivered by ship. {6} But from the beginning also when the proud giants perished, the hope of the world flying to a ship, rendered to the world seed of nativity, which was governed by thy hand. {7} For blessed is the wood, by the which justice is made. {8} But the idol that is made by hands, cursed is both it, and he that made it: because he in deed wrought it: and the same being frail, was called God. {9} But to God the impious and his impiety are odious alike. {10} For that which is made, with him that made it, shall suffer torments. {11} For this cause also in the idol of the nations there shall be no respect: because the creatures of God were made to hatred, and for temptation to the souls of men, and for a snare to the feet of the unwise. {12} For the beginning of fornication is the devising of idols: and the inventing of them is the corruption of life. {13} For neither were they from the beginning, neither shall they be for ever. {14} For this vanity of men came into the world: and therefore there is found a short end of them. {15} For the father being sorrowful with bitter mourning, made unto himself the image of his son quickly taken away: and him, that then was a dead man, now he began to worship as God, and appointed holy things and sacrifices among his servants. {16} Afterward by succession of time, the wicked custom prevailing, this error was kept as a law, and things graven were worshipped by the commandment of Tyrants. {17} And those, whom openly men could not honour, for that they were far off, their figure being brought from a far, they made an evident image of the king, whom they would honour: that by their carefulness they might honour as present, him that was absent. {18} And to the worshipping of these the excellent diligence also of the artificer, holp them forward, that were ignorant. {19} For he willing to please him that entertained him, laboured by his art to fashion the similitude in better sort. {20} And the multitude of men carried away by the beauty of the work, him that a little before had been honoured as a man, now they esteemed for a God. {21} And this was the deceiving of man's life: because men serving either affection, or kings, gave the name that is not communicable, to stones and wood. {22} And it was not sufficient that they erred about the knowledge of God, but also living in a great battle of ignorance, so many and so great evils they call peace. {23} For either sacrificing their children, or making obscure sacrifices, or having watches full of madness, {24} they now neither keep life, nor marriage clean, but one killeth an other by envy, or playing the adulterer maketh him sorrowful: {25} and all things are mingled together, blood, manslaughter, theft and fiction, corruption and infidelity, trouble and perjury, disquieting of the good, {26} forgetfulness of God, inquisition of souls, immutation of nativity, inconstancy of marriage, disorder of adultery, and unchasteness. {27} For the worship of idols not to be named, is the cause of all evil, and the beginning and end. {28} For either when they rejoice, they are mad: or certes prophesy false things, or live unjustly, or quickly forswear themselves. {29} For whilst they trust in idols, which are without soul, swearing amiss they hope not to be hurt. {30} Two evil things therefore shall happen to them worthily, because they have thought evil of God, attending to idols, and have sworn unjustly, in guile contemning justice. {31} For it is not the power of them that are sworn by, but the punishment of them that sin goeth always through the transgression of the unjust.

The wise gratefully praise the sweetness and mercy of God, by whom they are delivered from idolatry: 6. detesting the makers & worshippers of idols.

{1} BUT o thou our God art sweet and true, patient, and disposing all things in mercy. {2} For if we sin, we are thine, knowing thy greatness: and if we sin not, we know that we are counted with thee. {3} For to know thee, is absolute justice: and to know justice, and thy power, is the root of immortality. {4} For men's invention of evil art hath not brought us into error, nor the shadow of a picture, being a labour without fruit, a shape graven by diverse colours, {5} the sight whereof giveth concupiscence to the senseless, and he loveth the shape without life of a dead image. {6} The lovers of evils are worthy to have their hope in such things, both they that make them, and that love, and that worship them. {7} Yea and the potter pressing soft earth, with labour fashioneth every vessel to our uses, and of the same clay maketh the vessels that are clean to use, and in like manner them, that are contrary to these: but what the use of these vessels is, the potter is judge. {8} And with vain labour he fashioneth a God of the same clay: he which a little before was made of earth, and a little after returneth back whence he was taken, being exacted the debt of the life which he had. {9} But his care is, not because he shall labour, nor because he hath a short life, but he contendeth with gold-smiths and silver-smiths: yea and he imitateth the copper-smiths, and counteth it a glory, because he maketh vain things. {10} For his heart is ashes, and his hope vain earth, and his life viler than clay: {11} because he was ignorant who made him, and who inspired into him the soul which worketh, & who breathed into him the vital spirit. {12} Yea and they esteemed our life to be a pastime, and the conversation of life made for a gain, & that we must get every way even of evil. {13} For he knoweth that he offendeth above all men, which of the matter of earth fashioneth frail vessels, and sculptiles. {14} For all the unwise and unhappy above measure of the soul, proud are the enemies of thy people, and rule over them: {15} because they have esteemed all the idols of the nations for gods, which neither have use of eyes to see, nor nostrils to take breath, nor ears to hear, nor fingers of the hands to handle, yea and their feet are slow to walk. {16} For a man made them: and he that borrowed breath, the same fashioned them. For no man can make God like to himself. {17} For whereas himself is mortal, he maketh a dead thing with his wicked hands. For he is better than they, whom he worshippeth, because he indeed lived, though he were mortal, but they never. {18} But they worship also most miserable beasts: for the senseless things compared to these, are worse than they. {19} Yea neither by sight can any man see good of these beasts, But they have fled from the praise of God, and from his blessing.

God plaguing the Aegyptians for idolatry, and cruelty, delivered the Israelites. 5. Chastised them also, but again shewed them mercy; 20. and fed them with Manna.

{1} FOR these things, and by the like to these, they have worthily suffered torments, and were destroyed by a multitude of beasts. {2} For the which torments thou didst well dispose of thy people, to whom thou gavest the desire of their delectation, a new taste, preparing them the quail for meat: {3} that they indeed coveting meat, because of those things which were shewed and sent them, might be turned away even from necessary concupiscence. But they in short time being made needy, tasted a new meat. {4} For it behoved that without excuse destruction should come upon them exercising tyranny: but to these only to shew how their enemies were destroyed. {5} For when the cruel wrath of beasts came upon them, they were destroyed with the bitings of perverse serpents. {6} Howbeit thy wrath endured not for ever, but for chastisement they were troubled a short time, having a sign of salvation for the remembrance of the commandment of thy law. {7} For he that turned to it, was not healed by that which he saw, but by thee the Saviour of all: {8} and in this thou didst shew to our enemies, that thou art he which deliverest from all evil. {9} For the bitings of locusts and flies killed them, and their was found no remedy for their life: because they were worthy to be destroyed by such things. {10} But neither the teeth of venomous dragons overcame thy children: for thy mercy coming healed them. {11} For in memory of thy words they were examined, & were quickly saved, lest falling into deep oblivion they might not use thy help. {12} For neither herb, nor plaster healed them, but thy word, o Lord, which healeth all things. {13} For it is thou, o Lord, that hast power of life and death, and bringest down to the gates of death, and fetchest again: {14} but man certes killeth by malice, and when the spirit is gone forth, it shall not return, neither shall he call back the soul that is received: {15} but it is impossible to escape thy hand. {16} For the impious denying to know thee, have been scourged by the strength of thine arm, suffering persecution by strange waters, and hail, and rain, and consumed by fire. {17} For that which was marvelous in water, which extinguisheth all things, fire more prevailed: for the world is revenger of the just. {18} For a certain time, the fire was mitigated, that the beasts which were sent to the impious might not be burnt, but that they seeing might know that by God's judgment they suffer punishment. {19} And at a certain time the fire above his power burnt in water on every side, that it might destroy the nation of a wicked land. {20} For the which things thou didst nourish thy people with the meat of Angels, and bread prepared thou gavest them from heaven without labour, having in it all delectation, and the sweetness of all taste. {21} For thy substance did shew thy sweetness which thou hast toward thy children, and serving every man's will, it was turned to that, that every man would. {22} Yea snow and ice sustained the force of fire, and melted not: that they might know that fire burning in hail, and lightning in rain destroyed the fruits of the enemies. {23} And this again, that the just might be nourished, it forgat also his own strength. {24} For the creature serving thee the Creator, is fierce into torment against the unjust: and is made more gentle to do good for them, that trust in thee. {25} For this cause even then being transformed into all things, they served thy grace the curse of all, at their will that desired thee: {26} that thy children might know, whom thou lovedst o Lord, that not the fruits of nativity do feed men, but thy word preserveth them, that believe in thee. {27} For that which could not be destroyed by fire, forthwith being heated with a little beam of the sun did melt: {28} that it might be known to all men, that we ought to prevent the sun to bless thee, and at the rising of light to adore thee. {29} For the faith of the ungrateful shall melt as winter ice, & shall perish as unprofitable water.

Horrible darkness falling in Aegypt, 19. the rest of the world had ordinary light.

{1} FOR thy judgements, o Lord, are great, & thy words inexplicable, for this cause the souls lacking discipline have erred. {2} For whilst the wicked are persuaded that they can rule over the holy nation: fettered with the bands of darkness and long night, shut up under roofs, they have lien fugitives from the everlasting providence. {3} And whilst they think that they lie hid in obscure sins, they were dispersed by the dark covert of oblivion, being horribly afraid and disturbed with exceeding admiration. {4} For neither did the den that contained them, keep them without fear: because the sound coming down troubled them, and sorrowful visions appearing to them, put them in fear. {5} And no force certes of the fire could give them light, neither could the clear flames of the stars lighten that horrible night. {6} But there appeared to them sudden fire full of fear: and being stricken with the fear of that face, which was not seen, they esteemed the things that were seen to be worse. {7} and there were added derisions of the magical art, and contumelious rebuke of the glory of their wisdom. {8} For they which promised that they would expel fears and perturbations from the languishing soul, these with derision languished full of fear. {9} For although none of the monsters disturbed them: being moved with the passing by of beasts, and hissing of serpents, they perished trembling: and denying that they saw the air which by no means any man could avoid. {10} For whereas wickedness is fearful, it giveth testimony of condemnation: for a troubled conscience doth always presume cruel things. {11} For fear is nothing else but a betraying of the aids of cogitation. {12} And whilst inwardly there is less expectation, the greater doth he count the ignorance of that cause which maketh the torment. {13} But they that during the night in deed impotent, and coming upon them from the lowest and highest hell, slept the same sleep, {14} were sometime molested with the fear of monsters, sometime failed by passing away of the soul: for sudden fear and unlooked for came upon them. {15} Moreover if any of them had fallen down, he was kept shut up in prison without iron. {16} For if one were a husbandman, or if a shepherd, or worker of the labours in the field were suddenly taken, he sustained necessity inevitable. {17} For with one chain of darkness they were all tied together. Whether it were the hissing wind, or among the thick boughs of trees the sweet sound of birds, or the force of water running downward exceedingly, {18} or the mighty sound of rocks tumbled headlong, or the running of playing beasts, that were not seen, or the mighty noise of roaring beasts, or an Echo resounding from the highest mountains: they made them swoon for fear. {19} For all the world was illuminated with a clear light, & none was hindered in their works. {20} But over them only was laid an heavy night, the image of darkness, which was to come upon them. They therefore were unto themselves more heavy than the darkness.

J In the Aegyptian darkness the Israelites saw clearly, and were not seen of their enemies. 5. For the Aegyptian's cruelty against the Hebrew's infants, all their own first-born were slain, and their whole army drowned in the red sea. 20. But fire devouring the rebellious in Core's schism, was quenched by Aaron's intercession.

{1} BUT to thy saints there was very great light, and their voice indeed they heard, but figure they saw not. And because themselves also did not suffer by the same things, they magnified thee: {2} and they that before had been hurt, because they were not hurt, gave thanks: and that there might be a difference, they asked a gift. {3} For the which cause they had a burning pillar of fire for a guide of the unknown way, and thou gavest them the sun without hurt of a good harbour. {4} They indeed worthy to lack light, and to suffer the prison of darkness, which kept thy children shut up, by whom the uncorrect light of the law began to be given to the world. {5} When they decreed to kill the infants of the just: and one child being laid forth, and delivered, thou to the reproofing of them, didst take away a multitude of children, and destroyedst them together in the mighty water. {6} For that night was known before of our fathers, that they knowing indeed what oaths they had credited, might be of better comfort. {7} And by thy people indeed the health of the just was received, but destruction by the unjust. {8} For as thou didst hurt the adversaries: so us also thou didst magnify, provoking us. {9} For the just children of the good sacrificed secretly, and disposed the law of justice in concord: that the just should receive both good & evil alike, singing now the praises of the fathers. {10} But there sounded a disagreeing voice of the enemies, and a lamentable mourning was heard for the bewailed infants. {11} And the servant with the master was afflicted with like punishment, and a man of the vulgar sort suffered the like things to the king. {12} All therefore alike by one name of death had dead ones innumerable. For neither did the living suffice to bury them: because in one moment, that which was the nobler nation of them, was destroyed. {13} For concerning all things being incredulous because of the enchantments, but then first when there was destruction of the first-begotten, they promised to be the people of God. {14} For when quiet silence contained all things, and the night was in the mid-way of her course, {15} thy omnipotent word sallying out of heaven from the royal seats, lighted as a severe conqueror upon the midst of the land of destruction, {16} a sharp sword carrying thy unfeigned commandment, and standing filled all with death, and reached even to heaven standing on the earth. {17} Then incontinent the visions of naughty dreams troubled them, and fears unlooked for came upon them. {18} And one here, an other there cast forth half alive, shewed for what cause of death he died. {19} For the visions that troubled them, forewarned these things, that they might not perish as ignorant why they suffered evils. {20} But then there touched the just also a tentation of death, and a disturbance of the multitude was made in the wilderness: but thy wrath did not long continue. {21} For a man without blame hastening to pray for the people, bringing forth the shield of his ministry, prayer, and by incense alleging supplication, resisted the wrath, and made an end of the necessity, shewing that he is thy servant. {22} And he overcame the multitudes, not in strength of body, nor with might of armour, but with a word subdued he him that vexed him, rehearsing the oaths of the parents, and the testament. {23} For when they were now fallen dead by heaps one upon an other, he stood between, and cut off the violence, and separated that way which leadeth to the living. {24} For in the vesture down to the foot, which he had, was all the world: and the glorious things of the fathers were graven in the four jewels of stones, & thy magnificence was written in the diadem of his head. {25} And to these he that destroyed gave peace, & these did he fear: for the proof only of wrath was sufficient.

Aegyptians persecuting the Hebrews were drowned. 10. having been plagued before with flies and frogs. 11. Quails were given to the people of Israel. 13. The barbarous not receiving, or evil intreating God's people, were stricken with blindness. 17. And all creatures serve God in punishing the impious and rewarding the godly.

{1} BUT upon the impious even to the later end there came wrath without mercy. For he foreknew also the things that should come unto them: {2} because when they had permitted that they should depart, and had sent them away with great diligence, they repenting pursued them. {3} For having as yet mourning between their hands, and lamenting at the graves of the dead, they took to themselves an other cogitation of folly: and whom by entreating they had cast forth, them they pursued as fugitives: {4} for worthy necessity brought them to this end: and they lost the remembrance of those things which had chanced, that punishment might fulfill the things that wanted to the torments: {5} and that thy people certes might pass through marvelously, but they might find a new death. {6} For every creature according to his kind was fashioned again from the beginning, serving thy precepts, that thy children might be kept without hurt. {7} For a cloud overshadowed their camp, and out of the water which was before, there appeared dry land, and in the red sea a way without impediment, and of the great depth a springing field: {8} through the which all the nation passed, which was protected with thy hand, seeing thy marvelous things and wonders. {9} For even as horses they fed on meat, and as lambs they rejoiced, magnifying thee o Lord, which didst deliver them. {10} For they were mindful of those things, which had been done in their sojourning, how for the nation of beasts the earth brought forth flies, & for fishes the river yielded a multitude of frogs. {11} And last of all they saw a new creature of birds, when allured by concupiscence they desired meats of deliciousness. {12} For in comfort of their desire, there came up to them the quail from the sea: and vexations came upon the sinners, not without those arguments, which were made before by the force of lightnings: for they suffered justly according to their wickedness. {13} For they instituted a more detestable inhospitality: some certes received not the unknown strangers, and other-some brought the good strangers into servitude. {14} And not only these things, but indeed there was an other respect also of them: for they against their will received the strangers. {15} But they that received them with gladness, did afflict them with most cruel sorrows, that used the same rights: {16} but they were stricken with blindness: as they in the doors of the just, when they were covered with sudden darkness, every man sought the passage of his door. {17} For whilst the elements are turned in themselves, as in an instrument the sound of the quality is changed, and all keep their sound: wherefore it may be certainly judged by the very sight. {18} For the things of the field were turned into things of the water: and what soever were swimming things passed into the land. {19} The fire had force in water above his power, and the water forgot her quenching nature. {20} On the contrary the flames vexed not the flesh of corruptible beasts walking therewith, neither did they melt that good meat, which was easily dissolved even as ice. For in all things thou didst magnify thy people o Lord, and didst honour them, and didst not despise them, at all time, and in every place assisting them.

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTICUS

Wisdom proceedeth from God, appeareth in his creatures. 10. and is given in competent measure to all that fear God. 16. it bringeth all virtues, 27. excludeth all vices, 33. and is to be sought in simplicity of heart.

{1} ALL wisdom is of our Lord God, & hath been always with him, & is before all time. {2} The sand of the sea, & the drops of rain, & the days of the world, who hath numbered? The height of heaven, and breadth of the earth, & profundity of the depth, who hath measured? {3} The wisdom of God that goeth before all things, who hath searched out? {4} Wisdom was created before all things, & the understanding of prudence from everlasting. {5} A fountain of wisdom the word of God on high, and the entrance thereof everlasting commandments. {6} The root of wisdom to whom hath it been revealed, & the subtleties thereof who hath known? {7} The discipline of wisdom to whom hath it been revealed and made manifest, and the multiplication of her entrance who hath understood. {8} There is one most high Creator omnipotent, and mighty King, and to be feared exceedingly, sitting upon his throne & the God of dominion. {9} He created her in the Holy Ghost, and hath seen, and numbered, and measured her. {10} And he hath poured her out upon all his works, and upon all flesh according to his gift, and hath given her to them that fear him. {11} The fear of our Lord is glory, and gloriation, and joy, and a crown of exultation. {12} The fear of our Lord shall delight the heart, and shall give joy, and gladness, and length of days. {13} With him that feareth our Lord it shall be well in the later end, and in the day of his death he shall be blessed. {14} The love of God is honourable wisdom. {15} But they to whom she shall appear in vision, they love her in the vision, and in the agnizing of her great works. {16} The fear of our Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and was created with the faithful in the womb, and goeth with the elect women, and is known with the just & faithful. {17} The fear of our Lord is religiosity of knowledge. {18} Religiosity shall keep and justify the heart, shall give joy and gladness. {19} With him that feareth our Lord it shall be well, and in the days of his consummation he shall be blessed. {20} The fullness of wisdom is to fear God, and fullness is of the fruits thereof. {21} All her house she shall fill with her generations, and the store-houses with her treasures. {22} A crown of wisdom, the fear of our Lord, replenishing peace, and the fruit of salvation: {23} and hath seen, and numbered her: but both are the gifts of God. {24} Wisdom shall distribute knowledge, and understanding of prudence: and exalteth the glory of them that hold it. {25} The root of wisdom is to fear our Lord: for the boughs thereof are of long time. {26} in the treasures of wisdom is understanding, & religiosity of knowledge: but to sinners wisdom is abomination. {27} The fear of our Lord expelleth sin: {28} for he that is without fear, can not be justified: for the anger of his animosity, is his subversion. {29} Until a time the patient shall sustain, and after shall be rewarded of joyfulness. {30} A good understanding will hide his words until a time, and the lips of many shall shew forth his understanding. {31} In the treasures of wisdom is signification of discipline: {32} But the worship of God is abomination to a sinner. {33} Son, coveting wisdom, keep justice, & God will give her to thee. {34} For the fear of our Lord is wisdom and discipline: and that which well pleaseth him, {35} is faith, and meekness, and he will fill his treasures. {36} Be not incredulous to the fear of our Lord: and come not to him with a double heart. {37} Be not an hypocrite in the sight of men, and be not scandalized in thy lips. {38} Attend to them, lest perhaps thou fall, and bring dishonour to thy soul, {39} and God reveal thy secret, and in the midst of the synagogue cast thee down: {40} because thou camest to our Lord wickedly, & thy heart is full of guile and deceit.

Whosoever will serve God must have justice, fear of God, and patience, 6. with confidence in God. 14. Dissemblers, incredulous, and impatient shall be miserable: 18. but the godly shall receive more grace.

{1} SON, coming to the service of God, stand in justice, and in fear, & prepare thy soul to temptation. {2} Repress thy heart, & sustain: incline thine ear, & receive the words of understanding, and make no haste in the time of obduracy. {3} Sustain the sustentations of God: be joined to God, and sustain, that thy life may increase in the later end. {4} All that shall be applied to thee, receive: and in sorrow sustain, and in thy humiliation have patience: {5} for gold and silver are tried in the fire, but acceptable men in the furnace of humiliation. {6} Believe God, and he will recover thee: and direct thy way, and hope in him. Keep his fear, and grow old therein. {7} Ye that fear our Lord, expect his mercy: & decline not from him, lest ye fall. {8} Ye that fear our Lord, believe him, & your reward shall not be void. {9} Ye that fear our Lord hope in him: and mercy shall come to you for your delectation. {10} Ye that fear our Lord, love him, & your hearts shall be illuminated. {11} Children behold the nations of men: and know ye that none hath hoped in our Lord, and hath been confounded. {12} For who hath continued in his commandment, and hath been forsaken? Or who hath invoked him, and he despised him? {13} Because God is pitiful and merciful, and will forgive sins in the day of tribulation: and he is protector of all that seek him in truth. {14} Woe to them of a double heart, & to wicked lips, and to the hands that do evil, and to the sinner that goeth on the earth two ways. {15} Woe to them that be dissolute of heart, which believe not God: and therefore they shall not be protected of him. {16} Woe be to them, that have lost patience, and that have forsaken the right ways, and have declined into perverse ways. {17} And what will they do, when our Lord shall begin to look on them? {18} They that fear our Lord, will not be incredulous to his word: and they that love him, will keep his way. {19} They that fear our Lord, will seek after the things that are well pleasing to him: and they that love him, shall be filled with his law. {20} They that fear our Lord, will prepare their hearts, and in his sight will sanctify their souls. {21} They that fear our Lord, keep his commandments, and will have patience even until his visitation, {22} saying: If we do not penance, we shall fall into the hands of our Lord, and not into the hands of men. {23} For according to his greatness, so also his mercy is with him.

Honour of parents procureth God's blessing. 11. dishonouring them his curse. 19. Meekness and modesty avail much: but curiosity to know secret mysteries is dangerous. 27. A charitable, sincere, and docile heart, 33. with works of mercy merit reward.

{1} THE children of wisdom are the Church of the just: and their nation, obedience and love. {2} Hear your father's judgement o children, and so do that you may be saved. {3} For God hath honoured the father in the children: and inquiring of the mother's judgement, hath confirmed it upon the children. {4} He that loveth God, praying shall obtain for sins, and shall refrain himself from them, and shall be heard in the prayer of days. {5} And as he that gathereth treasure, so he also that honoureth his mother. {6} He that honoureth his father, shall have joy in children, and in the day of his prayer he shall be heard. {7} He that honoureth his father, shall live the longer life: & he that obeyeth the father, shall refresh the mother. {8} He that feareth our lord honoureth his parents, and as his lords he will serve them that begat him. {9} In work and word, & all patience honour thy father, {10} that blessing may come upon thee from him, & his blessing may remain in the later end. {11} The father's blessing establisheth the houses of the children: but the mother's curse rooteth up the foundation. {12} Glory not in the contumely of thy father: for his confusion is no glory to thee. {13} For the glory of a man is by the honour of his father, and the father without honour is the dishonour of the son. {14} Son receive the old age of thy father, and make him not sorrowful in his life: {15} and if he fail in understanding, pardon him, and despise him not in thy strength: for the alms to the father shall not be in oblivion. {16} For good shall be restored thee for the sin of thy mother, {17} and in justice it shall be builded to thee, and in the day of tribulation there shall be remembrance of thee: and as ice in the clear weather shall thy sins melt away. {18} Of what an evil fame is he, that forsaketh his father: and he is cursed of God, that doth exasperate his mother. {19} Son do thy works in meekness, and thou shalt be beloved above the glory of men. {20} The greater thou art, humble thy self in all things, and thou shalt find grace before God: {21} because the might of God only is great, and he is honoured of the humble. {22} Seek no things higher than thy self, and search not things stronger than thy habilitie: but the things that God hath commanded thee, think on them always, and in many of his works be not curious. {23} For it is not necessary for thee, to see with thine eyes those things that are hid. {24} In superfluous things search not many ways, and in many of his works thou shalt not be curious. {25} For very many things are shewed to thee above the understanding of men. {26} Many also have their suspicion supplanted, and have held their senses in vanity. {27} A hard heart shall fare ill in the later end, and he that loveth danger, shall perish in it. {28} A heart that goeth two ways, shall not have success, and the perverse of heart shall be scandalized in them. {29} A wicked heart shall be laden with sorrows, and the sinner will add to commit sin. {30} To the synagogue of the proud there shall be no health: for the shrub of sin shall be rooted up in them, and it shall not be perceived. {31} The heart of the wise is understood in wisdom, and a good ear will hear wisdom with all desire. {32} A wise heart, and that which hath understanding will abstain it-self from sins, and in the works of justice shall have success. {33} Water quencheth burning fire, and alms resisteth sins: {34} and God is the beholder of him that rendereth grace: he remembereth him afterward, and in the time of his fall he shall find a sure stay.

An exhortation to practise works of mercy. 12. with commendation of wisdom; 23. (& observing due times) not to omit for any fear or shamefastness to say the truth, 34. also to be diligent, meek, and liberal.

{1} SON defraud not the alms of the poor, and turn not away thine eyes from the poor. {2} Despise not the hungry soul: and exasperate not the poor in his poverty. {3} Afflict not the heart of the needy, & defer not the gift to him that is in distress. {4} Reject not the petition of him that is afflicted: and turn not away thy face from the needy. {5} From the poor turn not away thine eyes for anger: and leave not to them that ask of thee, to curse thee behind thy back. {6} For the prayer of him that curseth thee in the bitterness of his soul shall be heard: and he that made him, will hear him. {7} Make thy self affable to the congregation of the poor, and to the ancient humble thy soul, and to a great man bow thy head. {8} Bow down thine ear to the poor without sadness, and render thy debt, and answer him peaceable words in mildness. {9} Deliver him that suffereth injury out of the hand of the proud: and be not faint-hearted in thy soul. {10} In judging be merciful to pupils as a father, & as an husband to their mother: {11} and thou shalt be as the obedient son of the Highest, and he will have mercy on thee more than a mother. {12} Wisdom inspirith life to her children, and receiveth them that seek after her, and will go before them in the way of justice. {13} And he that loveth her, loveth life: and they that shall watch to her, shall embrace her sweetness. {14} They that shall hold her, shall inherit life: and whithersoever he shall enter, God will bless him. {15} They that serve her, shall be servants to the holy: and them that love her God loveth. {16} He that heareth her, shall judge nations: and he that beholdeth her, shall remain confident. {17} If he believe her, he shall inherit her, and her creatures shall be in confirmation: {18} because in temptation she walketh with him, and first of all she chooseth him. {19} Fear, and dread, and probation she will bring upon him: and she will torment him in the tribulation of her doctrine, till she try him in her cogitations and credit his soul. {20} And she will establish him, and make a direct way unto him, and rejoice him, {21} and will disclose her secrets to him, and will heap upon him as treasures knowledge & understanding of justice. {22} But if he go amiss, she will forsake him, and deliver him into the hands of his enemy. {23} Son observe time, and avoid from evil. {24} For thy soul be not ashamed to say the truth. {25} For there is shame that bringeth sin, & there is shame that bringeth glory and grace. {26} Accept no face against thine own face, nor against thy soul a lie. {27} Reverence not thy neighbour in his offence: {28} nor keep in a word in time of salvation. Hide not thy wisdom in the beauty thereof. {29} For by the tongue wisdom is discerned: and understanding, and knowledge, and doctrine by the word of the wise, and steadfastness in the works of justice. {30} Do not gain say the word of truth by any means: and be ashamed of the lie of thine unskillfulness. {31} Be not ashamed to confess thy sins, and submit not thy self to every man for sin. {32} Resist not against the face of the mighty, neither labour against the stream of the river. {33} For justice contend for thy soul, and unto death strive for justice, and God will overthrow thine enemies for thee. {34} Be not hasty in thy tongue: and unprofitable and remiss in thy works. {35} Be not as a lion in thy house, overthrowing them of thy household, and oppressing them that are subject to thee. {36} Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and closed to give.

Let not riches, youth nor strength hold thee in sin: 5. but do penance for sins remitted, and add not sin upon sin. 6. Neither presume to sin, because God is merciful. 10. Be not covetous, nor unconstant. 13. Be meek in learning, and careful in teaching. 16. not a baitmaker, nor double tongued.

{1} ATTEND not to unjust possessions, and say not: I have sufficient livelihood: for it shall nothing profit in the time of vengeance & affliction. {2} Follow not in thy strength the concupiscence of thy heart: {3} and say not: How mighty am I? And who shall bring me under for my facts? For God revenging will revenge. {4} Say not: I have sinned, and what sorrowful thing hath chanced to me? For the Highest is a patient rewarder. {5} Of sin forgiven be not without fear, neither add thou sin upon sin. {6} And say not: The mercy of our Lord is great, he will have mercy on the multitude of my sins. {7} For mercy and wrath quickly approach from God, and his wrath looketh upon sinners. {8} Slack not to be converted to our Lord, and defer not from day to day. {9} For his wrath shall come suddenly: and in the time of vengeance he will destroy thee. {10} Be not careful in unjust riches: for they shall not profit thee in the day of obduracy and vengeance. {11} Toss not thy self into every wind, and go not into every way: for so every sinner is proved by a double tongue. {12} Be steadfast in the way of our Lord, & in the truth of thy understanding, and in knowledge, and let the word of peace and justice accompany thee. {13} Be mild to hear the word thou mayst understand, and with wisdom utter thou a true answer. {14} If thou have understanding, answer thy neighbour: but if not, let thine hand be upon thy mouth, lest thou be taken in an unskilful word, and be confounded. {15} Honour and glory in the word of the wise, but the tongue of the unwise is his subversion. {16} Be not called a whisperer, and be not taken in thy tongue, & confounded. {17} For upon a thief is confusion & repentance, and a very evil condemnation upon the double tongue, but to the whisperer hatred, and enmity, and contumely. {18} Justify thou the little one, and the great alike.

Chapter 6

Reproach, envy, and ferocity hinder from loving our neighbour. 5. sweetness nourisheth it. 6. A trusty friend is much worth. 8. Seek and keep wisdom, with all diligence. 35. Frequent the company of the wise: and meditate in God's law.

{1} BE not for a friend made an enemy to thy neighbour: for the evil man shall inherit reproach and contumely, and every sinner envious and double tongued. {2} Extol not thy self in the cogitation of thy soul as it were a bull: lest perhaps thy strength be quashed, {3} and it eat thy leaves, and destroy thy fruits, and thou be left as a dry tree in the wilderness. {4} For a wicked soul shall destroy him that hath it, and it giveth him to be a joy to his enemies, and shall lead him into the lot of the impious. {5} A sweet word multiplieth friends, & appeaseth enemies, and a gracious tongue in a good man aboundeth. {6} Let there be many at peace with thee, and let one of a thousand be thy counsellor. {7} If thou possess a friend, in temptation possess him, and not easily credit him. {8} For he is a friend according to his own time, and will not abide in the day of tribulation {9} And there is a friend that is turned to enmity: and there is a friend that will disclose hatred, and reproaches. {10} And there is a friend companion at the table, and he will not abide in the day of necessity. {11} A friend if he continue steadfast, shall be to thee as an equal, and in them of thy household shall deal confidently: {12} if he humble himself against thee, and hide himself from thy face, thou shalt have friendship of one accord for good. {13} Be separated from thine enemies, & take heed of thy friends. {14} A faithful friend, is a strong protection: and he that hath found him, hath found a treasure. {15} To a faithful friend there is no comparison, and there is no poise of gold and silver able to countervail the goodness of his fidelity. {16} A faithful friend, is the medicine of life & immortality: & they that fear our Lord, shall find him. {17} He that feareth God, shall likewise have good friendship: because according to him shall his friend be. {18} Son, from thy youth receive doctrine, and even to thy hoar hairs thou shalt find wisdom. {19} As he that ploweth, and that soweth, go to her, and expect her good fruits. {20} For in her work thou shalt labour a little, and shalt quickly eat of her generation. {21} How exceeding sharp is wisdom to the unlearned men, and the unwise will not continue in her. {22} As the virtue of a stone she shall be a probation in them, and they will not stay to cast her forth. {23} For the wisdom of doctrine is according to her name, and she is not manifest to many, but to whom she is known, she continueth even to the sight of God. {24} Hear my son, and take counsel of understanding, and cast not away my counsel. {25} Thrust thy foot into her fetters, and thy neck into her chains. {26} Put under thy shoulder, and carry her, and be not weary of her bands. {27} With all thy mind go to her, and with all thy strength keep her ways. {28} Search her out, and she shall be made manifest to thee, and having obtained her, forsake her not: {29} For in the later end, thou shalt find rest in her, and she shall be turned unto delectation. {30} And her fetters shall be to thee for a protection of strength, and foundation of power, & her chains for a stole of glory: {688} {31} For the beauty of life is in her, and her bands are a healthful binding. {32} Thou shalt put on her a stole of glory, and as a crown of gratulation thou shalt set her upon thee. {33} Son, if thou attend to me, thou shalt learn: and if thou wilt apply thy mind, thou shalt be wise. {34} If thou wilt incline thine ear, thou shalt receive doctrine: and if thou love to hear, thou shalt be wise. {35} Stand in the multitude of wise ancients, and be joined to their wisdom from thy heart, that thou mayst hear all the narration of God, and the praise may not escape thee. {36} And if thou see a wise man, watch after him, and let thy foot wear the steps of his doors. {37} Have thy cogitation in the precepts of God, and in his commandments most of all be daily conversant: and he will give thee heart, and the desire of wisdom shall be given thee.

Chapter 7

Fly from all evil things, 4. as ambition, presumption, scandal, pusillanimity, lying, and babbling. 16. Husbandry of the ground, 21. a good wife, and good servants are to be cherished, keep children in discipline. 29. Honour parents, and elders, 36. & pity the poor. 40. Memory of the last things preserveth from sin.

{1} DO not evils, and they shall not apprehend thee. shall fail from thee. {2} Depart from the wicked, & evil {3} Son, sow not evils in the furrows of justice, & thou shalt not reap them sevenfold. {4} Seek not of the Lord chief principality, nor of the king the chair of honour. {5} Justify not thy-self before God, because he is the knower of the heart: and before the king desire not to seem wise. {6} Seek not to be made a judge, unless thou be able by power to break iniquities: lest perhaps thou fear the face of the mighty, and put a scandal in thine equity. {7} Sin not against the multitude of a city, neither thrust thy-self into the people, {8} nor bind together double sins: for neither in one shalt thou be free from punishment. {9} Be not faint-hearted in thy mind: {10} despise not to pray, and to give alms. {11} Say not: In the multitude of my gifts God will have respect, and when I offer to God most high, he will receive my gifts. {12} Laugh not a man to scorn in the bitterness of his soul: for there is that humbleth and exalteth, God the overseer of all. {13} Plow not a lie against thy brother: neither do thou likewise against thy friend. {14} Be not willing to make any lie: for the custom thereof is not good. {15} Be not full of words in a multitude of ancients, and iterate not a word in thy speech. {16} Hate not laborious works, and husbandry created of the Highest. {17} Count not thy self in the multitude of men without discipline. {18} Be mindful of wrath, because it will not slack. {19} Humble thy spirit very much: because the vengeance of the flesh of the impious, is fire and the worm. {20} Do not prevaricate against thy friend deferring money, nor despise thy dearest brother for gold. {21} Depart not from a wise and good woman, which thou hast gotten in the fear of our Lord: for the grace of her bashfulness is above gold. {22} Hurt not the servant that worketh in truth, nor the hired man that giveth his soul. {23} Let a wise servant be beloved of thee as thy soul, defraud him not of liberty, nor leave him needy. {24} Hast thou cattle? Look well to them: and if they be profitable, let them continue with thee. {25} Hast thou children? Instruct them, & bow them from their childhood. {26} Hast thou daughters? Keep their body, and shew not thy countenance merry towards them. {27} Bestow thy daughter, and thou shalt do a great work, and give her to a wise man. {28} If thou have a wife according to thy soul, cast her not off: and to her that is hateful commit not thy self. With thy whole heart {29} honour thy father, and forget not the groanings of thy mother: {30} remember that thou hadst not been born but by them: and recompense them, as they also thee. {31} In all thy soul fear our Lord, and sanctify his Priests. {32} With all thy strength love him that made thee: & forsake not his ministers. {33} Honour God with all thy soul, and honour the Priests, and purge thy self with the arms. {34} Give them the portion, as it is commanded thee, of the first fruits and purgation: and of thy negligence purge thy self with few. {35} The gift of thine arms and the sacrifice of sanctification thou shalt offer to our Lord, and the first of holy things: {36} and to the poor stretch out thine hand, that thy propitiation may be perfected, and thy blessing. {37} The grace of a gift is in the sight of all the living, and from the dead stay not grace. {38} Want not in consolation to them that weep, and walk with them that mourn. {39} Be not loath to visit the sick: for by these things thou shalt be confirmed in love. {40} In all thy works remember thy later ends, and thou wilt not sin for ever.

Contend not with a man of power, rich, full of tongue, or very ignorant. 6. Despise not the penitent, nor old folk. 8. Rejoice not at an enemy's death. 9. Learn of the elder, 13. Observe discretion in admonishing, lending, and in being surely. 17. Reprove not Judges. 18. Converse not with the furious, foolish, nor with strangers.

{1} STRIVE not with a mighty man, lest perhaps thou fall into his hands. {2} Contend not with a rich man, lest perhaps he make an action against thee. {3} For gold and silver hath destroyed many, and hath reached even to the heart of kings, and hath turned them. {4} Strive not with a man full of tongue, & thou shalt not heap sticks upon his fire. {5} Communicate not with the ignorant man, lest he speak ill of thy progeny. {6} Despise not a man that turneth himself from sin, nor upbraid him therewith: remember that we are all in state to be blamed. {7} Despise not a man in his old age: for we also shall become old. {8} Rejoice not of thine enemy dead: knowing that we do all die, & would not that others should joy thereat. {9} Despise not the narration of wise ancients, and in their proverbs be thou conversant. {10} For of them thou shalt learn wisdom, and doctrine of understanding, and to serve great men without blame. {11} Let not the narration of the ancients escape thee: for they learned of their fathers: {12} because of them thou shalt learn understanding, and in time of necessity to give answer. {13} Kindle not the coals of sinners rebuking them, and be not kindled with the flame of the fire of their sins. {14} Stand not against the face of a contumelious person, lest he sit as a spy in wait for thy mouth. {15} Lend not to a man mightier than thy self, and if thou doest lend, count it as lost. {16} Be not surely above thy power: and if thou be surely, think as if thou were to pay it. {17} Judge not against a judge: because he judgeth according to that which is just. {18} With the audacious go not on the way, lest perhaps he burden thee with his evils: for he goeth according to his own will, and thou shalt perish together with his folly. {19} With an angry man make no brawl, and with the audacious go not into the desert: because blood is as nothing before him, and where there is no help, he will overthrow thee. {20} Confer no counsel with fools, for they can not love but such things as please them. {21} Before a stranger do no matter of counsel: for thou knowest not what he will bring forth. {22} Make not thy heart manifest to every man: lest perhaps he repay thee false kindness, and speak reproachfully to thee.

Great prudence is required in conversation between men and women. 14. Esteem old friends. 16. Emulate not sinners. 18. Avoid the company of malicious. 21. Consult with the prudent, having God ever before thine eyes.

{1} BE not jealous over the wife of thy bosom, lest she shew upon thee the malice of wicked doctrine. {2} Give not to a woman the power of thy soul, lest she go in thy strength, and thou be confounded. {3} Look not upon a woman that is desirous of many: lest perhaps thou fall into her snares. {4} With her that is a dancer be not daily conversant, nor hear her, lest perhaps thou perish in her efficacy. {5} Behold not a virgin.{690} lest perhaps thou be scandalized in her beauty. {6} Give not thy soul to harlots in any point: lest thou destroy thy self, and thine inheritance. {7} Look not round about in the ways of the city, nor wander up and down in the streets thereof. {8} Turn away thy face from a trimmed woman, and gaze not about upon an other's beauty. {9} By the beauty of a woman many have perished: and hereby concupiscence is inflamed as a fire. {10} Every woman, that is an harlot, shall be trodden upon as dung in the way. {11} Many having admired the beauty of an other man's wife, have become reprobate, for her communication burneth as fire. {12} Sit not at all with an other man's wife, nor repose upon the bed with her: {13} and strive not with her at the wine, lest perhaps thy heart decline toward her, & with thy blood thou fall into perdition. {14} Forsake not an old friend: for the new will not be like to him. {15} A new friend, is as new wine: it shall wax old, and thou shalt drink it with sweetness. {16} Do not zealously desire the glory and the riches of a sinner: for thou knowest not what his subversion shall be. {17} Let not the injury of the unjust please thee, knowing that even to hell the impious shall not please. {18} Be far from the man that hath power to kill, and thou shalt not suspect the fear of death. {19} And if thou come to him, commit nothing, lest perhaps he take away thy life. {20} Know it to be communication with death; because thou shalt go in the midst of snares, and shalt walk upon the weapons of the sorrowful. {21} According to thy power beware thee of thy neighbour, and treat with the wise and prudent. {22} Let just men be thy guests, and let thy gloriation be in the fear of God, {23} and let the cogitation of God be in thy understanding, & all thine enarration in the precepts of the Highest. {24} Works shall be praised in the hands of artificers, and the Prince of the people in the wisdom of his speech, but the word of the ancients in the sense. {25} A man full of tongue is terrible in his city, and he that is rash in his word shall be odious.

Wise superiors are very necessary, because the multitude follow their example. 6. Remit and forget injuries, detest pride, injustice, contumely, and avarice. 12. Life is short. 14. Pride is the root of all sins. 23. Just poverty is better than sinful riches. 31. Meekness and modesty are necessary in all men.

{1} A wise judge shall judge his people, and the principality of the wise shall be stable. {2} According to the judge of the people, so also are his ministers: and what manner of man the ruler of a city is, such also are the inhabitants therein. {3} An unwise king shall destroy his people: and cities shall be inhabited by the understanding of the prudent. {4} The power of the earth is in the hand of God, and he will raise up a profitable ruler for a time over it. {5} The prosperity of man is in the hand of God, & upon the face of the scribe he will put his honour. {6} Any injury of thy neighbour remember not, and do nothing by works of injury. {7} Pride is odious before God and men: and all the iniquity of the nations is execrable. {8} A kingdom is translated from nation unto nation, because of injustices, and injuries, and contumelies, and diverse deceits. {9} But nothing is more wicked than the covetous man. Why is earth and ashes proud? {10} Nothing is more wicked than to love money. For he hath his soul also to sell: because in his life he hath cast forth his most inward things: {11} All power is of short life. Long sickness grieveth the Physician. {12} Short sickness the Physician cutteth off at the first: so also the king is to day, & to morrow he shall die. {13} For when a man shall die, he shall inherit serpents, and beasts, and worms. {14} The beginning of the pride of man, is to apostatare from God: {15} because his heart is departed from him that made him, for pride is the beginning of all sin: he that holdeth it, shall be filled with curse, & it shall subvert him in the end. {16} Therefore hath our Lord dishonoured the congregations of the evil, & hath destroyed them even to the end. {17} God hath destroyed the seats of proud Princes, and hath made the meek sit in their stead. {18} God hath made the roots of the proud nations to wither, and hath planted the humble of the nations themselves. {19} Our Lord hath subverted the lands of the gentiles, and hath destroyed them even to the foundation. {20} He hath made of them to wither, and hath destroyed them, and hath made the memory of them to cease from the earth. {21} God hath destroyed the memory of the proud, and hath left the memory of them that are humble in understanding. {22} Pride was not created to men: nor wrath to the nation of women. {23} That seed of men shall be honoured, which feareth God: but that seed shall be dishonoured, which transgresseth the commandments of our Lord. {24} In the midst of brethren their ruler shall be in honour: and they that fear our Lord, shall be in his eyes. {25} The glory of the rich, of the honourable, and of the poor, is the fear of God: {26} Despise not the just man that is poor, and magnify not the sinful man that is rich. {27} The great one, and the judge, and the mighty is in honour, and there is none greater than he that feareth God. {28} Free men will serve a servant that is wise: and a man that is prudent and hath discipline will not murmur being rebuked, and the ignorant shall not be honoured. {29} Extol not thy self in doing thy work, and linger not in the time of distress: {30} better is he that worketh, and aboundeth in all things, than he that glorieth, and lacketh bread. {31} Son in mildness keep thy soul, and give him honour according to his desert. {32} Him that sinneth against his own soul who shall justify? And who shall honour him that dishonoureth his own soul? {33} The poor man is glorified by his discipline and fear: & there is a man that is honoured for his substance. {34} But he that is glorified in poverty, how much more in substance? And he that is glorified in substance, let him fear poverty.

Wisdom by humility meriteth exaltation. 7. Judge not before examination. 16. Trust not in riches. 14. God sendeth both prosperity and adversity for the good his servants. 31. Take heed of the deceitful.

{1} THE wisdom of the humble shall exalt his head, & shall make him sit in the midst of great men. {2} Praise not a man in his beauty, neither despise a man by his look. {3} The bee is small among fowls, and her fruit hath the beginning of sweetness. {4} In apparel do not glory at any time, nor be extolled in the day of thine honour, because the works of the Highest only be marvelous, and his works are glorious, and secret, and not seen. {5} Many tyrants have sat in the throne, and he whom no man would think hath worn the crown. {6} Many mighty men have been greatly oppressed, and the glorious have been delivered into the hands of others. {7} Before thou inquire, blame no man: and when thou hast inquired, chasten justly. {8} Before thou hear, answer not a word, and in the midst of ancients add not to speak. {9} Strive not for that thing, which doth not molest thee: and consist not in the judgement of sinners. {10} Son let not thy doings be in many things: and if thou be rich, thou shalt not be free from sin: for if thou pursue thou shalt not attain: and if thou run before, thou shalt not escape. {11} There is one that laboureth, and hasteneth, and is a sorrowful impious man, and so much the more he shall not abound. {12} There is a lither man that wanteth recovery, more failing in strength, and abounding in poverty: {13} and the eye of God hath respected him in good, and hath erected him from his low estate, and hath exalted his head: and many have marveled at him, and have honoured God. {14} Good things and evil, life and death, poverty and honesty are of God. {15} Wisdom and discipline, and the knowledge of the law are with God. Love, and the ways of good things are with him. {16} Error & darkness are created with sinners: and they that rejoice in evils, wax old in evil. {17} The gift of God is permanent to the just, and his prospering shall have success for ever. {18} There is that is enriched by doing sparingly, and this is the portion of his reward, {19} in that he saith: I have found me rest, and now I will eat of my goods alone: {20} and he knoweth not that time passeth, & death approacheth, and he must leave all to others, and shall die. {21} Stand in thy covenant, and commune therein, and grow old in the work of thy commandments. {22} Abide not in the works of sinners. But trust in God, and tarry in thy place. {23} For it is easy in the eyes of God suddenly to enrich the poor man. {24} The blessing of God hasteneth to the reward of the just, and in a swift hour his prospering fructifieth. {25} Say not: What need I, and what good shall I have by this? {26} Say not: I am sufficient for my self: and what shall I be made worse by this? {27} In the day of good things be not unmindful of evils: and in the day of evils be not unmindful of good things: {28} because it is easy before God in the day of death to reward every one according to his ways. {29} The malice of an hour maketh oblivion of great voluptuousness, and in the end of a man in the disclosing of his works. {30} Before death praise no man, because a man is known in his children. {31} Bring not every man into thine house: for there be many trains of the deceitful man. {32} For as the stomachs belch of stinking breaths, and as the partridge is brought in to the cage, and as the doe into the snare: so also the heart of the proud, and as a watch-man that seeth the fall of his neighbour. {33} For turning good things into evil he lieth in wait, and on the elect he will lay a blot. {34} For of one spark fire is increased, and of a deceitful man blood is increased: and a sinful man lieth in wait for blood. {35} Take heed of thy self of the pestiferous person, for he forgeth evils: lest perhaps he bring upon thee derision for ever. {36} Admit a stranger to thee, and he shall overthrow thee in an hurlwind, & shall make thee an alien from thine own.

{1} IF thou wilt do good, know to whom thou doest it, and there shall be much thank in thy good deeds. {2} Do good to the just, and thou shalt find great reward: and if not of him, assuredly of our Lord. {3} For it is not well with him, that is ever occupied in evil things, and that giveth not alms: because the Highest both hateth sinners, and hath mercy on them that are penitent. {4} Give to the merciful, and receive not the sinner: both to the impious & to sinners he will repay vengeance, keeping them unto the day of vengeance. {5} Give to the good, and receive not a sinner. {6} Do good to the humble, and give not to the impious: prohibit to give him bread, lest therein he be mightier than thou: {7} for thou shalt find double evils in all the good, whatsoever thou shalt do to him: because the Highest hateth sinners, and will repay vengeance to the impious. {8} A friend shall not be known in prosperity, and an enemy shall not be hid in adversity. {9} In the prosperity of a man, his enemies are in sorrow, and in affliction a friend is known. {10} Credit not thine enemy for ever: for as a brass pot his wickedness rusteth: {11} and if humbling himself he go crouching, be advised in thy mind, and beware of him. {12} Place him not by thee, neither let him sit on thy right hand, lest perhaps turning into thy place, he seek after thy seat: and at the last thou know my words, and be pricked in my sayings. {13} Who will have pity upon the enchanter striking of a serpent, or of any that come near to beasts? So also he that keepeth company with a wicked man, and is wrapped in his sins. {14} For one hour he will tarry with thee: but if thou decline, he will not abide it. {15} In his lips the enemy speaketh sweetly, and in his heart he lieth in wait, that he may overthrow thee into the pit. {16} In his eyes the enemy weepeth: and if he may find a time, he will not be satisfied with blood: {17} and if evils happen to thee, {693} thou shalt find him there first. {18} In his eyes the enemy weepeth, and as it were helping thee, he will undermine thy feet. {19} He will shake his head, and clap his hand, and whispering many things he will change his countenance.

Conversation with the proud, rich, and potent is dangerous. 9. Rely upon God's help. 11. Beware of pusillanimity, & of presumption. 19. A mean is necessary, and the company of equals is most secure.

{1} HE that toucheth pitch, shall be defiled with it: and he that communicateth with the proud, shall put on pride. {2} He shall take a burden upon him that communicateth with one more honourable than himself. And be not companion with one richer than thy self. {3} What society shall the cauldron have with the earthen pot? For when they shall knock one against the other, it shall be broken. {4} The rich man hath done unjustly, and he will fume: but the poor man being hurt will hold his peace. {5} If thou give, he will take thee: and if thou have not, he will forsake thee. {6} If thou have, he will live with thee, and will empty thee, and he will not be sorry for thee. {7} If thou be necessary for him, he will supplant thee, and smiling will put thee in hope, telling thee good things, and will say: What wantest thou? {8} And he will confound thee in his meats, till he empty thee twice & thrice, and at the last he will mock thee: and afterward seeing he will forsake thee, and will shake his head at thee. {9} Humble thy self to God, and expect his hands. {10} Take heed lest seduced into folly thou be humbled. {11} Be not humble in thy wisdom, lest humbled thou be seduced into folly. {12} Being called of the mightier, depart: for by this he will call thee the more. {13} Be not importune, lest thou be rejected: & be not far from him, lest thou go into oblivion. {14} Stay not to speak fellow-like with him: neither credit him many words. For by much talk he will prove thee, and smiling will examine thee of thy secrets. {15} His cruel mind will keep thy words: and he will not spare for malice, and for bands. {16} Take heed to thy self, and attend diligently to thine hearing: because thou walkest with thy subversion. {17} But hearing those things see as it were in sleep, and thou shalt watch. {18} Love God all thy life, and invoke him for thy salvation. {19} Every beast loveth the like to it-self: so also every man the nearest to himself. {20} All flesh will march with the like to it-self, & every man will associate himself to his like. {21} If the wolf shall at any time communicate with the lamb, so the sinner with the just. {22} What fellowship hath an holy man with a dog, or what part hath the rich with the poor? {23} The wild ass in the desert is the lion's prey: so the poor are also the pastures of the rich. {24} And as humility is abomination to the proud: so also the poor man is the execration of the rich. {25} The rich man being moved is confirmed by his friends: but the humble when he is fallen, shall be thrust out even of his familiars. {26} To the rich deceived there are many recoverers: he hath spoken proud words, and they have justified him. {27} The humble was deceived, he moreover is rebuked also: he hath spoken wisely, and place was not given unto him. {28} The rich man spake, and all held their peace, and they will carry his words even to the clouds. {29} The poor man spake and they say: Who is this? And if he stumble, they will overthrow him. {30} Substance is good, to him that hath no sin in his conscience: and poverty is most wicked in the mouth of the impious. {31} The heart of a man altereth his countenance, either into good, or into evil. {32} The token of a good heart, and a good countenance thou shalt hardly find, and with labour.

Offence of the tongue is a frequent and dangerous sin. 3. Riches are hurtful to a covetous, and to an envious mind. 11. works of mercy necessary. 22. and perseverance in wisdom.

{1} BLESSED is the man that hath not offended in a word out of his mouth, and is not pricked with the sorrow of sin. {2} Happy is he, that hath not had heaviness of his mind, and hath not fallen from his hope. {3} Substance is without reason to the covetous man and niggard, and for the spiteful envious man to what purpose is gold? {4} He that heapeth together from his heart unjustly, gathereth for others, and in his goods an other will keep riot. {5} He that is wicked to himself, to what other man will he be good? And he shall have no pleasure in his goods. {6} He that enviieth himself, nothing is worse than he, and this is the reward of his malice: {7} and if he do good, he doth it ignorantly, and not willing: and at the last he manifesteth his malice. {8} The eye of the envious is wicked, and turneth away his face, and despiseth his own soul. {9} The eye of the covetous man insatiable in a portion of iniquity, will not be satisfied till he consume his own soul withering it. {10} An evil eye is towards evil things: & he shall have his fill of bread, needy & in heaviness shall he be at his table. {11} Son if thou have it, do good to thy self, and offer to God worthy oblations. {12} Be mindful that death slacked not, and that the covenant of hell hath been shewed thee: for the covenant of this world shall die the death. {13} Before death do good to thy friend, and according to thine ability stretching out thy hand, give to the poor. {14} Be not defrauded of thy good day, and let not a little portion of a good gift over-pass thee. {15} Shalt thou not leave to others thy sorrows, & labours in the division of the lot? {16} Give and take, and justify thy soul. {17} Before thy death work justice: for in hell there can not meat be found. {18} All flesh shall wax old as grass, and as the leaf fructifying on a green tree. {19} Some grow, and some are shaken off: so the generation of flesh and blood, one is ended, and an other is born. {20} All corruptible work shall fail in the end: and he that worketh it shall go therewith. {21} And every excellent work shall be justified: and he that worketh it, shall be honoured therein. {22} Blessed is the man that shall continue in wisdom, and that shall meditate in his justice, and in understanding shall consider the providence of God. {23} He that considereth her ways in his heart, and hath understanding in her secrets, going after her as a searcher, and consisting in her ways: {24} He that looketh through her windows, and heareth in her gates: {25} He that resteth by her house, & in her walls fastening a stake will set up his cottage beside her hands: and good things shall rest in his cottage for ever. {26} He shall set his children under her covering, and shall abide under her boughs: {27} he shall be protected under her covering from the heat, and shall rest in her glory.

The fruits of fearing God: 7. which fools and liars reap not, but the wise only. 11. God is no way author of sin, 14. but sinners themselves are the Authors, abusing their freewill.

{1} HE that feareth God, shall do good things, and he that hath justice shall apprehend her, {2} and she will meet him as an honourable mother, & a wife from virginity she will receive him. {3} She shall feed him with the bread of life and understanding, and give him the water of wholesome wisdom to drink: and she shall be made sure in him, and he shall not be bowed: {4} and she shall hold him fast, and he shall not be confounded: and she shall exalt him before his neighbours, {5} and in the midst of the Church she shall open his mouth, and shall fill him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding, and shall clothe him with a stole of glory. {6} Joy & exultation she shall heap upon him, & shall make him inherit an everlasting name. {7} Foolish men shall not apprehend her, & wise men shall meet her, foolish men shall not see her: for she is far from pride and deceit. {8} Lying men shall not be mindful of her: and true men shall be found in her, and shall have success, even to the beholding of God. {9} Praise is not comely in the mouth of a sinner: {695} {10} because wisdom proceeded from God. For praise shall be with the wisdom of God, & shall abound in a faithful mouth, & the dominatour will give praise to it. {11} Say not: It is by God, that she is absent: for do not thou the things that he hateth. {12} Say not: He hath made me err: for impious men are not necessary for him. {13} Our Lord hateth all abomination of error, and it shall not be amiable to them, that fear him. {14} God from the beginning made man, and left him in the hand of his own counsel. {15} He added his commandments and precepts. {16} If thou will keep the commandment, and keep acceptable fidelity for ever, they shall preserve thee. {17} He hath set before thee water and fire: to which thou wilt, stretch forth thine hand. {18} Before man there is life and death, good and evil: what pleaseth him shall be given him: {19} Because the wisdom of God is much, and he is strong in might, seeing all men without intermission. {20} The eyes of our Lord are towards them that fear him, and he knoweth all the work of man. {21} He hath commanded no man to do impiously, and he hath given no man space to sin: {22} for he desireth not a multitude of faithless and unprofitable children.

A few good children, yea none at all, are better than many wicked. 9. God's wrath falleth upon the evil, and his mercy on the good. 14. Works of mercy merit great reward. 15. Nothing is hid from God, 20. but many things from men.

{1} REJOICE not in impious children, if they be multiplied: neither be delighted upon them, if the fear of God be not in them. {2} Credit not their life, and respect not their labours. {3} For better is one fearing God, than a thousand impious children. {4} And it is more profitable to die without children, rather than to leave impious children. {5} By one wise a country shall be inhabited, and the tribe of the impious shall be made desolate. {6} Many such things hath mine eye seen, and mine ear hath heard things of more force than these. {7} In the synagogue of sinners a fire shall flame, and in an incredulous nation wrath shall wax hot.

{8} The old giants did not obtain for their sins, who were destroyed trusting to their own strength: {9} and he spared not the peregrination of Lot, and he detested them for the pride of their word. {10} He had not pity on them, destroying the whole nation, and extolling themselves in their sins. {11} And as the six hundred thousand foot men, which were gathered together in the hardness of their heart: and if one had been stiff necked, it is marvel if he had been unpunished. {12} For there is mercy and wrath with him. Mighty exoration, & pouring out wrath: {13} according to his mercy, so his chastisement judgeth a man according to his works. {14} The sinner shall not escape in robbery, and the sufferance of him that doth mercy shall not slack. {15} All mercy shall make a place to every man according to the merit of his works, & according to the understanding of his peregrination. {16} Say not: I shall be hid from God, and from on high who shall remember me? {17} In a great people I shall not be known: for what is my soul among so innumerable creatures? {18} Behold heaven, and the heavens of heavens, the depth, and all the earth, & the things that are in them, in his sight shall be moved, {19} the mountains together, and the little hills, & the foundations of the earth: & when God shall behold them, they shall be shaken with trembling. {20} And in all these things the heart is senseless: and every heart is understood of him: {21} and his ways who doth understand, and the storm, which neither the eye of man shall see? {22} For many of his works are in secrets: but the works of his justice who shall declare? Or who shall sustain? For the testament is far from some, and the examination of all is in consummation. {23} He that is less of heart, thinketh vain things: and the unwise, and erring man, thinketh foolish things. {24} Hear me my son, and learn the discipline of understanding, and attend to my words in thy heart, {25} and I will speak discipline in equity, and will search to declare wisdom: and to my words attend in thy heart, and I speak in equity of spirit the virtues, that God hath put upon his works from the beginning, and in truth I shew forth his knowledge. {26} In the judgement of God are his works from the beginning, and from the institution of them he distinguished their parts, and their beginnings in their nations. {27} He adorned their works for ever, neither have they hungered, nor laboured, and they have not ceased from their works. {28} Every one shall not vex his neighbour for ever. {29} Be not incredulous to his word. {30} After this God looked upon the earth, & filled it with his good things. {31} And the soul of every living thing shall shew before the face thereof, and into it again is their return.

God creating man to his own image, gave him gifts, 9. and precepts: 14. chose the Israelites for his peculiar people. 18. Works of mercy are commended to all men. 20. Repentance to sinners. 28. Mercy is offered to all.

{1} GOD created man of the earth, and after his own image he made him. turned him into it, and conformable to {2} And again he himself clothed him with strength. {3} He gave him a number of days and time, and gave him power of those things that are upon the earth. {4} He put his fear over all flesh, and he had dominion of beasts and fowls. {5} He created of him an helper like to himself: he gave them counsel, and tongue, and eyes, & ears, and heart to devise: and he filled them with the discipline of understanding. {6} He created in them the knowledge of the spirit, he filled their heart with understanding, and evil and good he shewed them. {7} He set his eye upon their hearts to shew them the great things of his works: {8} that they might praise the name of sanctification: & glory in his marvelous works, that they might declare the glorious things of his works. {9} He added discipline unto them, and made them inherit the law of life. {10} He made an everlasting testament with them, & he shewed them justice and his judgements. {11} And their eye saw the glorious things of his honour, & their ears heard the honour of his voice, and he said to them: Beware of every unjust thing. {12} And he gave them commandment every one concerning his neighbour. {13} Their ways are before him always, they are not hid from his eyes. {14} Over every nation he appointed a ruler. {15} And Israel was made the manifest portion of God. {16} And all their works as the sun in the sight of God: and his eyes without intermission looking on their ways. {17} The testaments were not hid by their iniquities and all their iniquities are in the sight of God. {18} The alms of a man is as a seal with him, and shall preserve the grace of a man as the apple of the eye: {19} And afterward he shall arise, and shall render them reward, to every one upon their head, and shall turn into the inner parts of the earth. {20} But to the penitent he hath given the way of justice, and he hath confirmed them that fail to sustain, and hath appointed to them the lot of truth. {21} Turn to our Lord, and forsake thy sins: {22} pray before the face of our Lord, and diminish offences. {23} Return to our Lord, & turn away from thine injustice, and hate exceedingly abomination: {24} and know the justices and judgments of God, and stand in the lot of thy purpose, and of prayer of the most high God. {25} Go into the parts of the holy world, with the living, and them that give praise to God. {26} Tarry not in the error of the impious, before death confess. From the death as nothing, confession perisheth. {27} Thou shalt confess living, alive and in health thou shalt confess, and shalt praise God, and shalt glory in his mercies. {28} How great is the mercy of our Lord, and his propitiation to them that turn to him? {29} For all things can not be in men, because the son of man is not immortal, and they have delighted in the vanity of malice. {30} What is brighter than the sun? & it shall fail. Or what more wicked than that which flesh and blood hath invented? And this shall be reproved. {31} He beholdeth the power of the height of heaven: and all men be earth and ashes.

God's wonderful works exceed man's capacity. 7. Our weakness is strengthened by grace, 15. whereunto man must cooperate, 19. by purging his conscience, 22. by prayer, 24. by meditating God's judgements, 30. and by mortifying his own concupiscence.

{1} HE that liveth for ever, created all things together. God only shall be justified, and remaineth an invincible King for ever. {2} Who is sufficient to declare his works? {3} For who shall search out his glorious things? {4} and who shall shew forth the power of his greatness? Or who shall add to declare his mercy? {5} It is not possible to diminish, nor add, neither is it possible to find the glorious works of God: {6} When a man, shall have done, then shall he begin: and when he shall rest, he shall work. {7} What is man: and what is his grace? And what is his good, or what his evil? {8} The number of the days of men at the most an hundred years: as drops of the water of the sea they are reputed: and as the gravel stone of the sand, so a few years in the day of eternity. {9} For this cause God is patient toward them, and poureth out his mercy upon them. {10} He hath seen the presumption of their heart that it is naught, and hath known their subversion that it is evil. {11} Therefore hath he fulfilled his propitiation toward them, and hath shewed them the way of equity. {12} Man's compassion is touching his neighbour: but the mercy of God is upon all flesh. {13} He that hath mercy, teacheth and instructeth, as a pastor his flock. {14} He hath mercy on him that receiveth the doctrine of compassion, and he that hasteneth in his judgements {15} Son in good deeds give no blame, & in every gift give not the sadness of an evil word. {16} Shall not the dew cool heat? So also a word better than a gift. {17} Is not a word above a good gift? But both are with a justified man. {18} A fool will upbraid bitterly: and the gift of one untaught maketh the eyes to dry away. {19} Before judgment prepare thee justice, and before thou speak, learn. {20} Before sickness take medicine, and before judgement examine thy self, and in the sight of God thou shalt find propitiation. {21} Before sickness humble thy self, and in time of infirmity shew thy conversation. {22} Be not hindered to pray always, & fear not to be justified even to death, because the reward of God abideth for ever. {23} Before prayer prepare thy soul: and be not as a man that tempteth God. {24} Remember the wrath in the day of consummation, and the time of reward in conversation of the face. {25} Remember poverty in the time of abundance, & the necessities of poverty in the day of riches. {26} From morning unto evening time shall be changed, & all these are sown in the eyes of God. {27} A wise man in all things will fear, and in the days of offences will beware of sloth. {28} Every subtle man knoweth wisdom, and to him that findeth her he will give praise. {29} The wise in words, and they also have done wisely: and have understood truth and justice, and have rained proverbs & judgments. {30} Go not after thy concupiscences, and turn away from thy will. {31} If thou give to thy soul her concupiscences, she will make thee a joy to thy enemies. {32} Be not delighted in multitudes, nor in few: for their concertation is continual {33} Be not poor in contention of borrowing, and thou hast nothing in thy purse: for thou shalt be envious to thine own life.

An admonition against drunkenness, luxury, 4. light suspicion, 7. and detraction. 13. Friendly correction is necessary, 23. and sincere humility. 27. Exterior carriage is a sign of internal disposition.

{1} A workman that is a drunkard shall not be rich: and he that contemneth small things, shall fall by little and little. {2} Wine and women make wisemen to apostataste, and shall reprove the prudent: {3} and he that joineth himself to harlots, shall be naught. Rottenness and worms shall inherit him, and he shall be lifted up for a greater example, and his life shall be taken out of the number. {4} He that giveth credit quickly, is light of heart, and shall be lessened: and he shall moreover be counted one that sinneth against his own soul. {5} He that rejoiceth in iniquity, shall be reprehended, and he that hateth chastisement shall be diminished of life: and he that hateth babbling, extinguisheth malice. {6} He that sinneth against his own soul, shall repent: and he that is delighted in naughtiness, shall be reprehended. {7} Iterate not a wicked and hard word, and thou shalt not be lessened. {8} To friend and foe tell not thy mind: and if thou have sin disclose it not. {9} For he will hear thee, and will watch thee, and as it were defending the sin he will hate thee, and so will he be present with thee always. {10} Hast thou heard a word against thy neighbour? Let it die together in thee, trusting that it will not burst thee. {11} At the presence of a word the fool travaleth, as the groaning of the childbirth of an infant. {12} An arrow stickt in the thigh of flesh: so is a word in the heart of a fool. {13} Rebuke a friend, lest perhaps he hath not understood, and say: I did it not: or if he did it, that he do it not again. {14} Rebuke thy neighbour, lest perhaps he said it not: and if he said it, lest perhaps he iterate it. {15} Rebuke thy friend: for there is often a fault committed. {16} And believe not every word. There is that offendeth with the tongue, but not from his heart. {17} For who is there that hath not offended in his tongue? Rebuke thy neighbour before thou threaten. {18} And give place to the fear of the Highest: because the fear of God is all wisdom, and to fear God is in it, & the disposition of the law is in all wisdom. {19} And the discipline of wickedness is not wisdom: and the cogitation of sinners is not prudence. {20} There is wickedness, and in it execration: and there is a fool that hath less wisdom. {21} Better is a man that hath less wisdom and lacketh understanding, in fear, than he that aboundeth in understanding and transgresseth the law of the Highest. {22} There is an assured subtlety, & the same wicked. {23} And there is that uttereth an exact word telling the truth. There is that wickedly humbleth himself, and his inner parts be full of deceit: {24} and there is a just man that submitteth himself overmuch of great humility: and there is a just one that boweth his face, and feigneth himself not to see that which is unknown: {25} and if he be forbidden to sin for imbecility of power, if he shall find a time to do evil, he will do evil. {26} A man is known by the sight, and a wiseman is known by the shew of his face. {27} The clothing of the body, and the laughing of the teeth, and the going of the man tell of him. {28} There is a lying chastisement in the anger of a contumelious person: and there is a judgement, that is not allowed to be good: and there is that holdeth his peace, and he is wise.

Correction ought to be without passion of anger. 5. Much discretion is required in speech and in silence. 14. Also in giving, 20. & promising, 29. and in uttering knowledge, where and when it behoveth.

{1} HOW good a thing is it to rebuke, rather than to be angry, and not to hinder him that confesseth in prayer! {2} The concupiscence of an eunuch shall deflower a young-maid: {3} so he that by violence doth unjust judgement. {4} How good a thing is it being rebuked to shew repentance! For so thou shalt avoid wilful sin. {5} There is that holdeth his peace, which is found wise: and there is that is odious, he which is malapert to speak. {6} There is that holdeth his peace having not understanding to speak: and there is that holdeth his peace, knowing the time of fit opportunity. {7} A wise man will hold his peace until a time: but a wanton, and the unwise will not observe time. {8} He that useth many words, shall hurt his own soul: & he that taketh authority to himself unjustly, shall be hated. {9} There is proceeding in evils to a man without discipline, and there is finding to loss. {10} There is a gift, that is not profitable: and there is a gift, the reward whereof is double. {11} There is debasing because of glory: and there is that from humility shall lift up the head. {12} There is that redeemeth many things for a small price, and restoreth the same seven-fold. {13} A man wise in words shall make himself beloved: but the graces of fools shall be poured out. {14} The gift of the unwise shall not be profitable for thee: for his eyes are seven-fold. {15} He will give few things, and upbraid many: and the opening of his mouth is an inflammation. {16} To day a man lendeth, and to morrow he asketh it again: such a man is odious. {17} A fool shall have no friend, and there shall be not thank to his goods. {18} For they that eat his bread, are of a false tongue. How often, and how many will laugh him to scorn? {19} For he doth not distribute with right understanding, that which was to be had: in like manner also that which was not to be had. {20} The slipping of a false tongue, as he that falleth on the pavement: so the falls of the evil shall come hastily. {21} A man without grace is as a vain fable, it shall be continual in the mouth of them that are without discipline. {22} A parable out of a fool's mouth shall be rejected: for he doth not speak it in his time. {23} There is that is forbid to sin for poverty, and in his rest he shall be pricked. {24} There is that will destroy his soul for shamefastness, and by an unwise person he will destroy it: and by acceptance of person he will destroy himself. {25} There is that for shamefastness promiseth to his friend, and hath gotten an enemy of him for naught. {26} Lying is a wicked reproach in a man, and in the mouth of men without discipline it shall be continually. {27} Better is a thief, than the continual custom of a lying man, but both shall inherit perdition. {28} The manners of lying men are without honour: and their confusion is with them without intermission. {29} A wise man in his words shall utter himself, and a prudent man shall please great persons. {30} He that tilleth his land, shall make an high heap of corn: and who so worketh justice, he shall be exalted: and he that pleaseth great men, shall avoid iniquity. {31} Presents & gifts blind the eyes of judges, and as one dumb in the mouth turneth away their chastisements. {32} Wisdom hid, and treasure not seen: what profit is there in both? {33} Better is he that concealeth his foolishness, than the man that hideth his wisdom.

An invective against sin in general, 5. and diverse in particular.

{1} SON hast thou sinned? Do so no more: but for the old also pray that they may be forgiven thee. {2} As from the face of a serpent fly from sins: and if thou approach to them they will receive thee. {3} The teeth of a lion the teeth thereof, killing the souls of men. {4} All iniquity is as a two-edged sword, there is no remedy for the wound thereof. {5} Brawling and injuries shall bring the substance to nothing: and the house that is very rich, shall be made nothing by pride: so the substance of the proud shall be rooted out. {6} The prayer of the poor out of the mouth shall come to his ears, and judgement shall come for him speedily. {7} He that hateth chastisement, is the trace of a sinner: and he that feareth God, will turn to his own heart. {8} The mighty in a bold tongue is known a far off, and a wiseman knoweth himself to fall by him. {9} He that buildeth his house at other men's charges, is as he that gathereth his stones in the winter. {10} The synagogue of sinners is as tow gathered together, and their consummation a flame of fire. {11} The way of sinners is paved with stones, & in their end hell, & darkness, and pains. {12} He that keepeth justice, shall contain the understanding thereof. {13} The consummation of the fear of God wisdom and understanding. {14} He shall not be taught, that is not wise in good. {15} But there is wisdom that abounding in evil: and there is no understanding where bitterness is. {16} The knowledge of the wise shall abound as an inundation, and his counsel is permanent as a fountain of life. {17} The heart of a fool is as a broken vessel, and all wisdom it shall not hold. {18} A man of knowledge will praise what soever wise word he shall hear, and will apply it to himself: the riotous man hath heard it, and it shall displease him, and he will cast it behind his back. {19} The narration of a fool is as a burden in the way: for in the lips of the wise shall grace be found. {20} The mouth of the prudent is sought in the Church, and they will think upon his words in their hearts. {21} As a house destroyed, so is wisdom to a fool: & the knowledge of the unwise inexplicable words. {22} Fetters on the feet, doctrine to a fool, and as manacles upon the right hand. {23} A fool in laughter exalteth his voice, but a wise man will scarce laugh secretly. {24} Doctrine to the prudent is a golden ornament, and as it were a bracelet on the right arm. {25} The foot of a fool goeth easily into his neighbour's house: & a cunning man will be abashed at the person of the mighty. {26} A fool will look from the window into the house: but he nurtured will stand without. {27} It is the folly of a man to harken by the door: and a wiseman will be grieved with the contumely. {28} The lips of the unwise shall tell foolish things: but the words of the wise shall be pondered in balance. {29} The heart of fools is in their mouth: and the mouth of wisemen is in their heart. {30} Whilst the impious curseth the devil, he curseth his own soul. {31} The whisperer shall defile his soul, and shall be hated in all: and he that shall abide with him, shall be odious: the still man wise shall be honoured.

An other admonition against sloth, 3. dissolute children, 6. and mirth out of season. 7. Fools are hardly corrected, 10. more to be bewailed than the dead. 14. Much talk doth not profit them. 24. Offend not, nor fear not a friend. 33. Keep always guard of thy tongue.

{1} THE sluggard is stoned with a dirty stone, & all men will speak of his disgrace. {2} The sluggard is stoned with the dung of oxen: and every one that shall touch him, will shake his hands. {3} The confusion of the father is of a son without discipline: and the daughter shall be made of less account. {4} A wise daughter is an inheritance to her husband: for she that confoundeth, is made a contumely to her father. {5} She that is bold shameth father and husband, and shall not be inferior to the impious: but of them both she shall be dishonoured. {6} Music in mourning is a tale out of time: scourges and doctrine are at all time wisdom. {7} He that teacheth a fool, is as he that glueth together a pot-sherd. {8} He that telleth a word to him that heareth not, is as he that raiseth up a man sleeping out of an heavy sleep. {9} He speaketh with him that sleepeth, which uttereth wisdom to a fool: and in the end of the narration he saith: Who is this? {10} Weep upon the dead, for his light hath failed: and weep upon a fool, for he faileth in understanding. {11} Weep a little upon the dead, because he is at rest. {12} For the wicked life of the very wicked, above the death of a fool. {13} The mourning of the dead is seven days: but of a fool and of the impious, all the days of their life. {14} Speak not much with a fool, and go not with the unwise. {15} Keep thy self from him, that thou have no molestation, and thou shalt not be defiled with his sin. {16} Turn aside from him, and thou shalt find rest, and shall not be wearied with his folly. {17} What shall be heavier than lead? And what other name hath it but fool? {18} It is easier to bear sand and salt, and a mass of iron, than an unwise man, and a fool, and impious. {19} A frame of wood bound together in the foundation of a building, shall not be dissolved: so also the heart confirmed in the cogitation of counsel. {20} The cogitation of the wise at all time, yea by fear shall not be depraved. {21} As stakes in high places, and plasterings laid without cost, shall not abide against the face of the wind: {22} so also a fearful heart in the cogitation of a fool shall not resist against the violence of fear. {23} As a trembling heart in the cogitation of a fool, all time will not fear, so also he that continueth always in the precepts of God. {24} He that pricketh the eye, bringeth forth tears: and he that pricketh the heart, bringeth forth feeling. {25} He that casteth a stone at fowls, and shall throw them down: so he that speaketh reproachfully to his friend, dissolveth friendship. {26} Although thou drawest a sword at a friend, despair not: for there is returning to a friend. {27} If thou open a sad mouth, fear not: for there is agreement: except taunt, and reproach, and pride, and revealing of secret, and a treacherous wound: in all these things a friend will fly away. {28} Possess fidelity with a friend in his poverty, that in his goods also thou mayst rejoice. {29} In the time of his tribulation continue faithful to him, that in his inheritance also thou mayst be heir with him. {30} Before the fire the vapour of the chimney, and the smoke of the fire riseth on high: so also before blood evil words, and contumelies, & threats. {31} I will not be ashamed to salute a friend, from his face I will not hide my self: and if there chance evils to me by him, I will bear it. {32} Every one that shall hear, will beware of him. {33} Who will give a guard to my mouth, and a sure seal upon my lips, that I fall not by them, and my tongue destroy me?

A prayer against pride, 6. gluttony, and luxury. 7. Beware of offending in speech, 9. especially of unlawful swearing, 15. blasphemy, 17. irreverent and reproachful words. 21. Also of avarice, 24. fornication, and adultery. 30. all which God seeth, and will severely punish. 33. With other sins that follow thereof.

{1} O Lord father, and dominatour of my life, leave me not in their counsel: nor suffer me to fall in them. {2} Who layeth on stripes in my cogitation, and in my heart the doctrine of wisdom, and in their ignorances they spare me not, and their offences appear not, {3} and my ignorances increase not, and my offences be multiplied, and my sins abound, and I fall in the sight of mine adversaries, & mine enemy rejoice? {4} O Lord father, and God of my life, leave me not in their cogitation. {5} Haughtiness of mine eyes give me not, and all desire turn away from me. {6} Take from me the concupiscences of the belly, and let not the concupiscences of copulation take hold of me, and give me not over to a shameless and foolish mind. {7} O children hear the doctrine of the mouth: and he that will keep it, shall not perish by his lips, nor be scandalized in most wicked works. {8} A sinner is taught in his vanity, and the proud and the evil speaker shall be scandalized in them. {9} Let not thy mouth be accustomed to swearing: for there be many falls in it. {10} But let not the naming of God be usual in thy mouth, and meddle not with the names of Saints, because thou shalt not scape free from them. {11} For as a servant daily examined, lacketh not the mark thereof: so every one that sweareth, and nameth, shall not be wholly purged from sin. {12} A man that sweareth much shall be filled with iniquity, and plague shall not depart from his house. {13} And if he frustrate it, his sin shall be upon him: and if he dissemble, he offendeth double: {14} and if he swear in vain, he shall not be justified: for his house shall be filled with retribution. {15} There is an other contrary speech, also to death, be it not found in the inheritance of Jacob. {16} For of the merciful all those things shall be taken away, and they will not wallow in sins. {17} Let not thy mouth be accustomed to unuttered speech: for there is in it a word of sin. {18} Remember thy father and thy mother, for thou sittest in the midst of great men: {19} lest perhaps God forget thee in their sight, & being besotted with thy daily custom, thou suffer reproach, & hadst better not have been born, and curse the day of thy nativity. {20} A man accustomed to the words of reproach, will not be instructed in all his days. {21} Two sorts abound in sins, and the third bringeth wrath and perdition. {22} An hot soul as a burning fire will not be quenched, till it swallow somewhat. {23} and a wicked man in the mouth of his flesh will not cease till he kindle a fire. {24} To a man that is a fornicator all bread is sweet, he will not be weary transgressing unto the end. {25} Every man that passeth beyond his own bed, contemning against his own soul, and saying: Who seeth me? {26} Darkness compasseth me, and the walls cover me, and no man beholdeth me: whom do I fear? The Highest will not be mindful of my sins. {27} And he understandeth not that his eye seeth all things, for that such fear of man expelleth from him the fear of God, & the eyes of men fearing him: {28} and he knoweth not that the eyes of our Lord are much more brighter than the sun, beholding round about all the ways of man, and the bottom of the depth, and the hearts of men, looking into the hidden parts. {29} For all things were known unto our Lord God, before they were created: so also after it is perfected he beholdeth all things. {30} Revenge shall be taken on this man in the streets of the city, and as an horse-colt he shall be chased: and where he expected not, he shall be apprehended. {31} And he shall be in dishonour with all men, for that he understood not the fear of our Lord. {32} So every woman also that forsaketh her husband, & getteth inheritance by marriage of an other. {33} For first she hath been unfaithful in the law of the Highest: and secondly she hath sinned against her husband: thirdly she hath fornicated in adultery, and hath gotten her children of an other man. {34} This woman shall be brought into the Church, and upon her children there shall be examination. {35} Her children shall not take root, & her boughs shall not yield fruit. {36} She shall leave her memory to be cursed, and her dishonour shall not be wiped out. {37} And they that are left shall know, that nothing is better than the fear of God: and nothing sweeter, than to have regard to the commandments of our Lord. {38} It is great glory to follow our Lord: for length of days shall be taken of him.

True and laudable wisdom 5. proceeding from God. 6. shineth in his works: 12. especially in his Church, where she bringeth forth all virtues. 26. She inviteth all unto her, 44. and lightenereth her followers with splendor of doctrine.

{1} WISDOM shall praise her soul, & shall be honoured in God, and shall glory in the midst of her people, {2} and shall open her mouth in the churches of the Highest and shall glory in the sight of his power, {3} and in the midst of her people she shall be exalted, and in the holy assembly she shall be admired, {4} and in the multitude of the elect she shall have praise, and among the blessed she shall be blessed, saying: {5} I came forth from the mouth of the Highest, the first begotten before all creatures. {6} I made that in the heavens, there should rise light that faileth not, and as a cloud I covered all the earth. {7} I dwelt in the highest places, and my throne is in the pillar of a cloud. {8} I alone have gone round about the compass of heaven, and have penetrated into the bottom of the depth, and have walked in the waves of the sea, {9} and stood in all the earth: and in all people. {10} and in every nation I have had the primacy: {11} and I have by strength trodden down the hearts of all the excellent, and the base; and in all these things I sought rest, & I shall abide in the inheritance of our Lord. {12} Then the creator of all commanded, and said to me: & he that created me, rested in my tabernacle, {13} and he said to me: Inhabit in Jacob, and inherit in Israel, and take root in mine elect. {14} From the beginning and before the worlds was I created, and unto the world to come I shall not cease, and in the holy habitation I have ministered before him. {15} And so in Sion was I established, and in the sanctified city likewise I rested, and my power was in Jerusalem {16} And I took root in an honourable people, and in the portion of my God his inheritance, and my abiding is in the full assembly of saints. {17} I am exalted as a cedar in Libanus, and as a cypress tree in mount Sion. {18} As a palm tree in Cades am I exalted, and as a rose plant in Jericho: {19} As a fair olive tree in the fields, and as a plane tree by the water in the streets am I exalted. {20} I gave an odour as cinnamon, & aromatical balm: as chosen myrrh have I given the sweetness of odour: {21} and as storax, and galbanum, and onyx, and aloes, and as Libanus not cut, have I perfumed mine habitation, and mine odour is a balm not mingled. {22} I have spread out my boughs as the terebinth, and my boughs are of honour & grace. {23} I as a vine have fructified sweetness of odour: and my flowers are fruit of honour and honesty. {24} I am the mother of beautiful love, and of fear, and of knowledge, and of holy hope. {25} In me is all grace of way and truth, in me all hope of life and virtue. {26} Pass to me all ye that desire me, and be filled of my generations. {27} For my spirit is sweet above honey, and mine inheritance above honey and the honey comb. {28} My memory is unto generations of worlds. {29} They that eat me, shall yet hunger: and they that drink me, shall yet thirst. {30} He that heareth me, shall not be confounded: and they that work in me, shall not sin. {31} They that explicate me, shall have life everlasting. {32} All these things are the book of life, and the testament of the Highest, & the knowledge of truth. {33} Moyses commanded a law in the precepts of justices, and an inheritance to the house of Jacob, and the promises to Israel. {34} He appointed to David his servant for to raise up a king of him most strong, and sitting in the throne of honour for ever. {35} Who filleth wisdom as Phison, and as Tigris in the days of new fruits. {36} Who replenisheth understanding as Euphrates, who multiplieth it as Jordan in the time of harvest. {37} Who sendeth discipline as the light, and assisting as Gehon in the day of vintage. {38} Who first hath perfect knowledge of it, & a weaker shall not search it out. {39} For her cogitation shall abound above the sea, and her counsels above the great depth. {40} I wisdom have poured out rivers. {41} I as a sluse of a mighty water out of the river, I as the river Dioryx, & as a water conduit I came out of paradise. {42} I said: I will water my garden of plants, and will inebriate the fruit of my meadow. {43} And behold my sluse was made abundant, and my river came near to a sea. {44} Because I illuminated doctrine to all as the morning light, & I will declare it far. {45} I will penetrate all the inferior parts of the earth, and will behold all that sleep, and will illuminate all that hope in our Lord. {46} I will yet pour out doctrine as prophecy, and will leave it to them that seek wisdom, and will not cease unto their progenies even to the holy age. {47} See ye that I have not laboured for my self only, but for all that seek out the truth.

Concord between brethren, neighbours, and man and wife, much pleaseth God. 3. A poor man proud, a rich man a liar, and an old man doing in carnal, or worldly things, are very hateful. 9. He that seeth his children good; and his enemies overthrown; hath a good wife; offendeth not in speech; consenteth not to sin; hath a true friend; teacheth good doctrine; hath sacred; and human knowledge; hath undoubtedly nine happy things; but to fear God containeth 14. and excelleth all. 17. A wicked woman (heresy) is very detestable, 30. and most intolerable, if she have supreme dominion.

{1} IN three things my spirit is pleased, which are approved before God, and men: {2} The concord of brethren, and the love of neighbours, and man and wife well agreeing together. {3} Three sorts my soul hateth, and I am greatly grieved at their life: {4} A poor man proud: & a rich man a liar: an old man a fool, and doting. {5} The things that thou hast not gathered in thy youth, how shalt thou find them in thy old age? {6} How beautiful is judgement for a gray head, and for ancients to know counsel! {7} How beautiful is wisdom for the aged, & understanding glorious, and counsel! {8} Much cunning is the crown of old men, and the fear of God is their glory. {9} Nine things not to be imagined of the heart have I magnified, and the tenth I will tell unto men with my tongue: {10} A man that hath joy in his children: living and seeing the subversion of his enemies. {11} Blessed is he that dwelleth with a wise woman; & that hath not offended with his tongue; and that hath not served such as are unworthy of him. {12} Blessed is he that findeth a true friend; and that declarereth justice to an ear that heareth. {13} How great is he, that findeth wisdom and knowledge; but he is not above him that feareth our Lord. {14} The fear of God hath set it-self above all things: {15} blessed is the man, to whom is given to have the fear of God: he that holdeth it, to whom shall he be resembled? {16} The fear of God is the beginning of his love: and the beginning of faith is to be fast joined unto it. {17} The heaviness of the heart is all plague: & all malice, the wickedness of a woman. {18} And he will see all plague, and not the plague of the heart: {19} & all wickedness, & not the wickedness of a woman: {20} and all obdiction and not the obdiction of them that hate him: {21} and all revenge, and not the revenge of the enemies. {22} There is no head worse than the head of a serpent: {23} and there is no anger above the anger of a woman. It shall be more pleasant to abide with a lion and dragon, than to dwell with a wicked woman. {24} The wickedness of a woman changeth her face: and darkeneth her countenance as a bear: and will shew it as a sack. In the midst of her neighbours, {25} her husband groaned, and hearing he sighed a little. {26} All malice is short to the malice of a woman, the lot of sinners fall upon her. {27} As the going up a gravely way in the feet of the aged, so a woman full of tongue to a quiet man. {28} Look not upon a woman's beauty, and desire not a woman for beauty. {29} A woman's anger, and impudency, and confusion is great. {30} A woman if she have superiority, is contrary to her husband. {31} An humbled heart, and heavy countenance, and plague of heart, is a wicked woman. {32} Feeble hands, and disjointed knees, a woman that dot not make her husband happy. {33} From woman came the beginning of sin, and by her we do all die. {34} Give not issue to thy water, no not a little: nor to a wicked woman leave to go forth. {35} If she walk not at thine hand, she will confound thee in the sight of thine enemies. {36} Cut her off from thy flesh, lest she always abuse thee.

The praises of a good woman. 5. The betraying of a city, mutiny of people, and false accusation are terrible, but a jealous woman is more grievous. 10. Diverse ill qualities of a bad woman. 16. More commendations of a good woman. 25. A doleful thing to see a valiant warrior wanting livelihood, a wise man not regarded, and greatest grief to see a just man become wicked. 28. A man full of business hardly careth for his soul: and an Inn-keeper often sinneth in words.

{1} THE husband of a good wife is happy: for the number of his years is double. strong woman delighteth her husband, {2} A and shall accomplish the years of his life in peace. {3} A good woman is a good portion, in the good portion of them that fear God shall she be given to a man for good deeds: {4} And the heart of rich and poor is good, at all time their countenance is merry. {5} Of three things my heart hath been afraid, and at the fourth my face hath trembled: {6} The betraying of a city, and a gathering together of the people: {7} false calumny, all more grievous than death. {8} A jealous woman is the sorrow and mourning of the heart. {9} In a jealous woman is a scourge of the tongue, communicating with all. {10} As a yoke of oxen that is moved, so also a wicked woman: he that holdeth her, is as he that taketh hold of a scorpion. {11} A woman given to drunkenness is great anger: & her contumely and turpitude shall not be hid. {12} The fornication of a woman shall be known in the lifting up of her eyes, and in her eye-lids. {13} On thy daughter that turneth not away her self, set sure watch: lest occasion found she abuse herself. {14} Take heed of the impudency of her eyes, and marvel not if she contemn thee. {15} As a wayfaring man that thirsteth, will she open her mouth to the fountain, and will drink of every water that is next, & will sit against every hedge, and open her quiver against every arrow, until she fail. {16} The grace of a diligent woman shall delight her husband, and shall fat his bones. {17} Her discipline is the gift of God. {18} A wise and still woman, there is no exchange for a soul instructed. {19} A holy, and shamefast woman, is grace upon grace. {20} And all weight is not worthy a continent soul. {21} As the sun rising to the world in the highest places of God, so is the beauty of a good woman for an ornament of her house. {22} A lamp shining upon the holy candlestick, & the beauty of the face upon stayed age. {23} Pillars of gold upon feet of silver, and stable feet upon the soles of a stayed woman. {24} Eternal foundations upon a sound rock, and the commandments of God in the heart of a holy woman. {25} At two things my heart is grieved, and at the third anger is come upon me: {26} A man of war decaying by poverty: and a wise man contemned: {27} and he that transgresseth from justice to sin, God hath prepared him to the sword. {28} Two sorts have appeared unto me hard and dangerous, a merchant is hardly rid of negligence: and a viteler shall not be justified from the sins of the lips.

For want and desire of riches many commit sin, 4, from which the fear of God preserveth. 6. Tentation proveth who is just, 12. constant, and modest. 17. Friends are bound to secrecy 25. and fidelity.

{1} THROUGH poverty many have offended: and he that seeketh to be made rich, turneth away his eye. {2} As a stake is fastened in the midst of stones compact together, so also in the midst of selling and buying, sin shall be straitened. {3} Sin shall be destroyed with the sinner. {4} If thou hold not thy self instantly in the fear of our Lord thy house shall quickly be subverted. {5} As in the shaking of a sieve the dust will remain: so the perplexity of a man in his cogitation. {6} The furnace trieth the potter's vessels, and the temptation of tribulation just men. {7} As the husbandry about a tree sheweth the fruit thereof, so a word out of the thought of the heart of man. {8} Praise not a man before full discourse, for this is the trial of men. {9} If thou follow justice, thou shalt apprehend it: and shalt put it on as a long robe of honour, and thou shalt dwell with it: and it shall protect thee for ever, and in the day of acknowledging thou shalt find steadfastness. {10} The fowls flock together to their like: and truth shall return to them that work it. {11} The lion always lieth in wait for a prey: so sins for them that work iniquities. {12} A holy man continueth in wisdom as the sun: for a fool is changed as the moon. {13} In the midst of the unwise keep the word till his time: but in the midst of deep considerers be continually. {14} The narration of sinners is odious, & their laughter is in the delights of sin. {15} Speech that sweareth much shall make the hair of the head to stand upright: and his lack of reverence is the stopping of the ears. {16} Shedding of blood is in the brawling of the proud: and their cursing is a grievous hearing. {17} He that discloseth the secret of a friend loseth credit, and he shall not find a friend to his mind. {18} Love thy neighbour, and be joined with him in fidelity. {19} But if thou discover his secrets, thou shalt not pursue after him. {20} For as a man that loseth his friend, so also he that loseth the friendship of his neighbour. {21} And as he that letteth a bird go out of his hand, so hast thou left thy neighbour, & shalt not take him. {22} Follow him not, because he is far absent, for he is fled, as a doe out of the snare: because his soul is wounded. {23} Thou canst no more bind him, and of a curse there is reconciliation: {24} but to disclose the secrets of a friend, is the desperation of an unhappy soul. {25} He that winketh with the eye, forgeth wicked things, and no man will cast him off: {26} in the sight of thine eyes he will sweeten his mouth, and will be in admiration upon thy words: but at the last he will pervert his mouth, and in thy words he will lay a scandal. {27} I have heard many things, & have not esteemed them equal to him, and our Lord will hate him. {28} He that casteth a stone on high, it will fall upon his head: & the deceitful stroke will divide the wounds of the deceitful. {29} He that diggeth a pit, shall fall into it: and he that setteth a stone for his neighbour, shall stumble on it: & he that layeth a snare for an other, shall perish in it. {30} To a man that doth most wicked counsel, it shall be turned upon himself, and he shall not know from whence it cometh to him. {31} Derision & reproach of the proud, and vengeance as a lion shall lie in wait for him. {32} They shall perish in a snare that are delighted with the fall of the just: and sorrow shall consume them before they die. {33} Anger and fury, both are execrable, and the sinful man shall be subject to them.

Abstain from revenge, 8. and strife, 15. from making debate, 28. from hearing, and speaking evil.

{1} HE that will be revenged, shall find revenge of our Lord, and keeping he will keep his sin. {2} Forgive thy neighbour hurting thee: & then shall thy sins be loosed to thee when thou prayest. {3} Man to man reserveth anger, and doth he seek remedy of God? {4} He hath not mercy on a man like unto himself, and doth he entreat for his own sins? {5} Himself whereas he is flesh, reserveth anger, and doth he ask propitiation of God? Who by prayer shall obtain for his sin? {6} Remember the last things, & cease to be at enmity: {7} for consumption and death are imminent in his commandments. {8} Remember the fear of God, and be not angry with thy neighbour. {9} Remember the testament of the High, & contemn the ignorance of thy neighbour. {10} Refrain thy self from strife, and thou shalt diminish thy sins: {11} for an angry man kindleth strife, and a sinful man will trouble his friends, and in the midst of them that are at peace he will cast in enmity. {12} For according to the wood of the forest, so the fire burneth: and according to the power of a man, so shall his anger be, and according to his substance he will increase his anger. {13} Hasty contention kindleth a fire: & hasty strife sheddeth blood: and an ill testifying tongue bringeth death. {14} If thou blow upon a spark, it will burn as a fire: and if thou spit thereon, it shall be quenched: both proceed out of the mouth. {15} The whisperer & double tongued is accurst: for he hath troubled many that were at peace. {16} A third tongue hath moved many, and dispersed them from nation into nation. {17} It hath destroyed the walled cities of the rich, and hath digged down the houses of great men. {18} It hath cut the forces of peoples, and undone strong nations. {19} A third tongue hath cast out many women, and deprived them of their labours. {20} He that regardeth it, shall not have rest, neither shall he have a friend in whom he may repose. {21} The stroke of a whip maketh a blue mark: but the stroke of the tongue will break the bones {22} Many have fallen by the edge of the sword, but not so as they that have perished by their tongue. {23} Blessed is he that is covered from a wicked tongue, that hath not passed into the anger thereof, and that hath not drawn the yoke thereof, and hath not been tied in the bands thereof: {24} for the yoke of it is a yoke of iron: and the band of it is a band of brass. {25} The death of it, is a most wicked death: and hell is more profitable than it. {26} The continuance of it shall not be permanent, but it shall obtain the ways of the unjust: and it shall not burn the just in the flame thereof. {27} They that forsake God, shall fall into it, and it shall burn in them, and shall not be quenched, and it shall be sent in upon them as a lion, and as a leopard it shall hurt them. {28} Hedge thine ears with thorns, and hear not a wicked tongue, and make doors to thy mouth, and locks. {29} Lay together thy silver, and make balance to thy words, and right bridles to thy mouth: {30} and take heed lest perhaps thou slip in thy tongue, & fall in the sight of the enemies, that lie in wait for thee, and thy fall be incurable unto death.

Lend charitably, 3. and restore faithfully. 10. For the fault of ill debtors, omit not to help the honest. 12. Rather give alms where need is. 19. Be thankful for suretyship. 28. Live frugally. 32. Go not a guesing for delicate cheer.

{1} HE that lendeth to his neighbour, doth mercy: and he that prevaleth with hand, keepeth the commandments. {2} Lend to thy neighbour in the time of his necessity, and again repay thy neighbour in his time. {3} Confirm thy word, and do faithfully with him: & thou shalt find at all time that which is necessary for thee. {4} Many have esteemed a thing lent as a thing found, and have given molestation to them that did help them. {5} Till they receive, they kiss the hands of the lender, and in promises they humble their voice: {6} and in the time of repaying they will ask a time, and will speak words of tediousness and murmurings, and will make the time an excuse: {7} and if he be able to pay, he will resist, he will pay scarce half of the whole, and will account it as a thing found: {8} but if not, he will defraud him of his money, and possess him an enemy without cause: {9} and will repay him reproaches and curses, and for honour and benefit will repay him contumely. {10} Many have not lent, not because of wickedness, but they were afraid to be defrauded without cause. {11} But yet upon the humble be stronger of mind, & for alms defer him not. {12} Because of the commandment receive the poor: and because of his poverty, send him not away empty. {13} Lose money for thy brother and thy friend: and hide it not under a stone unto perdition. {14} Put thy treasure in the precepts of the Highest, & it shall profit thee more than gold. {15} Shut up alms in the heart of the poor, and the same shall obtain for thee against all evil. {16} The alms a man giveth is as a purse with him: it will conserve his grace as the ball of the eye. {17} And furthermore will raise up and render reward to every one upon their heads. {18} Above the shield of the mighty, & above the spear, it shall fight against thine enemy. {19} A good man becometh surety for his neighbour: and he that hath lost shame, will leave him to himself. {20} Forget not the kindness of a surety: for he hath given his life for thee. {21} The sinner and unclean person flyeth from his surety. {22} A sinner counteth the goods of his surety to himself: and unthankful in mind, will forsake him that delivered him. {23} A man is surety for his neighbour: and when he hath lost shame, he shall be forsaken of him. {24} Naughty suretyship hath undone many that were in good case, and hath tossed them as a wave of the sea. {25} Whirling round about, it hath made mighty men to remove, and they have wandered in strange nations. {26} A sinner that transgresseth the commandment of our Lord, shall fall into naughty fall into naughty suretyship: and he that endeavoureth to do many things, shall fall into judgement. {27} Recover thy neighbour according to thy power, and take heed to thy self that thou fall not. {28} The beginning of man's life water & bread, and garment, and house covering his turpitude. {29} Better is the poor man's fare under a roof of boards, than sumptuous cheer in a strange place without a house. {30} Let the least thing please thee in stead of a great, and thou shalt not hear the reproach of peregrination. {31} It is a naughty life to change lodging from house to house: and where he shall lodge, he shall not deal boldly, nor open his mouth. {32} He shall lodge, and feed, and make the unthankful drink, and beside these things he shall hear bitter words. {33} Pass thou stranger & furnish the table, & with the things thou hast in thy hand, feed the rest. {34} Depart from the presence of the honour of my friends: for the necessity of my house my brother is to be lodged with me. {35} These things be grievous to a man that hath understanding: rebuke for the house, and the reproach of the lender.

Chastisement of children is necessary, and indulgence very dangerous. 14. Health is better than riches. 17. A troublesome life is worse than death. 22. Be not pensive but cheerful in mind.

{1} HE that loveth his son, doth accustom him to stripes, that he may rejoice in his later end, and not grope after the doors of his neighbours. {2} He that teacheth his son, shall be praised in him, & in the midst of them of his household he shall glory in him. {3} He that teacheth his son, doth cast the enemy into emulation, and in the midst of his friends he shall glory in him. {4} His father is dead, & he is as it were not dead: for he hath left behind him the like to himself. {5} In his life he saw and rejoiced in him: in his death he was not made sorry, neither was he confounded before the enemies. {6} For he left a defender of his house against the enemies, & one that should render thank to his friends. {7} For the souls of his sons he will bind up his wounds, & at every voice his bowels shall be troubled. {8} An untamed horse becometh stubborn, and a dissolute child will become heady. {9} Pamper thy son, and he will make thee afraid: play with him, and he will make thee sorrowful. {10} Laugh not with him, lest thou be sorry, and at the last thy teeth shall be on edge. {11} Give him not power in his youth, and contemn not his cogitations. {12} Curb his neck in youth, and knock his sides whilst he is a child, lest perhaps he be hardened, and believe thee not, and he shall be sorrow of mind to thee. {13} Teach thy son, and work in him, that thou offend not in his dishonesty. {14} Better is a poor man whole and strong of force, than a rich man weak and scourged with misery. {15} The health of the soul in holiness of justice, is better than all gold and silver: and a sound body, than infinite revenues. {16} There is no riches above the riches of the health of the body: and there is no delight above the joy of the heart. {17} Better is death than a bitter life: and everlasting rest, than continual sickness. {18} Good things hid in a mouth that is shut, are as messes of meats set about a grave. {19} What shall sacrifice profit an idol? For neither shall he eat, nor smell: {20} so he that is chased away of our Lord, beareth the rewards of iniquity: {21} seeing with his eyes, & groaning, as an eunuch embracing a virgin and sighing. {22} Give not heaviness to thy soul, & afflict not thy self in thy counsel. {23} Joyfulness of the heart, this is the life of a man, and a treasure without defect of holiness: and the joy of a man is long life. {24} Have mercy on thine own soul, pleasing God, and refrain: and comfort thy heart in his holiness: and expel sorrow far from thee. {25} For sorrow hath killed many, and there is no profit in it. {26} Envy and anger diminish the days, and thought will bring old age before the time. {27} A magnificil heart is good in banquets: for his banquets are made diligently.

By seeking virtue, and labouring for necessities, the flesh is subdued to the spirit. 8. Moderate riches are best, 12. with temperance in diet, especially in drinking.

{1} WATCHING after honesty shall pine the flesh, & the thought thereof taketh away sleep. {2} The thought of foreknowledge turneth away the understanding, & grievous infirmity maketh a sober soul. {3} The rich man hath laboured in gathering of substance together, & in his rest he shall be replenished with his goods. {4} The poor man hath laboured in the diminishing of his living, and in the end he is made poor. {5} He that loveth gold shall not be justified: & he that followeth after corruption, shall be replenished of it. {6} Many have been given into falls for gold, and their perdition hath come by the beauty thereof. {7} The gold of them that sacrifice is a wood of offence: woe to them, that follow after it, and every unwise man shall perish in it. {8} Blessed is the rich man that is found without spot: and that hath not gone after gold, nor hoped in money and treasures. {9} Who is this? & we will praise him, for he hath done marvelous things in his life. {10} Who is proved therein, & perfect, shall have eternal glory. He that could transgress, & hath not transgressed: and do evils, and hath not done: {11} therefore are his good things established in our Lord, & all the church of saints shall declare his alms. {12} Art thou set at a great table? Open not thy jaw thereupon first. {13} Say not this: There be many things which are upon it. {14} Remember that a naughty eye is evil. {15} What is created worse than the eye? Therefore shall it weep at every face. When it shall see, {16} stretch not out thy hand first, & so contaminated with envy thou be ashamed. {17} Be not oppressed in a feast. {18} Understand by thy self what thy neighbour's things are. {19} Use as a frugal man those things, that are set before thee: lest thou be hated when thou eatest much. {20} Leave off first for manner's sake, and exceed not, lest thou perhaps offend. {21} And if thou be set in the midst of many, stretch not forth thy hand before them: neither do thou first ask to drink. {22} How sufficient is a little wine for a man well taught, and in sleeping thou shalt not be pained with it, and thou shalt feel no grief. {23} Watching, & choler, & torment to an unsatiable man: {24} sleep of health is in a man of spare diet: he shall sleep until morning, and his soul with him shall be delighted. {25} And if thou hast been forced with eating much, rise from the midst, and vomit, and it shall refresh thee, and thou shalt not bring infirmity to thy body. {26} Hear me my son, and despise me not: and in the end thou shalt find my words. {27} In all thy works be quick, and all infirmity shall not chance unto thee. {28} The lips of many shall bless him that is magnificil in breads, and the testimony of his truth is faithful. {29} In naughty bread the city will murmur, and the testimony of the naughtiness thereof is true. {30} Provoke not them that love wine: for wine hath destroyed very many. {31} Fire tryeth hard iron: so wine drunken in drunkenness shall rebuke the hearts of the proud. {32} Equal life to all men, wine in sobriety: if thou drink it moderately, thou shalt be sober. {33} What is his life that is diminished with wine? {34} What defraudeth life? Death. {35} Wine was created for joyfulness, and not for drunkenness from the beginning. {36} Wine drunken moderately is the joy of the soul and the heart. {37} Sober drinking is health to soul and body. {38} Much wine drunken maketh provocation, & wrath, & many ruins. {39} Much wine drunken is bitterness of the soul. {40} The courageousness of drunkenness is offence of the unwise, lessening the strength, and making wounds. {41} In a banquet of wine rebuke not thy neighbour: and despise him not in his mirth. {42} Speak not to him words of reproach: and press him not in demanding again.

Superiors must rule with meekness. 4. teaching those wisdom that are capable thereof. 7. Be moderate in music, and in wine. 9. Let young men be diligent to hear, and sparing to speak. 13. especially before their betters. 15. Be always well occupied. 17. Serve, and fear God. 21. Admit correction, 24. do nothing without counsel.

{1} HAVE they made thee Ruler? Be not extolled: be among them as one of them. {2} Have care of them, and so sit thou still, and all thy care being dispatched, repose. {3} That thou mayst rejoice for their sakes, & receive a crown as an ornament of grace, and obtain the dignity of the contribution. {4} Speak thou that art elder: for it becometh thee, {5} the first word to him that loveth with knowledge, & hinder not music. {6} Where there is no hearing, pour not out speech, and extol not thyself out of time in thy wisdom. {7} A little pearl of the carbuncle in an ornament of gold, and the comparison of musicians in a banquet of wine. {8} As a signet of the emerald is in the working of gold: so the melody of music is joyful and moderate wine. {9} Hear holding thy peace, & for thy reverence good grace shall come to thee. {10} Young man speak in thine own cause scarcely. {11} If thou be asked twice, let thine answer have an head. {12} In many things be as it were ignorant, and hear holding thy peace and withhold asking. {13} In the midst of great men presume not: & where ancients are, speak not much. {14} before hail there shall go lightning: & grace shall go before shamefastness, & for thy reverence good grace shall come to thee. {15} And at the hour of rising slack not thy self: but run before first into thy house, and there withdraw thy self, and there play, {16} and do thy conceits, and not in sins and proud word. {17} And above all these things bless our Lord that made thee, & that doth replenish thee with all his goods. {18} He that feareth our Lord, shall receive his doctrine: and they that will watch after him, shall find blessing. {19} He that seeketh the law shall be replenished with it: and he that doth deceitfully, shall be scandalized by it. {20} They that fear our Lord, shall find just judgement, and shall kindle justices as light. {21} A sinful man will fly reprehension, and according to his will, will find excuse. {22} A man of counsel will not destroy understanding, an alien and proud man will not dread fear: {23} Yea after he hath done with fear without counsel, he shall be controlled even by his own pursuits. {24} Son do nothing without counsel, and after the fact thou shalt not repent. {25} Go not in the way of ruin, and thou shalt not stumble at stones: commit not thy self to a laborious way, lest thou set a scandal to thy soul. {26} And beware of thy children, and take heed of them of thy household. {27} In all thy work believe thy soul by faith: for this is the keeping of the commandments. {28} He that believeth God attendeth to the commandments: and he that trusteth in him, shall not be lessened.

Fear of God defendeth from all adversaries. 5. Folly is unconstant. 8. God disposeth all to the best. 13. Man is in God's hand, as clay in the potter's. 20. Superiors, must keep their authority, and their subjects in discipline.

{1} TO him that feareth our Lord evils shall not happen, but in temptation God will keep him, and deliver him from evils. {2} A wise man hateth not the commandments and justices, and he shall not be shaken as a ship in a storm. {3} A man of understanding believeth the law of God, and the law is sure to him. {4} He that repeateth an interrogation, shall better prepare his answer, and so shall be heard, and shall keep discipline. {5} The heart of a fool is a wheel of a cart: & his cogitation as a turning axeltree. {6} A stallion horse neigheth under every one that sitteth upon him, so a friend that is a scoffer. {7} Why doth one day excel an other, and one light an other, and one year an other year of the sun? {8} By the knowledge of our Lord they were separated, the sun being made, and keeping the precept. {9} And he changed times, and the festival days thereof, and in the same they celebrated the festival days at an hour. {10} Of them God exalted and magnified, and of them he put into the number of days. And all men are of the ground, and of the earth, from whence Adam was created. {11} In the multitude of the discipline of our Lord he separated them, and changed their ways. {12} Of them he blessed, and exalted: and of them he sanctified, and applied to himself: and of them he cursed and humbled, and converted them from their separation. {13} As potter's clay is in his hand, to fashion and dispose it. {14} All his ways according to his disposition: so man in the hand of him, and he will render to him according to his judgement. {15} Against evil is good, and against death life: so also against a just man a sinner. And so look upon all the works of the Highest. Two against two, and one against one. {16} And I awaked last, and as he that gathereth berries after the grape gatherers. {17} In the blessing of God I also have hoped: and as he that gathereth grapes, have I filled the wine press. {18} See that I have not laboured for my self only, but for all that seek out discipline. {19} Hear me ye great men, and all peoples, and ye rulers of the Church harken with your ears. {20} To son and wife, brother and friend, give not power over thee in thy life: and give not thy possession to an other: lest perhaps thou repent thee, and thou entreat for them. {21} Whilst thou art yet alive and takest breath, all flesh shall not change thee. {22} For it is better that thy children ask of thee, than that thou look toward the hands of thy children. {23} In all thy works be exquisite. {24} Give no stain to thy glory. In the day of the consummation of the days of thy life, and in the time of thy decease distribute thine inheritance. {25} Fodder, and wand, and burden for an ass: bread, and discipline, and work for a servant. {26} He worketh in discipline, and seeketh to rest: release him his hands, and he seeketh liberty. {27} The yoke and the rein bend a stiff neck, and continual works do bow a servant. {28} For a malicious servant torment & fetters, send him into work, that he be not idle. {29} For idleness hath taught much naughtiness. {30} Set him to work: for so it becometh him. And if he be not obedient, bow him with fetters, and exceed not over all flesh: but without judgement do no grievous thing. {31} If thou have a faithful servant, let him be unto thee as thy soul: as a brother so entreat him: because in the blood of thy soul thou hast gotten him. {32} If thou hurt him unjustly, he will run away: {33} if rising up he depart, thou knowest not whom to ask, and what way to seek him.

Trust not vain dreams, soothsayings, nor lies. 9. Much good is got by experience 14. and more by fearing God. 21. God rejecteth the oblations of the wicked: 24. Defrauding the poor is like to manslaughter. 28. Destroy not that an other buildeth. 30. Repentance without amendment is nothing worth.

{1} VAIN hope & lying is to a foolish man: & dreams extol the unwise, apprehendeth a shadow, and pursueth the {2} As he that wind: so is he also that attendeth to lying visions. {3} According to this is the vision of dreams: as a man's similitude before the face of a man. {4} Of the unclean what shall be made clean? And of a liar what truth shall be said? {5} Divination of error, and lying soothsayings, and the dreams of them that do evil, are vanity. {6} And as a woman that travaleth, thy heart suffereth phantasies: unless it be a vision sent forth from the Highest, set not thy heart upon them. {7} For dreams have made many to err, and they that hoped in them have failed. {8} The word of the law shall be fulfilled without lying, and wisdom in the mouth of the faithful shall be made plain. {9} He that hath not been proved, what knoweth he? A man expert in many things, shall think many things: and he that hath learned many things, shall declare understanding. {10} He that is not tried, knoweth few things: and he that hath been in many things, multiplieth wickedness. {11} He that hath not been proved, what manner of things knoweth he? He that is deceived, shall abound with wickedness. {12} I have seen many things in wandering to and fro, and very many fashions of words. {13} Sometimes I have been in danger unto death for these things, and I was delivered by the grace of God. {14} The spirit of them that fear God is sought, & at his sight shall be blessed. {15} For their hope is on him that saveth them, and the eyes of God upon them that love him. {16} He that feareth our Lord shall tremble at nothing, and shall not dread: because he is his hope. {17} His soul is blessed that feareth our Lord. {18} To whom doth he look, and who is his strength? {19} The eyes of our Lord are upon them that fear him, a protector of might, a stay of strength, a cover from the heat, and shadow for the noon time, {20} a saving from offence, and help from falling, exalting the soul, and illuminating the eyes, giving health, and life, and blessing. {21} The oblation of him that immolateth of an unjust thing is spotted, and the scornings of the unjust are not acceptable. {22} Our Lord is only theirs that expect him in the way of truth and justice. {23} The Highest alloweth not the gifts of the wicked: neither hath he regard to the oblations of the unjust, neither will he be made propitious for sins by the multitude of their sacrifices. {24} He that offereth sacrifice of poor men's substance, is as he that sacrificeth the son in the presence of his father. {25} The bread of the needy, is the life of the poor: he that defraudeth it, is a man of blood. {26} He that taketh away bread in sweat, is as he that killeth his neighbour. {27} He that sheddeth blood, and that defraudeth the hired man, are brethren. {28} One building, and an other destroying: what profit have they but the labour? {29} One praying, and an other cursing: whether's voice will God hear? {30} He that is washed from the dead, and toucheth him again, what doth his washing profit? {31} so a man that fasteth in his sins: and doing the same again, what doth he profit in humbling himself? Who will hear his prayer?

Observation of the commandments. 4. and sacrifice of the just please God. 12. not the sacrifice of the wicked. 14. God protecteth the poor and desolate, 19. heareth the prayer of the humble, and rendereth to all as they deserve.

{1} HE that keepeth the law, multiplieth oblation. attend to the commandments, and to {2} It is an wholesome sacrifice to depart from all iniquity. {3} And to offer propitiation by sacrifice for injustices, and to retire from injustice is prayer for sins. {4} He who offereth the flour of wheat, shall give thanks: and he that is merciful offereth sacrifice. {5} To depart from iniquity is a thing that pleaseth our Lord well, and to depart from injustice is an entreating for sins. {6} Thou shalt not appear before the sight of our Lord empty. {7} For all these things are done because of the commandment of God. {8} The oblation of the just maketh a fat altar, and is an odour of sweetness in the sight of the Highest. {9} The sacrifice of the just is acceptable, and our Lord will not forget the memory thereof. {10} Render glory to God with a good mind: and diminish not the first fruits of thine hands. {11} In every gift make thy countenance cheerful, and in joyfulness sanctify thy tithes. {12} Give to the Highest according to his gift, and with a good eye do according to the ability of thine hands: {13} because our Lord is a rewarder, and will repay thee seven times so much. {14} Offer not wicked gifts, for he will not receive them. {15} And look not upon an unjust sacrifice, because our Lord is judge, and there is not with him the glory of person. {16} Our Lord will not accept person against the poor, and he will hear the prayer of him that is hurt. {17} He will not despise the prayers of the pupil: nor the widow, if she pour out speech of mourning. {18} Do not the widow's tears run down the cheek, & her exclamation upon him that causeth them to run? {19} For from the cheek they go up even to heaven, and our Lord the hearer will not be delighted in them. {20} He that adoreth God in delectation, shall be received, & his petition shall approach even to the clouds. {21} The prayer of him that humbleth himself, shall penetrate the clouds: and till it approach he will not be comforted: and he will not depart till the Highest behold. {22} And our Lord will not be long, but will judge the just, and will do judgement: and the strongest will not have patience in them, that he may crush their back: {23} and he will repay vengeance to the Gentiles, till he take away the multitude of the proud: & break the sceptres of the unjust, {24} till he reward men according to their doings: and according to the works of Adam, and according to his presumption. {25} till he judge the judgement of his people, and shall delight the just with his mercy: {26} The mercy of God is beautiful in the time of tribulation, as a cloud of rain in the time of drought.

A prayer for conversion of all nations: 14. and for conservation of the Israelites. 20. Discretion is necessary in all actions, and desires.

{1} HAVE mercy upon us o God of all, and respect us, and shew us the light of thy mercies: {2} and send in thy fear upon the nations, that have not sought after thee, that they may know that there is no God but thou, and that they may shew forth thy glorious things. {3} Lift up thy hand over the strange Nations, that they may see thy might. {4} For as in their sight thou art sanctified in us, so in our sight thou shalt be magnified in them, {5} that they may know thee, as we also have known, that there is no God beside thee o Lord. {6} Renew signs, and change marvels. {7} Glorify thy hand, and thy right arm. {8} Raise up fury, and pour out wrath. {9} Take away the adversary, and afflict the enemy. {10} Hasten the time, and remember the end, that they may declare thy marvels. {11} Let him that is saved be devoured in the wrath of flame: and let them that evil entreat thy people, find perdition. {12} Break the head of Princes of the enemies, that say: There is none other beside us. {13} Gather together all the tribes of Jacob: and let them know that there is no God but thou, that they may declare thy great works: & thou shalt inherit them as from the beginning. {14} Have mercy on thy people, upon which thy name is invocated: and upon Israel, whom thou hast made equal to thy first begotten. {15} Have mercy on the city of the sanctification Jerusalem, the city of thy rest. {16} Replenish Sion with thy words that can not be uttered, & thy people with thy glory. {17} Give the testimony to them that are thy creatures from the beginning, and raise up the prophecies, which the former prophets spake in thy name. {18} Give reward to them that patiently expect thee, that thy prophets may be found faithful: and hear the prayers of thy servants, {19} according to Aaron's benediction of thy people, and direct us into the way of justice, and let all know that inhabit the earth, that thou art God the beholder of the worlds. {20} The belly will eat all meat, and one meat is better than an other meat. {21} The jaws taste venison, & the wise heart lying words, {22} A perverse heart will give sorrow, and a cunning man will resist it. {23} Some woman will receive every man: and one daughter is better than an other daughter. {24} The beauty of a woman cheereth the face of her husband, and increaseth the desire above all man's concupiscence. {25} If there be a tongue of curing, there is also a mitigating and of mercy: her husband is not according to the sons of men. {26} He that possessest a good woman beginneth riches: she is an help like unto him, & a pillar as rest. {27} Where there is no hedge, the possession shall be spoiled: and where there is no wife, he mourneth wanting. {28} Who doth credit him that hath no nest, and turning aside wheresoever it waxeth dark, as a robber girded, leaping from city to city.

Beware of a friend, & love a sure friend. 7. Consult with the wise, trusty, 15. and virtuous, 19. especially relying upon God. 21. The tongue is cause of much good, or much evil. 30. Be temperate in diet.

{1} EVERY friend will say: I also have joined friendship: but there is a friend, in name only a friend. Doth there not sorrow remain even to death? {2} But a companion and friend will be turned to enmity. {3} O most wicked presumption, whence wast thou created to cover the dry land with malice, and with the deceitfulness thereof? {4} A companion is pleasant with his friend in delectations, and in the time of tribulation he will be an adversary. {5} A companion is sorry with his friend for his belly's sake, and he will take a shield against the enemy. {6} Forget not thy friend in thy mind, and be not unmindful of him in thy riches. {7} Consult not with him which betrayeth, and hide thy counsel from them that envy thee. {8} Every counsellor uttereth counsel, but there is a counsellor in himself. {9} From such a counsellor keep thy soul. First know what his necessity is: for he will devise to his own mind: {10} lest perhaps he thrust a sharp stake into the ground and say to thee: {11} Thy way is good; and stand over against thee to see what will befall thee. {12} With an irreligious man treat not of holiness, & with the unjust of justice, and with a woman of the thing whereof she is jealous: with a fearful man of war, with a merchant of traffic, with a buyer of selling, with an envious man of giving thanks, {13} with the impious of piety, with the dishonest of honesty, with the field labourer of all work, {14} with him that worketh by the year of the ending of the year, with a slothful servant of much working: attend not to these in all counsel. {15} But be continual with a holy man, whomsoever thou shalt know to observe the fear of God, {16} whose soul is according to thine own soul: and who when thou shalt stumble in the dark, will be sorry for thee. {17} And establish with thy self an heart of good counsel: for there is none other thing more worth to thee than it. {18} The soul of a holy man uttereth sometime true things, more than seven watchmen that sit in a high place to watch. {19} And in all these beseech the Highest, that he direct thy way in truth. {20} Before all works let a true word go before thee, and stable counsel before every act. {21} A wicked word shall change the heart: out of which, rise four parts, good, and evil, life, and death: and the tongue is a continual ruler of them. There is a subtle man teacher of many, & to his own soul he is unprofitable. {22} A cunning man hath taught many, and is sweet to his own soul. {23} He that speaketh sophistically, is odious: in every thing he shall be defrauded. {24} Grace is not given him of our Lord: for he is defrauded of all wisdom. {25} There is a wise man, wise to his own soul: and the fruit of his understanding is laudable. {26} A wise man teacheth his people, and the fruits of his understanding are faithful. {27} A wise man shall be filled with blessings, and they that see will praise him. {28} The life of a man is in the number of days: but the days of Israel are innumerable. {29} A wise man in the people shall inherit honour, and his name shall live for ever. {30} Son in thy life prove thy soul: & if it be wicked, give it not power: {31} for all things are not expedient for all, and every kind please not every soul. {32} Be not greedy in all feasting, and pour not out thy self upon all meat: {33} for in many meats there shall be infirmity, and greediness shall approach even to cholera. {34} Because of surfeit many have died: but he that is abstinent, shall add life.

God hath ordained corporal 9, and spiritual medicines. 16. Use moderate, not excessive sorrow for the dead. 26. Tradesmen and artificers are necessary, much more spiritual pastors.

{1} HONOUR the physician for necessity: for the Highest hath created him. medicine is of God, & it shall receive gift {2} For all of the king. {3} The knowledge of the physician shall exalt his head, and in the sight of great men he shall be praised. {4} The Highest hath created medicines of the earth, and a wise man will not abhor them. {5} Was not bitter water made sweet by wood? {6} The virtue of the things is come to the knowledge of men, and the Highest hath given knowledge to men, for to be honoured in his marvelous things. {7} Curing with these things he shall mitigate pain, and the apothecary shall make confections of sweetness, and shall make ointments of health, and his works shall not be consummated. {8} For the peace of God is upon the face of the earth. {9} Son in thine infirmity contemn not thy self, but pray our Lord, and he will cure thee. {10} Turn away from sin, and direct thy hands, and from all offence cleanse thy heart. {11} Give sweetness and a memorial of fine flour, and make a fat oblation, and give place to the physician. {12} For our Lord created him: and let him not depart from thee, because his works be necessary. {13} For there is a time when thou mayst fall into their hands: {14} and they shall beseech our Lord, that he direct their rest, and healing; for their conversation. {15} He that sinneth in his sight, that made him, shall fall into the hands of the physician. {16} Son, upon the dead shed tears, and begin to weep as having suffered doleful things, and according to judgement cover his body, and neglect not his burial. {17} But for detraction bear bitterly the mourning of him one day, and be comforted for the heaviness, {18} and make mourning according to his desert one day, or two, because of detraction. {19} For by heaviness death hasteneth, and it covereth the strength, and sorrow of the heart boweth the neck. {20} In abstraction sorrow is permanent: and the substance of the poor is according to his heart. {21} Give not thine heart into heaviness, but expel it from thee: and remember the latter ends, {22} and forget not: for neither is there return, and him thou shalt profit nothing, and thou shalt hurt thy self. {23} Be mindful of my judgement: for thine also must be so: to me yesterday, and to thee to day. {24} In the repose of the dead make the memory of him to rest, and comfort him in the departing of his spirit. {25} The wisdom of a scribe in the time of vacancy: and he that is less in action, shall receive wisdom. {26} With what wisdom shall he be replenished, that holdeth the plough, and glorieth in the goad, driveth oxen with the prickle, and converseth in their works, and his talk is in the breed of bulls? {27} He will give his heart to turn up furrows, and his watching in the feeding of kine. {28} So every craftsman and workmaster that passeth the night as the day, that maketh graven seals, and his continual diligence varieith the picture: he will give his heart to the similitude of the picture, and his watching will perfect the work. {29} So the ironsmith sitting by the anvil and considering the work of iron. The vapour of the fire will parch his flesh, and he striveth in the heat of the furnace: {30} The noise of the hammer reneweth his ear, and his eye is against the similitude of the vessel. {31} He will give his heart to the finishing of the works, and his watching will polish to perfection. {32} So the potter sitting at his work, turning the wheel with his feet, who is always set in carefulness for his works, and all his working is in number: {33} With his arm he will fashion the clay, and before his feet he will bend his strength: {34} He will give his heart to finish the varnishing thereof, and his watching will make clean the furnace. {35} All these have hoped in their hands, and every one is wise in his own art. {36} Without these a city is not built. {37} And they shall not inhabit, nor walk therein, and they shall not leap high into the congregation. {38} Upon the judge's seat they shall not sit, and the ordinance of judgement they shall not understand, neither shall they declare discipline and judgement, and in parables they shall not be found: {39} but they shall confirm the creature of the world, and their prayer shall be in the work of their art, applying their soul, & searching in the law of the Highest.

Godly knowledge, 16. purity of soul, 20. humble conceit of our selves, 27. and consideration of eternal reward, are good dispositions to spiritual contemplation.

{1} THE wise man will search out the wisdom of all the ancients, and will be occupied in the prophets. {2} He will keep the narration of famous men, and will enter withal into the subtleties of parables. {3} He will search out the hidden senses of proverbs, and will converse in the secrets of parables. {4} In the midst of great men he will minister, and in the sight of the president he shall appear. {5} He shall pass into the land of strange nations: for he shall try good and evil in men. {6} He will give his heart to watch early unto our Lord, that made him, and he will pray in the sight of the Highest. {7} He will open his mouth in prayer, and will entreat for his sins. {8} For if it shall please our great Lord, he will fill him with the spirit of understanding: {9} and he will pour forth the words of his wisdom as showers, and in prayer will confess to our Lord. {10} And he will direct his counsel, and discipline, and in his secrets he will consult. {11} He will open the discipline of his doctrine, & will glory in the law of the testament of our Lord. {12} Many will praise his wisdom, and it shall not be abolished for ever. {13} The memory of him shall not depart, and his name shall be required from generation to generation. {14} Nations shall declare his wisdom, & the Church will shew forth his praise. {15} If he continue, he shall leave a name more than a thousand: and if he rest, it shall profit him. {16} I will yet consult that I may declare: For as with fury I am replenished. {17} In voice he saith: Hear me ye divine fruits, and as the rose planted upon the rivers of waters fructify ye. {18} As Libanus have ye the odours of sweetness. {19}

Flourish ye flowers, as the lily, and give forth an odour, and bring forth leaves in grace, and praise with song, and bless our Lord in his works. {20} Give magnificence to his name, and confess unto him in the voice of your lips, and in songs of the lips, and harps, & thus shall ye say in confession: {21} All the works of our Lord are exceeding good. {22} At his word the water stood as an heap: and at the word of his mouth as it were receptacles of waters: {23} because in his commandment placability is made, and there is no diminishing of his salvation. {24} The works of all flesh are before him, and there is nothing hid from his eyes. {25} From world to world he beheldeth, and nothing is marvelous in his sight. {26} It is not to be said: What is this, or what is that? For all things shall be sought in their time. {27} His blessing hath overflowed as a stream. {28} And as a flood hath watered the dry land, so his wrath shall inherit the nations, that have not sought him: {29} even as he turned waters into drought, & the earth was made dry: and his ways are direct to the ways of them: so to sinners stumbling blocks in his wrath. {30} Good things were created for the good from the beginning, so for the wicked, good things and evil. {31} The beginning of the thing necessary for the life of men, water, fire, and iron, salt, milk, and bread of flour, and honey, and the cluster of grape, and oil, & clothing. {32} All these shall be converted to saints into good, so also to the impious and to sinners into evil. {33} There are spirits, that were created for vengeance, and in their fury they have confirmed their torments: {34} in the time of consummation they shall pour out strength: and they shall accomplish the fury of him, that made them. {35} Fire, hail, famine, and death, all these were created for vengeance: {36} the teeth of beasts, and scorpions, and serpents, and sword revenging the impious unto destruction. {37} In his commandments they shall make merry, and on the earth they shall be prepared when need is, and in their times they shall not pretermit a word. {38} Therefore from the beginning I was confirmed, and I have consulted, and thought, and left written. {39} All the works of our Lord are good, & he will give every work in his hour. {40} It is not to be said: This is worse than that: for all shall be approved in their time. {41} And now with all heart and mouth praise ye, and bless the name of our Lord.

The first matter of spiritual meditation may be man's misery, contracted by original sin, 4. and increased by actual, 17. relieved by God's grace: 22. which giveth many benefits, 27. man adding his voluntary cooperation.

{1} GREAT travail is created to all men, and an heavy yoke upon the children of Adam, from the day of their coming forth of their mother's womb, until the day of their burying, into the mother of all. {2} Their cogitations, and fears of the heart, imagination of things to come, and the day of their ending: {3} from him that sitteth upon the glorious seat, unto him that is humbled in earth & ashes. {4} From him that weareth hyacinth, and beareth the crown, even to him, that is covered with rude linen: fury, envy, tumult, wavering, and the fear of death, anger persevering, and contention, {5} and in the time of repose in bed, the sleep of night changeth his knowledge. {6} A little is as nothing in rest, and afterward in sleep, as in the day of watch. {7} He is troubled in the vision of his heart, as he that hath escaped in the day of battle. In the time of his safety he rose up, and marveleth at no fear: {8} With all flesh, from man even to beast, and upon sinners sevenfold. {9} Beside these things, death, blood, contention, and sword, oppressions, famine, and contrition, and scourges: {10} for the wicked all these were created, and for them the flood was made. {11} All things that are of the earth, shall turn into the earth, and all waters shall return into the sea. {12} All bribing, and iniquity shall be clean taken away, and fidelity shall stand for ever. {13} The riches of the unjust shall be dried up as a river, and they shall sound as great thunder in rain. {14} In opening his hands he shall rejoice: so transgressors shall pine away in consumption. {15} The nephews of the impious shall not multiply boughs, nor unclean roots sound upon the top of a rock. {16} Over all water greenness, and at the brink of the river it shall be plucked up before all grass. {17} Grace is as paradise in blessings, and mercy remaineth for ever. {18} The life of a workman that is sufficient for himself shall be sweet, and in it thou shalt find a treasure. {19} Children, and building of a city shall confirm the name, and an unspotted woman shall be counted above this. {20} Wine and music make a joyful heart: and the love of wisdom is above both. {21} Shalms, and Psaltery make sweet melody, and a sweet tongue is above both. {22} Thine eye will desire grace and beauty, and green sown fields are above this. {23} A friend and companion meeting together in time, & above them both is a woman with her husband. {24} Brethren are an help in the time of tribulation, and mercy shall deliver more than they. {25} Gold & silver are the establishing of the feet: and counsel is well accepted above them both. {26} Riches & strength exalt the heart, and above these is the fear of our Lord. {27} There is no diminution in the fear of our Lord, and in it there is no need to seek for help. {28} The fear of our Lord is as a paradise of blessing, and they have covered it above all glory. {29} Son in thy lifetime want not: for it is better to die than to want. {30} A man that looketh toward an other man's table, his life is as not in thinking how to live, for he feedeth his soul with an other man's meats. {31} But a man nurtured and taught, will look to himself. {32} Poverty will be sweet in the mouth of the unwise, and in his belly a fire will burn.

An other matter of meditation is death: 8. Whereof sin is the cause. 15. Care of a good fame is necessary. 19. Let shamefastness be a bridle to avoid fornication, 22. iniquity, 24. theft, and other sins.

{1} ODeath how bitter is thy memory to a man that hath peace in his riches: that is at rest, and whose ways are {2} to a man prosperous in all things, and that is yet able to take meat! {3} O death, thy judgement is good to a needy man, and him that is diminished in strength, {4} and faileth in age, and that is careful of all things, and to the incredulous, that loseth patience! {5} Fear not the judgement of death. Remember what things have been before thee, and what come after thee: this is the judgement from our Lord to all flesh: {6} and what shall come upon thee by the good pleasure of the Highest? Whether it be ten, or an hundred, or a thousand years. {7} For in hell there is no accusing of life. {8} The children of sinners become children of abominations, and they that converse near the houses of the impious. {9} The inheritance of the children of sinners shall perish, and with their seed shall be continuance of reproach. {10} The children complain of an impious father, because for him they are in reproach. {11} Woe to you ye impious men, which have forsaken the law of our Lord the Highest. {12} And if ye be born, ye shall be born in malediction: and if ye die, in malediction shall be your portion. {13} All things that are of the earth, shall return into the earth: so the impious from malediction to perdition. {14} The mourning of men is in their body, but the name of the impious shall be clean wiped out. {15} Have care of a good name: for this shall be more permanent to thee than a thousand treasures precious and great. {16} There is a number of the days of a good life: but a good name shall continue for ever. {17} Children, keep ye discipline in peace. For wisdom hid, and treasure not seen, what profit is there in them both? {18} Better is the man that hideth his folly, than the man that hideth his wisdom. {19} But yet have reverence to these things, which proceed from my mouth. {20} For it is not good to observe all shamefastness: & all things do not please all men in opinion. {21} Be ashamed before father & before mother, of fornication: and before the president and before the mighty, of lying: {22} before the Prince, and before the judge, of offence: before the synagogue and the people, of iniquity: {23} before companion and friend, of injustice: and before the place where thou dwellest, {24} of theft, of the truth of God, and his testament: of leaning on the bread, and of reproof for the thing given and taken: {25} before them that salute thee, of silence: of beholding a woman that is an harlot: and of turning away thy countenance from thy kinsman. {26} Turn not away thy face from thy neighbour, & of taking away part & not restoring. {27} Behold not an other man's wife, and search not his handmaid, neither stand by her bed. {28} Before friends, of opprobrious words: and when thou hast given, upbraid not.

Further admonition to avoid sins in words, and deeds: 6. with care that others offend not by our negligence. 15. An other matter of meditation is God's excellency appearing in his works.

{1} REPEAT not the word which thou hast heard, neither reveal thou of a secret word, & thou shalt indeed be without confusion, and shalt find grace in the sight of all men: be not ashamed for all these things, and accept not person thereby to sin. {2} Of the law of the Highest, and his testament, and of judgement to justify the impious, {3} of the word of companions and wayfaring men, and of the giving of the inheritance of friends, {4} of the equality of balance and weights, of the getting of many things and few, {5} of the corruption of buying, and of merchants, and of much discipline of thy children, and to make bloody the side of a wicked servant. {6} Over a naughty woman a seal is good. {7} Where there are many hands, shut up, and what soever thou shalt deliver, number, and weigh it: and write every thing given and received. {8} Of the discipline of the unwise and foolish, and of ancients, that are judged of young men: and thou shalt be well instructed in all things, and approved in the sight of all the living. {9} A daughter is the secret watch of the father, and the care of her taketh away sleep, lest perhaps in her youth she become past age, & abiding with an husband she become odious: {10} lest at any time she be corrupted in her virginity, and in her father's house she be found with child: lest perhaps abiding with her husband she transgress, or at the least become barren. {11} Over a dissolute daughter keep sure watch: lest at any time she make thee come into reproach with thine enemies, because of detraction in the city, and the objection of the people, and she confound thee in the multitude of the people. {12} Look not on every body for beauty sake: & among women tarry not. {13} For out of garments cometh forth the moth, and from a woman the iniquity of a man. {14} For better is the iniquity of a man, than a woman doing a good turn, and a woman shaming unto reproach. {15} I therefore will be mindful of the works of our Lord, and I will shew forth which I have seen. By the words of our Lord are his works. {16} The sun illuminating hath looked throughout all, and full of the glory of our Lord is his work. {17} Hath not our Lord made the saints to declare all his marvelous things, which our Lord the omnipotent confirmed to be established in his glory? {18} He hath searched out the depth, and the heart of men: & in their subtlety he hath considered. {19} For our Lord hath known all knowledge, and hath beheld the sign of age, declaring what things are past, and what are to come, revealing the tokens of secret things. {20} No cogitation escapeth him, and no word hideth itself from him. {21} The glorious works of his wisdom he hath beautified: who is before the world & world without end, neither is there added, {22} nor diminished, and he needeth not any man's counsel. {23} How are all his works to be desired, and which is as it were a spark to consider! {24} All these live, and remain for ever, and in all necessity all things obey him. {25} All things double, one against one, and he hath made nothing to want. {26} He hath confirmed the good things of every one. And who shall be filled seeing his glory?

God's incomparable excellency appeareth in the heavens, 2. in the sun, 6. moon, 9. other stars, 12. rainbow, 14. snow, 15. clouds, 16. hail, 17. wind, 18. thunder, 21. frost 22. crystal, 24. dew, 26. the sea, and innumerable things therein. 29. No man is able to praise God sufficiently.

{1} THE firmament of height is his beauty, the beauty of heaven is in the vision of glory. {2} The sun in sight declaring at his coming forth, a marvelous instrument, the work of the Highest. {3} At noon it burneth the earth, and who can abide in the presence of the heat thereof: keeping a furnace in the works of heat: {4} the sun three times so much burning the mountains, casting out fiery beams, and shining with his beams blindeth the eyes. {5} Great is our Lord that made it, and by his words it hath hastened his course. {6} And the moon in all in her time, is the shewing of season and the sign of age. {7} By the moon is the sign of a festival day, a light that diminisheth in consummation. {8} The month is according to her name, increasing marvelously in consummation. {9} An instrument of the camp on high, shining gloriously in the firmament of heaven. {10} The glory of the stars is the beauty of heaven, our Lord illuminating the world on high. {11} In the words of the holy one they shall stand to judgement, and shall not fail in their watches. {12} See the bow, and bless him that made it: it is very beautiful in his brightness. {13} It hath compassed heaven in the circuit of his glory, the hands of the Highest have opened it. {14} But by his commandment he hath hastened snow, & he hasteth to send forth the lightnings of his judgement. {15} Therefore are the treasures opened, & the clouds fly forth as birds. {16} By his greatness he hath set the clouds, & the hailstones are broken. {17} In his sight the mountains shall be moved, & at his will the south wind hath blown. {18} The noise of his thunder shall beat the earth, the tempest of the northwind, and the gathering together of wind: {19} and as the bird lighting down to sit, he scattereth snow, and the falling thereof, is as the locust diving downward. {20} The eye shall admire the beauty of the whiteness thereof, and the heart quaketh at the shower thereof. {21} He shall pour out frost upon the earth as salt: and when it freezeth, it shall be made as the tops of a thistle. {22} The cold north wind blew, & of water there froze crystal, upon all gathering together of waters it shall rest, & as a breast plate it shall put it self upon the waters. {23} And it shall devour the mountains, & burn the desert, & extinguish that which is green as fire. {24} The remedy of all is in the hasty coming of a cloud, and a dew meeting it by the heat that cometh, shall make it quail. {25} At his word the wind was still, and with his thought he appeased the depth, and our Lord planted Islands therein. {26} They that sail on the sea, tell the perils thereof: & hearing with our ears we shall marvel. {27} There are goodly works, & marvelous: diverse kinds of beasts, & of all cattle, & the creature of mighty beasts. {28} Through him is the end of their journey confirmed, and by his word all things are set in order. {29} We shall say many things, & shall fail in words; but the sum of our words is, He is in all. {30} Glorifying him how far shall we be able? For the omnipotent himself is above all his works. {31} Our Lord is terrible, & exceeding great, & his might is marvelous. {32} Glorifying our Lord as much as ever you can, he shall yet surpass, and his magnificence is marvelous. {33} Blessing our Lord, exalt him as much as you can: for he is greater than all praise. {34} Exalting him be ye replenished with strength. Labour not: for you shall not comprehend. {35} Who shall see him, and shall declare him? And who shall magnify him as he is from the beginning? {36} Many things hid are greater than these: for we have seen few of his works. {37} But our Lord made all things, and to them that live piously he hath given wisdom.

Praises of holy fathers in general: 16. and in particular of Enoch, 17. Noe, 20. Abraham, 24. Isaac, and Jacob.

{1} LET us praise glorious men, and our fathers in their generation. Lord made by his magnificence from the {2} Much glory hath our beginning of the world. {3} Ruling in their dominions, men great for force, and endued with their wisdom, declaring in the prophets the dignity of prophets, {4} and ruling in the people that was present, and by the virtue of wisdom most holy words to the peoples. {5} In their skill seeking out musical melodies, & uttering songs of scriptures. {6} Rich men in force studying beautifulness: living at peace in their houses. {7} All these in the generations of their nation have obtained glory, and in their days are praised. {8} They that were born of them have left a name to tell their praises: {9} and there are some of whom there is no memory: they are perished, as they that never were; & are born, as not born at all, & their children with them. {10} But they are men of mercy, whose godly deeds have not failed: {11} good things continue with their seed, {12} their nephews are an holy inheritance, and their seed hath stood in the testaments: {13} and their children because of them abide for ever: their seed and their glory shall not be forsaken. {14} Their bodies are buried in peace, and their name liveth unto generation and generation. {15} Let peoples tell their wisdom, and the Church declare their praise. {16} Henoch pleased God, and was translated into paradise, that he may give repentance to the nations. {17} Noe was found perfect, just, and in the time of wrath he was made a reconciliation. {18} Therefore was there a remnant left to the earth, when the flood was made. {19} The testaments of the world were made with him, that all flesh should no more be destroyed with the flood. {20} Abraham the great father of the multitude of the nations, and there was not found the like to him in glory, who kept the law of the Highest, and was in covenant with him. {21} In his flesh he made the covenant to stand, and in temptation he was found faithful. {22} Therefore by an oath he gave him glory in his nation, that he should increase as an heap of earth, {23} and that he would exalt his seed as the stars, and they should inherit from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. {24} And he did in like manner in Isaac for Abraham his father. {25} Our Lord gave him the blessing of all nations, and confirmed his covenant upon the head of Jacob. {26} He knew him in his blessings, and gave him an inheritance, & divided him his portion in twelve tribes. {27} And he preserved unto him men of mercy, and found grace in the eyes of all flesh.

Praises of Moyses 7. Aaron, 16. and his priestly progeny. 22. Against whom Core with his complices rebelling, were destroyed.

{1} MOYSES beloved of God, and men: whose memory is in benediction, like in the glory of saints, and magnified {2} He made him him in the fear of his enemies. And with his words he appeased monsters. {3} He glorified him in the sight of kings, and gave him commandment before his people, & shewed him his glory. {4} In his faith and meekness he made him holy, and chose him of all flesh. {5} For he heard him, and his voice, and brought him into a cloud. {6} And he gave him precepts face to face, and a law of life and discipline, to teach Jacob his testament, and Israel his judgements. {7} He exalted Aaron his brother high, and like to himself of the tribe of Levi. {8} He established unto him an everlasting testament, and gave him the Priesthood of the nation, and made him blessed in glory, {9} and he girded him about with a girdle, and put upon him a robe of glory, and crowned him in furniture of power. {10} Garments to the feet, and breeches, and an Ephod he put upon him, and compassed him with little bells of gold very many round about, {11} to give a sound in his going, to make sound heard in the temple for a memory to the children of his nation. {12} An holy robe, of gold, and hyacinth, and purple, a woven work, of a wiseman, endued with judgement and truth: {13} Of twisted scarlet the work of an artificer, with precious stones figured in the closure of gold, and graven by the work of a lapidary for a memorial, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. {14} A crown of gold upon his mitre graven with a seal of holiness, and the glory of honour: a work of power, & the adorned desires of the eyes. {15} There were none such so fair before him, even from the beginning. {16} No stranger was clothed with them, but only his children alone, and his nephews for ever. {17} His sacrifices were consumed with fire every day. {18} Moyses filled his hands, & anointed him with holy oil. {19} It was made unto him for an everlasting testament, and to his seed as the days of heaven, to do the function of Priesthood, and to have praise and to glorify his people in his name. {20} He chose him of all that lived, to offer sacrifice to God, incense, and good odour, for a memorial to pacify for his people: {21} and he gave them power in his precepts, in the testaments of his judgements, to teach Jacob his testimonies, and in his law to give light to Israel. {22} Because strangers stood against him, and for envy men compassed him about in the desert, they that were with Dathan and Abiron, and the congregation of Core in anger. {23} Our Lord God saw, and it please him not, and they were consumed in the violence of wrath. {24} He did prodigious things unto them, and consumed them in flame of fire. {25} And he added glory to Aaron, and gave him an inheritance, and divided unto him the first fruits of the increase of the earth. {26} He prepared them bread in the first unto satiety: for the sacrifices also of our Lord they shall eat, which he gave to him, and to his seed. {27} But he shall not inherit the nations in the land, and he hath no part in the nation: for himself is his portion & inheritance. {28} Phinees the son of Eleazar is the third in glory, in imitating him in the fear of our Lord: {29} and to stand in the reverence of the nation: in the goodness and alacrity of his soul he pacified God for Israel. {30} Therefore did he establish unto him a covenant of peace, to be the Prince of the holies, and to his nation, that the dignity of Priesthood should be to him and to his seed for ever. {31} And the testament to David king, the son of Jesse of the tribe of Juda, and inheritance to him and to his seed, that he might give wisdom into our heart to judge his nation in justice, that their good things might not be abolished, & their glory in their nation he made everlasting.

Praises of Josue, 9. Caleb, 13. the Judges of Israel, 16. Namely of Samuel Judge and Prophet.

{1} STRONG in battle was Jesus the son of Nave, successor of Moyses among the prophets, who was great according to his name, {2} most great in the salvation of God's elect, to overthrow the enemies rising up, that he might get the inheritance of Israel. {3} What glory obtained he in lifting up his hands, and casting swords against the cities? {4} Who before him did so resist? For our Lord himself brought the enemies. {5} Whether was not the sun hindered in his anger, and one day was made as two? {6} He invoked the mighty sovereign in assaulting of the enemies on every side, and the great and holy God heard him in hail-stones of exceeding great force. {7} He made violent assault against the nation of his enemies, and in the going down he destroyed the adversaries, {8} that the nations might know his might, that it is not easy to fight against God. And he followed at the back of the mighty. {9} And in the days of Moyses did mercy, and Caleb the son of Jephone, did stand against the enemy, and stayed the nation from sins, and appeased the murmuring of malice. {10} And they two being appointed, were delivered out of danger from among the number of six hundred thousand foot men, to bring them into their inheritance, into the land that yieldeth milk and honey. {11} And our Lord gave strength to Caleb himself, and his strength continued even until old age, so that he went up into the high place of the land, & his seed obtained inheritance. {12} That all the children of Israel might see, that it is good to obey the holy God. {13} And all the judges by their name, whose heart was not corrupted: which were not turned away from our Lord, {14} that their memory might be blessed, and their bones spring out of their place, {15} and their name continue for ever, the glory of the holy men remaining unto their children. {16} The beloved of our Lord his God, Samuel the prophet of our Lord, renewed the empire, and anointed princes in his nation. {17} By the law of our Lord he judged the congregation, and the God of Jacob saw, and in his fidelity was proved a prophet. {18} And he was known faithful in his words, because he saw the God of light: {19} and invoked our Lord Omnipotent, in assaulting the enemies besetting him on every side, in the oblation of an immaculate lamb. {20} And our Lord thundered from heaven, and in great sound he made his voice heard, {21} and he discomfited the Princes of the Tyrians, and all the dukes of the Philistines: {22} and before the time of the end of his life, and the world, he gave testimony before our Lord, and his Christ, money and what soever besides unto the very shoes he took not of all flesh, and no man accused him. {23} And after this he slept, and he notified to the king, and shewed him the end of his life, and he exalted his voice out of the earth in prophecy, to take clean away the impiety of the nation.

Praises of Nathan, 2. David, 14. and Salomon, in whose progeny (21. notwithstanding his fall) {27}. the royal scepter remained for David's sake though for his and his people's sins ten tribes were cut off, and fell into schism.

{1} AFTER these things arose Nathan the Prophet in the days of David, fat separated from the flesh, so was David {2} And as the from the children of Israel. {3} He played with lions as it were with lambs: and with bears he did in like manner as with lambs of sheep in his youth. {4} Did not he kill the giant, & took away reproach from his nation? {5} In lifting up his hand, with a stone of the sling he overthrew the boasting of Goliath: {6} for he invoked our Lord the omnipotent, and he gave in his right hand, to take away the man strong in battle, and to exalt the horn of his nation. {7} So in ten thousand did he glorify him, and praised him in the blessings of our Lord, in offering to him a crown of glory: {8} for he destroyed the enemies on every side, and rooted out the Philistines the adversaries even until this present day: he brake their horn for ever. {9} In every work he gave confession to the Holy one, and to the Highest, in the word of glory. {10} From all his heart he praised our Lord, & loved God, that made him, and gave him might against his enemies: {11} and he made singers to stand before the altar, and by their sound he made sweet tunes. {12} And in the solemnities he gave honour, and adorned the times even to the end of his life, that they should praise the holy name of our Lord, and magnify the holiness of God in the morning. {13} Our Lord purged his sins, and exalted his horn for ever: and he gave him a testament of the kingdom, and the seat of glory in Israel. {14} After him arose a wise son, and for him did he overthrow all the might of the enemies. {15} Salomon reigned in days of peace, to whom God subdued all his enemies, that he might build an house in his name, & prepare holiness for ever: as thou art instructed in thy youth. {16} And thou art replenished as a river with wisdom, and thy soul discovered the earth. {17} And thou didst multiply dark sayings in comparisons: thy name was bruised to the islands far off, and thou wast beloved in thy peace. {18} The lands marveled at the songs and proverbs, and comparisons, and interpretations, {19} and at the name of our Lord God, whose name is, God of Israel. {20} Thou didst gather gold as copper, and filledst silver as lead, {21} and bowdest thy thighs to women: thou hast had power on thy body. {22} Thou hast made a blot in thy glory, & profaned thy seed to bring wrath to thy children, & thy folly to be kindled. {23} to make the Kingdom divided, and a stubborn kingdom to reign of Ephraim. {24} But God will not leave his mercy, and he will not corrupt, nor abolish his own works, neither will he destroy from the stock the nephews of his elect: and he will not corrupt the seed of him, that loveth our Lord. {25} But he gave a remnant to Jacob, and to David of the same stock. {26} And Salomon had an end with his fathers. {27} And he left after him of his seed, the folly of the nation, {28} and Roboam having little wisdom, who turned away the nation by his counsel, {29} and Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, and made a way of sinning to Ephraim, and their sins did abound very many. {30} They removed them away from their land very far. {31} And he sought all iniquities, till there came defense unto them, and he rid them from all sins.

Praises of Elias, 13. Eliseus, 19. Ezechias, 23. and Isaia.

{1} AND there arose Elias the prophet, as it were fire, and his word burnt as a little torch. {2} Who brought famine upon them, and they provoking him in their envy were made few, for they could not abide the precepts of our Lord. {3} By the word of our Lord he stayed heaven, and he brought down fire from heaven thrice. {4} So was Elias magnified in his marvelous works. And who can so glory like unto thee? {5} Who didst raise up the dead from hell, from the lot of death, in the word of our Lord God. {6} Who didst cast down kings to destruction, and didst easily break their might, and the glorious from their bed. {7} Who hearst judgement in Sina, and in Horeb judgements of defence. {8} Who anointest kings to repentance, and makest Prophets successors after thee. {9} Who wast received in a whirlwind of fire, in a chariot of fiery horses. {10} Who art written in the judgements of times, to appease the wrath of our Lord, to reconcile the heart of the father to the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob. {11} Blessed are they that saw thee, and were honoured in thy friendship. {12} For we live by life only, but after death our name shall not be such. {13} Elias was indeed hid in the whirlwind, & his spirit was complete in Eliseus: in his days he feared not the Prince, and no man overcame him by might. {14} Neither did any word overcome him, and his body prophesied being dead. {15} In his life he did wonders, and in death he wrought marvelous things. {16} In all these things the people repented not, and they departed not from their sins, till they were cast out of their land, and were dispersed into all the earth {17} And there was left a very small nation, and a Prince in the house of David. {18} Some of them did that which pleased God: but others committed many sins. {19} Ezechias fenced his city, and brought in water into the midst thereof, and digged a rock with iron, and built a well for water. {20} In his days came up Sennacherib, and sent Rabsaces, and lifted up his hand against them, and put forth his hand upon Sion, and became proud by his mightiness. {21} Then were their hearts and hands moved: and they were in sorrow as travailing women. {22} And they invoked our merciful Lord, and spreading their hands, they lifted them up to heaven, and the holy Lord God quickly heard their voice. {23} He was not mindful of their sins, neither did he give them to their enemies, but purged them by the hand of Isai the holy Prophet. {24} He overthrew the camp of the Assyrians, and the Angel of our Lord destroyed them. {25} For Ezechias did that which pleased God, and went strongly in the way of David his father, which Isai commanded him, the great prophet, and faithful in the sight of God. {26} In his days the sun returned backward, & added life to the king. {27} By a great spirit he saw the last things, and comforted the mourners in Sion. {28} For ever he shewed the things to come, & secret things before they came to pass.

Chapter 49

Praise of Josias, who (like to David, and Ezechias) took away occasions of idolatry. 8. Praises of Jeremy, 10. Ezechiel, 12. and the twelve Prophets. 13. Also of Zorobabel, Jesus the son of Josedech, Nehemias, Enoch, Joseph, Seth, Sem, and Adam.

{1} THE memory of Josias is according to the confection of perfume made by the work of an apothecary. {2} His remembrance shall be sweet as honey in every mouth, & as music in a banquet of wine. {3} He was directed by God into the repentance of the nation, and he took away the abominations of impiety. {4} And he governed his heart toward our Lord, and in the days of sinners he strengthened piety. {5} Except David, and Ezechias, and Josias, all committed sin. {6} For the kings of Juda forsook the law of the Highest, and contemned the fear of God. {7} For they gave their kingdom to others and their glory to a strange nation. {8} They burnt the chosen city of holiness, & made the ways thereof desolate in the hand of Jeremie. {9} For they evil entreated him, who was consecrated a prophet from his mother's womb, to overthrow, & pluck up, and destroy, and to build again, and renew. {10} Ezechiel who saw the sight of glory, which he shewed him in the chariot of Cherubs. {11} For he made mention of the enemies in rain, to do good unto them, that have shewed right ways. {12} And the bones of the twelve prophets well may they spring out of their place: for they have strengthened Jacob, and have redeemed themselves in the fidelity of power. {13} How may we magnify Zorobabel? For he also was as a signet on the right hand, {14} and so Jesus the son of Josedec: who in their days built the house, and erected the holy temple to our Lord, prepared to everlasting glory. {15} And Nehemias in the memory of much time, who erected us our walls overthrown, and set up the gates and locks, who built our houses. {16} No man hath been born in the earth like to Henoch: for he also was taken up from the earth. {17} Neither as Joseph, who was a man born Prince of his brethren, the stay of the nation, the ruler of his brethren, the stay of the people: {18} and his bones were visited, and after death they prophesied. {19} Seth, and Sem obtained glory with men: and above every soul, in the beginning Adam.

Praises of Simon the High Priest. 27. Detestation of certain persecuting adversaries. 29. With conclusion that the observers of this doctrine shall be wise and happy.

{1} SIMON the son of Onias, the high priest, who in his life held up the house, and in his days strengthened the temple. {2} The height also of the temple was founded by him, the double building and high walls of the temple. {3} In his days the wells of waters flowed out, and they were filled as the sea above measure. {4} Who had care of his nation, and delivered it from perdition. {5} Who prevailed to amplify the city, who obtained glory in conversing with the nation: and amplified the entrance of the house, and the court. {6} As the morning star in the midst of a cloud, and as the full moon he shineth in his days. {7} And as the sun shining, so did he shine in the temple of God. {8} As the rainbow that shineth among the clouds of glory, and as a flower of roses in the days of the spring, and as the lilies that are in the passage of water, and as frankincense smelling in summer days. {9} As fire glistening, and frankincense burning in the fire. {10} As a massy vessel of gold, adorned with every precious stone. {11} As an olive tree budding, and a cypress tree advancing it self on high, when he took the robe of glory, and was revested to the consummation of strength. {12} In going up to the holy altar, he made the vesture of holiness, glory. {13} And in receiving the portions out of the hand of the Priests, himself also standing by the altar. About him was the ring of his brethren: and as the cedar plant in mount Libanus, {14} so stood they about him as boughs of the palm tree, & all the children of Aaron in their glory. {15} And the oblation of our Lord in their hands, before all the synagogue of Israel: and executing the consummation on the altar, to amplify the oblation of the high King, {16} he stretched forth his hand in oblation of moist sacrifice, and offered of the blood of the grape. {17} He poured out on the foundation of the altar a divine odour to the high Prince. {18} Then cried out the children of Aaron, they sounded with beaten trumpets, and made a great voice to be heard for a remembrance before God. {19} Then all the people together made haste, and fell on their face upon the earth, to adore our Lord their God, and to make prayers to God Omnipotent the Highest.

{20} And the singers amplified in their voices, and in the great house the sound was increased full of sweetness. {21} And the people in prayer desired our Lord the Highest, until the honour of our Lord was perfected, and they finished their office. {22} Then coming down, he lifted up his hands over all the congregation of the children of Israel, to give glory to God from his lips, and to glory in his name, {23} and he repeated his prayer, willing to shew the power of God. {24} And now pray ye the God of all, who hath done great things in all the land, who hath increased our days from our mother's womb, and hath done with us according to his mercy: {25} give he unto us joyfulness of heart everlasting: {26} that Israel may believe that the mercy of God is with us, to deliver us in his days. {27} Two nations my soul hateth: and the third is no nation, which I hate: {28} they that sit in mount Seir, and the Philisthiims, and the foolish people that dwell in Sichem. {29} Jesus the son of Sirach, a man of Jerusalem, wrote the doctrine of wisdom and discipline in this book, who renewed wisdom from his heart. {30} Blessed is he, that converseth in these good things: and he that layeth them in his heart, shall be wise always. {31} For if he do them, he shall be able to do all things: because his steps are in the light of God.

The Author rendereth praises and thanks to God; 18. and inviteth others to do the same, by his own example, 31. and by earnest exhortation.

{1} THE prayer of Jesus the son of Sirach. I will confess to thee o Lord King, and will praise thee God my Savior. {2} I will confess to thy name: because thou art become my helper and protector, {3} & hast delivered my body from perdition, from the snare of an unjust tongue, and from the lips of them that work lying, and in the sight of them that stood up, thou art become my helper. {4} And thou hast delivered me according to the multitude of the mercy of thy name from them that did roar, prepared to devour, {5} out of the hands of them that seek my soul, and from the gates of tribulations which have compassed me: {6} from the oppression of the flame, which hath compassed me, and in the midst of fire I was not burnt. {7} From the depth of the belly of hell, and from a defiled tongue, and from the word of lying, from a wicked king, and from an unjust tongue: {8} my soul shall praise our Lord even to death, {9} and my life was approaching to hell beneath. {10} They have compassed me on every side, & there was none that would help. I looked toward the help of men, & there was none. {11} I remembered thy mercy o Lord, and thy operation, which are from the beginning of the world. {12} Because thou deliverest them that patiently expect thee o Lord, and savest them out of the hands of the nations {13} Thou hast exalted my habitation upon the earth, and I have prayed for death to pass away. {14} I have invoked our Lord the father of my Lord, that he leave me not in the day of my tribulation, and in the time of the proud without help. {15} I will praise thy name continually, and will collaud it in confession, and my prayer was heard. {16} And thou hast delivered me from perdition, and hast rescued me from the wicked time. {17} Therefore will I confess, & say praise to thee, and bless the name of our Lord. {18} When I was yet young, before I erred, I sought for wisdom openly in my prayer. {19} Before the temple I prayed for it, and unto the later end I will seek after it, and it shall flourish as the grape timely ripe, {20} my heart hath rejoiced in it, my foot hath walked the right way, from my youth I searched after it. {21} I bowed mine ear a little, and received it. {22} I found much wisdom in my self, & I have much profited therein. {23} To him that giveth me wisdom, will I give glory. {24} For I have consulted to do it: I have had a zeal to good, and shall not be confounded. {25} My soul hath wrestled in it, and in doing it I was confirmed. {26} I stretched forth my hands on high, & I lamented foolishness. {27} I directed my soul to wisdom, and in knowledge I found it. {28} I possessed with it an heart from the beginning: for this cause I shall not be forsaken. {29} My belly was troubled in seeking it: therefore shall I possess a good possession. {30} Our Lord hath given me a tongue for my reward: and with the same I will praise him. {31} Approach unto me ye unlearned, and gather your selves together into the house of discipline. {32} Why slack ye yet? And what say you herein? Your souls are exceeding thirsty. {33} I have opened my mouth, and have spoken: Buy it for you without silver, {34} and submit your neck to the yoke, and let your soul receive discipline: for it is very near to find it. {35} See with your eyes that I have laboured a little, and have found much rest to my self. {36} Take ye discipline in a great sum of silver, and possess abundance of gold in it. {37} Let your soul rejoice in his mercy, and you shall not be confounded in praise. {38} Work your work before the time, and he will give you your reward in his time.

THE PROPHECY OF ISAIE

Isaie prophesying in the days of four Kings of Juda. 2. admonisheth both Princes and people of their ingratitude, and other sins against God: 7. for which they shall be led captive. 11. Neither shall sacrifices, nor prayers save them. 16. except they cleanse their souls from sins. 20. Which they not doing shall be severely punished. 26. Whereby the relics shall be purged, and the Church shall flourish.

{1} THE vision of Isaie the son of Amos, which he saw concerning Juda and Jerusalem in the days of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias, kings of Juda. {2} Hear ye heavens, & give ear o earth, because our Lord hath spoken. I have brought up children, and exalted them: but they have despised me. {3} The oxe hath known his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel hath not known me, and my people hath not understood. {4} Woe to the sinful nation, the people laden with grievous iniquity, the wicked seed, ungracious children: they have forsaken our Lord, they have blasphemed the holy one of Israel, they are revolted backwards. {5} For what shall I strike you any more, which add prevarication? Every head is sick, & every heart in heaviness. {6} From the sole of the foot unto the top of the head, there is no health therein: wound, and wail, and swelling stroke: it is not bound up, nor cured with medicine, nor mollified with oil. {7} Your land is desolate, your cities burnt with fire: your country strangers devour before your face, and it shall be made desolate as in the spoil of enemies. {8} And the daughter of Sion shall be left as a vineyard, and as a cottage in a place of cucumbers, and as a city that is wasted. {9} Unless the Lord of hosts had left us seed, we had been as Sodom, and we should be like to Gomorrah. {10} Hear the word of our Lord ye Princes of Sodom, give ear to the law of our God ye people of Gomorrah. {11} To what purpose do you offer me the multitude of your victims, saith our Lord? I am full, the holocaust of rams, and the fat of fatlings, and the blood of calves, and lambs, and buck goats I have not desired. {12} When you should have come before my sight, who sought for these things at your hands, that you should walk in my courts? {13} Offer sacrifice no more in vain: incense is abomination to me. The New moon, and the Sabbath, and other festivities I will not abide, your assemblies are wicked. {14} My soul hateth your Calends, and your solemnities: they are become tedious to me, I have laboured in sustaining. {15} And when you shall stretch forth your hands, I will turn away mine eyes from you: & when you shall multiply prayer, I will not hear: for your hands are full of blood. {16} Wash you, be clean, take away the evil of your cogitations from mine eyes: cease to do perversely, {17} Learn to do good: seek judgement, succour the oppressed, judge for the pupil, defend the widow. {18} And come, and accuse me, saith our Lord: if your sins shall be as scarlet, they shall be made white as snow: and if they be red as vermillion, they shall be white as wool. {19} If you be willing, and will hear me, you shall eat the good things of the earth. {20} But if you will not, and will provoke me to wrath: the sword shall devour you, because the mouth of our Lord hath spoken. {21} How is the faithful city full of judgement become an harlot? Justice hath dwelled in it, but now mankillers. {22} Thy silver is turned into dross: {23} thy wine is mingled with water. {23} Thy princes are unfaithful, companions of thieves: all love gifts, follow rewards. They judge not for the pupil: and the widow's cause goeth not in to them. {24} For this cause saith our Lord the God of hosts the mighty one of Israel: Alas! I will comfort my self upon mine adversaries: and will be revenged of mine enemies. {25} And I will turn mine hand to thee, and I will boil out thy dross till it be pure, & will take away all thy tin. {26} And I will restore thy judges as they have been before, and thy counsellors as of old. After these things thou shalt be called the just, a faithful city. {27} Sion shall be redeemed in judgement, and they shall bring her back in justice. {28} And he shall destroy the wicked and the sinners together: and they that have forsaken our Lord, shall be consumed. {29} For they shall be confounded for the idols, to which they have sacrificed: and you shall be ashamed of the gardens, which you chose. {30} When you shall be as an oak the leaves falling off, and as a garden without water. {31} And your strength shall be as the ashes of tow, and your work as a spark: and both shall be set on together, and there shall be none to quench it.

All nations shall come to the Church of Christ; which shall begin in Jerusalem. 6. And the Jews shall be rejected for their idolatry, avarice, and other sins 11. Proud men shall be humbled, & God's glory shall increase. 18. Idolatry shall be destroyed.

{1} THE word that Isaie the son of Amos saw upon Juda and Jerusalem. later days the mountaint of the house of {2} And in the our Lord shall be prepared, in the top of mountains, and it shall be elevated above the little hills: and all nations shall flow unto it. {3} And many peoples shall go, & shall say, come and let us go up to the mount of our Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us his ways, and we shall walk in his paths: because the law shall come forth from Sion, and the word of our Lord from Jerusalem. {4} And he shall judge the Gentiles, and rebuke many peoples: and they shall turn their swords into culters, and their spears into sithes: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they be exercised any more to battle. {5} House of Jacob come ye and let us walk in the light of our Lord. {6} For thou hast rejected thy people, the house of Jacob: because they are filled as in times past, and have had soothsayers as the Philisthiims, and have struck fast to strange children. {7} The land is replenished with silver and gold: and there is no end to their treasures. {8} And their land is replenished with horses: and their chariots are innumerable. And their land is full of idols: they have adored the work of their hands, which their fingers made. {9} And man bowed himself, and man was humbled: therefore forgive them not. {10} Enter thou into the rock, and be hid in a pit, in the ground from the face of the fear of our Lord, & from the glory of his majesty. {11} The lofty eyes of man are humbled, and the height of men shall be made to stoop: & our Lord only shall be exalted in that day. {12} Because the day of the Lord of hosts shall be upon all the proud and lofty, and upon every one that is arrogant, and he shall be humbled. {13} And upon all the cedars of Libanus high & elevated, & upon all the oaks of Basan {14} Upon all the high mountains, and upon all little hills elevated. {15} And upon every high tower, and every fenced wall. {16} And upon all the ships of Tharsis, and upon all that is fair to behold. {17} And the loftiness of men shall be bowed, and the height of men shall be humbled, and our Lord only shall be exalted in that day. {18} And idols shall utterly be destroyed. {19} And they shall enter into the caves of rocks, and into the pits of the earth from the face of the fear of our Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. {20} In that day shall a man cast away the idols of his silver, and the idols of his gold, which he had made him to adore, moles and bats. {21} And he shall go into the clefts of rocks, and into the caves of stones from the face of the fear of our Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. {22} Cease therefore from the man, whose spirit is in his nostrils, because he is reputed high.

The Jews shall be deprived of wise men, 4. and be subject to childish and effeminate governors 8. for their grievous sins. 16. The proud, curious, and lascivious attire of their women, 24. shall be turned into ignominy and sorrow.

{1} FOR behold the dominatour the Lord of hosts shall take away from Jerusalem, and from Juda the valiant & the strong, all strength of bread, and all strength of water. {2} The strong, and the man of war, the judge, and the prophet, and soothsayer, and the ancient. {3} The prince over fifty, and the honourable of countenance, and the counsellor, and the wise of workmasters, and the skilful of mystical speech. {4} And I will give children to be their princes, and the effeminate shall rule over them. {5} And the people shall rush violently, man against man, and every one against his neighbour: the child shall make tumult against the ancient, and the base against the noble. {6} For a man shall take hold of his brother, one of the house of his father: Thou hast a garment, be thou our prince, and let this ruin be under thy hand. {7} He shall answer in that day, saying: I am no physician, & in my house there is no bread, nor garment: do not appoint me prince of the people. {8} For Jerusalem is gone to ruin, and Juda is fallen: because their tongue & their inventions were against our Lord, to provoke the eyes of his majesty. {9} The knowledge of their face hath answered them: and they have proclaimed their sin as Sodom, neither have they hid it: woe to their soul, because evils are rendered to them. {10} Say to the just that it is well, because he shall eat the fruit of his inventions. {11} Woe to the impious unto evil: for the reward of his hands shall be made to him. {12} My people their exactors have spoiled, & women have ruled over them. My people, they that call thee blessed, the same deceive thee, & dissipate the way of thy steps. {13} Our Lord standeth to judge, & he standeth to judge peoples. {14} Our Lord shall come to judgement with the ancients of his people, and his princes: for you have devoured the vineyard, and the spoil of the poor is in your house. {15} Why do you consume my people, and grind the faces of the poor, saith our Lord the God of hosts? {16} And our Lord said: for that the daughters of Sion are haughty, and have walked with stretched out neck, and went with twinglings of eyes, and clapped their hands, walked on the feet, and jettied in a set pace. {17} Our Lord shall make bald the crown of the daughters of Sion, and our Lord shall discover their hair. {18} In that day shall our Lord take away the ornament of shoes, and little moons. {19} And chains, and ouches, and bracelets, and bonnets. {20} And the shedding combs, and slops, and tablets, and sweet balls, and earlets. {21} And rings, and pearls hanging on the forehead. {22} And changes of apparel, and short cloaks, and the fine linen, and needles, {23} and looking glasses, and lawns, and headbands, and bongraces. {24} And for sweet savour there shall be stink, and for a girdle a cord, and for frizzled hair baldness, and for stomacher haircloth. {25} Thy fairest men also shall fall by the sword, and thy strong ones in battle. {26} And her gates shall lament and mourn, and she shall sit desolate on the ground.

After the destruction of the Jews, many women shall seek to marry with one man. 2. But the relics, repenting of their sins shall return to God, 5. and flourish under his protection.

{1} AND seven women shall take hold of one man in that day, saying: We will eat our own bread, and be covered with our garments: only let thy name be called upon us, take away our reproach. {2} In that day the bud of our Lord shall be in magnificence, and glory, and the fruit of the earth high, and exultation to them, that shall be saved of Israel. {3} And it shall be: Every one that shall be left in Sion, and shall remain in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, every one that is written in life in Jerusalem. {4} If our Lord shall cleanse the filth of the daughters of Sion, and shall wash the blood of Jerusalem out of the midst thereof in the spirit of judgement, and spirit of heat. {5} And our Lord shall create upon every place of mount Sion, and where he is invoked, a cloud by day, and smoke, and the brightness of flaming fire in the night: for upon all glory protection. {6} And there shall be a tabernacle for a place of shadow in the day from the heat, and for security, and covert from the whirlwind, and from rain.

Under the figure of a barren vineyard, is prophesied the rejection of the Jews, 7. for their sins of avarice, 11. intemperance, & other wickedness, 18. one iniquity drawing an other, 20. judging good to be evil, and evil good. 25. For which the Gentiles of diverse nations shall afflict them.

<{1} I will sing to my beloved the canticle of my cousin concerning his vineyard. A vineyard was made to my beloved in horn, the son of oil. {2} And he hedged it, and chose stones out of it, and planted it elect, and built a tower in the midst thereof, and set up a press therein: and looked that it should yield grapes, and it yielded wild grapes. {3} Now therefore ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Juda, judge between me and my vineyard. {4} What is there that I ought to do more to my vineyard, and have not done to it? Whether that I looked, it should yield grapes, and it hath yielded wild grapes? {5} And now I will shew you what I will do to my vineyard. I will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be into spoil: I will throw down the wall thereof, and it shall be to be trodden upon. {6} And I will lay it waste: it shall not be pruned, and it shall not be digged: and briars and thorns shall overgrow it: and I will command the clouds that they rain no shower upon it. {7} For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts, is the house of Israel: and the man of Juda, his delectable bud: & I looked that it should do judgement, and behold iniquity: and justice, and behold clamour. {8} Woe to you that join house to house, and lay field to field, even to the end of the place: why shall you alone dwell in the midst of the earth? {9} These things are in my ears, saith the Lord of hosts: unless many great and fair houses become desolate, without an inhabiter. {10} For ten acres of the vineyards shall yield one little flagon, and thirty bushels of seed shall yield three bushels. {11} Woe to you that rise up early to follow drunkenness, & to drink even until evening, that you may be inflamed with wine. {12} Harp, and viol, & timbrel, and shalm, & wine in your feasts: and the work of our Lord you regard not, nor consider the works of his hands. {13} Therefore is my people led away captive, because they had not knowledge, and their nobles died with famine, and the multitude thereof dried away with thirst. {14} Therefore hath hell dilated his soul, and opened his mouth without any limit: and their strong ones, and their people, and their high and glorious ones shall descend into it. {15} And man shall be bowed, and man shall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty shall be brought low. {16} And the Lord of hosts shall be exalted in judgement, and the holy God shall be sanctified in justice. {17} And the lambs shall feed according to their order, and strangers shall eat the deserts turned into fruitfulness. {18} Woe to you that draw iniquity in cords of vanity, & sin as the link of a wain. {19} Which say: let him make haste, & let his work come quickly, that we may see it: & let the counsel of the holy one of Israel come, and we shall know it. {20} Woe unto you that call evil good; & good evil: putting darkness light, and light darkness: putting bitter for sweet, & sweet for bitter. {21} Woe to you that are wise in your own eyes, and prudent before yourselves. {22} Woe to you that are mighty to drink wine, & stout men in drunkenness. {23} Which justify the impious for gifts, and take away the justice of the just from them. {24} For this, even as the tongue of fire devoureth stubble, and the heat of the flame burneth it up: so shall their root be as ashes, and their bud shall rise up as dust, for they have cast away the law of the Lord of hosts, and have blasphemed the word of the holy one of Israel. {25} Therefore is the fury of our Lord wrath against his people, and he hath stretched out his hand upon them, & stricken them: and the mountains were troubled, and their carcasses were made as dung in the midst of the streets. In all these things his fury is not turned away, but yet is his hand stretched forth. {26} And he shall lift up a sign in the nations a far, and shall whistle to him of the ends of the earth: and behold he shall come in haste speedily. {27} There is none that fainteth, nor that laboureth in him, he will not slumber, nor sleep, neither shall the girdle of his reins be loosed, neither shall the latchet of his shoe be broken. {28} His arrows sharp, and all his bows bent. The hoofs of his horses as the flint, & his wheels as the violence of a tempest. {29} His roaring as a lion's, he shall roar as lions' whelps: and he will gnash, and hold the prey, and clasp it, and there shall be none to pluck it away. {30} And it shall sound upon him in that day, as the sound of the sea: we shall look toward the earth, and behold darkness of tribulation, and the light is darkened in the mist thereof.

The Prophet after a glorious vision 5. lamenteth his former silence; 6. his lips being purified by an Angel with a hot coal. 8. he is willingly sent, & so prophesieth that the people's heart will be hardened; their cities shall be destroyed, but good relics shall be conserved.

{1} IN the year that king Ozias died, I saw our Lord sitting upon an high throne and elevated: and those things that were under him filled the temple. {2} Seraphims stood upon the same: six wings to one, and six wings to the other: with two they covered his face, and with two they covered his feet, and with two they flew. {3} And they cried one to an other, and said: Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God of hosts, all the earth is full of his glory. {4} And the lintels of the doors were moved at the voice of him that cried, & the house was filled with smoke. {5} And I said: Woe is me because I have held my peace, because I am a man of polluted lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people that hath polluted lips, and the King the Lord of hosts I have seen with mine eyes. {6} And one of the Seraphims flew to me, & in his hand an hot coal, which he had taken with tongs from the altar. {7} And he touched my mouth, and said: Behold this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity shall be taken away, & thy sin shall be cleansed. {8} And I heard the voice of our Lord saying: Whom shall I send? And who shall go for us? And I said: Lo I am here, send me. {9} And he said: Go, and thou shalt say to this people: Hear ye that hear, and understand not: and see the vision, & know it not. {10} Blind the heart of this people, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes: lest perhaps they may see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted and I heal them. {11} And I said: How long Lord? And he said: Until the cities be made desolate without inhabiter, and the houses without man, and the land shall be left desert. {12} And our Lord shall make men go far off, and he shall be multiplied that was left in the midst of the earth. {13} And yet there shall be tithing in it, and she shall be converted, and shall be to the shew as a terebinth, and as an oak, that spreadeth his boughs: that which shall stand in it, shall be an holy seed.

Jerusalem being besieged 3. the Prophet telleth the King, that the enemies shall not prevail (8. but the Kingdom of Israel shall be destroyed) 10. giveth for a sign that a Virgin shall conceive and bear a Son: 17. prophesieth also the captivity, and desolation of the Kingdom of Juda.

{1} AND it came to pass in the days of Achaz the son of Joathan, the son of Ozias king of Juda, there came up Rasin the king of Syria, and Phacee the son of Romelia the king of Israel, to Jerusalem to fight against it: and they could not overcome it. {2} And they told the house of David, saying: Syria hath rested upon Ephraim, and his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the woods are moved at the face of the wind. {3} And our Lord said to Isaie: Go forth to meet Achaz, thou, and Jasub thy son that is left, to the conduit of the upper pool, in the way of the Fuller's field. {4} And thou shalt say to him: See thou be still: fear not, and let not thine heart be afraid of the two tails of these smoking firebrands, in the wrath of the fury of Rasin the king of Syria, and of the son of Romelia. {5} For that Syria hath taken counsel against thee, unto the evil of Ephraim, and the son of Romelia, saying: {6} Let us go up to Juda, and raise it up, and pluck it away to us, and make the son of Tabeel king in the midst thereof. {7} Thus saith our Lord God: It shall not stand, & this shall not be. {8} But the head of Syria Damascus, & the head of Damascus, Rasin: and yet threescore and five years, and Ephraim shall cease to be a people: {9} And the head of Ephraim Samaria, and the head of Samaria the son of Romelia. If you will not believe, you shall not be permanent. {10} And our Lord added to speak to Achaz, saying. {11} Ask a sign for thee of the Lord thy God unto the depth of hell, or unto the height above. {12} And Achaz said: I will not ask, and I will not tempt our Lord. {13} And he said: Hear ye therefore o house of David: Is it a small thing for you, to be grievous to men, that you are grievous to my God also? {14} Therefore shall our Lord himself give you a sign. Behold a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, & his name shall be called Emmanuel. {15} He shall eat butter and honey, that he may know to refuse evil, and choose the good. {16} For before the child know to refuse evil, and choose good, the land which thou doest detest shall be forsaken of the face of her two kings. {17} Our Lord will bring upon thee, & upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days that came not since the days of the separation of Ephraim from Juda, with the king of the Assyrians. {18} And it shall be in that day: our Lord shall hiss to the fly, that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Aegypt, and to the bee, that is in the land of Assur. {19} And they shall come, and shall rest all in the torrents of valleys, and in the caves of rocks, and in all shrub places, and in all holes. {20} In that day our Lord shall shave with a razor, hired by them, that are beyond the river, by the king of the Assyrians, the head, and the hairs of the feet, and the whole beard. {21} And it shall be in that day: a man shall nourish a young cow, and two ewes. {22} And for the abundance of milk he shall eat butter: for butter and honey shall every one eat, that shall be left in the midst of the land. {23} And it shall be in that day: every place where there shall be a thousand vines, for a thousand pieces of silver, they shall be into thorns and briars. {24} With arrows & bow they shall go in thither: for briars and thorns shall be in all the land. {25} And all mountains, that shall be weeded with a weeding hook, the terror of thorns and briars shall not come thither, and it shall be for the oxe to feed on, and cattle to tread upon.

Under the figure of a new name, Christ's birth of a virgin is again prophesied. 4. but first the Kingdoms of Syria and Israel shall be destroyed: and Juda sore afflicted: 8. yet conserved with loss of many. 16. Which is a mystery hidden from the Jews. 21. Great evils hang over them, that depart from the law.

{1} AND our Lord said to me: Take thee a great book, & write in it with the pen of man. Take away the spoils speedily, quickly take preys. {2} And I took to me faithful witnesses, Urias the Priest, & Zacharias the son of Barachias. {3} And I went to the Prophetess, and she conceived, and bare a son. And our Lord said to me: Call his name, Hasten to take away the spoils: make haste to take preys. {4} For before the child know to call his father and his mother, the strength of Damascus shall be taken away, and the spoils of Samaria before the king of the Assyrians. {5} And our Lord added yet to speak unto me, saying: {6} For that this people hath cast away the waters of Siloe, that run with silence, and rather taken Rasin, and the son of Romelia: {7} for this cause behold our Lord will bring upon them the waters of the river strong and many, the king of the Assyrians, and all his glory: and he will ascend over all their rivers, and will flow over all their banks. {8} And will go through Juda, overflowing, and passing through shall come even to the neck. And the stretching out of his wings shall fill the breadth of thy land o Emmanuel. {9} Gather ye together o peoples, and be overcome, and hear all ye lands far off: Take courage, and be overcome, gird yourselves, & be overcome. {10} Take counsel and it shall be defeated: speak a word, and it shall not be done: because God is with us. {11} For thus saith our Lord to me: As in a strong arm he hath taught me, that I should not walk in the way of this people, saying: {12} Say not, Conspiracy: for all things that this people speaketh, is conspiracy: and fear ye not their fear, neither dread ye. {13} The Lord of hosts him sanctify ye: be he your dread, and he your terror. {14} And he shall be a sanctification to you. But for a stone of offence, and for a rock of scandal to the two houses of Israel, for a snare & a ruin to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {15} And very many of them shall stumble and fall, and shall be broken in pieces, and shall be snared, and taken. {16} Bind the testimony, seal the law in my disciples. {17} And I will expect our Lord, who hath hid his face from the house of Jacob, and I will wait for him. {18} Behold I and my children, whom our Lord hath given me for a sign, and for a wonder in Israel from the Lord of hosts, which dwelleth in mount Sion. {19} And when they shall say to you: Ask of Pythons, and of diviners, which whisper in their enchantments: shall not the people ask vision of their God, for the living of the dead? {20} To the law rather, and to the testimony. As if they speak not according to this word, they shall not have the morning light. {21} And he shall pass by it, shall fall, and be hungry: and when he shall be hungry, he will be angry, and curse his king, and his God, and will look upwards. {22} And he will look to the earth, and behold tribulation and darkness, dissolution and distress, and mist persecuting, and he can not fly away from his distress.

Theglat Phalasar carrieth some Israelites captive, and Salmanasar many more, in figure of a few disciples converted to Christ in Galilee, and all Jewry, but many more in the whole world. 7. Whose Empire shall be great, and durable: 8. but the Jew's glory, especially of the ten tribes, shall be obscured, for their pride, hypocrisy, and other sins.

{1} AT the first time was the land of Zabulon alleviated, and the land of Nephthali: and at the last was aggravated the way of the sea beyond Jordan of Galilee of the Gentiles. {2} The people that walked in darkness, hath seen great light: to them that dwelt in the country of the shadow of death, light is risen. {3} Thou hast multiplied the nation, & not magnified the joy. They shall rejoice before thee, as they that rejoice in harvest, as conquerors rejoice after a prey is taken, when they divide the spoils. {4} For the yoke of their burden, and the rod of their shoulder, and the sceptre of their exactor thou hast overcome, as in the day of Madian. {5} Because all violent taking of prey with tumult, and garment mingled with blood, shall be to be burnt, and food for the fire. {6} For A LITTLE CHILD IS BORN TO US, and a son is given to us, and his principality is made upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called, Marvelous, Counsellor, God, Strong, Father of the world to come, the Prince of peace: {7} His empire shall be multiplied, and there shall be no end of peace: he shall sit upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom: that he may confirm it, and strengthen it in judgement and justice, from this time & for ever: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this. {8} Our Lord hath sent a word into Jacob, and it is fallen in Israel. {9} And all the people of Ephraim shall know, & the inhabitants of Samaria, saying in pride & greatness of heart: {10} Bricks are fallen, but we will build with square stones: they have cut down sycamores, but we will change them into cedars. {11} And our Lord shall lift up the enemies of Rasin over him, and shall turn his enemies into tumult. {12} Syria from the East, and the Philistines from the West: and they shall devour Israel with full mouth. In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth. {13} And the people is not returned to him, who hath stricken them, and have not sought after the Lord of hosts. {14} And our Lord shall destroy from Israel the head & the tail, the perverter and refrainer in one day. {15} The aged and honourable, he is the head, & the prophet that teacheth a lie, he is the tail. {16} And they that call this people blessed, seducing them: and that are called blessed, shall be thrown headlong. {17} For this cause our Lord shall not rejoice upon their young men: and on their pupils and widows he shall not have mercy: because every one is an hypocrite & wicked, and every mouth hath spoken folly. In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth. {18} For impiety is kindled as a fire, it shall devour brier & thorn: & it shall be kindled in the thicket of the forest, and it shall be wrapped up together in the pride of smoke. {19} In the wrath of the Lord of hosts the earth is troubled, and the people shall be food for the fire: man shall not spare his brother. {20} And he shall decline to the right hand, and shall be hungry: and shall eat on the left hand, and shall not be filled: every one shall eat the flesh of his arm: Manasses Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasses, they together against Juda. {21} In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth.

Makers of wicked laws are cursed. 3. For which the Israelites shall be afflicted by the Assirians. 5. The Assirians overthrown by extraordinary means sent from God: 21. and the Jews delivered from imminent danger: with diverse mysteries of Christ intermixed.

{1} WOE to them that make wicked laws: and writing have written injustice. might oppress the poor in judgement, & {2} That they do violence to the cause of the humble of my people: that widows might be their prey, and they might spoil pupils. {3} What will you do in the day, of visitation & of calamity coming from far? To whose help will ye fly? And where will ye leave your glory? {4} That you be not bowed under the bond, and fall with the slain? In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth. {5} Woe to Assur, he is the rod of my fury, & the staff: mine indignation is in their hands. {6} I will send him to a deceitful nation, & will give him commandment against the people of my fury, that he take away spoils, and catch the prey, and put them to be trodden upon, as the mire of the streets. {7} But he shall not so think, and his heart shall not esteem it so: but his heart shall be set to destroy, and to the destruction of no few nations. {8} For he shall say: {9} Are not my princes with all kings? Is not as Charcamis, so Calano: and as Arphad, so Emath? Is not as Damascus, so Samaria? {10} Even as my hand hath found the kingdoms of the idol, so also their idols of Jerusalem, & of Samaria. {11} Shall I not as I have done to Samaria and her idols so do to Jerusalem and her idols? {12} And it shall be: when the Lord shall have accomplished all his works in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem, I will visit over the fruit of the magnificient heart of the king of Assur, and over the glory of the haughtiness of his eyes. {13} For he hath said: In the strength of mine own hand have I done it, and in mine own wisdom have I understood and I have taken away the borders of peoples, and have spoiled their princes, and have pulled down as a mighty man, them that sat on high. {14} And my hand hath found the strength of peoples as a nest: and as eggs be gathered that are left, so have I gathered together all the earth: and there was none that moved wing, and opened mouth, and once muttered. {15} Shall the axe glory against him, that cutteth with it? Or shall the saw exalt itself against him, by whom it is drawn? As if a rod should lift up itself against him, that liftest it up, and a staff exalt itself, which is certes but wood. {16} For this cause the Dominatour the Lord of hosts shall send leanness in his fat ones: and under his glory shall burn as it were the burning of fire kindled. {17} And his light of Israel shall be in fire, and the Holy one thereof in flame: and his thorn shall be kindled, and be devoured, and the briars in one day. {18} And the glory of his forest, and of his carmelus shall be consumed, from the soul even to the flesh, and he shall be a fugitive for fear. {19} And the remains of the wood of his forest, for the fewness shall be numbered, and a child shall write them. {20} And it shall be in that day, the residue of Israel, and they that shall escape of the house of Jacob, shall not add to lean upon him, that striketh them: but they shall lean upon our Lord the holy one of Israel in truth. {21} The remnant shall be converted, the remnant I say of Jacob, to the strong God. {22} For if thy people o Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, the remnant thereof shall be converted, consummation abridged shall make justice overflow. {23} For our Lord the God of hosts shall make consummation, and abridgment in the midst of all the earth. {24} For this cause, thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: O my people inhabiter of Sion, be not afraid of Assur: he shall strike thee with his rod, and shall lift up his staff over thee in the way of Aegypt. {25} For yet a little, and a very little, & mine indignation and fury upon their wickedness shall be consummate. {26} And the Lord of hosts shall raise up a scourge upon him, according to the plague of Madiam in the Rock Oreb, and his rod upon the sea, and he shall lift it up in the way of Aegypt. {27} And it shall be in that day: his burden shall be taken away from off thy shoulder, and his yoke from off thy neck, and the yoke shall putrify at the face of oil. {28} He shall come into Aiath, he shall pass into Magron: at Machmas he shall command his vessels. {29} They have passed in haste, Gaba is our seat: Rama was astonished, Gabaath of Saul fled. {30} Neigh with thy voice o daughter of Gallim, attend Laisa, seely poor Anathoth. {31} Medemena is removed: Ye inhabitants of Gabin take courage. {32} Yet there is day, to stand in Nobe: he shall shake his hand over the mountain of the daughter of Sion, the little hill of Jerusalem. {33} Behold the dominatour the Lord of hosts shall break the little flagon in terror, and the high of stature shall be cut down, and the lofty shall be humbled. {34} And the thick places of the forest shall be overthrown with iron, and Libanus with the high ones shall fall.

Christ born of the stock of Jesse, replenished with seven gifts of the Holy Ghost, 4. shall have a spiritual Kingdom, most just and potent. 10. whereto all nations will repair.

{1} AND a rod shall come forth of the root of Jesse, and a flower shall rise up out of his root. {2} And the Spirit of our Lord shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom, and understanding, the spirit of counsel, and strength, the spirit of knowledge, and piety, {3} and the spirit of the fear of our Lord shall replenish him. He shall not judge according to the sight of the eyes, nor rebuke according to the hearing of the ears. {4} But he shall judge the poor in justice, & shall rebuke in equity for the mild of the earth: and he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the spirit of his lips he shall kill the impious. {5} And justice shall be the girdle of his loins: and faith the girdle of his reins. {6} The wolf shall dwell with the lamb: and the leopard shall lie with the kid, the calf, and lion, and sheep shall abide together, a little child shall lead them. {7} The calf, and the bear shall feed: their young ones shall rest together: and the lion shall eat straw as it were an oxe. {8} And the infant from the breast shall be delighted upon the hole of the asp: and he that is weaned, shall thrust his hand into the hole of the cockatrice. {9} They shall not hurt, and they shall not kill in all my holy mountain, because the earth is replenished with the knowledge of our Lord, as the covering waters of the sea. {10} In that day the root of Jesse, that standeth for a sign of peoples, him the nations shall beseech, and his sepulchre shall be glorious. {11} And it shall be in that day: our Lord shall put to his hand the second time to possess the remnant of his people, which shall be left of the Assyrians, and of Aegypt, and of Phethros, and of Aethiopia, and of Aelam, and of Sennaar, and of Emath, and of the islands of the sea. {12} And he shall lift up a sign unto the nations, and shall assemble together the fugitives of Israel, and shall gather the dispersed of Juda from the four quarters of the earth. {13} And the emulation of Ephraim shall be taken away, and the enemies of Juda shall perish: Ephraim shall not envy Juda, & Juda shall not fight against Ephraim. {14} And they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philisthims by the sea, they together shall spoil the children of the East: Idumea, and Moah the precept of their hand, and the children of Ammon shall be obedient. {15} And our Lord shall make desolate the tongue of the sea of Aegypt, and shall lift up his hand over the river in the strength of his spirit: and he shall strike him in his seven streams, so that they may pass through it with shoes. {16} And there shall be a way to the remnant of my people, which shall be left of the Assyrians: as there was to Israel in the day, that he came up out of the Land of Aegypt.

A Canticle of thanks for the benefits of Christ.

{1} AND thou shalt say in that day: I will confess to thee o Lord, because thou wast angry with me: thy fury is turned away, and thou hast comforted me. {2} Behold God is my saviour, I will do confidently, and will not fear: because our Lord is my strength, and my praise, & he is become my salvation {3} You shall draw waters in joy out of the saviour's fountains. {4} And you shall say in that day: Confess ye to our Lord, and invocate his name: make his inventions known among the peoples: remember that his name is high. {5} Sing ye to our Lord, because he hath done magnificently: shew this forth in all the earth. {6} Rejoice, and praise o habitation of Sion: because great in the midst of thee, is the holy one of Israel.

The Prophet foretelleth the calamity, and ruin of Babylon.

{1} THE burden of Babylon, which Isaie the son of Amos saw. lift up a sign, exalt the voice, lift up the {2} Upon the dark mountain hand, & let the dukes enter the gates. {3} I have commanded my sanctified, and have called my strong ones in my wrath, them that rejoice in my glory. {4} The voice of a multitude in the mountains, as it were of many peoples, a voice of the sound of kings, nations gathered together: The Lord of hosts hath commanded the host of battle. {5} Coming from a country far off, from the end of heaven: our Lord, & the instruments of his fury, to destroy the whole land. {6} Howl ye, because the day of our Lord is near: it shall come as destruction from our Lord. {7} For this cause shall all hands be dissolved, and every heart of man shall melt; {8} and be broken. Gripings and pains shall hold them, they shall be in pain as she that travaleth. Every one shall be astonished at his neighbour, their countenances as faces burnt. {9} Behold the day of our Lord shall come, cruel, & full of indignation, & of wrath, & fury to bring the land to a wilderness, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it. {10} Because the stars of heaven, and their brightness shall not display their light: the sun is darkened in his rising, and the moon shall not shine in her light. {11} And I will visit over the evils of the world, and against the impious their iniquity, and I will make the pride of infidels to cease, & will humble the arrogancy of the strong. {12} A man shall be more precious than gold, & man than pure fine gold. {13} For this I shall trouble heaven: and the earth shall be moved out of her place, for the indignation of the Lord of hosts, & for the day of the wrath of his fury. {14} And it shall be as a young doe flying, & as a sheep: & there shall be none to gather them together: every man shall turn to his own people, and every one shall fly to his own land. {15} Every one that shall be found, shall be slain: and every one that shall come to aid, shall fall by the sword. {16} Their infants shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes: their houses shall be spoiled, and their wives shall be ravished. {17} Behold I will raise upon them the Medes, which shall not seek silver, nor desire gold. {18} But with arrows they shall kill the little ones, and shall have no pity upon the sucklings of the womb, and upon the children their eye shall not spare. {19} And that Babylon glorious in kingdoms, noble in the pride of the Chaldees, shall be even as our Lord subverted Sodom and Gomorrah. {20} It shall not be inhabited for ever, & it shall not be founded unto generation & generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch his tents there, nor shepherds rest there. {21} But beasts shall rest there, and their houses shall be filled with dragons, and ostriches shall dwell there, and Satyrs shall dance there: {22} And the Syrach owls shall answer there in the houses thereof, and mermaids in the temples of pleasure.

The Jews shall be released from the captivity of Babylon. 12. Nabuchodonosor most proud and mighty, shall be thrown into extreme misery. 24. In the mean time the Assirians besieging Jerusalem shall be defeated. 28. Neither shall the Philistines prevail against the Jews, as they presume.

{1} IT IS near that the time thereof shall come, and the days thereof shall not be prolonged. For our Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose out of Israel, and will make them rest upon their own ground: the stranger shall be joined to them, & shall stick to the house of Jacob. {2} And peoples shall hold them, and bring them into their place, and the house of Israel shall possess them upon the land of our Lord for servants and handmaids: and they shall lead captive those that had taken them, & shall subdue their exactors. {3} And it shall be in that day, when God shall give thee rest from thy labour, and from thy vexation, and from the sore servitude, which thou didst serve before. {4} Thou shalt take this parable against the king of Babylon, and shalt say: How hath the exactor ceased, the tribute rested: {5} Our Lord hath broken the staff of the impious, the rod of the rulers, {6} that did beat peoples in indignation with incurable wound, subduing nations in fury, persecuting cruelly. {7} All earth is quiet and still, is glad & hath rejoiced. {8} The fir trees also have rejoiced over thee, and the cedars of Libanus: since thou hast slept, there hath none come up to hew us. {9} Hell beneath is troubled to meet thy coming, it hath raised up the giants for thee. All the princes of the earth are risen up from their thrones, all the princes of nations. {10} All shall answer, and say to thee: Thou also art wounded even as we, made like unto us. {11} Thy pride is drawn down to hell, thy carcass is fallen: under thee shall the moth be strawed, and worms shall be thy covering. {12} How art thou fallen from heaven Lucifer, which didst rise in the morning? Art thou fallen to the earth, that didst wound nations? {13} Which didst say in thy heart: I will ascend into heaven, above the stars of God will I exalt my throne, I will sit in the mount of the testament, in the sides of the North. {14} I will ascend above the height of the clouds, I will be like to the Highest. {15} But yet thou shalt be drawn down to hell, into the depth of the lake. {16} They that shall see thee, shall turn toward thee, & behold thee: Is this the man that troubled the earth, that shaked kingdoms, {17} that made the world a desert, & destroyed the cities thereof, opened not the prison to his prisoners? {18} All the kings of the nations every one have slept in glory, each man in his own house. {19} But thou art cast forth out of thy sepulchre, as an unprofitable branch polluted, and wrapped up with them that were slain by the sword, and are gone down to the foundations of the lake, as a rotten carcass. {20} Thou shalt not keep company with them, neither in burial, for thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people: the seed of the wicked shall not be named for ever. {21} Prepare his children to slaughter in the iniquity of their fathers: they shall not rise up, nor inherit the land, nor fill the world with cities. {22} And I will rise over them, saith the Lord of hosts: & I will destroy the name of Babylon, and the remains, and bud, and progeny: saith our Lord. {23} And I will make it the possession of the hedgehog, & matrices of waters, & I will sweep it with besom wearing it, saith the Lord of hosts. {24} The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying: If it shall not be, as I have thought: and so fall out, as I have in mind consulted: {25} That I destroy the Assyrian in my land, and in my mountains tread upon him: and his yoke shall be taken away from them, and his burden taken off from their shoulder. {26} This is the counsel, that I have devised upon all the earth, and this is the hand stretched forth upon all nations. {27} For the Lord of hosts hath decreed, and who can weaken it? And his hand is stretched out: and who shall turn it away? {28} In the year, that king Achaz died, was this burden made. {29} Rejoice not thou whole Philistaea, that the rod of thy striker is broken in pieces: for from the root of the serpent shall issue forth a cockatrice, and his seed swallowing the bird. {30} And the first born of the poor shall be fed, & the poor shall rest confidently: and I will make thy root to perish in famine, & will kill thy remnant. {31} Howl thou gate, cry out o city: all Philistaea is thrown down: for a smoke shall come from the North, and there is none that shall escape his troop. {32} And what shall be answered to the messengers of nations? That our Lord hath founded Sion, and the poor of his people shall hope in him.

Unexpected ruin shall fall upon the Moabites: 5. Whereof the Prophet hath compassion.

{1} THE burden of Moab. Because Ar-Moab was wasted in the night, hath held his peace: because the wall of Moab is destroyed in the night, he hath held his peace. {2} The house is gone up, & Dibon to the high places to mourn upon Nabo, and upon Medaba shall Moab howl: on all the heads thereof baldness, and every beard shall be shaven. {3} In the high ways thereof they are girded with sackcloth: upon the roofs thereof, and in the streets thereof all howling, goeth down to weep. {4} Hesebon shall cry, & Eleale, their voice is heard even to Jasa. For this shall the well appointed of Moab howl, his soul shall howl to himself. {5} My heart shall cry to Moab, the bars thereof unto Segor an heifer astonishing: for by the ascent of Luith he shall go up weeping: & in the way of Oronaim they shall lift up a cry of contrition. {6} For the waters of Nemrim shall be made desolate, because the grass is withered, the spring is faded, all greenness is perished. {7} According to the greatness of the work, is also their visitation: they shall lead them to the torrent of willows. {8} Because the cry shall go round about the border of Moab: unto Gallim the howling thereof, and unto the Pit-Elim the cry thereof. {9} Because the waters of Dibon are replenished with blood: for I will put additions upon Dibon: the lion for them that shall fly of Moab, and for the remnant of the land.

The Prophet prayeth for and prophesieth Christ's coming: 6. adding more of the affliction of the Moabites for their pride.

{1} SEND forth o Lord the lamb the dominatour of the earth, from the Rock of the desert, to the mount of the daughter of Sion. {2} And he shall be as a bird flying, and the young flying out of the nest, so shall the daughters of Moab be in the passage of Arnon. {3} Take counsel, gather a councel: set thy shadow in the midday as it were night: hide them that fly, and them that wander betray not. {4} My fugitives shall dwell with thee: Moab be thou their covert from the face of the destroyer: for the dust is ended, the wretch is come to naught: he hath failed, that trod down the earth. {5} And a throne shall be prepared in mercy, and there shall sit upon it, in truth in the tabernacle of David, he that judgeth & seeketh judgement, and quickly rendereth that which is just. {6} We have heard the pride of Moab, he is proud exceedingly: his pride and his arrogancy, and his indignation is more than his strength. {7} Therefore shall Moab howl: to Moab, all shall howl: to them that rejoice upon the walls of baked brick tell ye their plagues. {8} Because the suburbs of Hesebon are desolate, and the vineyard of Sabama the lords of the Nations have cut off: the branches thereof have reached to Jazer: they wandered in the desert, the branches thereof are left, they passed over the sea. {9} For this I will lament in the weeping of Jazer the vineyard of Sabama: I will inebriate thee with my tear o Hesebon, and Eleale: because the voice of the treaders is rusht in upon thy vintage, and upon thy harvest. {10} And gladness and joy shall be taken away from Carmelus, and it shall not rejoice nor make jubilation in vineyards. He shall not tread wine in the press that was wont to tread: the voice of the treaders I have taken away. {11} For this my belly shall sound as an harp to Moab, & my bowels to the wall of baked brick. {12} And it shall be: when it shall appear that Moab hath laboured for his excelles, he shall go into his sanctuaries to pray, & shall not prevail. {13} This is the word, that our Lord spake to Moab from that time: {14} and now our Lord hath spoken saying: In three years, as the years of an hired servant, the glory of Moab shall be taken away upon all the multitude of people, and it shall be left little & small, not much.

Damascus with other Syrians shall be afflicted, 4. likewise the ten tribes of Israel. 7. of which some few persons will return to God. 12. And finally their enemies the Assirians shall be overthrown.

{1} THE burden of Damascus. Behold Damascus shall cease to be a city, and shall be as an heap of stones in ruin. {2} The forsaken cities of Aroer shall be for flocks, and they shall rest there, and there shall be none to terrify them. {3} And aid shall cease from Ephraim, and the kingdom from Damascus: and the remnant of Syria shall be as the glory of the children of Israel: saith the Lord of hosts. {4} And it shall be in that day: the glory of Jacob shall be diminished, and the fatness of his flesh shall become lean. {5} And it shall be as one gathering in harvest that which remaineth, and his arm shall gather the ears of corn: and it shall be as he that seeketh ears in the vale of Raphaim. {6} And the fruit thereof shall be left, as it were a cluster of grapes in it, and as the shaking of the olive tree, of two or three olives in the top of a bough, or four or five in the tops thereof, saith our Lord the God of Israel. {7} In that day man shall incline himself to his maker, and his eyes shall look to the holy one of Israel. {8} And he shall not incline to the altars, which his hands made: and the things that his fingers wrought he shall not regard, as groves and temples. {9} In that day the cities of his strength shall be left, as the ploughs and the corn that were left before the face of the children of Israel, and thou shalt be desolate. {10} Because thou hast forgotten God thy saviour, and hast not remembered thy strong helper: therefore shalt thou plant a faithful plant, & shalt sow a strange seed. {11} In the day of thy planting shall be the wild grape, & in the morning thy seed shall flourish: the harvest is taken away in the day of inheritance, and he shall be vehemently sorry. {12} Woe to the multitude of many peoples, being as the multitude of the sounding sea: & the tumult of multitudes, as the sound of many waters. {13} Peoples shall sound as the sound of waters overflowing, and he shall rebuke him, and shall fly far off: and he shall be violently taken away as the dust of the mountains at the face of the wind, and as a whirlwind before a tempest. {14} In the eventide, and behold trouble: in the morning, and he shall not be. This is the portion of them, that have wasted us, & the lot of them that spoiled us.

The Aegyptians, for alluring the two tribes to their confederacy, shall be afflicted, 7. and the Jew's return is more sincere service of God.

{1} WOE to the land the cymbal of wings, which is beyond the rivers of Aethiopia, {2} which sendeth legates into the sea, and in the vessels of bulrushes upon the waters. Go ye swift angels to a nation shaken a sunder, and torn in pieces: to a terrible people, after which there is none other: to a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the floods have spoiled: {3} All ye inhabitants of the world, which abide in the earth, where the sign shall be lifted up in the mountains, you shall see, and shall hear the sound of the trumpet: {4} because thus saith our Lord to me: I will rest, and consider in my place, as the noon light is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest. {5} For before harvest it hath wholly flourished, and unripe perfection shall spring forth, and the boughs thereof shall be cut off with hooks: and the things that are left, shall be cut off, and shaken out. {6} And they shall be left together to the birds of the mountains, and beasts of the earth: and the fowls shall be upon it the whole summer, and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon it. {7} In that time shall a gift be brought to the Lord of hosts, of a people plucked asunder and rent in pieces: of a terrible people, after which there hath been none other, of a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the floods have spoiled, to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, mount Sion.

Further description of the Aegyptian's punishment, 17. with their conversion to Christ in the new Testament.

{1} THE burden of Aegypt. Behold our Lord will ascend upon a swift cloud, and will enter into Aegypt, and the idols of Aegypt shall be moved at his presence, & the heart of Aegypt shall melt in the midst thereof. {2} And I will make the Aegyptians to run together against the Aegyptians: and a man shall fight against his brother, & every man against his friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom. {3} And the spirit of Aegypt shall be broken in the bowels thereof, & I will overthrow their counsel headlong: and they shall ask their idols, & their diviners, and Pythons, and Soothsayers. {4} And I will deliver Aegypt into the hand of cruel masters, and a strong king shall rule over them, saith our Lord the God of hosts. {5} And the water of the sea shall be dried up, & the river shall be made desolate, and dry. {6} And the rivers shall fail: the rivers of the rampiers shall be diminished, & dried up. The reed and bulrush shall wither: {7} the channel of the river shall be spoiled of his fountain, & all sown corn field that is watered shall be dried up, it shall wither, and shall not be. {8} And the fishers shall lament, & all that cast angle into the river shall mourn, and they that spread net upon the face of the water shall pine away. {9} They shall be confounded that wrought twisting flax, combing and weaving fine things. {10} And the watered places thereof shall be dry, all they that made pools to take fishes. {11} The Princes of Tanis are fools, the wise counsellors of Pharaeo have given unwise counsel: how say ye unto Pharaeo: I am the son of the wise, the son of the ancient kings? {12} Where are now thy wise men? Let them tell thee, & shew what the Lord of hosts hath thought concerning Aegypt. {13} The Princes of Tanis are become fools, the Princes of Memphis are withered away, they have deceived Aegypt, the corner of the peoples thereof. {14} Our Lord hath mingled in the midst thereof the spirit of gladness: and they have made Aegypt to err in every work thereof, as he erreth that is drunk and vomiteth. {15} And Aegypt shall have no work, to make the head and the tail, the perverter and restrainer. {16} In that day Aegypt shall be as women, & they shall be astonished, & shall be afraid at the face of the moving of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which he shall move over it. {17} And the land of Juda shall be a fear to Aegypt: every one that shall remember it, shall quake at the face of the counsel of the Lord of hosts, which he hath thought concerning it. {18} In that day there shall be five cities in the land of Aegypt, speaking the tongue of Chanaan, and swearing by the Lord of hosts: one shall be called the city of the sun. {19} In that day there shall be an altar of our Lord in the midst of the land of Aegypt, and a title of our Lord by the border thereof: {20} it shall be for a sign, and for a testimony to the Lord of hosts in the land of Aegypt. For they shall cry to our Lord at the presence of the afflicter, and he shall send them a saviour and defender to deliver them. {21} And our Lord shall be known of Aegypt, & the Aegyptians shall know our Lord in that day, and shall worship him in hosts and in gifts: and they shall vow vows to our Lord, and pay them. {22} And our Lord shall smite Aegypt with a stroke, and heal it, and they shall return to our Lord, and he shall be pacified towards them, and heal them. {23} In that day there shall be a way from Aegypt to the Assyrians, and the Assyrian shall enter into Aegypt, and the Aegyptians to the Assyrians, & the Aegyptians shall serve Assur. {24} In that day shall Israel be a third to the Aegyptian and the Assyrian: a blessing in the midst of the earth, {25} which the Lord of hosts hath blessed, saying: Blessed be my people of Aegypt, and the work of my hands to the Assyrian: but Israel is mine inheritance.

The ignominious captivity of Aegyptians and Aethiopians is again foreshewed by the Prophet going naked. 5. whereat the Jews are astonished and afraid, seeing their confederates so confounded.

{1} IN the year that Tharthan entered into Azotus, when Sargon the king of the Assyrians had sent him, and he had fought against Azotus, and had taken it: {2} at that time our Lord spake in the hand of Isaie the son of Amos, saying: Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, and take off thy shoes from thy feet. And he did so going naked, and barefoot. {3} And our Lord said: As my servant Isaie hath walked, naked and barefoot, it shall be a sign and a wonder of three years upon Aegypt, and upon Aethiopia, {4} so shall the king of the Assyrians lead the captivity of Aegypt, and the transmigration of Aethiopia, young and old, naked and unshod, their buttocks uncovered to the ignominy of Aegypt. {5} And they shall fear, & be ashamed of Aethiopia their hope, and of Aegypt their glory. {6} And the inhabitant of this isle shall say in that day: Lo this was our hope, to whom we fled for help, that they should deliver us from the face of the king of the Assyrians: and how shall we be able to escape?

The destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians is again prophesied. 11. The like of the Idumeans, 13. and of Arabians.

{1} THE burden of the desert sea. As whirlwinds come from the South, it cometh from the desert, from an horrible land. {2} A sore vision was told me: he that is incredulous doth unfaithfully: & he that is a spoiler, wasteth. Come up Aelam, besiege o Mede: I have made all the mourning thereof to cease. {3} Therefore are my loins filled with sorrow, anguish hath possessed me, as the anguish of a woman that travaleith: I fell down when I heard it, I was troubled when I saw it. {4} Mine heart failed, darkness made me astonished: Babylon my beloved is made a miracle unto me. {5} Lay the table, look about in the watch tower the eaters and drinkers: arise ye Princes, take shield. {6} For thus hath our Lord said to me: Go, and set a watchman: and what soever he shall see, let him tell. {7} And he saw a chariot of two horsemen, a rider upon an ass, and a rider upon a camel: and he beheld them diligently with much looking. {8} And a lion cried: I am upon the watch tower of our Lord, standing continually by day: and I am upon my watch, standing whole nights. {9} Behold this man cometh, the rider upon the chariot of two horsemen, and he answered and said: Fallen, fallen is Babylon, and all the sculptiles of the gods thereof are broken to the ground. {10} O my threshing, and children of my floor, the things that I have heard of the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, I have shewed unto you. {11} The burden of Duma crieth to me out of Seir: Watchman what of the night? Watchman what of the night? {12} The watchman said: morning is come and night: if you seek, seek: return, come. {13} The burden in Arabia. In the forest at even you shall sleep, in the paths of Dedanim. {14} Meeting the thirsty bring water, you that inhabit the land of the South, with bread meet him that flyeth. {15} For they are fled from the face of the swords, from the face of the sword hanging over, from the face of the bow bent, from the face of a grievous battle. {16} Because thus saith our Lord to me: Yet in one year, as in the year of an hired man, and all the glory of Cedar shall be taken away. {17} And the remnant of the number of the strong archers of the children of Cedar shall be diminished: for our Lord the God of Israel hath spoken it.

For the sins especially of chief officers, Sion and the temple shall be destroyed. 15. Sobna a wicked ruler shall be removed. 20. and Eliacim put in his place.

{1} THE burden of the vale of vision. What aileth thee, that thou art also wholly gone up into the house tops? {2} full of clamour, a populous city, rejoicing: thy slain are not slain by the sword, nor dead in battle. {3} All thy Princes are fled together, and are bound hard: all that were found, are bound together, they are fled far off. {4} Therefore have I said: Depart from me, I will weep bitterly: labour not to comfort me, for the destruction of the daughter of my people. {5} For it is a day of slaughter, and concualcation, and weepings to our Lord the God of hosts, in the vale of visitation, searching the wall, and magnifical upon the mountain. {6} And Aelam took quiver, chariot of the horseman, and the shield hath made the wall naked. {7} And thy principal valleys shall be full of chariots, and the horsemen shall place themselves in the gate. {8} And the covering of Juda shall be discovered, and thou shalt see in that day the armoury of the house of the forest. {9} And you shall see the breaches of the city of David, because they are multiplied: and you have gathered together the waters of the lower pool. {10} and have numbered the houses of Jerusalem, and destroyed houses to fortify the wall. {11} And you have made a lake between the two walls to the water of the old pool: & you looked not up to him that made it, and the worker thereof long before you saw not. {12} And our Lord the God of hosts shall call in that day to weeping, and to mourning, to baldness, and to girdle of sackcloth: {13} and behold joy and gladness, to kill calves, and to slay rams, to eat flesh, and to drink wine: Let us eat and drink: for to morrow we shall die. {14} And the voice of the Lord of hosts was revealed in mine ears: If this iniquity shall be forgiven you until you die, saith our Lord the God of hosts. {15} Thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: Go, get thee in to him, that dwelleth in the tabernacle, to Sobna the provost of the temple, and thou shalt say to him: {16} What doest thou here, or as if thou were some body here? Because thou hast cut thee out a sepulchre here, thou hast cut out a memorial diligently in an high place, a tabernacle for thee in a rock. {17} Behold our Lord will cause thee to be carried away, as a cock is carried, and he will lift thee up as a garment. {18} Crowning he will crown thee with tribulation, he will cast thee as a ball into a broad and large country: there shalt thou die, and there shall the chariot of thy glory be, the ignominy of the house of thy Lord. {19} And I will expel thee from thy standing, and depose thee from thy ministry. {20} And it shall be in that day: I will call my servant Eliacim the son of Helcias, {21} and will clothe him with thy coat, and will strengthen him with thy girdle, and will give thy power into his hand: and he shall be as a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & to the house of Juda. {22} And I will give the key of the house of David upon his shoulder: and he shall open, and there shall be none to shut: and he shall shut, and there shall be none to open. {23} And I will fasten him as a pin in a sure place, and he shall be for a throne of glory to the house of his father. {24} And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, diverse kinds of vessels, every little vessel, from vessels of cups even to every instrument of music. {25} In that day saith the Lord of hosts, shall the pin be taken away, that was fastened in the sure place: and that which hung thereon, shall be broken, and fall, and perish, because our Lord hath spoken.

The destruction of Tyrus by the Chaldees, 15. and reparation thereof after seventy years.

{1} THE burden of Tyre. Howl ye ships of the sea, because the house is destroyed, from whence they were wont to come: from the land of Cethim it is revealed to them. {2} Hold your peace ye that dwell in the isle: the traffickers of Sidon passing over the sea, have replenished thee. {3} The seed of Nilus in many waters, the harvest of the river was her fruits: & she was made the traffic of the nations. {4} Be ashamed Sidon, for the sea saith, the strength of the sea, saying: I have not travailed, and I have not brought forth, and I have not nourished young men, nor brought virgins to their growth. {5} When it shall be heard in Aegypt, they will be sorry when they shall hear of Tyre: {6} Pass over the seas, howl ye that dwell in the isle. {7} Is not this your city, which gloried from ancient days in her antiquity? Her feet shall lead her afar to sojourn. {8} Who hath thought this against Tyre, that was some time crowned, whose merchants were princes, her chapmen the nobles of the earth? {9} The Lord of hosts hath thought it, that he might pluck down the pride of all glory, and bring all the glorious of the earth to ignominy. {10} Pass thy land as a river, o daughter of the sea, thou hast a girdle no more. {11} He hath stretched forth his hand upon the sea, he hath troubled kingdoms: Our Lord hath given commandment against Chanaan, to destroy the strong thereof, {12} and he said: Thou shalt add no more to glory, o Virgin daughter of Sidon sustaining calumny: rising up sail over to Cethim, there also thou shalt have no rest. {13} Behold the land of the Chaldees was not such a people, Assur founded it: they led away the strong thereof into captivity, they undermined the houses thereof, they brought it to ruin. {14} Howl ye ships of the sea, because your strength is destroyed. {15} And it shall be in that day: thou shalt be in oblivion o Tyre, seventy years, as the days of one king: but after seventy years, there shall be to Tyre as it were the song of an harlot. {16} Take an harp, go about the city thou harlot forgotten: sing well, multiply song, that there may be remembrance of thee. {17} And it shall be after seventy years: our Lord will visit Tyre, and will bring her back again to her merchandise: and she shall fornicate again with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon the face of the earth. {18} And the marts, and rewards shall be sanctified to our Lord: they shall not be kept in store, nor laid up: because her merchandise shall be for them, that shall dwell before our Lord, that they may eat unto satiety, and be clothed unto continuance.

All this world shall be destroyed, 7. whereof many signs shall come before, 18. and general judgement shall follow.

{1} BEHOLD our Lord shall dissipate the earth, and make it naked, and afflict the face thereof, and disperse the inhabitants thereof. {2} And as the people, so shall the priest be: & as the servant, so his master: as the handmaid, so her mistress: as the buyer, so he that selleth: as the lender, so he that borroweth: as he that asketh his due, so he that oweth. {3} With dissipation shall the earth be dissipated, & with spoil it shall be spoiled: for our Lord hath spoken this word. {4} The earth hath mourned, & fallen away, and is weakened: the world is fallen away, the height of the people of the earth is weakened. {5} And the earth is infected by the inhabitants thereof: because they have transgressed the laws, changed right, dissipated the everlasting covenant. {6} For this cause shall malediction devour the earth, & the inhabitants thereof shall sin: and therefore the dwellers therein shall be mad, & few men shall be left. {7} The vintage hath mourned, the wine is weakened, all have sighed that rejoiced in heart. {8} The joy of timbrels hath ceased, the sound of them that rejoice is left off, the sweetness of the harp is silent. {9} They shall not drink wine with song: the drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. {10} The city of vanity is broken down, every house is shut, no man goeth in. {11} There shall be crying for the wine in the streets: all mirth is left: the joy of the earth is carried away. {12} Desolation is left in the city, & calamity shall oppress the gates. {13} Because these things shall be in the midst of the earth, in the midst of peoples, in like manner as if a few olives, which are remaining, should be shaken out of the olive tree; and grapes, when the vintage is ended. {14} These shall lift up their voice, and praise: when our Lord shall be glorified, they shall make a joyful noise from the sea. {15} For this cause in doctrines glorify our Lord: in the isles of the sea the name of our Lord the God of Israel. {16} From the ends of the earth we have heard praises, the glory of the just one. And I said: My secret to me, my secret to me, woe is me: the prevaricators have prevaricated, and by the prevarication of transgressors they have prevaricated. {17} Fear, and pit, and snare upon thee, that art inhabiter of the earth. {18} And it shall be: He that shall fly from the voice of fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall rid himself out of the pit, shall be held in the snare: because the floodgates from on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken. {19} With breaking shall the earth be broken, with bruising shall the earth be bruised, with moving shall the earth be moved, {20} with shaking shall the earth be shaken as a drunken man, and shall be taken away as the tabernacle of one night: and the iniquity thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall, and not add to rise again. {21} And it shall be: In that day our Lord will visit upon the host of heaven on high, and upon the kings of the earth, that are upon the earth. {22} And they shall be gathered together as the gathering of a bundle into the lake, and shall be shut there in prison: and after many days they shall be visited. {23} And the moon shall be confounded, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem, & shall be glorified in the sight of his ancients.

The Prophet giveth thanks to God for his marvelous works, 7. and great benefits, in lightening many with faith, washing away their sins, and giving grace and eternal glory.

{1} OLord thou art my God. I will exalt thee, and confess to thy name: because thou hast done marvelous things, the old cogitations faithful, Amen. {2} Because thou hast brought the city into a heap, the strong city into ruin, the house of strangers: that it be no city, & that it be not built for ever. {3} For this shall strong people praise thee, the city of strong nations shall fear thee. {4} Because thou art become a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his tribulation: an hope against the whirlwind, a shadow against the heat. For the spirit of the strong is as a whirlwind beating against a wall. {5} As heat in thirst, shalt thou humble the tumult of strangers: and as with heat under a burning cloud thou shalt make the branch of the strong to wither. {6} And the Lord of hosts shall make to all peoples in this mount, a feast of fat things, a feast of vintage, of fat things full of marrow, of vintage purified from the dregs. {7} And he shall in this mount throw down headlong the face of the bond, tied together upon all peoples, and the web that he hath begun upon all nations. {8} He shall cast death down headlong for ever: and our Lord God shall take away tear from all face, and the reproach of his people he shall take away out of the whole earth: because our Lord hath spoken it. {9} And he shall say in that day: Lo this is our God, we have expected him, and he will save us: this is our Lord, we have patiently waited for him, we shall rejoice and be joyful in his salvation. {10} Because the hand of our Lord shall rest in this mount: and Moab shall be threshed under him, as straw is broken with the wain. {11} And he shall stretch forth his hands under him, as he that swimmeth stretcheth forth to swim: and he shall humble his glory with dashing of his hands. {12} And the munitions of thy high walls shall fall, and be humbled, & shall be plucked down to the ground even to the dust.

A Canticle of thanks for changing the old Synagogue into the Church of Christ: which hath more light of true faith, 12. and more patience in tribulations: 19. which in the general resurrection shall be made manifest.

{1} IN that day shall this song be sung in the land of Juda. Sion the city of our strength, a Saviour therein shall be put a wall and bulwark. {2} Open ye the gates, and let the just nation enter in, that keepeth truth. {3} The old error is gone: thou wilt keep peace: peace, because we have hoped in thee. {4} You have hoped in our Lord in worlds everlasting, in our Lord God strong for ever. {5} Because he will bow down them that dwell on high, the high city he will abase. He will abase it even to the ground, he will pluck it down even to the dust. {6} The foot shall tread it down, the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy. {7} The path of the just is right, the path of the just is right to walk in. {8} And in the path of thy judgements, o Lord, we have patiently expected thee: thy name, and thy memorial are in the desire of the soul. {9} My soul hath desired thee in the night: yea and with my spirit in my heart I will watch to thee in the morning. When thou shalt do thy judgements in the earth, the inhabitants of the world shall learn justice. {10} Let us have mercy on the impious, and he will not learn justice: in the land of the holy he hath done wicked things, and he shall not see the glory of our Lord. {11} Lord thy hand be exalted, and let them not see: let the envious people see, and be confounded: and let fire devour thine enemies. {12} Lord thou wilt give peace to us: for all our works thou hast wrought to us. {13} O Lord our God, there have lords besides thee possessed us, only in thee let us remember thy name. {14} Let not the dead live, let not the giants rise again: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, & hast destroyed all their memory. {15} Thou hast been favourable to the nation, o Lord, thou hast been favourable to the nation: wast thou glorified? Thou hast made all the ends of the earth far off. {16} Lord in distress they have sought after thee, in tribulation of murmur thy doctrine was to them. {17} As she that conceiveth, when she draweth near to be delivered, being sorrowful crieth in her pains: so are we become at thy presence, o Lord. {18} We have conceived, and as it were travailed, and brought forth the spirit: salutations we have not done in the earth, therefore the inhabitants of the earth have not fallen. {19} Thy dead shall live, my slain shall rise again: awake, and praise ye that dwell in the dust: because the dew of the light is thy dew, & the land of the giants thou shalt pluck down into ruin. {20} Go my people, enter into thy chambers, shut thy doors upon thee, be hid a little for a moment, till the indignation pass. {21} For behold our Lord will come out of his place, to visit the iniquity of the inhabitant of the earth against him: and the earth shall reveal her blood, and shall cover her slain no more.

God comforteth the faithful promising to destroy the wicked. 3. Christ's coming is again prophesied, with propagation of his Gospel, and conversion of all nations.

{1} IN that day our Lord will visit with his sore, and great, and strong sword upon Leviathan the serpent, the bar, & upon Leviathan the crooked serpent, and shall kill the whale that is in the sea. {2} In that day the vineyard of pure wine shall sing to it. {3} I, the Lord that keep it, I will suddenly drink to it: lest perhaps there be visitation against it, night and day I keep it. {4} There is no indignation in me: who will give me to be thorn and brier in battle: to go upon it, to set it on fire together? {5} Or rather shall he hold my strength, shall he make peace with me, shall he make peace with me? {6} They that go in with violence to Jacob, Israel shall flourish and spring, and they shall fill the face of the world with seed. {7} Hath he striken him according to his stroke that struck him? Or as he killed his slain, is he killed? {8} In measure against measure, when it shall be cast off, thou shalt judge it. He hath meditated in his hard spirit during the day of heat. {9} Therefore upon this shall the iniquity be forgiven to the house of Jacob: and this is all the fruit, that the sin thereof be taken away, when he shall have laid all the stones of the altar, as stones of ashes broken, the groves & temples shall not stand. {10} For the defensed city shall be desolate, the beautiful city shall be forsaken, and shall be left as a desert, there shall the calf feed, and there he shall lie, and shall consume the tops thereof. {11} The harvest thereof shall be destroyed in drought, women coming and teaching it: for it is not a wise people, therefore shall not he that made it, have mercy on it: and he that formed it, shall not spare it. {12} And it shall be, in that day our Lord will strike from the channel of the river, even to the torrent of Aegypt, and you shall be gathered together one and one o children of Israel. {13} And it shall be: In that day a sound shall be made with a great trumpet, and they that were lost, shall come from the land of the Assyrians, and that were cast out, from the land of Aegypt, and shall adore our Lord in the holy mount in Jerusalem.

Tribulations are threatened to the ten tribes of Israel, for their pride, and voluptuousness (5. God still protecting some who serve him sincerely) 7. and for contempt of Religion. 16. But God will lay a sure foundation in Sion. 20. Will punish the wicked, 24. and comfort the good.

{1} WOE to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, and to the flower falling down from the glory of his exultation, which were in the top of the most fat valley, erring by wine. {2} Behold our Lord is valiant and strong, as the violence of hail: a whirlwind breaking, the violence of many waters overflowing, & sent forth upon a large ground. {3} The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under feet. {4} And the flower of the glory of his exultation, which is upon the top of the valley of fat ones, shall be falling as a timely fruit before the ripeness of autumn: which when he that seeth it shall behold, as soon as he taketh it in his hand, he will devour it. {5} In that day the Lord of hosts shall be a crown of glory, and a garland of exultation to the residue of his people: {6} and a spirit of judgement to him that sitteth in judgement, and strength to them that return out of battle to the gate. {7} But these also have been ignorant, because of wine, and by drunkenness have erred: the priest and the prophet have been ignorant because of drunkenness, they are swallowed up with wine, they have erred in drunkenness, they have not known him that seeth, they have been ignorant of judgement. {8} For all tables were filled with vomiting and filth, so that there was no more place. {9} Whom shall he teach knowledge? And whom shall he make to understand the thing heard? Them that are weaned from the milk, that are plucked away from the breasts. {10} For command recommand, command recommand; expect reexpect, expect reexpect; a little there, a little there. {11} For in the speech of lip, & in an other tongue he will speak to his people. {12} To whom he said: This is my rest, refresh the weary, and this is my refreshing: & they would not hear. {13} And the word of our Lord shall be to them, command recommand, command recommand; expect reexpect, expect reexpect, a little there, a little there: that they may go, and fall backward, and be destroyed, and snared, and taken. {14} For this cause hear the word of our Lord ye scornful men, which rule over my people that is in Jerusalem. {15} For you have said: We have stricken a league with death, & with hell we have made a covenant. The scourge overflowing when it shall pass, shall not come upon us: because we have made lying our hope, & with lying we are protected. {16} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will send in the foundations of Sion a stone, an approved stone, a corner stone, precious, founded in the foundation. He that believeth, let him not make haste. {17} And I will put judgement in weight, and justice in measure: and hail shall overthrow the hope of lying: and waters shall overflow the protection. {18} And your league with death shall be abolished, & your covenant with hell shall not stand: when the scourge overflowing shall pass, you shall be trodden down of it. {19} Whosoever it shall pass through, it shall take you away: because in the morning early it shall pass through in the day and in the night, and vexation alone shall give understanding in the hearing. {20} For the bed is straitened, so that one must fall out, & a short mantle can not cover both. {21} For our Lord shall stand as in the mount of divisions: as in the valley, which is in Gabaon, shall he be angry: that he may do his work, his strange work: that he may work, his work is strange from him. {22} And now mock not, lest perhaps your bonds be tied strait. For I have heard of our Lord the God of hosts consummation and abridgment upon all the earth. {23} Harken with your ears, and hear my voice, attend, & hear my speech. {24} Will the ploughman plow all the day to sow, will he cut & harrow his ground? {25} Will he not when he hath made even the face thereof, sprinkle cummin, and place the wheat by order, and the barley, and millet, and vetch, in their bounds? {26} And his God will instruct him in judgement: he will teach him. {27} For gith shall not be threshed with instruments that have teeth, neither shall the wain wheel turn about upon cummin: but gith shall be beaten out with a rod, and cummin with a staff. {28} But bread corn shall be broken small: but the thresher shall not thresh it for ever, neither shall the wain wheel vex it, nor break it with the teeth thereof. {29} And this is come forth from our Lord the God of hosts, that he might make his counsel marvelous, and magnify justice.

The Prophet bewaileth the Jew's destruction, 9. for their blind obstinacy; 17. prophesying the Gentile's conversion.

{1} WOE to Ariel, Ariel the city, which David overcame: year is added to year: the solemnities are at an end. {2} And I will make a trench about Ariel, and it shall be sorrowful and mourning, and it shall be to me as Ariel. {3} And I will compass as a sphere round about thee, and will cast a rampier against thee, and place munitions to besiege thee. {4} Thou shalt be humbled, thou shalt speak out of the earth, and out of the ground thy speech shall be heard: and thy voice shall be out of the earth as the Python's, and out of the ground thy speech shall mutter. {5} And the multitude of them that fan thee shall be as small dust: and as isles passing away, the multitude of them, that have prevailed against thee. {6} And it shall be suddenly forthwith. It shall be visited of the Lord of hosts in thunder, and earth quake, and with great voice of whirlwind and tempest, and with flame of devouring fire. {7} And the multitude of all nations, that have fought against Ariel, shall be as the dream of a vision in the night, and all that have warred, and besieged, and prevailed against it. {8} And as he that is hungry dreameth, and eateth, but when he is awake, his soul is empty: and as he that is thirsty dreameth, & drinketh, and after he is awake, faint as yet thirsteth, & his soul is empty: so shall the multitude be of all the Gentiles, that have fought against mount Sion. {9} Be astonished, and marvel, waver, & stagger: be ye drunk, & not of wine: be moved, & not of drunkenness. {10} Because our Lord hath mingled unto you the spirit of drowsiness, he will shut your eyes, he will cover your prophets & princes, that see visions. {11} And the vision of all shall be unto you as the words of a book sealed: which when they shall give to him that knoweth letters, they shall say: Read this; and he shall answer: I can not, for it is sealed. {12} And the book shall be given to one that knoweth not letters, and it shall be said to him: Read; and he shall answer: I know not letters. {13} And our Lord said: Because this people approacheth with their mouth, and with their lips glorifieth me, but their heart is far from me, and they have feared me by the commandment and doctrines of men: {14} therefore behold I will add to make admiration to this people, by a great and wonderful miracle: for wisdom shall perish from their wise men, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid. {15} Woe unto you that are deep of heart, to hide your counsel from our Lord: whose works are in darkness, and they say: Who seeth us, and who knoweth us? {16} This your cogitation is perverse: as if the clay should think against the potter, and the work should say to the maker thereof: Thou madest me not: or the thing formed should say to the fashioner thereof: Thou understandest not. {17} Shall not yet within a little while, and in a short time, Libanus be turned into Charmel: and Charmel reputed for a forest? {18} And in that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and out of the darkness and mist the eyes of the blind shall see. {19} And the meek shall add joyfulness in our Lord, and the poor men shall rejoice in the holy one of Israel. {20} Because he hath failed that did prevail, the scorner is consumed, and they are all cut down that watched upon iniquity: {21} that made men sin in word, and supplanted him that reproved them in the gate, and declined in vain from the just. {22} For this cause, thus saith our Lord to the house of Jacob, he that redeemed Abraham: Jacob shall not now be confounded, neither shall now his countenance be ashamed: {23} but when he shall see his children, the works of mine hands, in the midst of him sanctifying my name, and they shall sanctify the holy one of Jacob, and shall preach the God of Israel, {24} and they that err in spirit, shall know understanding, and the mutteters shall learn the law.

The Jews are blamed for seeking counsel and help of the Aegyptians. 18. But if they repent, they shall find release, and spiritual riches of the soul. 27. God's judgement will be strict: 33. and hell is most horrible.

{1} WOE unto renegade children, saith our Lord, that you would take counsel, and not of me: and would begin a web, and not by my spirit, that you might add sin upon sin: {2} which walk to go down into Aegypt, and have not asked my mouth, hoping for help in the strength of Pharao, and having confidence in the shadow of Aegypt. {3} And the strength of Pharao shall be a confusion to you, and the confidence in the shadow of Aegypt an ignominy. {4} For thy Princes were in Tanis, & thy messengers came even to Hanes. {5} All were confounded upon the people, that could not profit them: they were no help, nor to any profit, but to confusion & to reproach. {6} The burden of the beasts of the South. In a land of tribulation & distress, the lioness, & the lion of them, the viper & the flying basiliscus carrying their riches upon the shoulders of beasts, & their treasures upon the bunch of camels, to a people that can not be able to profit them. {7} For Aegypt shall help in vain, and to no purpose: therefore have I cried upon this: It is pride only, cease. {8} Now therefore going in write to her upon box, and draw it diligently in a book, and it shall be in the latter day for a testimony for ever. {9} For it is a people provoking to wrath, & lying children, children that will not hear the law of God. {10} Which say to the seers: See not: & to them that behold: Behold us not those things that are right: Speak unto us pleasant things, see errors unto us. {11} Take from me the way, turn away the path from me, let the holy one of Israel cease from our face. {12} Therefore thus saith the holy one of Israel: For that you have rejected this word, and have hoped in calumny and tumult, and have leaned thereupon: {13} therefore shall this iniquity be unto you as a breach that falleth, and is found lacking in an high wall, because suddenly, whilst it is not hoped, shall come the destruction thereof. {14} And it shall be broken small, as the potter's vessel is broken with mighty breaking: and there shall not a shred be found of the fragments thereof, wherein a little fire may be carried from the burning, or a little water be drawn out of the pit. {15} Because thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: If you return and be quiet, you shall be saved: in silence and in hope shall your strength be. And you would not: {16} and you have said: No, but we will fly to horses: therefore shall you fly. And we will mount upon swift ones: therefore shall they be swifter, that shall persecute you. {17} A thousand men at the face of the terror of one, and at the face of the terror of five shall you fly, till you be left as the mast of a ship in the top of a mountain, and as a sign upon a little hill. {18} Therefore our Lord expecteth that he may have mercy on you: and therefore shall he be exalted sparing you: because our Lord is the God of judgement: blessed are all they that expect him. {19} For the people of Sion shall dwell in Jerusalem: weeping thou shalt not weep, pitying he will pity thee: at the voice of thy cry as soon as he shall hear, he will answer thee. {20} And our Lord will give you strait bread, & short water: and will not make thy doctor to fly away from thee any more: and thine eyes shall see thy master. {21} And thine ears shall hear the word of him, that behind thy back admonisheth thee: This is the way, walk in it: and decline ye not neither to the right hand, nor to the left. {22} And thou shalt contaminate the plates of the sculptiles of thy silver, & the garment of the molten of thy gold, and shalt scatter them as the uncleanness of a menstrual woman. Thou shalt say to it: Get thee hence. {23} And rain shall be given to thy seed, wheresoever thou shalt sow in the land: and the bread of the corn of the land shall be most plentiful, and fat. The lamb in that day shall feed at large in thy possession: {24} and thine oxen, as the ass colts, that till the ground, shall eat mingled provender as it was fanned in the floor. {25} And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every little hill elevated, rivers of running waters in the day of the killing of many when the towers shall fall. {26} And the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day when our Lord shall bind up the wound of his people, and shall heal the stroke of their wound. {27} Behold the name of our Lord cometh from far, his burning fury, and heavy to bear: his lips are filled with indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire. {28} His spirit as a torrent overflowing even to the midst of the neck, to destroy the nations to nothing, and the bridle of error, that was in the jaws of peoples. {29} There shall be a song unto you as the night of a sanctified solemnity, and joy of heart as he that goeth with a shalm, to enter into the mount of our Lord to the strong one of Israel. {30} And our Lord shall make the glory of his voice to be heard, and shall shew the terror of his arm, in threatening of fury, and flame of devouring fire: he shall dash to pieces in whirlwind, and in hail stone. {31} For at the voice of our Lord shall Assur fear being strucken with the rod. {32} And the passage of the rod shall never cease, which our Lord shall make to rest upon him in timbrels and harps, and in principal battles he shall overthrow them. {33} For Topheth is prepared since yesterday, prepared of the king, deep, and wide. The nourishments thereof, fire and much wood: the breath of our Lord as a torrent of brimstone kindling it.

The Prophet further bewaileth the Jew's calamity, into which they shall fall for their confederacy with the Aegyptians. 5. Yet God will protect Jerusalem: 8. and overthrow Sennacherib.

{1} WOE to them that go down into Aegypt for help, hoping in horses, and having confidence upon chariots, because they be many: and upon horsemen, because they be very strong: and have not trusted upon the holy one of Israel, & have not sought after our Lord. {2} But he that is the wise one hath brought evil, and hath not taken away his words: & he will rise up against the house of the wicked, and against the aid of them that work iniquity. {3} Aegypt, a man, and not God: and their horses, flesh, and not spirit: and our Lord shall bow down his hand, and the helper shall fall, and he that is holpen shall fall, and they shall all be confounded together. {4} Because thus saith our Lord to me: As if a lion should roar, and the lion's whelp upon his prey, and when a multitude of shepherds shall come against him, he will not fear at their voice, and of their multitude he will not be afraid: so shall the Lord of hosts descend to fight upon mount Sion, and upon the little hill thereof. {5} As birds that fly, so will the Lord of hosts protect

Jerusalem, protecting and delivering, passing and saving. {6} Return as you revolted deeply, o children of Israel. {7} For in that day man shall cast away the idols of his silver, and the idols of his gold, which your hands have made you into sin. {8} And Assur shall fall by the sword not of man, and the sword not of man shall devour him, and he shall fly not at the face of the sword: & his young men shall be tributaries: {9} and his strength shall pass away at the terror, & his princes flying shall be afraid: our Lord hath said it: whose fire is in Sion, & his furnace in Jerusalem.

The Prophet comforteth the Jews, foreshewing that their King Ezechias will rule well, and prosper, but most especially prophesieth of Christ. 9. That they shall be rejected for persecuting him, 15. and his Church shall prosper.

{1} BEHOLD the king shall reign in justice, & the princes shall rule in judgement. {2} And a man shall be as he that is hid from the wind, and hideth himself from a tempest, as rivers of waters in drought, and the shadow of a rock that standeth out in a desert ground. {3} The eyes of them that see, shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear, shall harken diligently. {4} And the heart of fools shall understand knowledge, and the tongue of mafliers shall speak readily and plain. {5} He that is unwise shall no more be called prince: neither shall the deceitful be called the greater man: {6} for the fool shall speak foolish things, & his heart shall do iniquity, that he may work simulation, and speak to our Lord deceitfully, & make empty the soul of the hungry, and take away drink from the thirsty. {7} The vessels of the deceitful are most wicked: for he hath framed devises to undo the meek, with the word of lying, when the poor man spake judgement. {8} But the prince will think these things, that are worthy of a prince, & he shall stand above the dukes. {9} Ye rich women arise, and hear my voice: ye confident daughters give ear to my speech. {10} For after days & a year you shall be troubled that have confidence: for the vintage is at the end, the gathering will no more come. {11} Be astonished ye rich women, be troubled ye confident: strip you, and be confounded, gird your loins. {12} Mourn upon your breasts, upon the country worthy to be destroyed, upon the fruitful vineyard. {13} Upon the ground of my people shall thorns & briers come up: how much more upon all the houses of joy, of the city rejoicing? {14} For the house is forsaken, the multitude of the city is left, darkness and palpableness are made upon the dens for ever. {15} The joy of wild asses the pastures of flocks, until the spirit be poured out upon us from on high: and the desert shall be as charmel, and charmel shall be reputed for a forest. {16} And judgement shall dwell in the wilderness, and justice shall sit in charmel. {17} And the work of justice shall be peace, and the service of justice silence, and security for ever. {18} And my people shall sit in the beauty of peace, & in the tabernacles of confidence, and in wealthy rest. {19} But hail in falling upon the forest, and the city shall be humbled with lowness. {20} Blessed are ye, that sow upon all waters, sending in the foot of the oxe and the ass.

Sennacherib besieging and threatening Jerusalem, shall be overthrown by Angels. 13. that both wicked arrogant infidels may feel the hand of God, and faithful sinners repenting after great terror be comforted.

{1} WOE to thee that spoilest, shalt not thy self also be spoiled? And that despisest shall not thy self also be despised? When thou shalt have ended spoiling, thou shalt be spoiled: when being wearied thou shalt cease to contemn, thou shalt be contemned. {2} Lord have mercy upon us: for we have expected thee: be our arm in the morning, and our salvation in the time of our tribulation. {3} At the voice of the Angel the peoples fled, and at thy exaltation the nations are dispersed. {4} And your spoils shall be gathered together as the locust is gathered, as when the ditches shall be full thereof. {5} Our Lord is magnified, because he hath dwelt on high:

he hath filled Sion with judgement, & justice. {6} And there shall be saith in thy times: riches of salvation, wisdom & knowledge: the fear of our Lord, that is his treasure. {7} Behold they that see shall cry without: the angels of peace shall weep bitterly. {8} The ways are dissipated, the passenger by the path hath ceased, the covenant is made frustrate, he hath rejected the cities, he hath not esteemed the men. {9} The land hath mourned, & languished: Libanus is confounded, & become foul, and Saron is made as a desert: and Basan is shaken, & Carmel. {10} Now will I rise up, saith our Lord: now will I be exalted, now will I be lifted up. {11} You shall conceive heat, you shall bring forth stubble: your spirit as fire shall devour you. {12} And the people shall be as ashes of a great fire, thorns gathered together shall be burned with fire. {13} Hear ye that are far off, what things I have done, and ye that are near, know my strength. {14} The sinners are terrified in Sion, trembling hath possessed the hypocrites. Which of you can dwell with devouring fire? Which of you shall dwell with everlasting heats? {15} He that walketh in justices, and speaketh truth, that casteth away avarice of oppression, and shaketh his hands from all gift, that stoppeth his ears lest he hear blood, and shutteth his eyes that he may see no evil. {16} This man shall dwell on high, the munitions of rocks shall be his highness: bread is given to him, his waters are faithful. {17} His eyes shall see the king in his beauty, they shall see the land far off. {18} Thy heart shall meditate fear: where is the learned? Where is he that ponderereth the words of the law? Where the teacher of little ones? {19} The unwise people thou shalt not see, the people of profound speech: so that thou canst not understand the eloquence of his tongue, in whom there is no wisdom. {20} Look upon Sion the city of our solemnity: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem, a rich habitation, a tabernacle that can not be transferred: neither shall the nails thereof be taken away for ever, and all the cords thereof shall not be broken: {21} because only there our Lord is magnifical: a place of floods, rivers most broad and wide: no ship of rowers shall pass by it, neither shall the great galley pass thereby. {22} For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our law maker, the Lord is our King: he will save us. {23} Thy cords are loosed, and they shall not prevail: thy mast shall be so, that thou canst not spread the sign. Then shall the spoils of many preys be divided: the lame shall take the spoil. {24} Neither shall the neighbour say: I am feeble. The people that dwelleth therein, iniquity shall be taken away from them.

A Prophecy of the destruction of the whole world, at the day of Judgement, 5. and in particular of Idumea 9. & Jerusalem, as figures thereof.

{1} COME near ye Gentiles, and hear, and ye peoples attend: let the earth hear, & the fullness thereof, the round world, and every spring thereof. {2} Because the indignation of our Lord is upon all Gentiles, and fury upon all their hosts: he hath killed them, & given them into slaughter. {3} Their slain shall be cast forth, and out of their carcasses shall rise a stink: the mountains shall melt with their blood. {4} And all the host of the heavens shall melt away, and the heavens shall be folded together as a book: and all their hosts shall fall away as the leaf falleth from the vine, & from the fig tree. {5} Because my sword is inebriated in heaven: behold it shall descend upon Idumaea, and upon the peoples of my slaughter to judgement. {6} The sword of our Lord is filled with blood, it is fatted of the blood of lambs and buckgoats, of the blood of rams full of marrow: for the victim of our Lord is in Bosra, & a great slaughter in the land of Edom. {7} And the unicorns shall come down with them, & the bulls with the mighty: their land shall be drunk with blood, & their ground with the fatness of fat ones. {8} Because it is the day of the revenge of our Lord, the year of retrIBUTions of the judgement of Sion. {9} And the torrents thereof shall be turned into pitch, and the ground thereof into brimstone: and the land thereof shall be into burning pitch. {10} Night and day it shall not be quenched, the smoke thereof shall go up for ever: from generation unto generation it shall be desolate, there shall none pass by it world without end. {11} The onocrotalus, and hedgehog shall possess it: & the ibis, and the raven shall dwell in it: & a measure shall be stretched out upon it, to bring it to nothing, and a plum line unto desolation. {12} The nobles thereof shall not be there: they shall call rather upon the king, and all the princes thereof shall be as nothing. {13} And thorns and nettles shall grow up in the houses thereof, & the thistles in the munitions thereof: and it shall be the couch of dragons, and the pasture of ostriches. {14} And spirits shall meet the onocentaur, and the satyr shall cry one to the other, there hath the lamia lien, and found her self rest. {15} There hath the hedgehog had an hole, and brought up whelps, and digged round about, and cherished them in the shadow thereof: thither are the kites gathered together, one to an other. {16} Search ye diligently in the book of our Lord, and read: one of them hath not wanted, one hath not sought for the other, because that which proceedeth out of my mouth, he hath commanded, and his spirit the same hath gathered them. {17} And he hath cast them a lot, and his hand hath divided it unto them by measure: they shall possess it for ever, in generation and generation they shall dwell therein.

Gentiles converted to Christ shall much rejoice, 5. being comforted and confirmed by his miracles, much more by his internal grace, which bringeth to life everlasting.

{1} THE desert and the land without passage shall be glad, and the wilderness shall rejoice, & shall flourish as the lily. {2} Springing it shall spring, & shall rejoice joyful and praising: the glory of Libanus is given to it, the beauty of Carmel, & Saron, they shall see the glory of our Lord, and the beauty of our God. {3} Encourage ye the loose hands, and strengthen the weak knees. {4} Say to the faint hearted: Take courage, and fear not: behold your God shall bring revenge of retribution: God himself will come and will save you. {5} Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be open. {6} Then shall the lame leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall be opened: because waters are cut out in the desert, and torrents in the wilderness. {7} And that which was dry land, shall be as a pool, and the thirsty ground as fountains of waters. In the dens wherein dragons dwelt before, shall spring up the greenness of reed and bulrush. {8} And a path and a way shall be there, and it shall be called the holy way: the polluted shall not pass by it, and this shall be unto you a direct way, so that fools can not err by it. {9} The lion shall not be there, and the naughty beast shall not go up by it, nor be found there: and they shall walk, that shall be delivered. {10} And the redeemed of our Lord shall be converted, and shall come into Sion with praise, and everlasting joy shall be upon their head: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning shall fly away.

Sennacherib king of Assyrians having taken other cities in Jury, besiegeth and threateneth Jerusalem; 4. reproacheth king Ezechias; 7. blasphemeth God; 13. and terrifieth the people.

{1} AND it came to pass in the fourteenth year of king Ezechias, Sennacherib king of the Assyrians came up against all the fenced cities of Juda, and took them. {2} And the king of the Assyrians sent Rabsaces from Lachis to Jerusalem, to king Ezechias with a great army, and he stood by the water conduit of the upper pool in the way of the fuller's field. {3} And there came out to him Eliacim the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the commenter. {4} And Rabsaces said to them: Tell Ezechias: Thus saith the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this confidence, whereupon thou dost trust? {5} or by what counsel or force art thou disposed to rebel? Upon whom hast thou confidence, that thou art revolted from me? {6} Lo thou dost trust upon this broken staff of reed, upon Aegypt: upon which if a man lean, it will enter into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharao the king of Aegypt to all that trust in him. {7} But if thou wilt answer me: We trust in our Lord God: is it not he whose excelses and altars Ezechias hath taken away, and he said to Juda and Jerusalem: Before this altar shall you adore? {8} And now deliver thy self to my lord the king of the Assyrians, and I will give thee two thousand horses, neither shall thou be able of thy self to give riders for them. {9} And how wilt thou abide the face of the judge of one place, of the lesser servants of my lord? But if thou trust in Aegypt, in chariots and in horsemen: {10} and now am I come up without the Lord unto this land to destroy it? The Lord saith to me: Go up against this land, and destroy it. {11} And Eliacim, and Sobna, and Joahe said to Rabsaces: Speak to thy servants in the Syrian tongue: for we understand it: speak not to us in the Jews' language in the ears of the people, that is upon the wall. {12} And Rabsaces said to them: Why, did my lord send me to thy lord and to thee, to speak all these words; and not rather to the men, that sit on the wall; that they may eat their own dung, and drink the urine of their feet with you? {13} And Rabsaces stood, and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said: Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyrians. {14} Thus saith the king: Let not Ezechias seduce you, for he shall not be able to deliver you. {15} And let not Ezechias give you confidence upon the Lord, saying: Our Lord delivering will deliver us, {754} this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyrians. {16} Hear not Ezechias: for thus saith the king of Assyrians, do a blessing with me, and come forth to me, and eat ye every man of his own vineyard, and every man of his own figtree, and drink ye every man the water of his own cistern, {17} till I come and take you away to a land, that is as your own, a land of corn and of wine, a land of bread and vineyards. {18} Neither let Ezechias trouble you, saying: Our Lord will deliver us. Why, have the gods of the nations delivered every one their land out of the hand of the king of Assyrians? {19} Where is the god of Emath, and Arphad? Where is the god of Sepharvaim? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? {20} Who is there of all the gods of these lands, which hath delivered their land out of my hand, that the Lord can deliver Jerusalem out of my hand? {21} And they held their peace, and answered him not a word. For the king had commanded, saying: Answer him not. {22} And Eliacim the son of Helcias, that was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joahe the son of Asaph the commenter, went in to Ezechias their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabsaces.

King Ezechias requesteth the prayers of Isaie the Prophet, 6. who assureth the King of God's help. (8. In the mean time the enemies threatening and blaspheming. 14. King Ezechias prayeth.) 21. God promiseth to protect Jerusalem: 30. and by an Angel killeth in one night an hundred eighty five thousand Assyrians. 37. Their King returneth to Nineve and is slain by his own sons.

{1} AND it came to pass, when king Ezechias had heard it, he rent his garments, and was wrapped in sack cloth, and entered into the house of our Lord. {2} And he sent Eliacim which was over the house, and Sobna the scribe and the ancients of the priests covered with sackcloths to Isaie, the son of Amos the Prophet. {3} and they said to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: because the children are come even to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. {4} If by any means our Lord thy God will hear the words of Rabsaces, whom the king of Assyrians his lord hath sent to blaspheme the living God, and to upbraid with words which our Lord thy God hath heard: lift up prayer therefore for the remnant that are left. {5} And the servants of Ezechias came to Isaie. {6} And Isaie said to them: Thus shall you say to your master: Thus saith our Lord: Fear not at the face of the words, which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of the Assyrians have blasphemed me. {7} Behold, I will give him a spirit, and he shall hear a message, and shall return to his country, and I will make him fall by the sword in his own country. {8} And Rabsaces returned, and found the king of Assyrians fighting against Lobna. For he heard that he was departed from Lachis, {9} and he heard of Tharaca the king of Aethiopia, them that said: He is come forth to fight against thee. Which when he had heard, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying: {10} Thus shall you say to Ezechias the king of Juda, speaking: Let not thy God deceive thee, in whom thou hast confidence, saying: Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians. {11} Lo thou hast heard all things the kings of the Assyrians have done to all countries, which they have subverted, & canst thou be delivered? {12} Why, have the gods of the nations delivered them, whom my fathers have subverted, Gozam, and Haram, and Reseph, and the children of Eden, that were in Thalassar? {13} Where is the king of Emath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Ana, & Ava? {14} And Ezechias took the letters of the hand of the messengers, & read them, and went up into the house of our Lord, and Ezechias laid them open before our Lord. {15} And Ezechias prayed to our Lord, saying: {16} O Lord of hosts God of Israel, which sittest upon the Cherubs, thou art the only God of all the kingdoms of the earth, thou hast made heaven and earth. {17} Incline o Lord thine ear, & hear: open o Lord thine eyes, and see, and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he hath sent to blaspheme the living God. {18} For in very deed, o Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have made lands desolate, and the countries of the same. {19} And they have given their gods to fire: for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands, wood and stone: & they brake them in pieces. {20} And now, o Lord our God, save us out of his hand: and let all the kingdoms of the earth know, that thou only art the Lord. {21} And Isaie the son of Amos sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: For the things that thou prayed me concerning Sennacherib the king of Assyrians: {22} this is the word which our Lord hath spoken upon him: The virgin daughter of Sion hath despised thee, and scorned thee: the daughter of Jerusalem hath wagged the head after thee. {23} Whom hast thou upbraided, and whom hast thou blasphemed, and upon whom hast thou exalted voice, and lifted up the height of thine eyes? To the holy one of Israel. {24} By the hand of thy servants thou hast upbraided our Lord, & hast said: In the multitude of my chariots have I climbed the height of mountains, the tops of Libanus: & I will cut down the high cedars thereof, & the chosen fir trees thereof, and will enter to the top of the height thereof, to the forest of his Carmel. {25} I have digged, and drunken the water, and have dried up with the step of my foot all the rivers of the rampiers. {26} Why, hast thou not heard, what I have done to him of old? From ancient days have I formed it: and now I have brought it to effect: and it is made to the rooting out of little hills bickering together, and of fenced cities. {27} The inhabitants of them with shortened hand have trembled, and are confounded: they are become as hay of the field, and grass of the pasture ground, and herb of the housetops which hath withered before it was ripe. {28} I have known thy habitation, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy madness against me. {29} When thou didst rage against me, thy pride ascended into mine ears: therefore I will put a ring in thy nostrils, and a bit in thy lips, and will bring thee back into the way, by which thou camest. {30} But to thee this shall be a sign: eat this year the things that grow to themselves, and in the second year eat fruits: but in the third year sow & reap, & plant vineyards, and eat the fruits of them. {31} And that which shall be saved of the house of Juda, and which is left, shall take root downward, and shall bear fruits upward: {32} because out of Jerusalem there shall a remnant go forth, and salvation from mount Sion: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this. {33} Therefore thus saith our Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians: He shall not enter this city, and he shall not shoot arrow there, and shield shall not occupy it, and he shall not cast rampier about it: {34} In the way that he came, by the same he shall return, and into this city he shall not enter, saith our Lord. {35} And I will protect this city, that I may save it for mine own sake, and for David's sake my servant. {36} And the Angel of our Lord came forth, and struck in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred eighty five thousand. And they arose in the morning, and behold, all were carcases of dead men. {37} And he went out, and departed, and Sennacherib the king of the Assyrians returned, and dwelt in Ninev. {38} And it came to pass, when he adored in the temple of Nesroch his god, Adramelech & Sarasar his sons struck him with the sword: and they fled into the land of Ararat, & Asarhaddon his son reigned for him.

Ezechias being sick, and advertised by the prophet that he shall then die, by prayer obtaineth prolongation of life: 6. with promise of victory, confirmed by a sign. 9. For which he rendereth thanks to God with a Canticle of praise.

{1} IN those days Ezechias was sick even to death: and Isaie the son of Amos the Prophet, went in unto him, and said to him: Thus saith our Lord: Take order with thy house, {756} for thou shalt die, and shalt not live. {2} And Ezechias turned his face to the wall, & prayed to our Lord, {3} and said: I beseech thee Lord, remember I pray thee how I have walked before thee in truth, and in a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thine eyes. And Ezechias wept with great weeping. {4} And the word of our Lord was made to Isaie, saying: {5} Go, & tell Ezechias: Thus saith our Lord the God of David thy father: I have heard thy prayer, and seen thy tears: Lo I will add upon thy days fifteen years: {6} and out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians will I deliver thee, and this city, & will protect it. {7} And this shall be a sign to thee from our Lord that our Lord will do this word, which he hath spoken: {8} Behold I will make the shadow of the lines which return, by the which it is now gone down in the dial of Achaz in the sun, backward ten lines. And the sun returned ten lines by the degrees whereby it was gone down. {9} The scripture of Ezechias the king of Juda, when he had been sick, & was recovered of his infirmity. {10} I have said: In the midst of my days, shall I go to the gates of hell. I have sought the residue of my years. {11} I have said: I shall not see our Lord God in the land of the living. I shall behold man no more, and the inhabiter of rest. {12} My generation is taken away; and is wrapped together from me, as the tent of shepherds: My life is cut off, as by a weaver; whilst I yet began he cut me off: from morning until night thou wilt make an end of me. {13} I hoped until morning, as a lion so hath he broken all my bones: From morning until evening thou wilt make an end of me. {14} As a young swallow so will I cry. I will meditate as a dove: Mine eyes are weakened, looking on high: Lord I suffer violence, answer for me. {15} What shall I say, or what shall he answer me, whereas himself hath done it? {16} I will recount to thee all my years in the bitterness of my soul. Lord if man's life be such, and the life of my spirit in such things, thou shalt chaste me, and shalt quicken me. {17} Behold in peace is my bitterness most bitter: But thou hast delivered my soul that it should not perish, thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back. {18} Because hell shall not confess to thee, neither shall death praise thee: they that go down into the lake, shall not expect thy truth. {19} The living the living he shall confess to thee, as I also this day: the father shall make thy truth known to the children. {20} O Lord save me, and we shall sing our Psalms, all the days of our life in the house of our Lord. {21} And Isaie commanded that they should take a lump of figs, & plaster it upon the wound, and he should be healed. {22} And Ezechias said: What shall be the sign that I shall go up into the house of our Lord?

The King of Babylon sent legates to visit King Ezechias, and congratulate his recovery of health. 2. He sheweth them all his riches, 5. for which Isaie reprehendeth him: and prophesieth that the Babylonians will spoil Jerusalem.

{1} AT that time Merodach Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters & gifts to Ezechias: for he had heard that he had been sick, and was recovered, {2} And Ezechias rejoiced upon them, and he shewed them the storehouse of aromatical spices, & of silver, and of gold, and of sweet-odours and of the best ointment, and all the store houses of his furniture, and all things that were found in his treasures. There was not any thing, which Ezechias shewed them not in his house, and in all his dominion. {3} But Isaie the Prophet went in to Ezechias the king, and said to him: What said these men, and from whence came they to thee? And Ezechias said: from a far country they came to me, from Babylon. {4} And he said: What saw they in thy house? And Ezechias said: All things that are in my house have they seen, there was not any thing, which I have not shewed them in my treasures. {5} And Isaie said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord of hosts. {6} Behold the days shall come: and all things that are in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up for treasure until this day, shall be taken away into Babylon: there shall not any thing be left, saith our Lord. {7} And of thy children, which shall come forth of thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. {8} And Ezechias said to Isaie: The word of our Lord which he hath spoken is good. And he said: Only be there peace and truth in my days.

The Prophet comforteth the people with Christ's coming to remit sins. 3. Before whom S. John Baptist shall preach penance. 6. Sheweth man's imbecility, 9. God's Majesty, 18. the vanity of idols. 27. & fall of them that fear not God.

{1} BE comforted, be comforted my people, saith your God. Jerusalem, and call to her: because her {2} Speak to the heart of malice is accomplished, her iniquity is forgiven: she hath received of the hand of our Lord double for all her sins. {3} The voice of one crying in the desert: Prepare the way of our Lord, make straight the paths of our God in the wilderness. {4} Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and little hill shall be humbled, and crooked things shall become straight, and rough ways, plain. {5} And the glory of our Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh together shall see, the mouth of our Lord hath spoken. {6} The voice of one saying: Cry. And I said: What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the glory thereof as the flower of the field. {7} The grass is withered, and the flower is fallen, because the spirit of our Lord hath blown on it. Indeed the people is grass: {8} the grass is withered, and the flower is fallen: but the word of our Lord abideth for ever. {9} Upon an high mountain get thee up, thou that evangelizest to Sion: exalt the voice in strength, which evangelizest to Jerusalem: exalt it, fear not. Say to the cities of Juda: Behold your God: {10} behold our Lord God shall come in strength, & his arm shall have dominion: behold his reward is with him, and his work before him. {11} As a shepherd shall he feed his flock: in his arm shall he gather together the lambs, and in his bosom shall he lift them up, and them with young himself shall carry. {12} Who hath measured the waters with his fist, and pondered the heavens with a span? Who hath poised with three fingers the huge greatness of the earth, & weighed the mountains in weight, and the little hills in balance? {13} Who hath holpen the spirit of our Lord? Or who hath been his counsellor, & shewed to him? {14} With whom hath he taken counsel, and who hath instructed him, and taught him the path of justice, and taught him knowledge, and shewed him the way of prudence? {15} Behold the Gentiles are as a drop of a bucket, and are reputed as the moment of a balance: behold the islands are as a little dust. {16} And Libanus shall not suffice to kindle the fire, and the beasts thereof shall not be sufficient for holocaust. {17} All nations as if they were not, so are they before him, and they are reputed of him as nothing, and a vain thing. {18} To whom then have you made God like? Or what image will you set to him? {19} Hath the artificer cast a sculptile? or hath the goldsmith figured it with gold, or the silversmith with plates of silver? {20} Strong wood, and that which will not putrify hath he chosen: the wise artificer seeketh how he may set up a sculptile which may not be moved. {21} Why, do you not know: why, have you not heard? Why, hath it not been told you from the beginning? Have you not understood the foundations of the earth? {22} He that sitteth upon the compass of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as locusts: he that stretcheth out the heavens as nothing, and spreadeth them as a tent to dwell in. {23} He that maketh the searchers of secrets as if they were not, that hath made the judges of the earth as a vain thing: {24} and indeed their stock was neither planted, nor sown, nor rooted in the earth: suddenly he hath blown upon them, and they have withered, and a whirlwind shall take them away as stubble. {25} And to whom have ye likened me, and made me equal? Saith the holy one? {26} Lift up your eyes on high, and see who hath created these things: he that bringeth out the hosts of them in number, and calleth them all by name: by the multitude of his force and strength, & power, not one of them was missing. {27} Why sayest thou Jacob, and speakest thou Israel: My way is hid from our Lord, and my judgement is passed over of my God? {28} Why knowest thou not or hast thou not heard? Our Lord is God everlasting, which hath created the ends of the earth: he shall not fail, nor labour, neither is there searching out of his wisdom. {29} Which giveth strength to the weary: and to them that are not, multiplieth force and strength. {30} Children shall faint, and labour, and youngmen shall fall by infirmity. {31} But they that hope in our Lord shall change their strength, they shall take wings as eagles, they shall run and not labour, they shall walk and not faint.

God pleading against idolaters, sheweth his power and goodness by his benefits bestowed upon the Jews; 17. with promise of perpetual protection: 21. whereas their vain idols can no way profit them.

{1} LET the islands hold their peace before me, and the Gentiles change their strength: let them come near, & then speak, let us approach to judgement together. {2} Who hath raised the just from the East, hath called him that he should follow him? He shall give the Gentiles in his sight, & he shall obtain kings: he shall give them as it were dust to his sword, as stubble taken violently with the wind, to his bow. {3} He shall pursue them, he shall pass in peace, there shall no path appear after his feet. {4} Who hath wrought and done these things, calling the generations from the beginning? I, the Lord, the first and the last I am. {5} The islands have seen, and have been afraid, the ends of the earth have been astonished, they have approached, and come near. {6} Every one shall help his neighbour, and shall say to his brother: Be strong. {7} The coppersmith striking with the hammer encouraged him that forged at that time, saying: It is good for soldering: and he strengthened it with nails, that it should not be moved. {8} And thou Israel my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend: {9} in whom I have taken thee from the ends of the earth, and from the far parts thereof have called thee, and said to thee: Thou art my servant, I have chosen thee, & have not cast thee away. {10} Fear not, because I am with thee: decline not, because I am thy God: I have strengthened thee, and have holpen thee, and the right hand of my just one hath sustained thee. {11} Behold all that fight against thee shall be confounded and ashamed, they shall be as if they were not, and the men shall perish that gainsay thee. {12} Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find, the men thy rebels: they shall be as if they were not: and as consumption the men that war against thee. {13} Because I am the Lord thy God, taking thy hand, and saying to thee: Fear not, I have holpen thee. {14} Fear not thou worm of Jacob, ye that are dead of Israel: I have holpen thee, saith our Lord: and thy redeemer the holly one of Israel. {15} I have made thee as a new threshing wain, having teeth like a saw: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and break them in pieces: and shalt make the little hills as dust. {16} Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall take them away, & the whirlwind shall disperse them: and thou shalt rejoice in the Lord, in the holly one of Israel thou shalt be joyful. {17} The needy and the poor seek for waters, and there are none: their tongue hath been dry with thirst. I, the Lord will hear them, I, the God of Israel will not forsake them. {18} I will open rivers in the high hills, and fountains in the midst of plain fields: I will make the desert into pools of waters, and the land not passable into rivers of waters. {19} I will give into the wilderness the cedar, and the thorn, and the myrtle and the olive tree: I will set in the desert the fir tree, the elm, and the box tree together. {20} That they may see, and know, and recount, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the holly one of Israel hath created it. {21} Make your judgement approach, {759} saith the Lord: bring hither, if perhaps you have any thing, said the King of Jacob. {22} Let them come, and tell us what things soever are to come: tell the former things what they have been: and we will set our heart, and shall know the later ends of them, and tell us the things that are to come. {23} Shew what things are to come hereafter, and we shall know that ye are gods. Do ye also good or evil, if you can: & let us speak & see together. {24} Behold, you are of nothing, and your work of that which is not: he is abomination that hath chosen you. {25} I have raised up from the North, and he shall come from the rising of the sun: he shall call upon my name, and shall bring the magistrates as mire, and as the plasterer treading clay. {26} Who hath shewed from the beginning, that we may know: and from the beginning that we may say: Art thou just? There is neither that sheweth, nor telleth before, nor heareth your words. {27} The first shall say to Sion: Lo I am present, and to Jerusalem: I will give an evangelist. {28} And I saw, and neither of these was there any that would consult, and being asked would answer a word. {29} Behold all are unjust, and their works vain: their idols are wind and vanity.

God the Father is well pleased with his Son: 6. whom he sendeth into this world to teach justice, whereby men are justified. 11. Many Gentiles shall be converted. 25. Jews and other obstinate infidels shall be severely punished.

{1} BEHOLD my servant, I will receive him: mine elect, my soul hath pleased it-self in him: I have given my spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgement to the Gentiles. {2} He shall not cry, nor accept person, neither shall his voice be heard abroad {3} The bruised reed he shall not break, and smoking flax he shall not quench: he shall bring forth judgement in truth. {4} He shall not be sad, nor turbulent, till he set judgement in the earth: and the islands shall expect his law. {5} Thus saith the Lord God that created the heavens, and stretched them out: that established the earth, and the things that spring thereof: that giveth breath to the people, that is upon it, and spirit to them that tread thereupon. {6} I, the Lord have called thee in justice, and taken thy hand, & preserved thee. And I have given thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles. {7} That thou mightest open the eyes of the blind, and bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house. {8} I, the Lord, this is my name: I will not give my glory to an other, and my praise to graven things. {9} The things that were first, lo they are come: new things also I do shew: before they come forth, I will make you hear them. {10} Sing ye to the Lord a new song, his praise is from the ends of the earth: ye that go down to the sea, and you the fullness thereof: ye islands, and inhabitants of the same. {11} Let the desert be exalted and the cities thereof: Cedar shall dwell in houses: ye inhabitants of the Rock, give praise, they shall cry from the top of the mountains. {12} They shall give glory to the Lord, and shall declare his praise in the islands. {13} The Lord shall go forth as a strong man, as a man of war shall he raise up zeal: he shall shout and cry: over his enemies he shall be strengthened. {14} I have always held my peace, I have kept silence, I have been patient, I will speak as a travailing woman: I will dissipate, and swallow up together. {15} I will make mountains and little hills desolate, and will make all their grass to wither: and I will turn rivers into islands, and will dry up the standing pools. {16} And I will lead the blind into the way, which they know not: and in the paths, which they have been ignorant of I will make them walk: I will make darkness before them to be light, and crooked things straight: these words have I done to them, and have not forsaken them. {17} They are turned backward: let them be confounded with confusion, that trust in graven thing, that say to the framed thing, ye are our gods. {18} Hear ye deaf, and ye blind behold to see. {19} Who is blind, but my servant? And deaf, but he to whom I have sent my messengers? Who is blind, but he that is sold? And who is blind, but the servant of the Lord? {20} Thou that seest many things, wilt thou not keep them? Thou that hast ears open, wilt thou not hear? {21} And the Lord hath been willing to sanctify him, and to magnify the law, and extol it. {22} But the same people is spoiled, & wasted: all are the snare of youngmen, and they are hid in the houses of prisons: they are made a prey, neither is there to deliver them: a spoil, neither is there that saith: Restore. {23} Who is there among you that will hear this, attend and harken for things to come? {24} Who hath given Jacob into spoil, and Israel to the wasters? Hath not our Lord himself, to whom we have sinned? And they would not walk in his ways, and they have not heard his law. {25} And he hath poured out upon them, the indignation of his fury, & a strong battle, and hath burnt him round about, and he knew not: and set him on fire, and he understood not.

God comforteth his Church, promising ever to protect the same: 11. blameth the Jews, expostulating their ingratitude.

{1} AND now thus saith our Lord that created thee, o Jacob, & formed thee, o Israel: Fear not, because I have redeemed thee, and called thee by the name: thou art mine. {2} When thou shalt pass through the waters, I will be with thee, and the floods shall not cover thee: when thou shalt walk in fire, thou shalt not be burnt, and the flame shall not burn in thee: {3} Because I am the Lord thy God the holy one of Israel thy saviour, I have given Aegypt thy propitiation, Aethiopia and Sale for thee. {4} Since thou becamest honourable in mine eyes, and glorious: I have loved thee, & I will give men for thee, and peoples for thy soul. {5} Fear not, because I am with thee: from the East will I bring thy seed, and from the West I will gather thee. {6} I will say to the North: Give: and to the South: Hinder not: bring my sons from a far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth. {7} And every one that invocateth my name, for my glory have I created him, formed him, and made him. {8} Bring forth the blind people, and having eyes: the deaf, and he that hath ears. {9} All the nations are assembled together, and the tribes are gathered: which of you can shew this & shall make us hear the former things? Let them give their witnesses, and be justified, and hear, and say: In very deed. {10} You are my witnesses, saith our Lord, and my servants whom I have chosen: that you may know, and believe me, and understand that I my self am. Before me there hath no God been formed, & after me there shall not be. {11} I am, I am the Lord, and there is no saviour beside me. {12} I have shewed, and have saved: I have made it heard, and there hath been no strange one among you. You are my witnesses, saith our Lord, and I, God. {13} And from the beginning I my self, and there is not that can deliver out of my hand: I will work, and who shall turn it away. {14} Thus saith the Lord your redeemer, the holy one of Israel: For your sake have I sent forth into Babylon, and have plucked down all the bars, &

Chaldees glorying in their ships. {15} I, the Lord your holy one, that created Israel your king. {16} Thus saith our Lord, that gave a way in the sea, and a path in the vehement waters. {17} Which brought forth the chariot & the horse, the arm and the strong: they slept together, neither shall they rise again: they are broken as flax, and are extinct. {18} Remember not former things, and look not on things of old. {19} Behold I make new things, and now they shall spring forth, verily you shall know them: I will make a way in the desert, and rivers in the place not haunted. {20} The beast of the field shall glorify me, the dragons and the ostriches: because I have given waters in the desert: rivers in the place not haunted, that I might give drink to my people, to mine elect. {21} This people have I formed for my self, they shall tell my praise. {22} Thou hast not invoked me, o Jacob, neither hast thou laboured in me, o Israel. {23} Thou hast not offered me the ram of thine holocaust, and with thy victims thou hast not glorified me: I have not made thee to serve in oblation, nor put thee to pain in frankincense. {24} Thou hast not bought me sweet cane for silver, and with the fat of thy victims thou hast not inebriated me. But thou hast made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast put me to pain with thine iniquities. {25} I am, I am he that take clean away thine iniquities for mine own sake, and I will not remember thy sins. {26} Bring me into remembrance, & let us be judged together: tell if thou have any thing, that thou mayst be justified. {27} Thy first father sinned, and thy interpreters have transgressed against me. {28} And I have profaned the holy princes, I have given Jacob to destruction, & Israel to reproach.

Christ foundeth and establisheth his Church: 6. Inveigheth against idolaters: 26. and promiseth deliverance from the captivity of Babylon.

{1} AND now hear, o Jacob my servant, and Israel whom I have chosen. the Lord that made and formed thee, the {2} Thus saith helper from the womb: fear not o my servant Jacob, and thou most righteous whom I have chosen. {3} For I will pour out waters upon the thirsty ground, and streams upon the dry land: I will pour out my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy stock. {4} And they shall spring the herbs as willows beside the waters running by. {5} This man shall say: I am our Lord's: and an other man shall call in the name of Jacob, and this will write with his hand, To the Lord: and in the name of Israel he shall be resembled. {6} Thus saith our Lord the King of Israel; and the redeemer thereof the Lord of hosts: I am the first, and I, the last, and beside me there is no God. {7} Who is like to me? Let him call and declare: and let him expound me the order, since I appointed the ancient people: the things to come, and that shall be hereafter let them shew unto them. {8} Fear ye not, neither be ye troubled, from that time I have made thee to hear, and have declared: you are my witnesses. Is there a God beside me, and a maker, whom I have not known? {9} All the makers of an idol are nothing, and their best beloved things shall not profit them. Themselves are their witnesses, that they do not see, nor understand, that they may be confounded. {10} Who hath formed a god, and molten a sculptile profitable to nothing? {11} Behold, all the partakers thereof shall be confounded: for the makers are of men: they shall all assemble, they shall stand and fear, and shall be confounded together. {12} The iron-smith hath wrought with the file, with coals, & with hammers he hath formed it, & hath wrought in the arm of his strength: he shall hunger and faint, he shall not drink water, and shall become weary. {13} The carpenter hath stretched out a rule, he hath formed it with a plain: he hath made it with corners, and hath fashioned it round with the compass: and he hath made the image of a man, as it were a beautiful man dwelling in a house. {14} He hath cut down cedars, taken the elm tree, & the oak that stood among the trees of the forest: he hath planted the pine tree, which the rain nourished. {15} And it was made a fire for men: he took of them, and was warmed:

and kindled them, & baked bread: but of the rest he wrought a god, & adored: he made a sculptile, and bowed down before it. {16} Half he burnt with fire, and of the half, broiled he flesh & eat it: he sod pottage, and was filled, and was warmed, and said: Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire. {17} But the rest thereof he made a god, and a sculptile to himself, he boweth before it, and beseecheth, saying: Deliver me, because thou art my God. {18} They have not known, nor understood: for they have forgotten, that their eyes could not see, and that they could not understand with their heart. {19} They do not recount in their mind, nor know, nor feel, that they should say: Half thereof I have burnt with fire, and I have baked bread upon the coals thereof: I have broiled flesh, & have eaten, and of the rest thereof shall I make an idol? Shall I fall down before the stock of a tree? {20} Part thereof is ashes; an unwise heart adored it, & he will not save his soul, nor say: Perhaps there is a lie in my right hand. {21} Remember these things, o Jacob, and Israel, because thou art my servant. I have formed thee, thou art my servant, o Israel, forget me not. {22} I have clean taken away thine iniquities as a cloud, & thy sins as a mist: return to me because I have redeemed thee. {23} Praise ye, o heavens, because the Lord hath done mercy: make jubilation ye ends of the earth: ye mountains sound praise, thou forest & every tree thereof, because the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and Israel shall be glorified. {24} Thus saith our Lord thy redeemer, & thy maker, from the womb: I am the Lord, that make all things, that alone stretch out the heavens, that establish the earth, and none with me. {25} That make the signs of diviners void, and turn the soothsayers into fury. That turn the wise backward, and that make their knowledge foolish. {26} That raiseth up the word of his servant, and accomplisheth the counsel of his messengers, which say to Jerusalem: Thou shalt be inhabited; & to the cities of Juda: You shall be built, and I will raise up the deserts thereof. {27} Which say to the depth: Be thou desolate, and thy rivers I will dry up. {28} Who say to Cyrus: Thou art my pastor, and thou shalt accomplish all my will. Who say to Jerusalem: Thou shalt be built; and to the temple: Thou shalt be formed.

Cyrus by God's providence overcoming Babylon, will deliver the Jews from captivity. 4. Yet is reprehended because he acknowledgeth not God 8. upon which occasion the Prophet foresheweth the coming of Christ; 14. in figure of whom he addeth more of Cyrus: 18. and avoucheth that there is but one true God.

{1} THUS saith the Lord to my christ Cyrus, whose right hand I have taken to subdue the Gentiles before his face, and to turn the backs of kings, and to open the doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut. {2} I will go before thee, and will humble the glorious of the earth: I will break the brazen gates, and will burst the iron bars. {3} And I will give thee hidden treasures, and mysteries of secrets: that thou mayst know that I am the Lord, which call thy name, the God of Israel. {4} For my servant Jacob, and Israel mine elect, and I have called thee by thy name: I have resembled thee, and thou hast not known me. {5} I, the Lord, & there is none else: beside me there is no God: I girded thee, and thou hast not known me: {6} that they which are from the rising of the sun, and which are from the west may know, that there is none beside me, I, the Lord, and there is none other, {7} that form light, and create darkness, make peace, and create evil: I, the Lord that do all these things. {8} Drop dew ye heavens from above, and let the clouds rain the just: be the earth opened, & bud forth a saviour: & let justice spring up withal: I, the Lord have created him. {9} Woe to him that gainsayeth his maker, a shard of the earthen pots: shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it: What makest thou, & thy work is without hands? {10} Woe to him that saith to his father: Why doest thou beget? And to the woman: Why doest thou travail? {11} Thus saith our Lord the holy one of Israel, the maker thereof: Ask me things to come: concerning my children & the work of my hands command you me. {12} I made the earth: & man upon the same I have created: my hands stretched forth the heavens, and I have commanded all their host. {13} I have raised him up to justice, & will direct all his ways: he shall build my city, & dismiss my captivity: not for price, nor for gifts, saith our Lord the God of hosts. {14} Thus saith our Lord: The labour of Aegypt, and the merchandise of Aethiopia, and of Sabaim the high men shall pass to thee, & shall be thine: they shall walk after thee, they shall go bound with manacles: & they shall adore thee, & shall beseech thee: Only in thee is God, and there is no God beside thee. {15} Verily thou art God hidden, the God of Israel a saviour. {16} They are all confounded, and ashamed: {763} the forgers of errors are gone together into confusion. {17} Israel is saved in our Lord with eternal salvation: you shall not be confounded, and you shall not be ashamed for ever and ever. {18} Because thus saith our Lord that created the heavens, the very God that formed the earth, and made it, the very maker thereof: he did not create it in vain: to be inhabited he formed it. I, the Lord, and there is none other. {19} I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: I have not said to the seed of Jacob: Seek me in vain. I, the Lord that speak justice, that declare right things. {20} Gather ye together, and come, and approach together ye that are saved of the Gentiles: they have been ignorant that lift up the wood of their graven work, and ask of a god that saveth not. {21} Declare ye, and come, and consult together: who hath made this to be heard from the beginning, from that time foretold this? Have not I, the Lord, and there is no God besides but I? A just God, and that saveth there is none beside me. {22} Be converted to me, and you shall be saved all ye ends of the earth: because I am God, and there is none other. {23} I have sworn by myself, the word of justice shall proceed out of my mouth, and shall not return, because every knee shall be bowed to me, and every tongue shall swear. {24} Therefore in our Lord, shall he say, are my justices and empire: they shall come to him, and all that resist him, shall be confounded. {25} In our Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified and praised.

Bel, Nabo, and other idols shall be destroyed, 3. where upon the Jews are admonished to return from sin, to God's true service. 12. And salvation is promised by Christ.

{1} BEL is broken, Nabo is destroyed: their idols are made to beasts & cattle, your burdens of heavy weight even unto weariness. {2} They have melted away, and are broken together: they could not save him that carried them, & their soul shall go into captivity. {3} Hear me, o house of Jacob, all the remnant of the house of Israel, which are carried of my womb, are borne up of my matrice. {4} Even unto old age I am the same, and unto hoar hairs I will carry: I have made, & I will bear: I will carry, and will save. {5} Whereto have you resembled me, and made me equal, and compared me, and made me like? {6} You that contribute gold out of the bag, and weigh silver with balance: hiring a goldsmith to make a god: and they fall down and adore. {7} They bear him on their shoulders carrying, and setting him in his place, and he shall stand, and shall not move out of his place. Yea when they shall cry also unto him, he shall not hear: from tribulation he shall not save them. {8} Remember this, and be confounded: return ye transgressors to the heart. {9} Remember the former world, because I am God, and there is no God beside, neither is there the like to me. {10} Which shew the last thing from the beginning, and from the beginning the things that as yet were not done, saying: My counsel shall stand, & all my will shall be done: {11} Which call a bird from the east, and from a far country, the man of mine own will, and I have spoken, and will bring it: I have created, and will do it. {12} Hear me ye hard hearted, which are far from justice. {13} I have made my justice near, it shall not be far off, and my salvation shall not tarry. I will give salvation in Sion, and my glory to Israel.

The destruction of Babylon is further prophesied, for their pride, 8. arrogancy, 10. and sorcery.

{1} COME down, sit in the dust o Virgin daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no throne for the daughter of the Chaldees, because thou shalt no more be called nice and tender. {2} Take a mill, and grind meal: make bare thy turpitude, discover the shoulder, uncover the thighs, pass the rivers. {3} Thine ignominy shall be discovered, and thy reproach shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and no man shall resist me. {4} Our redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, the holy one of Israel. {5} Sit holding thy peace, and enter into darkness, o daughter of the Chaldees: because thou shalt no more be called the lady of kingdoms. {6} I was angry against my people, I have contaminated mine inheritance, and have given them into thy hand: thou hast not shewed mercies to them: upon the ancient thou hast made thy yoke exceeding heavy. {7} And thou hast said: I will be a lady for ever: thou hast not put these things upon thy heart, neither hast thou remembered thy later end. {8} And now hear these things thou that art delicate, and dwellest confidently, that sayest in thy heart: I am, and there is none else beside me: I shall not sit a widow, and I shall not know barrenness. {9} These two things shall come to thee suddenly in one day, barrenness and widowhood. All things are come upon thee, because of the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the vehement hardness of thine enchanters. {10} And thou hast confidence in thy malice, and hast said: There is none that seeth me. Thy wisdom, and thy knowledge, this hath deceived thee. And thou hast said in thy heart: I am, and beside me there is none other. {11} Evil shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not know the rising thereof: and calamity shall fall violently upon thee, which thou canst not expiate: misery shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know. {12} Stand with thine enchanters, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, in which thou hast travailed from thy youth, if perhaps it may profit thee any thing, or if thou mayst become stronger. {13} Thou hast failed in the multitude of thy counsels: let the astrologers of the heaven stand and save thee, which did contemplate the stars, and count the months, that by them they might tell things that shall come to thee. {14} Behold they are become as stubble, fire hath burnt them, they shall not deliver their soul from the hand of the flame: there are no coals, wherewith they may be warmed, nor fire, that they may sit thereat. {15} So are the things become unto thee, in whatsoever thou hast travailed: thy merchants from thy youth, every one hath erred in his own way, there is none that can save thee.

The Prophet inveigheth against the Jew's vain boasting of the name of Israel, not having true virtues. 3. Only God, not idols, foresheweth things to come: 9. for his own name's sake, conserveth his people, 16. inviteth them to repent, and to be grateful for his benefits.

{1} HEAR ye these things o house of Jacob, which are called by the name of Israel, and are come out of the waters of Juda, which swear in the name of our Lord, and are mindful of the God of Israel not in truth, nor in justice. {2} For they are called of the holy city, and are established upon the God of Israel: the Lord of hosts is his name. {3} The former things of old I have declared, & they proceeded out of my mouth, and I have made them to be heard: Suddenly I have wrought, and they came. {4} For I knew that thou art stubborn, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy forehead of brass. {5} I foretold thee of old: before they came I told thee, lest perhaps thou shouldst say: My idols have done these things, & my sculptiles & moltenes have commanded these things. {6} See all the things which thou hast heard: but have you declared them? I have made thee know new things of old, and the things are kept which thou knowest not: {7} now they are created, and not of old: and before the day, and thou hearest them not, lest perhaps thou mightest say: Behold I knew them. {8} Thou hast neither heard, nor known, neither was thine ear opened of old. For I know that transgressing thou wilt transgress, and I have called thee a transgressor from the womb. {9} For my name's sake I will make my fury far off: and for my praise I will bridle thee, that thou perish not. {10} Behold I have fined thee, but not as silver, I have chosen thee in the furnace of poverty. {11} For myself, for my self will I do it, that I be not blasphemed: and I will not give my glory to an other. {12} Hear me, o Jacob, and thou Israel whom I call: I, the same, I, the first, & I, the last. {13} My hand also hath founded the earth, and my right hand hath measured the heavens: I shall call them, & they shall stand together. {14} Assemble ye together all you, & hear: which of them hath shewed these things? The Lord hath loved him, he will do his will in Babylon, and his arm in the Chaldees. {15} I, even I have spoken, and called him: I have brought him, and his way is directed {16} Come ye to me, and hear this: I have not spoken in secret from the beginning, from the time before it was done I was there, and now the Lord God hath sent me, and his spirit. {17} Thus saith our Lord thy Redeemer, the holy one of Israel: I, the Lord thy God that teach thee profitable things, that govern thee in the way that thou walkest. {18} I would thou hadst attended to my commandments: thy peace had been as a flood, and thy justice as the waves of the sea. {19} And thy seed had been as the sand, and the stock of thy womb as the gravel stones thereof: his name had not perished, neither had it been destroyed from before my face. {20} Come forth out of Babylon, fly from the Chaldees, shew it forth in the voice of exultation: make this to be heard, and speak it out even to the ends of the earth. Say: Our Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob. {21} They thirsted not in the desert, when he brought them forth: water out of the rock he brought forth to them, and he clove the rocks, and there flowed waters. {22} There is no peace to the impious, saith our Lord.

Christ shall lead the Gentiles to salvation, even of the islands and uttermost parts of the world. 10. By him the faithful shall receive much grace 14. and comfort. 18. The Church still increasing, 21. admiring her own felicity. 25. and the destruction of her enemies.

{1} HEAR ye islands, and attend ye peoples from a far. The Lord hath called me from the womb, from my mother's belly he hath been mindful of my name. {2} And he hath made my mouth as a sharp sword: in the shadow of his hand he hath protected me, & hath made me as a chosen arrow, in his quiver he hath hidden me. {3} And he said to me: Thou art my servant Israel, because in thee will I glory. {4} And I said: I have laboured in vain, without cause, and in vain have I spent my strength: therefore my judgement is with the Lord, and my work with my God. {5} And now saith the Lord, that formed me from the womb to be his servant, that I may reduce Jacob unto him, and Israel will not be gathered together: and I am glorified in the eyes of the Lord, and my God is made my strength. {6} And he said: It is a small thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to convert the dregs of Israel. Behold, I have given thee to be the light of the Gentiles, that thou mayst be salvation even to the farthest part of the earth. {7} Thus saith our Lord the redeemer of Israel, the holy one thereof, to the contemptible soul, to the nation that is abhorred, to the servant of lords: kings shall see, & princes shall rise, & adore for our Lord's sake, because he is faithful, & for the holy one of Israel who hath chosen thee. {8} Thus saith our Lord: In time acceptable I have heard thee, and in the day of salvation I have holpen thee: and I have kept thee, and given thee to be a covenant of the people, that thou mightest raise up the land, and possess the inheritances dissipated. {9} That thou mightest say to them, that are bound: Come forth, & to them that are in darkness: Be ye discovered. Upon the ways shall they feed, & their pastures shall be in all plains. {10} They shall not hunger nor thirst, & heat and sun shall not strike them: because he that is merciful to them shall govern them, and all the fountains of waters shall give them drink.

{11} And I will make all my mountains to be a way, & my paths shall be exalted. {12} Behold these shall come from far, & behold them from the North and the sea, and these from the South country. {13} Ye heavens praise, and earth rejoice, ye mountains give praise with jubilation, because our Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy on his poor ones. {14} And Sion said: Our Lord hath forsaken me, & our Lord hath forgotten me. {15} Why, can a woman forget her infant, that she will not have pity on the son of her womb? And if she should forget, yet will not I forget thee. {16} Behold, I have written thee in my hands, thy walls are before mine eyes always. {17} Thy builders are come: they that destroy thee and dissipate thee shall go out of thee. {18} Lift up thine eyes round about, and see, all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: I live, saith our Lord, for thou shalt be clothed with all these as with an ornament, and as a bride thou shalt put them about thee. {19} Because thy deserts, and thy solitary places, & the land of thy ruin, shall now be strait by reason of the inhabitants, & they shall be chased far away that swallowed thee up. {20} As yet shall the children of thy barrenness say in thine ears: The place is strait for me, make me space to dwell. {21} And thou shalt say in thy heart: Who hath begot me these? I am barren & not bearing, led into transmigration, & captive: & these who hath brought up? I destitute & alone: & these where were they? {22} Thus saith our Lord God: behold I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, & to the peoples I will exalt my sign. And they shall carry thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters upon their shoulders. {23} And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, & queens thy nurses: with countenance cast down toward the ground they shall adore thee, & they shall lick up the dust of thy feet. And thou shalt know that I am the Lord, upon whom they shall not be confounded that expect him. {24} Shall a prey be taken from the strong? Or can that which was caught of the mighty be saved? {25} Because thus saith our Lord: Yea verily, even the captivity shall be taken away from the strong: and that which was taken by the mighty, shall be saved. But those that have judged thee, will I judge, and thy children I will save. {26} And I will feed thine enemies with their own flesh: & as with new wine, so shall they be imbibed with their own blood: and all flesh shall know, that I am the Lord that save thee, & thy redeemer the mighty one of Jacob.

The Synagogue shall be divorced for her iniquities. 4. Christ will omit no ordinary means but for her sake will endure ignominious afflictions. 10. All which she contemning shall perish.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: What is this bill of the divorce of our mother, wherewith I have dismissed her? Or who is my creditor, to whom I sold you? Lo you are sold for your wicked deeds, I have dismiss your mother. {2} Because I came, and there was not a man: I called, and there was none that would hear. Why, is mine hand abridged and made a little one, that I can not redeem? Or is there no strength in me to deliver? Behold, in my rebuke I will make the sea desert, I will turn the floods into dry land: the fishes shall rot without water, and shall die for thirst. {3} I will clothe the heavens with darkness, and will make sackcloth their covering. {4} The Lord hath given me a learned tongue, that I may know to stay him up that is weary, with a word: he stirreth up in the morning, in the morning he stirreth up mine ear, that I may hear him as a master. {5} The Lord God hath opened mine ear, & I do not gainsay? I am not gone backward. {6} I have given my body to the strikers, & my cheeks to the pluckers: I have not turned away my face from the rebukers & spitters. {7} The Lord God is mine helper, therefore am I not confounded: therefore have I set my face, as a most hard rock, and I know that I shall not be confounded. {8} He is near that justifieth me, who shall gainsay me? Let us stand together. Who is mine adversary? Let him come to me. {9} Behold the Lord God my helper: who is he that shall condemn me? Lo they shall all be destroyed as a garment, the moth shall eat them.

{10} Which of you feareth our Lord, heareth the voice of his servant, who hath walked in darkness, and hath no light? Let him hope in the name of our Lord, & lean upon his God. {11} Lo all you do kindle a fire, are compassed with flames, walk in the light of your fire, and in the flames which you have kindled: of my hand is this done to you, you shall sleep in sorrows.

God encourageth Sion to trust in his promised comfort, by example of Abraham. 3. For the spiritual Sion, the Church of Christ, shall receive much grace by his Evangelical law. 12. And her children shall not fear persecution, nor be overcome: 23. but her enemies shall fail.

{1} HEAR me ye that follow that which is just, and that seek our Lord: attend to the rock whence you are hewn out, & to the cave of the lake from the which you are cut out. {2} Attend to Abraham your father, and to Sara that bare you: because I called him alone, and blessed him, & multiplied him. {3} Our Lord therefore will comfort Sion, and will comfort all the ruins thereof: and he will make her desert as delicacies, and her wilderness as the garden of our Lord. Joy and gladness shall be found in it, giving of thanks, and voice of praise. {4} Attend unto me, o my people, and my tribe hear ye me: because a law shall proceed from me, and my judgement shall rest to be a light of the peoples. {5} My just one is nigh at hand, my saviour is gone forth, and mine arms shall judge peoples: the islands shall expect me, & shall patiently wait for mine arm. {6} Lift up your eyes into heaven, and look down to the earth beneath: because the heavens shall melt as smoke, and the earth shall be worn away as a garment, and like to these things shall the inhabitants thereof perish: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice shall not fail. {7} Hear me ye that know that which is just, my people which have my law in their heart: fear ye not the reproach of men, and be not afraid of their blasphemies. {8} For as a garment so shall the worm eat them: and as wool, so shall the moth devour them, but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice unto generations of generations. {9} Arise, arise, put on strength o arm of our Lord: arise as in the old days, in the generations of worlds. Hast not thou stricken the proud, & wounded the dragon? {10} Hast not thou dried the sea, the water of the vehement, which madest the depth of the sea a way, that the delivered might pass. {11} And now they that are redeemed of our Lord shall return, and shall come into Sion praying, and joy everlasting upon their heads, they shall possess joy and gladness, sorrow and mourning shall fly away. {12} I, even I my self will comfort you: who art thou that thou shouldest be afraid of a mortal man, and of the son of man, which as grass so shall wither? {13} And thou hast forgotten our Lord thy maker, which stretched out the heavens, and founded the earth: and thou hast been afraid continually all the day at the face of his fury, which afflicted thee, and had prepared to destroy: where is now the fury of the affliction? {14} He shall quickly come going to open, and he shall not kill unto utter destruction, neither shall his bread fail. {15} But I am the Lord thy God which trouble the sea, and the waves thereof do swell, the Lord of hosts is my name. {16} I have put my words in thy mouth, and in the shadow of my hand I have protected thee, that thou mightest plant the heavens, and found the earth, & mightest say to Sion: Thou art my people. {17} Be lifted up, be lifted up, arise Jerusalem, which hast drunken of the hand of our Lord the cup of his wrath: even to the bottom of the cup of drowsiness hast thou drunk, even to the dregs. {18} There is none that can uphold her of all the children that she hath born: and there is none that taketh her by the hand of all the children, that she hath brought up. {19} There are two things which have happened to thee: who shall be sorry for thee? Spoil, and destruction, and famine, and the sword, who shall comfort thee? {20} Thy children are thrown forth, {768} they have slept in the head of all ways, as the orix that is snared: full of the indignation of our Lord, of the rebuke of thy God. {21} Therefore hear this poor little one, and drunken not of wine. {22} Thus saith thy dominatour our Lord, and thy God, who hath fought for his people: Behold I have taken out of thy hand the cup of drowsiness, the bottom of the cup of mine indignation, thou shalt not add to drink it any more. {23} And I will put it in their hand, that have humbled thee, and have said to thy soul: Bow down, that we may pass over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as a way to them that pass over?

The prophet alluding to the delivery of Sion and Jerusalem from the Babylonical captivity, stirreth up the Church of Christ, to rejoice for the delivery from sin, 7. which Christ's Apostles preached 10. with great fruit in all nations.

{1} ARISE, arise, put on thy strength o Sion, put on the garments of thy glory o Jerusalem the city of the holy one: because the uncircumcised, and unclean shall add no more to pass by thee. {2} Be shaken out of the dust, arise, sit up Jerusalem: loose the bonds of thy neck, o captive daughter of Sion. {3} Because thus saith our Lord: You were sold for nought, and without silver you shall be redeemed. {4} Because thus saith our Lord God: My people went down into Aegypt at the beginning to be a sojourner there: and Assur without any cause did oppress them. {5} And now what have I here? Saith our Lord: because my people is taken away for nought. Their rulers do unjustly, saith our Lord, and continually all the day my name is blasphemed. {6} For this cause shall my people know my name in that day: because I myself that spake, lo am present. {7} How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that evangelizeth & preacheth peace: of him that telleth good, preaching health, that saith to Sion: Thy God shall reign. {8} The voice of thy watchmen, they have lifted up their voice, they shall praise together: because eye to eye they shall see when our Lord shall convert Sion. {9} Rejoice, & praise together ye deserts of Jerusalem: because our Lord hath comforted his people: he hath redeemed Jerusalem. {10} Our Lord hath prepared his holy arm in the sight of all the Gentiles: and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. {11} Depart, depart, go ye out from thence, touch not a polluted thing: go out of the midst of her, be cleansed ye that carry the vessels of our Lord. {12} Because you shall not go out in tumult, neither with flight shall you make haste: for our Lord will go before you, and the God of Israel will gather you together. {13} Behold my servant shall understand, he shall be exalted, and shall be lifted up, and shall be exceeding high. {14} As many have been astonished upon thee, so shall his look among men be inglorious, and his form among the sons of men. {15} He shall sprinkle many nations, kings shall shut their mouth upon him: because they to whom it was not told of him, have seen: and they that heard not have beheld.

All will not believe Christ's Gospel to whom it shall be preached: 2. as the mystery of his ignominious death for all men's sins: 7. which he will suffer most meekly: 10. for which his name shall be glorified in all places.

{1} WHO hath believed our hearing? And the arm of our Lord to whom is it revealed? {2} And he shall come up as a young spring before him, and as a root from a thirsty ground: there is no beauty in him, nor comeliness, and we have seen him, and there was no sightliness, and we were desirous of him. {3} Despised, and most abject of men, a man of sorrows, and knowing infirmity: and his look as it were hid and despised, whereupon neither have we esteemed him. {4} He surely hath born our infirmities, and our sorrows he hath carried: and we have thought him as it were a leper, & stricken of God, and humbled. {5} But he was wounded for our iniquities, he was broken for our sins: the discipline of our peace upon him, and with the wail of his stripe we are healed. {6} All we have strayed as sheep, every one hath declined into his own way: and our Lord hath put upon him the iniquity of all us. {7} He was offered because himself would, and opened not his mouth: as a sheep to slaughter shall he be led, and as a lamb before his shearer, he shall be dumb, & shall not open his mouth: {8} from distress and from judgement he was taken up: who shall declare his generation? Because he is cut out of the land of the living, for the wickedness of my people have I stricken him. {9} And he shall give the impious for his burial, and the rich for his death: because he hath not done iniquity, neither was there guile in his mouth. {10} And our Lord would break him in infirmity. If he shall put away his soul for sin, he shall see seed of long age, and the will of our Lord shall be directed in his hand. {11} For that his soul hath laboured, he shall see and be filled: in his knowledge the same my just servant shall justify many, and he shall bear their iniquities. {12} Therefore will I distribute unto him very many, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong, for that he hath delivered his soul unto death, and was reputed with the wicked: and he hath borne the sin of many, and hath prayed for the transgressors.

Gentiles who were barren shall multiply in the Church of Christ: 10. from which God's mercy shall never be separated.

{1} PRAISE o barren woman which bearest not: sing praise, and make joyful noise, which didst not bear: because many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that hath a husband, saith our Lord. {2} Enlarge the place of thy tent, and stretch out the skins of thy tabernacles, spare not: make long thy cords, and fasten thy nails. {3} For thou shalt penetrate to the right hand, and to the left: and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, & shall inhabit the desolate cities. {4} Fear not, because thou shall not be confounded, nor blush: for thou shalt not be ashamed, because thou shalt forget the confusion of thy youth, and the reproach of thy widowhood thou shalt remember no more. {5} Because he shall rule over thee that made thee, the Lord of hosts is his name: & thy redeemer the holy one of Israel, shall be called the God of all the earth. {6} For as a woman forsaken & mourning in spirit hath our Lord called thee, & as a wife cast off from her youth, hath thy God said: {7} For a moment, a little while have I forsaken thee, & in great mercies will I gather thee. {8} In a moment of indignation have I hid my face a little while from thee, & in mercy everlasting have I had mercy on thee, said thy redeemer our Lord. {9} As in the days of Noe is this thing to me, to whom I swear, that I would no more bring in the waters of Noe upon the earth: so have I sworn not to be angry with thee, and not to rebuke thee. {10} For the mountains shall be moved, & the little hills shall tremble; but my mercy shall not depart from thee, & the covenant of my peace shall not be moved, said our Lord thy miseratour. {11} Poor little one shaken with tempest, without all comfort, behold I will lay thy stones in order, & will found thee in sapphires, {12} & I will put the jasper stone for thy munitions: & thy gates into graven stones, all thy borders into stones worthy to be desired. {13} All thy children taught of our Lord: & a multitude of peace to thy children. {14} And in justice thou shalt be founded: depart far from calumny, because thou shalt not fear: and from dread, because it shall not approach to thee. {15} Behold, the borderer shall come, which was not with me, thy stranger sometime shall be joined to thee. {16} Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, & bringeth forth a vessel for his work, & I created the killer to destroy. {17} Every vessel that is made against thee, shall not prosper: and every tongue resisting thee in judgement, thou shalt judge. This is the inheritance of the servants of our Lord, and their justice with me, saith our Lord.

Chapter 55

God promiseth abundance of spiritual graces to the faithful, 4. that shall believe in Christ of all nations, 7. and sincerely serve him.

{1} ALL ye that thirst come to the waters: and you that have no silver, make haste, buy, & eat: come, buy without silver, and without any exchange wine and milk. {2} Why bestow you silver not for bread, & your labour not for satiety? Hearing hear ye me, and eat that which is good, and your soul shall be delighted in fatness. {3} Incline your ear, & come to me: hear, and your soul shall live, and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, the faithful mercies of David. {4} Behold I have given him for a witness to the peoples, for a Prince and master to the Gentiles. {5} Behold thou shalt call the nation, which thou knowest not: and the nations that knew not thee shall run to thee, because of the Lord thy God, and the holy one of Israel: because he hath glorified thee. {6} Seek ye our Lord whilst he may be found, invoke him, whilst he is near. {7} Let the impious forsake his way, and the unjust man his cogitations, and return to our Lord, and he will have mercy on him: and to our God, because he is bountiful to forgive. {8} For my cogitations are not your cogitations: nor your ways my ways, saith our Lord. {9} For as the heavens are exalted above the earth, so are my ways exalted above your ways, & my cogitations above your cogitations. {10} And as the shower cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth no more thither, but inebriateth the earth, and watereth it, and maketh it to spring, and giveth seed to the sower, and bread to him that eateth: {11} so shall my word be, which shall proceed from my mouth: it shall not return to me void, but it shall do what things soever I would, and shall prosper in these things for which I sent it. {12} Because you shall go forth in joy, and in peace shall you be conducted, the mountains and the little hills shall sing praise before you, and all the woods of the country shall clap the hand. {13} For the shrub, shall come up the fir tree, and for the nettle, shall grow the myrtle tree: and our Lord shall be named for an everlasting sign, that shall not be taken away.

God inviteth all men in thought and deed to keep his law: promiseth blessing and reward to those that profess and keep perpetual chastity, 9. and reproveth evil Pastors.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: keep ye judgement, and do justice: because my salvation is near to come, and my justice to be revealed. {2} Blessed is the man that doth this thing, and the son of man that shall apprehend this, keeping the Sabbath that he pollute it not, keeping his hands that he do no evil. {3} And let not the son of the stranger, that cleaveth to our Lord, say: By separation the Lord will divide me from his people. {4} And let not the eunuch say: Behold I am a dry tree. Because thus saith our Lord to the eunuchs: They that shall keep my Sabbaths, and shall choose the things that I would, and shall hold my covenant. {5} I will give unto them in my house, and within my walls a place, and a name better than sons and daughters, an everlasting name will I give them, which shall not perish. {6} And the children of the stranger that cleave to the Lord, to worship him, & to love his name, to be his servants: every one that keepeth the Sabbath, not to pollute it, and that holdeth my covenant. {7} I will bring them into my holy mount, & will make them joyful in the house of my prayer: their holocausts, and their victims shall please me upon mine altar: because my house shall be called the house of prayer to all peoples. {8} Saith our Lord God that gathereth the dispersed of Israel: As yet will I gather unto it, the gathered together thereof. {9} All ye beasts of the field come to devour, all ye beasts of the forest. {10} His watchmen all blind have been ignorant: dumb dogs not able to bark, seeing vain things, sleeping and loving dreams. {11} And most impudent dogs, they have known no satiety: the pastors themselves have been ignorant of understanding: all have declined into their own way, every one to his own avarice, from the highest even to the last. {12} Come, let us take wine, and be filled with drunkenness, and it shall be as to day, so also to morrow, and much more.

The Prophet lamenteth that men regard not when the just die; 3. reprehendeth those that scorn the godly; 5. and commit horrible idolatry, 11. forgetting, God: 14. who useth all benignity to recall them; 20. but they contemn him.

{1} THE just perisheth, and there is none that considereth in his heart, & men of mercy are gathered away, because there is none that understandeth; for at the face of malice, is the just gathered away. {2} Let peace come, let him rest in his bed that hath walked in his direction. {3} But come you hither ye children of the witch, the seed of the adulterer, and of the harlot. {4} Upon whom have you jested? Upon whom have you opened your mouth awide, and thrust out the tongue? Are not you wicked children, a lying seed? {5} Which take comfort in the gods under every thick green tree, immolating your little ones in the torrents, under the high rocks? {6} In the parts of the torrent is thy part, this is thy lot: and thou hast poured out libament to them, thou hast offered sacrifice, shall I not take indignation of these things? {7} Upon an high and lofty mountain thou hast laid thy bed, and hast gone up thither to immolate hosts. {8} And behind the door, and behind the post thou hast set thy memorial: because thou hast discovered thy self near me, and hast received an adulterer, thou hast enlarged thy bed, and made a covenant with them: thou hast loved their couch with open hand. {9} And thou hast adorned thy self with royal ointment, and hast multiplied the gay paintings. Thou didst send thy legates far off, & wast humbled even to hell. {10} In the multitude of thy way thou hast laboured; thou saidst not: I will rest: thou hast found life of thine own hand, therefore thou hast not asked. {11} For whom, with careful reverence, hast thou feared, whereas thou hast lied, & hast not been mindful of me, nor thought on me in thy heart? Because I am holding my peace, and as it were not seeing, and thou hast forgotten me. {12} I will declare thy justice, and thy works shall not profit thee. {13} When thou shalt cry, let thy gathered together deliver thee, and the wind shall take them all away, a soft blast shall bear them away: But he that hath confidence in me, shall inherit the land, & shall possess my holy mount. {14} And I will say: Make a way, give passage, turn out of the path, take away stumbling blocks out of the way of my people. {15} Because thus saith the High & Eminent, that inhabiteth eternity: and his name is holy, dwelling in the high, and holy place, and with a contrite & humble spirit: that he may revive the spirit of the humble, and revive the heart of the contrite. {16} For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be wrath unto the end: because the spirit shall proceed from my face, and breathings I will make. {17} For the iniquity of his avarice I was angry, and have stricken him: I have hid my face from thee, and have taken indignation: and he hath gone wandering in the way of his own heart. {18} I saw his ways, and have healed him, and reduced him, and have restored consolations unto him, and to them that mourn for him. {19} I have created the fruit of the lips peace, peace to him that is far off, & that is near, saith our Lord, and I have healed him. {20} But the impious are as it were the raging sea, which can not be quiet, and the waves thereof overflow unto conculation and mire. {21} There is no peace to the impious, saith our Lord God.

God commandeth the Prophet to cry unto the sinful people vehemently, and incessantly, to keep the law, not only in shew and pretence, but sincerely, leaving their own wills, and seeking God's will: 9. so they shall receive their good desires, and reward of well doing.

{1} CRY, cease not, as a trumpet exalt thy voice, and tell my people their wicked doings, and the house of Jacob their sins. {2} For me indeed they seek from day to day, and they will know my ways, as a nation that hath done justice, and hath not forsaken the judgement of their God: they ask of me the judgements of justice: they will approach to God. {3} Why have we fasted, and thou hast not regarded: have we humbled our souls, and thou hast not known? Behold in the day of your fast your own will is found, and you exact of all your debtors. {4} Behold you fast to debates and contentions, and strike with the fist impiously. Do not fast as until this day, that your cry may be heard on high. {5} Is this such a fast, as I have chosen: for a man by the day to afflict his soul? Is this it, to wind his head about like a circle, and to spread sack-cloth and ashes? Wilt thou call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the Lord? {6} Is not this rather the fast that I have chosen? Dissolve the bands of impiety, loose the bundles that overload, dismiss them free that are broken, and break in sunder every burden. {7} Break thy bread to the hungry & the needy, & harbourless bring in into thy house: when thou shalt see the naked cover him, and dispise not thy flesh. {8} Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall sooner arise, & thy justice shall go before thy face, and the glory of our Lord shall embrace thee. {9} Then shalt thou invocate, and our Lord will hear: thou shalt cry, and he will say: Lo here I am. If thou wilt take away the chain out of the midst of thee, & cease to stretch out the finger, & to speak that which profiteth not. {10} When thou shalt pour out thy soul to the hungry, and shalt fill the afflicted soul, thy light shall arise up in darkness, & thy darkness shall be as the noon day. {11} And our Lord will give thee rest always, & will fill thy soul with brightness, and deliver thy bones, and thou shalt be as a watered garden, and as a fountain of waters, whose waters shall not fail. {12} And the deserts of the worlds shall be builded in thee, thou shalt raise up the foundations of generation and generation: and thou shalt be called the builder of the hedges, turning the paths into rest. {13} If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy will in my holy day, and call the Sabbath delicate, and the holy of our Lord glorious, and glorify him, whilst thou doest not thine own ways, & thy will be not found, to speak a word: {14} Then shalt thou be delighted upon the Lord, & I will lift thee up above the heights of the earth, & will feed thee with the inheritance of Jacob thy father. For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken.

Sins do separate men from God: 3. as manslaughter, theft, and lying, with contempt of judgement and justice. 12. Men are otherwise judged just or unjust in the world, than in deed they are before God: 16. who seeth and judgeth all rightly.

{1} BEHOLD the hand of our Lord is not abridged that he can not save, neither is his ear made heavy that it can not hear. {2} But your iniquities have divided between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you that he would not hear. {3} For your hands are polluted with blood and your fingers with iniquity: your lips have spoken lie, and your tongue speaketh iniquity. {4} There is none that doth invocate justice, neither is there any that judgeth truly: but they trust in things of nothing, and speak vanities: they have conceived labour, and brought forth iniquity. {5} They have broken the eggs of asps, & have woven the spider's webs: he that shall eat of their eggs, shall die: and that which is nourished, shall be hatched into a cockatrice. {6} Their webs shall not be for clothing, neither shall they be covered with their works: their works are unprofitable works, and the work of iniquity is in their hands. {7} Their feet run to evil, & hasten to shed innocent blood: their cogitations are unprofitable cogitations: waste & destruction are in their ways. {8} They have not known the way of peace, and there is no judgement in their steps: their paths are become crooked to them: every one that treadeth in them, knoweth not peace. {9} For this cause is judgement far from us, & justice shall not apprehend us. We expected light, and behold darkness: brightness, & we have walked in darkness. {10} We have groped as blind men for the wall, and as without eyes have feelede: we have stumbled at noon day as in darkness, in dark places as the dead. {11} We all shall roar as bears, and as mourning doves we shall lament. We have expected judgement, and there is none: salvation, and it is far from us. {12} For our iniquities are multiplied before thee and our sins have answered to us: because our wicked doings are with us, & our iniquities we have known, {13} to sin and lie against our Lord: and we were turned away so that we went not after our God, that we spake calumny and transgression: we conceived, and spake from the heart words of lying. {14} And judgement was turned backward, and justice stood far off: because truth hath fallen down in the street, and equity could not enter in. {15} And truth grew into oblivion: and he that departed from evil, lay open to the prey: and our Lord saw, and it appeared evil in his eyes, because there is no judgement. {16} And he saw that there is not a man: & he was astonished, because there is none to oppose himself: and his own arm saved to himself, and his justice it-self confirmed him. {17} He is clothed with justice as with a breastplate, and is an helmet of salvation on his head: he is clothed with garments of revenge, and is covered as with a mantle of zeal. {18} As unto revenge as it were unto retribution of indignation to his adversaries, and recompence to his enemies: he will repay the like to the islands. {19} And they of the West shall fear the name of our Lord: and they of the rising of the sun, his glory: when he shall come as a violent stream, which the spirit of our Lord driveth: {20} and there shall come a redeemer to Sion, and to them, that return from iniquity in Jacob, saith our Lord. {21} This is my covenant with them, saith our Lord: My spirit that is in thee, and my words that I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, and out of the mouth of thy seed, & out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith our Lord, from this present and for ever.

In the Church of Christ shall the light of true faith, and sincere charity: 8. which shall be spread in all nations, and continue all times: 15. replenished with many joyful graces, 18. and eternal glory.

{1} ARISE, be illuminated Jerusalem: because thy light is come, & the glory of our Lord is risen upon thee: {2} Because lo darkness shall cover the earth, & a mist the peoples: but upon thee shall our Lord arise, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. {3} And the Gentiles shall walk in thy light, and kings in the brightness of thy rising. {4} Lift up thine eyes round about & see, all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: thy sons shall come from a far, & thy daughters shall rise from the side. {5} Then shalt thou see, & abound, & thy heart shall marvel and be enlarged, when the multitude of the sea shall be converted to thee, the strength of Gentiles shall come to thee, the dromedaries of Madian and Ephraim: all of Saba shall come, bringing gold and frankincense: and shewing forth praise to our Lord. {6} All the cattle of Cedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nabaoth shall minister to thee: they shall be offered upon my placable altar, and I will glorify the house of my majesty. {7} Who are these, that fly as clouds, and as doves to their windows? {9} For the islands expect me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning, that I may bring thy sons from a far: their silver, & their gold with them, to the name of the Lord thy God, and to the holy one of Israel, because he hath glorified thee. {10} And the children of strangers shall build thy walls, and their kings shall minister to thee: for in mine indignation have I stricken thee, and in my reconciliation have I had mercy upon thee. {11} And thy gates shall be open continually: day and night they shall not be shut, that the strength of the Gentiles may be brought to thee, and their kings may be brought. {12} For the nation & the kingdom that shall not serve thee, shall perish: & the Gentiles shall be wasted with desolation. {13} The glory of Libanus shall come to thee, the fir-tree, & box-tree, and pine-tree together, to adorn the place of my sanctification, and the place of my feet I will glorify. {14} And the children of them that humbled thee, shall come crouching to thee, and all that detracted from thee shall adore the steps of thy feet, and shall call thee the city of the Lord, Sion of the holy one of Israel. {15} For that thou wast forsaken, and hated, and there was none that passed by thee, I will make thee to be the pride of worlds, a joy unto generation & generation: {16} & thou shalt suck the milk of the Gentiles, & thou shalt be nursed with the teat of kings: & thou shalt know that I am the Lord that save thee, and thy Redeemer the strong one of Jacob. {17} For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver: and for wood brass, and for stones iron: and I will make thy visitation peace, and thine overseers justice. {18} Iniquity shall no more be heard in thy land, waste and destruction in thy borders, and salvation shall occupy thy walls, & praise thy gates. {19} Thou shalt have the sun no more to shine by day, neither shall the brightness of the moon lighten thee: but the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and thy God for thy glory. {20} Thy sun shall go down no more, and thy moon shall not be diminished: because the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, & the days of thy mourning shall be ended. {21} And thy people all just, for ever shall inherit the land, the bud of my planting, the work of mine hand to glorify. {22} The least shall be into a thousand, and the little one into a most strong nation: I, the Lord in the time thereof will suddenly do it.

Christ announceth himself to be sent from heaven to teach the truth, to heal and pardon the penitent, to comfort the desolate, and strengthen the weak: 4. whose Apostles shall constantly preach justice in all the world. 10. And his Church shall rejoice.

{1} THE spirit of the Lord upon me, because the Lord hath anointed me: to preach to the mild he sent me, that I should heal the contrite of heart, and preach indulgence to the captives, and deliverance to them that are shut up. {2} That I should preach the placable year to the Lord, & the day of vengeance of our God: that I might comfort all that mourn; {3} that I might appoint to the mourners of Sion, & give them a crown for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, a mantle of praise for the spirit of sorrowfulness: and they shall be called in it the strong of justice, planting of the Lord to glorify. {4} And they shall build the deserts from the beginning of the world, and shall erect the old ruins; and shall repair the desolate cities, that were dissipated in generation and generation. {5} And aliens shall stand, and feed your cattle: and the children shall be your husbandmen, and dressers of the vines. {6} And you shall be called the Priests of the Lord: to you it shall be said: The ministers of our God: you shall eat the strength of the Gentiles, and in their glory you shall be proud. {7} For your double confusion & shame, they shall praise their part: for this cause shall they receive double in their land, everlasting joy shall be to them. {8} Because I am the Lord that love judgement, & hate robbery in holocaust: and I will give their work in truth, and make a perpetual covenant with them. {9} And they shall know their seed in the Gentiles, and their bud in the midst of peoples, all that shall see them, shall know them, that these are the seed which the Lord hath blessed. {10} Rejoicing I will rejoice in our Lord, and my soul shall be joyful in my God: because he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation: and with the garment of justice he hath compassed me, as a bridegroom decked with a crown, and as a bride adorned with her jewels. {11} For as the earth bringeth forth her spring, and as the garden shooteth forth his seed: so shall our Lord God make justice to spring forth, and praise before all the Gentiles.

The Prophet avoucheth that he will not cease from preaching Christ: 4. to whom all nations shall be converted: 8. & whose Church shall continue for ever.

{1} FOR Sion I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem, I will not rest, till her just one come forth as brightness, & her Saviour be kindled as a lamp. {2} And the Gentiles shall see thy just one, and all kings thy noble one: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of our Lord shall name. {3} And thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of our Lord, & the diadem of a kingdom in the hand of thy God. {4} Thou shalt no more be called, Forsaken: & thy land shall no more be called, Desolate: But thou shall be called, My will in her, and thy land inhabited, because it hath well pleased our Lord in thee: & thy land shall be inhabited. {5} For the young man shall dwell with the virgin, and thy children shall dwell in thee. And the bridegroom shall rejoice upon the bride, & thy God shall rejoice upon thee. {6} Upon thy walls, Jerusalem, I have appointed watch-men, all the day, and all the night, for ever they shall not hold their peace. You that remember our Lord, hold not your peace, {7} & give not silence to him, until he establish, and until he make Jerusalem the praise in the earth. {8} Our Lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength: If I shall give thy wheat any more to be meat for thine enemies: and if the strange children shall drink thy wine, wherein thou hast laboured. {9} Because they that shall gather it together, shall eat it, and shall praise the Lord: and they that carry it together, shall drink it in my holy courts. {10} Pass ye, pass ye through the gates, prepare a way for the people, make the journey plain, & pick up the stones, & lift up the sign to the peoples. {11} Behold our Lord hath made heard in the ends of the earth, tell the daughter of Sion: Behold thy Saviour cometh: behold his reward is with him, and his work before him. {12} And they shall call them, The holy people, the redeemed of our Lord. But thou shalt be called, A city sought for, and not Forsaken.

Christ is described as a Victorious conqueror, ascending into heaven with triumph, embued with blood 7. For all whose benefits the Prophet rendereth thanks: 10. expostulating the people's ingratitude, that provoked God to wrath.

{1} WHO is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bosra, this beautiful one in his robe, going in the multitude of his strength? I that speak justice, and am a defender to save. {2} Why then is thy clothing red, and thy garments as theirs that tread in the wine-press? {3} I have trodden the press alone, and of the Gentiles there is not a man with me: I have trodden them in my fury, and have trodden them down in my wrath: & their blood is sprinkled upon my garments, & I have stained all my raiment. {4} For the day of revenge is in my heart, the year of my redemption is come. {5} I looked about, & there was no helper: I sought, and there was none to aid: and mine arm hath saved, and mine indignation it-self hath holpen me. {6} And I have trodden down the peoples in my fury, and have inebriated them in mine indignation, and have drawn their strength down to the ground. {7} I will remember the mercies of our Lord, the praise of our Lord for all things, that our Lord hath rendered to us, and for the multitude of the good things to the house of Israel, which he hath given them according to his indulgence, and according to the multitude of his mercies. {8} And he said: But yet is my people, children that deny not: and he is become their saviour. {9} In all their tribulation he was not troubled, and the Angel of his face saved them: in his love, and in his indulgence he redeemed them, and bare them, and lifted them up all the days of the world. {10} But they provoked to wrath, and afflicted the spirit of his holy one: and he was turned to be their enemy, and he conquered them. {11} And he remembered the days of the world of Moyses, and of his people: Where is he that brought them out of the sea, with the Pastors of his flock? Where is he that put in the midst of him the spirit of his holy one? {12} He that brought out Moyses to the right hand by the arm of his majesty: that divided the waters before them, that he might make to himself an everlasting name. {13} He that brought them out through the depths, as an horse in the desert that stumbled not. {14} As the beast that goeth down in the plain field, the spirit of our Lord was their conductor: so didst thou bring thy people that thou mightest make thee a name of glory. {15} Attend from heaven, and look from thy holy habitation, & of thy glory: where is thy zeal, and thy strength, the multitude of thy bowels, and of thy mercies? They have held back themselves toward me. {16} For thou art our father, and Abraham hath not known us, and Israel hath been ignorant of us: thou, o Lord, art our father, our Redeemer, from the beginning is thy name. {17} Why hast thou made us err, o Lord, from thy ways: hast thou hardened our heart, that we feared not thee? Return for thy servants, the tribes of thine inheritance. {18} As nothing have they possessed thy holy people: our enemies have trodden down thy sanctification. {19} We are become as in the beginning, when thou didst not rule over us, neither was thy name invoked upon us.

The Jews in captivity pray to God for release: 4. acknowledging his former great benefits, and their own sins, flying now to his mercy.

{1} WOULD God thou wouldest break the heavens asunder, and wouldest descend: at thy presence the mountains should melt away. {2} As the burning of fire would they melt, the waters would burn with fire, that thy name might be made known to thine enemies: at thy presence the nations should be troubled. {3} When thou shalt do marvelous things, we shall not sustain: thou art descended, and at thy presence the mountains are melted. {4} From the beginning of the world they have not heard, nor received with the ears: the eye hath not seen, o God, beside thee, what things thou hast prepared for them that expect thee. {5} Thou hast met him that rejoiceth, and doth justice: in thy ways they shall remember thee: behold thou art angry, and we have sinned: we have been always in them, and we shall be saved. {6} And all we are become as one unclean, and all our justices as the cloth of a menstrued woman: and we have all fallen as a leaf, and our iniquities as the wind have taken us away. {7} There is none that invocateth thy name: that riseth up, and holdeth thee, thou hast hid thy face from us, and hast dashed us in the hand of our iniquity. {8} And now Lord thou art our father, & we clay: and thou art our maker, and all we the works of thy hands. {9} Be not angry, o Lord, enough, and remember no more our iniquity: lo regard, all we are thy people. {10} The city of thy holy one is made desert, Sion is made desert, Jerusalem is become desolate. {11} The house of our sanctification, and of our glory, where our fathers praised thee, is turned into the burning of fire, and all our things worthy to be desired are turned into ruins. {12} Wilt thou upon these things contain thy self, o Lord, wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us vehemently?

The Gentiles shall seek and find Christ, 2. whom the Jews will persecute; and shall be rejected, only a few relics reserved. 13. So the Church shall multiply, and abound in graces.

{1} THEY have sought me that before asked not, they have found that sought me not, I said: Behold me, behold me, to a Gentility that did not invoke my name. {2} I have spread forth mine hands all the day to an incredulous people, which goeth in a way not good after their own cogitations. {3} A people that provoke me to anger before my face always: that immolate in gardens, and sacrifice upon bricks. {4} That dwell in sepulchres, and sleep in temples of idols: that eat swine's flesh, and profane potage in their vessels. {5} That say: Depart from me, approach not to me, because thou art unclean: these shall be smoke in my fury, a fire burning all the day. {6} Behold it is written before me: I will not hold my peace, but I will render and repay into their bosom {7} your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, saith our Lord, that have sacrificed upon the mountains, and upon the little hills have reproached me, & I will remeasure their first work in their bosom. {8} Thus saith our Lord: As if a berry be found in a cluster, and it be said: Destroy it not, because it is a blessing: so will I do for my servants' sake, that I destroy not the whole. {9} And I will bring forth seed out of Jacob, & out of Juda a possessor of my mountains: & mine elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall inhabit there. {10} And the champion countries shall be into folds of flocks, and the valley of Achor for the couch of herds, unto my people that have sought after me. {11} And you, that have forsaken the Lord, that have forgotten my holy mount, that set a table to Fortune, and offer libaments upon it. {12} I will number you in the sword, and you shall all fall by slaughter: because I called, and you have not answered: I spake, and you have not heard, and you did evil in mine eyes: and you have chosen the things, that I would not. {13} For this cause thus saith our Lord God: Behold my servants shall eat, and you shall be hungry: behold my servants shall drink, and you shall be thirsty. {14} Behold my servants shall rejoice, and you shall be confounded: behold my servants shall praise for joyfulness of heart: and you shall cry for sorrow of heart, and for contrition of spirit you shall howl. {15} And you shall leave your name for an oath to mine elect: and the Lord God shall kill thee, and will call his servants by an other name. {16} In which he that is blessed upon the earth, shall be blessed in God, Amen: & he that sweareth in the earth, shall swear by God Amen: because the former distresses are forgotten, & because they are hid from mine eyes. {17} For behold I create new heavens, & a new earth: & the former things shall not be in memory, & they shall not ascend upon the heart. {18} But you shall be glad & rejoice for ever in these things, which I create: because lo I create Jerusalem exultation, and the people thereof joy. {19} And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and be glad in my people, and there shall no more be heard in it the voice of weeping, and the voice of crying. {20} There shall no more be a child of days, & an old man that shall not fill up his days, because the child of an hundred years shall die, and the sinner of an hundred years shall be accurst. {21} And they shall build cities, and inhabit: and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruits thereof. {22} They shall not build, and an other shall dwell: they shall not plant, & an other shall eat: for according to the days of the tree, shall be the days of my people, and they shall make old the works of their hands. {23} Mine elect shall not labour in vain, nor engender in conturbation: because it is the seed of the blessed of the Lord, and their posterity with them. {24} And it shall be, before they call, I will hear: as they are yet speaking, I will hear. {25} The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, the lion and the oxe shall eat straw: & to the serpent dust shall be his bread: they shall not hurt, nor kill in all my holy mountain, saith our Lord.

God who filleth heaven and earth, will dwell in the heart of the humble. 3. For the sins of the Jews Jerusalem shall be destroyed. 5. The faith of Christ shall be propagated by the preaching of the Apostles. 15. And Christ coming to judge, 19. all shall receive according to their deserts.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: Heaven is my seat, and the earth my foot stool: what is this house that you will build to me? And what is this place of my rest? {2} My hand hath made all these things, & all these things have been done, saith our Lord. But to whom shall I have respect, but to the poor little one, & the contrite of spirit, and him that trembleth at my words? {3} He that immolateth an oxe, is as he that should slay a man: he that killeth a sheep in sacrifice, as he that should brain a dog: he that offereth oblation, as he that should offer swine's blood: he that remembereth frankincense, as he that should bless an idol. All these things have they chosen in their ways, and in their abominations their soul is delighted. {4} Wherefore I also will choose their delusions: and the things that they feared, I will bring to them: because I called, and there was none that would answer: I have spoken, and they heard not: & they have done evil in mine eyes, and have chosen the things that I would not. {5} Hear the word of our Lord, ye that tremble at his word: your brethren that hate you, and reject you for my name sake, have said: Let the Lord be glorified, & we shall see in your joy: but they shall be confounded. {6} A voice of people from the city, a voice from the temple, the voice of our Lord repaying retribution to his enemies. {7} Before she travailed, she brought forth, before her time came to be delivered, she brought forth a man child. {8} Who ever heard such a thing? & who hath seen the like to this? Why, shall the earth travail in one day? Or shall a nation be brought forth together, because Sion hath travailed, & brought forth her children? {9} Shall not I that make others to bring forth children, my self bring forth, saith the Lord? Shall I, that give generation to others, be barren, saith the Lord thy God? {10} Rejoice with Jerusalem, & be joyful in her all ye that love her: be glad with her in gladness all ye, that mourn upon her, {11} that you may suck, & be filled of the breast of her consolation: that you may milk, & flow with delights in all manner of her glory. {12} Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will decline upon her as it were a flood of peace, and as a torrent overflowing the glory of the Gentiles, which you shall suck: at the breasts, you shall be carried, & upon the knees they shall speak you fair. {13} As if the mother would speak one fair, so will I comfort you, & in Jerusalem you shall be comforted. {14} You shall see, & your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall spring as an herb, and the hand of our Lord shall be known to his servants, & he shall be wrath with his enemies. {15} Because lo our Lord will come in fire, & his chariots as a whirlwind, to render his fury in indignation, & his rebuking in flames of fire: {16} because our Lord shall judge in fire, & in his sword to all flesh, and the slain of our Lord shall be multiplied, {17} they that were sanctified, & thought themselves clean in the gardens behind the gate within, they that did eat swine's flesh, and abomination, and the mouse: they shall be confounded, saith our Lord. {18} But I know their works, and their cogitations: I come that I may gather together, with all nations and tongues: and they shall come and shall see my glory. {19} And I will put a sign in them, and I will send of them, that shall be saved, to the Gentiles into the sea, into Afrike, & Lydia, them that hold the arrow: into Italy, and Greece; to the islands far off, to them that have not heard of me, and have not seen my glory. And they shall shew forth my glory to the Gentiles: {20} and they shall bring all your brethren of all nations a gift to our Lord, upon horses, and in chariots, & in horse-litters, & on mules, and in coaches, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith our Lord, as if the children of Israel should bring in a gift in a clean vessel into the house of our Lord. {21} And I will take of them to be Priests, & Levites, saith our Lord. {22} Because as new heavens, and a new earth, which I make to stand before me, saith our Lord: so shall your seed stand, and your name. {23} And there shall be month after month, and sabbath after sabbath: all flesh shall come to adore before my face, saith our Lord. {24} And they shall go out, and see the carcasses of the men, that have transgressed against me: their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be quenched: and they shall be even unto satiety of sight to all flesh.

THE PROPHECY OF JEREMIE

Jeremy Prophesied in the times of Josias, Joakim, and Sedecias Kings of Juda: 5. being sanctified in his mother's womb, is sent in his tender age to Prophecy 11. the destruction of Jerusalem, 17. God giving him courage against his persecutors.

{1} THE words of Jeremy the son of Helcias, of the Priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin. {2} The word of our Lord which was made to him in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda, in the thirteenth year of his kingdom. {3} And the word was made in the days of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of Sedecias the son of Josias king of Juda, even unto the transmigration of Jerusalem, in the fifth month. {4} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {5} Before I formed thee in the womb, I knew thee: and before thou camest forth of the matrice, I sanctified thee, and a Prophet in the Gentiles I gave thee. {6} And I said: A a a, o Lord God: Behold I can not speak, because I am a child. {7} And our Lord said unto me: Say not: I am a child: for to all things, to which

I shall send thee, thou shalt go: and all things whatsoever I shall command thee, thou shalt speak. {8} Be not afraid of their face: because I am with thee, to deliver thee, saith our Lord. {9} And our Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: & our Lord said to me: Behold I have given my words in thy mouth: {10} Behold I have appointed thee this day over the Gentiles, and over kingdoms, that thou mayst pluck up, and destroy, and waste, and dissipate, and build, and plant. {11} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: What seest thou Jeremy? And I said: I see a rod watching. {12} And our Lord said to me? Well hast thou seen; because I will watch upon my word to do it. {13} And the word of our Lord was made to me the second time, saying: What seest thou? And I said: I see a pot boiling hot, and the face thereof from the face of the North. {14} And our Lord said unto me: From the North shall evil be opened upon all the inhabitants of the land. {15} Because lo I will call together all the kindreds of the kingdoms of the North, saith our Lord: and they shall come, and shall set every one his throne in the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and upon all the walls thereof round about, and upon all the cities of Juda. {16} And I will speak my judgements with them, touching all the wickedness of them that have forsaken me, and have offered to strange gods, and have adored the work of their own hands. {17} Thou therefore gird thy loins, & rise, and speak to them all things that I command thee. Be not afraid of their face: for I will make thee not to fear their countenance. {18} For I have given thee this day to be as a fenced city, and as an iron pillar, and as a brazen wall over all the land of the kings of Juda, to the Princes thereof, & to the Priests, and to the people of the land. {19} And they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: because I am with thee, saith our Lord, to deliver thee.

God expostulateth with the Jews, 6. that they regard not his great benefits. 8. Some Priests, and (pretended) Prophets serving false God. 23. and denying their fault, 25. are obstinate in idolatry: 36. for which they shall be confounded.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith our Lord: I {2} Go, and cry in the ears of have remembered thee, pitying thy youth, and the charity of thy despousing, when thou didst follow me in the desert, in a land that is not sown. {3} Israel is holy to our Lord, the first fruits of his fruits: all they that do devour it do sin: evil shall come upon them, saith our Lord. {4} Hear ye the word of our Lord, o house of Jacob, and all ye kindreds of the house of Israel: {5} thus saith our Lord: What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they have made themselves far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain? {6} And they have not said: Where is our Lord, that made us come up out of the land of Aegypt, that led us through the desert, through a land inhabitable and without way, through a land of thirst, & the image of death, through a land, wherein no man walked, nor any man dwelt? {7} And I brought you into the land of Carmel, that you might eat the fruit thereof, and the best things thereof: and being entered in, you have contaminated my land, & made mine inheritance an abomination. {8} The Priests have not said: Where is our Lord? And they that held the law knew me not: and the Pastors have transgressed against me, and the Prophets have prophesied in Baal, and have followed idols. {9} Therefore will I yet contend in judgement with you, saith our Lord, and I will plead with your children. {10} Pass ye to the isles of Cethim, and see: and send into Cedar, and consider earnestly, & see if there hath the like thing been done. {11} If a nation hath changed their gods, & surely they are not gods: but my people hath changed their glory into an idol. {12} Be astonished, o heavens, upon this, and o gates thereof be ye desolate exceedingly, saith our Lord. {13} For two evils hath my people done, Me they have forsaken the fountain of living water, & have digged to themselves cisterns: broken cisterns, that are not able to hold waters. {14} Why, is Israel a bondman, or a servant born in the house? Why then is he become a prey? {15} The lions have roared upon him, & have given their voice, they have made his land a wilderness: his cities are burnt up, & there is none to dwell in them. {16} The children also of Memphis and Taphnes have deflowered thee, even to the crown of the head. {17} Is not this done to thee, because thou didst forsake the Lord thy God at that time, when he led thee by the way? {18} And now what wilt thou in the way of Aegypt, to drink the troubled water? And what hast thou to do with the way of the Assyrians, to drink the waters of the river? {19} Thy malice shall reprove thee, and thine apostasy shall rebuke thee. Know thou, & see that it is an evil & a bitter thing for thee, to have left the Lord thy God, & that my fear is not with thee, saith our Lord the God of hosts. {20} From the beginning thou hast broken my yoke, thou hast burst my bonds, & thou saidst: I will not serve. For on every little high hill, & under every green thick tree thou wast laid down as an harlot. {21} But I planted thee an elect vineyard, all true seed: how then art thou turned unto me into that which is depraved, o strange vineyard? {22} If thou shalt wash thyself with nitre, and multiply to thyself the herb borith, thou art spotted in thine iniquity before me, saith our Lord God. {23} How sayst thou: I am not polluted, I have not walked after Baalim? See thy ways in the valley, know what thou hast done: a swift courser that rideth his ways. {24} The wild Ass accustomed to the wilderness in the desire of his soul, hath drawn the wind of his love: none shall turn her away: all that seek her shall not fail: in her monthly flowers they shall find her. {25} Stay thy foot from nakedness, and thy throat from thirst. And thou saidst: I have despaired, no, I will not do it: for I have loved strangers, and I will walk after them. {26} As the thief is confounded when he is taken, so is the house of Israel confounded, they and their kings, the princes and priests, and their prophets, {27} saying to wood: Thou art my father: and to stone: Thou hast begotten me: they have turned the back to me, & not the face: and in the time of their affliction they will say: Arise, and deliver us. {28} Where are the gods, whom thou hast made to thee? Let them arise and deliver thee in the time of thine affliction: for according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, o Juda. {29} What will you contend with me in judgement? You have all forsaken me, saith our Lord. {30} In vain have I stricken your children, they have not received discipline: your sword hath devoured your Prophets, as a wasting lion is your generation. {31} See ye the word of our Lord: why, am I become a wilderness to Israel, or a lateward springing land? Why then hath my people said: We have revolted, we will no more come to thee? {32} Will a Virgin forget her ornament, or a bride the stomacher of her breast? But my people hath forgotten me innumerable days. {33} Why dost thou endeavour to shew thy way good to seek love, which moreover also hast taught thy malices to be thy ways. {34} And in thy wings is found the blood of the souls of the poor and innocents? Not in ditches have I found them, but in all places, which before I have mentioned. {35} And thou hast said: I am without sin and innocent: and therefore let thy fury be turned away from me. Behold, I will contend with thee in judgement, because thou hast said: I have not sinned. {36} How vile art thou become exceedingly, iterating thy ways! And thou shalt be confounded of Aegypt, as thou art confounded of Assur. {37} For from hence also thou shalt go, & thy hands shall be upon thy head: because the Lord hath destroyed thy confidence, and thou shalt have nothing prosperous therein.

Idolaters (and other sinners) are invited to repent, with promise of remission: 6. but neither the kingdom of Israel nor Juda will return. 14. God still calling, some Jews, and many Gentiles come to Christ.

{1} IT is commonly said: If a man put away his wife, and she departing from him marry an other man, will he return to her any more? Shall not that woman be polluted and contaminated? But thou hast committed fornication with many lovers: nevertheless return unto me, saith our Lord, and I will receive thee. {2} Lift up thine eyes direct, and see where thou hast not been polluted: thou didst sit in the ways, expecting them as a robber in the wilderness: and thou hast polluted the land in thy fornications, and in thy malices. {3} For which thing the drops of rain were kept back, and there was no lateward shower: thou hadst an harlot's forehead, thou wouldest not blush. {4} Therefore at the least from henceforth call me: Thou art my father, the guide of my virginity. {5} Why, wilt thou be angry for ever, or wilt thou persevere unto the end? Lo, thou hast spoken, and hast done evils, and hast prevailed. {6} And our Lord said to me in the days of Josias the king: Hast thou seen what things the revolter Israel hath done? She hath gone of herself upon every high mountain, and under every thick green tree and hath fornicated there. {7} And I said, when she had done all these things: Return to me, & she returned not. And Juda her transgressing sister saw, {8} because the rebel Israel had played the harlot, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce: and Juda her transgressing sister was not afraid, but went and played the harlot also herself. {9} And with the facility of her fornication she contaminated the land, played the harlot with stone & wood. {10} And in all these things Juda her transgressing sister hath not returned to me in her whole heart, but in falsehood, saith our Lord. {11} And our Lord said to me: The rebellious Israel hath justified her soul, in comparison of the transgressor Juda. {12} Go, and cry these words against the North, and thou shalt say: Return, o rebellious Israel, saith our Lord, and I will not turn away my face from you: because I am holy, saith our Lord, and I will not be angry for ever. {13} But yet know thou thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God: and thou hast dispersed thy ways to strangers under every thick green tree, and hast not heard my voice, saith our Lord. {14} Return, o ye revolting children, saith our Lord: because I am your husband: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a kindred, and will bring you into Sion. {15} And I will give you Pastors according to my heart, and they shall feed you with knowledge and doctrine. {16} And when you shall be multiplied and increase in the land in those days, saith our Lord, they shall say no more: The Ark of the Testament of our Lord: neither shall it ascend upon their heart, neither shall they be mindful thereof, neither shall it be visited, neither shall that be done any more. {17} In that time Jerusalem shall be called the throne of our Lord: & all Gentiles shall be gathered together to it, in the name of our Lord into Jerusalem, & they shall not walk after the perversity of their most wicked heart. {18} In those days the house of Juda shall go to the house of Israel, & they shall come together from the land of the North to the land which I gave to your fathers. {19} But I said: How shall I make thee as children, and give thee a land worthy to be desired, the goodly inheritance of the hosts of the Gentiles? And I said: Thou shalt call me father, & shalt not cease to walk after me. {20} But as if a woman should contemn her lover, so hath the house of Israel contemned me, saith our Lord. {21} A voice was heard in the ways, weeping & howling of the children of Israel: because they have made their way unjust, they have forgotten our Lord their God. {22} Return ye revolting children, & I will heal your revoltings. Behold we come to thee: for thou art the Lord our God. {23} In very deed the little hills were liars, and the multitude of the mountains: verily in the Lord our God is the salvation of Israel. {24} Confusion hath eaten the labour of our fathers from our youth, their flocks, and their herds, their sons and their daughters {25} We shall sleep in our confusion, and our ignominy shall cover us, because we have sinned to the Lord our God, we and our fathers from our youth even to this day: and we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God.

An admonition to sincere repentance, and circumcision of the heart: 5. with threats of grievous punishment to those, that persist in sin. 19. which the Prophet foreseeing lamenteth the vastation of the land: 27. yet mixt with consolation, that it shall not be utterly ruined.

{1} IF thou wilt return, o Israel, saith our Lord, return to me: if thou wilt take away thy stumbling blocks from my face, thou shalt not be moved. {2} And thou shalt swear: Our Lord liveth, in truth, & in judgement, and in justice: and the Gentiles shall bless him, & shall praise him. {3} For thus saith our Lord to the man of Juda, and to Jerusalem: Make unto you new fallow ground, & sow not upon thorns: {4} be circumcised to our Lord, and take away the prepuces of your hearts, ye men of Juda, and inhabitants of Jerusalem: lest perhaps mine indignation go forth as fire, and be kindled, & there be none that can quench it: because of the malice of your cogitations. {5} Declare ye in Juda, and make it heard in Jerusalem: speak, and sound with the trumpet in the land: cry strongly, and say: Assemble yourselves, & let us enter into the fenced cities, {6} lift up the sign in Sion. Take courage, stand not, because I do bring evil from the North, & great destruction. {7} The Lion is come up out of his den, and the robber of the Gentiles hath lifted up himself: he is come forth out of his place, that he may make thy land as a wilderness: thy cities shall be wasted, remaining without an inhabiter. {8} For this gird yourselves with cloths of hair, mourn and howl: because the wrath of the fury of our Lord is not turned away from us. {9} And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: The heart of the king shall perish, & the heart of the Princes: and the Priests shall be astonished, and the Prophets shall be amazed. {10} And I said: Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God, hast thou then deceived this people & Jerusalem, saying: You shall have peace: and behold the sword hath come even to the soul? {11} At that time it shall be said to this people, & to Jerusalem: {784} A burning wind in the ways, that are in the desert of the way of the daughter of my people, not to fan and to purge. {12} A full spirit from these shall come to me: and now I will speak my judgement with them. {13} Behold he shall come in a cloud, and his chariots as a tempest: his horses are swifter than eagles: woe unto us, because we are destroyed {14} Wash thy heart from malice, o Jerusalem, that thou mayst be saved: how long shall hurtful cogitations abide in thee? {15} For a voice of one declaring from Dan, and notifying the idol from mount Ephraim. {16} Say ye to the Gentiles: lo it is heard in Jerusalem, that there come keepers from a far country, and sound their voice upon the cities of Juda. {17} They are set upon her round about, as the keepers of fields: because she hath provoked me to wrath, saith our Lord. {18} Thy ways and thy cogitations have done these things to thee: this thy malice, because it is bitter, because it hath touched thy heart. {19} My belly, my belly asketh, the senses of my heart are troubled in me, I will not hold my peace, because my soul hath heard the voice of the trumpet, the cry of battle. {20} Destruction is called upon destruction, and all the earth is wasted: my tents are wasted quickly, suddenly my skins. {21} How long shall I see one that flyeth away, shall I hear the voice of the trumpet? {22} Because my foolish people have not known me: they are unwise children, and without wit: they are wise to do evils, but to do well they have not known. {23} I beheld the earth, and lo it was void, and a thing of nothing: and the heavens, & there was no light in them. {24} I saw the mountains, and lo they were moved: and all the little hills were troubled. {25} I beheld, and there was not a man: and every fowl of the air was departed. {26} I looked, and behold Carmel made desert: and all the cities thereof were destroyed at the face of our Lord, and at the face of the wrath of his fury. {27} For thus saith our Lord: All the land shall be desolate, but yet I will not make a consummation. {28} The earth shall mourn, and the heavens shall lament from above: because I have spoken, I have purposed, and it hath not repented me, neither am I turned away from it. {29} At the voice of the horseman, and the archer, all the city is fled: they have entered into high places, and have climbed the rocks: all the cities are forsaken, and there dwelleth not a man in them. {30} But thou being wasted, what wilt thou do? When thou shalt clothe thy self in scarlet, when thou shalt be adorned with golden jewels, and shalt paint thine eyes with stibic stone, thou shalt be trimmed in vain: thy lovers have contemned thee, they will seek thy life. {31} For I have heard the voice as of a travailing woman, anguishes as of a woman in labour of child. The voice of the daughter of Sion, amongst them that die, and stretch forth their hands: woe is me, because my soul hath fainted for them that are slain.

All sorts of higher and lower degrees transgress God's law: 9. and shall be punished.

{1} GO round about the ways of Jerusalem, and look, and consider, & seek in the streets thereof, whether you can find a man that doth judgements, and seeketh fidelity: and I will be propitious unto him. {2} Yea if they say: Our Lord liveth this also they will swear falsely. {3} O Lord thine eyes regard fidelity: thou hast stricken them, and they were not sorry: thou hast broken them, and they have refused to receive discipline: they have hardened their faces more than the rock, and they would not return. {4} But I said: Perhaps they are poor and foolish, not knowing the way of the Lord, the judgement of their God. {5} I will go therefore to the great men, and will speak to them: for they have known the way of their Lord: and behold these altogether have more broken the yoke, have burst the bonds. {6} Therefore hath the lion out of the wood stricken them, the wolf in the evening hath wasted them, the leopard watching upon their cities: every one of them that shall come forth, shall be taken, because their prevarications, {785} are multiplied, their revoltings are strengthened. {7} Whereupon can I be propitious to thee? Thy children have forsaken me, and swear by them, that are not gods: I filled them, and they committed adultery, and did riotously in the harlot's house. {8} They are become as amorous horses, and stallions: every one neighed at his neighbour's wife: {9} Why, shall I not visit upon these things, saith our Lord? And on such a nation shall not my soul take revenge? {10} Scale the walls thereof, and dissipate them, but make not a consummation: take away the branches thereof, because they are not the Lord's. {11} For by prevarication hath the house of Israel prevaricated against me, and the house of Juda, saith our Lord. {12} They have denied our Lord, and said: It is not he: neither shall the evil come upon us: we shall not see sword and famine. {13} The Prophets have spoken into the wind, and there was no answer in them: these things therefore shall happen to them. {14} Thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: Because you have spoken this word: behold, I give my words in thy mouth as fire, & this people as sticks, & it shall devour them {15} Behold I will bring upon you a nation from a far, o house of Israel, saith our Lord: a strong nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose tongue thou shalt not know, nor understand what it speaketh. {16} The quiver thereof is as an open sepulchre, they are all strong. {17} And it shall eat thy corn, and thy bread: it shall devour thy sons, and thy daughters: it shall eat thy flock, and thy herds: it shall eat thy vineyard, and thy fig: and it shall destroy thy fenced cities, wherein thou hast confidence, with the sword. {18} But yet in those days, saith our Lord, I will not bring you into consummation. {19} And if you shall say: Why hath the Lord our God done all these things to us? Thou shalt say to them: As you have forsaken me, and served a strange god in your own land, so shall you serve strange ones in a land not your own. {20} Declare ye this to the house of Jacob, and make it heard in Juda, saying: {21} Hear thou foolish people, that hast no heart, which having eyes, seest not: and ears, and hearest not. {22} Me then will you not fear, saith our Lord: and at my presence will ye not be sorry? Who have set the sand a limit for the sea, an everlasting precept, that shall not pass, and they shall be moved, and shall not prevail: and the waves thereof shall swell, and shall not pass over it. {23} But to this people their heart is become incredulous and exasperating, they are revolted and departed. {24}

And they have not said in their heart: Let us fear the Lord our God, who giveth us the timely and lateward rain in due season: who preserveth the fullness of the yearly harvest unto us. {25} Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your sins have stayed good from you. {26} Because there are found impious men in my people, that lie in wait as fowlers setting snares & traps to take men. {27} As a net full of birds, so their houses are full of guile: therefore are they magnified, and enriched. {28} They are made gross and fat: and have transgressed my words most wickedly. The cause of the widow they have not judged, the cause of the pupil they have not directed, and the judgement of the poor they have not judged. {29} Shall I not visit upon these things, Saith our Lord? Or upon such a nation shall not my soul take revenge? {30} Astonishment and marvelous things are done in the land. {31} The Prophets prophesied a lie, and the Priests clapped with their hands: and my people hath loved such things: what shall be done therefore in the later end thereof?

Jerusalem shall be destroyed for transgressing God's law: 8. and contemning admonitions. 16. Yet God admonisheth again the Jews, and they contemning, 18. he calleth the Gentiles, and rejecteth the Jews.

{1} TAKE courage ye children of Benjamin in the midst of Jerusalem, and in Thecua sound with the trumpet, and over Bethacarem lift up the standard: because there is evil seen from the North, and great destruction. {2} I have resembled the daughter of Sion to a beautiful and delicate woman. {3} To her shall Pastors come, {786} and their flocks: they have pitched tents in her round about: every one shall feed them that are under his hand. {4} Sanctify ye battle upon her: arise, and let us go up in the midday: woe unto us, because the day is declined, because the shadows of the evening are wachsen longer. {5} Arise, and let us go up in the night, and destroy her houses. {6} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: Hew down her wood, cast a trench about Jerusalem: this is the city of visitation, all oppression is in the midst thereof. {7} As a cistern maketh cold the water thereof, so hath she made cold her malice: iniquity and spoil shall be heard in her, infirmity and plague always before me. {8} Be thou taught Jerusalem, lest perhaps my soul depart from thee, lest perhaps I make thee a desert land not habitable. {9} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Even to one cluster shall they gather as in a vineyard the remains of Israel, turn back thy hand, as the grape gatherer to the basket. {10} To whom shall I speak? And whom shall I contest, that he may hear? Behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and they can not hear: behold the word of our Lord is become unto them as a reproach: and they will not receive it. {11} Therefore am I full of the fury of our Lord, I have laboured sustaining: pour out upon the little one without, and upon the counsel of the young men together: for man with woman shall be taken, the ancient with him that is full of days. {12} And their houses shall pass to others, their lands and wives together: because I will extend my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith our Lord. {13} For from the lesser even to the greater, all study avarice: and from the Prophets even to the Priest, all commit guile. {14} And they cured the destruction of the daughter of my people with ignominy, saying: Peace, peace: and there was not peace. {15} They were confounded, because they did abomination: yea rather they were not confounded with confusion, and they knew not how to blush, for the which thing, they shall fall among them that fall: in the time of their visitation, they shall fall down, saith our Lord. {16} Thus saith our Lord: Stand ye upon the ways, and see, and ask of the old paths, which is the good way, and walk ye in it: and you shall find refreshing for your souls. And they said: We will not walk. {17} And I appointed watchmen over you. Hear ye the voice of the trumpet. And they said: We will not hear. {18} Therefore hear ye, o Gentiles, and thou congregation know, what great things I will do to them. {19} Hear o earth: Behold I will bring evils upon this people, the fruits of their cogitations: because they have not heard my words, and they have cast off my law. {20} To what purpose bring you me frankincense from Saba, and the sweet swelling came from a far country? Your holocausts are not acceptable, and your victims have not pleased me. {21} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will bring ruin upon this people, and the fathers with the children shall fall in them together, neighbour and neighbour, and they shall perish. {22} Thus saith our Lord: Behold there cometh a people from the land of the North, and a great nation shall arise up from the ends of the earth. {23} It shall take arrow and shield: it is cruel, and will have no mercy. The voice thereof shall sound as the sea: and they shall mount upon horses, prepared as a man to battle, against thee, o daughter of Sion. {24} We have heard the fame thereof, our hands are dissolved: tribulation hath caught us, sorrows as a woman in travail. {25} Go not out of the fields, and walk not in the way: because the sword of the enemy is fear round about. {26} Be girded with sackcloth, o daughter of my people, and be sprinkled with ashes: make thee a bitter lamentation as the mourning of the only-begotten, because the destroyer shall suddenly come upon us. {27} I have set thee a strong prover in my people: and thou shalt know, and prove their way. {28} All these Princes are declining, walking deceitfully, brass and iron: they are all corrupted. {29} The bellows have failed, the lead is consumed in the fire, the founder hath melted in vain: for their malices are not consumed. {30} Call ye them reprobate silver, because our Lord hath rejected them.

God promiseth to dwell with those that walk right ways: 8. otherwise the material temple will not save them: 16. neither the prayers of the Prophet shall help them, persisting in their sins: 21. nor sacrifice, but obedience to God's law.

{1} THE word, that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: the house of the Lord, and preach there {2} Stand in the gate of this word, and say: Hear ye the word of our Lord all Juda, which go in by these gates, to adore our Lord. {3} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Make your ways good, and your studies: and I will dwell with you in this place. {4} Trust not in words of lying, saying: The temple of our Lord, the temple of our Lord, it is the temple of our Lord. {5} For if you shall well direct your ways, and your studies: if you shall do judgement between a man and his neighbour, {6} to the stranger, and to the pupil, and to the widow shall do no oppression, nor shed innocent blood in this place, and walk not after strange gods to your own evil: {7} I will dwell with you in this place: in the land, which I gave to your fathers from the beginning and for ever. {8} Behold you trust to your selves in words of lying: which shall not profit you: {9} to steal, to murder, to commit adultery, to swear falsely, to offer to Baalim, and to go after strange gods, which you know not. {10} And you have come, and stood before me in this house, in which my name is invoked, and have said: We are delivered because we have done all these abominations. {11} Why, is this house then wherein my name is invoked, in your eyes become a den of thieves? I, even I am: I have seen, saith our Lord. {12} Go ye to my place in Silo, where my name dwelt from the beginning: and see what I have done to it for the malice of my people Israel: {13} and now because you have done all these works, saith our Lord: and I have spoken to you early rising, and speaking, & you have not heard: and I have called you, and you have not answered: {14} I will do to this house, wherein my name is invoked, & wherein you have confidence: and to the place which I have given you and your fathers, as I did to Silo. {15} And I will cast you away from my face, as I have cast away all your brethren, the whole seed of Ephraim. {16} Thou therefore pray not for this people, neither take unto thee praise and prayer for them, and resist me not: because I will not hear thee. {17} Seest thou not what these do in the cities of Juda, and in the street of Jerusalem? {18} The children gather the sticks, & the fathers kindle the fire, & the women temper the dough to make cakes unto the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto strange gods, and to provoke me to wrath. {19} Why do they provoke me to wrath? Saith our Lord: and not themselves to the confusion of their own countenance? {20} Therefore this saith our Lord God: Behold my fury, and my indignation is poured upon this place, upon men, and upon beasts, and upon the wood of the country, and upon the fruits of the land, and it shall be kindled, and shall not be quenched. {21} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Add your holocausts to your victims, and eat ye the flesh. {22} Because I speake not with your fathers, and I commanded them not in the day, that I brought them out of the land of Aegypt, touching the word of holocausts and victims. {23} But this word I commanded them, saying: Hear ye my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people: and walk ye in all the way, that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you. {24} And they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but have gone in their pleasures, and in the perversity of their wicked heart: and have been made backward and not forward, {25} from the day that their fathers came out of the land of Aegypt, even to this day. And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets by day, rising early, and sending. {26} And they have not heard me, nor inclined their ear: but they have hardened their neck, and have wrought worse than their fathers. {27} And thou shalt speak unto them all these words, and they will not hear thee: and thou shalt call them, and they will not answer thee. {28} And thou shalt say to them: This is the nation which hath not heard the voice of the Lord their God, nor received discipline: faith is perished, and is taken away out of their mouth. {29} Poll thy hair, and cast it away, and take lamentation on high: because our Lord hath cast off, and hath left the generation of his fury, {30} because the children of Juda have done evil in mine eyes, saith our Lord. They have put their stumbling blocks in the house, wherein my name is invoked, that they might pollute it: {31} and they have built the excuses of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Ennom, that they might burn their sons, and their daughters with fire: which things I commanded not, nor thought in my heart. {32} Therefore lo the days shall come, saith our Lord, and it shall no more be said: Topheth, and the valley of the son of Ennom: but the valley of slaughter: and they shall bury in Topheth because there is no place. {33} And the carcass of this people shall be for meats to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the land, and there shall be none to drive them away. {34} And I will make to cease out of the cities of Juda, and out of the streets of Jerusalem, the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride: for the land shall be in desolation.

The Babylonians spoiling Jerusalem will cast the bones of Kings, Priests, Prophets, and others out of their sepulchres, and most cruelly afflict the living: 5. God so permitting, because they would not repent, when the true Prophets admonished them so to do. 18. All which the Prophet foreseeing lamenteth.

{1} AT that time, saith our Lord, they will cast out the bones of the kings of Juda, and the bones of the Princes thereof, and the bones of Priests, and the bones of the Prophets, and the bones of them that inhabit Jerusalem, out of their sepulchres. {2} And they shall spread them abroad in the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, which they have loved, and which they have served, & after which they have walked, and which they have sought, and adored: they shall not be gathered, and they shall not be buried: they shall be as a dunghill upon the face of the earth. {3} And they shall choose rather death than life, all that shall be remaining of this wicked kindred in all places, which are left, to the which I have cast them out, saith the Lord of hosts. {4} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: Shall not he that falleth rise again? And he that is turned away, shall he not turn again? {5} Why then is this people in Jerusalem turned away with a contentious revolting? They have apprehended lying, and would not return. {6} I attended, and harkened: no man speaketh that which is good, there is none that doth penance for his sin, saying: What have I done? They are all turned to their own course, as an horse going with violence to battle. {7} The kite in the heaven hath known her time: the turtle, and the swallow, and the stork have observed the time of their coming: but my people have not known the judgement of the Lord. {8} How say you: We are wise, and the law of our Lord is with us? In very deed the lying pen of the Scribes hath wrought lying. {9} The wise are confounded, they are terrified and taken: for they have cast away the word of our Lord, and there is no wisdom in them. {10} Therefore will I give their women to strangers, their fields to inheritours: because from the least even to the greatest all follow avarice: from the Prophet even to the Priest all make lies. {11} And they healed the destruction of the daughter of my people to ignominy, saying: Peace, peace, when there was not peace. {12} They are confounded, because they have done abomination: yea rather they are not confounded with confusion, and they have not known how to blush: therefore shall they fall among them that fall, in the time of their visitation they shall fall, saith our Lord. {13} Gathering I will gather them together, saith our Lord, there is no grape in the vines, and there are no figs on the figtree, the leaf is fallen down: and I have given them the things that are passed. {14} Why do we sit? Come together and let us enter into the fenced city, and let us be silent there: because the Lord our God hath made us to be silent, and hath given us water of gall for drink: for we have sinned to our Lord. {15} We expected peace and there was no good: a time of medicine and behold fear. {16} From Dan was the snoring noise of his horses heard, with the voice of the neighings of his fighting horses all the land was moved: and they came and devoured the land, and the fullness thereof: the city & the inhabitants thereof. {17} For behold I will send you serpents basilisks, for which there is no enchantment: and they shall bite you, saith our Lord. {18} My sorrow is above sorrow, my heart mourning within me. {19} Behold the voice of the daughter of my people from a far country: Is not our Lord in Sion: or is not her king in her? Why then have they provoked me to wrath in their sculptiles, & in strange vanities: {20} The harvest is past, summer is ended: and we are not saved. {21} For the affliction of the daughter of my people I am afflicted, and made sorrowful, astonishment hath taken me. {22} Is there no rosin in Galaad? Or is there no physician there? Why then is not the wound of the daughter of my people closed?

The prophet lamenteth the future calamity of the people, and their false dealing each with others: 12. willing all to consider that their wickedness is the cause of their misery, 17. and to mourn, 23. and return to God: 25. who otherwise will punish both Gentiles, and Jews not circumcised in heart.

{1} WHO will give water to my head, and to mine eyes a fountain of tears? And I will weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people. {2} Who will give me in the wilderness an inn of wayfaring men, and I will forsake my people, and depart from them? Because they are all adulterers, an assembly of transgressors. {3} And they have bent their tongue, as a bow of lying and not of truth: they have taken courage in the land, because they have proceeded from evil to evil, and me they have not known, saith our Lord. {4} Let every man take heed to himself of his neighbour, and in every brother of his, let him not have affiance: because every brother supplanting will supplant, and every friend will walk deceitfully. {5} And man shall scorn his brother, and they will not speak truth: for they have taught their tongue to speak lies: they have laboured to do unjustly. {6} Thine inhabitation is in the midst of deceit: in deceit they have refused to know me, saith our Lord. {7} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will melt, and will try them: for what else shall I do at the face of the daughter of my people? {8} There tongue is a wandering arrow, it hath spoken guile: in his mouth he hath spoken peace with his friend, and secretly he layeth wait for him. {9} Shall I not visit upon these things, saith our Lord? Or upon such a nation shall not my soul be revenged? {10} Upon the mountains I will take up weeping and lamentation, & upon the beautiful places of the desert, mourning: because they are burnt, for that there is not a man that passeth through: and they have not heard the voice of the owner: from the fowl of the air unto the beasts they are gone away & departed. {11} And I will make Jerusalem to be heaps of sand, and dens of dragons: and I will give the cities of Juda into desolation, because there is not an inhabiter. {12} Who is a wise man, that can understand this, & to whom the word of the mouth of our Lord may be made, that he may declare this, why the earth hath perished, and is burnt as a desert, because there is none that passeth through? {13} And our Lord said: Because they have forsaken my law, which I gave them, and have not heard my voice, & have not walked in it. {14} And they have gone after the perversity of their own heart, and after Baalim, which they learned of their fathers. {15} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will feed this people with wormwood, and give them water of gall to drink. {16} And I will disperse them in the Nations, which they & their fathers have not known: & I will send the sword after them, till they be consumed. {17} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Consider & call ye lamenting women, & let them come: & send to them that are wise, and let them make haste: {18} let them hasten & take up a lamentation upon us: let our eyes shed tears, & our eye-lids run down with waters. {19} Because a voice of lamentation is heard from Sion: How are we wasted and confounded exceedingly? Because we have left the land, because our tabernacles are cast down. {20} Hear therefore ye women the word of our Lord: and let your ears take the word of his mouth: and teach your daughters lamentation: & every one her neighbour, mourning: {21} because death is come up through our windows, it is entered into our houses, to destroy the children from without, the young men out of the streets. {22} Speak: Thus saith our Lord: and the carcass of man shall fall as dung upon the face of the country, and as a grass behind the back of the mower, and there is none to gather it. {23} Thus saith our Lord: Let not the wiseman glory in his wisdom, & let not the strong man glory in his strength, & let not the rich man glory in his riches: {24} but he that glorieth, let him glory in this, to understand & know me, because I am the Lord that do mercy and judgement, & justice in the earth: for these things please me, saith our Lord {25} Behold, the days come, saith our Lord; & I will visit upon every one that hath the prepuce circumcised. {26} upon Aegypt, and upon Juda, & upon Edom, and upon the children of Ammon, & upon Moab, & upon all that have their hair polled, dwelling in the desert: because all nations have the prepuce, but all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in the heart.

Influence of stars, nor imagined power of idols, is not to be feared, but God only whose Majesty is infinite, and idols have no power at all. 19. Jerusalem lamenteth, 24. and prayeth God to pardon and protect his own people.

{1} HEAR ye the word, which our Lord hath spoken concerning you, o house of Israel. {2} Thus saith our Lord: According to the ways of the Gentiles learn not: and of the signs of heaven, which the heathen fear, be not afraid: {3} Because the laws of the people are vain: because the work of the hand of the artificer hath cut a tree out of the forest with an axe: {4} with silver & gold he hath decked it: with nails and hammers he hath compacted it, that it fall not asunder. {5} They are framed after the similitude of a palm tree, & shall not speak: being carried they shall be removed, because they are not able to go. Therefore fear them not, because they can neither do ill nor well. {6} There is not the like unto thee o Lord: thou art great, and great is thy name in strength. {7} Who shall not fear thee o King of Nations? For thine is the glory: among all the wise of the Gentiles, & in all their kingdoms there is none like unto thee. {8} They shall be proved altogether unwise & foolish: the doctrine of their vanity is wood. {9} Silver wrapped up is brought from Tharsis, and gold from Ophaz: the work of the artificer, & the hands of the coppersmith: hyacinth and purple are their clothing: all these things are the work of artificers. {10} But our Lord is the true God: he is the living God, and the King everlasting: at his indignation the earth shall be moved: and the Gentiles shall not sustain his threatening. {11} Thus then you shall say to them: The gods that made not heaven and earth, let them perish from off the earth, and from these places, that are under heaven. {12} He that maketh the earth in his strength, prepareth the world in his wisdom, & with his prudence stretcheth out the heavens. {13} At his voice he giveth a multitude of waters in the heaven, & lifteth up the clouds from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings into rain, & bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures. {14} Every man is become a fool for knowledge, every crafts-man is confounded in the sculptile: because it is false that he hath melted, and there is no spirit in them. {15} They are vain things, and a work worthy to be laughed at: in the time of their visitation they shall perish. {16} The portion of Jacob is not like to these: for it is he that formed all things: and Israel is the rod of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name. {17} Gather thy confusion out of the land, thou that dwellest in besiege. {18} Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will cast forth far off the inhabitants of the land at this time: & I will afflict them, so that they may not be found. {19} Woe is me for my destruction, my plague is very sore. But I said. Truly this is mine infirmity, and I will bear it. {20} My tabernacle is wasted, all my cords are broken in sunder: my children are gone out from me, and are not: there is none to stretch out my tent any more, & to set up my curtains. {21} Because the Pastors have done foolishly, & have not sought our Lord: therefore have they not understood, and all their flock is dispersed. {22} Lo the voice of a bruit cometh, a great commotion from the land of the North: to make the cities of Juda a desert, and an habitation of dragons. {23} I know Lord, that man's way is not his own: neither is it in a man to walk, and to direct his steps. {24} Correct me o Lord, but yet in judgement: and not in thy fury, lest perhaps thou bring me to nothing. {25} Pour out thine indignation upon the Gentiles, that have not known thee, and upon the Provinces, that have not invoked thy name: because they have eaten Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and have dissipated his glory.

The Prophet being commanded to preach the observation of God's covenant is not heard. 9. The people follow their father's example, adoring idols: 11. and shall therefore be severely punished, neither shall their idols, nor prayers of the just profit them. 15. their malice against Christ is described, 20. and the revenge thereof.

{1} THE word that was made from our Lord to Jeremy, saying: this covenant, and speak to the men of {2} Hear ye the words of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, {3} and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Cursed is the man that shall not hear the words of this covenant, {4} which I commanded your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt, out of the iron furnace saying: Hear ye my voice, and do all things, that I command you: and you shall be my people, and I will be your God. {5} That I may raise up the oath, which I swear to your fathers, that I would give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as is this day. And I answered, and said: Amen Lord. {6} And our Lord said to me: Cry aloud all these words in the cities of Juda, and without Jerusalem saying: Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them: {7} because contesting I did contest your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt even to this day: arising early I contested, and said: Hear ye my voice: {8} and they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but went every one in the perversity of his own wicked heart: and I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, and they did not. {9} And our Lord said to me: Conspiracy is found in the men of Juda, and in the inhabitants of the men of Jerusalem. {10} They are returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, which would not hear my words: and these therefore have gone after strange gods, to serve them: the house of Israel, and the house of Juda hath made void my covenant, which I made with their fathers. {11} For which thing thus saith our Lord: Behold I will bring in evils upon them, out of which they shall not be able to go forth: and they shall cry to me, and I will not hear them. {12} And the cities of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods, unto whom they sacrificed, and they shall not save them in the time of their affliction. {13} For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods o Juda: and according to the number of the ways of Jerusalem thou didst set altars of confusion, altars to sacrifice to Baalim. {14} Thou therefore pray not for this people, and take not to thee praise and prayer for them: because I will not hear in the time of their cry unto me, in the time of their affliction. {15} What is it, that my beloved hath in my house done much wickedness? Shall the holy flesh take away from thee thy malices: in which thou hast boasted? {16} The Lord hath called thy name, a plentiful olive tree, fair, fruitful, beautiful: at the voice of a word, a great fire flamed up in it, and the shrubs thereof are burnt. {17} And the Lord of hosts that planted thee, hath spoken evil upon thee: for the evils of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda, which they have done to themselves, to provoke me, in offering to Baalim. {18} But thou Lord hast shewed me, and I have known: thou hast shewed me their studies. {19} And I as a mild lamb, that is carried to a victim: and I knew not that they devised counsels against me, saying: Let us cast wood on his bread, & rase him out of the land of the living, and let his name be mentioned no more. {20} But thou o Lord of Sabaoth, which judgest justly, & provest the reins & the hearts, let me see thy revenge of them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. {21} Therefore thus saith the Lord to the men of Anathoth, which seek thy life, and say: Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of our Lord, and thou shalt not die in our hands. {22} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will visit upon them: their young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall die in famine. {23} And there shall be no remains of them: for I will bring in evil upon the men of Anathoth, the year of their visitation.

It seemeth strange that the wicked prosper. 5. The Jews heretofore afflicted by weaker enemies, shall be more oppressed by the Babylonians. 10. Evil Pastors shall be punished. 14. and foreign enemies destroyed.

{1} THOU indeed o Lord art just, if I dispute with thee, but yet I will speak just things to thee: Why doth the way of the impious prosper: why is it well with all that transgress, and do wickedly? {2} Thou hast planted them, and they have taken root: they prosper and bring forth fruit: thou art nigh to their mouth, and far from their reins. {3} And thou Lord hast known me, thou hast seen me, and proved my heart with thee: gather them together as a flock to the victim, and sanctify them in the day of slaughter. {4} How long shall the land mourn, and the herb of every field be withered for malice of the inhabitants therein? Beast is consumed, and fowl: because they have said: He shall not see our latter ends. {5} If running with foot-men thou hast laboured: how canst thou contend with horses? And whereas in a land of peace thou hast been secure, what wilt thou do in the pride of Jordan? {6} For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, they also have fought against thee, and have cried after thee with full voice: believe them not when they shall speak good things unto thee. {7} I have forsaken my house, I have left mine inheritance: I have given my beloved soul into the hand of her enemies. {8} Mine inheritance is become unto me as a lion in the wood: it hath uttered a voice against me, therefore have I hated it. {9} Why, is mine inheritance unto me as a bird of diverse colours? Is it as a bird dyed throughout? Come, assemble yourselves all ye beasts of the land, make haste to devour. {10} Many pastors have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden down my portion: they have made my portion that was worthy to be desired, into a desert of desolation. {11} They have laid it into dissipation, and it hath mourned upon me. With desolation is all the land made desolate: because there is none that considereth in the heart. {12} Upon all the ways of the desert the wasters are come, because the sword of our Lord shall devour from one end of the land to the other end thereof: there is no peace to all flesh. {13} They have sown wheat, and reaped thorns: they have taken an inheritance, & it shall not profit them: you shall be ashamed of your fruits, for the wrath of the fury of our Lord. {14} Thus saith the Lord against all my most wicked neighbours: which touch the inheritance that I have distributed to my people of Israel: Behold I will pluck them out of their land, and the house of Juda I will pluck out of the midst of them. {15} And when I shall have plucked them out, I will return, and have mercy on them: and will bring them back, every man to his inheritance, and every man into his land. {16} And it shall be: if being taught they will learn the ways of my people, that they swear in my name: Our Lord liveth, as they have taught my people to swear by Baal: they shall be built in the midst of my people. {17} But if they will not hear, I will pluck out that nation with plucking up and with destruction, saith our Lord.

By a girdle first used and after left off. 8. is prefigured the rejection of the Jews: 12. till God's mercy recalleth them. 17. The Prophet lamenting their obstinacy, 22. sheweth that their sin is the cause of their misery.

{1} THUS saith our Lord to me: Go, and get thee a girdle of linen, and thou shalt put it about thy loins, and shalt not put it into water. {2} And I got a girdle according to the word of our Lord, and put it about my loins. {3} And the word of our Lord was made to me the second time, saying: {4} Take girdle, which thou hast gotten, which is about thy loins, and rising go to Euphrates, and hide it there in an hole of the rock. {5} And I went, and hid it in Euphrates, as our Lord had commanded me. {6} And it came to pass after many days, our Lord said to me: Arise, go to Euphrates: and take from thence the girdle, which I commanded thee that thou shouldst hide it there. {7} And I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place, where I had hid it: and behold the girdle was rotten, so that it was fit for no use. {8} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {9} Thus saith our Lord: so will I make the pride of Juda, and the great pride of Jerusalem. {10} This most wicked people, which will not hear my words, and walk in the perversity of their heart: & have gone after strange gods to serve them and to adore them: and they shall be as this girdle, which is fit for no use. {11} For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have I fast joined to me all the house of Israel, and all the house of Juda, saith our Lord: that they might be my people, and name, and praise, and glory: & they heard not. {12} Thou shalt say therefore unto them this word: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Every bottle shall be filled with wine. And they shall say to thee: Why, are we ignorant that every bottle shall be filled with wine? {13} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, & the kings that of the stock of David sit upon his throne, & the Priests, & the Prophets, & all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with drunkenness. {14} And I will disperse them every man from his brother, and the fathers and sons together, saith our Lord: I will not spare, and I will not yield: neither will I have mercy not to destroy them. {15} Hear ye, and give ear. Be not elevated, because our Lord hath spoken. {16} Give ye glory to our Lord your God, before it wax dark, and before your feet stumble at the dark mountains: you shall look for light, and he will turn it into the shadow of death, & into darkness. {17} But if you will not hear this, in secret my soul shall weep because of the pride: weeping it shall weep, and mine eye shall drop tears, because the flock of our Lord is taken. {18} Say to the king, and to her that ruleth: Be humbled, sit down: because the crown of your glory is come down from your head. {19} The cities of the South are shut, and there is none that may open them: all Juda is transported with a perfect transmigration. {20} Lift up your eyes and see, you that come from the North, where is the flock that is given thee, thy noble cattle? {21} What wilt thou say when he shall visit thee? For thou hast caught them against thee, and instructed them against thine own head: shall not sorrows apprehend thee, as a woman in travail? {22} And if thou shalt say in thy heart: why are these things come unto me? For the multitude of thine iniquity, thy more shamefully parts are discovered: the soles of thy feet are polluted. {23} If the Aethiopian can change his skin, or the leopard his spots: you also can do well, when you have learned evil. {24} And I will scatter them as stubble, which is violently taken with the wind in the desert. {25} This is thy lot, and portion of thy measure from me, saith our Lord, because thou hast forgotten me, and hast trusted in lying. {26} Wherefore I have also made bare thy thighs against thy face, and thine ignominy hath appeared, {27} thine adulteries, and thy neighing, the wickedness of thy fornication: upon the little hills in the field I have seen thine abominations. Woe to thee Jerusalem, thou wilt not be made clean after me: how long yet?

Jury shall be afflicted with drought and famine. 11. Neither shall the Prophets prayer, nor their fasts, nor sacrifices avail them. 14. False-Prophets shall perish with the seduced people. 17. Jeremy lamenting exhorteth them to repentance.

{1} THE word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy concerning the words of the drought. {2} Jury hath mourned, and the gates thereof are fallen down, and are obscured on the earth, and the cry of Jerusalem is come up. {3} The greater men have sent their inferiors to the water: they came to draw, they found no water, they carried back their vessels empty: they were confounded and afflicted, and covered their heads. {4} For the waste of the land, because there came no rain upon the earth, the husbandmen were confounded, they covered their heads. {5} For the hind also brought forth in the field, and left it: because there was no grass. {6} And the wild asses stood upon the rocks, they drew wind as dragons, their eyes failed, because there was no grass. {7} If our iniquities have answered us: Lord do for thy name's sake, because our revoltings are many, to thee we have sinned. {8} O expectation of Israel, the saviour thereof in the time of tribulation: why wilt thou be as a sojourner in the land, and as a wayfaring man turning in to lodge? {9} Why wilt thou be as a wandering man, as the strong that can not save? But thou o Lord art in us, and thy name is invoked upon us, forsake us not. {10} Thus saith our Lord to his people, which hath loved to move their feet, and have not rested, and hath not pleased our Lord: Now will he remember their iniquities, and visit their sins. {11} And our Lord said to me: Pray not for this people to good. {12} When they shall fast I will not hear their prayers: and if they shall offer holocausts and victims, I will not receive them: because with sword, famine, and pestilence I will consume them. {13} And I said: A a a, O Lord God, the Prophets say to them: You shall not see the sword, and there shall be no famine among you, but he will give you true peace in this place. {14} And our Lord said to me: The Prophets prophesy falsely in my name: I sent them not, and I commanded them not, neither have I spoken unto them: lying vision, and deceitful divination, guilefulness, and the seduction of their own heart they prophesy unto you. {15} Therefore thus saith our Lord of the Prophets, that prophesy in my name, whom I sent not, that say: There shall not be sword, and famine in this land: In sword and famine shall those Prophets be consumed. {16} And the peoples to whom they prophesy, shall be cast forth in the ways of Jerusalem through famine and sword, and there shall be none to bury them; they & their wives, their sons & their daughters, and I will pour out their evil upon them. {17} And thou shalt say this word unto them: Let mine eyes shed tears night & day, & not cease, because the virgin daughter of my people is afflicted with great affliction, with a very sore plague exceedingly. {18} If I shall go out to the fields, lo the slain with the sword: and If I enter into the city, lo the pined away with famine. For the Prophet & the Priest are gone into a land which they knew not. {19} Why, casting off hast thou cast away Juda, or hath thy soul abhorred Sion? Why then hast thou striken us, so that there is not health? We have expected peace, & there is no good: and a time of curing, and behold trouble. {20} We have known o Lord our impieties, the iniquities of our fathers, because we have sinned to thee. {21} Give us not into reproach for thy name's sake, neither make us to have the contumely of the throne of thy glory: remember, make not thy covenant with us void. {22} Why, are there among the sculptiles of the Gentiles that can rain? Or can the heavens give showers? Art not thou the Lord our God, whom we have expected? For thou hast made all these things.

Though Moyses and Samuel should pray for his people, yet God hath determined to punish them with plague, war, famine, and captivity, 6. for their impenitency. 10. The Prophet lamenteth that for his preaching the people is become worse, 15. and persecuteth him: 19. but God promiseth to deliver and to reward him.

{1} AND our Lord said to me: If Moyses & Samuel shall stand before me, my soul is not toward this people: cast them out from my face, and let them go forth. {2} And if they shall say unto thee: Whither shall we go forth? Thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: They that to death, to death, & they that to sword, to sword: & they that to famine, to famine: & they that to captivity, to captivity. {3} And I will visit upon them four kinds, saith our Lord: The sword to kill, and dogs to tear, and the fowls of the air, and beasts of the earth to devour and to destroy. {4} And I will give them into rage to all the kingdoms of the earth: because of Manasses the son of Ezechias the king of Juda, for all things that he did in Jerusalem. {5} For who shall have pity on thee Jerusalem? Or who shall be sorry for thee? Or who shall go to pray for thy peace? {6} Thou hast forsaken me, saith our Lord, thou hast gone backward: and I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, & will kill thee: I am weary in praying thee. {7} And I will scatter them with a fan in the gates of the land: I have slain and destroyed my people, and yet they are not returned from their ways. {8} Their widows are multiplied unto me above the sand of the sea: I have brought into them upon the mother of the young man a waster at noon day: I have cast terror suddenly upon the cities. {9} She is weakened that bare seven, her soul hath fainted: the sun went down to her, when it was yet day: she is confounded, and ashamed: and the residue of them I will give unto the sword in the sight of their enemies, saith our Lord. {10} Woe is me, my mother: why hast thou born me a man of brawling, a man of discord in all the earth? I have not lent to usury, neither hath any man lent unto me to usury: all curse me. {11} Our Lord saith: if thy remnant shall not be to good, if I have not holpen thee in the time of affliction, and in the time of tribulation against the enemy. {12} Why, shall iron be confederate with the iron from the North, and also brass? {13} Thy riches & thy treasures I will give into spoil for naught for all thy sins, and in all thy borders. {14} And I will bring thine enemies out of a land, which thou knowest not: because a fire is kindled in my fury, it shall burn upon you. {15} Thou knowest o Lord, be mindful of me, and visit me, and defend me from them, that persecute me: do not receive me in thy patience, know that I have sustained reproach for thee. {16} Thy words were found, and I did eat them, & thy word was made to me a joy & gladness of my heart: because thy name is invoked upon me, o Lord God of hosts. {17} I sat not in the council of jesters, & I have gloried at the face of thy hand: I sat alone, because thou hast fillest me with threatening. {18} Why is my sorrow made perpetual, and my desperate plague refuseth to be cured? It is become unto me as a lie of unfaithful waters. {19} For this cause thus saith our Lord: If thou wilt be converted, I will convert thee, & thou shalt stand before my face: & if thou wilt separate the precious thing from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: they shall be turned to thee, & thou shalt not be turned to them. {20} And I will give thee unto this people as a brazen wall, strong: and they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: because I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith our Lord. {21} And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the most wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of strong.

The prophet is forbid to marry, troublesome times not suffering the cares of family: 5. He must neither go to places of feasting, nor mourning, more dying than can be mourned or buried. 10. All which is for their idolatry. 15. but after captivity the people shall be released. 16. And both Jews and Gentiles converted to Christ.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: thou shalt not have sons and daughters in {2} Thou shalt not take a wife, and this place. {3} Because thus saith our Lord concerning sons and daughters, that are begotten in this place, and concerning their mothers, which bear them: and concerning their fathers, of whose stock they were born in this land: {4} by the deaths of diseases they shall die: they shall not be mourned, and they shall not be buried, they shall be as a dunghill upon the face of the earth: they shall be consumed, both with sword, & famine: & their carcass shall be meat for the fowls of the air, and beasts of the earth. {5} For thus saith our Lord: Enter not into the house of feasting, neither go thou to mourn, nor comfort them: because I have taken away my peace from this people, saith our Lord, mercy and commiserations. {6} And great and little shall die in this land: they shall not be buried nor mourned, and they shall not cut themselves, neither shall baldness be made for them. {7} And they shall not break bread among them to him that mourneth to comfort him upon the dead: and they shall not give them drink of the cup to comfort them upon their father and mother. {8} And enter not into the house of feasting, to sit with them, and to eat and drink: {9} because thus saith our Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will take away out of this place in your eyes & in your days the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride. {10} And when thou shalt tell this people all these words, and they shall say to thee: Wherefore hath our Lord spoken upon us all this great evil? What is our iniquity? And what is our sin, that we have sinned to the Lord our God? {11} Thou shalt say to them: Because your fathers have forsaken me, saith our Lord: and gone after strange gods, and served them, and adored them: and me they have forsaken, & my law they have not kept. {12} But you also have wrought worse than your fathers: for behold every one walketh after the perversity of his evil heart, that he hear me not. {13} And I will cast you forth out of this land, into a land which you & your fathers knew not: & there you shall serve strange gods day & night, which shall not give you any rest. {14} Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord, and it shall be said no more: The Lord liveth, that brought forth the children of Israel out of the Land of Aegypt. {15} But, The Lord liveth, that brought the children of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands to the which I did cast them out: and I will bring them again into their land, which I gave to their fathers. {16} Behold I will send many fishers saith our Lord, and they shall fish them: and after this I will send them many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every little hill, and out of the caves of rocks. {17} Because mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, and their iniquity hath not been hid from mine eyes. {18} And I will repay first their double iniquities, and their sins: because they have contaminated my land with the carcasses of their idols, and with their abominations they have filled mine inheritance. {19} O Lord my force, and my strength, and my refuge in the day of tribulation: to thee the Gentiles shall come from the ends of the earth, and shall say: In very deed our fathers have possessed lying, vanity which hath not profited them. {20} Why, shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are not gods? {21} Therefore behold I will shew them at this time, I will shew them my hand, and my power: and they shall know that my name is the Lord.

For obstinacy in sin the Jews shall be led captive. 5. He is cursed that trusteth in flesh: 7. and blessed that trusteth in God. 9. Only God searcheth the heart, giving to every one as they deserve. 11. The Prophet prayeth to be delivered from his enemies: 19. preacheth observation of the Law: 24. so they shall prosper, otherwise perish.

{1} THE sin of Juda is written with iron pen in nail of Adamant, graven upon the breadth of their heart, and in the horns of their altars. {2} When their children shall remember their altars, and their groves, and their trees with green leaves in the high mountains, {3} sacrificing in the field: I will give thy strength, and all thy treasures into spoil, thine excelses for sin in all thy coasts. {4} And thou shalt be left alone of thine inheritance, which I gave thee: and I will make thee serve thine enemies in a land, which thou knowest not: because thou hast kindled a fire in my fury, it shall burn for ever. {5} Thus saith our Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and his heart departeth from our Lord. {6} For he shall be as little bushes in the desert, and shall not see when good shall come: but he shall dwell in dryness in the desert, in a land of saltiness, and not habitable. {7} Blessed be the man, that trusteth in our Lord, and our Lord shall be his confidence. {8} And he shall be as a tree that is planted upon the waters, that spreadeth his roots towards moisture: and it shall not fear when the heat cometh. And the leaf thereof shall be green, and in the time of drought it shall not be careful, neither shall it cease at any time to bring forth fruit. {9} The heart of man is perverse, and unsearchable, who shall know it? {10} I, the Lord that search the heart, and prove the reins: which give to every one according to his way, and according to the fruit of his inventions. {11} The partridge hath nourished that which she brought not forth: he hath gathered riches, and not in judgement: in the midst of his days he shall leave them, and in his latter end he shall be a fool. {12} A throne of glory of height from the beginning, the place of our sanctification: {13} O Lord the expectation of Israel: all that forsake thee, shall be confounded: they that depart from thee, shall be written in the earth: because they have forsaken the vein of living waters our Lord. {14} Heal me o Lord, and I shall be healed: save me, and I shall be saved: because thou art my praise. {15} Behold they say to me: Where is the word of our Lord? Let it come. {16} And I am not troubled, following thee the Pastor, & the day of man I have not desired, thou knowest. That which hath proceeded out of my lips, hath been right in thy sight. {17} Be not thou a terror unto me, thou art mine hope in the day of affliction. {18} Let them be confounded that persecute me, and let not me be confounded: let them be afraid, and let not me be afraid: bring upon them the day of affliction, and with double destruction destroy them. {19} Thus saith our Lord to me: Go, and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of Juda come in, and go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem: {20} and thou shalt say to them: Hear the word of our Lord ye kings of Juda, and all Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates. {21} Thus saith our Lord: Take heed to your souls, and carry not burdens on the Sabbath day: neither bring them in by the gates of Jerusalem. {22} And cast not forth burdens out of your houses on the Sabbath day, and all work you shall not do: sanctify the Sabbath day, as I commanded your fathers. {23} And they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but hardened their neck, that they would not hear me, and that they would not take discipline. {24} And it shall be: if you will hear me, saith our Lord, that you bring not burdens in by the gates of this city on the Sabbath day: and if you will sanctify the Sabbath day, that you do not all works therein: {25} there shall enter in by the gates of this city kings and Princes, sitting upon the throne of David, and mounting on chariots and horses, they and their Princes, the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and this city shall be inhabited for ever. {26} And they shall come from the cities of Juda, and from round about Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the champion countries, and from the mountains, and from the South, carrying holocaust, & victim, and sacrifice, & frankincense, & they shall bring in oblation into the house of our Lord. {27} But if you will not hear me, to sanctify the Sabbath day, and not to carry burden, and not to bring in by the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day: I will kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

As clay in the hand of a potter, so is Israel in God's hand. 8. He pardoneth penitents, 10. and punishment the obstinate. 18. They conspire against Jeremy, for which he denounces miseries hanging over them.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: the potter's house, and there thou shalt {2} Arise and go down into hear my words. {3} And I went down into the potter's house, and behold he made a work upon the wheel. {4} And the vessel was broken which he made of clay with his hands: and turning he made it an other vessel, as it pleased in his eyes to make it. {5} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {6} Why, shall I not be able to do unto you, as this potter, o house of Israel? Behold, saith our Lord, as clay in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, o house of Israel. {7} I will suddenly speak against nation, and against kingdom, to root out, and destroy, and waste it. {8} If that nation shall repent them of their evil, against whom I have spoken: I also will repent me of the evil, that I have thought to do to it. {9} And I will suddenly speak of nation and of kingdom, to build and plant it. {10} If it shall do evil in mine eyes, that it hear not my voice: I will repent me of the good that I have spoken to do unto it. {11} Now therefore tell the man of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I forge evil against you, and devise a device against you: let every man return from his evil way, and direct ye your ways and your studies. {12} Who said: We are desperate: for we will go after our cogitations, and we will do every one the perversity of his evil heart. {13} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Ask the Nations: Who hath heard such horrible things, as the virgin of Israel hath done exceedingly? {14} Why shall the snow of Libanus fail from the rock of the field? Or can the cold waters gushing forth and running down, be drawn out? {15} Because my people hath forgotten me, sacrificing in vain, and stumbling in their ways, in the paths of the world, that they might walk by them in a way not trodden: {16} that their land might be made into desolation, and into an everlasting hiss: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, & wag his head. {17} As the burning wind will I disperse them before the enemy: the back, and not the face will I shew them in the day of their perdition. {18} And they said: Come, and let us find devises against Jeremy: for the law shall not perish from the Priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the Prophet: come, and let us strike him with the tongue, & let us not attend to all his words. {19} Attend o Lord unto me, and hear the voice of mine adversaries. {20} Why, is evil rendered for good, because they have digged a pit for my soul? Remember that I have stood in the sight, to speak good for them, and to return away their indignation from them. {21} Therefore give their children into famine, and lead them into the hands of the sword: let their wives be made without children, and widows: and let the husbands be killed by death: let their young men be pierced through with the sword in battle. {22} Let a cry be heard out of their houses, for thou shalt bring the robber upon them suddenly: because they have digged a pit to take me, and have hid snares for my feet. {23} But thou o Lord knowest all their counsel against me unto death: be not propitious to their iniquity, and let not their sin be clean put out from thy face: let them be made falling in thy sight, in the time of thy fury deal with them.

The Prophet holding an earthen bottle in his hand, preacheth the destruction of Jerusalem, 4. for their idolatry: 10. and in sign thereof breaketh the bottle in pieces: 11. denouncing that God will so break the people that contemn his word.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: Go, and take a potter's earthen bottle of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the Priests: {2} and go forth to the valley of the son of Ennom, which is by the entry of the earthen gate: and there thou shalt preach the words, that I will speak to thee. {3} And thou shalt say: Hear the word of our Lord ye kings of Juda, and inhabitants of Jerusalem: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring in affliction upon this place: so that every one that shall hear it, his ears shall tingle: {4} because they have forsaken me, and have made this place strange: and they have sacrificed therein to strange gods, whom they, and their fathers, and the king of Juda have not known: and they have filled this place with the blood of innocents. {5} And they have built the excelses of Baalim, to burn their children with fire for holocaust to Baalim: which I commanded not, nor have spoken of, neither have they ascended into my heart. {6} Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord: and this place shall no more be called, Topheth, and the valley of the son of Ennom, but the valley of slaughter. {7} And I will dissipate the counsel of Juda and Jerusalem in this place: and I will subvert them with the sword in the sight of their enemies, and in the hand of them that seek their lives: and I will give their carcasses to be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth. {8} And I will make this city into astonishment, and into hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, & shall hiss upon all the plague thereof. {9} And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons, and with the flesh of their daughters: and every one shall eat the flesh of his friend in the siege, and in the distress, wherein their enemies shall include them, and they that seek their lives. {10} And thou shalt break the bottle in the sight of the men, that shall go with thee. {11} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: So will I break this people, and this city, as the potter's vessel is broken, that can no more be repaired: and they shall be buried in Topheth, because there is no other place to bury in. {12} So will I do to this place, saith our Lord, and to the inhabitants thereof: and I will make this city as Topheth. {13} And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Juda shall be as the place of Topheth, unclean: all houses, in the tops whereof they have sacrificed to all the host of heaven, and have offered libaments to strange gods. {14} And Jeremy came from Topheth, whither our Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the court of the house of our Lord, and said to all the people: {15} Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring in upon this city, and upon all the cities thereof all the evils that I have spoken against it: because they have hardened their neck, that they would not hear my words.

Phassur a Priest beateth the Prophet, and putteth him in the stocks. He still prophesieth their captivity in Babylon. 7. Lamenteth that he and his preaching is derided: 11. confideth in God: 14. and utereth his afflicted mind.

{1} AND Phassur the son of Emmer Priest, who was appointed Prince in the house of our Lord, heard Jeremy prophesying these words. {2} And Phassur struck Jeremy the Prophet, {800} and put him into the stocks, that was in the upper gate of Benjamin, in the house of our Lord. {3} And when it was light on the morrow, Phassur brought forth Jeremy out of the stocks. And Jeremy said to him: Our Lord hath called thy name not Phassur, but fear on every side. {4} Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will give thee into fear, thee and all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thine eyes shall see, and I will give all Juda into the hand of the king of Babylon: and he shall transport them into Babylon, and shall strike them with the sword. {5} And I will give all the substance of this city, & all the labour thereof, and all the price, and all the treasures of the kings of Juda will I give into the hand of their enemies: and they shall spoil them, and take them away, and carry them into Babylon. {6} But thou Phassur, and all the inhabitants of thy house shall go into captivity, and thou shalt come into Babylon, and there thou shalt die, and there shalt be buried, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied a lie. {7} Thou hast seduced me, o Lord, and I am seduced: thou wast stronger than I, and hast prevailed: I am made a derision all the day, all do scorn me. {8} Because now long ago I speak, crying out iniquity, and I often proclaim wasting: and the word of our Lord is made a reproach to me, and a derision all the day. {9} And I said: I will not remember him, nor speak any more in his name: and there was made in my heart as a fire boiling, and shut up in my bones: and I fainted, not sustaining to bear it. {10} For I heard the contumelies of many, and terror on every side: persecute ye, and let us persecute him: of all the men, that were my peaceables, and guarding my side: if by any means he may be deceived, and we prevail against him, and be revenged on him. {11} But our Lord is with me as a strong warrior: therefore they that persecute me shall fall, and shall be weak: they shall be confounded exceedingly, because they have not understood the everlasting reproach, which never shall be clean put away. {12} And thou Lord of hosts, prover of the just, which seest the reins and the heart: let me see I beseech thee thy revenge of them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. {13} Sing ye to our Lord, praise our Lord: because he hath delivered the soul of the poor out of the hand of the wicked. {14} Cursed be the day, wherein I was born: the day in which my mother bare me, be it not blessed. {15} Cursed be the man that told my father, saying: There is a man child born to thee: and as it were with joy he rejoiced him. {16} Let that man be as the cities are, which our Lord hath subverted, and it hath not repented him: let him hear crying in the morning, and howling at noon time. {17} Who slew me not from the womb, that my mother might be made my grave, and her womb an everlasting conception. {18} Why came I out of the womb, that I should see labour and sorrow, and my days should be spent in confusion?

Chapter 21

The Prophet answereth the King's messengers, that Jerusalem shall be punished with plague, sword, famine, and captivity. 9. Those shall escape best that yield themselves captives: 11. exhorteth to correct their lives, lest all be utterly destroyed.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord when king Sedecias sent Phassur the son of Melchias unto him, and Sophonias the son of Maasis Priest, saying: {2} Ask our Lord for us, because Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon maketh battle against us: if perhaps our Lord shall do with us according to all his marvelous works, and he may retire back from us. {3} And Jeremy said to them: Thus shall you say to Sedecias: {4} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Behold I will convert the weapons of war which are in your hands, and wherewith you fight against the king of Babylon, & the Chaldees, that besiege you round about the walls: & I will gather them together in the midst of this city. {5} And I will vanquish you in stretched out hand, and in a strong arm, and in fury, and in indignation, and in great wrath. {6} And will strike the inhabitants of this city, men and beasts shall die with a great pestilence. {7} And after this saith our Lord: I will give Sedecias the king of Juda, and his servants, & his people, & they that are left in his city from the pestilence, and the sword, and famine, into the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and he will strike them in the edge of the sword, and he will not be moved, nor spare, nor have mercy. {8} And to this people thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I give before you the way of life, and the way of death. {9} He that shall dwell within this city, shall die with the sword, and with famine, and pestilence: but he that shall go forth, and fly to the Chaldees that besiege you, shall live, and his life shall be to him as a spoil. {10} For I have set my face upon this city to evil, & not to good, saith our Lord: it shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, & he shall burn it with fire. {11} And to the house of the king of Juda: Hear ye the word of our Lord, {12} o house of David, thus saith our Lord: Judge ye judgement in the morning, & deliver the oppressed by violence out of the hand of the oppressor: lest perhaps mine indignation go forth as fire, & be kindled, & there be none to quench it, because of the malice of your studies. {13} Behold, I to thee inhabitress of the firm & champion valley saith our Lord: which say. Who shall strike us: & who shall enter into our houses? {14} And I will visit upon you according to the fruit of your studies, saith our Lord: and I will kindle a fire in the forest thereof: and it shall devour all things round about it.

The Prophet going to the palace admonisheth the King and his officers to judge and govern rightly: 5. threatening that otherwise they shall fall into calamity: 10. prophesieth that Sellum shall not return into Jerusalem: 13. reprehendeth unjust builders: 18. that Joakim shall die and be buried ignominiously: 24. and Jeconias with his mother shall die in the captivity of Babylon.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: Go down into the house of the king of Juda, and there thou shalt speak this word, {2} and shalt say: Hear the word of our Lord, o king of Juda, which sittest upon the throne of David: thou & thy servants, and thy people, which enter in by these gates. {3} Thus saith our Lord: Do ye judgement & justice, & deliver the oppressed by violence out of the hand of the oppressor: and the stranger, and pupil, and widow make not sorrowful, nor oppress them unjustly: and the innocent blood, shed not in this place. {4} For if doing you will do this thing, there shall enter in by the gates of this house, kings of the stock of David sitting upon his throne, and mounting upon chariots and horses, they and their servants, and their people. {5} But if you will not hear these words: by my self I have sworn, saith our Lord, that this house shall be into desolation. {6} Because thus saith our Lord upon the house of the king of Juda: Galaad thou art unto me the head of Libanus: if I make thee not a wilderness, cities not habitable. {7} And I will sanctify upon thee a killing man and his weapons: and they shall cut down thy chosen cedars, and shall cast them headlong into the fire. {8} And many nations shall pass by this city: and every one shall say to his neighbour: Why hath the Lord done so to this great city? {9} And they shall answer: Because they have forsaken the covenant of the Lord their God, and have adored strange gods, and served them. {10} Weep not for the dead, neither mourn ye upon him with weeping: Lament him that goeth forth, because he shall return no more, nor see the land of his nativity. {11} Because thus saith our lord to Sellum the son of Josias the king of Juda, who hath reigned for Josias his father, who is gone forth out of this place. He shall return hither no more: {12} but in the place, to which I have transported him, there shall he die, and he shall not see this land any more. {13} Woe to him that buildeth his house in injustice, and his chambers not in judgement: his friend he will oppress without cause, and his hire he will not render him. {14} Who saith: I will build me a broad house, and large chambers; who openeth to himself windows, and maketh embowed ceilings of cedar, and painteth them with ruddle. {15} Why, shalt thou reign, because thou compardest thy self to the cedar? Why, did not thy father eat and drink, & do judgement & justice then when it was well with him? {16} He judged the cause of the poor & needy to his own good, did he it not therefore because he knew me saith our Lord? {17} But thine eyes and heart are to avarice, and to shed innocent blood, and to crafty oppression, & to the course of evil work. {18} Therefore thus saith our Lord to Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda: They shall not mourn for him, Alas brother, & alas sister: they shall not cry together to him, Alas Lord, and alas o noble one. {19} With the burial of an ass shall he be buried, rotted and cast forth without the gates of Jerusalem. {20} Go up to Libanus and cry: and in Basan give thy voice, & cry to them that pass by, because all thy lovers are destroyed. {21} I speake to thee in thine abundance: & thou saidst: I will not hear: This is thy way from thy youth, because thou heardest not my voice. {22} The wind shall feed all thy Pastors, & thy lovers shall go into captivity: & then shalt thou be confounded, and ashamed of all thy malice. {23} Thou that sittest in Libanus, and makest thy nest in the cedars, how hast thou mourned together when sorrows came to thee, as the sorrows of a woman in travail? {24} I live, saith our Lord: that if Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda shall be a ring on my right hand, thence will I pluck him off. {25} And I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life, and into the hand of them, whose face thou fearest, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldees. {26} And I will send thee, and thy mother that bare thee, into a strange country, in the which you were not born, & there you shall die: {27} and into the land, whereto they lift up their mind to return thither: they shall not return. {28} Why, is this man Jechonias an earthen and broken vessel? Is he a vessel without all pleasure? Why are they cast away, he and his seed are cast forth into a land which they know not? {29} Earth, earth, earth, hear the word of our Lord. {30} Thus saith our Lord: Write this man barren, a man that in his days shall not prosper: for neither shall there be a man of his seed, that shall sit upon the throne of David, and have power any more in Juda.

God reproveth the evil governors, promising to reduce the relics of the people from dispersion: 4. to send good pastors; and Christ the chief Pastor. 9. False prophets are threatened: 16. The people warned, not to hear them, preaching without mission, 27. against God's will, 33. and calling God's word a burden.

{1} WOE to the Pastors, that destroy and tear the flock of my pasture, saith our Lord. {2} Therefore thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to the Pastors, that feed my people: You have scattered my flock, and cast them out, & have not visited them: Behold I will visit upon you the malice of your studies, saith our Lord. {3} And I will gather together the remnant of my flock out of all lands, into which I shall have cast them out: and I will make them return to their fields, and they shall increase and be multiplied. {4} And I will raise up Pastors over them, and they shall feed them: they shall fear no more, and they shall not dread: and none shall be to seek of the number, saith our Lord. {5} Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will raise up to David a just branch: and he shall reign a king, and shall be wise: and he shall do judgement and justice in the earth. {6} In those days shall Juda be saved, and Israel shall dwell confidently: and this is the name that they shall call him: The Lord our just one. {7} For this cause behold the days come, saith our Lord, and they shall say no more: Our Lord liveth, that brought forth the children of Israel out of the Land of Aegypt: {8} but: Our Lord liveth, that hath brought forth, and brought hither the seed of the house of Israel from the Land of the North, and out of all the lands, to which I had cast them out: and they shall dwell in their own land. {9} To the Prophets: My heart is broken in the midst of me, all my bones have trembled: I am become as a drunken man, and as a man wet with wine, at the presence of our Lord, and at the presence of his holy words. {10} Because the land is replenished with adulterers, because the land hath mourned by reason of malediction, the fields of the desert are withered: and their course is become evil, and their strength unlike. {11} For the Prophet and the Priest are polluted: and in my house I have found their evil, saith our Lord. {12} Therefore their way shall be as slipper ground in the dark: for they shall be driven forth, and fall therein: for I will bring evils upon them, the year of their visitation, saith our Lord. {13} And in the Prophets of Samaria I have seen foolishness: They Prophesied in Baal, and deceived my people Israel. {14} And in the Prophets of Jerusalem I saw the similitude of adulterers, and the way of lying: and they strengthened the hands of the most wicked, that no man would return from his malice: they are all become unto me as Sodoma, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrha. {15} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts to the Prophets: Behold I will feed them with wormwood, and will give them gall to drink, for from the Prophets of Jerusalem is pollution gone forth upon all the land. {16} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Hear not the words of the Prophets, that prophesy unto you, and deceive you: they speak the vision of their own heart, not from the mouth of the Lord. {17} They say to them that blaspheme me: Our Lord hath spoken: Peace shall be to you, and to every one that walketh in the perversity of his own heart, they have said: There shall no evil come upon you. {18} For who hath been present in the counsel of our Lord, and hath seen and heard his word? Who hath considered his word, & heard it? {19} Behold the whirlwind of the Lord's indignation shall come forth, and a tempest breaking out: it shall come upon the head of the impious. {20} The fury of the Lord shall not return till he do it, and until he accomplish the cogitation of his heart: in the later days you shall understand his counsel. {21} I sent not the Prophets, and they ran: I spake not to them, and they Prophesied. {22} If they had stood in my counsel, and made my words known to my people, I had verily turned them from their evil way, and from their most wicked cogitations. {23} Am I God near hand thinkest thou, saith our Lord? And not God far off? {24} Shall a man be hid in secrets: and shall not I see him, saith our Lord? Why, do not I fill heaven and earth, saith our Lord? {25} I have heard what the Prophets have said, prophesying in my name lies, and saying: I have dreamed, I have dreamed. {26} How long is this in the heart of the Prophets prophesying lies, and prophesying the seductions of their own heart? {27} Who will make my people to forget my name through their dreams, which every one telleteth to his neighbour: as their fathers forgot my name for Baal. {28} The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell the dream: & he that hath my word, let him speak my word truly: what hath the chaff to do with the wheat, saith our Lord? {29} Why, are not my words as fire, saith our Lord: and as a hammer breaking a rock? {30} Therefore behold I to the Prophets, saith our Lord: which steal my words every one from his neighbour. {31} Behold I to the Prophets, saith our Lord: which take their tongues, & say: Our Lord saith it. {32} Behold, I to the Prophets dreaming lies, saith our Lord: which have told those things, & have seduced my people in their lying, & in their miracles: When I had not sent them, nor commanded them, who have not profited this people, saith our Lord. {33} If therefore this people, or the Prophet, or the Priest shall ask thee, saying: What is the burden of our Lord? Thou shalt say to them: We are the burden. for I will cast you forth, saith our Lord. {34} And the Prophet, and the Priest, and the people that saith: The burden of our Lord will I visit upon that man, and upon his house. {35} Thus shall you say every one to his brother, & {304} neighbour: What hath our Lord answered? And what hath our Lord spoken? {36} And the burden of our Lord shall no more be mentioned: because every man's burden shall be his own word: & you have perverted the words of the living God, the Lord of hosts our God. {37} Thus shalt thou say to the Prophet: What hath our Lord answered thee? And what hath our Lord spoken? {38} But if thou shalt say the burden of our Lord: for this, thus saith our Lord: Because you have said this word: The burden of our Lord: and I have sent to you, saying: Say not: The burden of our Lord: {39} Therefore behold I will take you away carrying you, and will forsake you, and the city which I have given to you, and to your fathers, from before my face. {40} And I will give you into everlasting reproach, and into eternal ignominy, which shall never be put away by oblivion.

By a parable of good and evil figs, is signified 5. the reduction of the penitent from captivity: 8. and the vexation of those, that stayed in Jerusalem, or fled into Aegypt.

{1} OUR Lord shewed me: & behold two baskets full of figs, set before the temple of our Lord: after that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon transported Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda, and his Princes, and the craftsman, & incloser of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon. {2} One basket had very good figs: as the figs of the prime time are wont to be: and one basket had very naughty figs, which could not be eaten, because they were naught. {3} And our Lord said to me: What seest thou Jeremy? And I said: Figs: the good figs, exceeding good, and the naughty figs, exceeding naught: which can not be eaten because they are naught. {4} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {5} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: As are these good figs: so will I know the transmigration of Juda, which I have sent forth out of this place into the land of Chaldees, unto good. {6} And I will set mine eyes upon them to be pacified, and I will bring them again into this land: and I will build them, and not destroy: and I will plant them and not pluck them up. {7} And I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the Lord: and they shall be my people, & I will be their God: because they shall return to me in all their heart. {8} And as are the very naughty figs, that can not be eaten, because they are naught: thus saith our Lord, so will I give Sedecias the king of Juda: and his Princes, and the rest of Jerusalem, that have remained in this city, and that dwell in the Land of Aegypt. {9} And I will give them into vexation, and affliction, to all the kingdoms of the earth: into reproach, and to be a parable, and into a proverb, and into malediction in all places, to which I have cast them out. {10} And I will send among them the sword, famine, and pestilence: till they be consumed out of the land, which I gave them, and their fathers.

After the peoples contemning to hear Jeremy, and other Prophets, preaching three & twenty years, 8. he denounces their assured captivity seventy years in Babylon: 12. and then the ruin of their enemies. 15. All which wrath of God, Jeremy foreseweth to the Jews, 19. and Gentiles. 29. Which shall first happen to God's proper people: 36. and so extend to all nations: 34. the principal governors bewailing their common misery.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy concerning all the people of Juda in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda (the same is the first year of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon.) {2} Which Jeremy the Prophet spake to all the people of Juda, and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: {3} From the thirteenth year of Josias, the son of Amon king of Juda until this day; this is the three and twentieth year, the word of our Lord was made to me, and I have spoken to you rising in the night and speaking, and you have not heard. {4} And our Lord hath sent all his servants the Prophets, rising early, and sending, and you have not heard, nor inclined your ears to hear {5} when he said: Return ye every one from his evil way, and from your most wicked cogitations: and you shall dwell in the land, which our Lord hath given you, and your fathers from everlasting and for evermore. {6} And go ye not after strange gods to serve them, and adore them: nor provoke me to wrath in the works of your hands, and I will not afflict you. {7} And you have not heard me, saith our Lord, so that you provoked me to anger in the works of your hands, to your evil. {8} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: For that you have not heard my words: {9} behold I will send, & take all the kindreds of the North, saith our Lord, & Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon my servant: & I will bring them upon this land, & upon the inhabitants thereof, & upon all the nations that are round about it: and I will kill them & make them into astonishment & hissing, and into everlasting desolations. {10} And I will destroy out of them the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the noise of the mill, and the light of the lamp. {11} And all this land shall be in desolation, and into astonishment: and all these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. {12} And when the seventy years shall be expired, I will visit upon the king of Babylon, & upon the nation, saith our Lord, their iniquity, and upon the land of Chaldees: and I will make it into everlasting desolations. {13} And I will bring upon that land all my words that I have spoken against it, all that is written in this Book, whatsoever Jeremy hath prophesied against all nations: {14} because they have served them, whereas they were many nations, and great kings: and I will repay them according to their works, and according to the deeds of their hands. {15} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Take the cup of wine of this fury at my hand: & thou shalt drink thereof to all nations, unto the which I shall send thee. {16} And they shall drink, & be troubled, and be mad at the face of the sword, which I shall send among them. {17} And I took the cup at the hand of our Lord, and I drank to all the nations, to which our Lord sent me: {18} to Jerusalem, and the cities of Juda, and to the kings thereof, and Princes thereof: that I would give them into desolation, and into astonishment, and into hissing, and into malediction, as is this day. {19} To Pharao the king of Aegypt, and to his servants, and his Princes, and all his people, {20} and to all generally: to all the kings of the land of Ausitis, and to all the kings of the land of the Philisthiims, and of Ascalon, and of Gaza, & of Accaron, & to the remnant of Azotus, {21} & of Idumea, and of Moab, and to the children of Ammon. {22} And to all the kings of Tyre, and to all the kings of Sidon: and to the kings of the land of the isles, who are beyond the Sea. {23} And to Dedan, and Thema, and Buz, and to all that have their hair polled. {24} And to all the kings of Arabia, and to all the kings of the West, that dwell in the desert. {25} And to all the kings of Zambri, and to all the kings of Elam, and to all the kings of the Medes: {26} also to all the kings of the North from near and from a far off: to every one against his brother: and to all the kingdoms of the earth, which are upon the face thereof: and the king of Sesac shall drink after them. {27} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Drink ye, and be drunken, and vomit: and fall, and rise not, at the face of the sword, which I shall send among you. {28} And when they shall not take the cup of thy hand to drink, thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Drinking you shall drink: {29} because lo in the city, wherein my name is invoked, will I begin to afflict, and shall you be as innocent and scape free? You shall not scape free: for I call the sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the Lord of hosts. {30} And thou shalt prophesy unto them all these words, and shalt say to them: Our Lord from on high shall roar, and from his holy habitation shall give his voice: roaring he shall roar upon his beauty: the cry as it were of them that tread grapes shall be sung against all the inhabitants of the earth. {31} The sound is come even to the ends of the earth: because there is judgement to our Lord with the Nations: he entereth judgement with all flesh, the impious I have delivered to the sword, saith our Lord. {32} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold, affliction shall go forth from nation to nation: and a great whirlwind shall go forth from the ends of the earth. {33} And the slain of our Lord shall be in that day from the one end of the earth even to the other end thereof: they shall not be mourned & they shall not be gathered up, nor buried: as a dunghill shall they lie upon the face of the earth. {34} Howl ye pastors, and cry: and sprinkle your selves with ashes ye leaders of the flock: because your days are accomplished to be slain: and your dissipations, and you shall fall as precious vessels. {35} And flight shall fail from the Pastors, and salvation from the principals of the flock. {36} A voice of the cry of the Pastors, and an howling of the Principals of the flock: because our Lord hath wasted their pastures. {37} And the fields of peace have been silent at the presence of the wrath of the fury of our Lord. {38} He hath as a lion forsaken his covert, because their land is made into desolation at the presence of the wrath of the dove, and at the presence of the wrath of the fury of our Lord.

The Prophet for preaching God's commination, is apprehended by the Priests, and false Prophets: 10. but delivered from death by the ancients of the people: 18. alleging the examples of Michaeas, 20. and Urias prophesying the same before.

{1} IN the beginning of the kingdom of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda came this word from our Lord, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord: Stand in the court of the house of our Lord, and thou shalt speak to all the cities of Juda, out of the which they come, to adore in the house of our Lord, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them: withdraw not a word, {3} If perhaps they will hear and be converted every one from his evil way: and it may repent me of the evil that I think to do to them for the malice of their studies. {4} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: If you will not hear me to walk in my law, which I have given you, {5} that you hear the words of my servants the Prophets, which I sent to you in the night rising, and directing, and you heard not: {6} I will give this house as Silo, and this city I will give into malediction to all the nations of the earth. {7} And the Priests, and Prophets, and all the people heard Jeremy speaking these words in the house of our Lord. {8} And when Jeremy had ended speaking all things that our Lord had commanded him, to speak unto all the people: the Priests, and Prophets, and all the people apprehended him, saying: Let him die the death. {9} Why hath he prophesied in the name of our Lord, saying: This house shall be as Silo: and this city shall be made desolate, for that there is no inhabitant? And all the people was gathered together against Jeremy in the house of our Lord. {10} And the Princes of Juda heard these words: & they went up from the king's house into the house of our Lord, & sat in the entry of the new gate of the house of our Lord. {11} And the Priests and the Prophets spake to the Princes, and to all the people, saying: The judgement of death is to this man: because he hath prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears. {12} And Jeremy spake to all the Princes, & to all the people, saying: Our Lord sent me, that I should prophesy to this house, and to this city all the words that you have heard. {13} Now therefore make your ways good, and your studies, and hear the voice of our Lord your God: and our Lord will repent him of the evil, that he hath spoken against you. {14} But I lo am in your hands: do unto me that which is good, and right in your eyes: {15} Howbeit know ye and understand, that if you kill me, you shall betray innocent blood against your selves, and against this city, & the inhabitants thereof. For in truth our Lord sent me to you, that I should speak all these words in your ears. {16} And the Princes, and all the people said to the Priests, and to the Prophets: There is no judgement of death to this man: because he hath spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God. {17} Men therefore of the ancients of the land rose up, & they spake to all the assembly of the people, saying: {18} Michaeas the Morasthi was a Prophet in the days of Ezechias the king of Juda, and he spake to all the people Juda, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Sion shall be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall be as an heap of stones: and the mount of the house as the high places of woods. {19} Did Ezechias the king of Juda, and all Juda, condemn him to death? Did they not fear our Lord, and beseech the face of our Lord: and it repented our Lord of the evil, that he had spoken against them? Therefore we do great evil against our selves. {20} There was also a man prophesying in the name of our Lord, Urias the son of Semei of Cariathiarim: and he prophesied against this city, & against this land, according to all the words of Jeremy. {21} And king Joakim, and all his mightyies, and his Princes heard these words: & the king sought to kill him. And Urias heard, and was afraid, & fled & went into Aegypt. {22} And king Joakim sent men into Aegypt, Elnathan the son of Achobor, and men with him into Aegypt. {23} And they brought Urias out of Aegypt: and brought him to king Joakim, & he struck him with the sword: and he cast forth his carcass in the sepulchres of the base vulgar people. {24} Therefore the hand of Ahicam the son of Saphan was with Jeremy, that he should not be delivered into the hands of the people, and they kill him.

Jeremy putteth chains about his own neck, and then sendeth them to sundry Kings, admonishing them, that they must either be subject to the King of Babylon, 8. or perish by sword, famine, and pestilence. 14. Inveigheth against false Prophets preaching the contrary: 16. and falsely affirming that the vessels already taken away shall quickly be restored: 18. whereas indeed the rest shall also be carried away, but all at last restored.

{1} IN the beginning of the kingdom of Joakim, the son of Josias king of Juda, was this word made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord to me: Make thee bands, and chains: and thou shalt put them on thy neck. {3} And thou shalt send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon: by the hand of the messengers, that are come to Jerusalem to Sedecias the king of Juda. {4} And thou shalt command them that they speak to their lords: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to your lords: {5} I made the earth, and men, and the beasts, that are upon the face of the earth, in my great strength, and in my stretched out arm: and I have given it to him, that pleased in mine eyes. {6} And now therefore I have given all these lands into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon my servant: moreover also the beasts of the field I have given him, to serve him. {7} And all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son: till the time come of his land and of himself: and many nations and great kings shall serve him. {8} But the nation and kingdom that shall not serve Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and whosoever shall not bow his neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon: I will visit upon the nation with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence, saith our Lord: till I consume them in his hand. {9} You therefore hear not your Prophets, and diviners, and dreamers, and soothsayers, and sorcerers, that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon. {10} Because they prophesy lies unto you: that they may make you far from your country, & cast you out, and you perish. {11} But the nation, that shall submit their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and shall serve him, the same will I let alone in their own land, saith our Lord: and they shall husband it, and dwell in it. {12} And to Sedecias the king of Juda, I have spoken according to all these words, saying: Submit your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, and his people, and you shall live. {13} Why will you die, thou and thy people with the sword, and famine, & the pestilence, as the Lord hath spoken to the nation, that will not serve the king of Babylon? {14} Hear not the words of the Prophets that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon: because they speak a lie to you. {15} Because I sent them not, saith our Lord: & they prophesy in my name falsely: that they may cast you out, & you perish, as well you, as the Prophets that prophesy unto you. {16} And to the Priests, and to this people I have spoken, saying: Thus saith our Lord. Hear not the words of your Prophets, that prophesy to you, saying: Behold the vessels of our Lord shall return out of Babylon even now quickly, for they prophesy a lie unto you. {17} Therefore hear them not, but serve the king of Babylon, that you may live. Why is this city given into desolation? {18} And if they be Prophets, and the word of our Lord be in them: let them interpose themselves before the Lord of hosts, that the vessels which were left in the house of our Lord, & in the house of the king of Juda, and in Jerusalem, come not into Babylon. {19} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts to the pillars, and to the sea, and to the feet, and to the rest of the vessels, that are remaining in this city. {20} Which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, took not when he transported Jechonias the son of Joakim, the king of Juda, from Jerusalem into Babylon, and all the great men of Juda and Jerusalem. {21} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to the vessels, that are left in the house of our Lord, and in the house of the king of Juda and Jerusalem: {22} They shall be transported into Babylon, and there they shall be until the day of their visitation, saith our Lord: and I will cause them to be brought, and to be restored in this place.

Hananias a false Prophet avoucheth that within two years the holy vessels and King Jechonias with other captives shall be restored. 5. Jeremy prayeth that it may be so: 7. but prophesieth that it will not so be. 10. The false prophet in confirmation of that he said, breaketh Jeremy's chain. 12. But Jeremy again prophesieth the contrary. 16. & that Hananias shall die the same year.

{1} AND it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the kingdom of Sedecias king of Juda, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, Hananias the son of Azur the Prophet of Gabaon spake to me, in the house of our Lord before the Priests, and all the people, saying: {2} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. {3} As yet two years of days, and I will make all the vessels of the house of our Lord to be brought back into this place, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon took out of this place, and transported them into Babylon. {4} And Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda, and all the transmigration of Juda, that are entered into Babylon, I will make to return to this place, saith our Lord: for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon. {5} And Jeremy the Prophet said to Hananias the Prophet in the presence of the Priests, and in the presence of all the people, that stood in the house of our Lord: {6} And Jeremy the Prophet said: Amen, Our Lord so do: our Lord raise up thy words, which thou hast prophesied: that the vessels may be brought again into the house of our Lord, and all the transmigration out of Babylon to this place. {7} But yet hear this word, that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people: {8} The Prophets, that have been before me, and before thee from the beginning, and have prophesied concerning many countries, and concerning great kingdoms of war, and of affliction, and of famine. {9} The Prophet, that hath prophesied peace: when his word shall come to pass, the Prophet shall be known, whom our Lord hath sent in truth. {10} And Hananias the Prophet took the chain from the neck of Jeremy the Prophet and brake it. {11} And Hananias spake in the sight of all the people, saying: Thus saith our Lord: So will I break the yoke of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon after two years of days, from the neck of all nations. {12} And Jeremy the Prophet went his way. And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, after that Hananias the Prophet brake the chain from the neck of Jeremy the Prophet, saying: {13} Go, and thou shalt tell Hananias: Thus saith our Lord: Thou hast broken chains of wood, and thou shalt make for them chains of iron. {14} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: An iron yoke have I put upon the neck of all these Nations, to serve Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and they shall serve him: moreover also the beasts of the earth I have given him. {15} And Jeremy the Prophet said to Hananias the Prophet: Hear Hananias: Our Lord sent thee not, and thou hast made this people to trust in a lie. {16} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will send thee from off the face of the earth: this year shalt thou die: for thou hast spoken against our Lord. {17} And Hananias the Prophet died in that year, the seventh month.

Jeremy writeth to the captives in Babylon, exhorting them to live in peace, 8. and not harkening to false-Prophets. 10. For they must remain there seventy years, and then shall be delivered. 16. And those that remain in Jerusalem shall suffer sword, famine, and pestilence. 21. And Achab, Sedecias, 24. and Semeias false Prophets, shall die miserably.

{1} AND these are the words of the book, which Jeremy the Prophet sent from Jerusalem to the remnant of the Ancients of the transmigration, and to the Priests, and to the Prophets, and to all the people, which Nabuchodonosor had transported from Jerusalem into Babylon: {2} after that Jechonias the king was gone forth, and the queen, and the Eunuchs, and the Princes of Juda, and of Jerusalem, and the craftsman, and the incloser out of Jerusalem: {3} by the hand of Elasa the son of Saphan, and Gamarias the son of Helcias, whom Sedecias the king of Juda sent to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Babylon, saying: {4} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to all the transmigration, which I have transported from Jerusalem into Babylon: {5} Build ye houses, and inhabit them: and plant orchards, and eat the fruit of them. {6} Take wives, and beget sons and daughters: & give wives to your sons, & give your daughters to husbands, and let them bear sons and daughters: and be ye multiplied there, and be not few in number. {7} And seek the peace of the city, to which I have transported you: and pray for it to our Lord: because in the peace thereof there shall be peace to you. {8} For thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Let not your Prophets, that are in the midst of you, and your diviners seduce you: and attend not to your dreams, which you dream: {9} because they do falsely prophesy to you in my name: and I sent them not, saith our Lord. {10} Because thus saith our Lord: When the seventy years shall begin to be expired in Babylon, I will visit you: and I will raise up upon you my good word, to bring you again to this place. {11} For I know the cogitations, that I intend upon you, saith our Lord, cogitations of peace, and not of affliction, to give you an end and patience. {12} And you shall invoke me, and go: and you shall pray me, and I will hear you. {13} You shall seek me, and shall find: when you shall seek me with all your heart. {14} And I will be found of you, saith our Lord: and I will bring back your captivity, & I will gather you out of all nations, & from all places to the which I have expelled you, saith our Lord: and I will make you to return from the place, to the which I have transported you. {15} Because you have said: Our Lord hath raised up Prophets to us in Babylon: {16} for thus saith our Lord to the king, that sitteth upon the throne of David, and to all the people the inhabiter of this city, to your brethren, that are not gone forth with you into the transmigration. {17} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will send upon them the sword, and famine, and the pestilence: and I will make them as naughty figs, that can not be eaten, because they are very naught. {18} And I will persecute them with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence: and I will give them into vexation to all the kingdoms of the earth: into malediction, & into astonishment, and into hissing, and into reproach to all the Nations, to which I have cast them out: {19} because they have not heard my words, saith our Lord: which I sent to them by my servants the Prophets in the night rising, and sending: and you heard not, saith our Lord. {20} You therefore hear the word of our Lord all ye the transmigration, which I have sent out from Jerusalem into Babylon. {21} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to Achab the son of Colias, and to Sedecias the son of Maasias, which prophesy unto you in my name falsely: Behold I will deliver them into the hands of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon: & he shall strike them in your eyes. {22} And of them a malediction shall be taken up by all the transmigration of Juda, that is in Babylon, saying: Our Lord make thee as Sedecias, & as Achab, whom the king of Babylon fried in the fire: {23} for that they have done folly in Israel, and committed adultery with their friend's wives, and have spoken the word in my name falsely, which I commanded them not: I am the judge and the witness, saith our Lord. {24} And to Semeias the Nehelamite thou shalt say: {25} Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: For that thou hast sent in thy name books to all the people, that is in Jerusalem, and to Sophonias the son of Maasias, the Priest, & to all the Priests, saying: {26} Our Lord hath made thee Priest for Joiada the Priest, that thou shouldest be ruler in the house of our Lord, upon every man raving and prophesying, to put him into the stocks, and into prison. {27} And now why hast thou not rebuked Jeremy the Anathothite, which prophesieth unto you? {28} Because upon this he hath sent into Babylon to us, saying: It is long: build ye houses, and inhabit them: and plant gardens, and eat the fruits of them. {29} Sophonias therefore the Priest read this Book in the ears of Jeremy the Prophet. {30} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: {31} Send to all the transmigration, saying: Thus saith the Lord to Semeias the Nehelamite: Because Semeias hath prophesied to you, and I sent him not: and hath made you to trust in a lie: {32} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will visit upon Semeias the Nehelamite, and upon his seed: there shall not be unto him a man sitting in the midst of this people, & he shall not see the good, that I will do to my people, saith our Lord: because he hath spoken prevarication against our Lord.

The Prophet is commanded to write the same which he preacheth: 4. first pensive things, 8. then joyful, 9. Especially in the new Testament, when God will raise David (to wit Christ) {16} Who shall destroy all enemies. 19. And whose Church shall be great, glorious, and perpetual.

{1} THIS is the word, that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: Lord the God of Israel, saying: Write unto {2} Thus saith our thee all the words that I have spoken to thee, in a book. {3} For behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will convert the conversion of my people Israel and Juda, saith our Lord: and I will make them return to the land, which I gave their fathers, & they shall possess it. {4} And these are the words, that our Lord hath spoken to Israel and to Juda: {5} Because thus saith our Lord: We have heard a voice of terror: there is fear and no peace. {6} Demand, and see if a man bear child? Wherefore then have I seen every man's hand upon his loin, as a woman that is in travail, and all faces are turned into the jaundice? {7} Alas, because that is a great day, neither is there the like to it: and it is the time of tribulation to Jacob, & he shall be saved out of it. {8} And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord of hosts: I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will break his bands: & strangers shall no more rule over him: {9} but they shall serve our Lord their God, & David their king, whom I will raise up to them. {10} Thou therefore my servant Jacob fear not, saith our Lord, neither be thou afraid Israel: because lo I will save thee out of a far country, and thy seed out of the land of their captivity: & Jacob shall return, and be at rest, & flow with all good things, & there shall be none whom he may fear: {11} because I am with thee, saith our Lord, to save thee: for I will make a consummation in all the Nations, in which I have dispersed thee: but thee I will not make into consummation: but I will chastise thee in judgement, that thou mayst not seem to thy self innocent. {12} Because thus saith our Lord: Thy wound is incurable, thy stripe is very sore. {13} There is none to judge thy judgement to bind it up: there is no profit of medicines for thee. {14} All thy lovers have forgotten thee, & will not seek thee: for with the stroke of an enemy I have stricken thee with cruel chastisement: for the multitude of thine iniquity, thy sins are hardened. {15} What criest thou upon thine affliction? Thy sorrow is incurable: for the multitude of thine iniquity, & for thine hardened sins I have done these things to thee. {16} Therefore all that eat thee, shall be devoured: and all thine enemies shall be led into captivity: and they that waste thee, shall be wasted, and all thy spoilers will I give to the spoil. {17} For I will close up thy wound, and will heal thee of thy wounds, saith our Lord. Because they have called thee, o Sion, an out cast: This is she, that had none to seek after her. {18} Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will convert the conversion of the tabernacles of Jacob, and will have pity on his houses, & the city shall be built in her high place, and the temple shall be founded according to the order thereof. {19} And out of them shall come forth praise, and the voice of them that play: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be diminished: and I will glorify them, and they shall not be lessened. {20} And his children shall be as from the beginning, and his assembly shall be permanent before me: and I will visit against all that afflict him. {21} And his duke shall be of himself: and the prince shall be brought forth from the midst of him: and I will bring him near, and he shall come to me. For who is this, that applieth his heart to approach unto me, saith our Lord? {22} And you shall be my people: and I will be your God. {23} Behold, the whirlwind of our Lord, the fury going forth, the storm violently falling, it shall light upon the head of the impious. {24} Our Lord will not turn away the wrath of indignation, till he have done and accomplished the cogitation of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand these things.

God will reduce Israel from captivity, 4. and give them abundance of all things: 9. after their tribulation 15. Rachel (The afflicted Church) shall cease from mourning: 25. confessing that she is justly chastised. 20. Christ (a perfect man) shall be contained in his mother's womb. 26. He rising from sleep (death) will build his Church, 31. with a new covenant, 36. that it shall be large, and perpetual.

{1} AT that time, saith our Lord: I will be the God of all the kindreds of Israel, and they shall be my people. {2} Thus saith our Lord: The people that remained from the sword, found grace in the desert: Israel shall go to his rest. {3} Our Lord hath appeared to me of long time. And in everlasting charity have I loved thee, therefore have I drawn thee taking compassion. {4} And I will build thee again, and thou shalt be builded o virgin Israel: thou shalt yet be adorned with thy timbrels, & shall go forth in the choir of them that play. {5} Thou shalt yet plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, & till the time come they shall not make vintage: {6} because there shall be a day, wherein the watchmen on mount Ephraim shall cry: Arise, and let us go up unto Sion to the Lord our God. {7} Because thus saith our Lord: Rejoice in gladness o Jacob, and neigh against the head of the Gentiles: sound ye, and sing, and say: Save o Lord thy people the remnant of Israel. {8} Behold I will bring them out of the land of the North, and will gather them from the ends of the earth: among whom shall be the blind and the lame, and woman with child, and she that beareth child together, a great company of them that return hither. {9} They shall come in weeping: and in mercy I will reduce them: and I will bring them through the torrents of waters in a right way, and they shall not stumble in it: because I am become a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-begotten. {10} Hear the word of our Lord ye Nations, & shew forth in the islands, that are far off, and say: He that dispersed Israel, will gather him: and he will keep him as the Pastor his flock. {11} For our Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and he will deliver him out of the hand of the mightier. {12} And they shall come, and shall praise in mount Sion: and they shall run together to the good things of our Lord for the corn, and wine, and oil, and the increase of cattle and herds, and their soul shall be as a watered garden, and they shall be hungry no more. {13} Then shall the virgin rejoice in the choir, the young men & old men together: and I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them joyful from their sorrow. {14} And I will replenish the soul of the Priests with fatness: and my people shall be filled with my good things, saith our Lord. {15} Thus saith our Lord: A voice of lamentation is heard on high of the mourning, and weeping of Rachel weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted for them, because they are not. {16} Thus saith our Lord: Let thy voice cease from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: because there is a reward for thy work, saith our Lord: and they shall return out of the land of the enemy. {17} And there is hope to thy last ends, saith our Lord: & the children shall return to their borders. {18} Hearing I heard Ephraim going into transmigration. Thou hast chastised me, & I am taught, as a young bullock not tamed. Convert me, and I shall be converted: because thou art the Lord my God. {19} For after thou didst convert me I did penance: & after thou didst shew unto me, I struck my thigh: I am confounded, and ashamed, because I have sustained the reproach of my youth. {20} Certes Ephraim is an honourable son to me, certes a delicate child: because since I spake of him, as yet will I remember him. Therefore are my bowels troubled upon him: pitying I will pity him, saith our Lord. {21} Set thee a watch tower, make unto thee bitterness: direct thy heart into the right way wherein thou hast walked: return, o virgin Israel, return to these thy cities. {22} How long wilt thou be dissolute in deliciousness, o wandering daughter? Because our Lord hath created a new thing upon the earth: A WOMAN SHALL COMPASS A MAN. {23} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: As yet shall they say this word in the land of Juda, & in the cities thereof, when I shall convert their captivity: Our Lord bless thee the beauty of justice, the holy mountain. {24} and Judas and all his cities shall dwell in it together: the husbandmen and they that drive the flocks. {25} Because I have inebriated the weary soul: and every hungry soul I have filled. {26} Therefore I was raised up as out of a sleep, and I saw, and my sleep was sweet to me. {27} Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will sow the house of Israel & the house of Juda with the seed of men, & with the seed of beasts. {28} And as I have watched upon them, to pluck up, and deface, and dissipate, & destroy, and afflict: so will I watch over them, to build, and to plant them, saith our Lord. {29} In those days they shall say no more: The fathers did eat the bitter grape, and the teeth of the children are set on edge. {30} But every one shall die in his own iniquity: every man that shall eat the sour grape, his teeth shall be on edge. {31} Behold the days shall come, saith our Lord: and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Juda: {32} not according to the covenant, which I made with their fathers in the day that I took their hand, to bring them out of the Land of Aegypt: the covenant which they made void, and I had the dominion of them, saith our Lord. {33} But this shall be the covenant, that I will make with the house of Israel: after those days saith our Lord: I will give my law in their bowels, and in their heart I will write it: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. {34} And a man shall no more teach his neighbour, and a man his brother, saying: Know our Lord: for all shall know me from the least of them even to the greatest, saith our Lord: because I will be propitious to their iniquity, and their sin I will remember no more. {35} Thus saith our Lord, that giveth the sun for the light of the day, the order of the moon and of the stars, for the light of the night: that troubleth the sea, and the waves thereof do sound, the Lord of hosts is his name. {36} If these laws shall fail before me, saith our Lord: thee also the seed of Israel shall fail, that it be not a nation before me for ever. {37} Thus saith our Lord: If the heavens above shall be able to be measured, and the foundations of the earth beneath to be searched out: I also will cast away all the seed of Israel, for all things that they have done, saith our Lord. {38} Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and the city shall be built to our Lord from the tower of Hananeel even to the gate of the corner. {39} And the rule of the measure shall go out farther in his sight upon the little hill Gareb: and it shall compass Goatha, {40} and all the valley of carcasses, and of ashes, and all the country of death, even to the torrent of Cedron, and to the corner of the East gate of horses. The Holy of our Lord shall not be plucked up, and it shall no more be destroyed for ever.

Nabuchodonosor besieging Jerusalem, Jeremy in prison 7. buyeth by God's commandment a field of his cousin. 17. prayeth for the whole nation, reciting God's former benefits, 26. prophesieth their captivity in Babylon, 30. for their idolatry: 36. and delivery from thence, 40. with a new covenant to serve God sincerely.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord in the tenth year of Sedecias the king of Juda: the same is the eighteenth year of Nabuchodonosor. {2} Then the army of the king of Babylon besieged Jerusalem: and Jeremy the Prophet was shut up in the court of the prison, that was in the house of the king of Juda. {3} For Sedecias the king of Juda had shut him up, saying: Why doest thou prophesy, saying: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it? {4} And Sedecias the king of Juda shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldees: but he shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon: and he shall speak with him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall see his eyes. {5} And he shall lead Sedecias into Babylon: & he shall be there till I visit him, saith our Lord. But if you will fight against the Chaldees you shall have nothing prosperous. {6} And Jeremy said: The word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {7} Behold, Hanameel the son of Sellum thy cousin shall come to thee, saying: Buy unto thee my field, which is in Anathoth: for it appertaineth to thee by kindred to buy it. {8} And Hanameel mine uncle's son came unto me according to the word of our Lord to the entry of the prison, and said to me: Possess my field, which is in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin: because the inheritance pertaineth to thee, and thou art near of kin to possess it. And I understood that it was the word of our Lord. {9} And I bought the field of Hanameel mine uncle's son, which is in Anathoth: and I weighed him the silver, seven staters, and ten pieces of silver. {10} And I wrote it in a book, and signed it, and took witnesses and I weighed the silver in balance. {11} And I took the book of the possession signed, and the stipulations, and the things ratified, and the signs on the out side. {12} And I gave the book of the possession to Baruch the son of Neri the son of Maasias in the sight of Hanameel my cousin, and in the sight of the witnesses, that were written in the book of the purchase, and in the sight of all the Jews, that sat in the court of the prison. {13} And I commanded Baruch before them saying: {14} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Take these books, this book of the purchase signed, and this book, that is open: and put them in an earthen vessel, they may continue many days. {15} For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Yet shall houses, and fields, and vineyards be possessed in this land. {16} And I prayed to our Lord, after that I delivered the book of the possession to Baruch the son of Neri, saying: {17} Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God: behold thou hast made heaven and earth in thy great strength, & in thy stretched out arm: no word shall be hard to thee: {18} Which doest mercy on thousands, and renderest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them. O Most strong, great, & mighty, the Lord of hosts is thy name. {19} Great in counsel, and incomprehensible in cogitation: whose eyes are open upon all the ways of the children of Adam, to render unto every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his inventions. {20} Which hast put signs & wonders in the land of Aegypt even until this day, & in Israel, & in men, and hast made thee a name as is this day. {21} And thou didst bring forth thy people Israel out of the Land of Aegypt, in signs, & in wonders, & in a strong hand, and in a stretched out arm, and in great terror. {22} And thou gavest them this land, which thou swarest to their fathers, that thou wouldest give them a land flowing with milk and honey. {23} And they entered in, & possessed it: & they obeyed not thy voice, & in thy law they walked not: all that thou didst command them to do, they did not: and all these evils are befallen them. {24} Behold munitions are built against the city, that it may be taken: & the city is given into the hands of the Chaldees, which fight against it, at the presence of the sword, and of famine, and of pestilence: & what things soever thou hast spoken, are come to pass, as thy self seest. {25} And sayst thou to me o Lord God: Buy the field for silver, & take witnesses, whereas the city is given into the hands of the Chaldees? {26} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: {27} Behold I am the Lord the God of all flesh: shall any word be hard for me? {28} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver this city into the hands of the Chaldees, and into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they shall take it. {29} And the Chaldees shall come fighting against this city, and shall set it on fire, and burn it, and the houses, in whose tops they did sacrifice to Baal, and offered libaments to strange gods, to provoke me unto wrath. {30} For the children of Israel, and the children of Juda were continually doing evil in mine eyes from their youth: the children of Israel which even until this present exasperate me in the work of their hands, saith our Lord. {31} Because in fury and in mine indignation this city is made to me, from the day that they builded it, until this day, wherein it shall be taken out of my sight. {32} For the malice of the children of Israel, and of the children of Juda, which they have done provoking me to wrath, they & their kings, their Princes, & their Priests, and their Prophets, the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {33} And they have turned the backs to me, and not the faces: when I taught them early, & instructed them, & they would not hear that they might take discipline. {34} And they have set their idols in the house, wherein my name is invoked, that they might pollute it. {35} And they have built the excelses of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Ennom, that they might consecrate their sons and their daughters to Moloch: which I commanded them not, neither hath it ascended into my heart, that they should do this abomination, & bring Juda into sin. {36} And now for these things, thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to this city, whereof you say that it is delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon in sword, and in famine, and in pestilence. {37} Behold I will gather them together out of all lands, to which I have cast them out in my fury, and in my wrath, and in my great indignation: and I will bring them again into this place, and will make them dwell confidently. {38} And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. {39} And I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me all days: and it may be well with them, and with their children after them. {40} And I will make an everlasting covenant with them: and will not cease to do them good: and I will give my fear in their heart, that they revolt not from me. {41} And I will rejoice upon them, when I shall do them good: and I will plant them in this land in truth in my whole heart and in all my soul {42} Because thus saith our Lord: As I have brought upon this people all this great evil: so will I bring upon them all the good, that I speak to them. {43} And the fields shall be possessed in this land: whereof you say that it is desolate, because there is remaining no man nor beast, and it is given into the hands of the Chaldees. {44} The fields shall be bought for money, and shall be written in a book, and the sign shall be stamped on, and a witness shall be taken, in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, in the cities of Juda, and the cities on the mountains, and in the champion cities, and in the cities that are toward the South: because I will convert their captivity, saith our Lord.

God promiseth remission of sins: 10. reduction from captivity, and many other benefits. 14. He will give judgement and justice in David (Christ) whose throne (the Church) 19. shall be glorious. 24. and permanent.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy the second time, when as yet he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord that will do, & will form it, & prepare it, the Lord is his name. {3} Cry unto me, and I will hear thee and I will tell thee great things, and firm things which thou knowest not. {4} Because thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to the houses of this city, and to the houses of the king of Juda, which are destroyed, & to the munitions, and to the sword. {5} of them that come to fight with the Chaldees, and to fill them with the carcasses of the men, whom I have stricken in my fury, and in mine indignation, hiding my face from this city, because of all their malice. {6} Behold I will bring to them a scar and health, & will cure them: & I will reveal unto them the prayer of peace & truth. {7} And I will convert the conversion of Juda, & the conversion of Jerusalem: and will build them as from the beginning. {8} And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, wherein they have sinned to me: & I will be propitious to all their iniquities, wherein they have sinned to me, & despised me. {9} And it shall be to me a name, & a joy, & a praise, & an exultation to all the nations of the earth, that shall hear all the good things, which I will do to them: and they shall fear, & be troubled in all the good things, & in all the peace, that I will make to them. {10} Thus saith our Lord: Yet there shall be heard in this place (which you say is desolate, because there is neither man nor beast: in the cities of Juda, & without Jerusalem, which are desolate without man, & without inhabiter, and without beast) {11} the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that say: Confess ye to the Lord of hosts, because our Lord is good, because his mercy is for ever: and of them that carry vows into the house of our Lord. For I will bring back the conversion of the land as from the beginning, saith our Lord. {12} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Yet there shall be in this desolate place without man, and without beast, and in all the cities thereof, an habitation of Pastors of the resting flocks. {13} In the cities on the mountains, and in the champion cities, and in the cities that are toward the South: and in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda there shall yet pass flocks, at the hand of him that numbereth them, saith our Lord. {14} Behold the days shall come, saith our Lord, & I will raise up the good word, that I have spoken to the house of Israel, and to the house of Juda. {15} In those days, and in that time, I will make the spring of justice to bud forth unto David: and he shall do judgement and justice in the earth. {16} In those days shall Juda be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell confidently: & this is the name, that they shall call him, The Lord our just one. {17} Because thus saith our Lord: There shall not fail of David a man, to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel. {18} And of the Priests and Levites there shall not fail from before my face a man, to offer holocausts, & to burn sacrifice, & to kill victims all days. {19} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: {20} Thus saith our Lord: If my covenant with the day can be made void, & my covenant with the night, that there be not day and night in their time: {21} also my covenant may be made void with David my servant, that there be not of him a son to reign in his throne, & Levites & Priests my ministers. {22} Even as the stars of heaven can not be numbered, & the sand of the sea be measured: so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites my ministers. {23} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: {24} Hast thou not seen what this people hath spoken, saying: The two kindreds, which our Lord had chosen, are cast off: and they have despised my people, because it is no more a Nation before them? {25} Thus saith our Lord: If I have not set my covenant between day and night, and laws to heaven and earth: {26} surely I will also cast off the seed of Jacob, and of David my servant, that I take not of his seed Princes of the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will bring back their conversion, and will have mercy on them.

King Sedecias shall fall into the hands of Nabuchodonosor, and Jerusalem shall be burned: 8. because he hath broken the covenant, of releasing Jews from bondage. 14. in the seventh year; and contrary to particular promise of observing that law.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord when Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, & all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth that were under the power of his hand, and all the peoples made war against Jerusalem and against all the cities thereof, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Go, and speak to Sedecias the king of Juda: & thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, & he shall burn it with fire. {3} And thou shalt not escape out of his hand: but by taking thou shalt be taken, and thou shalt be delivered into his hand: and thine eyes shall see the eyes of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak with thy mouth, & thou shalt enter into Babylon. {4} But yet hear the word of our Lord o Sedecias king of Juda: Thus saith our Lord to thee: Thou shalt not die by the sword, {5} but thou shalt die in peace, & according to the burnings of thy fathers the former kings that have been before thee, so shall they burn thee: & Alas Lord, shall they mourn for thee: because I have spoken the word, saith our Lord. {6} And Jeremy the Prophet spake all these words to Sedecias the king of Juda in Jerusalem. {7} And the army of the king of Babylon fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Juda, that were remaining, against Lachis, and against Azecha: for these remained of the cities of Juda, fenced cities. {8} The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, after that king Sedecias made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem, proclaiming: {9} That every one should dismiss his servant, and every one his handmaid; the Hebrew man & the Hebrew woman free: And that they should not have dominion over them, that is, on a Jew and his brother. {10} All the Princes therefore heard, and all the people which had made the covenant that every man should dismiss his servant, and every man his handmaid free, and should no more have dominion over them: they heard therefore, and dismissed them. {11} And they turned afterwards: and drew their servants and their handmaids back again, whom they had dismisted free, and brought them into subjection as men servants, and women servants. {12} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: {13} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: I made a covenant with your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt, from the house of bondage, saying: {14} When seven years shall be accomplished, let every man dismiss his brother an Hebrew, that was sold to him, and he shall serve thee six years: and thou shalt dismiss him free from thee: and your fathers have not heard me, nor inclined their ear. {15} And you were converted this day, & did that which is right in mine eyes, that you proclaimed liberty every one to his friend: and you made a covenant in my sight, in the house, wherein my name is invoked upon it. {16} And you are returned, and have defiled my name: and you have brought back again every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom you had dismisted to be free, and of their own jurisdiction: and you have brought them into subjection to be your servants and handmaids. {17} Therefore thus saith our Lord: You have not heard me, to proclaim liberty every man to his brother, and every one to his friend: behold I proclaim unto you liberty, saith our Lord, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to famine: and I will give you into commotion to all the kingdoms of the earth. {18} And I will give the men, that transgress my covenant, and have not observed the words of the covenant, whereunto they consented in my sight, the calf which they did cut into two parts, and passed between the divisions thereof: {19} The Princes of Juda and the Princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the Priests, and all the people of the land that passed between the divisions of the calf. {20} And I will give them into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their life: and their carcass shall be for meat to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. {21} And Sedecias the king of Juda, and his Princes I will give into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their lives, and into the hands of the armies of the king of Babylon, which are retired from you. {22} Behold I command, saith our Lord, and I will bring them again into this city, and they shall fight against it, and take it, & burn it with fire: and the cities of Juda I will give into desolation, because there is not an inhabiter.

By example of the Rechabites voluntarily keeping their father's rule, God expostulath with the people that keep not his precepts; 17. denouncing that they shall be punished, and the Rechabites rewarded.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord in the days of Joakim the son of Josias the king of Juda, saying: {2} Go to the house of the Rechabites: and speak to them, & thou shalt bring them into the house of our Lord, into one chamber of the treasuries, & thou shalt give them wine to drink. {3} And I took Jezonias the son of Jeremias the son of Habsamias, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites. {4} And I brought them into the house of our Lord, to the treasure-house of the sons of Hanan, the son of Jegedelias the man of God, which was by the treasure-house of the Princes, above the treasure of Maasias the son of Sellum, who was keeper of the entry. {5} And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites goblets full of wine, and cups: and I said to them: Drink ye wine. {6} Who answered: We will not drink wine: because Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us, saying: You shall not drink wine, you and your children for ever. {7} And you shall not build house, and you shall not sow seed, and you shall not plant vineyards, nor have any: but you shall dwell in tabernacles all your days, that you may live many days upon the face of the land, wherein you are strangers. {8} We therefore have obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, in all things that he commanded us: so that we drank not any wine all our days: we and our wives, our sons & our daughters. {9} And we builded not houses to inhabit, and vineyard, and field, and seed we have not had: {10} but we have dwelt in tabernacles, and have been obedient according to all things that Jonadab our father commanded us. {11} But when Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon was come up to our Land, we said: Come, and let us go into Jerusalem from the face of the host of the Chaldees, & from the face of the host of Syria: & we have tarried in Jerusalem. {12} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: {13} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Go, & say to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Why will you not receive discipline, to obey my words, saith our Lord? {14} The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab have prevailed, which he commanded his sons not to drink wine: & they have not drunk until this day, because they have obeyed the commandment of their father: but I have spoken to you, early rising and speaking, and you have not obeyed me. {15} And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets, rising early, and sending and saying: Return ye every one from his most wicked way, and make your studies good: & follow not strange gods, nor worship them, and you shall dwell in the land which I gave you and your fathers: and you have not inclined your ear, nor heard me. {16} The children therefore of Jonadab the son of Rechab have firmly kept the precept of their father, which he commanded them: but this people hath not obeyed me. {17} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will bring upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the affliction which I have spoken against them, because I have spoken to them, and they have not heard: I have called them, and they have not answered me. {18} But to the house of the Rechabites Jeremy said: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: For that you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and have done all things, that he commanded you: {19} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: There shall not want a man of the stock of Jonadab the son of Rechab, standing in my sight all days.

Chapter 36

Jeremy in prison sendeth Baruch by God's commandment, to read a book of comminations before the people: 7. exhorting them to repent: 9. which being read in a porch of the Temple, 11. Micheas reporteth it to the Nobles in the court, 14. whither Baruch being called readeth the same before them: 20. they inform the King: 21. who hearing part thereof, causeth the book to be burned: 26. and commandeth to apprehend Baruch, and Jeremy. 27. The book is written again by them with addition of more.

{1} AND it came to pass in the fourth year of Joakim, the son of Josias king of Juda: this word was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: {2} Take a volume of a book and thou shalt write in it all the words that I have spoken to thee against Israel & Juda, and against all Nations since the day that I spake to thee, from the days of Josias even to this day. {3} If perhaps the house of Juda hearing all the evils, that I mean to do unto them, let every man return from his most wicked way: and I will be propitious to their iniquity, and to their sin. {4} Jeremy therefore called Baruch the son of Nerias: and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremy all the words of our Lord, which he spake to him, in the volume of the book. {5} And Jeremy commanded Baruch, saying: I am shut up, neither am I able to go into the house of our Lord. {6} Go thou in therefore, and read out of the volume, wherein thou hast written from my mouth the words of our Lord, in the hearing of all the people in the house of our Lord on the fasting day: moreover also in the hearing of all Juda, which come out of their cities, thou shalt read it to them: {7} if perhaps their prayer may fall in the sight of our Lord, and every one return from his most wicked way: because great is the fury and indignation, which our Lord hath spoken against this people. {8} And Baruch the son of Nerias did according to all things, that Jeremy the Prophet had commanded him, reading out of the volume the words of our Lord in the house of our Lord. {9} And it came to pass in the fifth year of Joakim the son of Josias the king of Juda, in the ninth month: they proclaimed a fast in the sight of our Lord to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the multitude, that was flocked together out of the cities of Juda in Jerusalem. {10} And Baruch read out of the words of Jeremy in the house of our Lord, in the treasury of Gamarias the son of Saphan the scribe, in the higher court, in the entry of the new gate of the house of our Lord, all the people hearing it. {11} And when Micheas the son of Gamarias the son of Saphan had heard all the words of our Lord out of the book: {12} he went down into the king's house to the treasury of the scribe: and behold all the Princes sat there, Elisama the scribe, and Dalaia the son of Semeias, and Elnathan the son of Achobor: and Gamarias the son of Saphan, and Sedecias the son of Hananias, and all the Princes. {13} And Micheas told them all the words that he had heard Baruch reading out of the volume in the ears of the people. {14} All the Princes therefore sent to Baruch, Judi the son of Nathanias, the son of Selemias, the son of Chusi, saying: Take in thy hand the volume, out of which thou hast read in the hearing of the people, & come. Baruch therefore the son of Nerias took the volume in his hand & came to them. {15} And they said to him: Sit, and read these things in our ears. And Baruch read in their ears. {16} Therefore when they had heard all the words, they were astonished every one toward his neighbour, and they said to Baruch: We must tell the king all these words. {17} And they asked him, saying: Tell us how didst thou write all these words from his mouth. {18} And Baruch said to them: From his mouth he spake as it were reading unto me all these words, and I wrote in a volume with ink. {19} And the Princes said to Baruch: Go, & be hid thou & Jeremy, and let no man know where you are. {20} And they went to the king into the court: moreover they laid up the volume in the treasury of Elisama the scribe: and they told all the words in the hearing of the king. {21} And the king sent Judi, that he should take the volume: who taking it out of the treasury of Elisama the scribe, read it, the king hearing, and all the Princes, that stood about the king. {22} And the king sat in the winter house in the ninth month: and there was an hearth set before him full of burning coals. {23} And when Judi had read three or four pages, he cut it with the penknife of a scribe: and he cast it into the fire, that was upon the hearth, till all the volume was consumed with the fire, that was on the hearth. {24} And the king and all his servants, that heard all these words, did not fear, nor rent their garments. {25} But yet Elnathan, and Dalaia, and Gamarias gainsaid the king, not to burn the Book: and he heard them not. {26} And the king commanded Jeremiel the son of Amelech, and Saraias the son of Ezriel, and Selemias the son of Abdeel, that they should apprehend Baruch the scribe, and Jeremy the Prophet: but our Lord hid them. {27} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy the Prophet, after that the king had burnt the volume and the words, that Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremy, saying: {28} Again take an other volume: and write in it all the former words, that were in the first volume, which Joakim the king of Juda hath burnt. {29} And to Joakim the king of Juda thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord: Thou hast burnt that volume, saying: Why hast thou written in it telling: The king of Babylon will come in haste, and will waste this land: and he will make man and beast, to cease out of it? {30} Therefore thus saith our Lord against Joakim the king of Juda: There shall not be of him to sit upon the throne of David: and his carcass shall be cast forth to the heat by day, and to the frost by night. {31} And I will visit against him, and against his seed, and against his servants their iniquities, and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & upon the men of Juda all the evil, that I have spoken to them: and they have not heard. {32} And Jeremy took an other volume, and gave it to Baruch the son of Nerias the scribe: who wrote in it from the mouth of Jeremy all the words of the book, which Joakim the king of Juda had burnt with fire: & there were added moreover many more words, than had been before.

Sedecias appointed by the King of Babylon to reign in Juda, requesteth Jeremias' prayers. 4. The Chaldees besieging Jerusalem, and hearing that the Aegyptians come against them, part away. 5. But Jeremy Prophesieth that they will return, and burn Jerusalem. 10. For which he is imprisoned. 16. After many days the King examineth him of his prophecy, who still affirming the same, 20. is kept in the entry of the prison.

{1} AND king Sedecias the son of Josias reigned for Jechonias the son of Joakim: whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon made king in the Land of Juda. {2} And he obeyed not, he and his servants, and the people of the land the words of our Lord, that he spake in the hand of Jeremy the Prophet. {3} And king Sedecias sent Juchal the son of Selemias, and Sophonias the son of Maasias Priest to Jeremy the Prophet, saying: Pray the Lord our God for us. {4} And Jeremy walked freely in the midst of the people: for they had not cast him into ward in prison. Therefore the army of Pharao came out of Aegypt: and the Chaldees that besieged Jerusalem, hearing such tidings, retired from Jerusalem. {5} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy the Prophet, saying: {6} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to the king of Juda, which sent you to demand of me: Behold the army of Pharao, which is come forth to help you, shall return into his land into Aegypt. {7} And the Chaldees shall return, and make war against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire. {8} Thus saith our Lord: Deceive not your souls, saying: The Chaldees going shall go away, & retire from us, because they shall not go away. {9} But if you shall strike all the host of the Chaldees, that fight against you, and there be left of them some wounded: everyone shall rise up out of his tent, and shall burn this city with fire. {10} Therefore when the army of the Chaldees was retired from Jerusalem, because of Pharao's army, {11} Jeremy went out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, and to divide possession there in the sight of the citizens. {12} And when he was come to the gate of Benjamin, there was there the keeper of the gate by course, one named Jerias, the son of Selemias, the son of Hananias: and he apprehended Jeremy the Prophet, saying: Thou flyest to the Chaldees. {13} And Jeremy answered: It is not so, I fly not to the Chaldees. And he heard him not: but took Jeremy, and brought him to the Princes. {14} For which thing the Princes being angry against Jeremy, they beat him, and cast him into the prison that was in the house of Jonathian the scribe: for he was chief over the prison. {15} Jeremy therefore went into the house of the lake, and into the dungeon: and Jeremy sat there many days. {16} But Sedecias the king sending took him: and demanded of him in his house secretly, and said: Thinkest thou the word is from our Lord? And Jeremy said: It is. And he said: Thou shalt be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. {17} And Jeremy said to king Sedecias, what have I sinned against thee, and thy servants, and thy people, that thou hast cast me into the prison house? {18} Where are your Prophets that did prophesy to you, and said: The king of Babylon shall not come upon you & upon this land? {19} Now therefore hear I beseech thee my lord king: let my petition be available in thy sight: and send me not back into the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there. {20} King Sedecias therefore commanded that Jeremy should be committed in the entry of the prison: and there should be given him a piece of bread every day, beside broth, till all the bread were spent out of the city: and Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison.

The nobles being offended with Jeremy's preaching, solicit to have him slain: 5. the king putting him in their hands, they cast him into a dirty dungeon, 7, from whence at the instance of Abdemelech an Aethiopian, he is drawn forth, 14, and having licence to speak, he adviseth the king to yield himself to the Chaldees, so he and the city shall be safe: 18. otherwise shall be taken captive, 24. which the king commandeth him to keep secret.

{1} AND Saphatias the son of Mathan, and Gedelias the son of Phassur, and Juchal the son of Selemias, and Phassur the son of Melchias heard the words, that Jeremy spake to all the people, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord: Whosoever shall remain in this city, shall die by sword, and famine, and pestilence: but he that shall fly to the Chaldees, shall live, and his life shall be safe and living. {3} Thus saith our Lord: By delivering this city shall be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it. {4} And the Princes said to the king: We desire thee that this man may be put to death: for of purpose he weakeneth the hands of the men of war, that are remaining in this city, and the hands of the people, speaking to them according to these words: for this man seeketh not peace to this people, but evil. {5} And king Sedecias said: Behold he is in your hands: for it is not lawful for the king to deny you any thing. {6} They therefore took Jeremy, and cast him into the lake of Melchias the son of Amelach, which was in the entry of the prison: & they let down Jeremy by ropes into the lake, wherein there was no water, but mire. Jeremy therefore sunk down into the mire. {7} But Abdemelech the Aethiopian an eunuch, that was in the king's house, heard that they had cast Jeremy into the lake: moreover the king sat in the gate of Benjamin. {8} And Abdemelech went out of the king's house, and spake to the king, saying: {9} My lord king, these men have done all things naughtily, whatsoever they have done against Jeremy the Prophet, casting him into the lake, that he may die for famine, for there is no more bread in the city. {10} The king therefore commanded Abdemelech the Aethiopian, saying: Take with thee from hence thirty men, and lift up Jeremy the Prophet out of the lake, before he die. {11} Abdemelech therefore taking the men with him, entered into the king's house, that was under the cellar: and he took thence old rags, and old things that were rotten: and he let them down to Jeremy into the lake by cords. {12} And Abdemelech the Aethiopian said to Jeremy: Put the old rags, and these rent and rotten things under the cubit of thine arms, & upon the ropes: Jeremy therefore did so. {13} And they drew out Jeremy with the cords, and brought him forth out of the lake. And Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison. {14} And king Sedecias sent, and took to him Jeremy the Prophet to the third door, that was in the house of our Lord: and the king said to Jeremy: I ask thee a word, hide not any thing from me. {15} And Jeremy said to Sedecias: If I shall tell thee, wilt thou not kill me? And if I give thee counsel, thou wilt not hear me. {16} King Sedecias therefore swore to Jeremy secretly, saying: Our Lord liveth, that made us this soul, if I kill thee, and if I deliver thee into the hands of these men, that seek thy life. {17} And Jeremy said to Sedecias: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: If going forth thou wilt go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire: and thou shalt be safe, and thine house. {18} But if thou wilt not go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, this city shall be delivered into the hands of the Chaldees, and they shall burn it with fire: and thou shalt not escape out of their hand. {19} And king Sedecias said to Jeremy: I am careful because of the Jews, that are fled to the Chaldees: lest perhaps I be delivered into their hands, & they mock me. {20} But Jeremy answered: They shall not deliver thee, hear I beseech thee the word of our Lord, which I speak to thee, and it shall be well with thee, and thy soul shall live. {21} But if thou wilt not go forth: this is the word, which our Lord hath shewed me: {22} Behold all the women, that are remaining in the house of the king of Juda, shall be brought out to the Princes of the king of Babylon: and they shall say: Thy peaceable men have seduced thee, and have prevailed against thee, they have drowned thy feet in the mire, and in a slippery place, and are revolted from thee. {23} And all thy wives, and thy sons shall be brought out to the Chaldees, and thou shalt not escape their hands, but thou shalt be taken in the hand of the king of Babylon: and he shall burn this city with fire. {24} Sedecias therefore said to Jeremy: let none know these words, and thou shalt not die. {25} But if the Princes shall hear, that I have spoken with thee: and shall come to thee, and say to thee: Tell us what hast thou spoken with the king, conceal not from us, and we will not kill thee. {26} Thou shalt say to them: I did prostrate my prayers before the king, that he would not command me to be carried back into the house of Jonathan, and there die. {27} All the Princes therefore came to Jeremy, and asked him: and he spake to them according to all the words, that the king had commanded him, and they left him: for nothing had been heard. {28} But Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison, until the day, that Jerusalem was taken: and it came to pass that Jerusalem was taken.

Jerusalem after two years siege is taken by the Chaldees: 4. King Sedecias with others flying by a postern gate, is taken, brought to the King of Babylon, all his sons are slain, his eyes put out, and so led into Babylon. 8. The kings palace and the town house are burned; the walls of the city destroyed, the people carried captive, only the poorest left to till the ground. 11. Jeremias is delivered. 15. And Abdemelech is saved from danger.

{1} IN the ninth year of Sedecias the king of Juda, the tenth month, came Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, & all his army to Jerusalem, and they besieged it. {2} And in the eleventh year of Sedecias, the fourth month, the ninth of the month the city was opened. {3} And all the Princes of the king of Babylon went in, & sat in the middle gate: Neregal, Sereser, Semegarnabu, Rabsares, Neregel, Serezer, Rebmag, & all the rest of the Princes of the king of Babylon. {4} And when Sedecias the king of Juda, & all the men of war had seen them, they fled: & they went forth in the night out of the city by the way of the king's garden, and by the gate, that was between the two walls, & they went out to the way of the desert. {5} But the host of the Chaldees pursued them: and they took Sedecias in the field of the desert of Jericho, and being taken they brought him to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Reblatha, which is in the Land of Emath: and he spake unto him judgements. {6} And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Sedecias in Reblatha, before his eyes: and the king of Babylon killed all the nobles of Juda. {7} The eyes also of Sedecias he plucked out: and bound him with fetters, to be led into Babylon. {8} The king's house also, and the house of the common people the Chaldees burnt with fire, and they overthrew the wall of Jerusalem. {9} And the remnant of the people, that remained in the city, and the fugitives that were fled to him, and the rest of the people that remained, Nabuzardan the Prince of the soldiers transported into Babylon. {10} And the poor people, that had nothing at all, Nabuzardan the master of the soldiers let alone in the land of Juda, and he gave them vineyards, and cisterns in that day. {11} But Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had commanded Nabuzardan the Prince of the soldiers concerning Jeremy, saying: {12} Take him, and set thine eyes upon him, and do him no evil: but as he will, so do to him. {13} Nabuzardan therefore the Prince of the warfare sent; and Nabusezban also, and Rabsares, and Neregel, & Sereser, and Rebmag, and all the nobles of the king of Babylon, {14} sent, & took Jeremy out of the entry of the prison, and delivered him to Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan, that he might enter into the house, and dwell among the people. {15} But to Jeremy the word of our Lord was made, when he was shut up in the entry of the prison, saying: Go, and tell Abdemelech the Aethiopian, saying: {16} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will bring my words upon this city unto evil, and not unto good: and they shall be in thy sight in that day: {17} And I will deliver thee in that day, saith our Lord: and thou shalt not be delivered into the hands of the men, whom thou fearest: {18} but delivering I will deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword: but thy life shall be to thee unto salvation, because thou hast had confidence in me, saith our Lord.

Jeremy being permitted to go whither he will, 6. repaireth to Godolias, governor of the country. 7. To whom also many Jews come from sundry places. 13. Godolias warned of danger, doth not believe it.

{1} THE word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, after that he was dismest of Nabuzardan master of the war from Rama, when he took him bound with chains in the midst of all, that went in transmigration of Jerusalem and Juda, and were led into Babylon. {2} The Prince therefore of the war taking Jeremy, said to him: The Lord thy God hath spoken this evil upon this place, {3} and hath brought it: and the Lord hath done as he hath spoken because you have sinned to the Lord, and have not heard his voice, and this word is fallen to you. {4} Now then behold I have loosed thee this day from the chains, that are on thy hands: if it please thee to come with me into Babylon, come: and I will set mine eyes upon thee: but if it please thee not to come with me into Babylon, tarry: behold all the land is in thy sight, that which thou shalt choose, and whither it shall please thee to go, thither go. {5} And come not with me: but dwell with Godolias the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, whom the king of Babylon hath appointed chief over the cities of Juda: dwell therefore with him in the cities of Juda: dwell therefore with him in the midst of the people: or whithersoever it shall please thee to go, go. The master of the war gave him victuals also, and gifts, and dismissed him. {6} And Jeremy came to Godolias the son of Ahicam into Masphath: and dwell with him in the midst of the people, that was left in the land. {7} And when all the Princes of the army, that were dispersed through the countries, they and their companions, had heard, that the king of Babylon had made Godolias the son of Ahicam governor of the country, & that he had commanded unto him men, & women, & children, & those of the poor of the land, that had not been transported into Babylon. {8} Then came to Godolias into Masphath both Ismael the son of Nathanias, and Johanan, and Jonathan, the son of Caree, and Sareas the son of Thanehumeth, and the children of Ophi, that were of Netophathie, and Jezonias the son of Maachati, they and their men. {9} And Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan sware to them and to their companions, saying: Fear not to serve the Chaldees: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. {10} Behold I dwell in Masphath, that I may answer the commandment of the Chaldees, that are sent to us: but you gather ye vintage, and harvest, and oil, and lay it up in your vessels, and abide in your cities which you hold. {11} Yea and all the Jews, that were in Moab, and among the children of Ammon, and in Idumea, and in all the countries, when it was heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Jewry, & that he had made Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan ruler over them: {12} all the Jews, I say, returned out of all places, to which they had fled, and they came into the land of Juda to Godolias into Masphath: and they gathered wine, and harvest exceeding much.

{13} But Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the host, that had been dispersed in the countries, came to Godolias into Masphath. {14} And they said to him: Know that Baalis the king of the children of Ammon hath sent Ismael the son of Nathanias to kill thee. And Godolias the son of Ahicam believed them not. {15} But Johanan the son of Caree, spake to Godolias apart in Masphath, saying: I will go, and strike Ismael the son of Nathanias no man knowing it: lest he kill thee, and all the Jews be dispersed, that are gathered unto thee, and the remnant of Juda perish. {16} And Godolias the son of Ahicam said to Johanan the son of Caree: Do not this word: for thou speakest false of Ismael.

Godolias with other Jews and some Chaldees are slain by Ismael, sent from the King of Moabites: 8. ten are ransomed for their riches. 11. Johanan taking arms to revenge the slaughter, Ismael flyeth away, delivering those whom he held captives: 17. and they prepare to fly into Egypt.

{1} AND it came to pass in the seventh month, came Ismael the son of Nathanias, the son of Elisama of the king's blood, and the nobles of the king, and ten men with him, to Godolias the son of Ahicam into Masphath: and they did eat bread there together in Masphath. {2} And Ismael the son of Nathanias arose, & the ten men, that were with him, and they struck Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler over the land. {3} All the Jews also that were with Godolias in Masphath, and the Chaldees that were found there, and the men of war did Ismael strike. {4} And the second day after he had killed Godolias, no man yet knowing it, {5} there came men from Sichem, and from Silo, and from Samaria eighty men: their beard shaven, and their garments rent, and ill favoured: and they had gifts, and frankincense in their hand, to offer in the house of our Lord. {6} Ismael therefore the son of Nathanias going forth to meet them out of Masphath, went going & weeping: and when he had met them, he said to them: Come to Godolias the son of Ahicam. {7} Who when they were come to the midst of the city, Ismael the son of Nathanias slew them about the midst of the lake, he and the men that were with him. {8} But ten men were found among them, that said to Ismael: Kill us not: because we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. And he ceased, and slew not them with their brethren. {9} And the lake into which Ismael threw all the carcasses of the men whom he struck for Godolias, is the same that king Asa made for Baasa the king of Israel: the same did Ismael the son of Nathanias fill with them that were slain. {10} And Ismael led away captive all the remnant of the people that were in Masphath: the king's daughters, and all the people, that remained in Masphath: whom Nabuzardan the Prince of the war had commanded to Godolias the son of Ahicam. And Ismael the son of Nathanias took them, & he went away, to pass unto the children of Ammon. {11} But Johanan the son of Caree, & all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, heard all the evil that Ismael the son of Nathanias had done. {12} And taking all the men, they went forth to make battle against Ismael the son of Nathanias, and they found him at the many waters, that are in Gabaon. {13} And when all the people that was with Ismael, had seen Johanan the son of Caree, & all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, they rejoiced. {14} And all the people, whom Ismael had taken, returned into Masphath: and returning they went to Johanan the son of Caree. {15} But Ismael the son of Nathanias fled with eight men, from the face of Johanan, and went to the children of Ammon. {16} Johanan therefore the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, took all the remnant of the common people, which they had brought back from Ismael the son of Nathanias out of Masphath, after that he had struck Godolias the son of Ahicam: strong men for battle, & women, & children, & eunuchs, which he had brought back from Gabaon. {17} And they went, & sat sojourning in Chamaam, which is beside Bethlehem: that they might go forward, & enter into Aegypt {18} from the face of the Chaldees: for they feared them, because Ismahel the son of Nathanias had stricken Godolias the son of Ahicam, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler in the land of Juda.

J Jeremy praying and consulting God, 7. answereth that all those which remain in Jerusalem shall be safe: 13. but those that go into Aegypt shall perish.

{1} AND there came all the Princes of the men of war, and Johanan the son of Caree, and Jezonias the son of Osaias, and the rest of the common people from little unto great: {2} And they said to Jeremy the Prophet: Let our prayer fall in thy sight: and pray for us to the Lord thy God for all this remnant, because we are left few of many, as thine eyes do behold us. {3} And let our Lord thy God tell us the way, by which we may go, and the word that we must do. {4} And Jeremy the Prophet said to them: I have heard: behold I pray to our Lord your God according to your words: every word whatsoever he shall answer me, I will tell you: neither will I conceal from you any thing. {5} And they said to Jeremy: Be our Lord witness between us of truth and faith, if we do not according to every word, for the which our Lord, thy God shall send thee to us. {6} Whether it be good, or evil, we will obey the voice of the Lord our God, to whom we send thee: that it may be well with us, when we shall hear the voice of the Lord our God. {7} And when ten days were accomplished, the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy. {8} And he called Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, and the whole people from little to great. {9} And he said to them: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel, to whom you sent me, that I should prostrate your prayers in his sight: {10} If resting you will abide in this land, I will build you, and not destroy you; I will plant, and not pluck you up: for now I am pacified upon the evil that I have done to you. {11} Fear not at the face of the king of Babylon, of whom you being fearful are afraid: fear him not, saith our Lord: because I am with you, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand. {12} And I will give you mercies, and will have mercy upon you, and will make you dwell in your own land. {13} But if you shall say: We will not dwell in this land, neither will we hear the voice of the Lord our God, {14} saying: No, not so: but we will go forward to the Land of Aegypt, where we shall not see war, and not hear the sound of the trumpet, and shall not sustain famine: and there we will dwell. {15} For this now hear the word of our Lord ye remnant of Juda: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If you shall set your face to go into Aegypt, and shall enter to inhabit there: {16} the sword which you fear, shall there take you in the Land of Aegypt: and the famine, for the which you are careful, shall cleave to you in Aegypt, and there you shall die. {17} And all the men, that shall set their face to go into Aegypt, to dwell there, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: none of them shall remain, nor escape from the face of the evil, that I will bring upon them. {18} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: As my fury is poured out, and mine indignation upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem: so shall mine indignation be poured out upon you, when you shall be entered into Aegypt, and you shall be into an oath, and into astonishment, and into a curse, and into reproach: and you shall no more see this place. {19} The word of our Lord is upon you, o remnant of Juda: Enter not into Aegypt: knowing you shall know that I have adjured you this day, {20} because you have deceived your souls: for you sent me to the Lord our God, saying: Pray for us to the Lord our God, & according to all things whatsoever the Lord our God shall say to thee, so tell us, and we will do. {21} And I have told you this day, and you have not heard the voice of the Lord your God concerning all things, for which he hath sent me to you. {22} Now therefore knowing you shall know that by sword, and famine, and pestilence you shall die in the place, to which you would enter for to dwell there.

The relics of the Jews, against Jeremy's admonitions, go into Aegypt, 6. carrying Jeremy and Baruch with them: 8. where Jeremy prophesieth that the King of Babylon shall spoil that land, 12. and their idols.

{1} AND it came to pass, when Jeremy had finished speaking to the people all the words of the Lord their God, for which our Lord their God had sent him to them, all these words: {2} Azarias the son of Osaias said: & Johanan the son of Caree, and all the proud men, saying to Jeremy: Thou speakest a lie: the Lord our God sent thee not, saying: Go not into Aegypt, to dwell there. {3} But Baruch the son of Nerias doth provoke thee against us, that he may deliver us into the hands of the Chaldees, that he may kill us, and make us to be transported into Babylon. {4} And Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, & the whole people, heard not the voice of our Lord, to abide in the Land of Juda. {5} But Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war taking all the remnant of Juda, that were returned out of all nations, to which they had before been dispersed, to dwell in the Land of Juda: {6} men and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every soul, which Nabuzardan the Prince of the war had left with Godolias the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, and Jeremy the Prophet, and Baruch the son of Nerias. {7} And they went into the Land of Aegypt, because they obeyed not the voice of our Lord: & they came as far as Taphnis. {8} And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy in Taphnis, saying: {9} Take thee great stones in thy hand, and thou shalt hide them in the cave, that is under the brick wall in the gate of Pharaon's house in Taphnis: in the sight of the men of Juda. {10} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will send, and take to me Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon my servant: and I will set his throne over these stones, which I have hid, and he shall set his throne upon them. {11} And coming he shall strike the Land of Aegypt: those that into death, into death: & those that into captivity, into captivity: and those that into the sword, into the sword. {12} And he shall kindle a fire in the temples of the gods of Aegypt, and shall burn the same, and he shall lead them captive: & he shall be clothed with the Land of Aegypt, as a pastor is clothed with his cloak: & he shall go out from thence in peace. {13} And he shall break the statues of the house of the Sun, that are in the Land of Aegypt: and the temples of the gods of Aegypt he shall burn with fire.

The Jews admonished by Jeremy to leave their idolatry, 15. obstinately answer, that they will persist therein. 20. Whereupon he prophesieth their destruction: 28. few escaping that return into Jerusalem. 29. And that the King of Aegypt shall also fall into his enemies' hands.

{1} THE word, that was made to Jeremy, to all the Jews, that dwelt in the Land of Aegypt, dwelling in Magdal, and in Taphnis, and in Memphis, and in the Land of Phatures, saying: {2} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: You have seen all this evil, that I have brought upon Jerusalem, & upon all the cities of Juda: and behold they are desolate this day, and there is not an inhabiter in them: {3} for the malice, which they have done, to provoke me to wrath, & to go and sacrifice, & worship false gods, which both they, & you, & your fathers knew not. {4} And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets, in the night rising, and sending and saying: Do not the word of this manner of abomination, which I hated. {5} And they heard not, nor inclined their ear to return from their evils, & not to sacrifice to strange gods. {6} And mine indignation, and my fury is poured out, & it is kindled in the cities of Juda, & in the streets of Jerusalem: & they are turned into desolation & waste according to this day. {7} And now thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Why do you this great evil against your own souls, that there should die of you man and woman, child and suckling out of the midst of Juda, and nothing be left remaining unto you: {8} provoking me in the works of your hands, in sacrificing to strange gods in the Land of Aegypt, into which you are entered to inhabit there: and that you should perish, and be a malediction, {827} and a reproach to all the nations of the earth? {9} Why, have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of Juda, and the evils of their wives, and your evils, and the evils of your wives, that they have done in the Land of Juda, and in the countries of Jerusalem? {10} They are not cleansed even to this day: and they have not feared, and they have not walked in the law of the Lord, and in my precepts, which I have given before you and your fathers. {11} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will set my face upon you to evil: and I will destroy all Juda. {12} And I will take the remnant of Juda, which have set their face to go into the Land of Aegypt, and to dwell there, and they shall be all consumed in the Land of Aegypt: they shall fall by the sword, and by famine: & they shall be consumed from the least even to the greatest, by the sword, and by famine shall they die: and they shall be for an oath, and for a miracle, and into malediction, and into reproach. {13} And I will visit the inhabitants of the Land of Aegypt, as I have visited upon Jerusalem in sword, and famine, and pestilence. {14} And there shall be none that shall escape, and be remaining of the remnant of the Jews, that go to sojourn in the Land of Aegypt: & that shall return into the Land of Juda, to the which they elevate their souls, for to return and dwell there: there shall none return but they that shall fly. {15} But all the men that knew that their wives sacrificed to strange gods: and all the women of whom there stood a great multitude, and all the people of the inhabitants in the Land of Aegypt in Phatures, answered Jeremy, saying: {16} The word, which thou hast spoken to us in the name of our Lord, we will not hear of thee: {17} But doing we will do every word, that shall proceed out of our own mouth, to sacrifice unto the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto her, as we and our fathers have done, our kings, and our Princes in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, and we were filled with bread, and it was well with us, and we saw no evil. {18} But from that time, since we ceased to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto her, we lack all things, & we are consumed with sword, & famine. {19} And if we sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and offer libaments to her: why, have we without our husbands made her cakes to worship her, and to offer libaments to her? {20} And Jeremy said to all the people against the men, and against the women, and against all the people, that had answered him the word saying: {21} Why, the sacrifice that you have sacrificed in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings, and your Princes, and the people of the land, is not our Lord mindful of them, and hath it not ascended upon his heart? {22} And our Lord would bear no longer for the malice of your studies, and for the abominations, which you have done, and your land is brought into desolation, and into astonishment, and into malediction, for that there is not an inhabiter, as is this day. {23} Because you have sacrificed to idols, and have sinned to our Lord: and have not heard the voice of our Lord, and have not walked in his laws, and in his precepts, and in his testimonies: therefore are these evils fallen to you, as is this day. {24} And Jeremy said to all the people, and to all the women: Hear you the word of our Lord all Juda, which are in the Land of Aegypt: {25} Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, saying: You, and your wives have spoken with your mouth, and have accomplished with your hands, saying: Let us perform our vows which we have vowed, to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments to her: you have fulfilled your vows, and have done them in work. {26} Therefore hear ye the word of our Lord all Juda, which dwell in the Land of Aegypt: Behold I have sworn by my great name, saith our Lord: that my name shall no more be called by the mouth of every man of Juda, saying: Our Lord God liveth, in all the Land of Aegypt. {27} Behold I will watch upon them to evil, and not to good: and all the men of Juda that are in the Land of Aegypt, shall be consumed, with sword, and famine, till they be utterly consumed. {28} And they that shall escape the sword, shall return out of the Land of Aegypt into the Land of Juda a few men: and all the remnant of Juda that go into the Land of Aegypt, to dwell there, shall know, whose word is accomplished, mine, or theirs. {29} And this shall be a sign for you, saith our Lord, that I visit upon you in this place: that you may know that my words shall be accomplished indeed against you to evil. {30} Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver Pharao Ephree the king of Aegypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life: as I have delivered Sedecias the king of Juda into the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon his enemy, and that seeketh his life.

Jeremy reprehendeth Baruch for lamenting in affliction.

{1} THE word that Jeremy spake to Baruch the son of Nerias, when he had written these words in a book, from the mouth of Jeremy, in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, saying: {2} Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to thee Baruch: {3} Thou hast said: Woe is me wretch, because our Lord hath added sorrow to my sorrow: I have laboured in my mourning, & have not found rest. {4} Thus saith our Lord: Thus shalt thou say to him: Behold, them whom I have builded, I do destroy: and whom I have planted, I do pluck up, and all this land. {5} And dost thou seek to thy self great things? Seek not: for behold I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith our Lord: and I will give thee thy life into safety in all places, whithersoever thou shalt go.

Jeremy prophesieth that the King of Babylon shall invade Aegypt, 13. and waste the cities and land: 25. which shall again be repaired. 27. And the relics of the Jews shall be delivered from sundry places of captivity.

{1} THE word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against the Gentiles, {2} to Aegypt against the army of Pharao Nechao the king of Aegypt, which was beside the river Euphrates in Charcamis, who Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon struck, in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda. {3} Prepare ye shield, & buckler, and go forth to battle. {4} Yoke horses, & mount ye horsemen: stand in helmets, furbish the spears, put on coats of mail. {5} What then? I saw them fearful, and turning their backs, their valiants slain: they fled in haste, neither looked they back: terror on every side, saith our Lord. {6} Let not the swift fly, nor the strong think that he is safe: Toward the north by the river Euphrates they were overcome, and fell down. {7} Who is this that riseth up as a flood: and as it were of rivers, so his streams do swell? {8} Aegypt riseth up like a flood, & the waves thereof shall be moved as rivers, & shall say: Rising up I will cover the earth: I will destroy city, and the inhabitants thereof. {9} Get ye up on horses, & in chariots, & let the valiants come forth, Aethiopia, and the Lybians holding the shield, and the Lydeans taking, and shooting arrows. {10} And that day of our Lord the God of hosts, is a day of revenge, that they may take vengeance of his enemies: the sword shall devour, and be filled, and shall be drunken with their blood: for the victim of our Lord the God of hosts is in the Land of the North by the river Euphrates. {11} Go up into Galaad, & take resin o virgin the daughter of Aegypt: thou doest in vain multiply medicines, there shall not be health to thee. {12} The Gentiles have heard thine ignominy, and thine howling hath filled the earth: because the strong hath stumbled against the strong, and both are fallen together. {13} The word that our Lord spake to Jeremy the Prophet, concerning this, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon should come and strike the Land of Aegypt: {14} Tell Aegypt, and make it heard in Magdal, and let it sound in Memphis, and in Taphnis: Say ye: Stand, and prepare thy self: because the sword shall devour those things, that be round about thee. {15} Why is thy valiant become rotten? He stood not: because our Lord hath overthrown him. {16} He hath multiplied them that fall, and man hath fallen against his neighbour, and they shall say: Arise, and let us return to our people, and to the Land of our nativity, from the face of the sword of the dove. {17} Call ye the name of Pharao the king of Aegypt, Tumult, Time hath brought it. {18} I live (saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name) that as Thabor in the mountains, and as Carmel in the sea, he shall come. {19} Make vessels of transmigration o daughter inhabitant of Aegypt: because Memphis shall be in desolation, and shall be forsaken, and shall be inhabitable. {20} Aegypt a trim and beautiful heifer: a pricker from the North shall come to her. {21} Her hirelings also that conversed in the midst of her, as fatted calves are turned, and are fled together, neither could they stand: because the day of their slaughter came upon them, the time of their visitation. {22} Her voice shall sound as if it were of brass, because they shall hasten with an army, & with axes they shall come to her, as it were cutting trees. {23} They have cut down her forest, saith our Lord, which can not be counted: they are multiplied above locusts, and are without number. {24} The daughter of Aegypt is confounded, and delivered into the hand of the people of the North. {25} The Lord of hosts the God of Israel hath said: Behold I will visit upon the tumult of Alexandria, and upon Pharao, and upon Aegypt, and upon her gods, and upon her kings, and upon Pharao, and upon them that trust in him. {26} And I will give them into the hand of them that seek their life, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and after these things it shall be inhabited as in the days of old, saith our Lord. {27} And thou my servant Jacob fear not, and be not thou afraid Israel: because lo I will save thee from a far, and thy seed out of the land of thy captivity: and Jacob shall return, and rest, and prosper: and there shall be none to terrify him. {28} And thou my servant Jacob fear not, saith our Lord: because I am with thee, because I will consume all the nations, to the which I have cast thee out: but thee I will not consume, but I will chasten thee in judgement, neither will I spare thee as innocent.

The desolation of the Philistines, Tyre, Sidon, Gaza, and Ascalon, is prophesied.

{1} THE word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against the Palestines, before Pharao struck Gaza: {2} Thus saith our Lord: Behold there come up waters from the North, and they shall be as a torrent overflowing, and they shall cover the earth, and the fullness thereof, the city and the inhabitants thereof: men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl. {3} at the noise of the pomp of the armour, and of his men of war, at the commotion of his chariots, and the multitude of his wheels. The fathers have not respected the children, being of dissolute hands, {4} for the coming of the day, wherein all the Philistines shall be wasted, and Tyre, and Sidon shall be destroyed with all the rest of their aids. For our Lord hath spoiled the Palestines, the remnant of the isle of Cappadocia. {5} Baldness is come upon Gaza. Ascalon hath held her peace, and the remnant of her valley, how long shalt thou be hewed? {6} O sword of our Lord, how long wilt thou not be quiet? Get into thy scabbard, be cooled, and be still. {7} How shall it be quiet when our Lord hath commanded it against Ascalon, and against the countries thereof by the sea side, and there, hath made appointment with it?

A Prophecy of the vastation of Moab 29. for their pride: 47. but their captivity shall at last be released.

{1} TO Moab thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Woe upon Nabo, because it is wasted, and confounded: Cariathaim is taken: the strong one is confounded, and hath trembled. {2} There is no more rejoicing in Moab: against Hesebon they have thought evil. Come, and let us destroy it from being a nation. Therefore shalt thou in silence hold thy peace, and the sword shall follow thee. {3} The voice of a cry from Oronaim: waste, and great destruction. {4} Moab is destroyed: proclaim a cry to her children. {5} For by the ascent of Luith shall the mourner go up in weeping: because in the descent of Oronaim the enemies have heard the howling of destruction: {6} Fly, save your lives: & you shall be as heath in the desert. {7} For that thou hast had confidence in thy munitions, and in thy treasures, thou also shalt be taken: and Chamos shall go into transmigration, his Priests, and his Princes together. {8} And the spoiler shall come to every city, and no city shall be saved: and the valleys shall perish, & the champion countries shall be destroyed: because our Lord hath said: {9} Give ye the flower to Moab, because flourishing it shall go out: and her cities shall be desolate, and inhabitable. {10} Cursed be he that doeth the work of our Lord fraudulently: and cursed that stayeth his sword from blood. {11} Moab hath been fruitful from his youth, and hath rested in his dregs: neither hath he been poured out of vessel into vessel, and hath not gone into transmigration: therefore hath his taste remained in him, and his savour is not changed. {12} Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will send unto him those that shall order and dispose of his pots, and they shall overthrow him, and shall empty his vessels, and dash their pots one against an other. {13} And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, wherein it had confidence. {14} How say ye: We are valiant, and strong men to fight? {15} Moab is wasted, and her cities they have cast down: & her chosen young men are gone down into slaughter: saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name. {16} The destruction of Moab is nigh to come: the evil thereof shall come exceeding swiftly. {17} Comfort him all ye that are round about him, and all you that know his name, say: How is the strong rod broken, the glorious staff? {18} Come down from thy glory, and sit in drought, o habitation of the daughter of Dibon: Because the waster of Moab shall come up to thee, he shall destroy thy munitions. {19} Stand in the way, and look o habitation of Aroer: ask of him that flyeth: and say to him that hath escaped: What is chanced? {20} Moab is confounded, because he is overcome: howl ye, and cry, declare in Arnon, that Moab is wasted. {21} And judgement is come to the champion country: upon Helon, and upon Jasa, and upon Mephaath, {22} and upon Dibon, and upon Nabo, & upon the house of Deblathaim, {23} and upon Cariathaim, and upon Bethgamul, and upon Bethmaon, {24} and upon Carioth, and upon Bosra: and upon all the cities of the Land of Moab, that are far, and near. {25} The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith our Lord. {26} Make him drunken, because he is erected against our Lord: and Moab shall wring his hand in his vomiting, and himself also shall be in derision. {27} For Israel hath been in derision unto thee: as though thou hadst found him amongst thieves: for thy words therefore, which thou hast spoken against him, thou shalt be led captive. {28} Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock ye inhabitants of Moab, and be ye as a dove making her nest in the highest mouth of the hole. {29} We have heard the pride of Moab, he is proud exceedingly: his haughtiness, and arrogancy, and pride, and loftiness of his heart. {30} I know, saith our Lord, his boasting: and that the strength thereof is not according to it, neither hath it endeavoured to do according to that which it was able. {31} Therefore will I wail upon Moab, and to all Moab will I cry, to the men of the earthen wall that lament. {32} Of the mourning of Jazer I will weep to thee, o vineyard of Sabama: thy branches have passed over the sea, they are come even to the sea of Jaser: the spoiler hath violently entered upon thine harvest, and thy vintage. {33} Joy and gladness is taken away out of Carmel, and out of the Land of Moab, and the wine out of the presses I have taken away: the treader of the grape shall not sing the accustomed cheerful note. {34} From the cry of Hesebon unto Eleale, and Jasa, they have given their voice: from Segor to Oronaim, an heifer of three years old: the waters also of Nemrim shall be very ill. {35} And I will take away from Moab, saith our Lord, him that offereth in the excelses, and that sacrificeth to his gods. {36} Therefore shall my heart sound to Moab as a shalm: and my heart shall give the sound of shalms to the men of the earthen wall: because he hath done more than he could, therefore have they perished. {37} For every head baldness, and every beard shall be shaven: in all hands binding together, & upon every back cloth of hair. {38} Upon all the house tops of Moab, & in the streets thereof all mourning: because I have broken Moab as an unprofitable vessel, saith our Lord. {39} How is it overcome, & they have howled? How hath Moab cast down the neck, and is confounded? And Moab shall be in derision, and for an example to all round about him. {40} Thus saith our Lord: Behold he shall fly as an eagle, and shall stretch forth his wings to Moab. {41} Carioth is taken, and munitions are won: and the heart of the valiants of Moab in that day, shall be as the heart of a woman in travail. {42} And Moab shall cease to be a people: because he hath gloried against our Lord. {43} Fear, and pit, & snare upon thee o inhabiter of Moab, saith our Lord. {44} He that shall fly from the face of fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall come up out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare: for I will bring upon Moab the year of their visitation, saith our Lord. {45} They stood in the shadow of Hesebon that fled from the snare: because there came a fire out of Hesebon, and a flame out of the midst of Sehon, and it hath devoured part of Moab, and the top of the children of tumult. {46} Woe to thee Moab, thou hast perished, o people of Chamos: because thy sons are taken, and thy daughters into captivity. {47} And I will convert the captivity of Moab in the last days, saith our Lord. Hitherto the judgements of Moab.

The like vastation of Ammon (6. who shall be again restored.) 7. destruction of Idumea: 27. of the Syrians, 28. Agarenes, 34. and Aelamites: 39. whose captivity shall at last be released.

{1} TO the children of Ammon. Thus saith our Lord: Why, hath Israel no children? Or hath he not an heir? Why then hath Melchom by inheritance possessed Gad: and his people dwelt in his cities? {2} Therefore behold the days come saith our Lord: and I will make the noise of battle to be heard upon Rabbath the children of Ammon, and it shall be destroyed into an heap, and her daughters shall be burnt with fire, & Israel shall possess his possessors, saith our Lord. {3} Howl Hesebon, because Hai is wasted. Cry ye daughters of Rabbath, gird your selves with cloths of hair: mourn and go about by the hedges: because Melchom shall be led into transmigration, his Priests, and his Princes together. {4} What gloriest thou in the valleys? Thy valley hath flowed away o delicate daughter, which didst trust in thy treasures, & saidst: Who shall come to me? {5} Behold I will bring terror upon thee, saith our Lord the God of hosts, from all that are round about thee: & you shall be dispersed every one from an other's sight, neither shall there be any to gather together them that fly. {6} And after these things I will make the captives of the children of Ammon to return, saith our Lord. {7} To Idumea. Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Why is wisdom no more in Theman? Counsel is perished from the children: their wisdom is become unprofitable. {8} Fly and turn your backs, go down into the gulf ye inhabitants of Dedan: because I have brought the perdition of Esau upon him, the time of his visitation. {9} If the grape gatherers had come upon thee, they had not left a cluster: if thieves in the night, they had taken that should suffice them. {10} But I have discovered Esau, I have revealed his secrets, and he can not be concealed: his seed is wasted, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he shall not be. {11} Leave thy pupils: I will make them live: and thy widows shall hope in me. {12} For thus saith our Lord: Behold they whose judgement was not to drink the cup, drinking shall drink: and shalt thou be left as innocent? Thou shalt not be innocent, but drinking thou shalt drink. {13} Because I have sworn by my self, saith our Lord, that Bosra shall be into desolation, & into reproach, and into a desert, and into malediction: and all her cities shall be into everlasting desolations. {14} I have heard a bruit from our Lord, & a legate is sent to the Nations: Gather your selves together, and come against her, and let us rise up into battle. {15} For behold I have made thee a little one in the Gentiles, contemptible among men. {16} Thine arrogancy hath deceived thee, and the pride of thy heart: which dwellest in the caves of the rock, and endeavourest to apprehend the height of the hill. When thou shalt exalt thy nest as an eagle, thence will I bring thee down, saith our Lord. {17} And Idumea shall be desolate: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, & shall hiss upon all the plagues thereof. {18} As Sodom is overthrown and Gomorrah, and her neighbours saith our Lord: there shall not a man dwell there and there shall no son of man inhabit it. {19} Behold as a lion he shall come up from the pride of Jordan, to the strong beautifulness: because I will make him run suddenly to her: & who shall be a chosen one whom I may appoint over her? For who is like to me? And who shall abide me? And who is this Pastor that can resist my countenance? {20} Therefore hear ye the counsel of our Lord, which he hath taken concerning Edom: and his cogitations, which he hath thought concerning the inhabitants of Theman: If the little ones of the flock shall not cast them down, if they shall not destroy their habitation with them. {21} At the voice of their ruin the earth is moved: the cry of their voice is heard in the Red sea. {22} Behold he shall come up as an eagle, & fly out: and he shall spread his wings over Bosra: and the heart of the strong of Idumea shall be in that day, as the heart of a woman in travail. {23} To Damascus. Emath is confounded and Arphad: because they have heard a very ill bruit, they are troubled in the sea: for carefulness it could not be quiet. {24} Damascus is undone, she is turned into flight, trembling hath apprehended her: anguish and sorrows have held her as a woman in travail. {25} How have they forsaken the laudable city, the city of joy! {26} Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all the men of war shall be silent in that day, saith the Lord of hosts. {27} And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the walls of Benadad. {28} To Cedar, and to the kingdoms of Asor, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath stricken. Thus saith our Lord: Arise, & go ye up to Cedar, and waste the children of the East. {29} They shall take their tabernacles, and their flocks: their curtains, and all their vessels, & their camels they shall take to them: and they shall call upon them fear round about. {30} Fly ye, get away speedily, sit in deep pits you that inhabit Asor, saith our Lord: for Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath taken counsel against you, & hath devised devises against you. {31} Arise, and go up to the nation that is quiet, and that dwellest confidently, saith our Lord, they have neither doors, nor bars: they dwell alone. {32} And their camels shall be into spoil, & the multitude of beasts for a prey: and I will disperse them into every wind, which have their hair polled: and from every confine of theirs, I will bring destruction upon them, saith our Lord. {33} And Asor shall be for an habitation of dragons, desolate for ever: there shall no man tarry there, nor son of man inhabit it. {34} The word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against Aelam, in the beginning of the kingdom of Sedecias king of Juda, saying: {35} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will break the bow of Aelam, and their chief strength. {36} And I will bring upon Aelam the four winds from the four coasts of heaven: and I will scatter them into all these winds: and there shall not be a nation, to which the fugitives of Aelam shall not come. {37} And I will make Aelam to fear before his enemies, and in the sight of them that seek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, the wrath of my fury, saith our Lord: and I will send the sword after them, till I consume them. {38} And I will set my throne in Aelam, and destroy kings and Princes from thence, saith our Lord. {39} But in the last days I will cause the captives of Aelam to return, saith our Lord.

Babylon which afflicteth the Israelites in captivity, 4. after their reduction into their country, 8. shall be utterly destroyed.

{1} THE word that our Lord hath spoken of Babylon, and the Land of the Chaldees in the hand of Jeremy the Prophet. {2} Declare among the Gentiles, and make it heard, lift up a sign: proclaim and conceal it not; say: Babylon is taken, Bel is confounded, Merodach is overcome, their sculptiles are confounded, their idols are overcome. {3} Because a nation is come up against them from the North, which shall bring her Land into desolation: and there shall be none to dwell therein, from man even to beast, and they are removed, and gone away. {4} In those days, and in that time saith our Lord, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Juda together: walking and weeping they shall hasten, and shall seek the Lord their God. {5} Into Sion they shall ask the way, their faces hitherward. They shall come, and shall be joined to our Lord by an everlasting covenant, which shall by no oblivion be abolished. {6} My people is become a lost flock, their Pastors have seduced them, & have made them wander in the mountains: they have passed from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their couch. {7} All that found them, have eaten them: and their enemies said: We have not sinned: because they have sinned to the Lord the beauty of Justice, and to the Lord the expectation of their fathers. {8} Depart out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldees: and be ye as kids before the flock. {9} Because lo I raise up, and will bring into Babylon an assembly of great nations from the land of the North: and they shall be prepared against her, and thereby she shall be taken: his arrow as a valiant man's that is a killer, shall not return void. {10} And Chaldea shall be for a prey: all that waste it shall be filled, saith our Lord. {11} Because you rejoice, and speak great things, spoiling mine inheritance: because you are poured out as calves upon the grass, and you have bellowed as bulls. {12} Your Mother is confounded exceedingly, and made even with the dust, she that bare you: behold she shall be the last among the Gentiles, desolate, without access, and dry. {13} Of the wrath of our Lord it shall not be inhabited, but shall be brought wholly into desolation: every one that shall pass by Babylon, shall be astonished, and shall hiss upon all the plagues thereof. {14} Be prepared against Babylon round about all ye that bend bow; overthrow her, spare not arrows: because she hath sinned to our Lord. {15} Cry against her, she hath given the hand every where, her foundations are fallen, her walls are destroyed, because it is the vengeance of our Lord. Take vengeance of her: as she hath done, so do to her. {16} Destroy the sower out of Babylon, and him that holdeth the sickle in the harvest time: at the face of the sword of the dove every man shall return to his people, and every one shall fly to his own land. {17} Israel is a flock dispersed, lions have cast him out: first the king of Assur did eat him: last this Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath spoiled his bones. {18} Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will visit the king of Babylon and his land, as I have visited the king of Assur: {19} and I will bring Israel again to his habitation: and Carmel shall be fed, and Basan, and in mount Ephraim, and Galaad his soul shall be filled. {20} In those days, and in that time, saith our Lord, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought, and it shall not be: and the sin of Juda, and it shall not be found: because I will be propitious to them, whom I shall leave. {21} Ascend upon the land of them that rule, {834} and visit upon the inhabitants thereof, destroy, and kill the things that are behind them, saith our Lord: and do according to all things that I have commanded thee. {22} A voice of battle in the land, and great destruction. {23} How is the hammer of the whole earth broken, and destroyed? How is Babylon turned into a desert among the nations? {24} I have snared thee, and thou art taken Babylon, and thou knewest it not: thou art found & apprehended, because thou hast provoked our Lord. {25} Our Lord hath opened his treasure, and brought forth the vessels of his wrath: because the Lord the God of hosts hath a work in the land of the Chaldees. {26} Come ye unto her from the uttermost borders, open that they may go forth that shall tread her down: take the stones out of the way, & bring it into heaps, & kill her: neither let there be any thing left. {27} Destroy all her valiants, let them descend into slaughter: woe unto them, because their day is come, the time of their visitation. {28} A voice of them that fly, and of them that have escaped out of the land of Babylon: to tell in Sion the revenge of the Lord our God, the revenge of his temple. {29} Declare ye against Babylon to very many, to all that bend bow: stand together against her round about, and let none escape: repay her according to her work: according to all things, that she hath done, do ye to her: because she is erected against our Lord, against the holy one of Israel. {30} Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all her men of war shall hold their peace in that day, saith our Lord. {31} Behold I to thee thou proud one, saith our Lord the God of hosts: because thy day is come, the time of thy visitation. {32} And the proud shall fall, and tumble down, and there shall be none to raise him up: and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all things round about him. {33} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The children of Israel, and the children of Juda sustain calumny together: all that have taken them, hold them, they will not let them go. {34} Their strong redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, in judgement will defend their cause, to terrify the land and to stir up the inhabitants of Babylon. {35} The sword to the Chaldees, saith our Lord, & to the inhabitants of Babylon, and to her Princes, and to her wise men. {36} The sword to her diviners, who shall be foolish: the sword to her valiants, who shall be afraid. {37} The sword to his horses, and to his chariots, and to all the common people, that is in the midst of her: and they shall be as women: the sword to her treasures, which shall be spoiled. {38} There shall be drought upon her waters, and they shall be dried up: because it is a land of sculptiles, and they glory in monstrous things. {39} Therefore shall the dragons dwell with the foolish murderers: and the ostriches shall dwell in it: and it shall no more be inhabited for ever, neither shall it be built even to generation and generation. {40} As our Lord overthrew Sodom and Gomorrha, and the neighbours thereof, saith our Lord: there shall no man dwell there, & son of man shall not inhabit it. {41} Behold a people cometh from the North, and a great nation, and many kings shall rise from the ends of the earth. {42} They shall take bow and shield: they are cruel & unmerciful: their voice shall sound as the sea, and they shall mount upon horses: as a man prepared to battle against thee, o daughter of Babylon. {43} The king of Babylon hath heard the same of them, and his hands are dissolved: anguish hath caught him, sorrow as a woman in travail. {44} Behold as a lion he shall come up from the pride of Jordan to the strong beautifulness: because I will make him run suddenly to her: and who shall be a chosen one, whom I may appoint over her? For who is like to me? And who shall abide me? And who is this Pastor, that can resist my countenance? {45} Therefore hear ye the counsel of our Lord, which he hath conceived in his mind against Babylon: and his cogitations, which he hath thought upon the land of the Chaldees: Unless the little ones of the flocks shall pluck them down, unless their habitation shall be destroyed with them. {46} At the voice of the captivity of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard amongst the Nations.

More miseries shall fall upon Babylon (11. by the Medes) with destruction of her idols.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: Behold I will raise upon Babylon and upon the inhabitants thereof, which have lifted up their heart against me, as it were a pestilent wind. {2} And I will send upon Babylon fanners, and they shall fan it, and shall destroy her land: because they are come upon her on every side in the day of her affliction. {3} Let not him that bendeth bend his bow, and let not him go up that is in a brigandine, spare not her young men, kill all her host. {4} And the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldees, and the wounded in the countries thereof. {5} Because Israel and Juda have not been left as a widow of their God the Lord of hosts: but their land hath been replenished with sin from the holy one of Israel. {6} Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, and let every one save his own life, hold not your peace upon her iniquity: because it is the time of revenge from our Lord, he will require her the like. {7} Babylon is a golden cup in the hand of our Lord, inebriating all the earth: of her wine have the Nations drunk, and therefore they are in commotion. {8} Babylon is fallen suddenly, and is destroyed: howl ye upon her, take resin for her sorrow, if perhaps she may be healed. {9} We have cured Babylon, & she is not healed: let us forsake her, and let us go every man to his own land: because her judgement hath reached even to the heavens, & is lifted up unto the clouds. {10} Our Lord hath brought forth our justices: come, and let us tell in Sion the work of the Lord our God. {11} Make sharp the arrows, fill the quivers: our Lord hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes: and against Babylon his mind is to destroy it, because it is the revenge of our Lord, the revenge of his temple. {12} Upon the walls of Babylon lift up the ensign, increase the watch: set up watchmen, prepare embusments: because our Lord hath meant, and hath done whatsoever he speake against the inhabitants of Babylon. {13} Thou that dwellest upon many waters, rich in treasures: thine end is come within a foot of thy cutting off. {14} The Lord of hosts hath sworn by his soul: that I will replenish thee with men as it were with the locust, and upon thee shall the merry shout be song. {15} He that made the earth in his strength, hath prepared the world in his wisdom, and with his prudence stretched out the heavens. {16} He giving a voice, the waters are multiplied in heaven: who lifteh up the clouds from the extreme part of the earth, lightnings he hath turned into rain: and he hath brought forth the wind out of his treasures. {17} Every man is become a fool by knowledge: every metal caster is confounded in his sculptile, because his casting is counterfeit, neither is there spirit in them. {18} They are vain works, and worthy to be laughed at, in the time of their visitation they shall perish. {19} The portion of Jacob is not as these things: because he that made all things he it is, and Israel is the scepter of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name. {20} Thou doest knock together the vessels of war for me, and I will knock together in thee the Gentiles, and I will destroy in thee kingdoms: {21} And I will break in thee the horse, & his rider: and I will knock together in thee the chariot, and the rider thereof. {22} And I will knock together in thee man and woman, and I will knock together in thee the old man and the child, and I will knock together in thee the young man & the virgin: {23} And I will knock together in thee the Pastor and his flock, and I will knock together in thee the husbandman and his drawing cattle, and I will knock together in thee Dukes and Magistrates. {24} And I will render to Babylon, and to all the inhabitants of Chaldee all their evil, that they have done in Sion, before your eyes, saith our Lord. {25} Behold I to thee thou pestiferous mountain, saith our Lord, which corruptest the whole earth: and I will stretch out my hand upon thee, and will roll thee out of the rocks, & will give thee to be a mountain of burning. {26} And they shall not take of thee a stone for the corner, and a stone for foundations, but thou shalt be destroyed for ever, saith our Lord. {27} Lift ye up an ensign in the land: sound with the trumpet among the Gentiles: sanctify the Gentiles upon her: declare against her to the kings of Ararat, Menni, and Ascenez: number Taphsar against her, bring the horse as the stinging locust.

{28} Sanctify the Gentiles against her, the kings of Media, the Dukes thereof, & all the Magistrates thereof, and all the land of his dominion. {29} And the land shall be in a commotion, and shall be troubled: because the cogitation of our Lord shall awake against Babylon, to lay the Land of Babylon desert and inhabitable. {30} The valiants of Babylon have ceased from battle, they have dwelt in holds: their strength is devoured, and they are become as women: her tabernacles are burnt, her bars are broken. {31} A runner shall come to meet the runner, and messenger to meet messenger: to tell the king of Babylon that his city is taken from one end to the other: {32} and the fords are taken beforehand, and the fens be burnt with fire, and the men of war be troubled. {33} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: The daughter of Babylon is as a barn floor, the time of her threshing: yet a little, and the time of her reaping shall come. {34} Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath eaten me, he hath devoured me: he hath made me as an empty vessel: he hath swallowed me up as a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my tenderness, and hath cast me out. {35} Iniquity against me, and my flesh upon Babylon, saith the habitation of Sion: and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldee, saith Jerusalem. {36} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will judge thy cause, and will revenge thy vengeance, & I will make her sea desolate, & will dry up her vein. {37} And Babylon shall be into heaps, the habitation of dragons, astonishment, and hissing, because there is not an inhabiter. {38} They shall roar together as lions, they shall shake the manes as the whelps of lions, {39} In their heat I will set their drink: and I will make them drunk, that they may be drowsy, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and not arise, saith our Lord. {40} I will lead them as lambs to be a victim, and as rams with kids. {41} How is Sesach taken, and the noble one of all the earth apprehended? How is Babylon become an astonishment among the Gentiles? {42} The sea is come up over Babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof. {43} Her cities are become an astonishment: a land inhabitable and desolate, a land wherein none can dwell, nor son of man may pass by it. {44} And I will visit upon Bel in Babylon, and I will cast out of his mouth that which he had swallowed: and the Gentiles shall no more run together unto him, for the wall also of Babylon shall fall. {45} Go out of the midst of her my people: that every one may save his life from the wrath of the fury of our Lord. {46} And lest perhaps your hearts faint, and ye fear the bruit, that shall be heard in the land: and there shall come a bruit in the year, & after this year a bruit: and iniquity in the land, & ruler upon ruler. {47} Therefore behold the days come, and I will visit upon the sculptiles of Babylon: and all her land shall be confounded and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her. {48} And the heavens and the earth shall praise upon Babylon, & all things that are in them: because spoilers shall come to her from the North, saith our Lord. {49} And as Babylon caused that there should fall slain in Israel: so of Babylon there shall fall slain in the whole land. {50} You that have escaped the sword, come, stand not: remember our Lord a far off, and let Jerusalem ascend upon your heart. {51} We are confounded, because we have heard reproach: ignominy hath covered our faces: because strangers are come upon the sanctification of the house of our Lord. {52} Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord: & I will visit upon her sculptiles, and in all her land the wounded shall roar. {53} If Babylon shall ascend up into heaven, and stablisch her strength on high, from me there shall come wasters of her, saith our Lord. {54} A voice of crying from Babylon, and great destruction from the Land of the Chaldees: {55} because our Lord hath wasted Babylon, and destroyed out of it the great voice: & their waves shall sound as many waters: their voice hath given a sound. {56} Because the spoiler is come upon her, that is, upon Babylon, & her valiants are apprehended, & their bow is weakened: because the strong revenger our Lord rendering will repay. {57} And I will inebriate her Princes, & her wise men, & her Dukes, and her magistrates, and her valiants: and they shall sleep an everlasting sleep, and shall not awake, saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name. {58} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: That most broad wall of Babylon by undermining shall be undermined, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire, and the labours of the peoples shall come to nothing, and of the nations shall be into the fire, & shall perish. {59} The word that Jeremy the Prophet commanded Saraias the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, when he went with Sedecias the king into Babylon, in the fourth year of his kingdom: and Saraias was the Prince of Prophecy. {60} And Jeremy wrote all the evil, that was to come upon Babylon in one Book: all these words, that are written against Babylon. {61} And Jeremy said to Saraias: When thou shalt come into Babylon, and shalt see, & shalt read all these words, {62} thou shalt say: Lord thou hast spoken against this place to destroy it: that there be none to inhabit it from man even unto beast, and that it be a perpetual wilderness. {63} And when thou shalt have finished reading this Book, thou shalt tie a stone to it, and shalt throw it into the midst of Euphrates: {64} and thou shalt say: So shall Babylon be drowned, and she shall not rise up from the face of the affliction, that I will bring upon her, and she shall be dissolved. Hitherto the words of Jeremy.

A recapitulation of the taking of Jerusalem after two years siege. 7. King Sedecias taken in flight. 10. his children slain before his eyes, with other nobles. 11. his eyes put out, and so led into Babylon. 12. the Temple, the Palace, and other houses burnt, the people carried into captivity (15. few excepted to till the land) 17. the two brazen pillars, lavatory, and all the treasure taken away. 24. All the captives at diverse times four thousand six hundred. 31. Finally King Joachin is exalted in the court.

{1} A child of one and twenty years was Sedecias when he began to reign: and eleven years he reigned in Jerusalem: and the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremie of Lobna. {2} And he did evil in the eyes of our Lord, according to all things that Joakim had done. {3} Because the fury of our Lord was against Jerusalem, & against Juda, till he cast them away from his face: and Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon. {4} And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth of the month, came Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, himself and all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it, and built against it munitions round about. {5} And the city was besieged until the eleventh year of king Sedecias. {6} And in the fourth month, the ninth of the month, a famine possessed the city: and there were no victuals for the people of the land. {7} And a breach was made into the city, and all the men of war fled, and went out of the city in the night by the way of the gate that is between the two walls, and leadeth to the king's garden (the Chaldees besieging the city round about) & they departed by the way, that leadeth into the wilderness. {8} But the army of the Chaldees pursued the king: and they apprehended Sedecias in the desert, which is beside Jericho: and all his train fled scattering from him. {9} And when they had taken the king, they brought him to the king of Babylon into Reblatha, which is in the land of Emath; and he spake to him judgements. {10} And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Sedecias before his eyes: yea & all the Princes of Juda he slew in Reblatha. {11} And he plucked out the eyes of Sedecias, & bound him with fetters, & the king of Babylon brought him into Babylon: and he put him in the prison house even to the day of his death. {12} And in the fifth month, the tenth of the month, the same is the nineteenth year of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon: came Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare, who stood before the king of Babylon in Jerusalem. {13} And he burnt the house of our Lord. And the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great house he burnt with fire. {14} And all the host of the Chaldees that was with the Prince of the warfare, destroyed all the wall of Jerusalem round about. {15} But of the poor of the people, and of the rest of the vulgar sort, which remained in the city, and of the fugitives, that were fled to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude, Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare transported. {16} But of the poor of the land Nabuzardan the prince of the warfare left some to be dressers of vineyards, and husbandmen. {17} The brazen pillars also, that were in the house of our Lord, and the feet, and the sea of brass, that was in the house of our Lord, the Chaldees brake: and they took all the brass of them into Babylon. {18} And the kettles, and the fleshhooks, and the psalteries, and the phials, and the little mortars, and all the brazen vessels, that had been in the ministry, they took: {19} and the water pots, and the censers, and the pitchers, and the basins, and the candlesticks, & the mortars, & the goblets as many as of gold, of gold, & as many as of silver, of silver, did the Prince of the warfare take: {20} and two pillars, & one sea, & twelve oxen of brass, that were under the feet, which king Salomon had made in the house of our Lord: there was no weight of the brass of all these vessels. {21} And concerning the pillars, there were eighteen cubits of height in one pillar: & a cord of twelve cubits did compass it about: moreover the thickness thereof, of four fingers, and within it was hollow. {22} And the little heads of brass upon both: the height of one little head, of five cubits: and the little nets, and the pomegranates upon the crown round about, all of brass. Likewise of the second pillar, & the pomegranates. {23} And there were ninety six pomegranates hanging down: and all the pomegranates an hundred, were compassed with little nets. {24} And the master of the warfare took Saraias the chief Priest, and Sophonias the second Priest: and the three keepers of the entry. {25} And of the city he took one eunuch, that was chief over the men of war: and seven men of them, that saw the king's face, that were found in the city: and a scribe the captain of the soldiers, who tried the young soldiers: and three score of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city. {26} And Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare took them, and he brought them to the king of Babylon into Reblatha. {27} And the king of Babylon struck them: and he killed them in Reblatha in the land of Emath: and Juda was transported from his land. {28} This is the people, which Nabuchodonosor transported: In the seventh year, Jews three thousand and twenty three. {29} In the eighteenth year of Nabuchodonosor from Jerusalem souls eight hundred thirty two. {30} In the three and twentieth year of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare transported of the Jews seven hundred forty five souls. All the souls therefore were four thousand six hundred. {31} And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the transmigration of Joachin the king of Juda, the twelfth month, the five and twentieth of the month, Evilmerodach the king of Babylon lifted up in the very year of his reign, the head of Joachin the king of Juda, and he brought him out of the prison house. {32} And he spake with him good things, & he set his throne above the thrones of the kings, that were after himself in Babylon. {33} And he changed his prison garments, and he did eat bread before him always all the days of his life. {34} And his allowance of meat, a continual provision of meat was given him by the king of Babylon, every day a certain, even unto the day of his death, all the days of his life.

THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIE

{1} ALEPH. How doth the city full of people, sit solitary: how is the lady of the Gentiles become as a widow: the princes of Provinces is made tributary? {2} Beth. Weeping she hath wept in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks: there is none to comfort her of all her dear ones: all her friends have despised her, and are become her enemies. {3} Ghimel. Judas is gone into transmigration because of affliction, and the multitude of bondage: she hath dwelt among the Gentiles, neither hath she found rest: all her persecutors have apprehended her within the straits. {4} Daleth. The ways of Sion mourn, because there are none that come to the solemnity: all her gates are destroyed: her priests sighing: her virgins loathsome, and herself is oppressed with bitterness. {5} He. Her adversaries are made in the head, her enemies are enriched: because our Lord hath spoken upon her for the multitude of her iniquities: her little ones are led into captivity, before the face of the afflicter. {6} Vau. And from the daughter of Sion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become as rams not finding pastures: and they are gone without strength before the face of the pursuer. {7} Zain. Jerusalem hath remembered the days of her affliction, and prevarication of all her things worthy to be desired, which she had from the days of old, when her people fell in the enemies hand, and there was no helper: the enemies have seen her, and have scorned her sabbaths. {8} Heth. Jerusalem hath sinned a sin, therefore is she made unstable: all that did glorify her, have despised her, because they have seen her ignominy: but she sighing is turned backward. {9} Teth. Her filthiness is on her feet, neither hath she remembered her end: she is pulled down exceedingly, not having a comforter: see o Lord mine affliction, because the enemy is exalted. {10} Jod. The enemy hath thrust his hand to all her things worthy to be desired: because she hath seen the Gentiles enter into her sanctuary, of whom thou gavest commandment that they should not enter into thy church. {11} Caph. All her people sighing, and seeking bread: they have given all precious things for meat to refresh the soul, see o Lord and consider, because I am become vile. {12} Lamed. O all ye that pass by the way, attend, and see if there be sorrow like to my sorrow: because he hath made vintage of me, as our Lord hath spoken in the day of the wrath of his fury. {13} Mem. From on high he hath cast a fire in my bones, and hath taught me: he hath spread a net for my feet, he hath turned me backward: he hath made me desolate, all the day consumed with sorrow. {14} Nun. The yoke of mine iniquities hath watched: they are folded together in his hand, and put upon my neck: my strength is weakened: our Lord hath given me into the hand, from which I can not rise. {15} Samech. Our Lord hath taken away all my magnifical ones out of the midst of me: he hath called a time against me, to destroy mine elect: our Lord hath trodden the winepress to the virgin the daughter of Juda. {16} Ain. Therefore am I weeping, and mine eye shedding tears: because a comforter is made far from me, converting my soul: my children are become desolate because the enemy hath prevailed. {17} Phe. Sion hath spread forth her hands, there is none to comfort her: our Lord hath commanded against Jacob, round about him are his enemies: Jerusalem is become as a woman polluted with menstrual flowers among them. {18} Sade. Our Lord is just, because I have provoked his mouth to wrath: hear I beseech all ye peoples, and see my sorrow: my virgins, and my young men are gone into captivity. {19} Coph. I have called my friends, they have deceived me: my priests and my ancients are consumed in the city: because they have sought meat for themselves, to refresh their soul. {20} Res. See o Lord that I am in tribulation, my belly is troubled: my heart is overturned in myself, because I am full of bitterness: the sword killeth abroad, and at home it is like death. {21} Sin. They have heard that I do sigh, and there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard mine evil, they have rejoiced, because thou hast done it: thou hast brought a day of consolation, and they shall be made like to me. {22} Thau. Let all their evil enter in before thee: and vintage them, as thou hast vintaged me for all mine iniquities: for my sighings are many, and my heart is sorrowful.

{1} ALEPH. How hath our Lord in his fury covered the daughter of Sion with darkness: cast forth the noble one of Israel from heaven to the earth, and hath not remembered the footstool of his feet in the day of his fury. {2} Beth. Our Lord hath cast down headlong, and hath not spared, all the beautiful things of Jacob: he hath destroyed in his fury the munitions of the virgin of Juda, and cast it down to the ground: he hath polluted the kingdom, and the princes thereof. {3} Ghimel. He hath broken every horn of Israel in the wrath of fury: he hath turned away his right hand backward from the face of the enemy: and he hath kindled in Jacob as it were the fire of a flame devouring round about. {4} Daleth. He hath bent his bow as an enemy, he hath fastened his right hand as an adversary: and he hast killed all, that was fair to behold in the tabernacle of the daughter of Sion, he hath poured out his indignation as fire. {5} He. Our Lord is become as an enemy: he hath cast down Israel headlong, he hath cast down headlong all her walls: he hath destroyed the munitions thereof, and hath replenished in the daughter of Juda the humbled man and humbled woman. {6} Vau. And he hath destroyed his tent as a garden, he hath thrown down his tabernacle: our Lord hath brought festivity and sabbath in Sion to oblivion: and king and priest into reproach, and into the indignation of his fury. {7} Zain. Our Lord hath rejected, he hath cursed his sanctification: he hath delivered the walls of the towers thereof into the hand of the enemy: they have made a noise in the house of our Lord, as in a solemn day. {8} Heth. Our Lord hath meant to destroy the wall of the daughter of Sion: he hath stretched out his cord, and hath not turned away his hand from destruction: and the forewall hath mourned, and the wall is destroyed together. {9} Teth. Her gates are fastened in the ground: he hath destroyed, and broken her bars: her king and her princes in the Gentiles: there is no law, and her prophets have not found vision from our Lord. {10} Jod. The ancients of the daughter of Sion have sitten on the ground, they have held their peace: they have sprinkled their heads with dust, they are girded with hair cloths, the virgins of Jerusalem have cast down their heads to the ground. {11} Caph. Mine eyes have failed for tears, my bowels are troubled: my liver is poured out on the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people, when the little one, and the sucking fainted in the streets of the town. {12} Lamed. They said to their mothers: Where is wheat and wine? When they fainted as the wounded in the streets of the city: when they yielded up the ghosts in the bosom of their mothers. {13} Mem. Whereto shall I compare thee? Or whereto shall I liken thee o daughter of Jerusalem: whereto shall I make thee equal, and comfort thee o virgin daughter of Sion? For great is thy destruction as the sea: who shall heal thee?^{841} {14} Nun. Thy prophets have seen false and foolish things for thee: neither have they opened thine iniquity, to provoke thee to penance, but they have seen false burdens and banishments for thee. {15} Samech. All that passed by the way have clapped their hands upon thee: they have hissed, and moved their head upon the daughter of Jerusalem, saying: Is this the city of perfect beauty, the joy of all the earth? {16} Phe. All thine enemies have opened their mouth upon thee: they have hissed, and gnashed with the teeth, and have said: We will devour: Lo this is the day, which we expected: we have found it, we have seen it. {17} Ain. Our Lord hath done the things that he meant, he hath accomplished his word, which he commanded from the days of old: he hath destroyed, and hath not spared, and he hath made the enemy joyful over thee, and hath exalted the horn of thine adversaries. {18} Sade. Their heart hath cried to our Lord upon the walls of the daughter of Sion: Shed tears as a torrent by day, and night: give no rest to thyself, neither let the apple of thine eye cease. {19} Coph. Arise, praise in the night in the beginning of the watches: pour out thy heart as waters before the sight of our Lord: lift up thy hands to him for the life of thy little ones, which have fainted for famine in the head of all high ways. {20} Res. See o

Lord, and consider whom thou hast vintaged thus: shall women then eat their own fruit, little ones of the measure of a span? Is the priest, and the prophet slain in the sanctuary of our Lord? {21} Sin. The child and the old man lay on the ground without: my virgins and my youngmen are fallen by the sword: thou hast killed in the day of thy fury: thou hast stricken, neither hast thou had mercy. {22} Thau. Thou hast called as it were to a solemn day, those that should terrify me round about, and there was none in the day of the fury of our Lord, that escaped and was left: whom I brought up, & nourished, mine enemy hath consumed them.

{1} ALEPH. The man that see my poverty in the rod of his indignation. led me, and brought me into darkness and {2} Aleph. He hath not into light. {3} Aleph. Only against me he hath turned and hath converted his hand all the day. {4} Beth. He hath made my skin old and my flesh, he hath broken my bones. {5} Beth. He hath built round about me, and he hath compassed me with gall and labour. {6} Beth. In dark places he hath placed me as the everlasting dead. {7} Ghimmel. He hath built round about against me, that I go not forth: he hath aggravated my fetters. {8} Ghimmel. Yea and when I shall cry, and ask, he hath excluded my prayer. {9} Ghimmel. He hath shut up my ways with square stones, he hath subverted my paths. {10} Daleth. He is become unto me a bear lying in wait: a lion in secret places. {11} Daleth. He hath subverted my paths, and hath broken me, he hath made me desolate. {12} Daleth. He hath bent his bow, and set me as a mark for the arrow. {13} He. He hath shot in my reins the daughters of his quiver. {14} He. I am made a derision to all my people, their song all the day. {15} He. He hath replenished me with bitterness, he hath inebriated me with wormwood. {16} Vau. And he hath broken my teeth by number, he hath fed me with ashes. {17} Vau. And my soul is repelled from peace, I have forgotten good things. {18} Vau. And I said: Mine end is perished, and mine hope from our Lord. {19} Zain. Remember my poverty, and transgression, the wormwood, and the gall. {20} Zain. Remembering I will be mindful, and my soul shall languish in me. {21} Zain. Recording this thing in my heart, therefore will I hope. {22} Heth. The mercies of our Lord that we are not consumed: because his commiserations have not failed. {23} Heth. New in the morning, great is thy fidelity. {24} Heth. Our Lord is my portion, said my soul: therefore will I expect him. {25} Teth. Our Lord is good to them that hope in him, to the soul that seeketh him. {26} Teth. It is good to wait with silence for the salvation of God. {27} Teth. It is good for a man, when he beareth the yoke from his youth. {28} Jod. He shall sit solitary, and hold his peace: because he hath lifted himself above himself. {29} Jod. He shall put his mouth in the dust, if perhaps there be hope. {30} Jod. He shall give the cheek to him that striketh him, he shall be filled with reproaches. {31} Caph. Because our Lord will not reject for ever. {32} Caph. Because if he hath rejected, he will also have mercy, according to the multitude of his mercies. {33} Caph. For he hath not humbled from his heart, and cast off the children of men. {34} Lamed. To stamp under his feet all the prisoners of the earth. {35} Lamed. To avert the judgement of a man before the face of the Highest {36} Lamed. To pervert a man in his judgement, our Lord hath not known. {37} Mem. Who is this, that hath commanded it to be done, our Lord not commanding it? {38} Mem. Out of the mouth of the Highest, there shall not proceed neither evil things, nor good. {39} Mem. What hath the living man murmured, man for his sins? {40} Nun. Let us search our ways, & seek, and return to our Lord. {41} Nun. Let us lift up our hearts with our hands to our Lord into the heavens. {42} Nun. We have done wickedly, and provoked to wrath: therefore thou art inexorable. {43} Samech. Thou hast covered in fury, and hast stricken us: thou hast killed, and not spared. {44} Samech. Thou hast set a cloud before thee, that prayer may not pass. {45} Samech. Thou hast made me to be rooted out, and abject in the midst of the peoples. {46} Phe. All the enemies have opened their mouth upon us. {47} Phe. Prophecy is made unto us, fear, and snare, and destruction. {48} Phe. Mine eye hath shed streams of waters, in the destruction of the daughter of my people. {49} Ain. Mine eye is afflicted, neither hath it been quiet, because there was no rest: {50} Ain. Till our Lord regarded and looked from the heavens. {51} Ain. Mine eye hath spoiled my soul for all the daughters of my city. {52} Sade. Mine enemies in hunting have caught me as a bird, without cause. {53} Sade. My life is fallen into the lake, and they have laid a stone upon me. {54} Sade. The waters have flowed over my head: I said: I am undone. {55} Coph. I have invoked thy name o Lord from the lowest lake. {56} Coph. Thou hast heard my voice: turn not away thine ear from my sabbings, and cries. {57} Coph. Thou didst approach in the day, when I invoked thee: thou hast said: Fear not. {58} Res. Thou hast judged o Lord the cause of my soul, redeemer of my life. {59} Res. Thou hast seen o Lord their iniquity against me: judge my judgement. {60} Res. Thou hast seen all their fury, all their cogitations against me. {61} Sin. Thou hast heard their reproach o Lord, all their cogitations against me. {62} Sin. The lips of them that rise up against me; and their cogitations against me all the day. {63} Sin. See their sitting down, and their rising up, I am their psalm. {64} Thau. Thou shalt render them a recompense o Lord, according to the works of their hands. {65} Thau. Thou shalt give them a shield of heart thy labour. {66} Thau. Thou shalt persecute in fury, and shalt destroy them from under the heavens o Lord.

{1} ALEPH. How is the gold darkened, the best colour changed, the stones of the sanctuary dispersed in the head of all streets? {2} Beth. The noble children of Sion, & they that were clothed with the principal gold: how are they reputed as earthen vessels, the work of the potter's hands? {3} Ghimmel. Yea even the lamiae have opened their breast, they have given suck to their young, the daughter of my people is cruel, as the ostrich in the desert. {4} Daleth. The tongue of the sucking hath cloven to the roof of his mouth for thirst: the little ones have asked bread, and there was none that brake it unto them. {5} He. They that fed voluptuously, have died in the ways: they that were brought up in scarlet, have embraced the dung. {6} Vau. And the iniquity of the daughter of my people is become greater than the sin of Sodom: {843} which was overthrown in a moment, and hands took nothing in her. {7} Zain. Her Nazareites whiter than snow, purer than milk, ruddier than the old ivory, fairer than the sapphire. {8} Heth. Their face is made blacker than coals, and they are not known in the streets: their skin hath cloven to their bones, it is withered, and is made as wood. {9} Teth. It was better with them that were slain with the sword, than with them that were killed by famine: because these pined away consumed by the barrenness of the country. {10} Jod. The hands of pitiful women have sodden their own children: they were made their meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people. {11} Caph. Our Lord hath accomplished his fury, he hath poured out the wrath of his indignation: and he hath kindled a fire in Sion, and it hath devoured the foundations thereof. {12} Lamed. The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world did not believe, that the adversary and the enemy should enter in by the gates of Jerusalem. {13} Mem. For the sins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her priests, which have shed the blood of just men in the midst of her. {14} Nun. The blind wandered in the streets, they were polluted with blood: and when they could not, they held their skirts. {15} Samech. Depart ye polluted, they cried to them: depart, get ye hence, touch not: for they brawled, & were moved: they said among the Gentiles: He will add no more to dwell among them.

{16} Phe. The face of our Lord hath divided them, he will not add to respect them: they have not reverenced the faces of the priests, neither had they pity on the ancients. {17} Ain. Whilst we yet stood, our eyes failed towards our vain help, when we looked attentive to a nation, that was not able to save. {18} Sade. Our steps slipped in the way of our streets, our end draweth near: our days are accomplished, because our end is come. {19} Coph. Our persecutors were swifter than the eagles of the heaven: upon the mountains they pursued us, in the desert they lay in wait against us. {20} Res. The spirit of our mouth Christ our Lord is taken in our sins: to whom we have said: In thy shadow shall we live among the Gentiles. {21} Sin. Rejoice, and be glad o daughter of Edom, which dwellest in the Land of Hus: to thee also shall the cup come, thou shalt be made drunken, and naked. {22} Thau. Thine iniquity is accomplished o daughter of Sion, he will add no more to transport thee: he hath visited thine iniquity o daughter of Edom, he hath discovered thy sins.

THE PRAYER OF JEREMIE THE PROPHET.

{1} REMEMBER o Lord what is fallen to us: behold, and regard our reproach. {2} Our inheritance is turned to aliens: our houses to strangers. {3} We are made pupils without father: our mothers are as it were widows. {4} Our water we have drunk for money: our wood we have bought for a price. {5} We were led by our necks, no rest was given to the weary. {6} We have given our hand to Aegypt, and to the Assyrians, that we might be filled with bread. {7} Our fathers have sinned, & they are not: and we have borne their iniquities. {8} Servants have ruled over us: there was none that would redeem us out of their hand. {9} In peril of our lives did we fetch us bread, at the face of the sword in the desert. {10} Our skin was burnt as an oven, by reason of the tempests of famine. {11} They humbled the women in Sion, and the virgins in the cities of Juda. {12} The Princes were hanged up by the hand: they did not reverence the faces of the ancients. {13} Young men they abused unchastely: and the children fell in wood. {14} The ancients decayed out of the gates: the youngmen out of the choir of the singers. {15} The joy of our heart hath failed, our choir is turned into mourning. {16} The crown of our head is fallen: woe to us, because we have sinned. {17} Therefore is our heart made sorrowful, therefore are our eyes darkened. {18} For mount Sion, because it is perished, foxes have walked on it. {19} But thou o Lord shalt remain for ever, thy throne in generation and to generation. {20} Why wilt thou for ever be forgetful of us? Wilt thou forsake us in length of days? {21} Convert us o Lord to thee, and we shall be converted: renew our days, as from the beginning. {22} But rejecting thou hast rejected us, thou art angry against us exceedingly.

THE PROPHECY OF BARUCH

The Jews in Babylon having heard Baruch's Book red, 6. send the same with money to Jerusalem, 10. requesting their brethren there to offer sacrifice, and to pray for the King and Prince of Babylon; and for them, 15. acknowledging their manifold sins.

{1} AND these be the words of the book, that Baruch the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, the son of Sedecias, the son of Sedei, the son of Helcias wrote in Babylon, {2} in the fifth year, in the seventh day of the month, at the time that the Chaldees took Jerusalem, and burnt it with fire. {3} And Baruch read the words of this book unto the ears of Jechonias the son of Joakim king of Juda, and to the ears of all the people coming to the book, {4} and to the ears of the mighty, the sons of the kings, and to the ears of the ancients, and to the ears of the people, from the least even to the greatest of them, that dwelt in Babylon, by the river Sodi. {5} Who hearing it wept, and fasted, and prayed in the sight of our Lord. {6} And they gathered money, according as every man's hand was able, {7} and they sent into Jerusalem to Joakim the son of Helcias, the son of Salom, priest, and to the priests, and to all the people, that were found with him in Jerusalem. {8} When he took the vessels of the temple of our Lord, which had been taken away out of the temple, to return them into the Land of Juda the tenth day of the month Sivan, the silver vessels, which Sedecias the son of Josias the king of Juda made, {9} after that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had taken Jechonias, and the princes, and all the mighty, and the people of the land from Jerusalem, and brought them bound into Babylon. {10} And they said: Behold we have sent you money, with the which bye ye holocausts, and frankincense, and make manna, and offer for sin at the altar of the Lord our God: {11} and pray ye for the life of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and for the life of Balthasar his son, that their days may be as the days of heaven upon the earth: {12} and that our Lord give us strength, and illuminate our eyes, that we may live under the shadow of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and under the shadow of Balthasar his son, and may serve them many days, and may find grace in their sight. {13} And for our selves pray ye to the Lord our God: because we have sinned to the Lord our God, and his fury is not turned away from us even to this day. {14} And read ye this book, which we have sent to you to be recited in the temple of our Lord, in a solemn day, and in a day convenient. {15} And you shall say: To the Lord our God justice: but to us confusion of our face: as is this day to all Juda, and them that dwell in Jerusalem, {16} to our kings, and to our princes, and to our priests, and to our prophets, and to our fathers. {17} We have sinned before the Lord our God, and believed him not, having diffidence in him: {18} and we would not be made subject to him, and we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his commandments, which he hath given us. {19} From the day, that he brought our fathers out of the Land of Aegypt, even to this day, we would not be brought to believe the Lord our God: and dissipated we revolted, that we might not hear his voice. {20} And many evils and maledictions have cloven to us, which our Lord appointed to Moyses his servant: who brought our fathers out of the Land of Aegypt, to give us a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this present day. {21} And we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God according to all the words of the prophets, which he hath sent to us: {22} and we have gone away every man into the sense of our malignant heart, to serve strange gods, doing evils before the eyes of the Lord our God.

The same captives further confess, that their calamities are justly come upon them for their iniquities, 11. and therefore lamentably pray for God's mercy, as he promised by Moyses to penitents.

{1} FOR the which thing the Lord our God hath established his word, that he spake to us, and to our judges, that have judged Israel, and to our kings, and to our princes, and to all Israel and Juda: {2} that our Lord might bring upon us great evils, which were not done under the heaven, as have been done in Jerusalem, according to the things that are written in the law of Moyses: {3} that a man should eat the flesh of his son, and the flesh of his daughter. {4} And he hath given them under the hand of all the kings, that are round about us into reproach, and into desolation among all peoples, into which our Lord hath dispersed us. {5} And we are made underneath, and not above: because we have sinned to the Lord our God, in not obeying his voice. {6} To the Lord our God justice: but to us, and to our fathers confusion of face, as is this day. {7} Because our Lord hath spoken upon us all these evils, that are come upon us: {8} and we have not besought the face of the Lord our God, to return every one of us from our most wicked ways. {9}

And our Lord hath watched in evils, and hath brought them upon us: because our Lord is just in all his works, which he hath commanded us: {10} and we have not heard his voice to walk in the precepts of our Lord, which he hath given before our face. {11} And now o Lord God of Israel, which brought out thy people out of the Land of Ægypt in a strong hand, and in signs, and in wonders, and in thy great strength, and in a mighty arm, and madest thee a name as is this day: {12} we have sinned, we have done impiously, we have dealt unjustly o Lord our God, in all thy justices. {13} Let thy wrath be turned away from us: because we are left a few among the nations, where thou hast dispersed us. {14} Hear o Lord our prayers, and our petitions, and bring us out for thine own sake: and grant us to find grace before their face, that have led us away: {15} that all the earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, and that thy name is invoked upon Israel, and upon his stock. {16} Look o Lord from thy holy house upon us, and incline thine ear, and hear us. {17} Open thine eyes, & see: because the dead that are in hell, whose spirit is taken from their bowels, shall not give honour and justification to our Lord: {18} but the soul, that is sorrowful for the greatness of evil, and goeth crooked, and weak, and the eyes failing, and the hungry soul giveth glory and justice to thee their Lord. {19} For not according to the justices of our fathers do we pour out prayers, and ask mercy before thy sight o Lord our God: {20} but because thou hast sent thy wrath, and thy fury upon us, as thou hast spoken by the hand of thy servants the prophets, saying: {21} Thus saith our Lord: Bow down your shoulder, & your neck, and do works for the king of Babylon: and you shall sit in the land, which I have given to your fathers. {22} But if you will not hear the voice of the Lord your God, to work for the king of Babylon: I will make you to fail out of the cities of Juda, and from without Jerusalem, {23} and I will take from you the voice of mirth, and the voice of joy, and the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, and all the land shall be without foot step that inhabit it. {24} And they heard not thy voice, to work for the king of Babylon: and thou hast established thy words, which thou spakest by the hands of thy servants the prophets, that the bones of our kings, and of our fathers should be transported out of their place: {25} and behold they are cast forth in the heat of the sun, and in the frost of the night: and they are dead in very sore pains, in famine, and by sword, and by casting forth. {26} And hast made the temple, in which thy name was there invoked, as it is this day, for the iniquity of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda. {27} And thou hast done in us o Lord our God according to all thy goodness, and according to all that thy great compassion: {28} as thou spakest by the hand of thy servant Moyses, in the day, that thou didst command him to write thy law before the children of Israel, {29} saying: If you will not hear my voice, this great multitude shall be turned into a very little one among the Gentiles, whither I will disperse them: {30} because I know that the people will not hear me. for it is a people of a stiff neck: and they shall be converted to their heart in the land of their captivity: {31} and they shall know that I am the Lord their God: and I will give them a heart, and they shall understand: and ears, and they shall hear. {32} And they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and shall be mindful of my name. {33} And they shall turn away them selves from their hard back, and from their malignant works: because they shall remember the way of their fathers, that sinned against me. {34} And I will recall them back into the land, which I swear to their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall have dominion thereof: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be lessened. {35} And I will establish unto them an other testament everlasting, that I be their God, and they shall be my people: and I will no more move my people, the children of Israel from the land, that I have given them.

With further confession of their sins, 8. they acknowledge their just captivity: 12. because they have left true wisdom: 16. which was given to their fathers: 23. not to rich men, or mighty giants, 29. but to those that serve God. 34. whom the stars obey. 36. A clear prophecy of Christ.

{1} AND now o Lord omnipotent, God of Israel, the soul in distresses, & the pensive spirit cryeth to thee: {2} hear Lord, and have mercy, because thou art a merciful God, & have mercy upon us: because we have sinned before thee. {3} Because thou sittest for ever, and shall we perish everlasting? {4} O Lord omnipotent, God of Israel, hear now the prayer of the dead of Israel, and of their children, that have sinned before thee, and have not heard the voice of the Lord their God, and evils have stuck fast to us. {5} Remember not the iniquities of our fathers, but remember thy hand, and thy name in this time: {6} because thou art the Lord our God, and we will praise thee o Lord: {7} because for this end thou hast given thy fear in our hearts, and that we may invoke thy name, and may praise thee in our captivity, because we are converted from the iniquity of our fathers, which have sinned before thee. {8} And behold we are in our captivity, this day, whereby thou hast dispersed us into reproach, and into malediction, and into sin, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, which have revolted from thee o Lord our God. {9} Hear Israel the commandments of life: harken with your ears, that you may know prudence. {10} What is the matter Israel that thou art in the land of the enemies? {11} Thou art waxen old in a strange land, thou art defiled with the dead: thou art reputed with them that go down into hell. {12} Thou hast forsaken the fountain of wisdom: {13} for if thou hadst walked in the way of God, thou hadst verily dwelt in peace everlasting. {14} Learn where wisdom is, where strength is, where understanding is: that thou mayst know withal where is the long continuance of life and living, where the light of the eyes, and peace is. {15} Who hath found the place thereof? and who hath entered into the treasures thereof? {16} Where are the princes of the Gentiles, and they that rule over the beasts, that are upon the earth? {17} that play with the birds of the heaven, {18} that treasure up silver, and gold, wherein men have confidence, and is there no end of their getting? which fashion silver & are careful, neither is there invention of their works? {19} They are destroyed, and are gone down to hell, and others are risen up in their place. {20} Yong men saw the light, and dwelt upon the earth: but the way of discipline they knew not, {21} neither understood they the paths thereof, neither have their children received it, it is made far from their face. {22} It hath not been heard in the Land of Channan, neither hath it been seen in Theman. {23} The children of Agar also, that seek out the prudence, that is of the earth, merchants of Merrhe, and of Theman, and fablers, and searchers of prudence and understanding: but the way of wisdom they have not known, neither have they remembered the paths thereof. {24} O Israel how great is the house of God, and how great is the place of his possession! {25} It is great, and hath no end: high and unmeasurable. {26} There were the giants those renowned, that were from the beginning, of big stature, expert in war? {27} These did not our Lord choose, neither found they the way of discipline: therefore did they perish. {28} And because they had not wisdom, they perished through their folly. {29} Who hath ascended into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down from the clouds? {30} Who hath passed over the sea, and found her, and brought her above chosen gold? {31} There is none that can know her ways, nor that can search out her paths: {32} but he that knoweth all things, knoweth her, & hath found her out by his prudence: he hath prepared the earth in time everlasting, and replenished it with cattle, and fourfooted beasts: {33} he that sendeth forth light, and it goeth: and hath called it, and it obeyeth him with trembling. {34} And the stars have given light in their watches, and rejoiced: {35} they were called, and they said: here we are: and they have shined to him with cheerfulness, that made them. {36} This is our God, and there shall none other be esteemed against him. {37} He found out all the way of discipline, and delivered it to Jacob his servant, and to Israel his beloved. {38} After these things he was seen upon the earth, and was conversant with men.

God's people neglecting his grace offered to them, more than to other nations, 6. are severely punished 15. by captivity: 18. but are reserved, 22. and repenting shall be released: 31. and their enemies destroyed.

{1} THIS is the book of the commandments of God, and the law, that is for ever: all that hold it, shall come to life: but they that have forsaken it, into death. {2} Return Jacob, and take hold of it, walk by the way to the brightness of it, against the light thereof. {3} Deliver not thy glory to an other, & dignity to a strange nation. {4} We are blessed o Israel: because the things that please God, are manifest to us. {5} Be of good comfort o people of God, memorable Israel: {6} you are sold to the Gentiles, not into perdition: but for that in anger you provoked God to wrath, you are delivered to the adversaries. {7} For you have exasperated him, that made you, the eternal God, immolating to devils, and not to God. {8} For you have forgotten God, who hath nourished you, and your nurse Jerusalem you have made sorrowful. {9} For she saw the wrath coming from God to you, and she said: Hear ye confines of Sion, for God hath brought me great mourning: {10} For I have seen the captivity of my people, and of my sons, and daughters, which the everlasting hath brought upon them. {11} For I nourished them with joyfulness: but I have left them with weeping and mourning. {12} Let no man rejoice over me a widow, and desolate: I am forsaken of many for the sins of my children, because they have declined from the law of God. {13} And his justices they have not known, nor walked by the ways of God's commandments, neither have they entered by the paths of his truth and justice. {14} Let the borderers of Sion come, and remember the captivity of my sons & daughters, which the everlasting hath brought upon them. {15} For he hath brought upon them a nation from afar, a wicked nation, and of an other tongue: {16} which have not reverenced the ancient, nor pitied the children, & have led away the beloved of the widow, and made the sole woman desolate of children. {17} But as for me what can I help you? {18} For he that hath brought the evils upon you, he will deliver you out of the hands of your enemies. {19} walk children, walk: for I am left alone. {20} I have put off the stole of peace, and I have put upon me the sackcloth of prayer, and I will cry to the Highest in my days. {21} Be of good comfort my children, cry to our Lord, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the princes your enemies. {22} For I have hoped in the everlasting for your salvation: & joy is come to me from the holy one upon the mercy, which shall come to you from our everlasting saviour. {23} For I sent you forth with mourning and weeping: but our Lord will bring you back to me with joy and gladness for ever. {24} For as the neighbours of Sion have seen your captivity from God: so shall they see also with celerity your salvation from God, which shall come upon you with great honour, and everlasting brightness. {25} Children patiently sustain the wrath, which is come upon you: for thine enemy hath persecuted thee, but thou shalt quickly see his destruction: and thou shalt get up upon his neck. {26} My delicate ones have walked rough ways, for they are led as a flock taken violently of the enemies. {27} Be of good comfort children, and cry out to our Lord: for there shall be remembrance of you with him, that hath led you away. {28} For as your mind hath been to stray from God: ten times so much shall you returning again seek him. {29} For he that hath brought the evils upon you, he again will bring unto you everlasting joy with your salvation. {30} Be of good comfort Jerusalem: for he exhorteth thee, that named thee. {31} The wicked afflicters shall perish, that have vexed thee: & they that have rejoiced in thy ruin, shall be punished. {32} The cities which thy children have served, shall be punished: and she that received thy children. {33} For as she hath rejoiced in thy ruin, and been glad at thy fall: so shall she be made sorrowful in her own desolation. {34} And the rejoicing of her multitude shall be cut off, & her gladness shall be turned to mourning. {35} For fire shall come upon her from the everlasting in long during days, and she shall be inhabited of devils a great time. {36} Look about o Jerusalem toward the East, and see the joy that cometh to thee from God. {37} For behold thy children come, whom thou hast let go dispersed, they come gathered together from the East even to the West, in the word of the holy one rejoicing to the honor of God.

A consolatory prophecy to Jerusalem, that her children shall be reduced with joy from captivity.

{1} PUT off Jerusalem the robe of mourning, and of thy vexation: and put on the beauty, and honor of that everlasting glory, which thou hast of God. {2} God will clothe thee with the doublet of justice, and will put upon thy head the mitre of everlasting honour. {3} For God will shew his brightness in thee, which is under the heaven. {4} For thy name shall be named of God to thee for ever: The peace of justice, and honor of piety. {5} Arise Jerusalem, and stand on high: and look about toward the East, and see thy children gathered together from the rising of the sun to the going down, in the word of the holy rejoicing at the memory of God. {6} For they went out from thee on foot led by the enemies: but our Lord will bring them to the exalted into honour as children of the kingdom. {7} For God hath appointed to humble every high mountain, and everlasting rocks, and to fill up valleys to be equal with the earth: that Israel may walk diligently to the honour of God. {8} And the woods also, and every tree of sweetness have overshadowed Israel by the commandment of God. {9} For God will bring Israel with joyfulness in the light of his majesty, with mercy, and justice, which is of him.

Jeremie by his epistle forewarneith the Jews, that they shall be captives in Babylon: and after seventy years shall be released: 3. exhorting them all that time to avoid idolatry: 7. largely shewing the vanity of idols.

{1} FOR the sins that you have sinned before God, you shall be led away captive into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon. {2} Being entered therefore into Babylon, you shall be there many years, and long times even unto seven generations: and after this I will bring you forth from thence with peace. {3} But now you shall see in Babylon gods of gold, and of silver, and of stone, and of wood to be carried upon shoulders, shewing fear to the Gentiles. {4} Beware therefore lest you also be like to the doing of strangers, and you be afraid, and fear take you in them. {5} Seeing therefore the multitude adoring behind, and before, say you in your hearts: Thou oughtest to be adored o Lord. {6} For mine angel is with you: and my self will ask account of your souls. {7} For their tongue polished by the craftsman, them selves also laid over with gold, and silver are false things, and they can not speak. {8} And as to a virgin that loveth ornaments: so taking gold their gods are forged. {9} Their gods certes have golden crowns upon their heads: whereof the priests secretly convey away from them gold, and silver, and bestow it on them selves. {10} Yea and they give thereof to strumpets, and they deck whores: and again when they receive it of the harlots, they deck their gods. {11} But these are not delivered from the rust, and the moth. {12} And these being covered with a purple garment, they wipe their face for the dust of the house, which is very much among them. {13} And he hath a scepter as a man, as a judge of the country, that killeth him not that offendeth against him. {14} He hath also in his hand a sword, and an axe, but him self he delivereth not from the sword, and from robbers, whereby be it known to you that they are not gods. {15} Therefore fear them not. For as a man's vessel being broken is made unprofitable: such also are their gods: {16} they being placed in the house, their eyes are full of dust by the feet of them that go in. {17} And as upon one, that hath offended the king, the gates be shut round about, or as the dead brought to the grave, so do the priests guard the doors with shuttings, and locks, lest they be spoiled of thieves. {18} They light candles to them, and that many, of the which they can see none: but they are as beams in the house. {19} And they say that the serpents which are of the earth, gnaw out their hearts, whiles they eat them and their garment, and they feel not. {20} Their faces are black with the smoke, that is made in the house. {21} The owls, and the swallows fly upon their body, and upon their head, and the birds also, the cats in like manner. {22} Whereby you may know that they are not gods. Therefore fear them not. {23} The gold also which they have, is for beauty, unless a man wipe off the rust, they shall not shine: for neither when they were molten, did they feel. {24} With all price are they bought, whereas there is no breath in them. {25} As being without feet they are carried upon shoulders, shewing their baseness to men. Be they confounded also that worship them. {26} Therefore if they fall to the ground, they rise not up of them selves, nor if a man set him upright, shall he stand by him self, but as to dead men their gifts shall be set before them. {27} Their priests sell their sacrifices, and abuse them: likewise also their wives plucking from them, impart nothing, neither to the sick, nor to the beggar. {28} Of their sacrifices women in childbed, and in flowers do touch: knowing therefore by these things that they are not gods, fear them not. {29} For whence are they called gods? Because women offer to the gods of silver, and gold, and wood. {30} And priests sit in their houses, having their garments rent, and their heads, & beard shaven, whose heads be bare. {31} And they were crying before their gods, as at the supper of the dead. {32} The priests take away their garments, and they clothe their wives & their children. {33} Neither if they suffer any evil, nor if any good of any man, are they able to recompence it: neither can they make a king, nor take him away: {34} In like manner they can neither give riches, nor requite evil. If a man vow a vow unto them, and perform it not; neither this do they require. {35} They deliver not a man from death, nor save the weak from the mightier. {36} The blind man they restore not to his sight: they shall not deliver a man out of necessity. {37} They shall not pity the widow, nor do good to the fatherless. {38} Like unto the stones of the mountain are their gods, of wood, and of stone, and of gold, and of silver. & they that worship them, shall be confounded: {39} How then is it to be supposed, or to be said, that they are gods? {40} Moreover the Chaldees themselves not honoring them: who when they hear that the dumb can not speak, they offer it to Bel, requesting of him, that it may speak. {41} As though they could feel that have no motion: and they when they shall understand, will leave them: for their gods them selves have no sense. {42} And women compassed with cords, sit in the ways, burning the bones of olives. {43} And when one of them being drawn of some passenger shall lie with him, she upbraideth her neighbour, that she is not counted worthy, as her self, neither is her cord broken. {44} But all things that are done about them are false, how is it then to be thought, or to be said, that they be gods? {45} And they are made by craftsmen, & by goldsmiths. They shall be nothing else, but that which the priests will have them to be. {46} For the artificers themselves, that make them, are of no long time. Why, can those things then that are made by them, be gods? {47} But they have left forged things & reproach, to them that shall come after. {48} For when battle cometh upon them, and evils: the priests devise with them selves, where they may hide them selves with them. {49} How then may they be thought, that they are gods, which neither deliver them selves from battle, nor save them selves from evils? {50} For seeing they be of wood, & laid over with gold, and with silver, it shall be known afterwards that they are false things, of all the Gentiles, and kings: Which are manifest that they are no gods, but the works of men's hands, and no work of God is with them. {51}

Whence then is it known, that they are not gods, but the works of men's hands, & no work of God is in them? {52} A king to the country they raise not up, neither shall they give rain to men. {53} Judgement also they shall not decern, neither shall they deliver countries from injury: because they can do nothing, as crows between the heaven and the earth. {54} For when fire shall fall into the house of the wooden, and silver, and golden gods, their priests in deed shall flee, and be delivered: but themselves as beams shall be burnt in the midst. {55} And king and battle they shall not resist. How is it then to be supposed, or to be received that they are gods? {56} Not from thieves, nor from robbers shall the gods of wood, and of stone, and laid over with gold, and with silver deliver themselves, stronger than which are the wicked men. {57} The gold, and silver, and the garment where with they are covered, they shall take from them, and shall depart, neither shall they help themselves. {58} Therefore it is better to be a king shewing his strength: or a profitable vessel in the house, wherein he will glory that possesseth it: or a door in the house, which keepeth the things that are therein, than false gods. {59} The sun certes, and the moon, and the stars whereas they are bright, and sent forth for profitable uses, obey. {60} Likewise also the lightning, when it shall appear is perspicuous: and the wind also bloweth the self same in every country. {61} And the clouds, which when God shall command to walk throughout the whole world, they do that which is commanded them. {62} The fire also being sent from above to consume mountains, and woods, doeth that which is commanded it. But these neither in shapes, nor in virtues are like to one of them. {63} Wherefore neither is it to be thought, nor to be said, that they be gods: whereas they can neither judge judgment, nor do any thing for men. {64} Knowing therefore that they are not gods, then fear them not. {65} For neither shall they curse kings, nor bless them. {66} Signs also in the heaven to the Gentiles they shew not, neither shall they shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon. {67} Beasts are better than they, which can fly under the roof, and profit themselves. {68} By no means therefore is it manifest unto us, that they are gods: for which cause fear them not. {69} For as in a garden of cucumbers a scarecrow keepeth nothing, so are their gods of wood, and of silver, and laid over with gold. {70} After the same sort also in a garden the white thorn, upon the which every bird sitteth. In like manner also their gods of wood, and laid over with gold, and with silver, are like to a dead body cast forth in the dark. {71} By the purple also and the murex colour laid upon them, which fadeth, you shall know that they are not gods. At the last also they are consumed, and shall be a reproach in the country. {72} Better is therefore the just man, that hath not idols: for he shall be far from reproaches.

THE PROPHECY OF EZECHIEL

By the river of Chobar near Babylon, Ezechiel seeth in vision a tempestuous whirlwind, 5. and strange shapes, 10. of a man, a lion, an oxe, and an eagle: 15. of four wheels, 22. and of a man sitting gloriously on a throne in the firmament.

{1} AND it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth, in the fifth of the month, when I was in the midst of the captives beside the river Chobar, the heavens were opened, and I saw the visions of God. {2} In the fifth of the month, the same is the fifth year of the transmigration of king Joachin, {3} the word of our Lord was made to Ezechiel the son of Buzi Priest in the land of the Chaldees, by the river Chobar: and there the hand of our Lord was made upon him. {4} And I saw, and behold a whirlwind came from the North: & a great cloud, and a fire involving, & brightness round about it: and out of the midst thereof as it were the form of amber, that is, out of the midst of the fire. {5} and out of the midst thereof the similitude of four living creatures: and this was their look: the similitude of a man in them. {6} There were four faces to one, and four wings to one. {7} Their feet straight feet, and the sole of their foot as the sole of a calf's foot, and sparks as the form of glowing brass. {8} And the hands of a man under their wings in four parts: and they had faces, and wings by the four parts. {9} And the wings of them were joined one to an other. They returned not when they went: but every one went before his face. {10} And the similitude of their countenance: the face of a man, and the face of a lion on the right hand of them four: and the face of an oxe, on the left hand of them four: and the face of an eagle over them four. {11} And their faces, and their wings were stretched out above: two wings of every one were joined, and two covered their bodies: {12} and every one of them walked before his face: where the force of the spirit was, thither they went: neither did they return when they went: neither did they return when they walked. {13} And the similitude of the living creatures, their look as it were of coals of burning fire, and as it were the resemblance of lamps. This was the vision running in the midst of the living creatures, brightness of fire, and from the fire lightning going forth. {14} And the living creatures went, and returned after the similitude of glistering lightning. {15} And when I beheld the living creatures, there appeared one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, having four faces. {16} And the shape of the wheels, and the work of them, as it were appearance of the sea: and one similitude of them four: and their appearance and work, as if it were wheel in the midst of a wheel. {17} By their four parts going they went: and they returned not when they walked. {18} There was a stature also to the wheels, and height, and a fearful form: and the whole body was full of eyes round about them four. {19} And when the living creatures walked, the wheels also walked together by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together. {20} Whithersoever the spirit went, thither the spirit going, the wheels also were lifted up withal, following it: for the spirit of life was in the wheels. {21} With them going they went, and with them standing they stood, and with them lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together, {854} following them: because the spirit of life was in the wheels. {22} And a similitude over the heads of the living creatures of the firmament, as it were the sight of crystal dreadful, and stretched out over their heads above. {23} And under the firmament the wings of them straight one toward an other, every one with two wings covered his body, and the other was covered in like manner. {24} And I heard the sound of the wings, as it were the sound of many waters, as it were the sound of the high God, when they walked, it was as the voice of a multitude, as the sound of a camp, and when they stood, their wings were let down. {25} For when a voice was made above the firmament, that was over their head, they stood, and let down their wings. {26} And above the firmament, that hung over their head, as it were the form of the sapphire stone the similitude of a throne, and upon the similitude of the throne, a similitude as it were the shape of a man above. {27} And I saw as it were the form of amber, as the resemblance of fire within it round about: from his loins & upward, and from his loins downward, I saw as it were the resemblance of fire glistering round about. {28} As the form of the bow when it is in a cloud on a day of rain, this was the form of the brightness round about.

The Prophet terrified with the vision, is encouraged by God's spirit. 3. And is sent to preach 9. penance, and the service of God.

{1} THIS was the vision of the similitude of the glory of our Lord. And I saw, and I fell on my face, and I heard the voice of one speaking. And he said to me: Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak with thee. {2} And the spirit entered into me after that he spake to me, and he set me upon my feet: and I heard him speaking to me, {3} and saying: Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to nations apostates which have revolted from me: they, and their fathers, have transgressed my covenant even unto this day. {4} And they are children of an hard face, and of an heart that can not be tamed, to whom I send thee: and this thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: {5} If perhaps they at the least will hear, & if perhaps they will cease, because it is an exasperating house: and they shall know that there was a Prophet in the midst of them. {6} Thou therefore o son of man fear them not, neither be afraid of their words: because the incredulous and subverters are with thee, & thou dwellest with scorpions. Fear not their words, and of their looks be not afraid: because it is an exasperating house. {7} Thou therefore shalt speak my words to them, if perhaps they will hear, and be quiet, because they are provokers to anger. {8} But thou son of man hear whatsoever I speak to thee: and be not exasperating, as it is an exasperating house: open thy mouth, and eat whatsoever I give thee. {9} And I looked, and behold, an hand sent to me, wherein was a rolled book: and he spread it before me, which was written within and without: and there were written in it lamentations, and a song, and woe.

Against a stubborn people, to whom he must preach, 8. the Prophet is strengthened, 12. by increase of spirit: 17. charged to execute his office. 12. But first to be silent for a time.

{1} AND he said to me: Son of man, whatsoever thou shalt find going speak to the children of Israel. , eat: eat this volume, and {2} And I opened my mouth, and he fed me with that volume: {3} and he said to me: Son of man thy belly shall eat, and thy bowels shall be filled with this volume, which I give thee. And I did eat it: and it was made in my mouth sweet as honey. {4} And he said to me: Son of man go to the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak my words to them. {5} For not to a people of profound speech, and of an unknown tongue art thou sent, to the house of Israel. {6} Neither to many peoples of profound speech, and of an unknown tongue, whose words thou canst not hear: and if thou were sent to them, they would hear thee. {7} But the house of Israel will not hear thee: because they will not hear me. For all the house of Israel is of a shameless forehead, & hard hearted. {8} Behold I have made thy face stronger than their faces, and thy forehead harder than their foreheads. {9} As the adamant, & as the flint stone have I made thy face: fear them not, neither be afraid of their face: because it is an exasperating house. {10} And he said to me: Son of man, all my words which I speak to thee, take in thy heart, & hear with thine ears: {11} And go, enter into the transmigration, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: if perhaps they will hear, and be quiet. {12} And the spirit took me up, and I heard behind me the voice of a great commotion: Blessed be the glory of our Lord from his place, {13} and the voice of the wings of living creatures striking one against an other, & the voice of wheels following the living creatures, & the voice of a great commotion. {14} The spirit also lifted me, & took me up: & I went away bitter in the indignation of my spirit: for the hand of our Lord was with me, strengthening me. {15} And I came to the transmigration, to the heap of new corn, to them that dwelt by the river Chobar, & I sat where they sat: & I tarried there seven days mourning in the midst of them. {16} And when seven days were passed, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {17} Son of man, a watchman to the house of Israel have I given thee: & thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, & shalt tell it them from me. {18} If when I say to the impious: Dying thou shalt die: thou tell him not, nor speak that he may be turned away from his impious way, and live: the same impious man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at thy hand. {19} But if thou denounce to the impious, and he be not converted from his impiety, and from his impious way: he verily shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul. {20} Yea & if the just shall be turned from his justice, & shall do iniquity: I will lay a stumbling block before him, he shall die: because thou hast not told him, he shall die in his sin, & his justices which he hath done shall not be in memory: but his blood I will require at thy hand. {21} But if thou warn the just that the just sin not, and he do not sin: living he shall live, because thou hast warned him, & thou hast delivered thy soul. {22} And the hand of our Lord was made upon me, and he said to me: Rising go out into the field, and there I will speak with thee. {23} And rising I went out into the field: and behold the glory of our Lord stood there as it were the glory, which I saw by the river Chobar: & I fell on my face: {24} And the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet: and he spake to me, and said to me: Go in, and be shut up in the midst of thy house. {25} And thou son of man, behold bands are given upon thee, and they shall bind thee in them: and thou shalt not go forth from the midst of them. {26} And I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, and thou shalt be dumb, not as a man controlling: because it is an exasperating house. {27} But when I shall speak to thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: He that heareth, let him hear: & he that is quiet, let him be quiet, because it is an exasperating house.

The future siege of Jerusalem is described in a brick. 4. The time of captivity of Israel and of Juda, is signified by sleeping {390}, days on the left side, and forty on the right. 9. Famine is also signified by bread sprinkled with dung.

{1} AND thou son of man take thee a brick, and thou shalt put it before thee: and thou shalt draw in it the city of Jerusalem. {2} And thou shalt lay siege against it, and shall build munitions, and cast up a bank, and pitch camps against it, and place engines round about. {3} And thou take thee an iron frying pan, and thou shalt set it as an iron wall between thee and the city: & thou shalt set thy face steadily toward it, & it shall be besieged, & thou shalt compass it: which is a sign to the house of Israel. {4} And thou shalt sleep upon thy left side, and shalt put the iniquities of the house of Israel upon it, according to the number of the days, that thou shalt sleep upon it, and thou shalt take their iniquity. {5} And I have given thee, the years of their iniquity, according to the number of days three hundred and ninety days: and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. {6} And when thou hast accomplished these things, thou shalt sleep upon thy right side the second time: and thou shalt take the iniquity of the house of Juda forty days, a day for a year, a day, I say, for a year I have given thee. {7} And thou shalt turn thy face to the siege of Jerusalem, & thine arm shall be stretched out: and thou shalt prophesy against it. {8} Behold I have compassed thee with bands: & thou shalt not turn thy self from thy side unto the other side, till thou accomplish the days of the siege. {9} And thou take thee wheat and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches: and thou shalt put them into one vessel, and make thee loaves according to the number of the days, that thou shalt sleep upon thy side: three hundred & ninety days shalt thou eat it. {10} And thy meat, that thou shalt eat, shall be in weight twenty staters a day: from time to time thou shalt eat it. {11} And water by measure thou shalt drink, the sixth part of an hin: from time to time thou shalt drink it. {12} And as hearth baken barley bread thou shalt eat it: and with the dung that cometh out of a man, thou shalt cover it before their eyes. {13} And our Lord said: So shall the children of Israel eat their bread polluted among the Gentiles, to the which I shall cast them out. {14} And I said: A, a, a, o Lord God, behold my soul is not polluted, and a dead thing, and thing torn of beasts, I have not eaten from mine infancy even till this time, and all unclean flesh hath not entered into my mouth. {15} And he said to me: Behold I have given thee dung of oxen for man's dung, and thou shalt make thy bread therewith. {16} And he said to me: Son of man, Behold I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall eat bread in weight, and in carefulness: and they shall drink water in measure, and in distress. {17} That bread and water failing, every man may fall against his brother, and they may pine away in their iniquities.

By the hair of the Prophet's head and beard polled, and diversely destroyed, 5. is signified the destruction of the Jews. 10. The fathers and sons eating one an other, 12. in extremity of pestilence, famine, and sword.

{1} AND thou son of man take thee a sharp knife, shaving the hairs: and thou shalt take it and draw it over thy head, and over thy beard: and thou shalt take thee a balance of weight, and shalt divide them. {2} The third part thou shalt burn with fire in the midst of the city, according to the accomplishing of the days of the siege: and thou shalt take a third part, and cut it with the knife in the circuit thereof: but the other third part thou shalt scatter into the wind, and I will draw the sword after them: {3} And thou shalt take thereof a small number: and shalt bind them in the skirt of thy cloak. {4} And of them again thou shalt take, and shalt cast them forth in the midst of the fire, and shalt burn them with fire: and out of it shall come forth a fire into all the house of Israel. {5} Thus saith our Lord God: This is Jerusalem, I placed her in the midst of the Gentiles, and countries round about her. {6} And she hath contemned my judgements, so that she was more impious than the Gentiles: and my precepts more than the lands, that are round about her. For they have cast away my judgements, and in my precepts they have not walked. {7} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you have passed the Gentiles, that are round about you, and have not walked in my precepts, and have not done my judgements, and according to the judgements of the nations, which are round about you, you have not wrought. {8} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee, & I my self will do judgements, in the midst of thee in the eyes of the Gentiles. {9} And I will do in thee that which I have not done: & the like whereof I will do no more for all thine abominations. {10} Therefore the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers: and I will do judgements in thee, and I will scatter all thy remnant into every wind. {11} Therefore I live, saith our Lord God: Unless for that thou hast violated my sanctuary in all thine offences, and in all thine abominations: I also do break thee, and mine eye shall not spare, and I will not have mercy. {12} The third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and shall be consumed with famine in the midst of thee: and a third part of thee shall fall by the sword round about thee: and thy third part I will scatter into every wind, and I will draw a sword after them. {13} And I will accomplish my fury, and will make mine indignation rest in them, and will be comforted: and they shall know that I, the Lord have spoken in my zeal, when I shall have accomplished mine indignation in them. {14} And I will make thee a desert, and a reproach to the nations, that are round about thee, in the sight of every one that passeth by. {15} And thou shalt be a reproach, and blasphemy, an example, and astonishment amongst the nations, that are round about thee, when I shall have done judgments in thee in fury, and in indignation, and in the rebukes of anger. {16} I, the Lord have spoken: When I shall send very sore arrows of famine upon them: which shall be mortiferous, and which I shall send to destroy you: and I will gather famine upon you, and will break among you the staff of bread. {17} And I will send in upon you famine, and very sore beasts even to destruction: and pestilence, and blood shall pass through thee, and the sword I will bring in upon thee. I, the Lord have spoken.

Chapter 6

For idolatry the people shall be diversely destroyed: 8. till the relics convert to God.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: the mountains of Israel, and thou shalt {2} Son of man, set thy face toward prophesy to them, {3} and shalt say: Mountains of Israel hear ye the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God to the mountains, and little hills, and to the rocks, & the valleys: Behold I will bring upon you the sword, and will destroy your excelses, {4} and cast down your altars, and your idols shall be broken: and I will overthrow your slain before your idols. {5} And I will lay the carcases of the children of Israel before the face of your idols: and I will disperse your bones about your altars {6} in all your habitations. The cities shall be desolate, and the excelses shall be cast down, and destroyed, and your altars shall perish, and shall be broken: and your idols shall cease, & your temples shall be destroyed, & your works shall be defaced. {7} And the slain shall fall in the midst of you: & you shall know that I am the Lord. {8} And I will leave in you them, that shall escape the sword in the Gentiles, when I shall disperse you in the lands. {9} And your delivered shall remember me amongst the Gentiles, to which they are led in captivity: because I have broken their heart fornicating, and revolting from me: & their eyes fornicating after their idols: and they shall mislike with themselves upon the evils which they had done in all their abominations. {10} And they shall know that I, the Lord have not spoken in vain to do them this evil. {11} Thus saith our Lord God: Strike thy hand, and knock thy foot, and say: Alas, to all the abominations of the evils of the house of Israel: because they shall fall by sword, famine, and pestilence. {12} He that is far off, shall die with pestilence: and he that is near, shall fall by the sword: and he that shall be left, and besieged, shall die for famine: and I will accomplish mine indignation in them. {13} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when your slain shall be amongst the midst of your idols, in the circuit of your altars, in every high hill, and in all the tops of mountains, and under every woody tree, and under every oak with thick branches, the place where they burnt frankincense smelling sweetly to all their idols. {14} And I will stretch forth my hand upon them: and will make the land desolate, and destitute from the desert of Deblatha in all their habitations: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Miseries shall be so great, 8. and shall come so presently, 16. that few shall escape, and those also shall be in great terror and affliction.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: our Lord God to the land of Israel: The end {2} And thou son of man, thus saith is come, come is the end upon the four quarters of the land. {3} Now an end upon thee, and I will send my fury upon thee: and I will judge thee according to thy ways: and I will lay against thee all thine abominations. {4} And upon thee mine eye shall not spare, and I will not have mercy: but I will lay thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {5} Thus saith our Lord God: One affliction, lo affliction cometh. {6} An end cometh, there cometh an end, it hath awaked against thee: behold it cometh. {7} Destruction cometh upon thee, which dwellest in the land: the time cometh, the day of slaughter is near, & not of the glory of mountains. {8} Now straight-way I pour out my wrath upon thee, & I will accomplish my fury in thee: & I will judge thee according to thy ways, & I will lay upon thee all thy wicked deeds. {9} And mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: but I will lay thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that I am the Lord that strike. {10} Behold the day, behold it cometh: destruction is gone forth, the rod hath flourished, pride hath budded. {11} Iniquity is risen in the rod of impiety: not of them, and not of the people, nor of the sound of them: and there shall be no rest in them. {12} The time cometh, the day is at hand: he that buyeth let him not rejoice: and he that selleth, let him not mourn: because wrath upon all the people thereof. {13} Because he that selleth shall not return to that which he hath sold, and as yet in the living the life of them. For the vision shall not go back to all the multitude thereof: and man in the iniquity of his life shall not be strengthened. {14} Sound you with the trumpet, let all be prepared, and there is none to go to the battle: for my wrath shall be upon all the people thereof. {15} The sword without, and the pestilence and famine within: he that is in the field shall die by the sword: & they that are in the city, shall be devoured with the pestilence and famine. {16} And those of them that fly shall be saved: and they shall be in the mountains as doves of the valleys all trembling, every one in his iniquity. {17} All hands shall be dissolved, & all knees shall run with waters. {18} And they shall gird themselves with hair-cloths, and fear shall cover them, and in every face confusion, and upon all their heads baldness. {19} Their silver shall be thrown forth, and their gold shall be into a dunghill. Their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the fury of our Lord. Their soul they shall not satisfy, and their bellies shall not be filled: because it is made a scandal of their iniquity. {20} And the ornament of their Jewels they have turned into pride, and the images of their abominations, and idols they have made of it: for this cause have I given it them into uncleanness: {21} and I will give it into the hands of aliens to spoil, and to the impious of the earth for a prey, and they shall contaminate it. {22} And I will turn away my face from them, and they shall violate my secret: and spoilers shall enter into it, and shall contaminate it. {23} Make a conclusion: because the land is full of the judgement of blood, and the city full of iniquity. {24} And I will bring the worst of the nations, and they shall possess their houses: and I will make the pride of the mighty to cease, and they shall possess their sanctuary. {25} Distress coming upon them, {859} they will seek peace, and there shall be none. {26} Trouble shall come upon trouble, and report upon report, and they shall seek vision of the prophet, and the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients. {27} The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with sorrowfulness, and the hands of the people of the land shall be troubled. According to their way will I do to them, and according to their judgements I will judge them: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

In an other vision the Prophet seeth innumerable most abominable idolatries 11. committed by all sorts of men and women, 17. for which God will no longer spare them.

{1} AND it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth of the month: I sat in my house, and the ancients of Juda sat before me, and the hand of our Lord God fell there upon me. {2} And I saw, and behold a similitude as it were the resemblance of fire: from the resemblance of his loins, and downward, fire: and from his loins, and upward, as it were the resemblance of brightness, as the appearance of amber. {3} And the similitude of a hand put forth took me by the locks of my head: and the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me into Jerusalem in the vision of God, beside the inner door, that looked to the North, where was set an idol of zeal to provoke emulation. {4} And lo there the glory of the God of Israel according to the vision which I had seen in the field. {5} And he said to me: Son of man, lift up thine eyes to the way of the North. And I lifted up mine eyes to the way of the North: and behold on the North of the port of the altar the idol of zeal in the very entry. {6} And he said to me: Son of man, doest thou see thinkest thou what these do, the great abominations, that the house of Israel doth here, that I may depart far from my sanctuary? And yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations. {7} And he brought me into the door of the court: and I saw, and behold one hole in the wall. {8} And he said to me: Son of man dig the wall. And when I had digged the wall, there appeared one door. {9} And he said to me: Go in, and see the most wicked abominations, which these do here. {10} And being entered in I saw, and behold every similitude of creeping creatures, and beasts, abomination, and all the idols of the house of Israel were painted in the wall round about throughout. {11} And seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and Jezonias the son of Saphan stood in the midst of them, that stood before the pictures: and every one had a censer in his hand: and a vapour of a cloud rose up from the frankincense. {12} And he said to me: Surely thou seest son of man what things the ancients of the house of Israel do in darkness, every one in the secret of his chamber: for they say: Our Lord seeth us not, our Lord hath forsaken the earth. {13} And he said to me: Yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations, which these do. {14} And he brought me in by the door of the gate of the house of our Lord, which looked to the North: and behold their women sat mourning for Adonis. {15} And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen o son of man: yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations than these. {16} And he brought me into the inner court of the house of our Lord: and behold in the door of the temple of our Lord between the porch and the altar, as it were five and twenty men having their backs against the temple of our Lord, and their faces to the East: and they adored toward the rising of the sun. {17} And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen o son of man: Why, is this a light thing to the house of Juda, that they should do these abominations, which they have done here: because they replenishing the land with iniquity, are turned to provoke me? And behold they put a bough to their nostrils. {18} Therefore I also will do in my fury: mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: and when they shall cry to mine ears with a loud voice, I will not hear them.

The Prophet seeing six men by God's commandment kill all, 6. that are not marked with THAV in their forehead: 8. lamenteth so great a slaughter: 9. and God answereth, that their iniquity may no be longer tolerated.

{1} AND he cried in mine ears with a loud voice, saying: The visitations of the city approach, and every one hath a weapon of slaughter in his hand. {2} And behold six men came from the way of the upper gate, which looketh to the North: and every man's weapon of destruction in his hand: one man also in the midst of them was clothed with linen garments, and the ink-horn of a writer at his reins: and they entered in, and stood by the brazen altar. {3} And the glory of the Lord of Israel was taken up from the Cherub, which was over him to the threshold of the house: and he called the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, and had the ink-horn of a writer on his loins. {4} And our Lord said to him: Pass through the midst of the city in the midst of Jerusalem: and sign Thau upon the foreheads of the men that mourn and lament upon all the abominations, that are done in the midst thereof. {5} And to them he said in my hearing: Pass through the city following him, and strike: let not your eye spare, neither have ye mercy. {6} The old, the young man, and the virgin, the little one, and the women kill to utter destruction: but every one upon whom you shall see Thau, kill not, and begin ye at my Sanctuary: They began therefore at the ancient men, which were before the face of the house. {7} And he said to them: Contaminate the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and struck them that were in the city. {8} And the slaughter being accomplished I remained: and I fell upon my face, and crying: I said Alas, alas, alas o Lord God, wilt thou then destroy all the remnant of Israel, pouring out thy fury upon Jerusalem? {9} And he said to me: The iniquity of the house of Israel, and Juda is exceeding great, and the land is replenished with blood, and the city is replenished with aversion: for they have said: Our Lord hath forsaken the earth, and our Lord seeth not. {10} Therefore mine eye also shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: I will requite their way upon their head. {11} And behold the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, that had the ink-horn at his back, answered a word, saying: I have done as thou hast commanded me.

Destruction of the city is again signified by appearance of fire sprinkled therein, 9. with description of Cherubims, four wheels, and of the four living creatures.

{1} AND I saw, & behold in the firmament, that was over the head of the Cherubs, as it were the sapphire stone, as it were the form of the similitude of a throne appeared over them. {2} And he spake to the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, and said: Go in the midst of the wheels that are under the Cherubs, and fill thy hand with the coals of fire, that are between the Cherubs, and pour them out upon the city. And he went in, in my sight: {3} & the Cherubs stood on the right hand of the house, when the man went in, and a cloud filled the inner court. {4} And the glory of our Lord was lifted up from above the Cherub to the threshold of the house: and the house was replenished with the cloud, & the court was replenished with the brightness of the glory of our Lord. {5} And the sound of the wings of the Cherubs was heard even to the outer court, as it were the voice of God almighty speaking. {6} And when he had commanded the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, saying: Take fire from the midst of the wheels, that are between the Cherubs: he being gone in stood beside the wheel. {7} And a Cherub stretched out his hand from the midst of the Cherubs to the fire, that was between the Cherubs: & he took, & gave into his hands, that was clothed with the linen garments: who taking it went forth. {8} And there appeared in the Cherubs the similitude of a man's hand under their wings. {9} And I saw, & behold four wheels by the Cherubs: one wheel by one Cherub, & an other wheel by one Cherub: & the form of the wheels was as it were the resemblance of the stone Chrysolithus: {10} & their resemblance, one similitude to the four: as it were a wheel in the midst of a wheel. {11} And when they walked, they went into four parts: & they returned not walking: but to the place, whereunto that which was first declined, the rest also followed, neither did they turn. {12} And all their body, & necks, & hands, & wings, and the circles were full of eyes, in the circuit of the four wheels. {13} And these wheels he called voluble, my self hearing it. {14} And one had four faces: one face, the face of a Cherub, and the second face, the face of a man: and in the third the face of a lion: and in the fourth the face of an eagle. {15} And the Cherubs were lifted up: the same is the living creature, that I had seen by the river Chobar. {16} And when the Cherubs walked, the wheels also went together by them: and when the Cherubs lifted up their wings, to be raised up from the earth, the wheels rested not, but also were beside them. {17} Those standing, they stood: and with them lifted up they were lifted up. For the spirit of life was in them. {18} And the glory of our Lord went forth from the threshold of the temple, and stood over the Cherubs. {19} And the Cherubs lifting up their wings, were exalted from the earth before me: and they going forth, the wheels also followed: & it stood in the entry of the east gate of the house of our Lord: and the glory of the God of Israel was over them. {20} The same is the living creature, which I saw under the God of Israel by the river Chobar: an I understood that they were Cherubs. {21} Four faces to one, and four wings to one: and the similitude of a man's hand under their wings. {22} And the similitude of their faces, the same faces, which I had seen by the river Chobar, and the looks of them, and the sway of every one to go before his face.

Chapter 11

Against false-Prophets affirming that the people should not be carried into captivity, 4. Ezechiel prophesied that they shall not escape it. 13. Pheltias a false-Prophet dieth: 14. and God promiseth to conserve some relics: 19. and to give a new spirit in their hearts.

{1} AND the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of our Lord, which looketh to the rising of the sun: and behold in the entry of the gate five and twenty men: and I saw in the midst of them Jezonias the son of Azur, & Pheltias the son of Banaias, the Princes of the people. {2} And he said to me: Son of man, these are the men that conceive iniquity, and devise most wicked counsel in this city, {3} saying: Were not houses builded of late? This is the caldron, & we the flesh. {4} Therefore prophesy of them, prophesy thou son of man. {5} And the spirit of our Lord fell upon me, & said to me: Speak: Thus saith our Lord: So have you spoken, o house of Israel, & the cogitations of your heart I know. {6} Very many have you killed in this city, and you have filled the ways thereof with the slain. {7} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Your slain, whom you have laid in the midst thereof, these are the flesh, and this is the caldron: and I will bring you out of the midst thereof. {8} The sword you have feared, and the sword I will bring upon you, saith our Lord God. {9} And I will cast you out of the midst thereof, & I will give you into the hand of the enemies, & will do judgements in you. {10} You shall fall by the sword: in the borders of Israel will I judge you, and you shall know that I am the Lord. {11} This shall not be as a caldron to you, and you shall not be as flesh in the midst thereof, in the borders of Israel I will judge you. {12} And you shall know that I am the Lord: because you have not walked in my precepts, and have not done my judgements, but you have done according to the judgements of nations, that are round about you. {13} And it came to pass, when I prophesied, Pheltias the son of Banaias died: and I fell upon my face, crying with a loud voice: and said: Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God: makest thou a consummation of the remnant of Israel? {14} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {15} Son of man thy brethren, thy brethren, thy kinsmen, and all the house of Israel, all to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said: Depart ye far from our Lord, the land is given to us in possession. {16} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because I have made them far off in the Gentiles, and because I have dispersed them in the lands: I will be a little sanctification to them in the lands, to which they are come. {17} Therefore speak: Thus saith our Lord God: I will gather you out of the peoples, and unite you out of the lands, wherein you are dispersed, and I will give you the ground of Israel. {18} And they shall go in thither, and shall take away all the offences, and all the abominations thereof out of it. {19} And I will give them one heart, and will give a new spirit in their bowels: and I will take away the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a fleshy heart: {20} that they may walk in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them: and they may be my people, and I may be their God. {21} Whose heart walketh after their offences and abominations, their way will I lay on their head, saith our Lord God. {22} And the Cherubs lifted up their wings, and the wheels with them: and the glory of the God of Israel was over them. {23} And the glory of our Lord ascended from the midst of the city, and stood over the mount, that is on the east side of the city. {24} And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into Chaldee to the transmigration, in a vision in the spirit of God: and the vision which I had seen was taken up from me. {25} And I spake to the transmigration all the words of our Lord, which he had shewed me.

By providing furniture for a journey, and carrying it from one place to an other, 5. and flying through a hole in the wall, 10. the Prophet signifieth that the King, and people shall go into captivity. 17. By eating, as if he were troubled, foresheweth their famine. 21. All which shall come quickly.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: midst of an exasperating house: which {2} Son of man, thou dwellest in the have eyes to see, and see not: and ears to hear, and hear not: because it is an exasperating house. {3} Thou therefore, o son of man, make thee vessels of transmigration, and thou shalt flit by day before them: and thou shalt flit out of thy place to an other place in their sight; if perhaps they will behold: because it is an exasperating house. {4} And thou shalt carry forth thy vessels as the vessels of one flitting by day in the sight of them: and thou shalt go forth at even before them, as one goeth forth that flitteth. {5} Before their eyes dig to thee through the wall: and thou shalt go forth through it. {6} In their sight on shoulders thou shalt be carried, in the dark thou shalt be carried out: thou shalt cover thy face, and shalt not see the earth: because I have given thee a portending sign to the house of Israel. {7} I did therefore as he had commanded me: I carried my vessels as the vessels of one flitting by day: and at even I digged to me through the wall with my hand: and I went forth in the dark, and was carried on shoulders in their sight. {8} And the word of our Lord was made to me in the morning, saying: {9} Son of man, hath not the house of Israel the exasperating house said to thee: What doest thou? {10} Say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: This burden upon the Prince, that is in Jerusalem, and upon all the house of Israel, which is in the midst of them. {11} Say: I am your portending sign, as I have done, so shall it be done to them, into transmigration, and into captivity shall they go. {12} And the Prince, that is in the midst of them, shall be carried on shoulders, he shall go forth in the dark: they shall dig through the wall to bring him out: his face shall be covered, that he may not see the earth with his eye. {13} And I will stretch forth my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my net: and I will bring him into Babylon into the land of the Chaldees, and he shall not see it, and there he shall die. {14} And all that are about him, his guard, and his troops I will disperse into every wind: and I will draw the sword after them. {15} And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have dispersed them in the Gentiles, and scattered them in the lands. {16} And I will leave of them a few men from the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: that they may declare all their wicked deeds in the Gentiles, to which they shall enter: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {17} And the word of our Lord was made unto me, saying: {18} Son of man, eat thy bread in trouble: yea & drink thy water in haste and sorrowfulness. {19} And thou shalt say to the people of the land: Thus saith our Lord God to them that dwell in Jerusalem in the land of Israel: Their bread they shall eat in carefulness, and their water in desolation they shall drink: that the land may be made desolate from the multitude thereof, for the iniquity of all that dwell therein. {20} And the cities, that are now inhabited, shall be desolate, and the land desert: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {21} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {22} Son of man, what is this proverb with you in the land of Israel saying: The days shall be deferred to a long time, and all vision shall perish. {23} Therefore say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: I will make this proverb cease, neither shall it any more be commonly said in Israel: and speak to them that the days are at hand, and the word of every vision. {24} for all vision shall no more be in vain, nor divination ambiguous in the midst of the children of Israel. {25} Because I, the Lord will speak: and what word soever I shall speak, shall also be done, it shall not be prolonged any more: but in your days ye exasperating house, will I speak the word, and will do it, saith our Lord God. {26} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {27} Son of man, behold the house of Israel, they that say: The vision, that this man seeth, is for many days: and this man Prophesieth long times. {28} Therefore say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Every word of mine shall be prolonged no further: the word that I shall speak, shall be accomplished, saith our Lord God.

God threateneth false Prophets, 5. that flatter the people with lies: 10. without the fear of God. 17. Likewise false Prophetesses, that deceive themselves and others with flattery. 19. for worldly gain.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Prophets of Israel, that prophesy: and thou {2} Son of man prophesy to the shalt say to them, that prophesy of their own heart: Hear ye the word of our Lord: {3} Thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the foolish Prophets, which follow their own spirit, and see nothing. {4} As foxes in the deserts, were thy Prophets o Israel. {5} You have not ascended against, nor opposed a wall for the house of Israel, that you might stand in battle in the day of our Lord. {6} They see vain things, and they divine lies, saying: Our Lord saith: whereas our Lord sent them not: and they persevered to confirm the word. {7} Why, have you not seen vain vision, and spoken lying divination? And you say: Our Lord saith; whereas I have not spoken. {8} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you have spoken vain things, and have seen lies: therefore behold I to you, saith our Lord God. {9} And my hand shall be upon the Prophets, that see vain things, and divine a lie: in the counsel of my people they shall not be, & in the scripture of the house of Israel they shall not be written, neither shall they enter into the land of Israel: and you shall know that I am the Lord God. {10} For that they have deceived my people, saying: Peace, and there is not peace: and he builded the wall, and they daubed it with mortar without straw. {11} Say to them that daub without tempering, that it shall fall: for there shall be a shower overflowing,{864} and I will give very great stones falling violently from above, and the wind of a storm dissipating. {12} For indeed behold the wall is fallen: shall it not be said to you: Where is the daubing, that you daubed? {13} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: And I will make the spirit of tempests to break forth in mine indignation, and there shall be an overflowing showering in my fury: & great stones in my wrath unto consumption. {14} And I will destroy the wall, that you have daubed without tempering: & I will make it even with the ground, and the foundation thereof shall be revealed: and it shall fall, and shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {15} And I will accomplish mine indignation in the wall, and in them, that daub it without tempering, and I will say to you: The wall is not, and they are not that daub it. {16} The Prophets of Israel, which prophesy to Jerusalem, & see vision of peace for it: and there is not peace, saith our Lord God. {17} And thou son of man, put thy face against the daughters of thy people, which prophesy of their own heart: and do thou prophesy upon them, {18} and say: Thus saith our Lord God: woe to them that sow cushions under every cubit of the hand: and make pillows under the head of every age to catch souls: and when they caught the souls of my people, they did vivify their souls. {19} And they violated me to my people, for a handful of barley, and a cantel of a bread, that they might kill the souls, which die not, and vivify the souls which live not, lying to my people, that believeth lies. {20} For this cause thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to your cushions, wherewith you catch flying souls: and I will break them from your arms: and I will let go the souls that you take, the souls to fly {21} And I will break your pillows, & will deliver my people out of your hand, neither shall they be any more in your hands to be a prey: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {22} For that you have made the heart of the just to mourn lyingly, whom I made not sorrowful: and have strengthened the hands of the impious, that he might not return from his evil way, and live. {23} Therefore you shall not see vain things, and divinations you shall divine no more, and I will deliver my people out of your hand: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

Idolaters inquiring of God's will by his Prophets, 6. must first depart from idolatry: 8. otherwise God will permit false-Prophets to deceive them, and both shall perish together: 12. by famine, 15. by ravenous beasts, 17. sword, 19. and pestilence: yea Noe Daniel, and Job interceding shall not deliver them (v. 14. 16. 18. [20].) 21. yet God will conserve some that the whole Church perish not.

{1} AND men of the ancients of Israel came to me, and sat before me. our Lord was made to me, saying: {2} And the word of {3} Son of man, These men have put their uncleanness in their hearts, and the scandal of their iniquity they have set against their face: what, being asked shall I answer them? {4} For this cause speak to them, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Man, man of the house of Israel, that shall put his uncleanness in his heart, and set the scandal of his iniquity against his face, and shall come to the Prophet asking me by him: I, the Lord will answer him in the multitude of his uncleanness: {5} that the house of Israel may be taken in their heart, wherewith they have revolted from me in all their idols. {6} Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Convert, and depart from your idols, and from all your contaminations turn away your faces. {7} Because man, man of the house of Israel and of the proselytes, whosoever shall be a stranger in Israel, if he be alienated from me, and put his idols in his heart, and set the scandal of iniquity against his face, and come to the Prophet to ask me by him: I, the Lord will answer him by my self. {8} And I will set my face upon that man, and will make him for an example, & for a proverb, & will destroy him out of the midst of my people: & you shall know that I am the Lord. {9} And the Prophet when he shall err,{865} & shall speak a word: I, the Lord have deceived that Prophet: and I will stretch forth my hand upon him, and will raise him out of the midst of my people Israel. {10} And they shall carry their iniquity: according to the iniquity of him that asketh, so shall the iniquity of the Prophet be. {11} That the house of Israel may no more err from me, nor be polluted in all their prevarications: but may be my people, & I may be their God, saith the Lord of hosts. {12} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {13} Son of man, the land when it shall sin to me, that transgressing it transgresseth, I will stretch forth my hand upon it, and will break the rod of the bread thereof: and I will send famine into it, and will kill out of it man and beast. {14} And if these three men shall be in the midst thereof, Noe, Daniel, & Job: they by their justice shall deliver their own souls, saith the Lord of hosts. {15} And if I shall bring most evil beasts also upon the land, to waste it; and it be without passage, for that there is none can pass because of the beasts: {16} These three men if they shall be therein, I live, I, saith our Lord, that they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters: but themselves alone shall be delivered, and the land shall be made desolate. {17} Or if I shall bring the sword in upon that land, and shall say to the sword: Pass through the land: and shall kill out of it man & beast: {18} And these three men shall be in the midst thereof: I live, I, saith our Lord God, they shall not deliver sons nor daughters, but themselves alone shall be delivered. {19} And if I shall send the pestilence also in upon that land, and shall pour out mine indignation upon it in blood, to take away out of it man and beast: {20} And Noe, & Daniel, & Job shall be in the midst thereof: live I, saith our Lord God, that son and daughter they shall not deliver: but themselves by their justice shall deliver their own souls. {21} Because thus saith our Lord: That and if I shall send in upon Jerusalem my four very sore judgements, the sword, and famine, and evil beasts, & the pestilence: to kill out of it man, and beast: {22} Yet shall there be left in it salvation of some bringing out sons, and daughters: behold they shall go forth to you, & you shall see their way, and their inventions: and you shall be comforted upon the evil, that I have brought upon Jerusalem in all things, that I have brought in upon it. {23} And they shall comfort you, when you shall see their way, & their inventions: and you shall know that I have not in vain done all things, which I have done in it, saith our Lord God.

As a vine cut down is profitable to no use, but to burn: 6. so the Jews (and other people) separated from the Church, are to be burned in the fire.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: of the wood of the vine of all the trees of {2} Son of man, what shall be made the woods, that are among the trees of the forests? {3} Shall there be taken wood of it, that a work may be made, or shall a pin be made thereof, that any vessel may hang thereon? {4} Behold it is given to the fire for food: the fire hath consumed both parts thereof, and the midst thereof is brought into ashes: why, shall it be profitable for a work? {5} Yea when it was whole, it was not fit for a work: how much more when the fire hath devoured, and burnt it, shall no work be made thereof? {6} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: As the wood of the vine among the trees of the forests, which I have given to the fire to be devoured, so will I deliver the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {7} And I will set my face against them: out of the fire shall they come forth, and fire shall consume them: and you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall set my face against them, {8} and shall make their land not passable, and desolate, because they have been prevaricators, saith our Lord God.

God by his Prophet setting his benefits 15. and the Jew's wickedness before their eyes. 31. compareth them with other idolaters: 35. and after threatened punishment, 45. with further comparison of other nations, 52. exhorting them to repentance, 60. offereth mercy by a new covenant of Christ's Gospel.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me saying: Jerusalem her abominations: {2} Son of man make known to {3} and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God to Jerusalem: Thy root, and thy generation of the land of Chanaan, thy father an Amorrhite, & thy mother a Cetheite. {4} And when thou wast born, in the day of thy birth thy navel was not cut, and thou wast not washed with water to health, nor salted with salt, nor swaddled in cloths. {5} No eye had mercy on thee to do unto thee one of these things, having pity on thee: but thou wast thrown forth upon the face of the earth in the abjection of thy soul, in the day that thou wast born. {6} And passing by thee I saw thee to be trodden down in thy blood: and I said to thee when thou wast in thy blood: Live. I said to thee, I say: In thy blood live. {7} Multiplied as the spring of the field have I made thee: and thou wast multiplied, & made great, and thou wentest in, and camest to the ornaments of women: thy breasts swelled, and thy hair budded: and thou was naked, and full of confusion. {8} And I passed by thee, and saw thee: and behold thy time, the time of lovers: and I spread my garment over thee, and covered thy ignominy. And I sware to thee, and I entered a covenant with thee, saith our Lord God: and thou wast made mine. {9} And I washed thee with water, and made clean thy blood from off thee: and I anointed thee with oil. {10} And I clothed thee with diverse colours, and shod thee with hyacinth: and I girded thee with silk, and clothed thee with fine garments. {11} And I adorned thee with ornament, and gave bracelets on thy hands, and a chain about thy neck. {12} And I gave a jewel upon thy face, and rings to thine ears, and a crown of beauty on thy head. {13} And thou was adorned with gold, and silver, and wast clothed with silk, and embroidered work, and many colours: thou hast eaten flours, and honey, and oil, and wast made very beautiful exceedingly: and didst prosper to a kingdom. {14} And thy name went forth into the Gentiles, because of thy beauty: because thou wast perfect in my beauty, which I had put upon thee, saith our Lord God. {15} And having confidence in thy beauty thou hast fornicated in thy name: & thou hast laid forth thy fornication to every passenger to be made his. {16} And taking off thy garments thou madest thee idols embroidered on each side: & thou didst fornicate upon them, as hath not been done, nor shall not hereafter. {17} And thou tookest the vessels of thy beauty, of my gold, and my silver, which I gave thee: and thou madest thee images of men, and hast fornicated in them. {18} And thou tookest thy garments of many colours, and coveredst them: and mine oil, and mine incense thou didst put before them. {19} And my bread, which I gave thee, the flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I have nourished thee, thou didst set in their sight for an odour of sweetness, and it was done saith our Lord God. {20} And thou hast taken thy sons, & thy daughters, which thou didst beget to me: and hast immolated the same unto them to devour. Why, is thy fornication small? {21} Thou hast immolated my sons, & hast given them, consecrating them to the idols. {22} And after all thine abominations, & fornications, thou wast not mindful of the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked, & full of confusion, trodden down in thy blood. {23} And it chanced after all thy malice (woe, woe to thee, saith our Lord God) {24} thou didst also build thee a stews, & madest thee a brothel house in all streets. {25} At every head of the way hast thou built a sign of thy prostitution: & hast made thy beauty abominable: & hast divided thy feet to every one that passeth by, and hast multiplied thy fornications. {26} And thou hast fornicated with the children of Aegypt thy neighbours of great flesh, & hast multiplied thy fornication to provoke me. {27} Behold I will stretch out my hand upon thee, & will take away thy justification: & I will give thee into the souls of the daughters of Palestine that hate thee, that are ashamed of thy wicked way. {28} And thou hast committed fornication with the sons of the Assyrians, because neither as yet wast thou filled: & after thou didst fornicate, neither so wast thou satiated. {29} And thou didst multiply thy fornication in the Land of Chanaan with the Chaldees: & neither so wast thou satiated. {30} Wherein shall I cleanse thy heart, saith our Lord God: whereas thou doest all these the works of a woman that is a whore, & malapert? {31} Because thou hast built thy brothel house in the head of every way, & thy excels thou hast made in every street, neither becamest thou as an harlot that by disdain augmenteth the price, {32} but as a woman adulteress, that over her husband bringeth in strangers. {33} To all harlots are rewards given: but thou hast given rewards to all thy lovers, & thou didst give them gifts to come unto thee on every side, to fornicate with thee. {34} And in thee it was done contrary to the custom of women in thy fornications, and after thee there shall be no fornication: for in that thou gavest rewards, and didst not take rewards, it hath been done contrary in thee. {35} Therefore hear, o harlot, the word of our Lord. {36} Thus saith our Lord God: Because thy brass is poured out, & thine ignominy is revealed in thy fornications upon thy lovers, and upon the idols of thine abominations in the blood of thy children, whom thou gavest them: {37} Behold I will gather together all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, & all whom thou hast loved, with all, whom thou didst hate: and I will gather them together upon thee on every side, and will discover thine ignominy before them, and they shall see all thy turpitude. {38} And I will judge thee by the judgements of adulteresses, and them that shed blood: and I will give thee into blood of fury and zeal. {39} And I will give thee into their hands, and they shall destroy thy brothel-house, and throw down thy stews: and they shall turn thee naked out of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy beauty: and shall leave thee naked, and full of ignominy. {40} And they shall bring upon thee a multitude, and they shall stone thee with stones, and shall murder thee with their swords. {41} And they shall burn thy houses with fire, and shall do judgements in thee in the eyes of very many women: and thou shalt cease to fornicate, and shalt give rewards no more. {42} And mine indignation shall rest in thee: and my zeal shall be taken away from thee, and I will cease, and be angry no more. {43} For that thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, and hast provoked me in all these: wherefore I also have given thy ways on thy head, saith our Lord God, & I have not done according to thy wicked deeds in all thine abominations. {44} Behold every one, that speaketh a common proverb, shall take up that against thee, saying: As the mother, so also her daughter. {45} Thou art the daughter of thy mother, which did cast off her husband, & her children: & thou art sister of thy sisters, which did cast off their husbands, and their children: your mother was a Cetheite, and your father an Amorrhite. {46} And thy elder sister, Samaria, she & her daughters, that dwell on thy left hand, & thy sister younger than thou, which dwelleth on thy right hand, Sodom, & her daughters. {47} But neither in their ways has thou walked, nor according to their wicked deeds hast thou done a very little less: thou hast done almost more wicked things than they in all thy ways. {48} Live I, saith our Lord God, that Sodom thy sister her self hath not done, and her daughters, as thou hast done, and thy daughters. {49} Lo this was the iniquity of Sodom thy sister, pride, fullness of bread, and abundance, and the idleness of her, and of her daughters: and they caught not the hand to the needy, and the poor. {50} And they were elevated, and did abominations before me: & I took them away as thou hast seen. {51} And Samaria sinned not the half of thy sins: but thou hast passed them with thy wicked deeds, & hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations, which thou hast wrought. {52} Thou also therefore carry thy confusion, which hast passed thy sisters with thy sins, doing more wickedly than they: for they are justified above thee: thou also therefore be confounded, and bear thine ignominy, which hast justified thy sisters. {53} And I will convert restoring them by the conversion of Sodom with her daughters, and by the conversion of Samaria, and her daughters: and I will convert thy reversion in the midst of them, {54} that thou mayst carry thine ignominy, and mayst be confounded in all things, that thou hast done, comforting them. {55} And thy sister Sodom, and her daughters shall return to their antiquity: and Samaria, and her daughters shall return to their antiquity: and thou, and thy daughters shall return to your antiquity. {56} And Sodom thy sister was not heard in thy mouth, in the day of thy pride, {57} before that thy malice was revealed: as at this time for reproach of the daughters of Syria, & of all the daughters of Palesthine in the circuit of thee, which compass thee round about. {58} Thy wickedness, & thine ignominy thou hast carried, saith our Lord God. {59} Because thus saith our Lord God: And I will do to thee, as thou hast despised the oath, to make the covenant frustrate: {60} and I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth: and I will raise unto thee an everlasting covenant. {61} And thou shalt remember thy ways, & shalt be confounded: when thou shalt receive thy sisters elder than thee with thy younger: and I will give them to thee for daughters, but not by thy covenant. {62} And I will raise up my covenant with thee: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, {63} that thou mayst remember, and be confounded, and mayst no more open thy mouth because of thy confusion, when I shall be pacified toward thee in all that thou hast done, saith our Lord God.

By a parable of two eagles (6. and of a vineyard) is prophesied. 9. that Sedecias being made King by Nabuchodonosor, 15. and rebelling, shall be carried captive, and die in Babylon: 22. with prophecy, that God will plant, and propagate the Church of Christ.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: speech, and tell a parable to the house of {2} Son of man, propose a dark Israel, {3} and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: A great eagle with great wings, with a long reach of members, full of feathers, and of variety, came to Libanus, and took the marrow of the cedar. {4} He plucked away the top of the boughs thereof: and transported it into the Land of Chanaan, in the city of merchants he did put it. {5} And he took of the seed of the land, & put it in the ground for seed, that it might fasten the root over many waters: he planted it in the overmost part of the earth. {6} And when it had budded, it grew into a broad spreading vine of low stature, the boughs thereof looking toward it: and the roots thereof were under it. It became a vine then, and fructified into branches, and put forth shoots. {7} And there was made an other great eagle, with great wings, and many feathers: and behold this vine as it were spreading her roots towards it, stretched forth her branches to it, that she might water it from the beds of her spring. {8} In a good ground upon many waters it was planted, that it might bring forth branches, & bear fruit, that it might be into a great vine. {9} Say: Thus saith our Lord God: shall it prosper then? Shall he not pluck up the roots thereof, & strip off the fruits thereof, dry up all the branches of the spring thereof, & it shall wither: & not in a great arm, nor in much people, to pluck it up by the root? {10} Behold it is planted: shall it prosper them? Shall it not be dried when the burning wind shall touch it, and wither in the beds of the spring thereof? {11} And the word of our Lord was made to me saying: {12} Say to the exasperating house: Know you not what these things do signify? Say: Behold the king of Babylon cometh into Jerusalem: and he shall take the king and the princes thereof, and shall bring them to himself into Babylon. {13} And he shall take of the seed of the kingdom, and shall make a covenant with it, and shall take an oath of it. Yea and he shall take away the strong of the land, {14} that it may be a low kingdom, & not be elevated, but keep his covenant, and observe it. {15} Who revolting from him sent messengers to Aegypt, that it would give him horses, and much people. What, shall he prosper, or get salvation that hath done these things? And he that broke the covenant, shall he escape? {16} Live I, saith our Lord God: that in the place of the king that made him king, whose oath he made frustrate, and brake the covenant, that he had with him, in the midst of Babylon shall he die. {17} And not in a great army, nor in much people shall Pharao make battle against him: in the casting up of a ramper, and in the building of bulwarks, to kill many souls. {18} For he had despised the oath, that he might break the covenant, and behold he gave his hand, & when he hath done all these things, he shall not escape. {19} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Live I, that the oath which he hath despised, and the covenant, that he transgressed, I will lay on his head. {20} And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my net: and I will bring him into Babylon, and will judge him there in the prevarication, whereby he hath despised me. {21} And all his fugitives with all their troop shall fall by the sword: and the residue shall be dispersed into every wind: and you shall know that I, the Lord have spoken. {22} Thus saith our Lord God: And I will take of the marrow of the high cedar, and will set it: of the top of the boughs thereof the tender one I will strip off, and will plant it upon a mountain high and eminent. {23} On the high mountains of Israel will I plant it, and it shall shoot forth into a bud, and shall yield fruit, and it shall be into a great cedar: and all birds, and every fowl shall dwell under the shadow of the boughs thereof, and shall there make their nest. {24} And all the trees of the country shall know, that I, the Lord have humbled the high tree, & exalted the low tree: and have dried the green tree, and have caused the dry tree to spring, I, the Lord have spoken, and have done it.

One shall not bear the sins of an other, but every one their own. 21. If the wicked truly repent, he shall be saved: and if the just leave his justice, he shall be damned.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: turn a parable into this proverb in the land {2} What is that among you, you of Israel, saying: The fathers did eat a sour grape, & the teeth of the children are set on edge? {3} Live I, saith our Lord God, if this parable shall be unto you any more for a proverb in Israel. {4} Behold all souls are mine: as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that shall sin, the same shall die. {5} And a man if he shall be just, and hath done judgement and justice, {6} hath not eaten on the mountains, and not lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel: and hath not violated his neighbour's wife, & approached not to a menstrual woman: {7} and made no man sorrowful: hath restored the pledge to the debtor, taken nothing away by violence: hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with a garment: {8} hath not lent to usury, and not taken more: hath turned away his hand from iniquity, and done true judgement between man & man: {9} hath walked in my precepts, and kept my judgements, to do truth: this man is just, living he shall live, saith our Lord God. {10} And if he hath begotten a son that is a robber shedding blood, and he do one of these things: {11} and that doth not indeed all these things, but eateth on the mountains, and defileth his neighbour's wife: {12} that maketh the needy and poor sorrowful, violently committeth robberies, restoreth not the pledge, & lifteth his eyes to idols, doth abomination: {13} that giveth to usury, & taketh more: what, shall he live? He shall not live. Whereas he hath done all these detestable things, dying he shall die, his blood shall be upon him. {14} But and if he hath begotten a son, that seeing all his father's sins, which he hath done, is afraid, and shall not do the like to them: {15} hath not eaten upon the mountains, & not lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, & hath not violated his neighbour's wife: {16} and hath made no man sorrowful, hath not withheld the pledge, and hath not violently committed robbery, hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with clothing: {17} hath turned away his hand from injury of the poor, hath not taken usury and overplus, hath done my judgements, hath walked in my precepts: this man shall not die in the iniquity of his father, but living he shall live. {18} His father because he did calumniate, and did violence to his brother, and wrought evil in the midst of his people, behold he is dead in his own iniquity. {19} And you say: Why hath not the son borne the iniquity of his father? Verily because the son hath wrought judgement and justice, he hath kept all my precepts, and done them, living he shall live. {20} The soul that shall sin, the same shall die: the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not bear the iniquity of the son: the justice of the just shall be upon him, and the impiety of the impious shall be upon him. {21} But if the impious shall do penance from all his sins, which he hath wrought, and shall keep all my precepts, and do judgement, and justice: living he shall live, and shall not die. {22} All his iniquities, which he hath wrought, I will not remember them: in his justice which he hath wrought, he shall live. {23} Why, is the death of a sinner my will, saith our Lord God, and not that he convert from his ways, and live? {24} But if the just man shall turn away himself from his justice, and do iniquity according to all the abominations, which the impious useth to work, shall he live? All his justices, which he had done, shall not be remembered: in the prevarication, which he hath prevaricated, and in his sin, which he hath sinned, in them he shall die. {25} And you have said: The way of our Lord is not right. Hear ye therefore, o house of Israel: What, is not my way right, and are not rather your ways perverse? {26} For when the just shall turn away himself from his justice, and doth iniquity, he shall die in them: in the injustice, that he hath wrought he shall die. {27} And when the impious shall turn away himself from his impiety, which he hath wrought, and shall do judgement and justice he shall vivificate his soul. {28} For considering, and turning away himself from all his iniquities, which he hath wrought, living he shall live, and not die. {29} And the children of Israel say: The way of our Lord is not right. What, are not my ways right, o house of Israel, and not rather your ways perverse? {30} Therefore will I judge every man according to his ways, o house of Israel, saith our Lord God. Convert, and do penance from all your iniquities: & iniquity shall not be a ruin to you. {31} Cast away from you all your prevarications, wherein you have prevaricated, and make to yourselves a new heart, and a new spirit: and why will you die, o house of Israel? {32} Because I will not the death of him that dieth, saith our Lord God, return ye, and live.

The Israelite's calamity is described by two parables, of lions, 10. and of a vine planted and plucked up.

{1} AND thou take up lamentation upon the Princes of Israel, Why lay thy mother a lioness among the {2} and thou shalt say: lions, in the midst of young lions brought up her whelps? {3} And she brought out one of her young lions, he became a lion: and he learned to catch prey, and to eat man. {4} And the Gentiles heard of him, and not without their wounds they took him: & they brought him in chains into the Land of Aegypt. {5} Who when she saw that she was weakened, and her expectation was lost, she took one of her young lions, she made him a lion. {6} Who went among the lions, & became a lion: and he learned to take prey, & to devour men. {7} He learned to make widows, and to bring their cities into a desert: and the land was made desolate, and the fullness thereof by the voice of his roaring. {8} And the Gentiles came together against him on every side out of the Provinces, and they spread their net upon him, in their wounds he was taken. {9} And they put him into a cave, in chains they brought him to the king of Babylon: and they cast him into prison, that his voice might no more be heard upon the mountains of Israel. {10} Thy mother as it were a vine in thy blood is planted upon the water: her fruit and her branches have grown out of many waters. {11} And there were made to her strong rods for the sceptres of them that rule, and her stature was exalted among the branches: and she saw her height in the multitude of her branches. {12} And she was plucked up in wrath, and cast on the ground: and the burning wind hath dried up her fruit: the rods of her strength are withered, & dried up: fire hath eaten her. {13} And now she is transplanted into the desert, in a land not passable, and dry. {14} And there came forth fire from the rod of her boughs, which hath eaten her fruit: and there was not in her a strong rod, the sceptre of rulers. Lamentation it is, and it shall be into lamentation.

God will not answer the elders of Israel asking by the Prophet, 4. but by him setteth his benefits before their eyes, and their own heinous sins; 30. threatening yet greater punishments: 40. but still mixt with mercy.

{1} AND it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth, the tenth of the month: there came men of the ancients of Israel to ask our Lord, and they sat before me. {2} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {3} Son of man, speak to the ancients of Israel, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Why, are you come to ask me? Live I, that I will not answer you, saith our Lord God. {4} Doest thou judge them, doest thou judge o son of man? Shew to them the abominations of their fathers. {5} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that I chose Israel, and lifted up my hand for the stock of the house of Jacob: and appeared to them in the Land of Aegypt, & lifted up my hand for them, saying: I, the Lord your God: {6} in that day I lifted up my hand for them, that I might bring them out of the Land of Aegypt, into a Land which I had provided for them, flowing with milk & honey, which is excellent among all lands. {7} And I said to them: Let every man cast away the scandals of his eyes, & in the idols of Aegypt be ye not polluted: I, the Lord your God. {8} And they provoked me, & would not hear me: every one did not cast away the abominations of his eyes, neither did they leave the idols of Aegypt: and I said I would pour out mine indignation upon them, and fill my wrath in them, in the midst of the Land of Aegypt. {9} And I did for my name sake, that it might not be violated before the Gentiles, in the midst of whom they were, & among whom I appeared to them to bring them out of the Land of Aegypt. {10} I cast them out therefore of the Land of Aegypt, and brought them forth into the desert. {11} And I gave them my precepts, and I shewed to them my judgements, which a man doing, shall live in them. {12} Moreover also my sabbaths I gave to them, to be a sign between me and them: & that they might know that I am the Lord sanctifying them. {13} And the houses of Israel provoked me in the desert; they walked not in my precepts, and my judgements they rejected, which a man doing shall live in them: & my sabbaths they violated exceedingly. I said therefore I would pour out my fury upon them in the desert, and would consume them. {14} And I did for my name sake, lest it should be violated before the Gentiles, from which I cast them out, in their sight. {15} I therefore lifted up my hand upon them in the desert, not to bring them into the Land, which I gave them flowing with milk and honey, the chief of all lands. {16} Because they rejected my judgements, and walked not in my precepts, and violated my sabbaths: for their heart went after idols. {17} And mine eye was merciful on them, that I killed them not: neither did I consume them in the desert. {18} But I said to their children in the wilderness: In the precepts of your fathers, walk not, neither keep ye their judgments, nor be polluted in their idols: {19} I, the Lord your God: walk ye in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them. {20} And sanctify ye my sabbaths, that they may be a sign between me and you: and ye may know that I am the Lord your God. {21} And the children exasperated me, in my precepts they walked not: and my judgements they kept not, to do them: which when a man shall do, he shall live in them: and they violated my sabbaths: and I threatened to pour out my fury upon them, and to fill my wrath in them in the desert. {22} But I turned away my hand, & did for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the Gentiles, out of which I did cast them forth in their eyes. {23} Again I lifted up my hand upon them in the wilderness, that I might disperse them into nations, and scatter them into lands: {24} for that they had not done my judgements, and had rejected my precepts, and had violated my sabbaths, and their eyes had been after the idols of their fathers. {25} Therefore I also gave them precepts not good, & judgements, in which they shall not live. {26} And I polluted them in their gifts, when they offered all that opened the matrice, for their offences: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {27} Wherefore speak to the house of Israel, o son of man: and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Yet also in this did your fathers blaspheme me, when contemning they had despised me: {28} and I had brought them into the Land, upon which I lifted up my hand to give it them: they saw every high hill, & every woody tree, and there they immolated their victims: and there they gave the irritation of their oblation, and there they put the odour of their sweetness, and offered their libations. {29} And I said to them: What is the excels, unto which you go? & the name thereof was called Excels even to this day. {30} Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Surely in the way of your fathers you are polluted, and after their scandals you do fornicate. {31} And in the oblation of your gifts, when you make your children pass through the fire, you are polluted in all your idols unto this day: and shall I answer you, o house of Israel? Live I, saith our Lord God, that I will not answer you. {32} Neither shall the cogitation of your mind come to pass, saying: We will be as the Gentiles, and as the kindreds of the earth, that we may worship wood, and stones. {33} Live I, saith our Lord God, that in a strong hand, & in a stretched out arm, & in fury poured forth will I reign over you. {34} And I will bring you out of the peoples, and I will gather you out of the lands, in which you are dispersed, in a strong hand, & in a stretched out arm, & in fury poured forth will I reign over you. {35} And I will bring you into the desert of peoples, and will be judged there with you face to face. {36} As I contended in judgement against your fathers in the desert of the Land of Aegypt: so will I judge you, saith our Lord God. {37} And I will subdue you to my sceptre, & will bring you into the bands of covenant. {38} And I will choose out of you the transgressors, and impious, & will bring them out of the land of their sojourning, and into the land of Israel they shall not enter: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {39} And you o house of Israel, Thus saith our Lord God: Walk you every one after your idols, & serve them. But and if in this also you hear me not, and shall pollute my holy name any more in your gifts, & in your idols: {40} in my holy mount, in the high mount of Israel, saith our Lord God, there shall all the house of Israel serve me; all I say in the land, wherein they shall please me, & there will I require your first fruits, and the beginning of your tithes in all your sanctifications. {41} I will receive you for an odour of sweetness, when I shall have brought you out of the peoples, & shall have gathered you out of the lands, into which you are dispersed, & I will be sanctified in you in the eyes of the nations. {42} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have brought you into the land of Israel, into the land for which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers. {43} And there you shall remember your ways, and all your wicked deeds, in which you were polluted: & you shall mislike yourselves in your own sight, in all your malices, which you have done. {44} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have done you good for my name sake, and not according to your evil ways, nor according to your most wicked deeds, o house of Israel, saith our Lord God. {45} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {46} Son of man, set thy face against the way of the south, and drop toward the southern wind, & prophesy to the forest of the southern field. {47} And thou shalt say to the southern forest: Hear the word of our Lord: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will kindle a fire in thee, and will burn in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the flame of the fire shall not be quenched: and every face shall be burned in it, from the South even to the North. {48} And all flesh shall see, that I, the Lord kindled it, neither shall it be quenched. {49} And I said: A a, o Lord God: they say of me: Doth not this man speak by parables?

Destruction of Jerusalem by sword is further described: 10. with translation of the Kingdom. 28. The ruin also of the Ammonites is foreshewed. 30. And finally Babylon, the destroyer of others, shall be destroyed.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Jerusalem, and drop to the sanctuaries, {2} Son of man set thy face to and prophesy against the ground of Israel: {3} And thou shalt say to the land of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee, and I will draw forth my sword out of his scabbard, and will kill in thee the just, and the impious. {4} And for that I have killed in thee the just, and the impious, therefore shall my sword go forth out of his scabbard to all flesh, from the South even to the North. {5} That all flesh may know that I, the Lord have drawn my sword out of his scabbard not to be revoked. {6} And thou son of man, mourn in contrition of the loins, and in bitterness mourn before them. {7} And when they shall say to thee: Why mournest thou? Thou shalt say: For the bruit: because it cometh, and every heart shall melt, & all hands shall be dissolved, and every spirit shall be weakened, and waters shall run by all knees: behold it cometh, and it shall be done, saith our Lord God. {8} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {9} Son of man prophesy, and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Speak: The sword, the sword is sharpened, and furbished. {10} To kill victims it is sharpened, to glitter it is furbished: thou that movest the sceptre of my son, hast cut down every tree. {11} And I gave it to be made smooth, that it may be held with the hand: this is a sharpened sword, and this is furbished, that it may be in the hand of the slayer. {12} Cry, and howl, o son of man, because this same is made in my people, in all the captains of Israel, that fled: they are delivered to the sword with my people, therefore strike upon the thigh, {13} Because it is proved: and that, when it shall overthrow the sceptre, it shall not be, saith our Lord God. {14} Thou therefore o son of man prophesy, and strike hand against hand, and let the sword be doubled, & let the sword of the slain be tripled: this is the sword of great slaughter, that maketh them to be astonished, {15} and to pine in heart, & multiplieth ruins. In all their gates have I given the trouble of the sword sharp and furbished to glitter, addressed to slaughter. {16} Be thou sharpened, go to the right hand, or to the left, whithersoever the appetite of thy face is. {17} Yea and I will clap hand to hand, and will fill mine indignation: I, the Lord have spoken. {18} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {19} And thou son of man, put thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon may come: both shall come forth out of one land: and he shall take conjecture with the hand, in the head of the way of the city shall he choose it. {20} Thou shalt make way that the sword may come to Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and to Juda into Jerusalem most fenced. {21} For the king of Babylon stood in the high way, in the head of two ways, seeking divination, shuffling arrows: he asked the idols, and took counsel of entrails. {22} On his right hand was made divination upon Jerusalem, to set engines to open the mouth in slaughter, to elevate the voice in howling, to set engines against the gates, to cast up a rampier, to build munitions. {23} And he shall be as it were consulting the oracle in vain in their eyes, and imitating the rest of sabbaths: but he shall remember the iniquity to take it. {24} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that you have remembered your iniquity, and have revealed your prevarications, and your sins have appeared in all your cogitations: for that, I say, that you remembered, you shall be taken by hand. {25} But thou profane, impious prince of Israel, whose day prefixed cometh in the time of iniquity: {26} Thus saith our Lord God: Take away the mitre, take off the crown: is not this it, that extolled the humble, and humbled the high? {27} Iniquity, iniquity will I put it, and this was not done, till he came to whom judgement belongeth, and I will deliver it to him. {28} And thou son of man prophesy, and say: Thus saith our Lord God to the children of Ammon, and to their reproach, and thou shalt say: Sword, sword draw out thy self to kill, furbish thy self to slay, and to glitter. {29} When vain things were seen for thee, and lies were divined: that thou mightest be given upon the necks of the wounded impious, whose day prefixed cometh in the time of iniquity. {30} Return to thy scabbard, in the place wherein thou wast created, in the land of thy nativity I will judge thee, {31} and will pour out upon thee mine indignation: in the fire of my fury will I blow upon thee, and will give thee into the hands of men unwise, and framing destruction. {32} Thou shalt be food for the fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of the land, thou shalt be forgotten: because I, the Lord have spoken.

For diverse enormous sins, 14. Jerusalem, and all Israel shall be plagued: 56. namely false Prophets, Priests, ravening Princes, and wicked people.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: not judge, doest thou not judge the city of {2} And thou son of man doest thou blood? {3} And thou shall shew her all her abominations, & shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: The city shedding blood in the midst of it, that her time may come: & that hath made idols against her self, that she might be polluted. {4} In thy blood, which is shed by thee, thou hast offended: and in thine idols, which thou hast made, thou art polluted: and thou hast made thy days to approach, and hast brought the time of thy years: therefore have I given thee a reproach to the Gentiles, and a mockery to all lands. {5} Those that are near, and that are far from thee, shall triumph over thee: thou filthy one, noble, great in destruction. {6} Behold the princes of Israel, every one in his arm, have been in thee, to shed blood. {7} Father and mother they have abused with contumelies in thee, the stranger they have calumniated in the midst of thee, the pupil and widow they have made sorrowful in thee. {8} My sanctuaries you have despised, and my sabbaths you have polluted. {9} Detracting men have been in thee to shed blood, and upon the mountains they have eaten in thee, they have wrought wickedness in the midst of thee. {10} The father's shame they have discovered in thee, the uncleanness of the menstrual woman they have humbled in thee. {11} And every one hath wrought abomination upon his neighbour's wife, and the father in law hath polluted his daughter in law wickedly, the brother hath oppressed his sister the daughter of his father in thee. {12} They have taken gifts in thee to shed blood: thou hast taken usury and overplus, and didst calumniate thy neighbours covetously: and thou hast forgotten me, saith our Lord God. {13} Behold, I have wrung my hands upon thy covetousness, which thou hast done, & upon the blood that hath been shed in the midst of thee. {14} Why, shall thy heart abide, or shall thy hands prevail in the days, which I shall make to thee?

I,{875} the Lord have spoken, and will do it. {15} And I will disperse thee into nations, & will scatter thee into lands, and will make thy uncleanness to fail from thee. {16} And I will possess thee in the sight of the Gentiles, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. {17} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {18} Son of man, the house of Israel is turned into dross to me: all these are become brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, and dross of silver, in the midst of the furnace. {19} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you are all turned into dross, therefore behold I will gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem, {20} with the gathering of silver, and brass, and tin, & iron, and lead, in the midst of a furnace: that I may kindle a fire in it to melt it: so will I gather you together in my fury, and in my wrath, and will rest: and I will melt you. {21} And I will gather you together, and will set you on fire, in the fire of my fury, and you shall be melted in the midst thereof. {22} As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall you be in the midst thereof: & you shall know that I am the Lord, when I have poured out mine indignation upon you. {23} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {24} Son of man, say to it: Thou art an unclean land, and not rained upon in the day of fury. {25} A conspiracy of Prophets in the midst thereof: as a lion roaring, and ravening the prey, have they devoured souls, they have taken the riches and the price, her widows they have multiplied in the midst thereof. {26} Her Priests have contemned my law, and have polluted my sanctuaries: between a holy thing and profane they have put no difference: and between the polluted and the clean they understood not: and from my sabbaths they have turned away their eyes, and I was defiled in the midst of them. {27} Her princes in the midst of her, as wolves ravening the prey to shed blood, and to destroy souls, and to pursue gains covetously. {28} And her Prophets daubed them without tempering, seeing vain things, & divining lies to them, saying: Thus saith our Lord God: whereas our Lord hath not spoken. {29} The people of the land they oppressed by calumny, and took away violently: the needy and poor they afflicted, and the stranger they oppressed by calumny without judgement. {30} And I sought of them a man that might interpose an hedge, and stand opposite against me for the land, that I might not destroy it: and I found not. {31} And I poured out mine indignation upon them, in the fire of my wrath I consumed them: I have rendered their way upon their head, saith our Lord God.

By a parable of two harlots, Oolla and Ooliba, 5. the idolatry of the two Kingdoms of Israel 11. and of Juda is described: 22. with threats (31. as Israel is partly afflicted already) 30. of more affliction to them both.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: women daughters of one mother. {2} Son of man, there were two {3} And they fornicated in Aegypt, in their youth they fornicated: there were their breasts pressed, and the paps of their virginity were broken. {4} And their names Oolla the elder, and Ooliba her younger sister: and I had them, & they bare sons, and daughters. Moreover their names, Samaria Oolla, and Jerusalem Ooliba. {5} Oolla therefore fornicated over me, and was mad upon her lovers, upon the Assyrians approaching, {6} clothed with hyacinth, the princes, and the magistrates, all the young men of concupiscences, all the horsemen, the riders of horses. {7} And she gave her fornications upon them all the chosen children of the Assyrians: and in all, on whom she was mad, in their uncleanness she was polluted. {8} Moreover also her fornications, which she had made in Aegypt she left not: for they also slept with her in her youth, and they brake the breasts of her virginity, and poured out their fornication upon her. {9} Therefore have I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the children of Assur, upon whose lust she was mad. {10} They discovered her ignominy, took her sons and daughters, and her they killed with the sword: and they were made notorious women, and they did judgements in her.

{11} Which when her sister Ooliba had seen, she was mad with lust more than she: and she gave impudently her fornication above the fornication of her sister {12} to the children of the Assyrians, to the princes, and magistrates coming to her clothed with party clothing, to the horsemen that were carried on horses, and to young men all of goodly beauty. {13} And I saw that she was polluted, both one way. {14} And she increased her fornication: and when she had seen men painted in a wall, the images of the Chaldees expressed in colours, {15} and girded with girdles about their reins, and dyed turbans on their heads, the form of all the dukes, the similitude of the children of Babylon, and of the land of the Chaldees, wherein they were born, {16} she was mad upon them with the concupiscence of her eyes, & she sent messengers to them into Chaldee. {17} And when the children of Babylon were come to her unto the bed of paps, they polluted her with their fornications, and she was polluted of them, and her soul was filled of them. {18} She revealed also her fornications, & discovered her ignominy: & my soul departed from her, as my soul departed from her sister. {19} For she hath multiplied her fornications, remembering the days of her youth, in which she fornicated in the land of Aegypt. {20} And she was mad for lust upon the lying with them, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses: and as the flux of horses, their flux. {21} And thou hast visited the wickedness of thy youth when thy breasts were pressed in Aegypt, & the paps of thy virginity broken. {22} Therefore Ooliba, thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will raise up all thy lovers against thee, of whom thy soul is filled: & I will gather them together against thee round about, {23} the children of Babylon, & all the Chaldees, the nobles, & the tyrants, & princes, all the children of the Assyrians, the young men of goodly beauty, all the captains, & magistrates, the princes of princes, & the renowned riders of horses. {24} And they shall come upon thee well appointed with chariot, & wheel, a multitude of peoples: with brigantine, and buckler, and helmet they shall be armed against thee on every side: and I will give judgement before them, and they shall judge thee by their judgements. {25} And I will put my zeal in thee, which they exercise with thee in fury: thy nose and thine ears they shall cut off: & the things that remain shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons, and thy daughters, and thy very last thing shall be devoured with fire. {26} And they shall strip thee of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy glory. {27} And I will make thy wickedness to cease out of thee, and thy fornication out of the Land of Aegypt: neither shalt thou lift up thine eyes to them, & Aegypt thou shalt remember no more. {28} Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will deliver thee into the hands of them, whom thou hatest, into their hands, of whom thy soul is filled. {29} And they shall deal with thee in hatred, and they shall take away all thy labours, & shall let thee go naked, and full of ignominy, and the ignominy of thy fornications shall be revealed, thy wicked deed, and thy fornications. {30} They have done these things to thee, because thou hast fornicated after the Nations, among which thou wast polluted in their idols. {31} Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister, and I will give her cup in thy hand. {32} Thus saith our Lord God: The cup of thy sister thou shalt drink deep, and wide: thou shalt be into derision & into scorn, which is most capable. {33} With drunkenness and sorrow thou shall be replenished: with the cup of pensiveness, and sadness, with the cup of thy sister Samaria. {34} And thou shalt drink it, and shalt drink it up even to the dregs, and the fragments thereof thou shalt devour, thou shalt rent thy breasts: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God: {35} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because thou hast forgotten me, and hast cast me off behind thy body, thou also bear thy wickedness, and thy fornications. {36} And our Lord spake to me, saying: Son of man, doest thou judge Oolla, and Ooliba, and shewest thou them their wicked deeds? {37} because they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and with their idols they have fornicated: moreover also their children, whom they begat for me, they have offered unto them to be devoured. {38} Yea and they have done this to me. They polluted my sanctuary in that day, & profaned my sabbaths. {39} And when they immolated their children to their idols, and went into my sanctuary in that day to pollute it: these things also they did in the midst of my house. {40} They sent to men coming from far, to whom they had sent a messenger: therefore lo they came: to whom thou didst wash thyself, and didst anoint thine eyes about with stibic stone, and wast adorned with women's ornaments. {41} Thou satest in a very fair bed, and a table was decked before thee: mine incense, and mine ointment thou didst set upon it. {42} And the voice of a multitude rejoicing was on it: and on the men, that were brought of the multitude of men, and came from the desert, they did put bracelets on their hands, and beautiful crowns on their heads. {43} And I said to her, that was worn in adulteries: Now will this woman also fornicate in her fornication. {44} And they went to her as to an harlot woman: so went unto Oolla, and Ooliba wicked women. {45} They therefore are just men: these shall judge them with the judgement of adulteresses, and with the judgement of blood-shedders: because they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands. {46} For thus saith our Lord God: Bring a multitude to them, and deliver them into tumult, and into spoil: {47} and let them be stoned with the stones of peoples, and let them be thrust through with their swords: they shall kill their sons, and daughters, and their houses they shall burn with fire. {48} And I will take away the wickedness out of the land, and all women shall learn, not to do according to the wickedness of them. {49} And they shall give your wickedness upon you, and the sins of your idols you shall carry: and you shall know that I am the Lord God.

Jerusalem many ways chastised of God, and not amended, 11. shall at last be melted like a brass pot: 15. and shall not dare to mourn for the death of her dearest.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me in the ninth year, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, saying: {2} Son of man, write thee the name of this day, wherein the king of Babylon is confirmed against Jerusalem to day. {3} And thou shalt speak by a proverb to the exasperating house a parable, & shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Set thou a pot, set it, I say, and put water into it. {4} Heap together the pieces thereof into it, every good part, the thigh and the shoulder, the chosen things and full of bones. {5} Take the fattest beast, and lay together piles of bones also under it: the seething thereof is boiling hot, and the bones thereof are throughly sodden in the midst thereof. {6} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, to the pot, whose rustiness is in it, and the rustiness thereof is not gone out of it: by her parts and by her parts cast her out, there hath no lot fallen upon her. {7} For her blood is in the midst of her, she hath shed it upon the most clear rock: she shed it not upon the ground, that it might be covered with dust. {8} That I might bring mine indignation in upon her, and might revenge with vengeance: I gave her blood upon the most clear rock, that it might not be covered. {9} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, whose bonefire I will make great. {10} Heap together the bones, which I will burn with fire: the flesh shall be consumed, and all the composition shall be sod, and the bones shall dry away. {11} Set it also upon hot burning coals empty, that the brass thereof may wax hot, and be melted: and let the filth of it be melted in the midst thereof, and let the rust thereof be consumed. {12} There hath been sweating with much labour, & the exceeding rust thereof is not gone out, no not by fire. {13} Thine uncleanness is execrable: because I would cleanse thee, and thou art not cleansed from thy filthiness: yea neither shalt thou be cleansed, before I make mine indignation to cease in thee. {14} I, the Lord have spoken: It shall come, and I will do it: I will not pass, nor spare, nor be pacified: according to thy ways, and according to thine inventions will I judge thee, saith our Lord. {15} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {16} Son of man, behold I take from thee the thing that thine eyes desire in a plague: and thou shalt not lament, nor weep: neither shall thy tears run. {17} Sigh holding thy peace, thou shalt not make the mourning of the dead: let thy crown be tied round about thee, and thy shoes shall be on thy feet, neither shalt thou cover thy face with a cloth, neither shalt thou eat the meats of mourners. {18} I spake therefore to the people in the morning, and my wife died at even: and I did in the morning as he had commanded me. {19} And the people said to me: Why doest thou not tell us what these things signify, that thou doest? {20} And I said to them: The word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {21} Speak to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will pollute my sanctuary, the pride of your empire, and the thing that your eyes desire, and upon which your soul quaketh for fear: your sons, and your daughters, which you have left, shall fall by the sword. {22} And you shall do as I have done: your faces with a cloth you shall not cover, and the meats of mourners you shall not eat. {23} You shall have crowns on your heads, & shoes on your feet: you shall not lament nor weep, but you shall pine away in your iniquities, and every one shall groan toward his brother. {24} And Ezechiel shall be unto you for a portending sign: according to all things, that he hath done, shall you do when this shall come: & you shall know that I am the Lord God. {25} And thou son of man, behold in the day, wherein I will take away from them their strength, and the joy of dignity, and the desire of their eyes, whereupon their souls rest, their sons and daughters. {26} In that day when one flying shall come to thee, to tell thee: {27} in that day, I say, shall thy mouth be opened with him that flyeth, and thou shalt speak, and shalt be silent no more: and thou shalt be unto them for a portending sign, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

The Ammonites, 8. Moabites, 12. Idumeans, 15. and Philistians (for their malice against the Israelites) shall be overthrown.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: the children of Ammon, & thou shalt {2} Son of man, set thy face against prophesy of them. {3} And thou shalt say to the children of Ammon: Hear ye the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God: For that thou hast said: Ha, ha, upon my sanctuary, because it is polluted: and upon the Land of Israel, because it is made desolate: and upon the house of Juda, because they are led into captivity: {4} Therefore will I deliver thee to the children of the east for an inheritance, and they shall place their sheepcotes in thee, and shall set their tents in thee: they shall eat thy fruits: and they shall drink thy milk. {5} And I will give Rabbath to be an habitation of camels, and the children of Ammon to be a lying place for beasts: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {6} Because thus saith our Lord God: For that thou hast clapped with the hand, and stricken with the foot, and hast been glad with all thy affection upon the land of Israel: {7} therefore behold I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, and will deliver thee into the spoil of the Gentiles, and will kill thee out of the peoples, and destroy thee out of the lands, and break thee: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. {8} Thus saith our Lord God: For that Moab, and Seir have said: Behold as all the Gentiles, so is the house of Juda: {9} therefore behold I will open the shoulder of Moab of his cities, of his cities I say, and of his borders the noble cities of the land Bethiesimoth, and Beelmeon, and Cariathaim, {879} {10} to the children of the East with the children of Ammon, & I will give it for an inheritance: that there may be memory no more of the children of Ammon among the Gentiles. {11} And in Moab I will do judgements: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {12} Thus saith our Lord God: For that Idumea hath made revenge to revenge herself of the children of Juda, and hath sinned offending, & hath sought revenge of them, {13} therefore thus saith our Lord God: I will stretch forth my hand upon Idumea, and will take away out of it man, and beast, and will make it desert from the South: and they that are in Dedan, shall fall by the sword. {14} And I will give my revenge upon Idumea by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to my wrath, and my fury: and they shall know my vengeance, saith our Lord God. {15} Thus saith our Lord God: For that the Palestines have made revenge, and have revenged themselves with all their mind, killing, and accomplishing old enmities: {16} therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will stretch forth my hand upon the Palestines, and will kill the killers, and will destroy the remnant of the sea coast, {17} and I will make in them great revengements arguing in fury: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have given my vengeance upon them.

Tyre a most noble maritime city shall be destroyed, by the King of Babylon, because they rejoice at the desolation of Jerusalem, 15. At the sight whereof many shall be astonished.

{1} AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {2} Son of man for that Tyre hath said of Jerusalem: Ah the gates of the peoples are broken, she is turned to me: I shall be filled, she is desert. {3} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I upon thee o Tyre, and I will make many nations come up to thee, as the sea riseth up swelling. {4} And they shall dissipate the walls of Tyre, and shall destroy the towers thereof: and I will scrape her dust from her, and will make her as a most clear rock. {5} The drying of nets shall be in the midst of the sea, because I have spoken, saith our Lord God: and she shall be for a spoil to the Gentiles. {6} Her daughters also that be in the field, shall be slain by the sword: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {7} Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will bring to Tyre Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon from the North, the king of kings with horses, & chariots, and horsemen, and multitude, & a great people. {8} Thy daughters that are in the field, he shall kill with the sword: & he shall compass thee with munitions, and shall cast up a mount round about: and he shall lift up the buckler against thee. {9} And he shall dispose ordinances, and engines against thy walls, and shall destroy thy towers with his armour. {10} With the inundation of his horses, the dust of them shall cover thee: at the sound of the horsemen, and wheels, and chariots thy walls shall be moved, when he shall go in at thy gates, as by the entrance of a city destroyed. {11} With the hoofs of his horses he shall tread down all thy streets: thy people he shall kill with the sword, and thy noble statues shall fall to the ground. {12} They shall waste thy riches, they shall spoil thy merchandise: and they shall destroy thy walls, and shall overthrow thy goodly houses: and thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust they shall put in the midst of the waters. {13} And I will make the multitude of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thy harps shall be heard no more. {14} And I will make thee as a most clear rock, drying of nets shall thou be, neither shalt thou be built any more: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. {15} Thus saith our Lord God to Tyre: Why, shall not the islands be moved at the sound of thy ruin, and the groaning of thy slain when they shall be killed in the midst of thee? {16} And all the Princes of the sea shall go down from their seats: and take off their robes, and cast away their broidered garments, and be clothed with astonishment, sit on the earth, {880} and being astonished marvel at thy sudden fall. {17} And taking upon thee a lamentation, they shall say to thee: How hast thou perished that dwellest in the sea, o noble city, which hast been strong in the sea with thine inhabitants, whom all did fear? {18} Now shall the ships be astonished in the day of thy fear: and the islands in the sea shall be troubled, for that none cometh forth out of thee. {19} Because thus saith our Lord God: When I shall make thee a desolate city as the cities that are not inhabited: and shall bring upon thee the depth, & many waters shall cover thee: {20} and shall pluck thee down with those, that descend into the lake to the everlasting people, and shall place thee in the lowest ground as old desolations, with them that are brought down into the lake, that thou be not inhabited: moreover when I shall give glory in the land of the living, {21} I will bring thee to nothing, & thou shalt not be, and being sought for, thou shalt not be found any more for ever, saith our Lord God.

The Prophet lamenteth the ruin of Tyre: 3. describing her former glories 10. and traffic in all sorts of rich merchandise, with sundry nations. 26. All which shall be overthrown by the Chaldees.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: take up a lamentation upon Tyre: {2} Thou therefore o son of man, {3} And thou shalt say to Tyre, which dwelleth in the entrance of the sea, being the traffic of peoples to many islands: Thus saith our Lord God: o Tyre, thou hast said: I am of perfect beauty, {4} & situated in the heart of the sea. Thy borderers, which builded thee have accomplished thy beauty: {5} with the fir trees of Sanir they builded thee, with all the boards of the sea: they took the cedar from Libanus, to make thee a mast. {6} Oaks of Basan they have hewed for thine oars: & thy banks they have made thee of the ivory of India, and little cabins of the islands of Italy. {7} Various silk of Aegypt was woven for thy sail, to be put on the mast: hyacinth, and purple out of the islands of Elisa, were made thy covering. {8} The inhabitants of Sidon, and the Aradians were thy rowers: thy wise men, o Tyre, were made thy governors. {9} The ancients of Gebal, & wisemen thereof had mariners to the service of thy diverse stuff: all the ships of the sea, and their mariners have been in the people of thy traffic. {10} The Persians, and Lydians, and the Lybians were in thine army thy men of war: the buckler, and helmet they did hang in thee for thine ornament. {11} The children of Arad were with thine army upon thy walls round about: yea and the Pygmeians, that were in the towers, hung up their quivers on thy walls round about: they accomplished thy beauty. {12} They of Carthage thy merchants, for the multitude of all riches, with silver, iron, tin, and lead did they replenish thy marts. {13} Greece, Thubal, and Mosoch, they were thy merchants: slaves, and vessels of brass they brought to thy people. {14} From the house of Thogorma they brought horses, and horsemen, and mules to thy market. {15} The children of Dedan were thy merchants: many islands the traffic of thy hand, teeth of ivory, and of Heben they exchanged for thy price. {16} The Syrian was thy merchant for the multitude of thy works, the precious stone, and purple, and branched works, and fine linen, and silk, and chodchod they did set forth in thy market. {17} Juda and the land of Israel they were thy merchants in the principal corn: balm, and honey, and oil, and resin they did set forth in thy marts. {18} The Damacene was thy merchant in the multitude of thy works, in the multitude of diverse riches, in fat wine, in wools of the best colour. {19} Dan, and Greece, and Mosel in thy marts have set forth wrought iron: stacte, and calamus were in thy merchandise. {20} Dedan thy merchants in tapestry for seats. {21} Arabia, and all the Princes of Cedar, they were the merchants of thy hand: with lambs, and rams, and kids thy merchants came to thee. {22} The sellers of Saba, and Reema, they were thy merchants: with principal splices, and precious stone, and gold, which they did set forth in thy market. {23} Haran, and Chene, and Eden, thy merchants: Saba, Assur, and Chelmad thy sellers. {24} They were thy merchants in diverse manner, with folded pieces of hyacinth, and of embroidered cloths, and of precious riches, which were wrapped up, and bound with cords: cedars also they had in thy merchandise. {25} The ships of the sea, thy chief in thy merchandise: and thou was replenished, and glorified exceedingly in the heart of the sea. {26} In many waters have thy rowers brought thee: the southwind hath broken thee in the heart of the sea. {27} Thy riches, and thy treasures, and thy manifold furniture, thy mariners, and thy governors, which hold thy stuff, and were chief over thy people: thy men of war also, that were in thee with all thy multitude, that is in the midst of thee: shall fall in the heart of the sea in the day of thy ruin. {28} At the sound of the cry of thy governors shall the navies be troubled. {29} And all they that held oar shall go down out of their ships: the mariners, and all the governors of the sea shall stand on the land: {30} and they shall bewail upon thee with a loud voice, and shall cry bitterly: and they shall cast dust upon their heads, and shall be sprinkled with ashes. {31} And they shall shave baldness upon thee, and shall be girded with haircloths: and they shall weep for thee in bitterness of soul with most bitter weeping. {32} And they shall take up a mournful song upon thee, and shall lament thee: What city is as Tyre, which is become silent in the midst of the sea? {33} Which in the going forth of thy merchandise from the sea didst fill many peoples: in the multitude of thy riches, and of thy peoples hast enriched the kings of the earth. {34} Now thou art destroyed by the sea, thy riches are in the bottom of the waters, and all the multitude, that was in the midst of thee, are fallen. {35} All the inhabitants of the islands are astonished upon thee: & all the kings of the same being striken with tempest have changed their looks. {36} The merchants of peoples have hissed upon thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt not be even for ever.

For most insolent pride Tyre shall be utterly destroyed. 20. Sidon likewise overthrown. 24. And the people of Israel at last restored.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Tyre: Thus saith our Lord God: For that thy {2} Son of man say to the Prince of heart is elevated, and thou hast said: I am God, and I have sitten in the chair of God in the heart of the sea: whereas thou art a man, and not God: and hast given thy heart as the heart of God. {3} Lo thou art wiser than Daniel: every secret is not hid from thee. {4} In thy wisdom and thy prudence thou hast made thee strength: and hast gotten gold, and silver in thy treasures. {5} In the multitude of thy wisdom, & in thy merchandise thou hast multiplied strength to thee: and thy heart is elevated in thy strength. {6} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that thy heart is elevated as the heart of God: {7} therefore behold I will bring upon thee strangers, the strongest of the Gentiles: and they shall draw their swords upon the beauty of thy wisdom, and shall pollute thy comeliness. {8} They shall kill, and pluck thee down: and thou shalt die in the death of the slain in the heart of the sea. {9} Why, shalt thou speak saying: I am God, before them that kill thee: whereas thou art a man, and not God, in the hand of them that slay thee? {10} By the death of the uncircumcised shalt thou die in the hand of strangers: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. {11} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Son of man lift up a lamentation upon the king of Tyre: {12} and thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord God: Thou the signet of similitude, full of wisdom, and perfect of beauty, {13} thou wast in the delicacies of the paradise of God: every precious stone thy covering: sardius, topatius, and the jasper, chrysolithus, and onyx, and berillus, the sapphire, and the carbuncle, and the emerald: gold the work of thy beauty: & thy pipes were prepared in the day, that thou wast created. {14} Thou Cherub stretched out, and protecting, and I set thee in the holy mount of God, in the midst of fiery stones thou hast walked. {15} Perfect in thy ways from the day of thy creation, until iniquity was found in thee. {16} In the multitude of thy merchandise, thine inner parts were filled with iniquity, and thou didst sin: and I cast thee out from the mount of God, and destroyed thee o Cherub protecting, out of the midst of the fiery stones. {17} And thy heart was elevated in thy beauty: thou hast lost thy wisdom in thy beauty, I have cast thee to the earth: before the face of kings I have given thee, that they might behold thee. {18} In the multitude of thine iniquities, and in the iniquity of thy merchandise, thou hast polluted thy sanctification: I will therefore bring forth a fire out of the midst of thee, to eat thee, and I will make thee as ashes upon the earth in the sight of all that see thee. {19} All that shall see thee in the Gentiles, shall be astonished upon thee: thou art become a thing of naught, and thou shalt not be for ever. {20} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {21} Son of man, set thy face against Sidon: and thou shalt prophesy of it, {22} and shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Sidon, and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall do judgements in it, and shall be sanctified in it. {23} And I will send into it pestilence, and blood in the streets thereof: and the slain shall fall in the midst thereof by the sword round about: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {24} And there shall be no more scandal of bitterness to the house of Israel, & thorn causing pain on every side round about them that are against them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God. {25} Thus saith our Lord God: When I shall have gathered together the house of Israel out of the peoples, in which they are dispersed: I will be sanctified in them before the Gentiles: and they shall dwell in their land, which I gave to my servant Jacob. {26} And they shall dwell therein secure, and they shall build houses, and shall plant vineyards, & shall dwell confidently, when I shall have done judgements in all, that are their enemies round about: and they shall know that I am the Lord their God.

The King of Aegypt shall be overthrown: 9. and the Kingdom wasted forty years: It shall be repaired to a mean state. 17. And shall be given to the King of Babylon, for his service in destroying Tyre.

{1} IN the tenth year, the tenth month, the eleventh day of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {2} Son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh the king of Aegypt: and thou shalt prophesy of him, & of all Aegypt. {3} Speak, and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Pharaoh king of Aegypt, thou great dragon, which liest in the midst of thy rivers, & sayest: The river is mine, & I made it my self. {4} And I will put a bridle in thy jaws: and I will fasten the fishes of thy rivers to thy scales: and I will draw thee out of the midst of the rivers, and all thy fishes shall stick to thy scales. {5} And I will cast thee forth into the desert, and all the fishes of thy river: thou shalt fall upon the face of the earth, thou shalt not be collected, nor gathered together: to the beasts of the earth, and to the fowls of the heaven have I given thee to be devoured. {6} And all the inhabitants of Aegypt shall know that I am the Lord: for that thou hast been a staff of reed to the house of Israel. {7} When they took thee with the hand, & thou wast broken, and didst rent all their shoulder: and they leaning upon thee, thou was broken, and didst dissolve all their reins. {8} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will bring upon thee the sword: and will kill out of thee man, & beast. {9} And the Land of Aegypt shall be into a desert, and into a wilderness: & they shall know that I am the Lord: for that thou hast said: The river is mine, & I made it. {10} Therefore behold I to thee, and to thy rivers: and I will give the Land of Aegypt into desolations, destroyed with the sword, from the tower of Syene, even to the borders of Aethiopia. {11} The foot of men shall not pass through it, neither shall the foot of beast go in it: & it shall not be inhabited forty years. {12} And I will make the Land of Aegypt desert in the midst of desert lands, & the cities thereof in the midst of cities overthrown, and they shall be desolate forty years: & I will disperse the Aegyptians into nations, and will scatter them into the lands. {13} Because thus saith our Lord God: After the end of forty years I will gather Aegypt out of the peoples in which they had been dispersed. {14} And I will bring back the captivity of Aegypt, & will place them in the land of Phatures, in the land of their nativity, and they shall be there as a low kingdom: {15} among other kingdoms it shall be lowest, and it shall no more be elevated over the nations, and I will diminish them that they rule not over the Gentiles. {16} And they shall no more be to the house of Israel in confidence, teaching iniquity, that they may fly, and follow them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God. {17} And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first, in the first of the month: the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {18} Son of man, Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath made his army to serve with great service against Tyre: every head made bald, and every shoulder hath the hair plucked off: and there hath been no reward rendered him, nor his army concerning Tyre, for the service that he served me against it. {19} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will give Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon in the land of Aegypt: & he shall take the multitude thereof, and take the booties thereof for a prey, and rifle the spoils thereof: & it shall be a reward for his army, {20} and for the work, that he served me against it: I have given him the land of Aegypt, for that they have laboured for me, saith our Lord God. {21} In that day there shall a horn spring to the house of Israel, & I will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Aegypt shall be so wasted, 5. that Aethiopia, and other neighbours shall tremble; 9. seeing the cities and country destroyed. 20. All which is confirmed again by an other vision.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Thus saith our Lord God: Howl ye, woe, {2} Son of man prophesy, and say: woe to the day: {3} because the day is near, and the day of our Lord approacheth: the day of a cloud, the time of the Gentiles shall be. {4} And the sword shall come into Aegypt: & there shall be fear in Aethiopia, when the wounded shall fall in Aegypt, & the multitude thereof shall be taken away, and the foundations thereof be destroyed. {5} Aethiopia, and Libia, and the Lydians, and all the rest of the common people, and Chub, and the children of the land of covenant, shall fall with them by the sword. {6} Thus saith our Lord God: And they shall fall that underprop Aegypt, and the pride of the empire thereof shall be destroyed: from the tower of Siena shall they fall in it by the sword, saith our Lord the God of hosts. {7} And they shall be dissipated in the midst of desolate lands, and the cities thereof shall be in the midst of desert cities. {8} And they shall know that I am the Lord: when I shall have given fire in Aegypt, and all the aiders thereof shall be broken. {9} In that day shall messengers go forth from my face in galleys to terrify the confidence of Aethiopia, and there shall be fear among them in the day of Aegypt: because it shall come without doubt. {10} Thus saith our Lord God: I will make the multitude of Aegypt to cease in the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon. {11} He and his people with him the strongest of the Gentiles shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords upon Aegypt: and shall fill the land with the slain. {12} And I will make the channels of the rivers dry, and will deliver the land into the hands of the most wicked: and will dissipate the land and the fullness thereof in the hands of aliens, I, the Lord have spoken. {13} Thus saith our Lord God: And I will destroy the idols, and I will make the idols to cease out of Memphis: and duke of the land of Aegypt there shall be no more: and I will give terror in the land of Aegypt. {14} And I will destroy the land of Phathures, and will give fire in Taphnis, and will do judgements in Alexandria. {15} And I will pour out mine indignation upon Pelusium the strength of Aegypt, and will kill the multitude of Alexandria, {16} And will give fire in Aegypt: as a woman in travail shall Pelusium sorrow, and Alexandria shall be dissipated, and in Memphis daily distresses. {17} The young men of Heliopolis, and of Bubasti shall fall by the sword, and themselves shall be led captive. {18} And in Taphnis the day shall wax black, when I shall have broken there the sceptres of Aegypt, and the pride of the might thereof shall fail in it: the cloud shall cover her, & her daughters shall be led into captivity. {19} And I will do judgements in Aegypt: & they shall know that I am the Lord. {20} And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {21} Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharao king of Aegypt: and behold it is not wound up, that health might be restored to it, that it might be bound with cloths, & swaddled with linen clouts, that recovering strength it might hold the sword. {22} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to Pharao king of Aegypt, and I will break into pieces his strong arm, already broken: and I will cast down the sword out of his hand: {23} and will disperse Aegypt among the Gentiles, & will scatter them in the lands. {24} And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and will give my sword in his hand: and I will break the arms of Pharao, and the slain before his face shall groan with groanings. {25} And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharao shall fall, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall give my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall have stretched it forth upon the Land of Aegypt: {26} And I will disperse Aegypt into nations, and will scatter them into lands, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

The glory of Assyrians excelling all other Kingdoms, 10. was overthrown, God so ordaining, by the Chaldees: 18. much less shall Aegypt escape.

{1} AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, the third month, the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {2} Son of man, say to Pharao the king of Aegypt, and to his people: To whom art thou made like in thy greatness? {3} Behold Assur as it were a Cedar in Libanus, fair of boughs, & thick of leaves, and high of height, & the top thereof is elevated among the thick boughs. {4} The waters have nourished him, the depth hath exalted him, the rivers thereof ran out round about the roots thereof, and he sent forth her rivers to all the trees of the country. {5} Therefore was his height elevated above all the trees of the country, and his groves were multiplied, and his boughs were elevated because of many waters. {6} And when he had spread forth his shadow, in his boughs all the fowls of the heaven made nests, and under his leaves all beasts of the forests engendered, and under his shadow dwelt the assembly of very many nations. {7} And he was most fair in his greatness, and in the enlarging of his groves: for his root was near many waters. {8} The cedars were not higher than he in the paradise of God, the fir-trees matched not his top, & the plane-trees were not equal to his boughs: no tree of the paradise of God was likened to him, and to his beauty. {9} Because I made him beautiful, and with many and thick boughs: and all the trees of pleasure, that were in the paradise of God, did emulate him. {10} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that he is exalted in height, and hath given his top green and tick, and his heart is elevated in his height: {11} I have delivered him into the hands of the strongest of the nations, doing he shall do to him: according to his impiety I have cast him out. {12} And aliens, and the most cruel of the nations shall cut him down, and shall throw him forth upon the mountains, and in all valleys his boughs shall fall, and his groves shall be broken on all rocks of the land: and all the peoples of the earth shall depart from his shadow, and shall leave him. {13} In his ruin dwelt all the fowls of heaven, and in his boughs were all the beasts of the field. {14} For which cause there shall not be elevated in their height all the trees of the waters, neither shall they put their highness among the woody and thick ones, neither shall they stand in their height, all that are watered with waters: because they are all delivered into death to the lowest earth in the midst of the children of men, to them that go down into the Lake. {15} Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that he went down to hell, I brought in mourning, I covered him with the depth: and I stayed his rivers, and kept in many waters: Libanus was made sad upon him, & all the trees of the field were shaken. {16} At the sound of his ruin I moved the Gentiles, when I brought him down to hell with them, that descended into the lake: & all the trees of pleasure goodly & glorious in Libanus, all that were watered with waters, were comforted in the lowest earth. {17} For they also shall go down with him to hell to the slain by the sword: & the arm of every one shall sit under his shadow in the midst of the nations. {18} To whom art thou likened, o thou noble and lofty among the trees of pleasure? Behold thou art brought down with the trees of pleasure to the lowest earth: in the midst of the uncircumcised shalt thou sleep, with them that are slain by the sword, the same is Pharao, and all his multitude, saith our Lord God.

The Prophet lamenteth the destruction of Aegypt, 11. prosecuting his prophecy of the most lamentable destruction thereof: 17. foreshewing that the more it is exalted in strength and glory, so much more miserable shall be the fall thereof.

{1} AND it came to pass the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {2} Son of man, take up a lamentation upon Pharao the king of Aegypt, & thou shalt say to him: Thou art likened to the Lion of the Gentiles, and the dragon, that is in the sea: and thou didst strike with the horn in thy rivers, and didst trouble the waters with thy feet, and didst conciliate their streams. {3} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: I will spread my net upon thee in the multitude of many peoples, and I will draw thee out in my net. {4} And I will throw thee forth on the ground, upon the face of the field will I cast thee away: and I will make all the fowls of heaven to dwell upon thee, and I will fill of thee the beasts of all the earth. {5} And I will give thy flesh upon the mountains, and will fill the little hills with thy corruption. {6} And I will water the earth with the stench of thy blood upon the mountains, and the valleys shall be filled of thee. {7} And I will cover the heavens, when thou shalt be extinguished, and I will make the stars thereof to wax black: the sun I will cover with a cloud, & the moon shall not give her light. {8} I will make all the lights of heaven to mourn upon thee: & I will give darkness upon thy land, saith our Lord God, when thy wounded shall fall in the midst of the land, saith our Lord God. {9} And I shall provoke to anger the heart of many peoples, when I shall have brought in thy destruction in the Gentiles upon the lands, which thou knowest not. {10} And I will make many peoples to be astonished upon thee, and their kings with exceeding horror shall be afraid upon thee, when my sword shall begin to fly upon their faces: and they shall be astonished suddenly, every one for his life, in the day of thy ruin. {11} Because thus saith our Lord God: {12} The sword of the king of Babylon shall come to thee, in the swords of the valiants will I overthrow thy multitude: invincible are all these Gentiles: and they shall waste the pride of Aegypt, and the multitude thereof shall be dissipated. {13} And I will destroy all the beasts thereof, that were upon very many waters: and the foot of man shall trouble them no more, neither shall the hoof of beasts trouble them. {14} Then will I make their waters most pure, and their rivers I will bring as oil, saith our Lord God. {15} When I shall have made the Land of Aegypt desolate: & the land shall be made desert of her fullness, when I shall have stricken all the inhabitants thereof: & they shall know that I am the Lord. {16} It is lamentation, and they shall lament it, the daughters of the Gentiles shall lament it, upon Aegypt, and upon the multitude thereof they shall lament it, saith our Lord God. {17} And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {18} Son of man, sing a mourning song upon the multitude of Aegypt: and pluck her down, herself, and the daughters of the strong nations, to the lowest earth, with them that go down into the lake. {19} Fairer than whom art thou? Descend, & sleep with the uncircumcised. {20} In the midst of the slain by the sword they shall fall. The sword is given, they have drawn her, and all her peoples. {21} The most mighty of the strong shall speak to him from the midst of hell, which went down with his helpers, and slept uncircumcised, slain by the sword. {22} There Assur, and all his multitude: round about him their graves, all the slain, and they that fell by the sword. {23} Whose graves were made in the lowest lakes: and his multitude was made round about his grave: all the slain, and they that fell by the sword, which sometime had given fear in the land of the living. {24} There Aelam, and all the multitude thereof round about her grave. All these slain, and falling by the sword: that went down uncircumcised to the lowest earth: which did put their terror in the land of the living, and they have borne their ignominy with them, that go down into the lake. {25} In the midst of their slain they have set her couch among all her peoples: round about him their grave, and these uncircumcised, and slain by the sword, for they gave their terror in the land of the living, and have borne their ignominy with them, that descend into the lake: they are laid in the midst of the slain. {26} There Mosoch, & Thubal, & all their multitude: round about him their graves: all these uncircumcised, and slain, and falling by the sword: because they gave their fear in the land of the living: {27} And they shall not sleep with the valiants, and them that fell, and the uncircumcised, that went down to hell with their weapons, and put their swords under their heads, and their iniquities were in their bones: because they were made the terror of the valiants in the land of the living. {28} And thou therefore shalt be destroyed in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt sleep with the slain by the sword. {29} There Idumea, and her kings, and all her Princes, which were given with their host with the slain by the sword: and which slept with the uncircumcised, & with them that go down into the lake. {30} There all the Princes of the North, and all the hunters: which were brought down with the slain, fearing, and in their strength confounded: which slept uncircumcised with the slain by the sword, & have borne their ignominy with them, that go down into the lake. {31} Pharao saw them, and he was comforted upon all his multitude, which was slain by the sword, Pharao, & all his host, saith our Lord God: {32} because I gave his terror in the land of the living, and he slept in the midst of the uncircumcised with the slain by the sword: Pharao and all his multitude, saith our Lord God.

By example of a watchman, 7. God chargeth the Prophet to declare whatsoever dangers he seeth imminent to the people. 10. Sinners repenting shall be saved, and if the just leave their justice they shall be damned. 21. The promise made to Abraham maketh not the Jews secure: 23. but for their enormous sins they shall be carried out captives. 33. Then they shall know that the prophet said the truth.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: children of thy people, and thou shalt say {2} Son of man, speak to the to them: The land when I shall bring the sword in upon it, and the people of the land take a man, one of their meanest, and make him a watchman over them: {3} and he shall see the sword coming upon the land, and sound with the trumpet, and tell the people: {4} and he that heareth the sound of the trumpet, whosoever he be, and doth not look to himself, and the sword come, and take him: his blood shall be upon his head. {5} He heard the sound of the trumpet, and did not look to himself, his blood shall be on himself: but if he shall look to himself, he shall save his life. {6} And if the watchman see the sword coming, & sound not with the trumpet: and the people look not to themselves, and the sword come, and take a soul from among them: he certes is caught in his iniquity, but his blood I will require of the hand of the watchman. {7} And thou son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: hearing therefore the word from my mouth, thou shalt tell them from me. {8} If when I say to the impious: O thou impious, dying thou shalt die: thou speak not that the impious may keep himself from his way: the impious himself shall die in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at thy hand. {9} But if thou telling the impious, that he convert from his ways, he convert not from his way: he shall die in his iniquity: but thou hast delivered thy soul. {10} Thou therefore o son of man say to the house of Israel: Thus you have spoken, saying: Our iniquities, & our sins are upon us, and in them we fade away: how then can we live? {11} Say to them: Live I, saith our Lord God: I will not the death of the impious, but that the impious convert from his way, and live. Convert, convert ye from your most evil ways: and why will you die, o house of Israel? {12} Thou therefore son of man say to the children of thy people: The justice of the just shall not deliver him, in what day soever he shall sin: and the impiety of the impious shall not hurt him, in what day soever he shall convert from his impiety: and the just can not live in his justice, in what day soever he shall sin. {13} Yea if I shall say to the just that living he shall live, & he trusting in his justice do iniquity: all his justices shall be forgotten, & in his iniquity, which he hath wrought, in the same shall he die. {14} And if I shall say to the impious: Dying thou shalt die: & he do penance from his sin & do judgement & justice, {15} & the same impious restore pledge, and render robbery, walk in the commandments of life, and do not any unjust thing: living he shall live, & shall not die. {16} All his sins, which he hath sinned, shall not be imputed to him: he hath done judgement & justice, living he shall live. {17} And the children of thy people, have said: The way of our Lord is not of equal weight, & their own way is unjust. {18} For when the just shall depart from his justice, & do iniquities, he shall die in them. {19} And when the impious shall depart from his impiety, & shall do judgements, & justice: he shall live in them. {20} And you say: The way of our Lord is not right, every one according to his ways will I judge of you, o house of Israel. {21} And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, in the fifth of the month of our transmigration, there came to me one that was fled from Jerusalem, saying: The city is made waste. {22} And the hand of our Lord had been made to me in the evening, before he came that was fled: & he opened my mouth till he came to me in the morning, & my mouth being opened I was silent no more. {23} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {24} Son of man, They that dwell in these ruinous places, upon the ground of Israel, speaking do say: Abraham was one, and by inheritance he possessed the land: but we be many, the land is given us in possession. {25} Therefore thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Ye that eat in blood & lift up your eyes to your uncleanness, & shed blood: what, shall you possess the land by inheritance? {26} You stood on your swords, you have done abominations, & every one hath polluted his neighbour's wife: & you will possess the land by inheritance? {27} Thus thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Live I, that they which dwell in the ruinous places shall fall by the sword: & he that is in the field, shall be delivered to beasts to be devoured: and they that are in holds, and caves, shall die of the pestilence. {28} And I will give the land into a wilderness, & into a desert, and the proud strength thereof shall fail, and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, because there is none to pass by them. {29} And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall give their land desolate and desert for all their abominations, which they have wrought. {30} And thou son of man: the children of thy people, which speak of thee by the walls, and in the doors of houses, and one saith to an other, a man to his neighbour, speaking: Come, & let us hear what is the word that proceedeth from our Lord. {31} And they come to thee, as if a people should go in, and my people sit before thee: and they hear thy words, and do them not: because they turn them into a song of their mouth, and their heart followeth their avarice. {32} And thou art unto them as a musical song which is sung with sweet and pleasant sound: and they hear thy words, and do them not. {33} And when it shall come to pass which was told before (for behold it cometh) then shall they know that there was a prophet among them.

A commination of evil pastors: 11. and a prophecy of the coming of Christ, the true Pastor; who will gather his flock from all parts of the earth, 25. and conserve it for ever.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me saying: Pastors of Israel: prophesy, and thou shalt {2} Son of man prophesy of the say to the Pastors: Thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the Pastors of Israel, which fed themselves: are not the flocks fed of the Pastors? {3} You did eat the milk, & were covered with the wool, & that which was fat ye killed: but my flock you fed not. {4} That which was weak, you strengthened not: and that which was sick, you healed not: that which was broken, you bound not up: and that which was cast away, you brought not again: and that which was lost, you sought not: but with austerity you did rule over them, and with might. {5} And my sheep were dispersed, because there was no Pastor: & they came to be devoured of all the beasts of the field, and were dispersed. {6} My flocks have wandered in all mountains, and in every high hill: and upon all the face of the earth were my flocks dispersed, and there was none that sought them, there was none, I say, that sought them. {7} Therefore ye shepherds hear the word of our Lord: {8} Live I saith our Lord God: that for as much as my flocks have been made a spoil: & my sheep to be devoured of all the beasts of the field, because there was no Pastor (for my Pastors did not seek my flock, but the Pastors fed themselves, & my flocks they fed not:) {9} therefore ye Pastors hear the word of our Lord: {10} Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I my self upon the shepherds, I will require my flock of their hand, and I will make them cease, that they feed my flock no more, & that the Pastors feed no more themselves: and I will deliver my flock out of their mouth, and it shall no more be meat for them. {11} Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I my self will seek my sheep, and will visit them. {12} As the Pastor visiteth his flock in the day when he shall be in the midst of his sheep which were scattered: so will I visit my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places, wherein they had been dispersed in the day of the cloud and of darkness. {13} And I will bring them out of the peoples, and will gather them out of the lands, and will bring them into their own land: and I will feed them in the mountains of Israel, in the rivers, and in all the seats of the land. {14} In the most plentiful pastures will I feed them, & in the high mountains of Israel shall be their pastures: there shall they rest on the green grass, and in fat pastures they shall be fed upon the mountains of Israel. {15} I will feed my sheep, & I will make them lie, saith our Lord God. {16} That which was lost, I will seek: & that which was cast away, I will bring again: & that which was broken I will bind up: & that which was weak, I will strengthen: & that which was fat & strong, I will keep: & will feed them in judgement. {17} And you my flocks, thus saith our Lord God: Behold I judge between beast & beast, of rams, & of buck goats. {18} Was it not enough for you to feed upon good pastures? You have besides also trodden down with your feet the residue of your pastures: and when you drank most pure water, the rest you troubled with your feet. {19} And my sheep were fed with those things, which were trodden with your feet: and what your feet had troubled, that did they drink. {20} Therefore thus saith our Lord God to you: Behold, I myself do judge between the fat beast & the lean. {21} For that you with sides & shoulders did thrust, and with your horns struck all the weak beasts, till they were dispersed abroad: {22} I will save my flock, & it shall be no more into spoil, & I will judge between beast and beast. {23} AND I WILL RAISE UP OVER THEM ONE PASTOR: who shall feed them, my servant David: he shall feed them, & he shall be their Pastor. {24} And I, the Lord will be their God: & my servant David the Prince in the midst of them: I, the Lord have spoken. {25} And I will make a covenant of peace with them, and will make the most cruel beasts to cease out of the land: & they that dwell in the desert, shall sleep secure in the forests. {26} And I will put them round about my hill a blessing: and I will bring down the showers in his time, there shall be rains of blessing. {27} And the tree of the field shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give her spring, and they shall be in their land without fear: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have broken the chains of their yoke, and shall have delivered them out of the hand of those that rule over them. {28} And they shall be no more for a spoil in the Gentiles, neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them: but they shall dwell confidently without any terror. {29} And I will raise up unto them a bud of name: and they shall be no more diminished for famine in the land, neither shall they bear any more the reproach of the Gentiles. {30} And they shall know that I, the Lord their God with them, and they my people the house of Israel: saith our Lord God. {31} And you my flocks, the flocks of my pasture are men: and I, the Lord your God, saith our Lord God.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: mount Seir, and thou shalt Prophesy of it, {2} Son of man set thy face against and shalt say to it: {3} Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee mount Seir, and I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, & will make thee desolate and desert. {4} Thy cities I will destroy, & thou shalt be desert: & thou shalt know that I am the Lord. {5} For that thou hast been an everlasting enemy, and hast shut up the children of Israel into the hands of the sword in the time of their affliction, in the time of extreme iniquity. {6} Therefore live I, saith our Lord God, that I will deliver thee unto blood, & blood shall persecute thee: & whereas thou hast hated blood, blood shall persecute thee. {7} And I will make mount Seir desolate & desert: & I will take from it the comers & goers. {8} And I will fill his mountains with his slain: in thy hills, and in thy valleys, & in the torrents shall the slain with the sword fall. {9} Into everlasting desolations will I deliver thee, & thy cities shall not be inhabited: & thou shalt know that I am the Lord God. {10} For that thou hast said: The two nations, & the two lands shall be mine, & I will possess them by inheritance: whereas our Lord was there. {11} Therefore live I, saith our Lord God, that I will do according to thy wrath, and according to thy zeal, which thou hast used hating them: & I will be made known by them, when I shall have judged thee. {12} And thou shalt know that I, the Lord have heard all thy reproaches, that thou hast spoken of the mountains of Israel, saying: They are desert, they are given unto us to devour. {13} And you rose up upon me with your mouth, and have derogated your words against me: I heard it. {14} Thus saith our Lord God: All the earth rejoicing, I will bring thee into a wilderness. {15} As thou hast rejoiced upon the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was dissipated, so will I do to thee: Thou shalt be dissipated mount Seir, & all Idumea: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

The Jews shall be reduced from captivity, 13. their manners amended, 16. which are enormous, 22. by special grace of God, for the glory of his name: 25. fulfilled by Christ's baptism.

{1} AND thou son of man, Prophesy concerning the mountains of Israel, and thou shalt say: Mountains of Israel hear ye the word of our Lord: {2} Thus saith our Lord God: For that the enemy hath said of you: Aha, the everlasting heights are given to us for an inheritance: {3} therefore prophesy, & say: Thus saith our Lord God: For that you have been desolate, & trodden down round about, & made an inheritance to the rest of the Gentiles, and have ascended upon the lip of the tongue, & the reproach of the people: {4} Therefore ye mountains of Israel hear the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God to the mountains, and hills, to the torrents, and valleys, & the deserts, and broken walls, and to the cities forsaken, which are spoiled, & scorned of the rest of the Nations round about. {5} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because in fire of my zeal I have spoken of the rest of the nations, & of all Idumea, which have given my land to themselves for an inheritance with joy, and with all their heart, and with the mind: and have cast it forth to waste it: {6} therefore prophesy concerning the ground of Israel, and thou shalt say to the mountains, and hills, to the hill-tops, & valleys: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I have spoken in my zeal, & in my fury because you have sustained the confusion of the Gentiles. {7} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: I have lifted my hand, that the Gentiles which are round about you, they may bear their confusion. {8} But you o mountains of Israel may shoot forth your boughs, and bring forth your fruit to my people of Israel: for he is at hand to come. {9} Because lo I to you, and I will turn to you, and you shall be ploughed, and shall take seed. {10} And I will multiply in you men, and all the house of Israel. And the cities shall be inhabited, & the ruinous places shall be repaired. {11} And I will replenish you with men, and with beasts: and they shall be multiplied, and increase: and I will make you dwell as from the beginning, and will endue you with greater gifts, than you have had from the beginning: and you shall know that I am the Lord. {12} And I will bring men upon you, my people Israel, and they shall possess thee by inheritance: and thou shalt be for an inheritance to them, & thou shalt add no more to be without them. {13} Thus saith our Lord God: For that they say of you: A devourer of men thou art, and one that doest suffocate thy nation. {14} Therefore thou shalt eat men no more, and thy nation thou shalt kill no more, saith our Lord God: {15} neither will I make the confusion of the Gentiles, to be heard in thee any more, and the reproach of the people thou shalt not bear, & thy nation thou shalt lose no more, saith our Lord God. {16} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {17} Son of man, the house of Israel dwelt in their ground, and polluted it in their ways, & in their studies, according to the uncleanness of a menstruous woman was their way made before me. {18} And I have poured out mine indignation upon them for the blood, which they have shed upon the land, & in their idols have polluted it. {19} And I have dispersed them into the Gentiles, & they are scattered into the lands: according to their ways, & their inventions have I judged them {20} And they went in to the Nations, unto which they entered, and have polluted my holy name, when it was said of them: This is the people of the Lord, and out of his land they are come forth. {21} And I have spared my holy name, which the house of Israel polluted among the Gentiles, to which they entered in. {22} Therefore thou shalt say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God, not for your sake will I do it, o house of Israel, but for my holy name which you have polluted in the Nations to which you entered. {23} And I will sanctify my great name, that is polluted among the Gentiles, which you have polluted in the midst of them: that the Gentiles may know that I am the Lord, saith our Lord of hosts, when I shall be sanctified in you before them. {24} For I will take you out of the Gentiles, & will gather you together out of all the lands, & will bring you into your land. {25} And I will pour out upon you clean water, and you shall be cleansed from all your contaminations, and from all your idols will I cleanse you. {26} And I will give you a new heart, and will put a new spirit in the midst of you: and will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and will give you a fleshy heart. {27} And I will put my spirit in the midst of you: and I will make that you walk in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them. {28} And you shall dwell in the land: which I gave to your fathers, and you shall be my people, and I will be your God. {29} And I will save you from all your contaminations: and I will call for corn, and will multiply it, and will not put famine upon you. {30} And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the offsprings of the field, that you bear no more the reproach of famine among the Gentiles. {31}

And you shall remember your most wicked ways, & your studies not good: & your iniquities, & your wicked deeds shall displease you. {32} Not for you will I do it, saith our Lord God, be it known to you: be ye confounded, & ashamed upon your ways, o house of Israel. {33} Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that I shall cleanse you from all your iniquities, & shall make the cities to be inhabited, & shall repair the ruinous places. {34} & the desert land shall be tilled, which once was desolate in the eyes of every wayfaring man, {35} they shall say: This land untilled is become as a garden of pleasure: and the desert cities, and destitute and undermined, have sitten fenced. {36} And the Nations whatsoever shall be left round about you, shall know that I, the Lord have builded the destroyed things, & planted the untilled places, that I, the Lord have spoken, and done it. {37} Thus saith our Lord God: As yet in this shall the house of Israel find me, that I will do for them: I will multiply them as a flock of men, {38} as a holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in the solemnities thereof: So shall the desert cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

By dead bones rising to life (which also signifieth the general resurrection) 11. is prophesied the reduction of the Jews from captivity: 15. the Kingdoms of Juda and Israel shall be reduced into one Kingdom: 23. in figure that all Nations shall be united in Christ.

{1} THE hand of our Lord was made upon me, and brought me forth in the spirit of our Lord: and left me in the midst of a field, that was full of bones. {2} And he led me about through them on every side: and there were very many upon the face of the field, and exceeding dry. {3} And he said to me: Son of man, thinkest thou these bones shall live? And I said, Lord God, thou knowest. {4} And he said to me: Prophesy of these bones: and thou shalt say to them: Dry bones hear ye the word of our Lord. {5} Thus saith our Lord God to these bones: Behold I will put spirit into you, and you shall live. {6} And I will give sinews upon you, and will make flesh to grow up over you, and will stretch a skin on you: and I will give you spirit, and you shall live, and you shall know that I am the Lord. {7} And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and there was made a sound when I prophesied, and behold a commotion: and bones came to bones, every one to his juncture. {8} And I saw, and behold upon them sinews, and flesh was grown up: and a skin was stretched out in them above, and they had no spirit. {9} And he said to me: {892} prophesy to the spirit, prophesy son of man, & thou shalt say to the spirit: Thus saith our Lord God: Come spirit from the four winds, and blow upon these slain, and let them be revived. {10} And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and spirit entered into them, and they lived: and they stood upon their feet, an army passing great. {11} And he said to me: Son of man: All these bones, are the house of Israel: They say: our bones are withered, our hope is perished, and we are cut off. {12} Therefore prophesy, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will open your graves, and will bring you out of your sepulchres o my people: and will bring you into the land of Israel {13} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have opened your sepulchres, & shall have brought you out of your graves o my people: {14} and shall have given my spirit in you, & you shall live, & I shall make you rest upon your ground: & you shall know that I, the Lord have spoken & done it, saith our Lord God. {15} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {16} And thou son of man, take thee one piece of wood, and write upon it: Of Juda, & of the children of Israel his fellows: & take an other piece of wood, & write upon it: Of Joseph the wood of Ephraim, and of all the house of Israel, and of his fellows. {17} And join them, one to the other for thee into one piece of wood, and they shall be into an union in thy hand. {18} And when the children of thy people shall say to thee speaking: Doest thou not declare unto us what thou meanest by these? {19} Thou shalt speak to them:

Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will take the piece of wood of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, & the tribes of Israel, that are adjoined to him: and I will give them together with the piece of wood of Juda, and will make them into one piece of wood: and they shall be one in his hand. {20} And the pieces of wood whereupon thou shalt write, in thy hand, shall be before their eyes. {21} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will take the children of Israel out of the midst of the nations, to which they are gone: and I will gather them together on every side, and will bring them to their ground. {22} And I will make them into one nation in the land on the mountains of Israel, and there shall be one king ruling over them all: & they shall no more be two nations, neither shall they be divided any more into two kingdoms. {23} Neither shall they be polluted any more in their idols, & their abominations, and all their iniquities, & I will save them out of all the seats, in which they have sinned & I will cleanse them: & they shall be my people, & I will be their God. {24} And my servant David king over them, & there shall be one Pastor of them all, they shall walk in my judgements, and shall keep my commandments, and shall do them. {25} And they shall dwell upon the land, which I gave to my servant Jacob, wherein your fathers dwelt, and they shall dwell upon it, themselves, & their children, & their children's children, even for ever: & David my servant their Prince for ever. {26} And I will make a league of peace to them, an everlasting covenant shall be to them: and I will found them, & will multiply them, and will give my sanctification in the midst of them for ever. {27} And my tabernacle shall be in them: & I will be their God, and they shall be my people. {28} And the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord the sanctifier of Israel, when my sanctification shall be in the midst of them for ever.

God and Magog most tyrannically persecuting the Church, 17. as other Prophets have also foretold, 20. shall be mightily overthrown.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Gog, and the Land of Magog, the Prince of {2} Son of man, set thy face against the head of Mosoch, and Thubal: and prophesy of him and thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Gog Prince of the head of Mosoch and Thubal. {3} And I will turn thee about, and will put a bit in thy jaws: and will bring forth thee, and all thine army, the horses and horsemen clothed with brigantines, {4} a great multitude, of them that take spear and buckler and sword. {5} The Persians, Aethiopians, and Lybians with them, all with shields & helmets. {6} Gomer, and all her troops, the houses of Thogorma the sides of the North, and all his strength, and many peoples with them. {7} Prepare and make ready thy self, and all thy multitude, that is gathered to thee in heaps: and be thou as a precept to them. {8} After many days thou shalt be visited: in the later end of years thou shalt come to the land, that is returned from the sword, and is gathered together out of many peoples, to the mountains of Israel, that were desert continually: this same is brought forth out of the peoples, and they shall all dwell in it confidently. {9} And going up as a tempest thou shalt come, & as it were a cloud that thou mayst cover the land, thou & thy troops, & many peoples with thee. {10} Thus saith our Lord God: In that day shall words ascend upon thy heart, and thou shalt think a most wicked thought. {11} And shalt say: I will go up to the land without wall: I will come to them that rest, & dwell securely: all these dwell without wall, there are no bars nor gates to them: {12} That thou mayst take the spoils, & invade the prey, that thou mayst lay thy hand upon them, that had been desert, & afterward restored, & upon the people that is gathered together out of the Gentiles, which hath begun to possess, & to be inhabitant of the navel of the earth. {13} Saba, & Dedan, and the merchants of Tharsis, & all the lions thereof shall say to thee: What comest thou to take spoils? Behold thou hast gathered thy multitude to take the prey, that thou mayst take silver, and gold, and mayst take away stuff & substance, and spoil infinite booties. {14} Therefore prophesy thou son of man, and thou shalt say to Gog: Thus saith our Lord God: Why shalt thou not know in that day, when my people of Israel shall dwell confidently? {15} And thou shalt come out of thy place from the sides of the North, thou & many peoples with thee, all riders of horses, a great company, and a vehement army. {16} And thou shalt ascend upon my people of Israel as a cloud, that thou cover the earth. In the later days shalt thou be, and I will bring thee upon my land: that the Gentiles may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee before their eyes, o Gog. {17} Thus saith our Lord God: Thou then art he, of whom I spake in the days of old, in the hand of my servants the Prophets of Israel, which prophesied in the days of those times, that I would bring in thee upon them. {18} And it shall be in that day, in the day of the coming of Gog upon the land of Israel, saith our Lord God, mine indignation shall ascend in my fury. {19} And in my zeal, and in the fire of my wrath I have spoken. That in that day shall be a great commotion upon the land of Israel: {20} and at my presence shall the fishes of the sea be moved, and the fowls of heaven, and the beasts of the field, and every creeping thing, that moveth upon the ground, and all men that are upon the face of the earth: & the mountains shall be overthrown, & the hedges shall fall, and every wall shall fall on the ground. {21} And I will call in against him in all my mountains the sword, saith our Lord God: every man's sword shall be directed against his brother. {22} And I will judge him with pestilence, & blood, & vehement shower, & mighty great stones: fire, and brimstone will I rain upon him, and upon his army, and upon the many peoples that are with him. {23} And I will be magnified, and I will be sanctified: and I will be known in the eyes of many nations: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

Our Lord permitting Gog, most vehemently to afflict the Church, 3. after a while will destroy him, with all this troops: 9. their weapons shall be burned, 11. their sepulchres infamous, the earth not fully cleansed of their carcasses in seven months. 17. God's people shall rejoice; 22. and all men shall know that their sins were the cause of their captivity.

{1} BUT thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, & thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I upon thee Gog, the Prince of the head of Mosoch and Thubal. {2} And I will turn thee about, & will reduce thee, and will make thee ascend from the sides of the North: & will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel. {3} And I will strike thy bow in thy left hand, & thine arrows I will cast down out of thy right hand. {4} Upon the mountains of Israel shalt thou fall, and all thy troops, and thy peoples that are with thee: to the wild beasts, to the birds, and to every fowl, and to the beasts of the earth have I given thee to be devoured. {5} Thou shalt fall upon the face of the field: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. {6} And I will send in fire upon Magog, and on them that dwell in the islands confidently: and they shall know that I am the Lord. {7} And my holy name will I make known in the midst of my people Israel, and I will pollute my holy name no more: and the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord the holy one of Israel. {8} Behold it cometh, and it is done, saith our Lord God: this is the day, whereof I have spoken. {9} And the inhabitants shall go forth of the cities of Israel, and shall set on fire and burn weapons, buckler, and spears, bow and arrows, and hand-staves, and poleaxes: and they shall burn them with fire seven years. {10} And they shall not carry trees out of the countries, nor cut down out of the forests: because they shall burn the weapons with fire, & shall make prey of them, to whom they had been a prey, & they shall spoil their spoilers, saith our Lord God. {11} And it shall be in that day: I will give Gog a renowned place for a sepulchre in Israel: the valley of wayfaring men on the East of the sea, which shall make them that pass by to be astonished: & they shall there burn Gog, and all his multitude, and it shall be called the valley of the multitude of Gog.

{12} And the house of Israel shall bury them, that they may cleanse the land seven months. {13} And all the people of the land shall bury him, and it shall be unto them a renowned day, wherein I was glorified, saith our Lord God. {14} And they shall appoint men continually going about the land, to bury & to seek them, that were remaining upon the face of the earth, that they may cleanse it: and after seven months they shall begin to seek. {15} And they that travel through the land shall go about: and when they shall see the bone of man, they shall set up a sign beside it, till the buriers bury it in the valley of the multitude of Gog. {16} And the name of the city Amona, and they shall cleanse the land. {17} Thou therefore o son of man, saith our Lord God, say to every fowl, and to all birds, and to all the beasts of the field: Come together, make haste, run together on every side to my victim, which I immolate for you, the great victim upon the mountains of Israel: that you may eat the flesh, and drink the blood. {18} The flesh of the strong shall you eat, and the blood of the princes of the earth shall you drink: of rams, of lambs, and of buckgoats, and bulls, and of fed wares, and of all fat things. {19} And you shall eat the fat your fill, and shall drink blood till you be drunk of the victim, which I shall immolate for you. {20} And you shall be filled upon my table of horse, and strong horsemen, and of all the men of war, saith our Lord God. {21} and I will put my glory in the Gentiles: and all nations shall see my judgement, that I have done, and my hand, that I have put upon them. {22} And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord their God from that day and so forward. {23} And the Gentiles shall know that the house of Israel was taken in their iniquity, for that they forsook me, and I hid my face from them: and delivered them into the hands of the enemies, and they fell all by the sword. {24} According to their uncleanness and wickedness have I done to them, and have hid my face from them. {25} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Now will I bring back the captivity of Jacob, and will have mercy on all the house of Israel: and I will take on me zeal for my holy name. {26} And they shall bear their confusion, and all the prevarication wherewith they prevaricated against me, when they shall dwell in their land confidently fearing no man: {27} and I shall have brought them back out of the peoples, & shall have gathered them together out of the lands of their enemies, and shall be sanctified in them, in the eyes of many nations. {28} And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, for that I transported them into the nations, and have gathered them together upon their own land, & have not left any of them there. {29} And I will hide my face no more from them, because I have poured out my spirit upon all the house of Israel, saith our Lord God.

In a vision the Prophet seeth the re-edification of Jerusalem. 5. With the measures of diverse parts thereof. 47. and of the court, and entire of the temple.

{1} IN the five & twentieth year of our transmigration, in the beginning of the year, the tenth of the month, the fourteenth year, after the city was stricken: in this self-same day the hand of our Lord was made upon me, & he brought me thither. {2} In the visions of God he brought me into the Land of Israel, & left me upon a mountain exceeding high: upon which there was as it were the building of a city bending toward the south. {3} And he brought me in thither: and behold a man, whose form was as the form of brass, and a linen cord in his hand, and a reed of measure in his hand: & he stood in the gate. {4} And the same man spake to me: Son of man, see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, & set thy heart on all things, which I will shew thee: for thou art brought hither that they may be shewed to thee: declare all things that thou seest, to the house of Israel. {5} And behold a wall on the outside round about the house, & in the man's hand a reed of measure of six cubits & a palm: & he measured the breadth of the building with one reed, the height also with one reed. {6} And he came to the gate, that looked to the way of the east, & he ascended by the steps thereof: & he measured the threshold of the gate with one reed the breadth, that is, one threshold with one reed in breadth: {7} and a chamber with one reed in length, and one reed in breadth: and between the chambers five cubits: {8} and the threshold of the gate by entry of the gate within, with one reed. {9} And he measured the entry of the gate of eight cubits, and the front thereof of two cubits: and the entry of the gate was within. {10} Moreover the chambers of the gate to the way of the East, three on this side, and three on that side: one measure of the three, and one measure of the fronts, on both parts. {11} And he measured the breadth of the threshold of the gate ten cubits: and the length of the gate of thirteen cubits: {12} and the border before the chambers of one cubit: and one cubit the end on both sides, and the chambers were of six cubits, on this side and that side. {13} And he measured the gate from the roof of the chamber, even to the roof thereof, the breadth of five and twenty cubits: door against door. {14} And he made fronts by sixty cubits: & to the front the court of the gate on every side round about. {15} And before the face of the gate, which caught even to the face of the entry of the inner gate, fifty cubits. {16} And oblique windows in the chambers, and in their fronts, which were within the gate on every side round about: & in like manner there were also in the entries windows round about within, and before the fronts the picture of palm trees graven. {17} And he brought me out of the outer court, & behold cells, and the pavement paved with stone in the court round about: thirty cells in the compass of the pavement. {18} And the pavement in the front of the gates according to the length of the gates was beneath. {19} And he measured the breadth from the face of the lower gate even to the front of the inner court without, an hundred cubits to the East, and to the North. {20} The gate also that looked to the way of the North of the outer court, he measured as well in length as in breadth. {21} And the chambers thereof three on this side, & three on that side: and the front thereof, and the entry thereof according to the measure of the former gate, of fifty cubits the length thereof, and the breadth of five and twenty cubits. {22} And the windows thereof, & the entry, and the gravings according to the measure of the gate, that looked to the East, and the ascent thereof was of seven steps, and an entry before it. {23} And the gate of the inner court against the gate of the North, and the East gate: and he measured from gate even to gate an hundred cubits. {24} And he brought me out to the way of the South, and behold the gate, that looked to the South: and he measured the front thereof, and the entry thereof according to the former measures. {25} And the windows thereof, and the entries round about, as the other windows: of fifty cubits in length, and in breadth of five and twenty cubits. {26} And on seven steps was the ascent to it: and an entry before the doors thereof: and there were graven palm trees, one on this side, and an other on that side in the front thereof. {27} And the gate of the inner court in the way of the South: and he measured from gate even to gate in the way of the South, an hundred cubits. {28} And he brought me into the inner court to the South gate: and he measured the gate according to the former measures. {29} The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof with the same measures: and the windows thereof, and entry thereof round about fifty cubits of length, and of breadth five and twenty cubits. {30} And the entry round about in length of five and twenty cubits, & in breadth of five cubits. {31} And the entry thereof to the outer court, & the palm-trees thereof in the front: & there were eight steps, on which the ascent was through it. {32} And he brought me in into the inner court by the way of the east: & he measured the gate according to the former measures. {33} The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof as before: and the windows thereof, and the entries thereof round about, in length of fifty cubits, & in breadth of five and twenty cubits. {34} And the entry thereof, that is, of the outer court: & the graven palm-trees in the front thereof on this side and on that side: and on eight steps the ascent thereof. {35} And he brought me into the gate, that looked to the North: & he measured according to the former measures. {36} The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof, and the windows thereof round about, in length of fifty cubits, and breadth of five and twenty cubits. {37} And the entry thereof looked to the utter court: and the graving of palm-trees in the front thereof on this side & on that side: and upon eight steps the ascent thereof. {38} And at every chamber a door in the foreparts of the gates: there they washed the holocaust. {39} And in the entry of the gate, two tables on this side, and two tables on that side: that there might be immolated upon them holocaust, & for sin, and for offence. {40} And on the utter side, which goeth up to the door of the gate, that goeth on toward the North, two tables: and at the other side before the entry of the gate, two tables. {41} Four tables on this side, and four tables on that side: at the sides of the gate were eight tables, whereupon they did immolate. {42} And the four tables for holocaust, were made of square stones: in length of one cubit and an half, and in breadth of one cubit and an half, and in height of one cubit: upon which they shall put the vessels, wherein is immolated the holocaust, and the victim. {43} And the brims of them of one palm, bowed back within round about: and upon the tables, the flesh of the oblation. {44} And without the inner gate the cells of the singing men in the inner court, which was on the side of the gate that looketh to the North: and the faces of them against the way of the South, one at the side of the East gate, which looked to the way of the North. {45} And he said to me: This is the chamber, which looketh to the way of the South, it shall be for the Priests, that watch in the wards of the temple. {46} Moreover the chamber that looketh to the way of the North shall be for the Priests, that watch upon the ministry of the altar. These are the children of Sadoc, which of the children of Levi approach to our Lord to minister unto him. {47} And he measured the court in length of an hundred cubits, and in breadth of an hundred cubits square: and the altar before the face of the temple. {48} And he brought me into the entry of the temple: and he measured five cubits on this side, {897} and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate of three cubits on this side, and of three cubits on that side. {49} And the length of the entry of twenty cubits: and the breadth of eleven cubits, and by eight steps was the ascent to it. And there were pillars in the fronts: one on this side, and an other on that side.

A description of the temple to be re-edified, and all the parts thereof.

{1} AND he brought me into the temple, and he measured the fronts six cubits of breadth on this side, and six cubits of breadth on that side, the breadth of the tabernacle. {2} And the breadth of the gate was ten cubits: and the sides of the gate of five cubits on this side, and of five cubits on that side: and he measured the length thereof of forty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits. {3} And being entered within he measured in the front of the gate, two cubits: and the gate of six cubits: and the breadth of the gate of seven cubits. {4} And he measured the length thereof of twenty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits, before the face of the temple: and he said to me: This is Sanctum Sanctorum. {5} And he measured the wall of the house of six cubits: and the breadth of a side, of four cubits on every side round about the house. {6} And the sides, side to side, were twice thirty three: and they were eminent, which might enter in through the wall of the house, in the sides round about, to hold in, and not to touch the wall of the temple. {7} And there was a broad alley made round, ascending up by winding stairs, and it led into the upper chamber of the temple round about: therefore was the temple broader in the higher parts: and so from the lower parts they mounted to the higher unto the midst. {8} And I saw in the house the height round about, the sides founded by the measure of a reed the space of six cubits: {9} and the breadth through the wall of the side without of five cubits: and there was an inner house in the sides of the house. {10} And between the cells the breadth of twenty cubits round about the house on every side, {11} and the door of the side for prayer: one door to the way of the North, and one door to the way of the South: and the breadth of the place for prayer, of five cubits round about. {12} And the building, that was separated, and turned to the way that looketh toward the sea, of the breadth of seventy cubits: and the wall of the building, of five cubits in breadth round about: and the length thereof of ninety cubits. {13} And he measured the length of the house, of an hundred cubits: and the building that was separated, and the walls thereof, of the length of an hundred cubits. {14} And the breadth before the face of the house, and of that which was separated against the East, of an hundred cubits. {15} And he measured the length of the building against the face of that, which was separated at the back: the echecks on both sides of an hundred cubits: and the inner temple, and the entries of the court. {16} The thresholds, and oblique windows, & the echecks round about by three parts, against the threshold of every one, and paved with wood round about the circuit: and earth even to the windows, and the windows shut over the doors. {17} And even to the inner house, and without by every wall round about within and without, by measure. {18} And Cherubs and palmtrees wrought, & a palmtree between Cherub & Cherub, & a Cherub had two faces. {19} The face of a man by the palmtree on this side, and the face of a lion by the palmtree on the other side: expressed through all the house round about. {20} From the ground even to the upper parts of the gate, were Cherubs, and palmtrees graven in the wall of the temple. {21} The threshold four square, and the face of the sanctuary, sight to sight. {22} The height of the wooden altar, of three cubits: and the length thereof, of two cubits: and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, & the walls thereof of wood. And he spake to me: This is the table before our Lord. {23} And there were two doors in the temple, and in the sanctuary. {24} And in the two doors on both sides were two little doors, which were folded within each other: for there were two wickets on both sides of the doors. {25} And there were Cherubs also graven in the same doors of the temple, and the graving of palmtrees, as they were expressed in the walls: for which cause also there was thicker timber in the front of the entry without. {26} Upon which were the oblique windows, and the similitude of palmtrees on this side and on that side in braces of the entry: according to the sides of the house, and the breadth of the walls.

Description of the courts, chambers, & other places pertaining to the temple.

{1} AND he brought me out into the utter court by the way that leadeth to the North, and he brought me into the cell, that was against the separated building, & against the house bending to the North. {2} In the face of the length, an hundred cubits of the North door: and the breadth fifty cubits, {3} against the twenty cubits of the inner court, & against the pavement paved with stone of the utter court, where was a porch joined to a triple porch. {4} And before the cells a walk of ten cubits in breadth, looking to the inner parts of the way of one cubit. And their doors toward the North: {5} Where were chambers in the upper parts more low: because they bare up the porches, which appeared above out of them from the nether parts, and from the midst of the building. {6} For they were triple lofts, & had not pillars, as the pillars of the courts: therefore did they appear above out of the nether places, and out of the middle places, from the ground fifty cubits. {7} And an utter closure according to the cells, which were in the way of the utter court before the cells: the length thereof of fifty cubits. {8} Because the length of the cells of the utter court was of fifty cubits: and the length before the face of the temple, of an hundred cubits.

{9} And there was under these cells an entrance from the East, going into them out of the utter court. {10} In the breadth of the closure of the court, that was against the way of the East, toward the face of the separated building, and there were cells before the building. {11} And the way before the face of them according to the similitude of the cells, which were in the way of the North: according to the length of them, so also was their breadth: and all the entrance of them, and similitudes, and their doors. {12} According to the doors of the cells that were in the way looking to the South: a door in the head of the way, which way was before the entry separated by the way of the East going in. {13} And he said to me: The cells of the North, and the cells of the South, which are before the separated building: these are the holy cells, wherein the Priests do eat, which approach to our Lord into Sancta Sanctorum, there shall they lay the holies of holies, and the oblation for sin, and for offence: for it is a holy place. {14} And when the Priests shall be entered, they shall not go forth out of the holy places into the utter court: and there they shall lay their vestments, wherein they minister, because they are holy: and they shall be clothed with other vestments, & so they shall go forth to the people. {15} And when he had accomplished the measures of the inner house, he brought me out by the way of the gate, that looked to the way of the East: and he measured it on every side round about. {16} And he measured against the East wind with the reed of measure, five hundred reeds in reed of measure round about. {17} And he measured against the North wind five hundred reeds in reed of measure round about. {18} And to the South wind he measured five hundred reeds, in reed of measure round about. {19} And to the West wind he measured five hundred reeds, in reed of measure. {20} By the four winds he measured the wall thereof on every side round about the length and breadth of five hundred reeds, dividing between the sanctuary and the place of the common people.

The glory of God returneth to the new temple. 7. The prophet heareth, that the Israelites will no more pollute God's name with idolatry: 10. is commanded to shew them the measure, and form of the temple, 13. and of the altar: 18. with sacrifices to be offered seven days.

{1} AND he brought me to the gate that looked to the way of the East. glory of the God of Israel went by the East {2} And behold the gate: and he had a voice as the voice of many waters, and the earth shined at his majesty. {3} And I saw a vision according to the form which I had seen, when he came to destroy the city: and the shape according to the sight, which I had seen by the river Chobar: and I fell upon my face. {4} And the majesty of our Lord went into the temple by the way of the gate that looked to the East. {5} And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court: and behold the house was filled with the glory of our Lord. {6} And I heard one speaking to me out of the house, and a man stood by me, {7} said to me: Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the steps of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever: and the house of Israel shall no more pollute my holy name, they, and their kings in their fornications, and in the ruins of their kings, and in the excelses. {8} Who have built their threshold by my threshold, and their posts by my posts: and there was a wall between me and them: and they polluted my holy name in the abominations which they did: for the which thing I consumed them in my wrath. {9} Now therefore let them repel their fornication, & ruins of their kings far from me: & I will dwell in the midst of them always. {10} But thou son of man, shew to the house of Israel the temple, and let them be confounded at their iniquities, and let them measure the frame: {11} and be ashamed of all things that they have done. The figure of the house, & of the frame thereof, the goings out, and the coming in, and all the description thereof, and all the precepts thereof, and all the order thereof, and all the laws thereof shew to them, and thou shalt write in their eyes: that they may keep all the descriptions thereof, and the precepts thereof, and let them do them. {12} This is the law of the house in the top of the mount: All the border thereof round about is holy of holies: this then is the law of the house. {13} And these are the measures of the altar by the most true cubit which had a cubit and a palm: in the bosom thereof was a cubit, & a cubit in breadth: and the limit thereof even to the brim thereof, and round about, one palm: this also was the trench of the altar. {14} And from the bosom of the ground to the lowest brim two cubits, and the breadth of one cubit: and from the lesser brim unto the greater brim four cubits, and the breadth of one cubit. {15} And Ariel itself of four cubits: & from Ariel upward four horns. {16} And Ariel of twelve cubits in length by twelve cubits of breadth, four square with equal sides. {17} And the brim of fourteen cubits of length by fourteen cubits of breadth in the four corners thereof: & the crown round about it of half a cubit, & the bosom thereof of one cubit round about: and the steps thereof turned to the East. {18} And he said to me: Son of man, thus saith our Lord God: These are the rites of the altar, in what day soever it shall be made: that holocaust may be offered upon it, and blood poured out. {19} And thou shalt give to the Priests, and Levites, that are of the seed of Sadoc, that approach to me, saith our Lord God, that they offer to me a calf of the herd for sin. {20} And taking of his blood, thou shalt put it upon the four horns thereof, and upon the four corners of the brim, and upon the crown round about: and thou shalt cleanse, and expiate it. {21} And thou shalt take the calf, that is offered for sin: and thou shalt burn him in a separate place of the house without the sanctuary. {22} And in the second day thou shalt offer a buck of goats unspotted for sin: and they shall expiate the altar, as they did expiate in the calf. {23} And when thou shalt have accomplished expiating it, thou shalt offer a calf of the herd unspotted, and a ram of the flock unspotted. {24} And thou shalt offer them in the sight of our Lord: and the Priests shall cast salt upon them, & shall offer them an holocaust to our Lord. {25} Seven days shalt thou make a buck goat for sin daily: and a calf of the herd, & a ram of the cattle unspotted shall they offer. {26} Seven days shall they expiate the altar, and shall cleanse it: and they shall fill his hand. {27} And the days being expired, in the eight day and so forth, the priests shall make your holocausts upon the altar, and those which they offer for peace: and I will be pacified toward you, saith our Lord God.

The East gate of the Sanctuary shall be always shut. 5. The incircumcised shall not enter into the sanctuary: 10. nor the Levites, that have served idols: but shall do other service belonging to sacrifices: 15. and the children of Sadoc shall do the priestly functions: 17. observing the prescribed rites thereof.

{1} AND he turned me to the way of the utter sanctuary, which looked toward the East: and it was shut. {2} And our Lord said to me: This gate shall be shut: it shall not be opened, and man shall not pass through it: Because our Lord the God of Israel is entered in through it, and it shall be shut {3} for the Prince. The Prince himself shall sit in it, to eat bread before our Lord: by the way of the gate of the entry shall he enter in, and by the way thereof he shall go out. {4} And he brought me by the way of the North gate in the sight of the house: and I saw, & behold the glory of our Lord filled the house of our Lord: and I fell on my face. {5} And our Lord said to me: Son of man set thy heart, and see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all things, that I speak to thee concerning all the ceremonies of the house of our Lord, and concerning all the laws thereof: & thou shalt set thy heart in the ways of the temple, by all the goings out of the sanctuary. {6} And thou shalt say to the house of Israel that exasperateth me: Thus saith our Lord God: Let all your wicked deeds suffice you o house of Israel: {7} because you bring in strange children uncircumcised in heart, & uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, & to pollute my house, & you offer my breads, the fat, and the blood: & you dissolve my covenant in all your wicked abominations. {8} And you have not kept the precepts of my sanctuary: & you have set keepers of my observances in my sanctuary to your own selves. {9} Thus saith our Lord God: Every stranger uncircumcised in heart, & uncircumcised in flesh, shall not enter into my sanctuary, every strange child that is in the midst of the children of Israel. {10} Yea and the Levites that have revolted far from me in the error of the children of Israel, & have erred from me after their idols, and have borne their iniquity: {11} they shall be officers in my sanctuary, and porters of the gates of the house, and ministers of the house: they shall kill the holocausts, and the victims of the people: & they shall stand in their sight, to serve them. {12} For that they have served them in the sight of their idols, and were made to the house of Israel a scandal of iniquity: therefore have I lifted up mine hand upon them, saith our Lord God, & they shall bear their iniquity: {13} and they shall not approach to me, to do the function of priesthood unto me, neither shall they approach to all my sanctuary by Sancta Sanctorum: but they shall bear their confusion, and their wicked abominations which they have done. {14} And I will make them porters of the house, in all the ministry thereof, and in all things that shall be done therein. {15} But the Priests, and Levites, the sons of Sadoc, which kept the ceremonies of my sanctuary, when the children of Israel erred from me, they shall approach to me, to minister unto me: & they shall stand in my sight, to offer me the fat, and the blood, saith our Lord God. {16} They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall approach to my table, to minister unto me, and to keep my ceremonies. {17} And when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments: neither shall any woollen thing come upon them, when they minister in the gates of the inner court & within. {18} There shall be linen mitres on their heads, & there shall be linen breeches on their loins, & they shall not be girded in sweat. {19} And when they shall go out to the outer court unto the people, they shall put off from them their vestments, wherein they had ministered, and shall lay them up in the vestry of the sanctuary, & they shall clothe themselves with other garments: and they shall not sanctify the people in their vestures. {20} And they shall not shave their head, nor nourish their hair: but polling they shall poll their heads. {21} And no Priest shall drink wine when he is to enter into the inner court. {22} And widow, and her that is divorced they shall not take for wives, but virgins of the seed of the house of Israel: but a widow also which hath been the widow of a Priest, they shall take. {23} And they shall teach my people what is between a holy thing and polluted, & between clean and unclean they shall shew to them. {24} And when there shall be a controversy, they shall stand in my judgements, & shall judge: my laws, and my precepts in all my solemnities shall they keep, and my sabbaths they shall sanctify. {25} And to a dead man they shall not enter in, lest they be polluted, but to father and mother, and son and daughter, & brother & sister, which hath not had an other husband: in which they shall be contaminated. {26} And after that he is cleansed, seven days shall be numbered to him. {27} And in the day of his entering into the sanctuary to the inner court to minister unto me in the sanctuary, he shall offer for his sin, saith our Lord God. {28} And there shall not be inheritance to them, I am their inheritance: and possession you shall not give them in Israel, for I am their possession. {29} The victim both for sin and for offence they shall eat: and every vowed thing in Israel shall be theirs. {30} And the first fruits of all the first born, and all the libaments of all things that are offered, shall be the priest's: and the first fruits of your meats you shall give to the priest, that he may lay up a blessing for thy house. {31} All carrion, and thing taken by a beast of birds, and of cattle the Priests shall not eat.

In distribution of the land (after the captivity) several portions are assigned for the Priests, the Levites, the City, and the Prince: the rest was for the people. 9. Rulers are admonished to observe just measures: 15. and to offer due sacrifices.

{1} AND when you shall begin to divide the land by lot, separate ye first fruits to our Lord, a piece sanctified of the land, in length twenty five thousand, and in breadth ten thousand: it shall be sanctified in all the border thereof round about. {2} And it shall be sanctified on every side by five hundred and five hundred, four square round about: and of fifty cubits for the suburbs thereof round about. {3} And from this measure thou shalt measure the length, of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand, and in it shall be the temple, and Sanctum Sanctorum. {4} The sanctified piece of the land shall be for the Priests the ministers of the sanctuary, which approach to the ministry of our Lord: and it shall be a place to them for houses, and for the sanctuary of holiness. {5} And five and twenty thousand of length, and ten thousand of breadth shall be for the Levites, which minister in the house: they shall possess twenty cells. {6} And the possession of the city you shall give five thousand of breadth, & of length five and twenty thousand, according to the separation of the sanctuary, to all the house of Israel. {7} To the Prince also on this side & on that side, according to the separation of the sanctuary, and according to the possession of the city, against the face of the separation of the sanctuary, and against the face of the possession of the city: from the side of the Sea even to the Sea, and from the side of the East even to the East. And the length according to every part from the West border to the East border. {8} Of the land shall he have possession in Israel: & the Princes shall no more spoil my people: but the land they shall give to the house of Israel according to their tribes. {9} Thus saith our Lord God: Let it suffice you o Princes of Israel: intermit ye iniquity and robberies, and do judgement & justice, separate your confines from my people, saith our Lord God. {10} Just balance, & a just ephi, & a just bate shall be to you. {11} The ephi, & the bate shall be equal, and of one measure: that the bate may take the tenth part of a core, & the ephi the tenth part of a core: according to the measure of a core shall be the equal balancing of them. {12} And a sicle hath twenty oboles. Moreover twenty sicles, and five and twenty sicles, & fifteen sicles make Mnam. {13} And these are the first fruits, which you shall take: the sixth part of an ephi of a core of wheat, and the sixth part of an ephi of a core of barley. {14} The measure of oil also, a bate of oil is the tenth part of a core: and ten bates make a core: because ten bates fill a core. {15} And one ram of a flock of two hundred, of those things that Israel nourisheth for sacrifice, & for holocaust, and for pacifics, to expiate for them, saith our Lord God. {16} All the people of the land shall be bound to these first fruits for the Prince in Israel. {17} And upon the Prince shall the holocaust be, and the sacrifice, and the libaments in the solemnities, and in the Calends, & in the Sabbaths, & in all the solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall make the sacrifice for sin, & the holocaust, & the pacifics to expiate for the house of Israel. {18} Thus saith our Lord God: In the first month, the first of the month, thou shalt take a calf of the herd unspotted, and thou shalt expiate the sanctuary. {19} And the Priest shall take of the blood that shall be for sin: and he shall put it on the posts of the house, and on the four corners of the brim of the altar, & on the posts of the gate of the inner court. {20} And so shalt thou do in the seventh of the month for every one, that hath been ignorant, and was deceived by error, and you shall expiate for the house. {21} In the first month, the fourteenth day of the month shall be with you the solemnity of pasch: seven days shall Azymes be eaten. {22} And the Prince in that day shall make for himself, and for all the people of the land, a calf for sin. {23} And in the solemnity of the seven days he shall make holocaust to our Lord seven calves, and seven rams unspotted daily seven days: and for sin a buck of goats daily. {24} And he shall make the sacrifice an ephi to a calf, and an ephi to a ram: and of oil an hin to every ephi. {25} In the seventh month the fifteenth day of the month, in the solemnity he shall make as are before said, for seven days: as well for sin, as for holocaust, and in sacrifice, and in oil.

A prescription at which gate, and what sacrifices shall be offered for the Prince, every sabbath, and first day of the month. 16. The Prince may give perpetual inheritance to his sons, but to his servants only till the year of Jubilee. 19. with description of the places, where sacrifices shall be prepared.

{1} THUS saith our Lord God: The gate of the inner court, which looketh to the East, shall be shut the six days, in which work is done: but in the Sabbath day it shall be opened, yea & in the day of the Calends it shall be opened. {2} And the Prince shall enter in by the way of the entry of the gate from without, and he shall stand in the threshold of the gate: & the Priests shall make his holocaust, and his pacifics: and he shall adore upon the threshold of the gate, and shall go out: but the gate shall not be shut till evening. {3} And the people of the land shall adore at the door of the gate in the Sabbaths, & in the Calends before our Lord. {4} And this holocaust shall the Prince offer to our Lord: in the Sabbath day six lambs unspotted, & a ram unspotted. {5} And sacrifice an ephi for a ram: but in the lambs the sacrifice that his hand shall give: and of oil an hin for every ephi. {6} And in the day of the Calends a calf of the herd unspotted: and the six lambs, and the rams shall be unspotted. {7} And an ephi for a calf, an ephi also for a ram shall he make sacrifice: {903} but the lambs, as his hand shall find: & of oil an hin, for every ephi. {8} And when the Prince is to go in, let him go in by the way of the entry of the gate, and by the same way let him go out. {9} And when the people of the land shall enter in the sight of our Lord in the solemnities: he that goeth in by the North gate to adore, let him go out by the way of the South gate: moreover he that goeth in by the way of the South gate, let him go out by the way of the North gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate, whereby he entered, but at that over against it he shall go out. {10} And the Prince in the midst of them with the goers in shall go in, & with the goers out shall go out. {11} And in the fairs, and in the solemnities there shall be sacrifice an ephi for a calf, & an ephi for a ram: but of the lambs, there shall be sacrifice as his hand shall find: and of oil an hin for every ephi. {12} But when the Prince shall make a voluntary holocaust, or voluntary pacifics to our Lord: to him the gate shall be opened, that looketh to the East, & he shall make his holocaust, & his pacifics, as it is wont to be done in the Sabbath day: and he shall go out, and the gate shall be shut after that he is gone forth. {13} And a lamb of the same year unspotted, shall he make for holocaust daily to our Lord: always in the morning shall he make it. {14} And he shall make sacrifice upon it morning by morning the sixth part of an ephi: & of oil the third part of an hin, that it may be mingled with the flour: a sacrifice to our Lord by ordinance, continual & everlasting. {15} He shall make the lamb, & the sacrifice, & the oil morning by morning, an everlasting holocaust. {16} Thus saith our Lord God: If the Prince shall give a gift to any of his sons: his inheritance shall be to his sons, they shall possess it by inheritance. {17} But if he give a legacy of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall be his until the year of remission, & it shall return to the Prince: and his inheritance shall be to his sons. {18} And the Prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by violence, & of their possession: & of his own possession he shall give the inheritance to his sons: that my people be not dispersed every one from his possession. {19} And he brought me in by the entry, that was on the side of the gate, into the cells of the sanctuary to the Priests, which looked to the North. And there was a place bending to the West. {20} And he said to me: This is the place where the Priests shall seethe that for sin, and that for offence: where they shall dress the sacrifice, that they bring it not out into the utter court, & the people be sanctified. {21} And he brought me into the utter court, and he led me about by the four corners of the court: and behold there was a little court in the corner of the court, to every corner of the court a little court. {22} In the four corners of the court were little courts disposed, of forty cubits in length, and thirty in breadth: the four were of one measure. {23} And a wall round about compassing the four little courts: and there were kitchens builded under the porches round about. {24} And he said to me: This is the house of kitchens wherein the ministers of the house of our Lord shall seethe the victims of the people.

The Prophet seeth waters issuing from under the Temple: 4. increasing to an unpassable torrent: 9. whereto come all sorts of fished: 12. with tress on the banks bringing forth fruit every month. 13. And the land is given in portions to the twelve tribes.

{1} AND he turned me to the gate of the house, and behold waters issued forth under the threshold of the house toward the East: for the face of the house looked to the East: but the waters descended into the right side of the temple to the South part of the altar. {2} And he led me out by the way of the North gate, and he turned me to the way without the utter gate, the way that looked to the East: and behold waters flowing on the right side. {3} When the man went out toward the East, that had the cord in his hand, he measured a thousand cubits: and he brought me through the water even to the ankles. {4} And again he measured a thousand, & he brought me through the water even to the knees: {5} and he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water even to the reins. And he measured a thousand, a torrent which I could not pass over, because the waters were risen of the deep torrent which can not be passed over. {6} And he said to me: Certes thou hast seen o son of man. And he brought me out, and he turned me to the bank of the torrent. {7} And when I had turned my self, behold in the bank of the torrent exceeding many trees on both sides. {8} And he said to me: These waters, that issue forth toward the heaps of the sand in the East, and descend to the plains of the desert, shall go into the sea, & shall go out, & the waters shall be healed. {9} And every living soul, that creepeth, whither soever the torrent cometh shall live: and there shall be fishes very many after these waters are come thither, and they shall be healed, and all things shall live, to which the torrent shall come. {10} And fishers shall stand over them, from Engaddi even to Engallim shall be drying of nets: there shall be very many sorts of fishes thereof, as the fishes of the great sea, of a passing great multitude: {11} but in the shore thereof, & in the fenny places they shall not be healed, because they shall be turned into salt pits. {12} And over the torrent shall rise in the banks thereof on both sides every tree bearing fruit: the leaf shall not fall from it, & the fruit thereof shall not fail: every month shall it bring forth first fruits, because the waters thereof shall issue out of the sanctuary: & the fruits thereof shall be for meat, & the leaves thereof for medicine. {13} Thus saith our Lord God: This is the border, in which you shall possess the land in the twelve tribes of Israel: because Joseph hath a double cord. {14} and you shall possess it every man in like manner as his brother: upon which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers: and this land shall fall unto you for a possession. {15} And this is the border of the land: toward the North quarter, from the great sea by the way of Hethalon, as they come to Sedada, {16} Emath, Berotha, Sabarim, which is between the border of Damascus and the confine of Emath, the house of Tichon, which is by the border of Auran. {17} And the border from the Sea even to the court of Enon, shall be the border of Damascus, and from the North to the North, the border of Emath the North quarter. {18} Moreover the East quarter from the midst of Auran, and from the midst of Damascus, and from the midst of Galaad, and from the midst of the land of Israel, Jordan making the bound to the East sea, you shall measure also the East quarter. {19} And the South quarter toward the South from Thamar even to the waters of contradiction of Cades: and the torrent even to the great sea: and this is the South quarter toward the South. {20} And the quarter of the Sea, the great sea from the confine directly, till thou come to Emath: this is the quarter of the Sea. {21} And you shall divide this land unto you by the tribes of Israel: {22} and you shall cast it for an inheritance to you, and to the strangers, that shall come to you, that have begotten children in the midst of you: and they shall be unto you as the same country-men born among the children of Israel: they shall divide the possession with you in the midst of the tribes of Israel. {23} And in what tribe soever the stranger shall be, there shall you give him possession, saith our Lord God.

Further description of every tribe's part of the land: 8. likewise of the portions of Priests, 13. Levites, 15. City, 21. and Prince: 31. with twelve gates named of the twelve tribes.

{1} AND these are the names of the tribes from the borders of the North, by the way of Hethalon, as they go to Emath, the court of Enan the brother of Damascus toward the North, by the way of Emath. And the East quarter thereof to the sea shall be for Dan one. {2} And to the border of Dan, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Aser one: {3} and upon the border of Aser, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Nephthali one. {4} And upon the border of Nephthali, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Manasses one. {5} And upon the border of Manasses, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Ephraim one. {6} And upon the border of Ephraim, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Ruben one. {7} And upon the border of Ruben, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Juda one. {8} And upon the border of Juda, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, shall be the first fruits, which you shall separate, five and twenty thousand of breadth & of length, as every portion from the East quarter to the quarter of the Sea: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst thereof. {9} The first fruits, which you shall separate to our Lord: the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand. {10} And these shall be the first fruits of the sanctuary of the Priests: toward the North of length five and twenty thousand, and toward the Sea of breadth ten thousand. Yea and toward the East of breadth ten thousand, and toward the South of length five and twenty thousand: and the sanctuary of our Lord shall be in the midst thereof. {11} The sanctuary shall be for the Priests of the sons of Sadoc, which kept my ceremonies, & erred not when the children of Israel erred, as the Levites also erred. {12} And for them shall be the first fruits of the first fruits of the land holy of holies, by the border of the Levites. {13} Yea & to the Levites in like manner by the borders of the Priests five & twenty thousand of length, & of breadth ten thousand. All the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand. {14} And they shall not sell thereof, nor change, neither shall the first fruits of the land be transported, because they are sanctified to our Lord. {15} But the five thousand, that remain in the breadth against the five & twenty thousand, shall be the profane parts of the city for habitation, and for the suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof. {16} And these are the measures thereof: to the North quarter five hundred and four thousand: and to the South quarter five hundred and four thousand: and to the East quarter five hundred & four thousand: & to the West quarter five hundred & four thousand: {17} And the suburbs of the city shall be, to the North two hundred fifty, & to the South two hundred fifty, and to the East two hundred fifty, and to the Sea two hundred fifty. {18} And that which shall be residue in length according to the first fruits of the sanctuary, ten thousand toward the East, and ten thousand toward the west, shall be as the first fruits of the sanctuary: and the fruits thereof shall be for bread to them, that serve the city. {19} And they that serve the city, shall work of all the tribes of Israel. {20} All the first fruits, of five and twenty thousand, answering to five and twenty thousand four square, shall be separated according to the first fruits of the sanctuary, and to the possession of the city. {21} And that which shall be left, shall be the prince's of every part of the first fruits of the sanctuary, and of the possession of the city over against the five and twenty thousand of the first fruits unto the east border: Yea & to the sea over against the five & twenty thousand, unto the border of the Sea, likewise it shall be in the portions of the Prince: and the first fruits of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary of the temple shall be in the midst thereof. {22} And of the possession of the Levites, & of the possession of the city in the midst of the prince's portions: shall be to the border of Juda, and to the border of Benjamin, shall also pertain to the prince. {23} And to the rest of the tribes: from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Benjamin one. {24} And against the border of Benjamin, from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Simeon one. {25} And upon the border of Simeon from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Issachar one. {26} And upon the border of Issachar, from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Zabulon one. {27} And upon the border of Zabulon, from the East quarter to the quarter of the Sea, for Gad one. {28} And upon the border of Gad, to the south quarter toward the South: and the border shall be from Thamar, even to the waters of contradiction of Cades, the inheritance against the great sea. {29} This is the land, which you shall divide by lot to the tribes of Israel: and these are the portions of them, saith our Lord God. {30} And these are the goings out of the city: from the North quarter thou shalt measure five hundred and four thousand. {31} And the gates of the city according to the names of the tribes of Israel, three gates on the North side, the gate of Ruben one, the gate of Juda one, the gate of Levi one. {32} And to the East quarter, five hundred and four thousand: and three gates, the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one. {33} And to the South quarter, thou shalt measure five hundred and four thousand: and three gates, the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zabulon one. {34} And to the West quarter, five hundred and four thousand, and their gates three, the gate of Gad one, the gate of Aser one, the gate of Nephthali one. {35} Round about eighteen thousand: and the name of the city from that day, Our Lord there.

THE PROPHECY OF DANIEL

The King of Babylon by force entering into Jerusalem, spoileth the temple: 6. amongst others carrieth captive Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: {8} who abstaining from the King's meats, 15. are fairer than other children, 17. and wiser (Daniel also understanding dreams) than all the magicians of Chaldee.

{1} IN the third year of the kingdom of Joakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Jerusalem, and besieged it. {2} And our Lord delivered into his hand Joakim the king of Juda, and part of the vessels of the house of God: and he carried them away into the land of Sennaar, into the house of his god, & the vessels he brought into the house of the treasure of his god. {3} And the king spake to Asphenez the governor of the Eunuchs, that he should bring in of the children of Israel, and of the kings, & the tyrant's seed, {4} children in whom was no spot, beautiful of form, and instructed in all wisdom, cunning in knowledge, and taught in discipline, and that might stand in the king's palace, that he might teach them the learning, and the tongue of the Chaldees. {5} And the king appointed them a certain provision for every day, of his meats, & of the wine whereof he drank himself, that being nourished three years, afterward they might stand in the king's sight. {6} There were therefore among them of the children of Juda, Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias. {7} And the governor of the eunuchs gave them names: to Daniel, Baltassar; to Ananias, Sidrach, to Misael, Misach: & to Azarias, Abdenago. {8} But Daniel purposed in his heart, that he would not be polluted of the king's table, nor of the wine of his drink: & he requested the governor of the eunuchs, that he might not be contaminated. {9} And God gave unto Daniel grace and mercy in the sight of the prince of the eunuchs. {10} And the prince of the eunuchs said to

Daniel: I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed for you meat and drink: who if he shall see your faces leaner than the other youths your equals, you shall condemn my head to the king. {11} And Daniel said to Malasar whom the prince of the eunuchs appointed over Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: {12} Prove I beseech thee, thy servants for ten days, & let pulse be given us to eat, & water to drink: {13} and look upon our faces, and the faces of the children that eat of the king's meat: and as thou shalt see, thou shalt do with thy servants. {14} Who hearing that manner of speech, proved them for ten days. {15} And after ten days their faces appeared better & more corpulent than all the children, that did eat of the king's meat. {16} Moreover Malasar took away the meats, and the wine of their drink: and he gave them pulse. {17} And to these children God gave knowledge, and discipline in every book, and wisdom: but to Daniel the understanding of all visions and dreams. {18} The days therefore being accomplished, after which the king had said, that they should be brought in; the governor of the eunuchs brought them in the sight of Nabuchodonosor. {19} And when the king had spoken to them, there were not found such of them all, as Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: and they stood in the king's sight. {20} And every word of wisdom and understanding, that the king demanded of them, he found in them more by ten fold above all the soothsayers, & magicians, that were in all his kingdom. {21} And Daniel was even to the first year of Cyrus the king.

Nabuchodonosor dreameth, and forgetteth his dream, 4. which the magicians not able to tell. 12. are adjudged to die. 14. But Daniel (praying with his three fellows) by revelation, 24. telleth, 36. and interprethet the dream: 46. the King adoreth him, confessing his God to be the only true God, and advanceth him & his fellows.

{1} IN the second year of the kingdom of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuchodonosor saw a dream, and his spirit was terrified, and his dream was fled from him. {2} But the king commanded, that the soothsayers should be called together, and the magicians, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldees: to declare unto the king his dreams: who when they were come, stood before the king. {3} And the king said to them: I saw a dream: & being confounded in mind I know not what I saw. {4} And the Chaldees answered the king in Syriach: King for ever live: tell the dream to thy servants, and we will declare the interpretation thereof. {5} And the king answering said to the Chaldees. The word is departed from me: unless you tell me the dream, and the conjecture thereof, you shall perish, and your houses shall be confiscate. {6} But if you tell the dream, & the conjecture thereof, you shall receive of me rewards, & gifts, and much honour: the dream therefore, and the interpretation thereof tell you me. {7} They answered the second time, & said: Let the king tell his servants the dream, & we will declare the interpretation thereof. {8} The king answered, & said: Surely I know that you redeem time, knowing that the word is departed from me. {9} If therefore you shew me not the dream, there is one sentence of you, that you have also framed a guileful interpretation, and full of deceit, to speak unto me till the time pass away. Tell me therefore the dream, that I may know that you speak a true interpretation also thereof. {10} The Chaldees therefore answering before the king, said: There is no man upon the earth, that can accomplish thy word, o king, yea neither any king great and mighty, demandeth such a word of any soothsayer, & magician, and Chaldee. {11} For the word that thou askest, o king, is weighty: neither shall there be found any, that can shew it in sight of the king, except the gods, whose conversation is not with men. {12} Which thing being heard, the king in fury, and in great wrath commanded that all the wisemen of Babylon should perish. {13} And the sentence being gone forth, wisemen were slain: & Daniel and his fellows were sought for, to perish. {14} Then Daniel inquired concerning the law, and the sentence, of Arioch the prince of the king's warfare, who was gone forth to kill the wisemen of Babylon. {15} And he asked him, that had received the power of the king, for what cause so cruel a sentence was gone forth from the face of the king. When Arioch therefore had shewed the matter to Daniel, {16} Daniel going in desired the king, that he would give him a time to tell the solution to the king. {17} And he went into his house, and he told the matter unto Ananias, & Misael, & Azarias his fellows: {18} that they should ask mercy at the face of the God of heaven upon this sacrament, & Daniel and his fellows might not perish, with the rest of the wisemen of Babylon. {19} Then was the mystery revealed to Daniel by a vision in the night: and Daniel blessed the God of heaven, {20} and speaking said: The name of our Lord be blessed from everlasting & for ever more: because wisdom and strength are his. {21} And he changeth times, and ages: transporteth kingdoms & establisheth them: giveth wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them that understand discipline: {22} he revealeth profound & hidden things, and knoweth the things that are done in darkness: and light is with him. {23} To thee o God of our fathers I confess, and I praise thee: Because thou hast given me wisdom, & strength: and now thou hast shewed me the things that we desired of thee, because the king's word thou hast opened to us. {24} After these things Daniel being entered in to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wisemen of Babylon, spake thus unto him: Destroy not the wisemen of Babylon: bring me in before the presence of the king, & I will tell the solution to the king. {25} Then Arioch in haste brought in Daniel to the king, and said to him: I have found a man of the children of the transmigration of Juda, that can tell the solution to the king. {26} The king answered, and said to Daniel, whose name was Baltassar: Thinkest thou in very deed thou canst tell me the dream, that I saw, and the interpretation thereof? {27} And Daniel answering before the king, said: The mystery, that the king demandeth, the wisemen, the Magicians, and the soothsayers, and the enchanters can not declare unto the king. {28} But there is a God in heaven that revealeth mysteries, who hath shewed unto thee, king Nabuchodonosor, what things are to come in the later times. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head in thy bed, are these. {29} Thou o king beganst to think in thy bed, what should be hereafter: and he that revealeth mysteries, shewed thee what things are to come. {30} To me also not in the wisdom, that is in me more than in all men alive, is this sacrament revealed: but that the interpretation might be made manifest to the king, and thou mightest know the cogitations of thy mind. {31} Thou o king didst see, and behold as it were one great statua: that statua, great and high of stature stood over against thee, and the sight thereof was terrible. {32} The head of this statua was of the best gold, but the breast and the arms of silver, moreover the belly, and the thighs of brass: {33} and the legs of iron, of the feet a certain part was of iron, and a certain of earth. {34} Thou sawest so, till a stone was cut out of a mountain without hands: and it struck the statua on the iron, & earthen feet thereof, & brake them in pieces. {35} Then were the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and gold broken together, and brought as it were into the dust of a summer's floor, that are taken violently with the wind: and there was no place found for them: but the stone that struck the statua, was made a great mountain, and it filled all the earth. {36} This is the dream: the interpretation also thereof we will tell before thee, o king. {37} Thou art the king of kings: and the God of heaven hath given thee kingdom, and strength, and empire, and glory: {38} and all things, wherein the children of men, and the beasts of the field do inhabit, the fowls also of the heaven he hath given in thy hand, and under thy dominion he hath appointed all things: thou therefore art the golden head. {39} And after thee shall rise up an other kingdom less than thou of silver: and an other third kingdom of brass, which shall rule over all the world. {40} And the fourth kingdom shall be as it were iron. As iron breaketh into pieces, & tameth all things, so shall that break, and destroy all these. {41} Moreover because thou sawest part of the feet, and of the toes of the potter's clay, and part of iron: the kingdom shall be divided, which notwithstanding shall rise of the ground of iron, according as thou sawest the iron mingled with the earth of clay. {42} And the toes in part of iron, and in part of earth: in part the kingdom shall be whole, and in part broken. {43} And that thou sawest the iron mingled with the earth of clay, they shall be mingled in deed together with man's seed, but they shall not stick fast one to an other, as iron can not be mingled with earth. {44} But in the days of those kingdoms the God of Heaven will raise up a kingdom, that shall not be dissipated for ever, and his kingdom shall not be delivered to an other people: and it shall break in pieces, and shall consume all these kingdoms: and itself shall stand for ever. {45} According as thou sawest, that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and brake the earth in pieces, and the iron, and the brass, and the silver, and the gold, the great God hath shewed the king what things are to come hereafter. & the dream is true, & the interpretation thereof faithful. {46} Then king Nabuchodonosor fell on his face, & adored Daniel, & commanded to sacrifice to him hosts & incense. {47} The king therefore speaking said to Daniel: In very deed your God is the God of gods, and Lord of kings, and he that revealeth mysteries: because thou couldst open this sacrament. {48} Then the king advanced Daniel on high, & he gave him many gifts, and great: and he made him prince over all the provinces of Babylon: and chief of the magistrates, over all the wisemen of Babylon. {49} And Daniel requested of the king, and he appointed over the works of the province of Babylon, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: but Daniel himself was in the doors of the king.

Nabuchodonosor setteth up a statua, commanding all under pain of death to adore it: 8. which Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago refusing to do, 14. are cast into a burning furnace, 24. wherein they walk, defended by an Angel from burning: praying, and praising God 51. with an hymn, 57. inviting all creatures to praise him, 91. Which the King admiring confesseth, and proclaimeth, that their God is the only true God.

{1} NABUCHODONOSOR the king made a statua of gold in height of sixty cubits, in breadth of six cubits, and he set it in the field of Dura of the province of Babylon. {2} Therefore Nabuchodonosor the king sent to call together the nobles, the magistrates, and judges, dukes, and tyrants, and rulers, and all the princes of the countries, that they should come together to the dedication of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had erected. {3} Then were the nobles gathered together, the magistrates, and judges, the dukes, and tyrants, & the great men that were placed in regiments, and all the princes of the countries, to come together to the dedication of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had erected. And they stood in the sight of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had set up. {4} And the crier cried mightily: To you peoples, and tribes, and tongues it is said: {5} In the hour that you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, & pipe, and harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, and symphony, & all kind of musical instruments: falling adore ye the golden statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king hath set up. {6} But if any man shall not adore prostrate, he shall the self same hour be cast into a furnace of burning fire. {7} After this therefore forthwith as all the peoples heard the sound of the trumpet, the pipe, & harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, of the symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments: all the peoples, tribes, and tongues falling adored the golden statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had set up. {8} And forthwith in the very same time men of Chaldee coming accused the Jews, {9} and said to Nabuchodonosor the king: King for ever live: {10} thou, o king hast made a decree, that every man which shall hear the sound of the trumpet, of the pipe, and harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, of the symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments, prostrate himself, and adore the golden statua: {11} and if any man do not prostrate on the ground adore, that he be cast into a furnace of burning fire. {12} There are therefore men of Jewry, whom thou didst appoint over the works of the country of Babylon, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: these men, o king, have contemned thy decree: thy gods they worship not, and the golden statua, which thou hast erected, they adore not. {13} Then Nabuchodonosor in fury, and in wrath commanded, that Sidrach, Misach, & Abdenago should be brought: who immediately were brought before the king. {14} And Nabuchodonosor the king pronouncing, said to them: In deed Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, do not you worship my gods, & the golden statua that I have set up do not you adore? {15} Now therefore if you be ready, in what hour soever you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, the pipe, the harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, and symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments, prostrate your selves, & adore the statua which I have made: but if you adore not, the self same hour you shall be cast into the furnace of burning fire: and what God is there that shall deliver you out of my hand? {16} Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago answering said to king Nabuchodonosor: We must not answer thee concerning this thing. {17} For behold our God, whom we worship, can save us from the furnace of burning fire, and out of thy hands, o king, deliver us. {18} But if he will not, be it known to thee, o king, that we worship not thy gods, & the golden statua, which thou hast erected, we adore not. {19} Then was Nabuchodonosor replenished with fury: and the look of his face was altered upon Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and he commanded that the furnace should be heated seven times more, than it had been accustomed to be heated. {20} And commanded the strongest men of his host, to bind the feet of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and to cast them into the furnace of burning fire. {21} And forthwith those men being bound with their breeches, and head attire, and shoes, and garments were cast into the furnace of burning fire. {22} For the commandment of the king did urge, and the furnace was heated exceedingly. Moreover the flame of the fire slew those men, that had cast in Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago. {23} But these three men, that is, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago fell in the midst of the furnace of burning fire, bound together. {24} And they walked in the midst of the flame praising God, and blessing our Lord. {25} And Azarias standing prayed thus, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire, he said: {26} Blessed art thou o Lord the God of our fathers, and laudable, and glorious is thy name for ever: {27} because thou art just in all things, which thou hast done to us, and all thy works are true, and thy ways right, and all thy judgements true. {28} For thou hast done true judgements according to all things, that thou hast brought upon us, and upon the holy city of our fathers Jerusalem: because in truth, & in judgement thou hast brought in all these things for our sins. {29} For we have sinned, and done unjustly revolting from thee: and we have offended in all things; {30} and thy precepts we have not heard, nor observed, nor done as thou hadst commanded us, that it might be well with us. {31} All things therefore that thou hast brought in upon us, and all things that thou hast done to us, thou hast done with true judgement: {32} and thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies unjust, & most wicked, & prevaricators, & to an unjust king and most wicked above all the earth. {33} And now we can not open the mouth: we are become a confusion, and reproach to thy servants, & to them that worship thee. {34} Deliver us not for ever, we beseech thee, for thy name sake, and dissipate not thy testament: {35} neither take thou away thy mercy from us, for Abraham thy beloved, and Isaac thy servant, and Israel thy holy one: {36} to whom thou hast spoken, promising that thou wouldest multiply their seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is in the sea shore. {37} Because o Lord we are diminished more than all nations, and are abased in all the earth this day for our sins. {38} And there is not at this time prince, & duke, and prophet, nor holocaust, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense, nor place of first fruits before thee, {39} that we may find thy mercy: but in contrite mind, & spirit of humility let us be received. {40} As in holocaust of rams, and bulls, and as in thousands of fat lambs: so let our sacrifice be made in thy sight this day, that it may please thee: because there is no confusion to them that trust in thee. {41} And now we follow thee in all our heart, and fear thee, and seek thy face. {42} Confound us not, but do with us according to thy meekness, and according to the multitude of thy mercy. {43} And deliver us in thy marvels, and give glory to thy name o Lord: {44} and let all be confounded that shew evils to thy servants, let them be confounded in all thy might, and let their strength be broken: {45} and let them know that thou art the Lord, the only God, and glorious over the round world. {46} And the king's servants that had cast them in, ceased not to heat the furnace, with naphtha, and tow, and pitch, and dry sticks, {47} and the flame mounted out above the furnace nine and forty cubits: {48} and it brake forth, and burnt them whom it found by the furnace, of the Chaldees. {49} But the Angel of our Lord descended with Azarias, and his fellows into the furnace: and he shook the flame of the fire out of the furnace, {50} and made the midst of the furnace as a wind of dew blowing, and the fire touched them not at all, nor pained them, nor did them any grievance. {51} Then these three as out of one mouth praised, and glorified, and blessed God in the furnace, saying: {52} Blessed art thou o Lord the God of our fathers: and laudable, and glorious, and superexalted for ever: and blessed is the holy name of thy glory: and laudable, and superexalted in all ages. {53} Blessed art thou in the holy temple of thy glory: & passing laudable, and passing glorious for ever. {54} Blessed art thou in the throne of thy kingdom, and passing laudable, and superexalted for ever. {55} Blessed art thou, that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the Cherubs: and laudable, and superexalted for ever. {56} Blessed art thou in the firmament of heaven: and laudable and glorious for ever. {57} All works of our Lord bless ye our Lord, praise and superexalt him for ever. {58} Bless our Lord ye Angels of our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {59} Ye heavens bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {60} All waters that are above the heavens, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {61} Bless our Lord all ye powers of our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {62} Sun and moon bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {63} Stars of heavens bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {64} Every shower, & dew bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {65} All spirits of God bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {66} Fire and heat bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {67} Cold and heat bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {68} Dews and hoar frost bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {69} Frost and cold bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {70} Ice and snows bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {71} Nights and days bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {72} Light and darkness bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {73} Lightnings and clouds bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {74} Let the earth bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {75} Mountains and little hills bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {76} All things that spring in the earth bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {77} Bless our Lord ye fountains: praise and superexalt him for ever. {78} Seas and rivers bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {79} Whales, and all things that move in the waters, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {80} Bless our Lord all ye fowls of heaven: praise and superexalt him for ever. {81} All beasts and cattle bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {82} Sons of men bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {83} Let Israel bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {84} Priests of our Lord bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {85} Servants of our Lord bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {86} Spirits and souls of the just bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {87} Holy and humble of heart bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. {88} Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. Because he hath delivered us from hell, and saved us out of the hand of death, and delivered us out of the midst of the burning flame, and out of the midst of the fire hath he rid us. {89} Confess ye to our Lord, because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. {90} All religious bless ye our Lord the God of gods: praise and confess ye to him, because his mercy is unto all worlds. {91} Then Nabuchodonosor the king was astonished, and he arose hastily, & said to his nobles: Did we not cast three men fettered into the midst of the fire? Who answering the king, said: It is true o king. {92} He answered, and said: Behold I see four men loose, and walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no corruption in them, & the form of the fourth is like to the son of God. {93} Then came Nabuchodonosor to the door of the furnace of burning fire, and said: Sidrach, Misach, & Abdenago, servants of the high God, go ye forth, and come. And forthwith Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago went out of the midst of the fire. {94} And the nobles, and the magistrates, and judges, and the potentates of the king being gathered together, beheld those men, that the fire had no power on their bodies, & not a hair of their head was singed, yea their breeches were not altered, & the scent of the fire had not passed by them. {95} And Nabuchodonosor breaking forth, said: Blessed be the God of them, to wit, of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who hath sent his Angel, and hath delivered his servants that believed in him: and they changed the king's word, & delivered their bodies that they might not serve, and might not adore any god, except their own God. {96} By me therefore this decree is made, that every people, tribe, and tongue, whatsoever shall speak blasphemy against the God of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, he perish, and his house be wasted: for there is none other God, that can so save. {97} Then did the king promote Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago in the province of Babylon. {98} Nabuchodonosor the king, to all peoples, nations, and tongues, that dwell in the whole earth, peace be multiplied unto you. {99} The high God hath wrought signs and marvelous things with me. It hath pleased me therefore to publish {100} his signs, because they are great: and his marvels, because they are strong: and his kingdom an everlasting kingdom, & his power in generation and to generation.

King Nabuchodonosor having an other dream, telleth it to Daniel, demanding of him the interpretation: 16. who encouraged and warranted to speak freely, sheweth that the King shall become like a beast in form seven years: 28. the same is confirmed by a voice from heaven: 30. and being fulfilled, he is at last restored to his own form, and state, I, and flourishing in my palace, dream that made me sore afraid: and my Nabuchodonosor, was quiet in my house, [2] I saw a cogitations in my bed, and the visions of my head disturbed me, [3] And by me there was a decree set forth, that all the wisemen of Babylon should be brought into my sight, and that they should shew me the solution of the dream. [4] Then came in the soothsayers, magicians, Chaldees, and diviners, and I told the dream in their sight: & the solution thereof they shewed me not: [5] till their colleague Daniel came into my sight, whose name is Baltassar, according to the name of my God, who hath the spirit of the holy gods in himself: and I told the dream before him. [6] Baltassar prince of the soothsayers, because I know that thou hast the spirit of the holy gods in thee, and no secret is impossible to thee: tell thou the visions of my dreams, which I have seen, and the solution of them. [7] The vision of my head in my bed, I saw, and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof exceeding. [8] A great tree, and strong: and the height thereof touching the heaven: the sight thereof was even to the ends of all the earth. [9] The leaves thereof most fair, and the fruit thereof exceeding much: and the food of all things in it: under it dwelt cattle, and beasts, and in the boughs thereof conversed the fowls of heaven: and of it all flesh did eat. [10] I saw in the vision of my head upon my bed, & behold a watchman, and an holy one descended from heaven. [11] He cried mighty, and thus he said: Cut ye down the tree, & chop off the boughs thereof: shake off the leaves thereof, and scatter the fruits thereof: let the beasts fly that are under it, and the fowls from the boughs thereof. [12] But yet leave the spring of the roots thereof in the earth, and let it be tied with iron, and brazen band among the grass, that is without, and let it be dipped with the dew of heaven, and with wild beasts his portion in the grass of the earth. [13] Let his heart be changed from human, & let the heart of a wild beast be given him: and let seven times be changed over him. [14] In the sentence of the watchman is the decree, and the word of saints, and the petition, till the living know, that the high one ruleth in the kingdom of men: and to whomsoever it shall please him, he will give it, & the basest man he will appoint over it. [15] This dream saw I, Nabuchodonosor the king: thou therefore o Baltassar tell the interpretation quickly: because all the wisemen of my kingdom can not declare the solution unto me: but thou canst, because the spirit of holy gods is in thee. [16] Then Daniel, whose name was Baltassar, began secretly to think within himself as it were for one hour: & his cogitations troubled him. But the king answering said: Baltassar, let not the dream and the interpretation thereof trouble thee. Baltassar answered, and said: My lord, the dream be to them, that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof be thine enemies. [17] The tree which thou sawest high and strong, whose height reacheth to heaven, and the sight thereof into all the earth: [18] and the bough thereof most fair, and the fruit thereof exceeding much, and the food of things in it, under it the beasts of the field inhabiting, & in the boughs thereof the fowls of heaven abiding: {19} It is thou king, which art magnified, & become mighty: & thy greatness hath grown, and is come even to heaven, and thy power unto the ends of the earth. {20} But in that the king saw a watchman, and an holy one descend from heaven, and say: Cut ye down the tree, and dissipate it, but leave the spring of the roots thereof in the earth, and let it be bound with iron and brass among the grass without, and let it be sprinkled with the dew of heaven, and let his fodder be with the wild beasts, till seven times be changed over him. {21} This is the interpretation of the sentence of the Highest, which is come upon my lord the king. {22} They shall cast thee out from men, and with beasts and wild beasts shall thy habitation be, and grass thou shalt eat as an ox, & with the dew of heaven thou shalt be wet: seven times also shall be changed over thee, till thou know that the High one ruleth over the kingdoms of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will. {23} But whereas he commanded, that the spring of the roots thereof, that is, of the tree, should be left: thy kingdom shall remain to thee after thou shalt have known that power is heavenly. {24} Wherefore o king let me counsel thee, and redeem thee by thy sins with alms, & thine iniquities with the mercies of the poor: perhaps he will forgive thine offences. {25} All these things came upon Nabuchodonosor the king. {26} After the end of twelve months he walked in the palace of Babylon. {27} And the king answered, & said: Is not this Babylon the great city, which I have built to be the house of the kingdom, in the strength of my power, and in the glory of my beauty? {28} And when the word was yet in the king's mouth, a voice came down from heaven: To thee it is said Nabuchodonosor: Thy kingdom shall pass from thee, {29} and from men they shall cast thee out, and with beasts and wild beasts shall thy habitation be: grass as an ox shalt thou eat, and seven times shall be changed over thee till thou know that the High one ruleth in the kingdom of men, & to whomsoever he will, he giveth it. {30} The self same hour was the word accomplished upon Nabuchodonosor, and he was cast away from among men, & as an ox did he eat grass, and with the dew of heaven his body was imbrued: till his hairs grew into the similitude of eagle's, & his nails as it were of bird's. {31} Therefore after the end of the days, I, Nabuchodonosor lifted up mine eyes to heaven, and my sense was restored to me: and I blessed the Highest, and praised him that liveth for ever, and glorified him: because his power is an everlasting power, and his kingdom in generation and generation. {32} And all the inhabitants of the earth with him are reputed for nothing: for he doth according to his will, as well in the powers of heaven, as in the inhabitants of the earth: & there is none that can resist his hand, and say to him: Why didst thou it? {33} In the very same time did my sense return to me, & I came to the honour, and beauty of my kingdom: and my figure returned to me: and my nobles, & my magistrates sought for me, and I was restored in my kingdom: and more ample magnificence was added to me. {34} Now therefore I, Nabuchodonosor praise, and magnify, and glorify the King of heaven: because all his works are true, and his ways judgements, and them that walk in pride he can humble.

King Baltassar making a great banquet, with his nobles drink in the holy vessels, which were taken from the Temple of Jerusalem. 5. Fingers appear writing on the wall: 10. which only Daniel readeth, and interpreteth 18. signifying the ruin of the King. 30. happening the same night.

{1} BALTASSAR the king made a great feast to his nobles a thousand: and every one drank according to his age. {2} He commanded therefore now being drunk that the vessels of gold & silver, should be brought, which Nabuchodonosor his father had carried away out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem, that the king, and his Nobles might drink in them, and his wives, and concubines. {3} Then were the golden and silver vessels brought, which he had carried away out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem: and the king and his nobles drank in them, his wives and concubines. {4} They drank wine, and praised their gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone. {5} In the very same hour there appeared fingers, as it were of the hand of a man, writing over against the candlestick in the utter part of the wall of the king's palace: and the king beheld the joints of the hand that wrote. {6} Then was the king's face changed, and his cogitations troubled him: and the junctures of his reins were loosed, and his knees were strucken one against the other. {7} The king therefore cried out mighty that they should bring in the magicians, Chaldees, and soothsayers. And the king speaking said to the wisemen of Babylon: Whosoever shall read this writing, and shall make the interpretation thereof manifest unto me, shall be clothed with purple, and shall have a golden chain on his neck, & shall be the third in my kingdom. {8} Then all the king's wisemen going in could not neither read the writing, nor declare the interpretation to the king. {9} Wherewith king Baltassar was much troubled, and his countenance was changed: yea and his nobles were troubled. {10} And the queen for the thing that had happened to the king, and his nobles, entered into the house of the feast: and speaking she said: King for ever live: let not thy cogitations trouble thee, neither let thy face be changed. {11} There is a man in thy kingdom, that hath the spirit of the holy gods in him: and in the days of thy father knowledge and wisdom was found in him: for king Nabuchodonosor also thy father appointed him prince of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldees, and soothsayers, thy father, I say o king: {12} Because more ample spirit, and prudence, and understanding, & interpretation of dreams, and shewing of secrets, and solution of things bound were found in him, that is in Daniel: to whom the king gave the name Baltassar. Now therefore let Daniel be called, and he will tell the interpretation. {13} Daniel therefore was brought in before the king. To whom the king speaking, said: Art thou Daniel of the children of the captivity of Juda, whom my father the king brought out of Jewry? {14} I have heard of thee, that thou hast the spirit of the gods, and more ample knowledge, and understanding, and wisdom are found in thee. {15} And now there have come into my sight the wise magicians, that they might read this writing, and might shew me the interpretation thereof: and they could not declare me the sense of this word. {16} Moreover I have heard of thee, that thou canst interpret obscure things, and resolve things bound: if therefore thou be able to read the writing, & to shew me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with purple, and shall have a chain of gold about thy neck, & shall be the third prince in my kingdom. {17} To which things Daniel answering, said before the king: Thy rewards be they unto thee, and the gifts of thy house give to an other: but the writing will I read thee, o king, and the interpretation thereof will I shew to thee. {18} O king, God the most high gave to Nabuchodonosor thy father kingdom and magnificence, glory and honour. {19} And for the magnificence, which he gave to him, all peoples, tribes, and tongues trembled, and feared him: whom he would he killed: and whom he would, he struck: and whom he would he exalted: and whom he would, he humbled. {20} But when his heart was elevated, and his spirit obstinately set to pride, he was deposed from the throne of his kingdom, and his glory was taken away. {21} And he was cast out from the sons of men, yea and his heart was set with the beasts, and with the wild asses was his habitation: grass also he did eat as an ox, and with the dew of heaven his body was imbrued: till he knew that the Highest had power in the kingdom of men, and whomsoever it shall please him he will raise up over it. {22} Tho also his son Baltassar, hast not humbled thy heart, whereas thou knowest all these things: {23} but against the dominator of heaven thou wast elevated: and the vessels of his house have been brought before thee: and thou, and thy nobles, and thy wives, and thy concubines have drunk wine in them: the gods also of silver, and of gold, and of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone that see not, nor hear, nor feel, thou hast praised: moreover the God, that hath thy breath in his hand, and all thy ways, thou hast not glorified. {24} Therefore from him is the joint of the hand sent, which hath written this that is drawn. {25} And this is the writing which is ordered: MANE, THECEL, PHARES. {26} And this the interpretation of the word.

{1} MANE: God hath numbered thy kingdom, and hath finished it. {27} THECEL: thou art weighed in the balance, and art found having less. {28} PHARES: thy kingdom is divided, and is given to the Medes, and Persians. {29} Then the king commanding Daniel was clothed with purple, and a chain of gold was put about his neck: & it was proclaimed of him that he had power the third in the kingdom. {30} The same night was Baltassar the king of Chaldee slain. {31} And Darius the Mede succeeded into the kingdom, being three score and two years old.

King Darius making Daniel one of the three chief rulers of his Kingdom: 4. and intending also to advance him higher, other Princes accuse him for praying to God, contrary to the King's edict. 16. Whereupon he is cast into the lion's den: 21. but is conserved without any hurt: 24. his accusers are devoured by the lions, and commandment is given, that all men shall fear the God of Daniel.

{1} IT pleased Darius, and he appointed over the kingdom governors an hundred twenty to be in all his kingdom. {2} And over them three princes, of whom Daniel was one: that the governors might render account to them, & the king might sustain no trouble. {3} Daniel therefore passed all the princes, and governors: because there was the spirit of God more ample in him. {4} Moreover the king thought to appoint him over all the kingdom, whereupon the princes, & the governors sought to find occasion against Daniel on the behalf of the king: and they could find no cause, nor suspicion, because he was faithful, and no fault, nor suspicion was found in him. {5} Those men therefore said: We shall not find against this same Daniel any occasion, unless perhaps in the law of his God. {6} Then the princes, and the governors by surreption suggested to the king, and spake thus unto him: King Darius, for ever live: {7} All the princes of the kingdom, the magistrates, and governors, the senators and judges have taken counsel, that there go forth an imperial decree, and an edict: That every one, which shall ask any petition of whatsoever god, or man, until thirty days, but of thee o king, he be cast into the lake of lions. {8} Now therefore o king confirm the sentence, and write the decree: that it may not be changed, which is decreed by the Medes and the Persians, nor be lawful for any man to transgress it. {9} Moreover king Darius put forth the edict, and decreed it. {10} Which when Daniel had perceived, that is to say, the law determined, he went into his house: and the windows being opened in his upper chamber, three times in a day toward Jerusalem bowed he his knees, and adored, and confessed before his God, as also he had accustomed to do before. {11} Those men therefore searching curiously, found Daniel praying, and beseeching his God. {12} And coming they spake to the king upon the edict: O king, hast thou not decreed, that every man which should ask any of the gods, & men until thirty days, but thyself o king, he should be cast into the lake of lions? To whom the king answering, said: The word is true according to the decree of the Medes, and Persians, which it is not lawful to transgress. {13} Then they answering said before the king: Daniel of the children of the captivity of Juda, hath not cared for thy law, and for the edict, that thou madest: but three times in a day he prayeth with his prayer. {14} Which word when the king had heard, he was stricken very sad: and for Daniel he set his heart to deliver him, and even until sun set he laboured to deliver him. {15} But those men perceiving the king said to him: know thou o king, that the law of Medes and Persians is, that every decree, which the king hath determined, is not lawful to be changed. {16} Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the lake of lions. And the king said to Daniel: Thy God, whom thou doest worship always, he will deliver thee. {17} And there was a stone brought, and laid upon the mouth of the lake: which the king sealed with his ring, and with the ring of his nobles, that nothing should be done against Daniel. {18} And the king went into his house, and slept unsupped, and meats were not brought before him, moreover also sleep departed from him. {19} Then the king rising in the very first break of day, went in haste to the lake of the lions: {20} and approaching to the lake, cried on Daniel with a weeping voice, and spake unto him: Daniel servant of the living God, thy God whom thou servest always, hath he been able thinkest thou, to deliver thee from the lions? {21} And Daniel answering the king said: King for ever live. {22} My God hath sent his Angel, and hath shut up the mouths of the lions, and they have not hurt me: because before him justice hath been found in me: yea and before thee, o king, I have done no offence. {23} Then was the king exceeding glad upon him, & he commanded Daniel to be brought out of the lake: and Daniel was brought out of the lake, and no hurt was found in him, because he believed his God. {24} And by the king's commandment, those men were brought that had accused Daniel: and they were cast into the lake of the lions, themselves, and their children, and their wives: and they came not to the pavement of the lake, till the lions caught them, & brake all their bones in pieces. {25} Then Darius the king wrote to all peoples, tribes, and tongues dwelling in the whole earth: PEACE be multiplied unto you. {26} By me a decree is made, that in all mine empire, and my kingdom they dread and fear the God of Daniel. for he is the living and eternal God for ever: and his kingdom shall not be dissipated, & his power even for ever. {27} He is the deliverer, and saviour, doing sign, & marvels in heaven, and in earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lake of the lions. {28} Moreover Daniel continued unto the kingdom of Darius, and the kingdom of Cyrus the Persian.

Daniel seeth four winds fighting, and four terrible beasts rising from the sea: 9. God sitting in a throne, and served by innumerable Angels. 11. The greatest beast is slain, and the power of the rest diminished. 13. The Son of man receiveth eternal power of God. 15. The prophet much terrified, is instructed that the four beasts signify four kingdoms. 19. The greatest shall prevail for a while, 26. but shortly perish.

{1} IN the first year of Baltassar the king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream: & the vision of his head in his bed: and writing the dream, he comprehended it in a short speech: and in sum comprising it, he said: {2} I saw in my vision by night, and behold the four winds of heaven fought in the great sea. {3} And four great beasts came up, out of the sea diverse one from an other. {4} The first as it were a lioness, & she had the wings of an eagle: I beheld till her wings were plucked off, and she was lifted up from the earth, & she stood upon the feet as a man, & the heart of a man was given to her. {5} And behold an other beast like a bear stood aside: and there were three rews in the mouth thereof, and in the teeth thereof, & thus they said to it: Arise, eat very much flesh. {6} After this I beheld, and lo an other as it were a leopard, and it had wings as of a bird, four upon it, & there were four heads in the beast, and power was given to it. {7} After this I beheld in the vision of the night, and lo a fourth beast terrible and marvelous, and strong exceedingly, it had great iron teeth, eating and breaking, and treading the rest with her feet: and it was unlike to the other beasts, which I had seen before it, and it had ten horns. {8} I considered the horns, and behold an other little horn sprang out of the midst of them: and three of the first horns were plucked off at the presence thereof, and lo eyes as it were the eyes of a man were in this horn, & a mouth speaking great words. {9} I beheld till thrones were set, and the ancient of days sat: his vesture white as snow, and the hairs of his head as clean wool: his throne flames of fire: his wheels fire kindled. {10} A fire & swift stream came forth from his face: thousands of thousands ministered to him, & ten thousand hundred thousands assisted him: judgement sat, and the books were opened. {11} I beheld because of the voice of the great words, which that horn spake: and I saw that the beast was slain, and the body thereof was perished, and was committed to the fire to be burnt. {12} The power of the other beasts also was taken away: and times of life were appointed them until time, and time. {13} I beheld therefore in the vision of the night, and lo with the clouds of heaven there came in, as it were the son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days: and in his sight they offered him. {14} And he gave him power, and honour, and kingdom: and all peoples, tribes, & tongues shall serve him: his power, an eternal power, that shall not be taken away: and his kingdom, that shall not be corrupted. {15} My spirit trembled, I, Daniel was made sore afraid at these things, and the visions of my head troubled me. {16} I came to one of the assistants, and I asked the truth of him concerning all these things, who told me the interpretation of the words, and taught me: {17} These four great beasts, are four kingdoms, which shall rise up out of the earth. {18} And they shall take the kingdom of the holy God most high: & they shall obtain the kingdom even to world, & world of worlds. {19} After this I would diligently learn of the fourth beast, which was very unlike from all, and exceeding terrible: his teeth and claws of iron: he did eat, and break in pieces, & the rest he stamped with his feet: {20} and of the ten horns that he had on his head: and of the other, that had grown up, before which the three horns fell: and of that horn, that had eyes, and the mouth speaking great words, and was greater than the rest. {21} I beheld, and lo that horn made war against the saints, and prevailed over them, {22} till the ancient of days came, & gave judgement to the saints on High, and the time came, and the saints obtained the kingdom. {23} And thus he said: The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom in the earth, which shall be greater than all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall conciliate, and break it in pieces. {24} Moreover the ten horns of that same kingdom, shall be ten kings: and an other shall rise up after them, and he shall be mightier than the former, and he shall bring down three kings. {25} And he shall speak words against the High one, and shall destroy the saints of the Highest: and he shall think that he can change times, & laws, and they shall be delivered into his hand even to a time, & times, & half a time. {26} And judgement shall sit, that might, may be taken away, and be broken, and perish even to the end. {27} And kingdom, and power, and the greatness of the kingdom, that is under all the heaven, be given to the people of the saints of the Highest: whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kings shall serve him, and shall obey him. {28} Hitherto the end of the word, I, Daniel was much troubled with my cogitations, and my face was changed in me: but the word I kept in my heart.

Daniel seeth a ram with two horns overcome by a goat with one horn: 8. Which shall also be broken, and four less rise in place thereof: one of them profaneth the temple in Jerusalem, and taketh away the daily sacrifice. 15. And Gabriel the Archangel expoundeth the vision.

{1} IN the third year of the reign of Baltassar the king, a vision appeared to me. Daniel saw in my vision, after that which I {2} I, had seen in the beginning, when I was in Susis the castle, which is in the province of Ælam: and I saw in the vision, that I was over the gate Ulai. {3} & I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold one ram stood before the marish, having high horns, & one higher than an other & growing under. {4} Afterward I saw the ram pushing with the horns against the West, & against the North, and against the South: and all beasts could not resist him, nor be delivered out of his hand: and he did according to his will, & was magnified. {5} And I understood: and behold a buckgoat came from the West upon the face of the whole earth, & he touched not the ground. Moreover the buckgoat had a notable horn between his eyes: {6} And he came even to that ram with the horns, which I had seen standing before the gate, & he ran towards him in the violence of his strength. {7} And when he had approached near the ram, he was wood against him, and struck the ram: and he brake his two horns, and the ram could not resist him: and when he had cast him on the ground, he trod him, and no man could deliver the ram out of his hand. {8} And the buckgoat became exceeding great: and when he was grown, the great horn was broken, and there rose up four horns under it by the four winds of heaven. {9} And out of one of them came forth one little horn: and it was made great against the South, and against the East, and against the strength. {10} And it was magnified even unto the strength of heaven: and it threw down of the strength, and of the stars, and trod them. {11} And it was magnified even unto the prince of the strength: and from him it took the continual sacrifice, and threw down the place of his sanctification. {12} And strength was given against the continual sacrifice because of sins: and truth shall be thrown prostrate on the ground, and he shall do, and shall prosper. {13} And I heard one of the saints speaking, & one saint said to an other, I know not to whom that spake: How long the vision, and the continual sacrifice, and the sin of the desolation that is made: and the sanctuary, and the strength shall be conculcate? {14} And he said to him: Unto the evening & morning, two thousand three hundred: & the sanctuary shall be cleansed. {15} And it came to pass when I, Daniel saw the vision, and sought the understanding: behold there stood in my sight as it were the form of a man. {16} And I heard the voice of a man between the banks of Ulai: and he cried, and said: Gabriel make this man understand the vision. {17} And he came and stood near where I stood: and when he was come, trembling I fell on my face, & he said to me: Understand son of man, that in the time of the end the vision shall be accomplished. {18} And when he spake to me I fell flat on the ground: and he touched me, and set me up in my standing, {19} and said to me: I will shew thee what things are to come in the last of the malediction: because the time hath his end. {20} The ram, which thou sawest have horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians. {21} Moreover the buckgoat, is the king of the Graecians, and the great horn, that was between his eyes, the same is the first king. {22} But whereas that being broken, there rose up four for it: four kings shall rise up of his nation, but not in his strength. {23} And after their reign, when iniquities shall be increased, there shall arise a king impudent of face, and understanding propositions. {24} And his strength shall be made strong, but not in his own strength: and more than can be believed, shall he waste all things, and shall prosper, and do. And he shall kill the strong, and the people of the saints {25} according to his will, and craft shall be directed in his hand: and he shall magnify his heart, and in the abundance of all things he shall murder very many: & against the prince of princes shall he arise, & without hand he shall be destroyed. {26} & the vision of the evening and the morning, which hath been said, is true: thou therefore seal the vision, because it shall be after many days. {27} And I, Daniel languished, and was sick for certain days: and when I was risen up, I did the king's works, and was astonished at the vision, and there was none that could interpret it.

Daniel confessing that they are justly afflicted for their sins, 15. prayeth for speedy mercy. 20. An Angel signifieth to him, that within seventy weeks of years, Christ will come; 26. and be slain; his people the Jews denying him, whom he will therefore reject.

{1} IN the first year of Darius the son of Assuerus of the seed of the Medes, who reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldees: {2} the first year of his kingdom, I, Daniel understood in books the number of years, whereof the word of our Lord was made to Jeremie the prophet, that seventy years should be accomplished of the desolation of Jerusalem. {3} And I set my face to our Lord my God to pray and beseech in fastings, sackcloth, and ashes. {4} And I prayed our Lord my God, and I confessed, and said: I beseech thee o Lord God great and terrible, which keepest covenant, & mercy to them that love thee, and keep thy commandments. {5} We have sinned, we have done iniquity, we have dealt impiously, and have revolted: & we have declined from thy commandments, and judgements. {6} We have not obeyed thy servants the prophets, that have spoken in thy name to our kings, to our princes, to our fathers, and to all the people of the land. {7} To thee o Lord, justice: but to us confusion of face, as is to day to the man of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, to them that are near, and to them that are far off in all the lands, to which thou hast cast them out, for their iniquities in which they have sinned against thee. {8} O Lord, to us confusion of face, to our princes, & to our fathers that have sinned. {9} But to thee Lord our God mercy and propitiation, because we have revolted from thee: {10} and have not heard the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his law, which he gave us by his servants the prophets. {11} And all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have declined from hearing thy voice, and the malediction hath distilled upon us, & the detestation, which is written in the book of Moyses the servant of God, because we have sinned to him. {12} And he hath established his words, which he spake upon us, and upon our princes, that judged us, that he would bring in upon us a great evil, such as never was under all the heaven, according to that which hath been done in Jerusalem. {13} As it is written in the law of Moyses, all this evil is come upon us: and we besought not thy face o Lord our God, that we might return from our iniquities, & might think on thy truth. {14} And our Lord hath watched upon the malice, and hath brought it upon us: just is the Lord our God in all his works, which he hath done: for we have not heard his voice. {15} And now o Lord our God, which broughtest forth thy people out of the Land of Egypt in a strong hand, & madest thee a name according to this day: we have sinned, we have done iniquity. {16} O Lord according to all thy justice, but let thy wrath be turned away I beseech thee, and thy fury from thy city Jerusalem, & from thy holy mount. For by reason of our sins, and the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem, and thy people are a reproach to all round about us. {17} Now therefore hear o our God the petition of thy servant, & his prayers: and shew thy face upon thy sanctuary, which is desert, for thine own sake. {18} Incline, my God, thine ear, & hear: open thine eyes, and see our desolation, & the city upon which thy name is invoked: for neither in our justifications do we prostrate prayers before thy face, but in thy many commiserations. {19} Hear o Lord, be pacified o Lord: attend & do, delay not for thine own sake my God: because thy name is invoked upon thy city, & upon thy people. {20} And when I yet spake, & prayed, and confessed my sins, and the sins of my people of Israel, and did prostrate my prayers in the sight of my God, for the holy mount of my God: {21} as I was yet speaking in prayer, lo the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision from the beginning, quickly flying touched me in the time of the evening sacrifice. {22} And he taught me, and spake to me, & said: Daniel now am I come forth to teach thee, and that thou mightest understand. {23} From the beginning of thy prayers the word came forth: and I am come to shew it to thee, because thou art a man of desires: and do thou mark the word, and understand the vision. {24} Seventy weeks are abridged upon thy people, & upon thy holy city, that prevarication may be consummate, and sin take an end, & iniquity be abolished; and everlasting justice be brought; & vision be accomplished, and prophecy; & the Holy one of holies be anointed. {25} Know therefore, & mark: From the going forth of the word, that Jerusalem be built again, unto Christ the prince, there shall be seven weeks, & sixty two weeks, & the street shall be built again, & the walls in the straitness of the times. {26} And after sixty two weeks Christ shall be slain: and it shall not be his people, that shall deny him. And the city, & the sanctuary shall the people dissipate with the prince to come: & the end thereof waste, & after the end of the battle the appointed desolation. {27} And he will confirm the covenant to many, one week: and in the half of the week shall the host & the sacrifice fail: and there shall be in the temple the abomination of desolation: & even to the consummation, and to the end shall the desolation endure.

After fasting and other voluntary afflictions, 4. Daniel seeing a man in a strange form, and much terrified therewith, 8. is comforted. 13. The Angels of Persians and Grecians resist his prayer, 20.

S. Michael assisting the Jews.

{1} IN the third year of Cyrus king of the Persians, a word was revealed to Daniel surnamed Baltassar, and a true word, and great strength: & he understood the word: for there is need of understanding in vision. {2} In those days, I, Daniel mourned the days of three weeks, {3} desirable bread I did not eat, and flesh and wine entered not into my mouth, yea neither with ointment was I anointed: till the days of three weeks were accomplished. {4} And in the four & twentieth day of the first month I was by the great river, which is Tigris. {5} And I lifted up mine eyes, & I saw: and behold a man clothed with linen cloths, & his reins girded with the finest gold: {6} and his body as it were the chrysolithus, and his face as the form of lightning, and his eyes as a burning lamp: and his arms, & the parts that are downward even to the feet, as it were the form of glistering brass: and the voice of his word as the voice of a multitude. {7} And I, Daniel alone saw the vision: moreover the men that were with me, saw it not, but exceeding terror fell upon them, and they fled away, and hid themselves. {8} And I being left alone saw this great vision: and there remained no strength in me, yea and my shape of countenance was changed in me, and I withered, neither had any strength. {9} And I heard the voice of his words: and hearing I lay astonished upon my face, and my visage cleaved to the ground. {10} And behold a hand touched me, and lifted me up upon my knees, and upon the joints of my hands. {11} And he said to me: Daniel thou man of desires, understand the words, that I speak to thee, and stand in thy place: for now am I sent to thee. And when he had said this word to me, I stood trembling. {12} And he said to me: Fear not Daniel: because since the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand to afflict thy self in the sight of thy God, thy words have been heard: and I am come for thy words. {13} But the prince of the kingdom of the Persians resisted me one and twenty days: and behold Michael one of the chief princes came to aid me, and I tarried there by the king of the Persians. {14} But I am come to teach thee what things shall come to thy people in the later days, because as yet the vision unto days. {15} And when he spake to me in these manner of words, I cast down my countenance to the ground, and held my peace. {16} And behold as it were the similitude of the son of man touched my lips, and opening my mouth I spake, and said to him, that stood before me: My Lord, in thy vision my joints are dissolved, and no strength hath remained in me. {17} And how can the servant of my Lord speak with my Lord? for no strength is remaining in me, yea & my breath is stopped. {18} Again therefore there touched me as it were the vision of a man, and strengthened me, {19} and he said: Fear not o man of desires, Peace be to thee: take courage & be strong. And when he spake with me, I received strength, and said: Speak my Lord, because thou hast strengthened me. {20} And he said: Doest thou know wherefore I am come to thee? and now I will return, that I may fight against the prince of the Persians. When I therefore went forth, there appeared the prince of the Greeks coming. {21} But yet I will tell thee that which is expressed in the scripture of truth: and none is my helper in all these, but Michael your prince.

Chapter 11

The Angel declareth what shall happen to the Jews under the King of Persia, and by occasion of wars between Aegypt and Syria.

{1} AND I from the first year of Darius the Mede stood that he might be strengthened, and made strong. {2} And now I will declare the truth unto thee. Behold three kings as yet shall stand in Persia, and the fourth shall be enriched with exceeding riches above all: & when he is grown mighty in his riches, he shall raise up all against the kingdom of Greece. {3} But there shall rise a strong king, and shall rule with much power: and he shall do what shall please him. {4} And when he shall stand, his kingdom shall be broken, and it shall be divided into the four winds of heaven:

but not unto his posterity, nor according to his mightiness wherewith he ruled. For his kingdom shall be rent even unto foreigners, beside these. {5} And the king of the South shall be made strong, & there shall of his princes prevail above him, and he shall rule in dominion: for his dominion shall be much. {6} And after the end of years they shall be confederated: and the daughter of the king of the South shall come to the king of the North to make amity, and shall not obtain the strength of the arm, neither shall his seed stand: and she shall be delivered, and they that brought her, her youngmen and they that strengthened her in the times. {7} And there shall stand of the bud of her roots a plant: and he shall come with an army, and shall enter the province of the king of the North: and he shall abuse them, and shall obtain. {8} Moreover also their gods, and sculptiles, the precious vessels also of gold, and silver, he shall carry away captive into Ægypt: he shall prevail against the king of the North. {9} And the king of the South shall enter into the kingdom, and shall return to his own land. {10} And his sons shall be provoked, and they shall gather a multitude of very many hosts: and he shall come hastening, and overflowing: and he shall return and be stirred up, and he shall join battle with his force. {11} And the king of the South being provoked shall go forth, and shall fight against the king of the North, & shall prepare an exceeding great multitude, and a multitude shall be given into his hands. {12} And he shall take a multitude, and his heart shall be exalted, and he shall overthrow many thousands: but he shall not prevail. {13} For the king of the North shall return, and shall prepare a multitude much greater than before: & in the end of times, & years, he shall come hastening with a great host, and riches exceeding much. {14} And in those times many shall rise up against the king of the South, the children also of the prevaricators of thy people shall be extolled to fulfill the vision, and they shall fall. {15} And the king of the North shall come, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take the best fenced cities: & the arms of the South shall not sustain, and his chosen shall rise up to resist, & there shall be no strength. {16} And he shall do coming upon him according to his pleasure, and there shall be none to stand against his face: and he shall stand in a noble land, & it shall be consumed in his hand. {17} And he shall set his face to come to possess all his kingdom, & he shall do right things with him: and he shall give unto him a daughter of women, to overthrow it: and she shall not stand neither shall she be his. {18} And he shall turn his face to the islands, & shall take many: and he shall make the prince of his reproach to cease, and his reproach shall be returned upon him. {19} And he shall turn his face to the empire of his own land, and he shall stumble, and fall, & shall not be found. {20} And there shall stand in his place one most vile, & unworthy of kingly honour: & in few days he shall be destroyed, not in fury nor in battle. {21} And there shall stand in his place one despised, and kingly honour shall not be given him: and he shall come secretly, and shall obtain the kingdom by fraud. {22} And the arms of him that fighteth shall be expugned from before his face, and shall be broken: moreover also the prince of the league. {23} And after the amities, he shall work deceit with him: and he shall go up, and shall overcome with few people. {24} And he shall enter abundant and plentiful cities: & he shall do things that his fathers never did, & his father's fathers: their robberies, and prey, & riches he shall dissipate, and shall devise devises against the best fenced: and this until a time. {25} And his strength & his heart shall be stirred up against the king of the South in a great army: and the king of the South shall be provoked to battle with many aids, and exceeding strong: & they shall not stand because they shall take counsels against him. {26} And they that eat bread with him, shall destroy him, and his army shall be oppressed: & there shall fall slain very many. {27} The heart also of the two kings shall be to evil, and at one table they shall speak lies, and they shall not prosper: because as yet the end unto an other time. {28} And he shall return into his land with much riches: and his heart against the holy testament, and he shall prosper and shall return into his own land. {29} At the time appointed he shall return, and he shall come to the South, and the later end shall not be like to the former. {30} And there shall come upon him galleys, and the Romans, and he shall be stricken, and shall return, and shall fret against the testament of the sanctuary, and he shall speed: and shall return, and shall devise against them, that have forsaken the testament of the sanctuary. {31} And of him shall stand arms, and shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the continual sacrifice: and they shall give abomination into desolation. {32} And the impious against the testament shall dissemble fraudulently: but the people that knoweth their God, shall obtain, and shall do. {33} And the learned in the people shall teach very many: and they shall fall by sword, and by flame, and by captivity, and by spoil of days. {34} And when they are fallen, they shall be relieved with a little aid: and very many shall be joined to them feignedly. {35} And of the learned there shall fall, that they may be tried, and may be chosen, and made white even to the time prefixed: because yet there shall be an other time. {36} And the king shall do according to his will, and shall be elevated, & magnified against every god: and against the God of gods he shall speak magnificical things, & shall be directed, till the wrath be accomplished: for the determination is made. {37} And the God of his fathers he shall not account of: and he shall be in the concupiscences of women, neither shall he care for any of the gods: because he shall rise up against all things. {38} But god Maozim he shall worship in his place: and the God whom his fathers knew not, he shall worship with gold, and silver, and precious stone, and precious things. {39} And he shall do it to fence Maozim with a strange god, whom he acknowledged, and he shall multiply glory, and shall give them power in many, and shall divide the land gratis. {40} And in the time prefixed shall the king of the South make battle against him, & as a tempest shall the king of the North come against him in chariots, and in horsemen, and in a great navy, and he shall enter the lands, and shall destroy, and pass through. {41} And he shall enter into the glorious land, and many shall fall: but these only shall be saved out of his hand, Edom, and Moab, and the beginning of the children of Ammon. {42} And he shall lay his hand upon the lands: and the Land of Ægypt shall not escape. {43} And he shall rule over the treasures of gold, and of silver, and in all the precious things of Ægypt: through Lybia also, and Æthiopia he shall pass. {44} And a bruit shall trouble him from the East, and from the North: and he shall come in a great multitude to destroy and kill very many. {45} And he shall pitch his tabernacle Apadno between the seas, upon a mount glorious and holy: and he shall come even to the top thereof, and no man shall help him.

The Angel describeth the persecution of Antiochus, as the figure & of Antichrist prefigured. 6. The shortness also of his reign is clearly prophesied.

{1} BUT in that time shall rise up Michael the great prince, who standeth for the children of thy people: and a time shall come such as hath not been from the time since nations began even until that time. And in that time shall thy people be saved, every one that shall be found written in the book. {2} And many of those, that sleep in the dust of the earth, shall awake: some unto life everlasting, & others unto reproach to see it always. {3} But they that be learned shall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that instruct many to justice, as stars unto perpetual eternities. {4} But thou Daniel shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time appointed: very many shall pass over, and there shall be manifest knowledge. {5} And I, Daniel saw, and behold there stood as it were two others: one on this side upon the bank of the river, and another on that side, on the other bank of the river. {6} And I said to the man, that was clothed with linen garments, that stood upon the waters of the river: How long the end of these marvels? {7} And I heard the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, that stood upon the waters of the river, when he had lifted up his right hand, & his left hand unto heaven, and had sworn by him that liveth for ever, that unto a time, & times, & the half of a time. And when the dispersion of the hand of the holy people shall be accomplished, all these things shall be accomplished. {8} And I heard, & understood not. And I said: My Lord, what shall be after these things? {9} And he said: Go Daniel, because the words are shut up, and sealed until the prefixed time. {10} Many shall be chosen, and made white, & shall be tried as fire: and the impious shall do impiously, neither shall all the impious understand, but the learned shall understand. {11} And from the time when the continual sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination to desolation shall be set up, a thousand two hundred ninety days. {12} Blessed is he that expecteth, and cometh unto days a thousand three hundred thirty five. {13} But thou go, until the time prefixed: and thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot unto the end of the days.

Two old judges overcome with carnal concupiscence, tempt chaste Susanna: 22. who constantly resisting, {27}, is by them falsely accused, 41. and condemned of adultery. 45. Daniel convinceth them of false testimony, 60. and they are punished with death.

{1} AND there was a man dwelling in Babylon, and his name Joakim: named Susanna, the daughter of Helcias {2} & he took a wife exceeding fair, and fearing God. {3} For her parents being just, instructed their daughter according to the law of Moyses. {4} And Joakim was very rich, and he had an orchard near unto his house: and to him the Jews resorted together, because he was the more honorable of all. {5} And there were two ancients appointed judges in that year, of whom our Lord spake: That iniquities came out of Babylon from the senior judges, that seemed to rule the people. {6} These frequented the house of Joakim, and all that had judgements came to them. {7} And when the people returned at noon, Susanna went in, and walked in her husband's orchard. {8} and the ancients saw her daily going in, and walking: and they were inflamed to the concupiscence of her: {9} and they subverted their sense, and declined their eyes that they would not see heaven, nor remember just judgements. {10} They were both therefore wounded with the love of her, neither did they shew their grief one to the other: {11} for they were ashamed to shew one an other their concupiscence, being desirous to lie with her: {12} and they watched every day carefully to see her. And one said to the other: {13} Let us go home, because it is the hour of dinner. And going forth they departed one from an other. {14} And when they were returned, they came into one place: and asking of each other the cause, they confessed their concupiscence: and then in commune they appointed a time, when they might find her alone. {15} And it came to pass, when they observed a fit day, she went in on a time as yesterday and the day before, with two maids only, & would be washed in the orchard: for it was an hot season. {16} And there was none there, but the two ancients hid, & beholding her. {17} She therefore said to the maids: Fetch me oil, and washing balls, and shut the doors of the orchard, that I may be washed. {18} And they did as she had commanded: and they shut the doors of the orchard, and went out by a back door to fetch the thing that she had commanded; and they knew not that the ancients were hid within. {19} But when the maids were gone forth, the two ancients arose, and ran to her, and said: {20} Lo the doors of the orchard be shut, and no body seeth us, and we are in the concupiscence of thee: wherefore consent to us, and lie with us. {21} and if thou wilt not, we will give testimony against thee, that there was a young man with thee, and for this cause thou didst send out thy maids from thee. {22} Susanna sighed, and said: Perplexities are to me on every side: for if I shall do this, it is death to me: and if I do it not, I shall not escape your hands. {23} But it is better for me without the act to fall into your hands, than to sin in the sight of our Lord. {24} And Susanna cried out with a loud voice: but the ancients also cried out against her. {25} And one ran to the door of the orchard, and opened it. {26} when the servants therefore of the house had heard the cry in the orchard, they rushed in by the back door, to see what it was. {27} And after the ancients spake, the servants were ashamed exceedingly: because never had there been such a word said of Susanna. And the morrow came. {28} And when the people was come to Joakim her husband, the two ancients also came full of unjust cogitation against Susanna, to put her to death. {29} And they said before the people: Send to Susanna daughter of Helcias the wife of Joakim. And forthwith they sent. {30} And she came with her parents, and children, and all her kin. {31} Moreover Susanna was exceeding delicate, and beautiful of face. {32} But those wicked men commanded that she should be uncovered (for she was covered) that so at least they might be satisfied with her beauty. {33} Her friends therefore wept, & all that had known her. {34} But the two ancients rising up in the midst of the people, laid their hands upon her head. {35} Who weeping looked up to heaven, for her heart had confidence in our Lord. {36} And the ancients said: When we walked alone in the orchard, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the doors of the orchard: and she sent away the maids from her. {37} And a young man that was hid came to her, and lay with her. {38} But we being in a corner of the orchard, seeing the iniquity, ran to them, and saw them lie together. {39} And him in deed we could not take, because he was stronger than we, and opening the doors he lept out: {40} but her when we apprehended, we asked what youngman it was, and she would not tell us, of this thing we are witnesses. {41} The multitude believed them as the ancients and the judges of the people, and they condemned her to death. {42} But Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said: Eternal God, which art the knower of hidden things before they come to pass, {43} thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me: and lo I die, whereas I have done none of these things, which these men have maliciously forged against me. {44} And our Lord heard her voice. {45} and when she was led to death, our Lord raised up the holy spirit of a young boy, whose name was Daniel: {46} and he cried out with a loud voice: I am clean from the blood of this woman. {47} And all the people turning to him, said: What is this word, that thou hast spoken? {48} Who when he stood in the midst of them, said: So foolish ye children of Israel, not judging, nor discerning that which is the truth, have you condemned the daughter of Israel? {49} Return ye to judgement, because they have spoken false testimony against her. {50} The people therefore returned with speed, and the ancients said to him: Come, and sit in the midst of us, and tell us: because God hath given thee the honour of old age. {51} And Daniel said to the people: Separate them far one from an other, and I will discover them. {52} When they were therefore divided one from the other, he called one of them, and said to him: O thou inveterated of evil days, now are thy sins come, which thou didst commit before: {53} judging unjust judgements, oppressing innocents, and dismissing offenders, our Lord saying: The innocent and the just thou shalt not kill. {54} Now then if thou sawest her, tell under what tree thou sawest them talking together. Who said: Under a schine tree. {55} And Daniel said: Well hast thou lied against thine own head: for behold the Angel of God taking the sentence of him, shall cut thee in the midst. {56} And removing him away, he commanded that the other should come, and he said to him: Seed of Chanaan, and not of Juda, beauty hath deceived thee, and concupiscence hath subverted thy heart: {57} so did you to the daughters of Israel, and they fearing spake to you: but the daughter of Juda did not abide your iniquity. {58} Now therefore tell me, under what tree thou tookest them speaking one to an other. Who said: Under a prine tree. {59} And Daniel said to him: Well hast thou also lied against thine own head: for the Angel of our Lord tarrieth, having a sword, that he may cut thee in the midst, and kill you. {60} Therefore all the assembly cried out with a loud voice, and they blessed God, which saveth them that hope in him. {61} And they rose up against the two elders (for Daniel had convinced them by their own mouth to have given false testimony) and they did to them as they had dealt naughtily against their neighbour, {62} to do according to the law of Moyses: & they killed them, and innocent blood was saved in that day. {63} But Helcias, and his wife praised God, for their daughter Susanna, with Joakim her husband, and all her kin, because there was no dishonest thing found in her. {64} And Daniel became great in the sight of the people from that day, & thence forward. {65} And king Astyages was laid to his fathers, & Cyrus the Persian received his kingdom.

Daniel detecteth the fraud of Bel's Priests: who pretend that Bel eateth much meat: 21. for which they are slain, and the idol destroyed. 22. Likewise he destroyeth a dragon, which the Babylonians held for a God. 27. He is cast into the lake of seven lions: 32. whither Habacuc miraculously bringeth him meat: 39. the lions hurt him not: and his accusers are devoured.

{1} AND Daniel was the king's guest, and honoured above all his friends. {2} There was also an idol among the Babylonians named Bel: and there were bestowed on him every day of flour twelve arctabae, and forty sheep, and of wine six great pots. {3} The king also did worship him, and went every day to adore him: But Daniel adored his God. & the king said to him: Why dost thou not adore Bel. {4} Who answering, said to him: Because I worship not idols made with hand, but the living God, that created heaven, and earth, and hath power over all flesh. {5} And the king said to him: Doeth not Bel seem unto thee to be a living God? Seest thou not how much he eateth and drinketh every day? {6} And Daniel smiling said: Be not deceived o king: For this same is within of clay, and without of brass, neither hath he eaten at any time. {7} And the king being wrath called his priests, & said to them: Unless you tell me, who it is that eateth these expenses, you shall die. {8} But if you shew, that Bel eateth these things Daniel shall die, because he hath blasphemed against Bel. And Daniel said to the king: Be it done according to thy word. {9} And the priests of Bel were seventy, beside their wives, and little ones, & children. And the king came with Daniel into the temple of Bel. {10} And the priests of Bel said: Behold we go forth: & thou o king set the meats, & mingle the wine, & shut the door, & seal it with thy ring: {11} and when thou shalt come in the morning, unless thou find all eaten of Bel, dying we will die, or Daniel that hath lied against us. {12} And they contemned, because they had made under the table a secret entrance, & by it they came in always, and devoured those things. {13} It came to pass therefore after they were gone out, the king set the meats before Bel: & Daniel commanded his servants, and they brought ashes, and he sifted them over all the temple before the king: and going forth they shut the door, and sealing it with the king's ring, they departed. {14} But the priests went in by night, according to their custom, and their wives, and their children: and they did eat, and drink all. {15} And the king arose in the first break of day, and Daniel with him. {16} And the king said: Are the seals safe, Daniel? Who answered: Safe o king. {17} And forthwith when he had opened the door, the king looking on the table, cried out with a loud voice: Great art thou o Bel, and there is not any deceit with thee. {18} And Daniel laughed: and he held the king that he should not go in: and he said: Behold the pavement, mark whose steps these are. {19} And the king said: I see the steps of men, & women, and of infants. And the king was angry. {20} Then apprehended he the priests, & their wives, & their children: and they shewed him secret little doors by which they came in, & consumed the things that were on the table. {21} The king therefore slew them, & he delivered Bel into the power of Daniel: who overthrew him, & his temple. {22} And there was a great dragon in that place, & the Babylonians worshipped him. {23} And the king said to Daniel: Lo now thou canst not say, that this same is not a living god: adore him therefore. {24} And Daniel said: The Lord my God I do adore: because he is the living God: {25} but thou o king give me licence, and I will kill the dragon without sword and club. And the king said: I give thee licence. {26} Daniel therefore took pitch, and fat, and hairs, and sod them together: & he made lumps, and gave into the dragon's mouth, & the dragon burst in sunder. And he said: Lo whom you worshipped. {27} Which when the Babylonians had heard, they were wrath exceedingly: and being gathered together against the king, they said: The king is become a Jew. Bel he hath destroyed, the dragon he hath killed, & he hath slain the priests. {28} And they said when they were come to the king: Deliver us Daniel, otherwise we will kill thee, & thy house. {29} The king therefore saw that they pressed upon him vehemently: and compelled by necessity he delivered Daniel to them. {30} Who cast him into the lake of lions, and he was there six days. {31} Moreover in the lake were seven lions, & {928} there were given to them two bodies every day, & two sheep: and they were not given unto them, that they might devour Daniel. {32} And there was Habacuc a prophet in Jewry, & he had boiled broth, & had broken bread in a bowl: and he went into the field, to carry it to the reapers. {33} And the Angel of our Lord said to Habacuc: Carry the dinner which thou hast, into Babylon to Daniel, who is in the lake of lions. {34} And Habacuc said: Lord, Babylon I have not seen, and the lake I know not. {35} And the Angel of our Lord took him by the top of his head, and carried him by the hair of his head, & put him into Babylon over the lake in the force of his spirit. {36} And Habacuc cried, saying: Daniel, take the dinner that God hath sent to thee. {37} And Daniel said: Thou hast remembered me o God, and hast not forsaken them that love thee. {38} And Daniel rising up did eat. Moreover the Angel of our Lord restored Habacuc forthwith in his place. {39} The king therefore came the seventh day to lament Daniel: and he came to the lake, and looked in, and behold Daniel sitting in the midst of the lions. {40} And the king cried out with a loud voice, saying: Great art thou o Lord the God of Daniel. And he drew him out of the lake of lions. {41} But those that had been the cause of his perdition, he cast into the lake, and they were devoured in a moment before him. {42} Then the king said: Let all inhabitants in the whole earth fear the God of Daniel: because he is the Saviour, doing signs, & marvels in the earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lions' den.

THE PROPHECY OF OSEE

In signification of the people's idolatry, the Prophet marrieth a fornicatrix: 4. by his children's names foresheweth their great and long captivity: 11. And afterwards their redemption together with all nations.

{1} THE word of our Lord, that was made to Osee the son of Beeri, in the days of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, Ezechias, kings of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joas king of Israel. {2} The beginning to our Lord of speaking in Osee: and our Lord said to Osee: Go, take thee a wife of fornications, and make children of fornications: because the land fornicating shall fornicate from the Lord. {3} And he went, and took Gomer the daughter of Debelaim: and she conceived, and bare him a son. {4} And our Lord said to him: Call his name Jezrahel: because yet a little while, and I will visit the blood of Jezrahel upon the house of Jehu, and I will make the kingdom of the house of Israel to cease. {5} And in that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrahel. {6} And she conceived yet again, and bare a daughter, and he said to him: Call her name, Without mercy: because I will add no more to have mercy on the house of Israel, but with oblivion I will forget them. {7} And I will have mercy on the house of Juda, and will save them in the Lord their God: and I will not save them in bow and sword, and in battle, & in horses, and in horsemen. {8} And she weaned her that was, Without mercy. And she conceived, and bare a son. {9} And he said: Call his name, Not my people: because you not my people, and I will not be yours. {10} And the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, that is without measure, and shall not be numbered. And it shall be in place where it shall be said to them: Not my people you: it shall be said to them: Children of the living God. {11} And the children of Juda, and the children of Israel shall be gathered together: and they shall set to themselves, one head, and shall ascend out of the earth: because great is the day of Jezrahel.

He admonisheth the two tribes of their sins, threatening their captivity in Babylon. 1. Sheweth the abundance of grace in the Church of Christ, and multitude of nation s to be converted.

{1} SAY ye to your brethren: My people: and to your sister, She that hath obtained mercy. {2} Judge your mother, judge ye: because she not my wife, and I not her husband. Let her take away fornications from her face, and her adulteries from the midst of her breasts. {3} Lest perhaps I strip her naked, and set her according to the day of her nativity: and I will lay her as a wilderness, and will set her as a land unpassable, and will kill her with drought. {4} And I will not have mercy on her children: because they are the children of fornications: {5} because their mother hath fornicated, she is confounded that conceived them: because she said: I will go after my lovers, that give me my breads, & my waters, my wool, and my flax, mine oil, & my drink. {6} For this behold I will hedge thy way with thorns, and I will hedge it with a wall, & she shall not find her paths. {7} And she shall follow her lovers, and shall not overtake them: and she shall seek them, and shall not find, and she shall say: I will go, and will return to my former husband: because it was well with me then, more than now. {8} And she did not know that I gave her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied silver unto her, & gold, which they have made to Baal. {9} Therefore will I return, and will take my corn in his time, and my wine in his time, and I will deliver my wool, and my flax, which covered her ignominy. {10} And now I will reveal her folly in the eyes of her lovers: and there shall not a man deliver her out of my hand: {11} and I will make all her joy to cease, her solemnity, her new-moon, her sabbath, & all her festival times. {12} And I will destroy her vine, and her figtree, of which she said: These are my rewards, which my lovers have given me: and I will lay her as a forest, & the beast of the field shall eat her. {13} And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, to whom she burnt incense, and was adorned with her earlet, and with her tablet, & went after her lovers, & forgot me, saith our Lord. {14} For this, lo I will allure her, and will lead her into the wilderness: and I will speak to her heart. {15} And I will give her dressers of vines out of the same place, and the vale of Achor to open hope: and she shall sing there according to the days of her youth, and according to the days of her ascending out of the Land of Aegypt. {16} And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: She shall call me: My husband, and she shall call me no more, Baalim. {17} And I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and she shall no more remember their name. {18} And I will make with them a league in that day, with the beast of the field, and with the fowl of the heaven, and with that, which creepeth on the earth: and bow, and sword, and battle I will destroy out of the earth: and will make them sleep confidently. {19} And I will despouse thee to me for ever: and I will despouse thee to me in justice, and judgement, and in mercy, and in commiserations. {20} And I will despouse thee to me in faith: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. {21} And it shall be in that day: I will hear, saith our Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth. {22} And the earth shall hear wheat, and wine, and oil: and these shall hear Jezrahel. {23} And I will sow her unto me into the earth, and I will have mercy on her, that was without mercy. {24} And I will say to Not my people: My people art thou: and it shall say: Thou art my God.

The Prophet is commanded again to love an adulteress: 3. whom he maketh long to expect her husband: to signify God's love to the Synagogue: 4. and the Jews state in the new testament: 5. Who at last shall be converted to Christ.

{1} AND our Lord said to me: Yet again go, love a woman beloved of her friend, and an adulteress; as our Lord loveth the children of Israel, and they have respect to strange gods, and love the kernels of grapes. {2} And I digged her unto me for fifteen pieces of silver, and for a core of barley, and for half a core of barley. {3} And I said to her: Thou shalt expect me many days: thou shalt not fornicate, and thou shalt be no man's: but I also will expect thee. {4} Because many days shall the children of Israel sit without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without altar, and without ephod, and without theraphim. {5} And after this the children of Israel shall return, and shall seek the Lord their God, and David their king: and they shall dread at the Lord, and at his goodness in the last days.

Divers great sins of both Kingdoms, 3. are the cause of great punishments threatened, 15. yet the sins of Juda are less excusable, because they have more means to serve God.

{1} HEAR the word of our Lord ye children of Israel, because there is judgement to our Lord with the inhabitants of the land: for there is no truth, and there is no mercy, and there is no knowledge of God in the land. {2} Cursing, and lying, and manslaughter, & theft, and adultery have overflowed, & blood hath touched blood. {3} For this shall the land mourn, and every one shall be weakened that dwelleth in it, in the beast of the field, and in the fowl of the heaven: yea and the fishes of the sea shall be gathered together. {4} But yet let not every man judge: and let not a man be rebuked: for the people are as those, that gainsay the Priest. {5} And thou shalt fall to day, and the Prophet also shall fall with thee: in the night I made thy mother hold her peace. {6} My people have held their peace, because they had not knowledge: because thou hast repelled knowledge, I will repel thee, that thou do not the function of priesthood unto me: and thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I also will forget thy children. {7} According to the multitude of them so have they sinned to me: their glory I will change into ignominy. {8} They shall eat the sins of my people, and at their iniquity shall lift up their souls. {9} And as the people, so shall the Priest be: and I will visit their ways upon them, and their cogitations I will render to them. {10} And they shall eat and shall not be filled: they have fornicated, & have not ceased: because they have forsaken our Lord in not observing. {11} Fornication, & wine, & drunkenness take away the heart. {12} My people hath asked in their wood, & their staff hath declared unto them: for the spirit of fornications hath deceived them, & they have fornicated from their God. {13} Upon the heads of mountains they did sacrifice, and upon little hills they burnt incense: under the oak, and the poplar-tree, and the terebinth, because the shadow thereof was good: therefore shall your daughters fornicate, and your spouses shall be adulteresses. {14} I will not visit upon your daughters when they shall fornicate, and upon your spouses when they shall commit adultery: because they themselves converst with harlots, and with the effeminate they did sacrifice, and the people not understanding shall be beaten. {15} If thou fornicate o Israel, at the least let not Juda offend: and enter ye not into Galgal, and go not up into Bethaven, neither swear ye: Our Lord liveth. {16} Because Israel hath declined as a wanton cow: now will our Lord feed them, as a lamb in latitude. {17} Ephraim is partaker of idols, let him alone. {18} Their banquet is separated, with fornication they have fornicated: the protectors thereof loved to bring ignominy. {19} The spirit hath bound him in his wings, and they shall be confounded at their sacrifices.

The Prophet reprehendeth the Priests, and Princes of both Kingdoms, for drawing the people to idolatry: 8. denouncing captivity for the same.

{1} HEAR ye this o Priests, and attend ye house of Israel, and you the king's house harken: because there is judgement for you, because you are become a snare to speculation, & a net spread upon Thabor. {2} And victims you have declined into the depth: & I, the teacher of them all. {3} I know Ephraim, & Israel is not hid from me: because now hath Ephraim fornicated, Israel is contaminated. {4} They will not give their cogitations to return to their God, because the spirit of fornications is in the midst of them, & they have not known the Lord. {5} And the arrogancy of Israel shall answer in his face: and Israel and Ephraim shall fall in their iniquity, Judas also shall fall with them. {6} In their flocks and in their herds they shall go to seek the Lord, and shall not find: he is taken away from them. {7} They have prevaricated against the Lord, because they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their parts. {8} Sound with the trumpet in Gabaa, & with the shalm in Rama: howl ye in Bethaven, behind thy back o Benjamin. {9} Ephraim shall be in desolation in the day of correction: in the tribes of Israel I have shewed faith. {10} The princes of Juda are become as they that take the bound: I will pour out my wrath as water upon them. {11} Ephraim is suffering calumny, broken in judgement: because he began to go after filthiness. {12} And I as it were a moth to Ephraim: & as the rot to the house of Juda. {13} And Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judas his band: and Ephraim went to Assur, and sent to the king revenger: and he shall not be able to heal you, neither shall he be able to loose the band from you. {14} Because I as it were a lioness to Ephraim, and as a lion's whelp to the house of Juda: I, I will take, and go: I will take away, and there is none that can deliver. {15} Going I will return to my place: until you fail and seek my face.

By afflictions the people will return to God, and hope in Christ to come 4. both the Kingdoms sinning (6. and thinking to be spared for their sacrifices, neglecting works of mercy) 7. shall be punished: 11. but at last delivered from captivity.

{1} IN their tribulation early they will rise up to me: Come, & let us return to our Lord. {2} Because he hath wounded, & will heal us: he will strike, & will cure us. {3} He will revive us after two days: in the third day he will raise us up, & we shall live in his sight. We shall know, & we shall follow, that we may know our Lord. As the morning light, is his coming forth prepared, and he will come to us as a shower timely, and late to the earth. {4} What shall I do to thee Ephraim? What shall I do to thee Juda? Your mercy as a morning cloud, & as the dew passing away in the morning. {5} For this have I hewed in Prophets, I have killed them in the words of my mouth: and thy judgements shall come forth as the light: {6} because I would mercy, and not sacrifice: and the knowledge of God more than holocausts. {7} But they as Adam have transgressed the covenant, there have they prevaricated against me. {8} Galaad a city of them that work idol, supplanted with blood. {9} And as it were the jaws of men that are robbers, partaker with the Priests, of them that in the way kill those that pass out of Sichem: because they have wrought wickedness. {10} In the house of Israel I saw an horrible thing: there the fornications of Ephraim: Israel is contaminated. {11} Yea and thou Juda put thee an harvest, when I shall convert the captivity of my people.

{1} WHEN I would heal Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim was revealed, & the malice of Samaria, because they have wrought lying, & the thief hath entered in spoiling, the robber without. {2} And lest perhaps they may say in their hearts, that I have remembered all their malice: now have their own inventions compassed them, they have been done before me. {3} In their malice they have rejoiced the king: and in their lies the princes. {4} All they committing adultery, as it were an oven heated of the baker: the city was quiet a little from the commisiont of leaven, till the whole was leavened. {5} The day of our king, the princes began to rage by reason of wine: he stretched out his hand with the scorers. {6} Because they have applied their heart as an oven, when he lay in wait for them: he slept all the night baking them, in the morning himself heated as a fire of flame. {7} All were heated as an oven, and have devoured their judges: all their kings are fallen: there is none amongst them that crieth unto me. {8} Ephraim himself was mingled in the peoples: Ephraim is become as hearth-baken-bread that is not turned. {9} Strangers have eaten his strength, & he knew not: yea hoar hairs also were poured out on him, & he was ignorant. {10} And the pride of Israel shall be humbled in his face: neither did they return to the Lord their God, & they have not sought him in all these. {11} And Ephraim is become as a dove seduced, not having an heart: they invoked Aegypt, they went to the Assyrians. {12} And when they shall go forth, I will spread my net upon them: as a fowl of the heaven will I pluck them down, I will beat them according to the hearing of their assembly. {13} Woe to them, because they have revolted from me: they shall be wasted because they have prevaricated against me: & I redeemed them & they have spoken lies against me. {14} And they have not cried to me in their heart, but they howled in their chambers: upon wheat and wine they chewed the cud, they are revolted from me. {15} And I have taught them, and strengthened their arms: and against me they have thought malice. {16} They returned, that they might be without yoke: they became as a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword, for the fury of their tongue. This is their scorning in the Land of Aegypt.

The Chaldees shall destroy the Temple. 3. But the ten tribes shall first be carried into captivity. 6. for worshiping the image of a calf.

{1} IN thy throat let there be a trumpet as an eagle upon the house of the Lord: for that they have transgressed my covenant, and have prevaricated my law. {2} Me they shall invoke: My God, we Israel have known thee. {3} Israel hath cast away the good thing, the enemy shall persecute him. {4} They have reigned, & not of me: they have been Princes, & I knew not: their silver & their gold they made idols to themselves, that they might perish. {5} Thy calf is cast off o Samaria, my fury is wrath against them. How long can they not be cleansed? {6} Because it-self also is of Israel: the workman made it, and it is not God: because the calf of Samaria shall be as spiders' webs. {7} Because they shall sow wind, & reap a whirlwind: there is no standing stalk in it, the bud shall not yield meal: & if it do yield, strangers shall eat it. {8} Israel is devoured: Now is he become in nations as an unclean vessel. {9} Because they went up to Assur, a wild ass solitary to himself: Ephraim have given gifts to lovers. {10} Yea and when they shall hire the nations with reward, now will I gather them together: & they shall rest a while from the burden of the king and the princes. {11} Because Ephraim hath multiplied altars to sin: altars are made to him unto sin. {12} I will write to him my manifold laws, which have been accounted as strange. {13} They shall offer hosts, they shall immolate flesh, and shall eat, and the Lord will not receive them: now will he remember their iniquity, and will visit their sins: they shall return into Aegypt. {14} And Israel hath forgotten his maker, and hath built temples: and Judas hath multiplied fenced cities: & I will cast fire on his cities, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

{1} BE not glad Israel, rejoice not as the peoples: because thou hast fornicated from thy God, thou hast loved reward above all the floors of wheat. {2} The floor and the winepress shall not feed them, and the wine shall lie to them. {3} They shall not dwell in the land of our Lord: Ephraim is returned into Aegypt, and among the Assyrians he hath eaten the thing polluted. {4} They shall not offer wine to our Lord, and they shall not please him: their sacrifices as the bread of mourners: all that shall eat it shall be contaminated: because their bread for their soul, shall not enter into the house of our Lord. {5} What will you do in the solemn day, in the day of the festivity of our Lord? {6} For behold they are gone forth from destruction: Aegypt shall gather them together, Memphis shall bury them: their silver to be desired the nettle shall inherit, the bur in their tabernacles. {7} The days of visitation are come, the days are come of retrIBUTions: know o Israel the foolish Prophet, the mad spiritual man, for the multitude of thine iniquity, the multitude also madness. {8} The watchman of Ephraim with my God: the Prophet is made a snare of ruin upon all his ways, madness in the house of his God. {9} They have sinned deeply, as in the days of Gabaa: he will remember their iniquity, and will visit their sin. {10} As grapes in the desert I found Israel: as the first fruits of the fig-tree in the top thereof I saw their fathers: but they have entered into Beelphegor, and are alienated into confusion, and are become abominable, as those things, which they loved. {11} Ephraim as a bird hath flown away, their glory from birth, and from the womb, and from conception. {12} But if they shall nourish up their children, I will make them without children among men: yea and woe to them, when I shall depart from them. {13} Ephraim, as I saw, was Tyre founded in beauty: & Ephraim shall lead out his children to the murderer. {14} Give them o Lord, what wilt thou give to them? Give them a womb without children, & dry breasts. {15} All their wicked in Galgal, because there I hated them: for the malice of their inventions I will cast them forth out of my house: I will not add to love them, all their princes revolters. {16} Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up, they shall yield no fruit. But and if they shall have issue, I will kill the best beloved things of their womb. {17} My God will cast them away, because they hear him not: and they shall be vagabonds in the nations.

{1} ISRAEL A vine thick of branches, the fruit is made equal to it: according to the multitude of his fruit he hath multiplied altars, according to the plenty of his land he hath abounded in idols. {2} Their heart is divided, now they shall perish: he shall break their idols, he shall destroy their altars. {3} Because they will now say: We have no king: for we fear not our Lord: and what shall a king do to us? {4} You speak words of unprofitable vision, and you shall make a covenant: and judgement shall spring as bitterness upon the furrows of the field. {5} The kine of Bethaven have the inhabitants of Samaria worshipped: Because his people mourned upon him, and his temple wardens rejoiced upon him in his glory, because it departed from him. {6} For he also was carried unto Assur, a gift to the king Revenger: confusion shall take Ephraim, and Israel shall be confused in his own will. {7} Samaria hath made her king to pass as froth upon the face of water. {8} And the excleses of the idol the sin of Israel shall be destroyed: the bur and the thistle shall grow up over their altars: and they shall say to the mountains: Cover us, & to the little hills: Fall upon us {9} From the Days of Gabaa, Israel hath sinned, there they stood: the battle in Gabaa upon the children of iniquity shall not apprehend them.

{10} According to my desire I will chastise them: & the peoples shall be gathered together upon them, when they shall be chastised for their two iniquities. {11} Ephraim an heifer taught to love threshing, & I have passed over the beauty of her neck: I will ascend upon Ephraim, Judas shall plough, Jacob shall break the furrows to himself. {12} Sow to your selves in justice, and reap in the mouth of mercy, fallow ground: but the time to seek our Lord, when he shall come that shall teach you justice. {13} You have ploughed impurity, you have reaped iniquity, you have eaten the fruit of lying: because thou hast trusted in thy ways, in the multitude of thy strong ones. {14} A tumult shall arise in thy people: and all thy munitions shall be destroyed as Salmana was destroyed by his house, that took vengeance on Baal in the day of battle, the mother being dashed in pieces upon the children. {15} So hath Bethel done to you, because of the malice of your iniquities.

{1} AS the morning passed, hath the king of Israel passed away. Because Israel was a child, and I loved him: & out of Aegypt I called my son. {2} They called them, so they departed from their face: they immolated to Baalim, and sacrificed to idols. {3} And I as it were the nurse of Ephraim, carried them in mine arms: and they knew not that I cured them. {4} In the cords of Adam I will draw them, in the bands of charity: and I will be to them as lifting up the yoke upon their cheeks: and I declined to him that he might eat. {5} He shall not return into the Land of Aegypt, and Assur he his king: because they would not convert. {6} The sword hath begun in his cities, and it shall consume his elect, and shall eat their heads. {7} And my people shall hang upon my return: but a yoke shall be put upon them together, which shall not be taken away. {8} How shall I give thee Ephraim, protect thee Israel? How shall I give thee as Adama, lay thee as Seboim? My heart is turned within, my repentance is disturbed together. {9} I will not do the fury of my wrath: I will not return to destroy Ephraim: because I am God, and not man: in the midst of thee the Holy one, and I will not enter into the city. {10} They shall walk after our Lord, as a lion will roar: because he will roar, and the children of the sea shall fear. {11} And they shall fly away as a bird out of Aegypt, and as a dove out of the Land of the Assyrians: and I will place them in their houses, saith our Lord. {12} Ephraim hath compassed me in denying, and the house of Israel in deceit: but Judas a witness is descended with God, and with the saints, faithful.

The people by their sins procure their own miseries, 3. not regarding Jacob's virtues.

{1} EPHRAIM feedeth the wind, and followeth the heat: all the day he multiplieth lying and waste: and he hath made a league with the Assyrians, and he carried oil into Aegypt. {2} The judgement therefore of our Lord with Juda, and visitation upon Jacob: according to his ways, & according to his inventions he will render to him. {3} In the womb he supplanted his brother: and in his strength he was directed with the Angel. {4} And he prevailed against the Angel, and was strengthened: and he wept, and besought him: in Bethel he found him, and there he spake with us. {5} And our Lord the God of hosts, the Lord is his memorial. {6} And thou shalt convert to thy God: keep mercy and judgement, & hope in thy God always. {7} Chanaan in his hand a deceitful balance, he hath loved calumny. {8} And Ephraim said: But yet I am made rich, I have found an idol to my self: all my labours shall not find me the iniquity, which I have sinned. {9} And I, the Lord thy God out of the Land of Aegypt I will yet make thee sit in tabernacles, as in the days of festivity. {10} And I have spoken upon the Prophets, and I have multiplied vision, and in the hand of the Prophets I have been resembled. {11} If an idol in Galaad, then in vain were they in Galgal immolating with oxen: for their altars also as heaps upon the furrows of the field. {12} Jacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept her. {13} But by a Prophet our Lord brought Israel out of Aegypt: and by a Prophet he was preserved. {14} Ephraim hath provoked me to wrath in his bitterness, and his blood shall come upon him, and his reproach his Lord will restore to him.

For their obstinacy in idolatry, 7. greatest plagues are threatened: 10. from which none shall be able to deliver them. 14. But at last Christ coming will redeem all by his death.

{1} EPHRAIM speaking, horror invaded Israel: & he sinned in Baal, and died. they have added to sin: and they have {2} And now made to themselves a molten of their silver as it were the similitude of idols, the whole is the work of crafts-men: to these they say: Immolate men, adoring calves. {3} Therefore they shall be as a morning cloud, & as a morning dew passing away, as dust caught with a whirlwind out of the floor, and as smoke out of the chimney. {4} But I, the Lord thy God out of the Land of Aegypt: and God beside me thou shalt not know, and there is no Saviour beside me. {5} I knew thee in the desert, in the land of wilderness. {6} According to their pastures they were filled, and were made full: they have lifted up their heart, and have forgotten me. {7} And I will be unto them as a lioness, as a leopard in the way of the Assyrians. {8} I will meet them as a bear her young being violently taken away, and I will break in sunder the inner parts of their liver: and will consume them there as a lion, the beast of the field shall tear them. {9} Perdition is thine o Israel: only in me thy help. {10} Were is thy king? Now especially let him save thee in all thy cities: and thy judges, of whom thou saydst: Give me kings, and princes. {11} I will give thee a king in my fury, and will take him away in mine indignation. {12} The iniquity of Ephraim is bound together, his sin is hidden. {13} The sorrows of a woman in travail shall come to him, he a son not wise: for now he shall not stand the confection of the children. {14} Out of the hand of death I will deliver them, from death I will redeem them: I will be thy death o death, thy bite will I be o hell, consolation is hidden from mine eyes. {15} Because he shall divide between brethren: our Lord will bring a burning wind rising from the desert: and it shall dry up his veins, and shall make his fountain desolate, and he shall spoil the treasure of every vessel that is to be desired.

The Prophet forewarning the people of their future afflictions, 2. exhorteth them to repentance, and confession of their sins: 5. foreshewing that God will give much grace to the penitent. 10. All which mysteries only the godly wise shall understand.

{1} LET Samaria perish, because she hath stirred up her God to bitterness: let them perish by the sword, let their little ones be dashed, and let the women with child be cut in sunder. {2} Convert o Israel to our Lord thy God: because thou art fallen in thine iniquity. {3} Take words with you, and convert to our Lord, and say to him: Take away all iniquity, and receive good: and we will render the calves of our lips. {4} Assur shall not save us, we will not mount upon horse: neither will we say any more: Our gods the work of our hands: because thou wilt have mercy on the pupil, which is in thee. {5} I will heal their confections, I will love them voluntarily: because my fury is averted from them. {6} I will be as dew, Israel shall spring as the lily, and his root shall break forth as that of Libanus. {7} His boughs shall go, and his glory shall be as the olive-tree: and his smell as of Libanus. {8} They shall be converted that sit under his shadow: they shall live with wheat, and they shall spring as a vine: his memorial as the wine of Libanus. {9} Ephraim, what have I to do any more with idols? I will hear, and I will direct him as a verdant fir-tree: out of me thy fruit is found. {10} Who is wise, and shall understand these things? Of understanding, and shall know these things? Because the ways of our Lord be right, and the just shall walk in them: but prevaricators shall fall in them.

THE PROPHECY OF JOEL

The Chaldees shall miserably waste the Kingdom of Juda: 9. take away sacrifice by destroying the temple: and so make the land barren spiritually and temporally.

{1} THE word of our Lord, that was made to Joel the son of Phatuel. ancients, and harken with your ears all ye {2} Hear this ye inhabitants of the land: if this hath been done in your days, or in the days of your fathers? {3} Upon this tell you to your children, and your children to their children, and their children to an other generation. {4} The residue of the eruke hath the locust eaten, and the residue of the locust hath the bruke eaten, and the residue of the bruke hath the blast eaten. {5} Awake you that be drunk, and weep and howl all ye, that drink wine in sweetness: because it is perished from your mouth. {6} For a nation is ascended upon my land, strong & innumerable: his teeth as the teeth of a lion: & his cheek-teeth as of a lion's whelp. {7} He hath laid my vineyard into a desert, and hath pilled off the bark of my fig-tree: stripping he hath spoiled it, and cast it forth: the boughs thereof are made white. {8} Mourn as a virgin girded with sack-cloth upon the husband of her youth. {9} Sacrifice and libation is perished out of the house of our Lord: the priests our Lord's ministers mourned. {10} The region is destroyed, the ground hath mourned: because the wheat is wasted, the wine is confounded, the oil hath languished. {11} The husbandmen are confounded, the dressers of vines have howled upon the wheat, and the barley, because the harvest of the field is perished. {12} The vineyard is confounded, & the fig-tree hath languished: the pomegranate, & the palm-tree, and the apple-tree, & all the trees of the field are withered: because joy is confounded from the children of men. {13} Gird yourselves, & mourn ye priests, howl ye ministers of the altar: go in, lie in sack-cloth ye ministers of my God: because sacrifice and libation is perished out of the house of your God. {14} Sacrifice ye a fast, call an assembly, gather together the ancients, all the inhabitants of the land into the house of your God: and cry ye to our Lord: {15} A a a, for the day: because the day of our Lord is at hand, and as destruction from the mighty it shall come. {16} Why, are not the virtuels perished before your eyes, joy and exultation out of the house of our God? {17} The beasts are rotted in their dung, the barns are destroyed, the store-houses are dissipated: because the wheat is confounded. {18} Why groan the beast, why lowed the flocks of the herd? Because there is no pasture for them: yea & the flocks of the cattle are perished. {19} To thee o Lord will I cry: because fire hath eaten the beautiful things of the desert, and the flame hath burnt all the trees of the region. {20} Yea and the beasts of the field, as a garden bed thirsting for a shower, have looked up to thee, because the fountains of waters are dried up, and fire hath devoured the beautiful things of the desert.

Chapter 2

The Chaldees will assault and afflict the Jews with great violence. 12. After humble repentance in captivity, 18. God's benignity will comfort them. 13. with abundance of spiritual grace by Christ: 28. sending also the Holy, Ghost. 30. And terrible signs before the day of Judgement.

{1} SOUND ye with the trumpet in Sion, howl in my holy mount, let all the inhabitants of the land be troubled: Because the day of our Lord cometh, {2} because the day of darkness, and of mist is near, the day of cloud, & whirlwind: as the morning spread upon the mountains much people & strong: the like to it hath not been

from the beginning, and after it shall not be even unto the years of generation & generation. {3} Before the face thereof a devouring fire, & after it a burning flame: the land before it as it were a garden of pleasure, and after it the wilderness of a desert, neither is there that can escape it. {4} As the appearance of horses, their appearance, & as horsemen so shall they run. {5} As the sound of chariots upon the top of mountains shall they leap, as the sound of a flame of fire devouring stubble, as a strong people prepared to battle. {6} At his presence the people shall be vexed: all visages shall be made like a pot. {7} They shall run as valiants: as men of war they shall scale the wall: the men shall march in their ways, & shall not decline from their paths. {8} None shall press his brother: they shall walk every one in their own path: yea & through the windows they shall fall, & shall not demolish. {9} They shall enter the city: they shall run on the wall, they shall climb the houses, by the windows they shall enter as a thief. {10} At his presence the earth hath trembled, the heavens are moved: the sun and moon are darkened, and the stars have withdrawn their shining. {11} And our Lord hath given his voice before the face of his host: because his camps are exceeding many, because strong & doing his word: for great is the day of our Lord, and terrible exceedingly: & who shall sustain it? {12} Now therefore saith our Lord: Convert to me in all your heart, in fasting, & in weeping, and in mourning. {13} And rent your hearts, and not your garments, & turn to the Lord your God: because he is benign & merciful, patient and of much mercy, & ready to be gracious upon the malice. {14} Who knoweth if he will convert, & forgive, and leave after him benediction, sacrifice, and libament to the Lord your God? {15} Sound ye with the trumpet in Sion, sanctify a fast, call an assembly, {16} gather together the people, sanctify the Church, assemble the ancients, gather together the little ones, & them that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth to his chamber, & the bride out of her bride-chamber. {17} Between the porch & the altar the priests our Lord's ministers shall weep, & shall say: Spare o Lord, spare thy people: and give not thine inheritance into reproach, that the nations have dominion over them. Why say they in the peoples: Where is their God? {18} Our Lord hath been zealous to his land, & hath spared his people. {19} And our Lord answered, and said to this people: Behold I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and you shall be replenished with them: & I will give you no more to be a reproach in the Gentiles. {20} And him that is from the North, I will make far from you: & I will expel him into a land unpassable, & desert, his face against the east sea, & his extreme part to the last sea: & his stink shall ascend, & his rottenness shall ascend, because he hath done proudly. {21} Fear not o land, rejoice & be glad: because our Lord hath magnified to do. {22} Fear not ye beasts of the region: because the beautiful things of the desert are sprung, because the tree hath brought his fruit, the fig-tree, & the vine have given their vigour. {23} And ye children of Sion rejoice, & be joyful in the Lord your God: because he hath given you a Doctor of justice, & he will make the early and the late shower to descend to you as in the beginning. {24} And the floors shall be filled with wheat, and the presses shall overflow with wine and oil. {25} And I will render you the years, which the locust, the bruke, and the blast, and the eruke hath eaten: my great strength which I have sent upon you. {26} And you shall eat eating, and shall be filled: and you shall praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath done marvels with you, and my people shall not be confounded for ever. {27} And you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel: & I, the Lord your God, and there is none besides: and my people shall not be confounded for ever. {28} And it shall be after this: I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons, and your daughters shall prophesy: your ancients shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. {29} Yea and upon my servants and handmaids in those days I will pour out my spirit. {30} And I will give wonders in heaven, and in earth, blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke. {31} The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood: before the great and horrible day of the Lord doth come. {32} And it shall be, every one that shall invoke the name of the Lord, shall be saved: because in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem shall be salvation, as our Lord hath said, and in the residue whom our Lord shall call.

After the conversion of the Jews to Christ, 2. shortly followeth the general Judgement, 3. where every one according to their deserts shall receive (expressed here in parabolical speech) 7. & 19. the wicked everlasting pain: 18. & 20. and the blessed eternal joy.

{1} BECAUSE lo in those days, and in that time when I shall convert the captivity of Juda, & Jerusalem, {2} I will gather together all Nations, and will lead them into the valley of Josaphat: and I will plead with them there upon my people, and mine inheritance Israel, whom they have dispersed in the nations, and have divided my land. {3} And upon my people they have cast lot: & boy they have given to be a strumpet, and wench they have sold for wine, that they might drink. {4} But what is to me and to you o Tyre, and Sidon, and all the border of the Palestines? What, will you render me revenge, and if you do revenge against me, I will soon render you quickly recompense upon your head. {5} For my silver, and my gold you have taken: and my desirable things, and most beautiful you have carried into your temples. {6} And the children of Jerusalem you have sold to the children of the Greeks, that you might make them far off from their coasts. {7} Behold I will raise them up out of the place, wherein you have sold them: and I will turn your retribution upon your own head. {8} And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the children of Juda, and they shall sell them to the Sabaean, a nation far off, because our Lord hath spoken. {9} Proclaim ye this in the Gentiles: sanctify battle, raise up the strong: let them come, let all the men of war come up. {10} Cut your ploughs into swords, and your spades into spears. Let the weak say: That I am strong. {11} Break out, and come all ye nations from round about, and be gathered together: there will our Lord make all thy strong ones to be slain. {12} Let them arise, & let the Gentiles ascend into the valley of Josaphat: because there I will sit, to judge all nations round about. {13} Put in the sithes, because the harvest is ripe: come, and descend, because the press is full, the presses run over: because their malice is multiplied. {14} Peoples, peoples in the valley of concision, because the day of our Lord is nigh in the valley of concision. {15} The sun and the moon are darkened, & the stars have withdrawn their shining. {16} And our Lord will roar out of Sion, and out of Jerusalem he will give his voice: and the heavens, and the earth shall be moved, and our Lord the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. {17} And you shall know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Sion my holy mount: and Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall pass through it no more. {18} And it shall be in that day: the mountains shall distill sweetness, and the hills shall flow with milk: and through all the rivers of Juda shall run waters: and a fountain shall issue out of the house of the Lord, and shall water the torrent of thorns. {19} Aegypt shall be into desolation, & Idumea into a desert of perdition, for that they have done unjustly against the children of Juda, and have shed innocent blood in their land. {20} And Jewry shall be inhabited for ever, and Jerusalem unto generation and generation. {21} And I will cleanse their blood, which I had not cleansed: and the Lord will dwell in Sion.

THE PROPHECY OF AMOS

In the reign of Jozias in Juda, and of Jeroboam in Israel, this Prophet Amos, 3. threateneth Damascus, 6. Gaza, 8. Azotus, and other Philistians, 9. Tyre 11. Idumea, 13. and Ammon, for their obstinacy in sin, abusing his long patience.

{1} THE words of Amos, who was among the Pastors of Thecua: Which he saw upon Israel in the days of Ozias the king of Juda, and in the days of Jereboam the son of Joas the king of Israel, two years before the earth-quake. {2} And he said: Our Lord will roar out of Sion, and out of Jerusalem he will give his voice: and the beautiful places of the Pastors have mourned and the top of Carmel is withered. {3} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Damascus, & upon four I will not convert it: because they have threshed Galaad with iron wains. {4} And I will send fire into the house of Azael, and it shall devour the houses of Benadad. {5} And I will break the bar of Damascus: & I will destroy the inhabitant out of the idol, and him that holdeth the sceptre out of the house of pleasure: and the people of Syria shall be transported to Cyrene, saith our Lord. {6} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Gaza, & upon four I will not convert it, because they have transported a perfect captivity, to shut it up in Idumea. {7} And I will send fire on the wall of Gaza, and it shall devour the houses thereof. {8} And I will destroy the inhabitant out of Azotus, & him that holdeth the sceptre out of Ascalon: & I will turn my hand upon Accaron, & the rest of the Philistians shall perish, saith our Lord God. {9} Thus saith our Lord: Upon the three wickednesses of Tyre, & upon four I will not convert it: because they have shut up a perfect captivity in Idumea, & have not remembered the league of brethren. {10} And I will send fire upon the wall of Tyre, it shall devour the houses thereof. {11} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Edom, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath persecuted his brother with the sword, and hath violated his mercy, & hath held his fury longer, & hath kept his indignation even to the end. {12} I will send fire into Theman: and it shall devour the houses of Bosra. {13} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of the children of Ammon, & upon four I will not convert him: because he hath cut in sunder the women with child of Galaad to dilate his limit. {14} And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabba: and it shall devour the houses thereof with howling in the day of battle, and with a whirlwind in the day of commotion. {15} And Melchom shall go into captivity, himself, and his princes together, saith our Lord.

God also threateneth Moab, 4. Juda, 6. and Israel, 9. that for ingratitude, 12. and other sins, they shall be brought into captivity.

{1} THUS saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Moab, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath burnt the bones of Idumea even to ashes. {2} And I will send fire into Moab, and it shall devour the house of Carioth: and Moab shall die in the sound, in the noise of the trumpet: {3} and I will destroy the judge out of the midst of him, and all his princes I will kill with him, saith our Lord. {4} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Juda, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath cast away the law of our Lord, and not kept his commandments: for their idols have deceived them, after which their fathers went. {5} And I will send fire into Juda, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem. {6} Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Israel, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath sold the just for silver, and the poor for shoes. {7} Which bruise the heads of the poor upon the dust of the earth, and decline the way of the humble: and the son and his father have gone to a young woman, that they might violate my holy name. {8} And upon garments laid to pledge they did lie beside every altar: & the wine of the condemned they drank in the house of their God. {9} But I did cast out the Amorrheite before their face: whose height the height of Cedars, & he strong as an oak: & I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots beneath. {10} It is I that made you come up out of the Land of Aegypt, and I led you in the desert forty years, that you might possess the Land of the Amorrheite. {11} And I raised up of your sons to be Prophets and of your young men Nazareites, is it not so o children of Israel, saith our Lord? {12} And you drank wine to the Nazareites: and the Prophets you commanded, saying: prophesy not. {13} Behold I will screak under you, as a wain screaketh laden with hay. {14} And flight shall perish from the swift, and the valiant shall not obtain his strength, and the strong shall not save his life. {15} And he that holdeth the bow shall not stand, and the swift of his feet shall not be saved, and the rider of the horse shall not save his life. {16} and the stout of heart among the valiants shall fly naked in that day, saith our Lord.

{1} HEAR the word, that our Lord hath spoken upon you, ye children of Israel: upon all the kindred that I brought forth out of the Land of Aegypt, saying: {2} Only you have I known of all the kindreds of the earth: therefore will I visit upon you all your iniquities. {3} Why shall two walk together, unless they be agreed? {4} Will the lion roar in the forest, unless he have a prey? Will the lion's whelp give voice out of his den, unless he hath caught somewhat? {5} Will the bird fall into the snare of the earth, without the fowler? Shall the snare be taken away from the earth, before it hath taken somewhat? {6} Shall the trumpet sound in the city, and will not the people be afraid? Shall there be evil in the city, which our Lord hath not done? {7} Because our Lord God will not do a word, unless he have revealed his secret to his servants the Prophets. {8} The lion shall roar, who will not fear? Our Lord God hath spoken, who shall not prophesy? {9} Make it heard in the houses of Azotus, and in the houses of the Land of Aegypt, and say: Gather ye together upon the mountains of the Samaria, and see the many madnesses in the midst thereof, and them that suffer calumny in the inner parts thereof. {10} And they have not known to do right, saith our Lord, treasuring up iniquity, and robberies in their houses. {11} Therefore thus saith our Lord God: The land shall be in tribulation, & compassed about, and thy strength shall be plucked away from thee, and thy houses shall be spoiled. {12} Thus saith our Lord: As if a Pastor should get out of the lion's mouth two legs, or the tip of the ear: so shall the children of Israel, that dwell in Samaria, be delivered, in the plague of the bed, and in the couch of Damascus. {13} Hear ye, and contest in the house of Jacob, saith our Lord the God of hosts: {14} That in the day when I shall begin to visit the prevarications of Israel, I will visit upon him, and upon the altars of Bethel: and the horns of the altar shall be cut off, and shall fall to the ground. {15} And I will strike the winter house with the summer house: and the houses of ivory shall perish, and many houses shall be dissipated, saith our Lord.

The ten tribes are particularly charged for oppressing the poor, 2, therefore threatened with calamities: 6. blamed for their obstinacy: 12. nevertheless all are admonished to expect Christ.

{1} HEAR this word ye fat kine, which are in the mountains of Samaria: which do calumny to the needy, and break the poor: which say to your lords: Bring, and we will drink. {2} Our Lord God hath sworn by his holy, that lo the days shall come upon you, and they shall lift you upon poles, and your remnant in pots boiling hot. {3} And by the breaches you shall go out one against an other, & you shall be cast forth into Armon, saith our Lord. {4} Come ye to Bethel, and do impiously: to Galgal, and multiply prevarication: and offer in the morning your victims, three days your tithes. {5} And sacrifice ye praise of the leavened: and call voluntary oblations, & proclaim it: for so would you, o children of Israel, saith our Lord God. {6} Whereupon I have given you dullness of the teeth in all your cities, & lack of bread in all your places: and you have not returned to me, saith our Lord. {7} I also have stayed the rain from you, when there remained yet three months unto harvest: and I rained upon one city, and upon an other city I rained not: one part was rained upon, and the part whereupon I rained not, withered. {8} And two and three cities came to one city to drink water, & were not filled: & you returned not to me, saith our Lord. {9} I struck you with a burning wind, and with blasting, the multitude of your gardens, and all your vineyards: your olive groves, & fig-groves the eruke hath eaten: and you returned not to me, saith our Lord. {10} I sent death upon you in the way of Aegypt, I struck your young-men with the sword, even to the captivity of your horses: and I made the putrefaction of your camp to come up into your nostrils: and you returned not to me, saith our Lord. {11} I subverted you, as God subverted Sodom and Gomorath, and you were made as a fire-brand hastily caught from the burning: & you returned not to me, saith our Lord. {12} Wherefore these things will I do to thee Israel: but after I shall do these things to thee, be prepared to meet thy God o Israel. {13} Because lo he that formeth the mountains and createth the wind, and declareth his word to man, maketh the morning mist, and walketh upon the high places of the earth, our Lord the God of host is his name.

Notwithstanding great miseries threatened against the ten tribes: 4. yet if they will repent they shall escape: 7. otherwise they shall fall into captivity: 14. and therefore they are admonished to return to God: 16. but being obstinate, 21. no sacrifice can appease God's wrath.

{1} HEAR ye this word, that I lift upon you a lamentation. The house of Israel is fallen, and it shall not add to rise again. {2} The virgin of Israel is cast forth upon her land, there is none to raise her up. {3} Because thus saith our Lord God: The city, out of which came forth a thousand, there shall be left in it an hundred: and out of which there came an hundred, there shall be left in it ten, in the house of Israel. {4} Because thus saith our Lord to the house of Israel: Seek ye me, and you shall live. {5} And seek not Bethel, and into Galgal enter not, and into Bersabee you shall not pass: because Galgal shall be led captive, and Bethel shall be unprofitable. {6} Seek ye our Lord, & live: lest perhaps the house of Joseph be burnt as fire, and it shall devour, and there shall be none to quench Bethel. {7} You that turn judgement into wormwood, and leave off justice in the land. {8} Him that maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and that turneth darkness into morning, and that changeth day into night: that calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is his name. {9} He that seeketh destruction upon the strong, & bringeth depopulation upon the mighty. {10} They have hated him that rebuketh in the gate: & him that speaketh perfectly they have abhorred. {11} Therefore because you spoiled the poor, & took the chosen prey from him: you shall build houses with square stone, and shall not dwell in them: you shall plant most amiable vineyards, and shall not drink the wine of them. {12} Because I have known many your wickednesses, and your strong sins: enemies of the just, taking bribe, and oppressing the poor in the gate. {13} Therefore shall the wise at that time hold his peace, because it is an evil time. {14} Seek ye good, & not evil, that you may live: & our Lord the God of hosts will be with you, as you have said. {15} Hate ye evil, & love good, and establish judgement in the gate: if perhaps our Lord the God of hosts may have mercy on the remnant of Joseph. {16} Therefore thus saith our Lord the God of hosts the Dominatour, in all streets lamentation: & in all places that are without, shall be said woe woe, & they shall call the husband-man to mourning, and to lamentation them that know to lament. {17} And in all vineyards there shall be lamentation: because I will pass through in the midst of thee, saith our Lord. {18} Woe unto them that desire the day of our Lord: to what purpose the same unto you? This day of our Lord, darkness, and not light. {19} As if a man should fly from the face of a lion, and a bear should meet him: and enter into the house, and lean with his hand upon the wall, and a serpent should bite him. {20} Why, is not the day of our Lord darkness, & not light: and mist, and no shining therein? {21} I have hated, and have rejected your festivities: & I will not take the odour of your assemblies. {22} And if you shall offer unto me holocausts, and your gifts, I will not receive them: & the vows of your fat things I will not respect. {23} Take away from me the tumult of thy songs: & the canticles of thy harp I will not hear. {24} And judgement shall be revealed as water, & justice as a mighty torrent. {25} Why, did you offer hosts and sacrifice to me in the desert forty years, o house of Israel? {26} And you carried a tabernacle for your Moloch, and the image of your idols, the star of your god, which you made to your selves. {27} And I will make you remove beyond Damascus, saith our Lord, the God of hosts is his name.

For the avarice and luxury of both Kingdoms, 7. they shall be carried into captivity.

{1} WOE to you that are rich in Sion, and have confidence in the mountain of Samaria: ye great men, heads of the peoples, going stately into the house of Israel. {2} Pass ye into Chalane, and see, and go ye hence into Emath the great: & descend into Geth of the Palestines, and to all the best kingdoms of these: if their border be larger than your border. {3} You that are separated unto the evil day: & approach to the throne of iniquity. {4} You that sleep in beds of ivory, and play the wantons in your couches: that eat the lamb out of the flock, & calves out of the midst of the herd. {5} You that sing to the voice of the psalter: as David they have thought themselves to have the instruments of song. {6} That drink wine in phials, and are anointed with the best ointment: and they suffered nothing upon the contrition of Joseph. {7} Wherefore now they shall go in the head of them, that go in transmigration: and the faction of the wantons shall be taken away. {8} The Lord God hath sworn by his soul, saith our Lord the God of hosts: I detest the pride of Jacob, and I hate his houses, and I will deliver up the city with the inhabitants thereof. {9} And if there shall be left ten men in one house, they also shall die. {10} And his kinsman shall take him up, and shall burn him, that he may carry the bones out of the house: and he shall say to him, that is in the inner parts of the house: Is there yet with thee? {11} And he shall answer: There is an end. And he shall say to him: Hold thy peace, and remember not the name of our Lord. {12} Because lo our Lord hath commanded, & he will strike the greater house with ruins, & the lesser house with clefts. {13} Why, can horses run upon rocks, or can there be ploughing with buffles? Because you have turned judgement into bitterness, and the fruit of justice into wormwood? {14} Which rejoice in things of naught: which say: Why have not we taken unto us horns in our own strength? {15} For behold I will raise up from you o house of Israel, saith our Lord the God of hosts, a nation: and they shall destroy you from the entrance of Emath, even to the torrent of the desert.

In three visions many miseries are revealed, which shall come upon both the Kingdoms. 10. A false Priest of Bethel accusing the Prophet of sedition, and endeavouring to chase him away, 14. is by him forewarned of miseries of his family, and death to himself.

{1} THESE things hath our Lord God shewed to me: and lo the former of the locust in the beginning of things that spring of the later rain, and behold the later rain after the king's mowing. {2} And it came to pass: after it had finished to eat the grass of the land, I said: O Lord God be propitious I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, because he is a little one? {3} Our Lord hath had pity upon this: It shall not be, saith our Lord. {4} These things hath our Lord God called judgement unto fire, and it devoured the great depth and it did eat a part together. {5} And I said: Lord God be quiet I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, because he is a little one? {6} Our Lord had pity upon this: Yea this also shall not be, saith our Lord God. {7} These things hath our Lord shewed to me: and lo our Lord standing upon a wall plastered, and in his hand a mason's trowel. {8} And our Lord said to me: What seest thou Amos? And I said: A mason's trowel. And our Lord said: Behold I will lay down the trowel in the midst of my people Israel: I will add no more to plaster it over. {9} And the excelses of the idol shall be thrown down, and the sanctifications of Israel shall be made desolate: and I will rise upon the house of Jeroboam with the sword. {10} And Amasias the Priest of Bethel sent to Jeroboam the king of Israel, saying: Amos hath rebelled against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land will not be able to sustain all his words. {11} For thus saith Amos: Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall depart captive out of their land. {12} And Amasias said to Amos: Thou that seest, go, fly into the land of Juda: and eat bread there, and thou shalt prophesy there. {13} And in Bethel thou shalt add no more to prophesy: because it is the sanctification of the king, and it is the house of the kingdom. {14} And Amos answered, and said to Amasias: I am not a Prophet and I am not the son of a Prophet: but an herdsman am I plucking sycamores. {15} And our Lord took me when I followed the flock, and our Lord said to me: Go, Prophesy to my people Israel. {16} And now hear the word of our Lord: Thou sayest: Thou shalt not prophesy upon Israel, and thou shalt not distill upon the house of the idol. {17} Therefore thus saith our Lord: Thy wife shall fornicate in the city, and thy sons, and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy ground shall be measured with a cord, and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel shall depart captive out of their land.

In a vision of an apple hook the captivity of the ten tribes is again foreshewed, 4. with reprobation of their avarice, and oppression of the poor: 7. for which they shall fall into great miseries.

{1} THESE things hath our Lord shewed to me: and behold an apple hook. What seest thou Amos? And I said: An {2} And he said: apple hook. And our Lord said to me: The end cometh upon my people Israel: I will add no more to pass them. {3} And the hinges of the temple shall creak in that day, saith our Lord God: many shall die: in every place shall silence be cast. {4} Hear this you that tread down the poor, & make the needy of the land to fail, {5} saying: When will the month pass, and we shall sell wares: and the Sabbath, and we open the corn: that we may diminish the measure, and increase the sicle, and convey in deceitful balances, {6} that we may for silver possess the needy, and the poor for shoes, and may sell the refuse of the corn? {7} Our Lord hath sworn against the pride of Jacob: If I shall forget even to the end all their works. {8} Why, shall not the land be moved upon this, and every inhabitant thereof mourn: and rise up as a river altogether, and be cast out, & run down to the river of Aegypt? {9} And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord God: The sun shall go down at midday, and I will make the earth to be dark in the day of light. {10} And I will turn your festivities into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation: and I will bring in upon every back of yours sackcloth, and upon every head baldness: and I will lay it as the mourning of an only begotten son, & the later end thereof as a bitter day. {11} Behold the days come, saith our Lord, and I will send forth famine into the land: not the famine of bread, nor thirst of water, but of hearing the word of the Lord. {12} And they shall be moved from the sea even to sea, and from the North even to the East: they shall go about seeking the word of our Lord, and shall not find. {13} In that day the fair virgins shall fail, and the young men in thirst. {14} They that swear by the sin of Samaria, and say: Thy God o Dan liveth: and the way of Bersabee liveth: and they shall fall, and shall rise no more.

The great destruction of Jerusalem, 8, and dispersion of all the Jews are again prophesied: 11. with the conversion of Gentiles, and the Church of Christ shall greatly prosper.

{1} I saw our Lord standing upon the altar, and he said: Strike the hinges, & let the lintels be moved: for there is avarice in the head of all, & the last of them will I kill by the sword: there shall be no flight for them: they shall fly, & he shall not be saved that shall fly of them. {2} If they shall descend even to hell, thence shall my hand bring them out: and if they shall ascend even to heaven, thence will I pluck them down. {3} And if they shall be hid in the top of Carmel, thence searching will I take them away: and if they shall hide themselves from mine eyes in the depth of the sea, there will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them. {4} And if they shall go into captivity before their enemies, there will I command the sword, & it shall kill them. And I will set mine eyes upon them to evil, and not to good. {5} And our Lord the God of hosts, which toucheth the earth, & it shall melt away: and all that dwell therein shall mourn: and it shall all rise as a river, and shall run down as the flood of Aegypt. {6} He that buildeth in heaven his ascension, & hath founded his bundle upon the earth: who calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth, the Lord is his name. {7} Why, are not you as the children of the Aethiopians unto me, o children of Israel, saith our Lord? Did not I make Israel to ascend out of the Land of Aegypt: and the Palesthins out of Cappadocia, and the Syrians out of Cyrene? {8} Behold the eyes of our Lord God upon the sinning kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth: but yet destroying I will not destroy the house of Jacob, saith our Lord. {9} For behold I will command, & will shake the house of Israel in all nations, as wheat is shaken in a sieve: and there shall not a little stone fall upon the earth. {10} All the sinners of my people shall fall by the sword: which say: The evil shall not approach, & shall not come upon us. {11} In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David, that was fallen: & I will re-edify the breaches of the walls thereof, and those things, that were fallen I will repair: & I will re-edify him as in the days of old. {12} That they may possess the remnant of Idumea, and all nations, because that my name is invoked upon them: saith our Lord that doth these things. {13} Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and the plougher shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of the grape him that soweth seed: and the mountains shall drop sweetness, and all hills shall be tilled. {14} And I will convert the captivity of my people Israel: and they shall build the desert cities, and inhabit: and shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine of them: and shall make gardens, and eat the fruits of them. {15} And I will plant them upon their own ground: & I will no more pluck them out of their land, which I have given them, saith our Lord thy God.

THE PROPHECY OF ABDIAS

ABDIAS born in Sichem, of the tribe of Ephraim, prophesied the same time with Amos; so briefly that his prophecy is not parted into Chapters: 1. against the Idumeans; foreshewing their destruction. 10. for their perpetual enmity against the Jews, and confederacy with the Chaldees. 17. The captivity and relaxation of the Jews. And redemption of the whole world by Christ.

{1} THE vision of Abdias. Thus saith our Lord God to Edom: We have heard a bruit from our Lord, and he hath sent a legate to the Gentiles: Rise ye, and let us arise against him into battle. {2} Behold I have given thee a little one in the Gentiles: thou art contemptible exceedingly. {3} The pride of thy heart hath extolled thee, dwelling in the clefts of rocks, exalting thy throne: which sayst in thy heart: Who shall pluck me down to the earth? {4} If thou shalt be exalted as an eagle, and if thou shalt set thy nest among the stars: thence will I pluck thee down, saith our Lord. {5}

If thieves had gone in to thee, if robbers by night, how hadst thou held thy peace? Would not they have stolen things sufficient for themselves? If the grape gatherers had entered in to thee, would they not have left thee at the least a cluster? {6} How have they searched Esau, have they sought out his hidden things? {7} Even to the border have they cast thee out? All the men of thy league have mocked thee: the men of thy peace have prevailed against thee: they that eat with thee, shall lay ambushments under thee: there is no wisdom in him. {8} Why, shall not I in that day, saith our Lord, destroy the wise out of Idumea, and prudence from the mount of Esau. {9} And thy valiants of the South shall fear, that man may perish from the mount of Esau. {10} For the slaughter, and for the iniquity against thy brother Jacob, confusion shall cover thee, and thou shalt perish for ever. {11} In the day when thou stoodest against him, when strangers took his army, and foreigners entered his gates, and upon Jerusalem cast lot: thou also wast as one of them. {12} And thou shalt not despise in the day of thy brother, in the day of his peregrination: and thou shalt not rejoice over the children of Juda, in the day of their perdition: & thou shalt not magnify thy mouth in the day of distress. {13} Neither shalt thou enter the gate of my people in the day of their ruin: neither shalt thou also despise in his evils in the day of his destruction: and thou shalt not be sent out against his army in the day of his destruction. {14} Neither shalt thou stand in the outgoings to kill them that fly: & thou shalt not shut up his remnant in the day of tribulation. {15} Because the day of our Lord is at hand upon all nations: as thou hast done, so shall it be done to thee: thy retribution he will return upon thine own head. {16} For as you have drunk upon my holy mount, shall all Gentiles drink continually: & they shall drink, and swallow up, and they shall be as though they were not. {17} And in mount Sion shall be salvation, and it shall be holy: and the house of Jacob shall possess those that had possessed them. {18} And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau stubble: and they shall be kindled in them, and shall devour them: and there shall be no remains of the house of Esau, because our Lord hath spoken. {19} And they that are toward the South, shall inherit the mount of Esau, and they in the champion countries, Philisthiims: and they shall possess the region of Ephraim, and the region of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Galaad. {20} And the transmigration of his host of the children of Israel, all places of the Chananeites even to Sarepta: and the transmigration of Jerusalem, that is in Bosphorus, shall possess the cities of the South. {21} And saviours shall ascend into mount Sion to judge the mount of Esau: and the kingdom shall be to our Lord.

THE PROPHECY OF JONAS

Jonas being sent to preach in Ninive, flyeth by sea: 4. a tempest riseth, 8. whereof he being found by lot, to be the cause 12. is cast into the sea, 15. and it is calm.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to Jonas the son of Amathi, saying: {2} Arise, and go into Ninive the great city, and preach in it: because the malice thereof is ascended before me. {3} And Jonas arose to fly into Tharsis from the face of our Lord, and he went down into Joppe, and found a ship going into Tharsis: and he gave the fare thereof, and went down into it, that he might go with them into Tharsis from the face of our Lord. {4} But our Lord sent a great wind into the sea: and a great tempest was made in the sea, and the ship was in danger to be broken. {5} And the mariners were afraid, and the men cried to their god: & they threw the vessels, that were in the ship, into the sea, that it might be lightened of them: & Jonas went down into the inner part of the ship, and slept a deep sleep. {6} And the governer came to him & said to him: Why art thou oppressed with sleep? Rise, invoke thy God, if perhaps God will think of us, and we perish not. {7} And every one said to his fellow: Come, and let us cast lots, and know why this evil is to us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonas. {8} And they said to him: Tell us for whose cause this evil is to us, what is thy work? What is thy country? & whither goest thou? Or of what people art thou? {9} And he said to them: I am an Hebrew, & the Lord God of heaven I fear, which made the sea and the dry land. {10} And the men feared with greater fear, and they said to him: Why hast thou done this? (For the men knew that he fled from the face of our Lord: because he had told them.) {11} And they said to him: What shall we do to thee, and the sea shall cease from us? Because the sea went, and swelled. {12} And he said to them: Take me up, and cast me into the sea, and the sea shall cease from you: for I know that for me this great tempest is upon you. {13} And the men rowed, to return to the land, and they were not able: because the sea went and swelled upon them. {14} And they cried to our Lord, and said: We beseech thee o Lord, let us not perish in the life of this man, and give not upon us innocent blood: because thou o Lord, hast done as thou wouldest. {15} And they took Jonas, and cast him into the sea: & the sea ceased from his rage. {16} And the men feared our Lord with great fear, and immolated hosts to our Lord, and vowed vows.

Jonas is swallowed by a great fish; 3. Prayeth with confidence in God; 11. and the fish casteth him on the dry land.

{1} AND our Lord prepared a great fish to swallow down Jonas: and Jonas was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. {2} And Jonas prayed to our Lord his God out of the belly of the fish. {3} And he said: I cried out of my tribulation to our Lord, & he hath heard me: out of the belly of hell cried I, and thou hast heard my voice. {4} And thou hast cast me forth into the depth in the heart of the sea, & a flood hath compassed me: all thy surges, and thy waves have passed over me. {5} And I said: I am cast away from the sight of thine eyes: but yet I shall see thy holy temple again. {6} The waters have compassed me even to the soul: the depth hath inclosed me, the sea hath covered my head. {7} I am descended to the extreme parts of the mountains: the bars of the earth have shut me up for ever: and thou wilt lift up my life from corruption, o Lord my God. {8} When my soul was in distress within me, I remembered our Lord: that my prayer may come to thee unto thy holy temple. {9} They that keep vanities in vain, forsake their mercy. {10} But I in the voice of praise will immolate to thee: what things soever I have vowed I will render for salvation to our Lord. {11} And our Lord spake to the fish: and it vomited up Jonas upon the dry land.

Again Jonas is commanded to preach in Ninive, that within forty days it shall be destroyed: 5. They all fast, and repent: 10. and God recalleth his sentence.

{1} AND the word of our Lord was made to Jonas the second time, saying: {2} Arise, and go into Ninive the great city: and preach in it the preaching which I speak to thee. {3} And Jonas arose, and went into Ninive according to the word of our Lord: and Ninive was a great city of three days' journey. {4} And Jonas began to enter into the city one day's journey: & he cried, and said: As yet forty days, and Ninive shall be subverted. {5} And the men of Ninive believed in God: and they proclaimed a fast, and were clothed with sackcloth from the greater to the lesser. {6} And the word came to the king of Ninive: and he rose up out of his throne, and cast away his garment from him, and was clothed with sackcloth, and sat in ashes {7} And he cried, and said in Ninive from the mouth of the king and of his princes, saying: Men, and beasts, and oxen, and cattle let them not taste any thing: nor feed, and let them not drink water. {8} And let men and beasts be covered with sackcloths, and cry to our Lord in strength, and let every man convert from his evil way, and from the iniquity, that is in their hands. {9} Who knoweth if God will convert, and forgive: and will return from the fury of his wrath, and we shall not perish? {10} And God saw their works, that they were converted from their evil way: and God had mercy on the evil which he had spoken, that he would do to them, and he did it not.

The prophet lamenteth for that he was commanded to preach otherwise than it came to pass. 5. Going forth he stayeth near the city to see the end. 6. An ivy growing covereth his head from the sun; 7. but withereth the next day, 8. and he lamenting desireth to die, /10/ and God sheweth that it is more meet to save Ninive than the ivy.

{1} AND Jonas was afflicted with great affliction, and was angry: to our Lord, & said: I beseech thee o Lord, {2} and he prayed Why, is not this my word, when I was yet in my country? For this did I prevent to fly into Tharsis. For I know that thou art a clement, and merciful God, patient, and of much compassion, and forgiving upon the evil. {3} And now Lord take I beseech thee my soul from me: because better is death to me than life. {4} And our Lord said: Art thou angry well thinkest thou? {5} And Jonas went out of the city, and sat against the East part of the city: and he made himself a bower there, and he sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would befall to the city. {6} And our Lord God prepared an ivy tree, and it came up over the head of Jonas, to be a shadow over his head, and to cover him: for he had laboured: and Jonas rejoiced upon the ivy with great joy. {7} And God prepared a worm in the rising of the morning against the Morrow: & it struck the ivy: & it withered. {8} And when the sun was risen, our Lord commanded an hot and burning wind: and the sun beat upon the head of Jonas, and he broiled for heat: and he desired for his soul to die, and said: It is better for me to die than to live. {9} And our Lord said to Jonas: Art thou angry well, (952) thinkest thou, for the ivy? And he said: I am angry well even unto death. {10} And our Lord said: Thou art sorry for the ivy, wherein thou hast not laboured, nor made it to grow, which in one night came forth, and in one night is perished. {11} And shall not I spare Ninive the great city, wherein are more than a hundred twenty thousand men, that know not what is between their right hand and their left, and many beasts?

THE PROPHECY OF MICHEAS

Samaria and all the ten tribes shall be brought into captivity by the Assirians. 9. The two tribes shall also be invaded and spoiled, even near to Jerusalem.

{1} THE word of our Lord that was made to Micheas the Morasthite, in the days of Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias kings of Juda: which he saw upon Samaria and Jerusalem. {2} Hear all ye peoples: & let the earth attend, & the fullness thereof: and let our Lord God be unto you for a witness, our Lord out of his holy temple. {3} Because lo our Lord will go forth out of his place: and he will descend, and will tread upon the highest of the earth. {4} And the mountains shall be consumed under him: and the valleys shall be cloven, as wax at the presence of fire, and as waters that run down headlong. {5} For the wickedness of Jacob all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the wickedness of Jacob? Is it not Samaria? And what the excelses of Juda? Is it not Jerusalem? {6} And I will lay Samaria as a heap of stones in the field when a vineyard is planted: & I will pluck down her stones into the valley, & will discover her foundations. {7} And all her sculptiles shall be cut in sunder, & all her wages shall be burnt with fire, & I will lay all her idols into perdition: because they are gathered together of the wages of an harlot, & unto the hire of an harlot they shall return. {8} Upon this will I lament, and howl: I will go spoiled, and naked: I will make lamentation as of dragons, & mourning as it were of striches. {9} Because her plague is desperate, because it is come even to Juda, it hath touched the gate of my people even to Jerusalem. {10} In Geth declare it not, weep not with tears: in the house of dust sprinkle your self with dust. {11} And pass ye to your selves o fair habitation, confounded with ignominy: she went not out that dwelleth in the going out: the house adjoining shall receive lamentation for you, which stood to her self. {12} Because she is weakened to good which dwelleth in bitterness: because evil is descended from our Lord into the gate of Jerusalem. {13} Tumult of the chariot of astonishment to the inhabitant of Lachis: it is the beginning of sin to the daughter of Sion, because in thee are found the wickednesses of Israel. {14} Therefore shall he give spoilers upon the inheritance of Geth: the houses of lying into deception to the kings of Israel. {15} As yet will I bring an heir to thee which dwellest in Maresa: even to Odolla shall the glory of Israel come. {16} Be bald, and be polled for the children of thy delicacies: enlarge thy baldness as an eagle: because they are led captives out of thee.

By their great injustice, 7. notwithstanding their vain presumption of God's mercy, whereto he is indeed most prone, 8. the Israelites through their excessive rapine provoke God to punish them. 12. Yet when Christ shall come some Jews will serve him; and many more in the end of the world.

{1} WOE to you which think that is unprofitable, and work evil in your beds: in the morning light they do it, because their hand is against God. {2} And they have coveted fields, and violently taken, and houses forcibly taken away: and oppressed the man and his house, the man and his inheritance. {3} Therefore thus saith our Lord: {954} Behold I purpose evil upon this family: whence you shall not take away your necks, and you shall not walk proud, because it is a very evil time. {4} In that day a parable shall be taken up upon you, and a song shall be sung with sweetnesse, of them that say: With depopulation we are wasted: part of my people is changed: how shall he depart from me, whereas he returneth, that will divide our regions? {5} For this cause thou shalt have none casting the cord of lot in the assembly of our Lord. {6} Speak ye not speaking: It shall not drop upon these, confusion shall not apprehend them. {7} The house of Jacob saith: Why is the spirit of our Lord abridged, or are his cogitations such? Are not my words good with him that walketh rightly? {8} And on the contrary my people is risen up as an adversary: from above the coat you have taken away the cloak: & them that passed simply, you turned into battle. {9} The women of my people you have cast out of the house of their delicacies: from their little ones you have taken my praise for ever. {10} Arise, and go, because you have no rest here. For the uncleanness thereof it shall be corrupted with a sore putrefaction. {11} Would God I were not a man having the spirit, and that I did rather speak a lie: I will distill to thee into wine, and into drunkenness: and it shall be this people upon whom it is distilled. {12} Gathering I will gather thee wholly together o Jacob: I will bring together the remnant of Israel into one, I will put them together as a flock in the fold, as cattle in the midst of sheepcotes, they shall make a tumult by reason of the multitude of men. {13} For he shall ascend opening the way before them: they shall divide, and pass through the gate, and shall enter by it: and their king shall pass before them, and our Lord in the head of them.

For the sins of the rich oppressing the poor, 5. of false Prophets flattering for lucre, 9. and of judges perverting justice, 12. Jerusalem and the temple shall be destroyed.

{1} AND I said: Hear ye Princes of Jacob, and ye dukes of the house of Israel: Why, is it not your part to know judgement, {2} which hate good, and love evil: which violently take away their skins from them, and their flesh from their bones? {3} Which have eaten the flesh of my people, and have flead their skin from them: and have broken, and cut their bones as in a kettle, and as it were flesh in the midst of a pot. {4} shall they cry to our Lord, and he will not hear them: and he will hide his face from them at that time, as they have done wickedly in their inventions. {5} Thus saith our Lord upon the Prophets, that seduce my people: that bite with their teeth, and preach peace: and if a man give not something in their mouth, they sanctify battle upon him. {6} Therefore there shall be night to you for vision, and darkness to you for divination: and the sun shall go down upon the Prophets, and the day shall be darkened over them. {7} And they shall be confounded that see visions, and the diviners shall be confounded: and all shall cover their faces, because there is no answer of God. {8} But yet I am replenished with the strength of the spirit of our Lord, with judgement, & power: to declare unto Jacob his wickedness, and to Israel his sin. {9} Hear this ye princes of the house of Jacob, and ye judges of the house of Israel: which abhor judgement, and pervert all right things. {10} Which build Sion in blood, and Jerusalem in iniquity. {11} Her Princes judged for gifts, and her Priests taught for wages, and her Prophets divined for money: and they rested upon our Lord, saying: Why, is not our Lord in the midst of us? Evils shall not come upon us. {12} For this, because of you, Sion shall be ploughed as a field, & Jerusalem be as an heap of stones, and the mount of the temple as the high places of forests.

Many Gentiles shall believe in Christ: 6. and lastly the multitude of Jews. 8. In the mean time the two tribes be carried into captivity, & be delivered again.

{1} AND it shall be: In the later end of days there shall be the mount of the house of our Lord prepared in the top of mountains, and high above the hills: & people shall flow to it. {2} And many nations shall hasten, & shall say: Come, let us go up to the mountain of our Lord, & to the house of the God of Jacob: & he will teach us of his ways, & we shall go in his paths: because out of Sion shall the law go forth, & the word of our Lord out of Jerusalem. {3} And he shall judge between many peoples, and he shall rebuke strong nations unto a far off: and they shall cut their swords into culters, and their spears into spades: nation shall not take sword against nation: and they shall no more learn to make battle. {4} And every man shall sit under his vine, and under his fig-tree, and there shall be none to make them afraid: because the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it. {5} Because all peoples will walk every one in the name of his god: but we shall walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever. {6} In that day, saith our Lord, I will gather her that halteth: and her that I had cast out, I will gather up, and her whom I had afflicted. {7} And I will make her that halted into a remnant: and her that had laboured into a mighty nation: and our Lord will reign over them in mount Sion, from this time now & for ever. {8} And thou the tower of flock, cloudy of the daughter of Sion shall come to thee: and the first power shall come the kingdom to the daughter of Jerusalem. {9} Now why art thou drawn together with pensiveness? Why, is there not a king to thee, or is thy counsellor perished, because sorrow hath apprehended thee as a woman in travail? {10} Sorrow thou and labour o daughter of Sion, as a woman in travail: because now shalt thou go out of the city, & shall dwell in the country, and shalt come even to Babylon, there thou shalt be delivered: there our Lord will redeem thee out of the hand of thine enemies. {11} And now many nations are gathered together upon thee, which say: Let her be stoned: and let our eye look upon Sion. {12} But they have not known the cogitations of our Lord, and have not understood his counsel: because he hath gathered them together as the hay of the floor. {13} Arise and thresh o daughter of Sion: because I will make thy horn of iron, and thy hoofs I will make of brass: and thou shalt break in pieces many peoples, and shalt kill the spoils of them to our Lord, and their strength to the Lord of the whole earth.

Jerusalem shall be besieged and taken. (2. Christ shall be born in Bethlehem) 3. the Jews shall not be wholly rejected, until the Gentiles begin to embrace the true faith: 4. which shall be spread in the whole world, 8. pure from idolatry, 14. and the incredulous punished.

{1} NOW shalt thou be spoiled daughter of the spoiler: they have laid siege upon us, with a rod shall they strike the cheek of the judge of Israel. {2} AND THOU BETHLEHEM, Ephrata, art a little one in the thousands of Juda: out of thee shall come forth unto me he that shall be the dominatour in Israel: & his coming forth from the beginning, from the days of eternity. {3} Therefore shall he give them even till the time, wherein she that travailed shall bring forth: & the remnant of his brethren shall be converted to the children of Israel. {4} And he shall stand, & feed in the strength of our Lord, in the height of the name of our Lord his God: & they shall be converted, because now shall he be magnified even to the ends of the earth. {5} And this man shall be peace: when the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our houses: & we will raise upon him seven Pastors, & eight principal men. {6} And they shall feed the land of Assur in the sword, and the land of Nemrod in the spears thereof: & he shall deliver from Assur, when he shall come into our Land, & when he shall tread in our coasts. {7} And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples as dew from our Lord, & as drops upon the grass, which expecteth not man, & tarrieth not for the children of men. {8} And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the Gentiles in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the beasts of the forests, and as a lion's whelp among the flocks of cattle: who when he hath passed, & trodden down, & taken, there is none to deliver. {9} Thy hand shall be exalted over thine enemies, & all thine enemies shall perish. {10} And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: I will take away thy horses out of the midst of thee, & will destroy thy chariots. {11} And I will destroy the cities of thy land, & will destroy all thy munitions, & I will take away sorceries out of thy hand, & there shall be no divinations in thee. {12} And I will make thy sculptiles to perish, and thy statues out of the midst of thee: and thou shalt no more adore the works of thy hands. {13} And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: & will destroy thy cities. {14} And I will do vengeance in fury and in indignation among all the nations, that have not heard.

God expostulateth with the chief of the Jews, 3. and with the whole people, their ingratitude for his singular benefits: 6. who is not pacified with sacrifices, 8. but by doing justice. 9. Which they not doing 13. shall be afflicted by their enemies.

{1} HEAR ye what our Lord speaketh: Arise, contend in judgement against the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice. {2} Let the mountains hear the judgement of our Lord, and the strong foundations of the earth: because the judgement of our Lord is with his people, and with Israel he will be judged. {3} My people what have I done to thee, or what have I molested thee? Answer me. {4} Because I brought thee out of the Land of Aegypt, and delivered thee out of the house of them that served: and sent before thy face Moyses, and Aaron, and Mary? {5} My people remember I pray thee, what Balach the king of Moab purposed: and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him: from Setim even to Galgal, that thou mightest know the justices of our Lord. {6} What worthy thing shall I offer to our Lord? Shall I bow the knee to the high God? What shall I offer unto him holocausts, and calves of a year old? {7} Why, can our Lord be pacified with thousands of rams, or with many thousands of fat buckgoats? Why, shall I give my first born for my wickedness, the fruit of my womb for the sin of my soul? {8} I will shew thee o man what is good, and what our Lord requireth of thee: Verily to do judgement, and to love mercy, and to walk solicitous with thy God. {9} The voice of our Lord crieth to the city, and salvation shall be to them that fear thy name: hear ye o tribes, and who shall approve it? {10} As yet there is fire in the house of the impious, treasures of iniquity, and a lesser measure full of wrath. {11} Why, shall I justify an impious balance, and the deceitful weights of the bag? {12} By which her richmen were replenished with iniquity, and the inhabitants therein spake lies, and their tongue was fraudulent in their mouth. {13} And I therefore began to strike thee with perdition for thy sins. {14} Thou shalt eat, and shalt not be filled: and thy humiliation in the midst of thee: and thou shalt apprehend, and shalt not save: & whom thou shalt save, I will give unto the sword. {15} Thou shalt sow, and shalt not reap: thou shalt tread the olive, and shalt not be anointed with the oil: and press muste, and shalt not drink the wine. {16} And thou hast kept the precepts of Amri, and all the work of the house of Achab: & thou hast walked in their wills, that I might give thee into perdition, and the inhabitants therein into hissing, and the reproach of my people you shall bear.

The Prophet lamenteth, that for all his preaching few are good, and many corrupt in manners: 5. therefore their miseries approach: 7. from which they shall be again delivered, 14. and prosper, 20. and all mankind shall be redeemed by Christ.

{1} WOE is me, because I am become as he that gathereth in autumn the clusters of vintage: there is no cluster to eat, timely ripe figs my soul hath desired. {2} The holy is perished out of the earth, & there is none righteous among men: all lie in wait for blood, every one hunteth his brother to death. {3} The evil of their hands they call good: the prince requireth, & the judge is in rendering: & the great man hath spoken the desire of his soul, & they have troubled it. {4} He that is left among them, is as a brier, and he that is righteous, as the thorn of the hedge. The day of thy speculation, thy visitation cometh: now shall be the destruction of them. {5} Believe not a friend, and trust not in prince: from her that sleepeth in thy bosom keep the closures of thy mouth. {6} Because the son doth contumely to the father, and the daughter riseth against her mother, the daughter in law against her mother in law: and a man's enemies they of his own household. {7} But I will look towards our Lord, I will expect God my saviour: my God will hear me. {8} Rejoice not thou mine enemy over me, because I am fallen: I shall arise, when I have sit in darkness, our Lord is my light. {9} I will bear the wrath of our Lord, because I have sinned to him: until he judge my judgement: he will bring me forth into the light, I shall see his justice. {10} And mine enemy shall behold, and she shall be covered with confusion, which saith to me, where is the Lord thy God? Mine eyes shall look on her: now shall she be into concualcation as the mire of the streets. {11} The day that thy walls may be builded upon: in that day shall the law be made far off. {12} In that day and Assur shall come even to thee, and even to the fenced cities, and from the fenced cities even to the river, and to sea from sea, and to mountain from mountain. {13} And the land shall be into desolation for the inhabitants thereof, and for the fruit of their cogitations. {14} Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thine inheritance, them that dwell alone in the forest, in the midst of Carmel: they shall feed upon Basan and Galaad according to the days of old. {15} According to the days of thy coming forth out of the Land of Aegypt I will shew him marvels. {16} The nations shall see, and shall be confounded upon all their strength: they shall put the hand upon the mouth, their ears shall be deaf. {17} They shall lick dust as serpents, as the creeping beasts of the earth, they shall be troubled in their houses: the Lord our God they shall dread, and shall fear thee. {18} What God is like to thee, which takest away iniquity, and passest over the sin of the remnant of thine inheritance? He will send his fury in no more, because he is willing mercy. {19} He will return, and will have mercy on us: he will lay away our iniquities: and he will cast all our sins into the bottom of the sea. {20} Thou wilt give truth to Jacob, mercy to Abraham: which thou hast sworn to our fathers from the days of old.

THE PROPHECY OF NAHUM

Ninive shall be destroyed, not able to escape God's powerful wrath. 9. The Assirians shall not prevail against Jerusalem: 13. but themselves shall be slain.

{1} THE burden of Ninive. The Book of the vision of Nahum the Elceseite. jealous, & our Lord revenging, our Lord {2} God is revenging, and having fury: our Lord revenging on his adversaries, and he is angry with his enemies. {3} Our Lord is patient, and great of strength, and cleansing, he will not make innocent. Our Lord's ways in tempest, & whirlwind, & clouds, the dust of his feet. {4} Rebuking the sea, & drying it up: & bringing all rivers to a desert. Basan is weakened & Carmel: & the flower of Libanus is faded. {5} The mountains were moved at him, and the hills were desolate: and the earth hath trembled at his presence, & the world, & all that dwell therein. {6} Before the face of his indignation who shall stand? & who shall resist in the wrath of his fury? His indignation is poured out as fire: and the rocks are dissolved by him. {7} Our Lord is good, & strengthening in the day of tribulation: & knowing them that hope in him. {8} And in a flood passing by, he will make a consummation of the place thereof: & darkness shall pursue his enemies. {9} What think ye against our Lord? Consummation he will make: there shall not rise double tribulation. {10} Because as thorns clasp one an other: so the feast of them that drink together: they shall be consumed as stubble full of dryness. {11} Out of thee shall come forth one that thinketh malice against our Lord in the mind devising prevarication. {12} Thus saith our Lord: If they shall be perfect: and so a great many, so also shall they be shorn, and he shall pass by: I have afflicted thee, and I will afflict thee no more. {13} And now I will break his rod from off thy back, & I will burst thy bonds in sunder. {14} And Our Lord will command upon thee, there shall not be sown of thy name any more: out of the house of thy God I will destroy sculptile, & molten, I will put thy grave, because thou art dishonoured. {15} Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that Evangelizeth, and preacheth peace: celebrate, o Juda, thy festivities, and render thy vows: because Belial shall no more add to pass through thee, he is wholly perished.

The Chaldees shall mightily invade the Assyrians, 5. take and ransack Ninive.

{1} HE is come up that shall scatter before thee, that shall keep the siege: behold the way, fortify the loins, strengthen force exceedingly. {2} Because our Lord hath rendered the pride of Jacob, as the pride of Israel: because the waters have dissipated them, & have marred their branches. {3} The buckler of his valiants fiery, the men of the army in scarlets, the reins of the chariot fiery in the day of his preparation, & the drivers are brought asleep. {4} In the ways they are troubled, the chariots struck one against an other in the streets: their appearance are as it were lamps, as it were lightning running to & fro. {5} He will remember his valiants, they shall fall in their ways: they shall quickly scale the walls thereof, and a bower shall be prepared. {6} The gates of the rivers are opened, and the temple thrown down to the ground. {7} And the soldier is led away captive: and her handmaids were led away mourning as doves, murmuring in their hearts. {8} And Ninive her waters as it were a fishpool of waters: but themselves are fled. Stand, stand, and there is none that will return. {9} Spoil the silver, spoil the gold: and there is no end of the riches of all vessels that are to be desired. {10} She is dissipated, and rent, and torn: & pining heart, and dissolution of the knees, and defect in all reins: and the faces of them all as the blackness of a pot {11} Where is the habitation of lions, and the pasture of lion's whelps, to which the lion went, to go in thither, the lion's whelp, and is there none to make them afraid? {12} The lion hath caught sufficiently for his whelps, and hath killed for his lionesses: and he hath filled his dens with prey, and his couch with ravening. {13} Behold I to thee, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will burn thy chariots even to smoke, and the sword shall eat thy little lions: and I will destroy thy prey out of the land, and the voice of thy messengers shall be heard no more.

A description of Ninive's ruin, 5. made ignominious to all nations: 17. foreign soldiers flying away, and all their own terrified.

{1} WOE to thee o city of bloods, all of lying full of tearing: spoil shall not depart from thee. {2} The voice of the whip, and the voice of the violence of the wheel, and of the neighing horse, and of the fervent chariot, and of the horseman mounting. {3} And of the glistering sword, and of the glittering spear, and of a multitude slain, and of a grievous ruin: neither is there an end of corpses, and they shall fall on their bodies. {4} Because of the multitude of the fornications, of the harlot beautiful and grateful, and having sorceries, which hath sold nations in her fornications, and families in her sorceries. {5} Behold I to thee, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will discover thy privy parts in thy face, and will shew to the Gentiles thy nakedness, and to kingdoms thine ignominy. {6} And I will throw upon thee abominations, and will use thee contumeliously, and will put thee for an example. {7} And it shall be, every one that shall see thee, shall leap back from thee, and shall say: Ninive is wasted: who shall shake the head upon thee? Whence shall I seek a comforter for thee? {8} Why, art thou better than Alexandria full of peoples, which dwelleth in the rivers? Waters round about it: whose riches, the sea: waters the walls thereof. {9} Aethiopia the strength of it, and Aegypt, and there is no end: Afrike, and the Libyans have been in thine aid. {10} But she also in transmigration was led into captivity: her little ones were dashed in the head of all ways, and upon her noble ones, they have cast lot, and all her great men were made fast in fetters. {11} Thou also therefore shalt be made drunk, and shalt be despised: and thou shalt seek help of the enemy. {12} All thy munitions as figtrees with their green figs: if they be shaken, they will fall into the mouth of the eater. {13} Behold thy people women in the midst of thee: to thine enemies the gates of thy land with opening shall be opened, fire shall devour thy bars. {14} Draw thee water for the siege, build thy munitions: enter into the clay, and tread, making mortar hold the brick {15} There the fire shall eat thee: thou shalt perish by the sword, as a bruke it shall devour thee: be gathered together as the bruke, be multiplied as the locust. {16} Thou hast made thy merchandises more than are the stars of heaven: the bruke was spread, and flew away. {17} Thy keepers as the locusts: and thy little ones as it were the locusts of locusts, which swarm on the hedges in the day of cold: the sun arose, and they flew away, and their place was not known where they were. {18} Thy pastors slumbered, o king of Assur, thy princes shall be buried, thy people lay hid in the mountains, and there is none to gather them together. {19} Thy destruction is not obscure, thy plague is very sore: all that have heard the same of thee, have clapped the hand upon thee: for upon whom hath not thy malice passed always?

THE PROPHECY OF HABACUC

The Prophet lamenteth the imminent ruin of the people, by the insolent cruelty of the Chaldees: 12. especially for that the holy city shall be ransacked by idolaters and most wicked men.

{1} THE burden that Habacuc the Prophet saw. {2} wilt not hear? Shall I cry out to thee How long o Lord shall I cry, and thou suffering violence, and thou wilt not save? {3} Why hast thou shewed me iniquity and labour, to see prey and injustice against me? And judgement is made, and contradiction more mighty. {4} For this cause is the law torn, and judgement came not to the end: because the impious prevaleth against the just, therefore doth there come forth perverse judgement. {5} Behold ye in the nations, and see: marvel, and be astonished: because a work is done in your days, which no man will believe when it shall be told. {6} Because lo I will raise up the Chaldees, a bitter and swift nation, walking upon the latitude of the earth, to possess tabernacles not their own. {7} It is horrible, & terrible: out of it self shall the judgement, & the burden thereof proceed. {8} His horses lighter than leopards, and swifter than evening wolves; and his horsemen shall be spread abroad, for his horsemen shall come from a far, they shall fly as an eagle hastening to eat. {9} All shall come to the prey, their faces a burning wind: and he shall gather together as the sand, captivity. {10} And he shall triumph over kings, and tyrants shall be his laughing stock, and he shall laugh upon every munition, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take it. {11} Then shall the spirit be changed, and he shall pass, and fall: this is his strength of his god. {12} Why wast thou not from the beginning o Lord my God, my holy one, & we shall not die? Lord thou hast appointed him for judgement: and strong to chastise, thou hast founded him. {13} Thine eyes are clean, from seeing evil, and thou canst not look toward iniquity. Why lookest thou not upon them that do unjust things, and holdest thy peace when the impious devoureth him that is more just than himself? {14} And thou wilt make them as the fishes of the sea, and as the creeping beast not having a prince. {15} He lifted up all in the hook, he drew it in his train, and gathered it into his net: upon this he will be glad and rejoice. {16} Therefore will he immolate to his train, and he will sacrifice to his net: because by them his portion is fat, & his meat chosen. {17} For this cause therefore spreadeth he his train, and always to kill the nations he will not spare.

The captivity of the two tribes, their relaxation, Christ will assuredly come, though not quickly. 5. Their afflicters (the Chaldees) shall be destroyed: 18. and all other idolaters. I will stand upon my watch, and fix my step upon the munition: and I will behold, to see what may be said to me, and what I may answer to him that rebuketh me. {2} And our Lord answered me, and said: Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables: that he which runneth may read it over. {3} Because as yet the vision is far, and it shall appear at the end, and shall not lie: if he shall make tarriance, expect him: because coming he will come, and he will not slack. {4} Behold he that is incredulous, his soul shall not be right in himself: but the just shall live in his faith. {5} And as wine deceiveth him that drinketh: so shall the proud man be, and he shall not be beautified: who as it were hell, hath dilated his soul: and himself as death, and he is not filled: and he hath gathered together unto him all nations, and hath heaped together unto him all peoples. {6} Why, shall not all these take up a parable upon him, and a speech of obscure sayings of him: and it be said: Woe to him that multiplieth things not his own? How long also doth he aggravate against himself thick clay? {7} Why, shall they not rise suddenly, that shall bite thee? And they shall tear thee, be raised up, and thou be for a spoil to them? {8} Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all that shall be left of the peoples shall spott thee: for the blood of man, and the iniquity of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein. {9} Woe to him that gathereth together naughty avarice to his house, that his nest may be on high, and thinketh he is delivered out of the hand of evil. {10} Thou hast thought confusion to thy house, thou hast cut in sunder many peoples, and thy soul hath sinned. {11} Because the stone out of the wall shall cry: and the timber, that is between the junctures of the buildings, shall answer. {12} Woe to him that buildeth a city in bloods, and prepareth a city in iniquity. {13} Why, are not these things from the Lord of hosts? For the peoples shall labour in much fire: and the nations in vain, and they shall faint. {14} Because the earth shall be replenished, that they may know the glory of our Lord, a water covering the sea. {15} Woe to him that giveth drink to his friend, putting in his gall, and making drunk, that he may behold his nakedness. {16} Thou art filled with ignominy for glory, drink thou also, and be fast a sleep: the cup of the right hand of our Lord shall compass thee, and the vomit of ignominy upon thy glory. {17} Because the iniquity of Libanus shall cover thee, & the wasting of the beasts shall terrify them for the bloods of men, and the iniquity of the land, and of the city, and of all that dwell therein. {18} What profiteth the thing engraven, that the forger thereof hath graven it, a molten, and a false image? Because the forger thereof hath hoped in his forgery, to make dumb idols. {19} Woe unto him that saith to wood: Awake: Arise, to the dumb stone. Why, can it teach? Behold, this same is covered with gold, and silver: and there is no spirit in the bowels thereof. {20} But our Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth be silent at his presence.

{1} THE PRAYER OF HABACUC THE PROPHET FOR IGNORANCES. All sins in some sort proceed of ignorance: for remission whereof the Prophet prayeth in this Canticle, and that for the same Christ's coming may not be differed: 2. so prophesieth his Incarnation, 3. Nativity, 4. Miracles and Doctrine, 5. Passion, Resurrection, and conversion of Gentiles: 16. The general Judgement, Glory of the blessed, and Damnation of the reprobate.

{1} THE prayer of Habacuc the prophet for ignorances. and was afraid. Lord thy work in the midst {2} Lord I heard thy hearing, of years, quicken it: In the midst of years shalt thou make it known: when thou art angry, thou wilt remember mercy. {3} God will come from the South, and the holy one from mount Pharan: His glory shall cover the heavens, and the earth is full of his praise. {4} His brightness shall be as the light, horns in his hands: There is his strength hid. {5} Before his face shall death go, and the devil shall go forth before his feet. {6} He stood and measured the earth, he beheld, and dissolved the Gentiles: and the mountains of the world were broken. The hills of the world were bowed, by the ways of his eternity. {7} For iniquity I saw the tents of Aethiopia, the skins of the land of Madian shall be troubled. {8} Why, wast thou angry with the rivers o Lord? Or was thy fury in the rivers? Or thine indignation in the sea? Who wilt mount upon thy horses, and thy chariots, salvation. {9} Raising thou wilt raise up thy bow: the oath to the tribes which thou hast spoken. Thou wilt cut the rivers of the earth. {10} The mountains saw thee, and were sorry, the gulf of water passed. The depth gave his voice: the height lifted up his hands. {11} The sun and the moon stood in their habitation, in the light of thine arrows, they shall go in the brightness of thy glittering spear. {12} In fretting thou wilt tread down the earth: in fury thou wilt astonish the Gentiles. {13} Thou went forth the salvation of thy people: salvation with thy Christ. Thou struckest the head out of the house of the impious, thou hast discovered the foundation even to the neck. {14} Thou hast cursed his sceptres, the head of his warriors, them that come as a whirlwind to disperse me. Their exultation, as his that devoureth the poor in secret. {15} Thou madest a way in the sea for thy horses, in the midst of many waters. {16} I heard, and my belly was troubled: at the voice my lips trembled. Let rotteness enter in my bones, and swarm under me. That I may rest in the day of tribulation: that I may ascend to our girded people. {17} For the fig-tree shall not flourish: & there shall be no spring in the vines. The work of the olive-tree shall deceive: and the fields shall not yield meat: the cattle shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls. {18} But I will joy in our Lord: and will rejoice in God my JESUS. {19} God our Lord is my strength: and he will make my feet as of the harts': and upon my high place he the conquerer will lead me singing in psalms.

THE PROPHECY OF SOPHONIAS

For certain enormous sins, the captivity of the two tribes, is threatened, with admonition to repent, otherwise it shall be most terrible.

{1} THE word of our Lord that was made to Sophonie the son of Chusi, the son of Godolias, the son of Amarias, the son of Ezechias, in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda. {2} Gathering I will gather together all things from the face of the earth, saith our Lord: {3} gathering man, and beast, gathering the fowls of the heaven, and fishes of the sea: and there shall be ruins of the impious: and I will destroy men from the face of the earth, saith our Lord. {4} And I will stretch forth my hand upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and I will destroy out of this place the remnant of Baal, and the names of the temple-wardens with the priests: {5} and them that adore upon the tops of houses the host of heaven, and adore, and swear by our Lord, and swear by Melchom. {6} And them that turn away from after the back of our Lord, and that have not sought our Lord, nor searched after him. {7} Be silent before the face of our Lord God: because the day of our Lord is near, because our Lord hath prepared an host, he hath sanctified his called. {8} And it shall be: in the day of the host of our Lord I will visit upon the princes, and upon the king's sons, and upon all that are clothed with strange clothing: {9} and I will visit upon every one, that arrogantly entereth upon the threshold in that day, them that fill the house of our Lord their God with iniquity, & guile. {10} And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord, the voice of clamor from the gate of fishes, and howling from the second, and great destruction from the hills. {11} Howl ye inhabitants of the Morter. All the people of Chanaan is hush, all are perished that were wrapped in silver. {12} & it shall be in that time: I will search Jerusalem with lamps, and will visit upon the men that are fixed in their dregs: that say in their hearts: The Lord will not do good, and he will not do evil. {13} And their strength shall be into spoil, and their houses as a desert: and they shall build houses, and shall not inhabit them: and shall plant vineyards, & shall not drink the wine of them. {14} The great day of our Lord is near, it is near and exceeding swift: the voice of the day of our Lord is bitter, the strong shall there have tribulation. {15} That day a day of wrath, a day of tribulation and distress, a day of calamity and misery, a day of darkness and mist, a day of cloud & whirlwind: {16} a day of the trumpet and sound upon the fenced cities, & upon the high corners. {17} And I will afflict men, and they shall walk as blindmen, because they have sinned to our Lord: and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their bodies as dung. {18} Yea and their silver, and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of our Lord: in the fire of his jealousy shall all the earth be devoured, because he will make consummation with speed to all that inhabit the earth.

An exhortation to repent: 4. with prophecy of the destruction of the Philistines, 8. Moabites and Ammonites, 12. Aethiopians, 13. Assyrians: 15. with their chief city Nineve.

{1} COME together, be ye gathered together o nation not to be beloved: the commandment bring forth the day as {2} before that dust passing away, before the wrath of the fury of our Lord come upon you, before the day of the indignation of our Lord come upon you. {3} Seek our Lord all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgement: seek the just, seek the meek: if by any means you may be hid in the day of the fury of our Lord. {4} Because Gaza is destroyed, and Ascalon as a desert, Azotus at noon they shall cast out, and Accaron shall be rooted out. {5} Woe to you that inhabit the cord of the sea, o nation of castaways: the word of our Lord upon you o Chanaan land of the Philistines, and I will destroy thee, so that there shall not be an inhabiter. {6} And the cord of the sea shall be the rest of pastors, and folds of cattle. {7} And it shall be the cord of him, that shall remain of the house of Juda, there they shall feed: in the houses of Ascalon at even they shall rest: because our Lord their God will visit them, and turn away their captivity. {8} I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the blasphemies of the children of Ammon, with which they have upbraided my people, and were magnified upon their borders. {9} Therefore live I, saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, that Moab shall be as Sodom, and the children of Ammon as Gomorrah, dryness of thorns, and heaps of salt, and a desert even for ever: the remnant of my people shall spoil them, and the residue of my nation shall possess them. {10} This shall befall them for their pride: because they have blasphemed, and have been magnified upon the people of the Lord of hosts. {11} Our Lord shall be dreadful upon them, and shall attenuate all the gods of the earth: and they shall adore him every man out of his own place, all the islands of the Gentiles. {12} Yea and you Aethiopians shall be slain with my sword. {13} And he will stretch forth his hand upon the North, and will destroy Assur: and he will lay the Beautiful as a wilderness, and as a place not passable, and as a desert. {14} And flocks shall lie in the midst thereof, all the beasts of the Gentiles: and onocratus, and the irchin shall abide in the thresholds thereof: the voice of one singing in the window, the raven on the upper post, because I will attenuate her strength. {15} This is the glorious city dwelling in confidence: that said in her heart: I am, and beside me there is none other else: how is she become as a desert the couche for beasts? every one that passeth by her, shall hiss, and wag his hand.

Jerusalem for rejecting God's admonitions shall be destroyed, 7. Christ being risen from death, the Jews persecuting the faithful shall be rejected, miserably destroyed, 9. and the Gentiles called. 11. So his Church shall flourish: 13. and at last the Jews shall be converted.

{1} WOE to thee thou provoking, and redeemed city, the dove. voice, and she hath not received {2} She hath not heard the discipline: she hath not trusted in our Lord, to her God she hath not approached. {3} Her princes in the midst of her as lions roaring: her judges, wolves in the evening, left nothing for the morning. {4} Her prophets mad, men unfaithful: her priests have polluted the holy, they have done unjustly against the law. {5} Our just Lord in the midst thereof will not do iniquity: in the morning, in the morning he will give his judgement into light, and it shall not be hid: but the wicked man hath not known the confusion. {6} I have destroyed the Gentiles, & their corners are dissipated: I have made their ways desert, whiles there is none that passeth by: their cities are desolate, not a man remaining, nor any inhabiter. {7} I said: Nevertheless thou shalt fear me, thou shalt receive discipline: and her habitation shall not perish for all things, wherein I have visited her: but yet rising early they corrupted all their cogitations. {8} Wherefore expect me, saith our Lord, in the day of my resurrection till hereafter, because my judgement to assemble the Gentiles, and to gather kingdoms: & to pour upon them mine indignation, all the wrath of my fury: for in the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be devoured. {9} Because then will I restore to the peoples, a chosen lip, that all may invocate in the name of the Lord, & may serve him with one shoulder. {10} Beyond the rivers of Aethiopia, thence shall my suppliants the children of my dispersed bring me a gift. {11} In that day thou shalt not be confounded upon all thine inventions, wherein thou hast prevaricated against me: because then will I take away out of the midst of thee the lofty speakers of thy pride, & thou shalt add no more to be exalted in my holy mount. {12} And I will leave in the midst of thee a people poor and needy: & they shall hope in the name of our Lord. {13} The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, neither shall they speak leasing, and deceitful tongue shall not be found in their mouth: because they shall feed, and shall lie down, and there shall be none to make them afraid. {14} Praise o daughter of Sion: make jubilation Israel: be glad & rejoice in all thy heart o daughter of Jerusalem. {15} Our Lord hath taken away thy judgement, he hath turned away thine enemies: the king of Israel our Lord in the midst of thee, thou shalt fear evil no more. {16} In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem: Fear not: to Sion, let not thy hands be dissolved. {17} Our Lord thy God in the midst of thee strong, he will save: he will rejoice upon thee in gladness, he will be silent in his love, he will be joyful upon thee in praise. {18} The triflers that were departed from thee, I will gather together, because they were of thee: that thou mayst no more have reproach for them. {19} Behold I will kill all that have afflicted thee at that time: and I will save the halt, & her that was cast out I will gather: and I will make them into praise, and into name, in all the land of their confusion. {20} In that time, when I will bring you: and in the time, that I will gather you: for I will give you into a name, and into praise to all the people of the earth, when I shall convert your captivity before your eyes, saith our Lord.

THE PROPHECY OF AGGEUS

The Jews building to themselves excellent houses, are justly reprehended for not building the Temple of God. 10. Which is the cause of the barrenness, sickness, and other evils. 12. Whereupon they undertake the holy work.

{1} IN the second year of Darius the king, the sixth month, in the first day of the month: the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, duke of Juda, and to Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest saying: {2} Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: This people saith: The time is not yet come of building the house of our Lord. {3} And the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, saying: {4} Why is it time for you to dwell in embowed houses, and this house desert? {5} And now thus saith the Lord of hosts? Set your hearts upon your ways. {6} You have sowed much, and brought in little: you have eaten, and have not been filled: you have drunk, and have not been inebriated: you have covered your selves, and have not been warmed: and he that hath gathered the wages, put them into a broken bag. {7} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways: {8} go up into the mountain, carry timber, and build the house: and it shall be acceptable to me, & I shall be glorified, saith our Lord. {9} You have looked for more, and behold it became less, and you brought it into the house, and I puft at it: for what cause saith the Lord of hosts? Because my house is desert, and you hasten every man into his own house. {10} For this cause were the heavens stayed over you that they gave no dew, & the earth was prohibited that it yielded not her spring: {11} and I called a drought upon the earth, and upon the mountains, & upon the wheat, & upon the wine, and upon the oil, and what things soever the ground brought forth, and upon men, and upon beasts, and upon all the labour of the hands. {12} And Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the son of Josedec the high Priest, and all the remnant of the people heard the voice of their God, and the words of Aggeus the Prophet, as our Lord their God sent him to them: and the people feared at the face of our Lord. {13} And Aggeus the messenger of our Lord, of the messengers of our Lord spake, saying to the people: I am with you, saith our Lord. {14} And our Lord raised up the spirit of Zorobabel the son of Salathiel Duke of Juda, and the spirit of Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, and the spirit of the rest of all the people: and they went in, and did the work in the house of the Lord of hosts their God.

They are encouraged to proceed in building the temple: 6. with promise that Christ by his personal presence will bring more glory to this, than was in the former temple. 11. Their former slackness in this work was the cause of their wants: 19. and now they shall have abundance.

{1} IN the four and twentieth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king. {2} In the seventh month, the one & twentieth of the month, the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, saying: {3} Speak to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel the Duke of Juda, and to Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, and to the rest of the people, saying: {4} Who among you is left, that saw this house in the first glory thereof? And what do you see this same now? Why, is it not so, as if it were not in your eyes? {5} And now take courage Zorobabel, saith our Lord, and take courage Jesus the son of Josedec grand Priest, and take courage all ye people of the land, saith the Lord of hosts: & do (because I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts) {6} the word that I did covenant with you when you came out of the Land of Aegypt: & my spirit shall be in the midst of you: fear not. {7} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: As yet there is one little while, and I will move the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land. {8} And I will move all nations: AND THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME: and I will fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts. {9} Mine is the silver, & mine is the gold, saith the Lord of hosts. {10} Great shall be the glory of this last house, more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts. {11} In the four and twentieth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius the king, the word of our Lord was made to Aggeus the Prophet, saying: {12} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Ask the Priests the law, saying: {13} If a man take sanctified flesh in the skirt of his garment, and touch with the skirt thereof bread, or broth, or wine, or oil, or any meat: shall it be sanctified? And the Priests answering, said: No. {14} And Aggeus said: If one polluted on a soul touch any of all these, shall he be contaminated? And the Priests answered, and said: He shall be contaminated. {15} And Aggeus answered, and said: So this people, and so this nation before my face, saith our Lord, and so all the work of their hands: & all that they have offered there, shall be contaminated. {16} And now set your hearts, from this day & upward, before there was stone laid upon stone in the temple of our Lord. {17} When you went to an heap of twenty bushels, and they became ten: and entered into the press, to press out fifty flagons, & they became twenty. {18} I struck you with the burning wind, and with the blast, and with hail, all the works of your hands: and there was none among you, that returned to me, saith our Lord. {19} Set your hearts from this day, & henceforward, from the four & twentieth day of the ninth month: from the day that the foundations of the temple of our Lord were laid, lay it upon your hearts. {20} Is there the seed now abreward? And as yet the wine, and the fig-tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive-tree hath not flourished? From this day I will bless. {21} And the word of our Lord was made the second time to Aggeus in the four and twentieth of the month, saying: {22} Speak to Zorobabel the Duke of Juda, saying: I will move the heaven and also the earth. {23} And I will overthrow the throne of Kingdoms, and will destroy the strength of the Kingdom of the Gentiles: and I will overthrow the chariot, and the rider thereof: and the horses shall come down, and the riders of them, every one by the sword of his brother. {24} In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, I will take thee o Zorobabel son of Salathiel my servant, saith our Lord, and will put thee as a signet, because thee have I chosen, saith the Lord of hosts.

THE PROPHECY OF ZACHARIAS

The Prophet exhorteth the people to convert to God, and not to imitate the evil examples of their fathers: 7. by a vision of an horseman, and diverse coloured horses he prophesieth bitter times: 18. confirming the same by an other vision of four horns.

{1} IN the eight month in the second year of king Darius the word of our Lord was made to Zachary the son of Barachias, the son of Addo the Prophet, saying: {2} Our Lord hath been wrath upon your fathers with wrath. {3} And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Convert to me, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will convert to you, saith the Lord of hosts. {4} Be not as your fathers, to whom the former Prophets cried, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Convert from your evil ways, and from your most wicked thoughts: and they heard not, neither attended to me, saith our Lord. {5} Your fathers where are they? And the Prophets shall they live for ever? {6} But yet my words, & mine ordinances, which I gave in commandment to my servants the Prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers, and they converted, and said: As the Lord of hosts thought to do to us according to our ways, & according to our inventions he hath done to us. {7} In the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month Sabath: in the second year of Darius, the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the Prophet, saying: {8} I saw by night, and behold a man mounting upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle-trees, that were in the bottom: and after him horses red, speckled, and white. {9} And I said: What are these, my Lord? And the Angel that spake in me, said to me: I will shew thee what these things are. {10} And the man, that stood among the myrtle-trees answered, and said: These are they, whom our Lord sent to walk through the earth. {11} And they answered to the Angel of our Lord, which stood among the myrtle-trees, and said: We have walked through the earth, and lo all the earth is inhabited, & at rest. {12} And the Angel of our Lord answered, and said: o Lord of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, & on the cities of Juda, with which thou hast been angry? This now is the seventieth year. {13} And our Lord answered the Angel that spake in me, good words, comfortable words. {14} And the Angel that spake in me, said to me: Cry, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have been zealous for Jerusalem, and Sion with great zeal. {15} And with great anger am I angry upon the wealthy nations: because I was angry a little, but they helped toward the evil. {16} Therefore thus saith our Lord: I will return to Jerusalem in mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the Lord of hosts: & the plumb line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem. {17} As yet cry thou saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: As yet shall my cities flow with good things: and the Lord will yet comfort Sion, and he will yet choose Jerusalem. {18} And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold four horns. {19} And I said to the Angel that spake in me: What are these: And he said to me: These are the horns that have scattered Juda, and Israel, and Jerusalem. {20} And our Lord shewed me four artificers. {21} And I said: What come these to do? Who spake saying: These are the horns, that scattered Juda every man a-part, and none of them lifted his head: and these are come to fray them, to cast down the horns of the nations, that have lifted the horn upon the land of Juda to scatter it.

Under the name of Jerusalem, he prophesieth the progress of the Church of Christ: 6. by the conversion of some Jews. 8. and many Gentiles.

{1} AND I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and lo a man, and in his hand a cord of measurers. {2} And I said: Whither goest thou? And he said to me: To measure Jerusalem, and to see how great the breadth thereof is, and how great the length thereof. {3} And behold the Angel that spake in me, came forth, and an other Angel went out to meet him. {4} And he said to him: Run, speak to this young man saying: Without wall shall Jerusalem be inhabited for the multitude of men, and of beasts in the midst thereof. {5} And I will be to it, saith our Lord, a wall of fire round about: and I will be in glory in the midst thereof. {6} O fly ye out of the land of the North, saith our Lord, because into the four winds of heaven have I dispersed you, saith our Lord. {7} O Sion, fly thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.: {8} because thus saith the Lord of hosts: After glory he sent me to the nations, that have spoiled you: for he that shall touch you, toucheth the apple of mine eye: {9} because lo I lift up my hand upon them, and they shall be a prey to those that served them: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me. {10} Praise, and rejoice o daughter of Sion: because lo I come, & will dwell in the midst of thee, saith our Lord. {11} And many nations shall be joined to our Lord in that day, and they shall be my people, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to thee. {12} And our Lord will possess Juda his portion in the sanctified land: and he will yet choose Jerusalem. {13} Let all flesh be silent at the presence of our Lord: because he is risen up out of his holy habitation.

Chapter 3

In a vision the devil appeareth accusing the high Priest. 4. He is cleansed from his sins. 8. Christ is promised, and great fruit of his passion.

{1} AND our Lord shewed me Jesus the grand Priest standing before the Angel of our Lord: and Satan stood on his right hand, to his adversary. {2} And our Lord said to Satan: The Lord give rebuke on thee Satan: and the Lord that chose Jerusalem give rebuke on thee: Why, is not this a fire-brand taken out of the fire? {3} And Jesus was clothed with filthy garments: and he stood before the face of the Angel. {4} Who answered, and said to them that stood before him, saying: Take away the filthy garments from him. And he said to him: Behold I have taken away thine iniquity, and have clothed thee with change of garments. {5} And he said: Put a clean mitre upon his head: and they put a clean mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments: and the Angel of our Lord stood. {6} And the Angel of our Lord contested Jesus, saying: {7} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If you will walk in my ways, and keep my watch, thou also shalt judge my house, and shalt keep my courts, and I will give thee walkers of them that now assist here. {8} Hear o Jesus thou grand Priest, thou and thy friends that dwell before thee, because they are portending men: for behold I WILL BRING MY SERVANT THE ORIENT. {9} Because lo the stone that I laid before Jesus: upon one stone there be seven eyes, behold I will grave the graving thereof, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will take away the iniquity of that land in one day. {10} In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, every man shall call his friend under the vine and under the fig-tree.

In a vision of a candlestick and candles, 3. and of two olive-trees is prophesied the vocation of the Gentiles, 11. and lastly of the Jews.

{1} AND the Angel returned that spake in me: & he raised me up, as a man that is raised out of his sleep. {2} And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I saw, & lo a candlestick all of gold, & the lamp thereof upon the head of it: and the seven lights thereof upon it: and seven funnels for the lights, that were upon the head thereof. {3} And two olive-trees upon it: one on the right hand of the lamp, and one on the left hand thereof. {4} And I answered, and I said to the Angel that spake in me, saying: What are these things, my Lord? {5} And the Angel that spake in me answered, and said to me: Why, knowest thou not what these things are? And I said: No my Lord. {6} And he answered, & said to me, saying: This is the word of our Lord to Zorobabel, saying: Not in an host, nor in strength: but in my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts. {7} Who art thou o great mountain before Zorobabel? Into a plain: & he will bring forth the principal stone, and will make grace equal to the grace thereof. {8} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {9} The hands of Zorobabel have founded this house, and his hands shall perfit it: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to you. {10} For who hath despised little days? And they shall rejoice, & shall see the stone of tin in the hand of Zorobabel. These are the seven eyes of our Lord, that run through out the whole earth. {11} And I answered, and said to him: What are these two olive-trees on the right hand of the candlestick, and on the left hand thereof? {12} And I answered the second time, and said to him: What are the two branches of olive-trees, that are beside the two beaks of gold, in which are the funnels of gold? {13} And he said to me, saying: Why, knowest thou not what these are? And I said: No, my Lord. {14} And he said: These are two sons of oil which assist the dominatour of the whole earth.

In a vision of a flying Book, thieves and swearers are threatened: 5. in an other vision is foreshewed that the Jews shall be blind, and obdurate.

{1} AND I turned and lifted up mine eyes, and I saw, and behold a volume flying {2} And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I see a volume flying: the length thereof of twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof of ten cubits. {3} And he said to me: This is the malediction, that goeth forth upon the face of the earth: because every thief, as is there written, shall be judged: and every swearer, by it in like manner shall be judged. {4} I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts: and it shall come to the house of the thief, & to the house of him that sweareth by my name falsely: and it shall abide in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, & the timber thereof, and the stones thereof. {5} And the Angel went out that spake in me: and he said to me: Lift up thine eyes, and see what is this, that goeth forth. {6} And I said: What is it? And he said: This is an amphore going forth. And he said: This is their eye in all the earth. {7} And behold a talent of lead was carried, and lo one woman sitting in the midst of the amphore. {8} And he said: This is impiety. And he threw her in the midst of the amphore, and cast a lump of lead upon the mouth thereof. {9} And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold two women coming forth, and spirit in the wings of them, and they had wings as the wings of a kite: and they lifted up the amphore between the earth and the heaven. {10} And I said to the Angel that spake in me: Whither do these carry the amphore? {11} And he said to me: That a house may be built for it in the land of Sennaar, and it may be established, and set there upon the foundation thereof.

In a vision of chariots is foreshewed the succession of four monarchies. 11. In crowns set on the high Priest's head, the Kingdom and Priesthood of Christ: 15. and the rewards of them that receive him.

{1} AND I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold four chariots coming forth from the midst of two mountains, and the mountains, mountains of brass. {2} In the first chariot red horses, and in the second chariot black horses, {3} and in the third chariot white horses, and in the fourth chariot speckled horses, and strong. {4} And I answered, and said to the Angel, that spake in me: What are these things, my Lord? {5} And the Angel answered, and said to me: These are the four winds of heaven, which go forth to stand before the Dominatour of all the earth. {6} That, in which were the black horses went forth into the land of the North, and the white went forth after them: and the speckled went forth to the land of the South. {7} But they that were strongest, went out, and sought to go, and to run about through-out all the earth. And he said: Go walk through-out the earth, and they walked through-out the earth. {8} And he called me, & spake to me, saying: Behold, they that go forth into the land of the North, have made my spirit to rest in the land of the North. {9} And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: {10} Take of the transmigration of Holdai, and of Tobias, and of Idaias: and thou shalt come in that day, and shalt enter into the house of Josias, the son of Sophonias, who came out of Babylon. {11} And thou shalt take gold and silver: and shalt make crowns, & thou shalt set on the head of Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, {12} and thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: BEHOLD A MAN, ORIENT IS HIS NAME: and under him shall spring up, & shall build a temple to our Lord. {13} And he shall build a temple to our Lord: and shall bear glory, and shall sit, and rule upon his throne: and he shall be a Priest upon his throne, and the counsel of peace shall be between them two. {14} And the crowns shall be to Helem, and Tobias, and Idaias, and Hem, the son of Sophonias, a memorial in the temple of our Lord. {15} And they that are far, shall come, and shall build in the temple of our Lord: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. But this shall be, if hearing you will hear the voice of our Lord your God.

Chapter 7

The fast of the fifth and seventh month observed in the captivity, being good, 8. was unperfect, 8. fasting from sin is always more necessary.

{1} AND it came to pass in the fourth year of Darius the king, the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie, in the fourth of the ninth month, which is Casleu. {2} And Sarasar, and Rogommelech, and the men that were with him, sent to the house of God, to beseech the face of our Lord: {3} that they should say to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to the Prophets, saying: Must I weep in the fifth month, or must I sanctify myself as now I have done many years? {4} And the word of the Lord of hosts was made to me, saying: {5} Speak to all the people of the land, and to the Priests, saying: When you fasted, and mourned in the fifth and the seventh for these seventy years: did you fast a fast unto me? {6} And when you did eat & drink, did you not eat for your selves, & drink for your selves? {7} Why, are they not the words, which our Lord spake in the hand of the former Prophets, when Jerusalem as yet was inhabited, & was wealthy, it self and the cities round about it, & toward the South, & in the champion there was dwelling? {8} And the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie, saying: {9} Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: Judge ye true judgement, and do ye mercy, and miserations every man with his brother. {10} And the widow, and the pupil, and the stranger, and the poor do not calumniate: and let not a man think in his heart evil to his brother. {11} And they would not attend, and they turned away the shoulder departing: and they aggravated their ears, not to hear. {12} And they made their heart as the adamant, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the Lord sent in his spirit by the hand of the former Prophets: and there was great indignation made from the Lord of hosts. {13} And it came to pass as he spake, and they heard not: so shall they cry, and I will not hear, saith the Lord of hosts. {14} And I dispersed them throughout all kingdoms, which they knew not: and the land was left desolate of them, for that there was none passing and returning: and the land to be desired they laid into a desert.

God will give abundance of spiritual benefits to all nations by Christ: 7. to whom shall be converted 13. many Jews, 20. but many more Gentiles.

{1} AND the word of the Lord of hosts was made, saying: hosts: I have been jealous for Sion with {2} Thus saith the Lord of great zeal, & with great indignation have I been jealous for it. {3} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I am returned to Sion, & I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: & Jerusalem shall be called the City of truth, & the mount of the Lord of hosts, the sanctified mount. {4} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: As yet shall old men dwell, & old women in the streets of Jerusalem: & every man's staff in his hand for multitude of years. {5} And the streets of the city shall be filled with infants, & girls playing in the streets thereof. {6} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If it shall seem hard in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days: Why, shall it be hard in mine eyes, saith the Lord of hosts? {7} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will save my people from the land of the East, and from the land of the going down of the sun. {8} And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: & they shall be my people, & I will be their God in truth & in justice. {9} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strengthened, you that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the Prophets in the day, that the house of the Lord of hosts was founded, that the temple might be built. {10} For before those days there was no hire for men, neither was there hire for beasts, neither was there peace to the comer in, nor goer out for tribulation: & I did let go all men, every one against his neighbour. {11} But now not according to the former days will I do to the remnant of this people, saith the Lord of hosts. {12} But the seed of peace shall be: the vine shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give her spring, & the heavens shall give their dew: & I will make the remnant of this people to possess all these things. {13} And it shall be: as you were a malediction among the Gentiles, o house of Juda, & house of Israel: so will I save you, & you shall be a benediction: fear not, let your hands be strengthened. {14} Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: As I purposed to afflict you, when your fathers had provoked me to wrath saith our Lord, {15} and I had no mercy: so converting I have meant in these days to do good to the house of Juda, and Jerusalem: fear not. {16} These then are the words, which you shall do: Speak ye truth, every one with his neighbour: truth and judgement of peace judge ye in your gates. {17} And think ye not every man in your heart evil against his friend: & lying oath love ye not: for all these things are such as I hate, saith our Lord. {18} And the word of our Lord of hosts was made to me saying: {19} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The fast of the fourth, & the fast of the fifth, & the fast of the seventh, & the fast of the tenth shall be to the house of Juda into joy, and gladness, & into goodly solemnities: truth only, and peace love ye. {20} Thus saith the Lord of hosts, until peoples come, & dwell in many cities, {21} and the inhabitants go, one to an other, saying: Let us go, & beseech the face of our Lord, & let us seek the Lord of hosts: I also will go. {22} And many peoples shall come, & strong nations to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, & to beseech the face of our Lord. {23} Thus saith the Lord of hosts: In those days, wherein ten men of all the tongue of the Gentiles shall take hold, & they shall take hold of the skirt of a man that is a Jew, saying: We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you.

The bordering enemies of the Jews shall believe in Christ: 9. who will first come to the Jews in meekness, yet in solemnity riding on an ass: 11. deliver the godly from the lake, 12. give great things to the faithful, 17. and one most excellent thing above the rest.

{1} THE burden of the word of our Lord in the land of Hadrach, & Damascus his rest: because our Lord is the eye of man, and of all the tribes of Israel. {2} Emath also in the borders thereof, & Tyre, & Sidon: for they have taken to themselves wisdom exceedingly. {3} And Tyre hath built her munitions, and heaped together silver as earth, and gold as the mire of the streets. {4} Behold our Lord shall possess her, and shall strike her strength in the sea, & she shall be devoured with fire. {5} Ascalon shall see, and shall fear, and Gaza, and shall be sorry exceedingly: & Accaron, because her hope is confounded: and the king shall perish out of Gaza, & Ascalon shall not be inhabited. {6} And the separator shall sit in Azotus, and I will destroy the pride of the Philistims. {7} And I will take away his blood out of his mouth, and his abominations out of the midst of his teeth: and he also shall be left to our God, and he shall be as a duke in Juda, & Accaron as a Jebuseite. {8} And I will environ my house of them, that serve me in warfare going and returning, & the exactor shall no more pass over them: because now I have seen with mine eyes. {9} Rejoice greatly, o daughter of Sion, make jubilation, o daughter of Jerusalem: BEHOLD THY KING will come to thee, the just & saviour: himself poor, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass. {10} And I will destroy chariot out of Ephraim, and horse out of Jerusalem, and the bow of war shall be dissipated: and he shall speak peace to the Gentiles, and his power from sea even to sea, and from the rivers even to the end of the earth. {11} Thou also in the blood of thy testament hast let forth thy prisoners out of the lake, wherein is no water. {12} Convert to the munition ye prisoners of hope, to day also declaring I will render thee double. {13} Because I have bent Juda for me as a bow, I have filled Ephraim: and I will raise up thy sons o Sion upon thy sons o Greece, and I will make thee as the sword of the strong. {14} And our Lord God shall be seen over them, and his dart shall go forth as lightning: and our Lord God will sound with trumpet, and will go in the whirlwind of the South. {15} The Lord of hosts will protect them: and they shall devour, and subdue with the stones of the sling: and drinking they shall be drunk as it were of wine, & they shall be filled as phials, and the horns of the altar. {16} And our Lord their God will save them in that day, as the flock of his people: because holy stones shall be elevated over his land. {17}

For what is his good thing, and what is his beautiful thing, but the corn of the elect, and wine springing virgins?

The Jews are exhorted to ask good things of God: 4. of their nation cometh the Redeemer of all men, 5. and of the same are the Apostles, spiritual masters of the whole world. 6. The whole nation shall at last be converted.

{1} ASK of our Lord rain in the lateward time, and our Lord will make snows, and will give them rain of showers, to every one grass in the field. {2} Because the idols spake that which was unprofitable, and the diviners saw a lie, & the dreamers spake in vain: they comforted vainly: therefore are they led away as a flock: they shall be afflicted, because they have no Pastor. {3} Upon the Pastors my fury is wrath, and upon the buckgoats I will visit: because the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Juda, and hath made them as the horse of his glory in the battle. {4} Of him the corner, of him the pin, of him the bow of battle, of him shall come forth every exactor together. {5} And they shall be as valiants, treading the mire of the ways in battle: and they shall fight, because our Lord is with them: and the riders of horses shall be confounded. {6} And I will strengthen the house of Juda, and the house of Joseph I will save: and I will convert them, because I will have mercy on them: and they shall be as they were when I had not cast them off, for I am the Lord their God, and will hear them. {7} And they shall be as the valiants of Ephraim, & their heart shall rejoice as it were of wine: and their children shall see, and shall rejoice, & their heart shall be joyful in our Lord. {8} I will hiss to them, and will gather them together, because I have redeemed them: and I will multiply them as they were multiplied before. {9} And I will sow them among peoples, & from a far they shall remember me: & they shall live with their children, and shall return. {10} And I will bring them back out of the Land of Aegypt, and out of the Assyrians I will gather them: and to the Land of Galaa & Libanus I will bring them, and there shall not be found place for them. {11} And he shall pass over in the strait of the sea, and shall strike the waves in the sea, & all the depths of the river shall be confounded, & the pride of Assur shall be humbled, and the sceptre of Aegypt shall depart. {12} I will strengthen them in the Lord, and in his name they shall walk, saith our Lord.

Jerusalem shall be again most miserably destroyed. 4. the Jewish nation rejected and dispersed, 12. because Christ was sold by them to the Gentiles for thirty pence. 16. They will receive Antichrist, who shall be finally destroyed.

{1} OPEN thy gates o Libanus, and let fire devour thy cedars, because the cedar is fallen, because the {2} Howl thou fir-tree, magnifical are wasted: howl ye oaks of Basan, because the fenced forest is cut down. {3} The voice of the howling of Pastors, because their magnificence is wasted: the voice of the roaring of lions, because the pride of Jordan is wasted. {4} Thus saith our Lord my God: Feed thou the cattle of slaughter, {5} which they that possessed, slew, and were not sorry, & they sold them, saying: Blessed be our Lord, we are become rich: & their Pastors spared them not. {6} And I will spare no more upon the inhabitants of the earth, saith our Lord: behold I will deliver men, every one in his neighbour's hand, and in the hand of his king: and they shall cut the land in pieces, & I will not deliver it out of their hand. {7} And I will feed the cattle of slaughter for this, o ye poor of the stock: and I took unto me two rods, one I called Beauty, and the other I called Cord: and I fed the flock. {8} And I cut off three Pastors in one month, and my soul shrunk together at them: for their soul also varied on me. {9} And I said: I will not feed you: that which dieth, let it die: and that which is cut off, be it cut off: and let the rest devour every one his neighbour's flesh. {10} And I took my rod that was called beauty, & I cut it off to make void my covenant, which I made with all peoples. {11} And it was made void in that day: and so the poor of the flock that keep for me, understood that it is the word of the Lord. {12} And I said to them: If it be good in your eyes, bring hither my hire: and if not, be quiet. And they weighed my hire thirty pieces of silver. {13} And our Lord said to me, cast it forth to the statuary, a goodly price, that I was priced at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver: & I threw them into the house of our Lord to the statuary. {14} And I cut off my second rod, that was called Cord, that I might dissolve the brotherhood between Juda and Israel. {15} And our Lord said to me: As yet take to thee the vessels of a foolish Pastor. {16} Because lo I will raise up a Pastor in the land which shall not visit things forsaken, the thing dispersed he shall not seek, and the broken he shall not heal, and that which standeth he shall not nourish, and he shall eat the flesh of the fat ones, and their hoofs he shall dissolve. {17} O pastor, and idol, leaving the flock: the sword upon his arm, & upon his right eye: his arm shall be dried with withering, and his right eye waxing dark shall be obscured.

The Jews persecuting Christ and his Church, shall be sore afflicted. 6. The Church still prospering: 11. the incredulous shall be condemned.

{1} THE burden of the word of our Lord upon Israel. Saith our Lord extending the heaven, & founding the earth, & forming the spirit of man in him: {2} Behold I will make Jerusalem a lintel of surfeit to all peoples round about: yea and Juda shall be in the siege against Jerusalem. {3} And it shall be: In that day I will make Jerusalem a stone of burden to all peoples: all that shall lift it, shall be torn with tearing, and all the kingdoms of the earth shall be gathered against her. {4} In that day, saith our Lord: I will strike every horse into astonishment, and his rider into madness, and upon the house of Juda I will open mine eyes, and every horse of the peoples I will strike with blindness. {5} And the Dukes of Juda shall say in their heart: Let the inhabitants of Jerusalem be strengthened for me in the Lord of hosts their God. {6} In that day I will make the Dukes of Juda as a furnace of fire amongst sticks, & as a brand of fire in hay: & they shall devolve to the right hand, and to the left all people round about: & Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her place in Jerusalem. {7} And our Lord shall save the tabernacles of Juda, as in the beginning: that the house of David glory not magnifically, and the gory of them that inhabit Jerusalem against Juda. {8} In that day shall our Lord protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & he that offended of them in that day shall be as David: & the house of David, as of God, as an Angel of our Lord in their sight. {9} And it shall be in that day: I will seek to destroy all Nations, that come against Jerusalem. {10} And I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace, & of prayers: and they shall look toward me, whom they pierced: and they shall lament him with lamentation as it were upon an only begotten, and they shall sorrow upon him, as the manner is to be sorrowful in the death of the first begotten. {11} In that day shall be great lamentation in Jerusalem, as the lamentation of Adadremmon in the field of Mageddon. {12} And the land shall lament: families and families apart: the families of the house of David apart, and their women apart: {13} the families of the house of Nathan apart, and their women apart: the families of the house of Levi apart, & their women apart: the families of Semei apart, and their women apart. {14} All the rest of the families, families and families apart, and their women apart.

Chapter 13

In the Church of Christ all idolatry shall be abolished. 6. In his passion his Apostles shall be dispersed, and they and others shall be proved by tribulations.

{1} IN that day shall be a fountain lying open to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: for the ablution of the sinner, and of the monstrous woman. {2} And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord of hosts: I will destroy the names of idols out of the earth, and they shall be remembered no more: and the false Prophets, and the unclean spirit I will take away out of the earth. {3} And it shall be when any man shall prophesy any more, his father & his mother that begot him, shall say to him: Thou shalt not live: because thou hast spoken a lie in the name of our Lord. And his father, & his mother, his parents shall strike him, when he shall prophesy. {4} And it shall be: in that day the Prophets shall be confounded every one by his own vision, when he shall prophesy, neither shall they be covered with cloak of sackcloth, to lie: {5} But he shall say: I am no Prophet, an husbandman am I: because Adam my example from my youth. {6} And it shall be said to him: What are these wounds in the midst of thy hands? And he shall say: With these was I wounded in the house of them, that loved me. {7} Sword be thou raised up upon my Pastor, and upon the man that cleaveth to me, saith the Lord of hosts: Strike the Pastor, and the sheep shall be dispersed: and I will turn my hand to the little ones. {8} And there shall be in all the earth, saith our Lord: two parts in it shall be destroyed, and shall fail: and the third part shall be left in it. {9} And I will bring the third part through fire, and will burn them as silver is burnt: and I will try them as gold is tried. They shall call my name, and I will hear them. I will say: Thou art my people; and they shall say: our Lord my God.

Chapter 14

Jerusalem shall be destroyed, many Jews slain, the rest made captives: 3. Christ's Church shall flourish, 8. especially in the Gentiles. 12. Persecutors shall be finally punished: 20. and the godly proceed in grace.

{1} BEHOLD the days of our Lord shall come, and thy spoils shall be divided in the midst of thee. {2} And I will gather together all nations to Jerusalem into battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses shall be wasted, and the women shall be defiled: and the half part of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the rest of the people shall not be taken away out of the city. {3} And our Lord will go forth, and will fight against those nations, as he fought in the day of conflict. {4} And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of olives, which is against Jerusalem toward the East: and the mount of olives shall be cloven by the half part thereof to the East, and to the West with a steep rupture exceeding great, and half of the mountain shall be separated to the North, and half thereof to the South. {5} And you shall fly to the valley of those mountains, because the valley of the mountains shall be joined even to the next, and you shall fly as you fled from the face of the earthquake in the days of Ozias king of Juda: and our Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with him. {6} And it shall be in that day: there shall be no light, but cold and frost. {7} And there shall be one day, which is known to our Lord, not day nor night: & in the time of the evening there shall be light. {8} And it shall be in that day: living waters shall issue forth out of Jerusalem: half of them the East sea, and half of them to the last sea: in summer and in winter shall they be. {9} And our Lord shall be King over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name shall be one. {10} And all the land shall return even to the desert, from the hill of Remmon to the South of Jerusalem: and it shall be exalted, and shall dwell in her place, from the gate of Benjamin even to the place of the former gate, and even to the gate of the corners: and from the tower of Hananeel even to the king's presses. {11} And they shall dwell in it, and there shall be anathema no more: but Jerusalem shall sit secure. {12} And this shall be the plague, wherewith our Lord shall strike all nations, that have fought against Jerusalem: the flesh shall pine away of every one standing upon his feet, and his eyes shall wear away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. {13} In that day there shall be a great tumult of our Lord among them: and a man shall take the hand of his neighbour, & his hand shall be clasped upon his neighbour's hand. {14} Yea and Judas shall fight against Jerusalem: and the riches of all nations round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and garments exceeding many. {15} And so shall there be ruin of horse, and mule, and camel, and ass, and of all the beasts, that shall be in those tents, as is this ruin. {16} And all that shall be left of all Nations, that came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, and to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles. {17} And it shall be: he that shall not ascend of the families of the land of Jerusalem, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, there shall be no shower upon them. {18} Yea and if the family of Aegypt shall not ascend, and shall not come: neither upon them shall it be, but ruin shall be, wherewith our Lord will strike all Nations that will not ascend to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles. {19} This shall be the sin of Aegypt, and this the sin of all Nations, that will not ascend to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles. {20} In that day shall that which is upon the bridle of the horse be holy to our Lord: and the caldrons in the house of our Lord shall be as the phials before the altar. {21} And every caldron in Jerusalem, and Juda shall be sanctified to the Lord of hosts: & all that immolate, shall come, and take of them, and shall seethe in them: and there shall be merchant no more in the house of the Lord of hosts in that day.

THE PROPHECY OF MALACHIE

God shewed his especial love towards the Jews, in that he chose their progenitor Jacob, rather than Esau. 7. Priests are reprehended, for not offering the best things in sacrifice. 10. The old sacrifices shall be rejected, and new far more excellent shall be offered in all nations.

{1} THE burden of the word of our Lord to Israel in the hand of Malachie. loved you, saith our Lord: & you have said: {2} I have Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau brother to Jacob, saith our Lord, and I loved Jacob, {3} but hated Esau? & I laid his mountains into a wilderness, and his inheritance unto the dragons of the desert. {4} But if Idumea shall say: We are destroyed, but returning we will build the things that are destroyed: thus saith the Lord of hosts: These shall build, and I will destroy: and they shall be called the borders of impiety, and the people with whom our Lord is angry for ever. {5} And your eyes shall see: and you shall say: Our Lord be magnified upon the border of Israel. {6} The son honoureth the father, and the servant his Lord: if then I be the father, where is my honour? And if I be the Lord, where is my fear: saith the Lord of hosts? {7} To you o Priests, that despise my name, & have said: Wherein have we despised thy name? You offer upon mine altar polluted bread: & you say: Wherein have we polluted thee? In that you say: The table of our Lord is contemptible. {8} If you offer the blind to be immolated, is it not evil? & if you offer the lame and the feeble is it not evil? Offer it to thy prince if it shall please him, or if he will receive thy face, saith the Lord of hosts. {9} And now beseech ye the face of God, that he may have mercy on you (for by your hand hath this been done) if by any means he will receive your faces, saith the Lord of hosts. {10} Who is there among you, that will shut the doors, & will kindle fire on my altar for naught? I have no will in you, saith the Lord of hosts: and gift I will not receive of your hand. {11} For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, great is my name among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrificing, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: because my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts. {12} And you have polluted it in that you say: The table of our Lord is contaminated: & that which is laid thereupon, is contemptible with the fire that devoureth it: {13} And you have said: Lo of labour, and you puffed at it, saith the Lord of hosts, & you brought in of robberies the lame, & the sick, & brought in a gift: Why, shall I receive it of your hand, saith our Lord? {14} Cursed is the deceitful, that hath in his flock a male, & making a vow immolateth the feeble to our Lord: because I am a great King, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the Gentiles.

Priests are further reprehended because they discharged not well their great office. 10. Both they and others offended in marrying strangers. 14. They ought to love, and not lightly dismiss their wives.

{1} AND now to you this commandment o ye priests. will not set it upon the heart, to give glory {2} If you will not hear, and if you to my name, saith the Lord of hosts: I will send upon you poverty, and will curse your blessings, and I will curse them: because you have not set it upon the heart. {3} Behold I will cast forth to you the arm, and will sprinkle upon your face the dung of your solemnities, and it shall take you with it. {4} And you shall know that I sent you this commandment, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts. {5} My covenant was with him of life and peace: & I gave him fear: and he feared me, and at the face of my name he was afraid. {6} The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: in peace, and in equity he walked with me, and turned away many from iniquity. {7} For the lips of the Priest shall keep knowledge, and the law they shall require of his mouth because he is the angel of the Lord of hosts. {8} But you have departed out of the way, and have scandalized many in the law: you have made void the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts. {9} For which cause I also have made you contemptible and base to all peoples, as you have not kept my ways, and have accepted face in the law. {10} Why, is there not one father to us all? Hath not one God created us? Why then doth every one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers? {11} Juda hath transgressed, and abomination was done in Israel, and in Jerusalem: because Judas hath contaminated the sanctification of our Lord, which he loved, and hath had the daughter of a strange god. {12} Our Lord will destroy the man, that hath done this, the master, and the scholar out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth gift to the Lord of hosts. {13} And this again have you done, you covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping, and howling, so that I have respect no more to sacrifice, neither do I accept any placable thing at your hand. {14} And you have said: For what cause? Because the Lord hath testified between thee, and the wife of thy youth, whom thou hast despised: and she thy partaker, and the wife of thy covenant. {15} Did not one make, and the residue of the spirit is his? And what doth one seek, but the seed of God? Keep ye then your spirit, and the wife of thy youth despise thou not. {16} When thou shalt hate, dismiss, saith our Lord the God of Israel: but iniquity shall cover his garment, saith the Lord of hosts, keep ye your spirit, and do not despise. {17} You have in your words made our Lord to labour: and you said: Wherein have we made him to labour? In that you say: Every one that doth evil, is good in the sight of our Lord, and such please him: or certes where is the God of judgement?

A precursor shall come before Christ. 3. The Priesthood and Sacrifice of the new law are pure. 5. God who seeth all sinners will punish them: 10. but if they amend, they shall receive God's benefits. 13. Not evil men, but the good please God.

{1} BEHOLD I send mine Angel, and he shall prepare the way before my face. And forthwith shall come to his temple the Dominatour, whom you seek, and the Angel of the testament, whom you desire. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts: {2} And who shall be able to think the day of his advent? And who shall stand to see him? For he as it were purging fire, and as the herb of fullers: {3} and he shall sit purging, and cleansing the silver, and he shall purge the sons of Levi, and will strain them as gold, and as silver, and they shall be offering sacrifices to our Lord in justice. {4} And the sacrifice of Juda and Jerusalem shall please our Lord, as the days of the world, and as the years of old. {5} And I will come to you in judgement, and will be a swift witness to sorcerers, and adulterers, and to the perjured, and them that calumniate the hire of the hired man, the widows, and pupils, and oppress the stranger, nor have feared me, saith the Lord of hosts. {6} For I, the Lord, and I am not changed: and ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. {7} For from the days of your fathers you have departed from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, saith the Lord of hosts. And you have said: Wherein shall we return? {8} Shall man fasten God, because you do fasten me? And you have said: Wherein do we fasten thee? In tithes, and in first fruits. {9} And in penury you are accursed, and you your whole nation fasten me. {10} Bring in all the tithe into the barn: and let there be meat in my house, and prove me upon this, saith our Lord: if I open not unto you the flood-gates of heaven, and pour you out blessing even to abundance, {11} and I will rebuke for you the devourer, and he shall not corrupt the fruit of your land: neither shall the vine in the field be barren, saith the Lord of hosts. {12} And all Nations shall call you blessed: for you shall be a land worthy to be desired, saith the Lord of hosts. {13} Your words have been forcible upon me, saith the Lord. {14} And you said: What have we spoken against thee? You have said: He is vain that serveth God, and what profit is it that we have kept his precepts, and that we have walked sorrowful before the Lord of hosts? {15} Therefore now we call the arrogant blessed, for they do impiety are builded, and they have tempted God and are made safe. {16} Then spake they that feared our Lord, every one with his neighbour: and our Lord attended, and heard: and a book of monument was written before him for them that fear our Lord, and think on his name. {17} And they shall be to me, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day that I do to my peculiar, and I will spare them, as a man sparing his son serving him. {18} And you shall convert, and shall see what is between the just & the impious: and between him that serveth God, and serveth him not.

In the terrible day of judgement, the wicked shall be condemned, and the just eternally rewarded. 5. Before which time Elias shall return, and convert the Jews to Christ.

{1} FOR behold the day shall come kindled as a furnace: and all the proud, and all that do impiety shall be stubble: & the day coming shall inflame them, saith the Lord of hosts, which shall not leave them root, and spring. {2} And there shall rise to you that fear my name the Sun of justice, and health in his wings: and you shall go forth, and shall leap as calves of the herd. {3} And you shall tread the impious, when they shall be ashes under the sole of your feet in the day, that I do, saith the Lord of hosts. {4} Remember ye the law of Moyses my servant, which I commanded him in Horeb to all Israel precepts, and judgements. {5} Behold I will send you Elias the Prophet, before the day of our Lord come great and dreadful. {6} And he shall convert the heart of the fathers to the children, & the heart of the children to their fathers: lest perhaps I come, and strike the earth with anathema.

{1} AND it came to pass, after that Alexander Philip's son the Macedonian, that first reigned in Greece, being gone out of the land of Cethim, struck Darius king of the Persians and the Medes: {2} he made many battles, and obtained the munition of all, & slew the kings of the earth: {3} and he passed through even to the ends of the earth: and took the spoils of the multitude of the Gentiles: & the earth was silent in his sight. {4} And he gathered power, and an army exceeding strong: and his heart was exalted and elevated: {5} and he obtained the regions of the Gentiles, & the tyrants: and they were made tributaries to him. {6} And after these things, he fell down in his bed, and he knew that he should die. {7} And he called his servants the Nobles, that were brought up with him from his youth: & he divided his kingdom to them, when he yet lived. {8} And Alexander reigned twelve years, & he died. {9} And his servants possessed the kingdom, every one in his place {10} and they did all put crowns on them after his death, & their sons after them many years, & evils were multiplied in the earth. {11} And there came forth of them a sinful root Antiochus Illustr, the son of king Antiochus, that had been at Rome an hostage: & he reigned in the hundredth & seven & thirtieth year of the kingdom of the Greeks. {12} In those days there went forth of Israel wicked children, & persuaded many, saying: Let us go, and make a covenant with the Gentiles, that are about us: because since we departed from them many evils have found us. {13} And the talk seemed good in their eyes. {14} And some of the people determined, & went to the king: & he gave them leave to do the justice of the Gentiles. {15} And they built a school in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the Nations: {16} and they made to themselves prepuces, and revolted from the holy testament, and were joined to the Nations, and were sold to do evil. {17} And the kingdom was prepared in the sight of Antiochus, and he began to reign in the land of Aegypt, that he might reign over two kingdoms. {18} And he entered into Aegypt with great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, & horsemen, and a copious multitude of ships: {19} And he made war against Ptolomee the king of Aegypt, & Ptolomee was afraid at his presence, and fled, and many fell wounded. {20} And he took the fenced cities in the land of Aegypt: and he took the spoils of the land of Aegypt. {21} And Antiochus turned, after he struck Aegypt in the hundredth and three and fortieth year: and he went up to Israel, {22} and went up to Jerusalem with a great multitude. {23} And he entered into the sanctification with pride, & took the golden altar, & the candlestick of light, & all the vessels thereof, & the table of proposition, and the libatories, and the phials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, & the crowns, and the golden ornament, that was in the face of the temple: & he brake all into pieces. {24} And he took the silver and gold, & the desiderable vessels: and he took the hidden treasures which he found: & carrying away he departed into his own land. {25} And he made a slaughter of men, and spake in great pride. {26} And great lamentation was made in Israel, and in every place of theirs: {27} and the princes, and the ancients mourned, and the young men, and the virgins were weakened, & the beatifulness of the women was changed. {28} Every husband took lamentation: and the women that sat in the marriage bed mourned: {29} and the land was moved upon the inhabitants therein, & all the house of Jacob did put on confusion. {30} And after two years of days the king sent a Prince of tributes into the cities of Juda, and he came to Jerusalem with a great multitude. {31} And he spake unto them peaceable words in guile: and they believed him. {32} And he fell upon the city suddenly, and struck it with a great plague, & destroyed much people in Israel. {33} And he took the spoils of the city, and burnt it with fire, and destroyed the houses thereof, and the walls thereof round about: {34} and they led the women captive, and the children, and the cattle they possessed. {35} And they built the city of David with a great wall, and a strong, and with firm towers, and it was made a castle for them: {36} and they placed there a sinful nation, wicked men, & they waxed strong therein: And they laid armour, and victuals, and gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem: {37} and laid them up there: & they became a great snare. {38} And this was made for an embushment of the sanctification, and to be an ill devil in Israel. {39} And they shed innocent blood round about the sanctification, and contaminated the sanctification. {40} And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled by reason of them, and it became the habitation of strangers, and she became stranger to her own seed, and her children forsook her. {41} Her sanctification was desolate as a wilderness, her festival days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honours into naught. {42} According to her glory was her ignominy multiplied, and her highness was turned into mourning. {43} And king Antiochus wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one: and every one should leave his own law. {44} And all Nations consented according to the word of king Antiochus, {45} & many of Israel consented to his service, & they sacrificed to idols, & defiled the sabbath. {46} And the king sent books by the hands of messengers into Jerusalem, & into all the cities of Juda: that they should follow the law of the Nations of the earth, {47} and should prohibit holocausts & sacrifices, & placations to be made in the temple of God, {48} and should prohibit the sabbath to be celebrated, & the solemn days. {49} And he commanded the holy places to be defiled, & the holy people of Israel. {50} And he commanded altars to be built, and temples, and idols, & swine's flesh to be immolated, and common beasts, {51} and to leave their children uncircumcised, and their souls to be contaminated in all uncleannesses, and abominations, so that they should forget the law, and should change all the justifications of God. {52} And whosoever had not done according to the word of king Antiochus, they should die. {53} According to all these words wrote he to all his kingdom: & he appointed princes over the people, that should force these things to be done. {54} And they commanded the cities of Juda to sacrifice. {55} And many of the people were gathered to them, they that had forsaken the law of our Lord: and they did evils upon the land: {56} and they chased forth the people of Israel in hidden corners, and in the secret places of fugitives. {57} The fifteenth day of the month Casleu, the hundredth five and fortieth year king Antiochus built the abominable idol of desolation upon the altar of God, and throughout all the cities of Juda round about they builded altars: {58} and before the gates of houses, and in the streets they burnt frankincense, and sacrificed. {59} and the books of the law of God they burnt with fire, cutting them: {60} and with whomsoever were found the books of the testament of our Lord, and whomsoever observed the law of our Lord, they murdered him, according to the edict of the king. {61} In their power did they these things to the people of Israel that was found, in every month & month in the cities: {62} And the five and twentieth day of the month they sacrificed upon the altar that was against the altar. {63} And the women that circumcised their children, were murdered according to the commandment of king Antiochus, {64} and they hang up the children by the necks through out all their houses, and those that had circumcised them, they murdered. {65} And many of the people of Israel determined with themselves, that they would not eat the unclean things: and they chose rather to die, than to be defiled with unclean meats: {66} and they would not break the holy law of God, and they were murdered, {67} and there was made great wrath upon the people exceedingly.

Mathathias with his five sons, lamenteth the calamities of the people, 8. and profanation of holy things, 15. resisteth the king's wicked decrees, 23. killeth an idolater, and the king's commissioner, so flyeth into the mountains with others. 31. Many are slain not resisting in battle on the sabbath days. 40. Upon further consideration the rest defend themselves in the sabbath; 45. kill their enemies, and destroy idolatry. 49. Mathathias dying exhorteth his sons to be zealous in the law: 65. appointing Simon their counselor, and Judas their captain.

{1} IN those days arose Mathathias the son of John, the son of Simeon, Priest of the sons of Joarib from Jerusalem, & he sat in the mountain of Modin: {2} and he had five sons, John who was surnamed Gaddis: {3} and Simon, who was surnamed Thasi: {4} and Judas, who was called Machabeus: {5} and Eleazar, who was surnamed Abaron: and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus. {6} These saw the evils, that were done in the people of Juda, and in Jerusalem. {7} And Mathathias said: Woe is me, wherefore was I born to see the affliction of my people, and the affliction of the holy city, and to sit there, when it is given in the hands of the enemies? {8} The holy places are come into the hand of strangers: the temple thereof as an ignoble man. {9} The vessels of her glory are carried away captive: her old men are murdered in the streets, and her young men are fallen by the sword of the enemies. {10} What nation hath not inherited her kingdom, and hath not obtained her spoils? {11} All her beauty is taken away. She that was free, is made a servant. {12} And lo our holies, and our beauty, and our glory is desolate, and the Nations have defiled them. {13} Where to them is it for us yet to live? {14} And Mathathias rent his garments, and his sons: and they covered themselves with hair-cloths, and lamented exceedingly. {15} And there came thither they that were sent from king Antiochus, to compel them that were fled into the city of Modin, to immolate and to burn frankincense, & to depart from the law of God. {16} And many of the people of Israel consenting came to them: but Mathathias, & his sons stood constantly. {17} And they that were sent from Antiochus answering said to Mathathias: Thou art the prince, and most honourable, and great in this city, and adorned with sons, and brethren. {18} Therefore come thou first, and do the king's commandment, as all Nations have done, and the men of Juda, and they that are remaining in Jerusalem: & thou shalt be & thy sons among the king's friends, and amplified with gold, and silver, and many gifts. {19} And Mathathias answered, & said with a loud voice: Although all Nations obey king Antiochus, that every man revolt from the service of the law of his fathers, and consent to his commandments: {20} I and my sons, & my brethren will obey the law of our fathers. {21} God be merciful unto us: it is not profitable for us to forsake the law, and the justices of God: {22} we will not hear the words of king Antiochus, neither will we sacrifice, transgressing the commandments of our law, to go an other way. {23} And as he ceased to speak these words, there came a certain Jew in the eyes of all to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the king's commandment. {24} And Mathathias saw, & was sorry, and his reins trembled, and his fury was kindled according to the judgement of the law, and flying upon him he slew him upon the altar: {25} yea and the man, whom king Antiochus had sent, which compelled them to immolate, he slew in that very time, & destroyed the altar, {26} and sealed the law, as did Phinees to Zamri the son of Salomi. {27} And Mathathias cried out with a loud voice in the city, saying: Every one that hath zeal of the law, establishing his testament, let him come forth after me. {28} And he fled himself, & his sons into the mountains, and left all things whatsoever they had in the city. {29} Then came down many seeking judgement, and justice, into the desert: {30} and they sat there themselves, and their children, and their wives, & their cattle: because the evils overflowed upon them. {31} And it was reported to the king's men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem in the city of David, that certain men which dissipated the king's commandment, were departed into secret places in the desert, & many were gone after them. {32} And forthwith they went forwards towards them, & set battle against them in the day of the Sabbaths, {33} & they said to them: Do you resist now also as yet? Come forth: and do according to the word of king Antiochus, and you shall live. {34} And they said: We will not come forth, neither will we do the king's word, to pollute the day of the Sabbaths. {35} And they hastened battle against them. {36} And they answered them not, neither did they cast a stone at them, nor stopped the secret places, {37} saying: Let us die all in our simplicity: and heaven & earth shall be witnesses, upon us that you unjustly destroy us. {38} And they gave them battle on the Sabbaths: & there died they, & their wives, & their children, & their cattle even to a thousand souls of men. {39} And Mathathias understood it and his friends, and they had lamentation upon them exceedingly. {40} And every man said to his neighbour: If we shall all do as our brethren have done, and shall not fight against the heathen for our lives, and our justifications: now will they quickly destroy us from the earth. {41} And they thought in that day, saying: Every man whosoever shall come unto us in battle on the day of the Sabbaths, let us fight against him: & we will not all die, as our brethren died in secret places. {42} Then was there gathered to them the synagogue of the Assideans strong of force out of Israel, every voluntary in the law: {43} and all that fled from the evils, were added to them, and were made a strength to them. {44} And they gathered an army, & struck the sinners in their wrath, and the wicked men in their indignation: & the rest fled to the nations to escape. {45} And Mathathias went round about, & his friends, and they destroyed the altars: {46} & they circumcised the uncircumcised children, as many as they found in the coasts of Israel: and in strength. {47} And they persecuted the children of pride, and the work prospered in their hands: {48} and they obtained the law out of the hands of the nations, and out of the hands of the kings: and they gave not the horn to the sinner. {49} And the days of Mathathias approached to die, & he said to his sons: Now is pride strengthened, & chastisement, & the time of subversion, & the wrath of indignation: {50} Now therefore o my sons, be ye emulators of the law, & give your lives for the testament of your fathers. {51} And remember the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations, & you shall receive great glory, and an eternal name. {52} Abraham was he not in temptation found faithful, and it was reputed to him unto justice? {53} Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment, & he was made Lord of Aegypt. {54} Phinees our father, fervent in the zeal of God, received the testament of an everlasting Priesthood. {55} Jesus whilst he accomplished the word, was made the Duke in Israel. {56} Caleb whilst he testifieth in the Church, received an inheritance. {57} David in his mercy obtained the seat of the kingdom for ever. {58} Elias whilst he zealeth the zeal of the law, was received into heaven. {59} Ananias and Azarias & Misael believing, were delivered out of the flame. {60} Daniel in his simplicity was delivered out of the lions' mouth. {61} And so think ye through generation & generation: that all that hope in him, are not weakened. {62} And of the words of the sinful man be not afraid: because his glory is dung, and worm: {63} to day he is extolled, and to morrow he shall not be found: because he is turned into his earth, & his cogitation is perished. {64} You therefore my sons take courage, and do manfully in the law: because in it you shall be glorious. {65} And behold Simon your brother, I know that he is a man of counsel: hear ye him always, and he shall be a father to you. {66} And Judas Machabeus valiant of strength from his youth, let him be to you the prince of warfare, and he shall manage the battle of the people. {67} And you shall bring to you all the doers of the law: and revenge ye the revenge of your people. {68} Repay retribution to the Gentiles, & attend to the precept of the law. {69} And he blessed them, and was laid to his fathers. {70} And he died the hundredth & six and fortie year, and he was buried by his sons in the sepulchres of his fathers in Modin, and all Israel lamented him with great lamentation.

Judas Machabeus punisheth the wicked: 10. killeth Apollonius in battle. 13. Seron braggeth, but is also overthrown. 25. Antiochus furiously incensed. 29. gathereth money in Persis. 32. leaving Lysias viceroy, 38. who sending a great army against the Israelites, 42. Judas and his brethren commanding the cause to God, by prayer and penance, 54. resolve to fight against their enemies.

{1} AND Judas, that was called Machabeus his son arose in his stead: brethren helped him, & all that had joined {2} and all his themselves to his father, and they fought the battle of Israel with joy. {3} And he dilated glory to his people, & put on him a brigantine as a giant, and girded about him his warly armour in battles, and protected the camp with his sword. {4} He became like a lion in his acts, and as a lion's whelp roaring in hunting. {5} And he persecuted the wicked enquiring them out, & such as troubled his people, them he burnt with fire: {6} and his enemies were repelled for fear of him, all the workers of iniquity were troubled: and salvation was directed in his hand. {7} And he exasperated many kings, & rejoiced Jacob in his works, & for ever his memory is in benediction. {8} And he walked through the cities of Juda, & destroyed the impious out of them, & turned away wrath from Israel. {9} And he was renowned even to the uttermost part of the earth, and he gathered them that perished. {10} And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, and from Samaria a power much and great, to make battle against Israel. {11} And Judas understood it, and went forth to meet him: and he struck, and killed him: and there fell many wounded, & the rest fled away. {12} And he took the spoils of them, and the sword of Apollonius, Judas took away, and he fought with it all his days. {13} And Seron captain of the army of Syria heard that Judas gathered a congregation of the faithful, and an assembly with him, {14} and he said: I will make me a name, and will be glorified in kingdom, and will overthrow Judas, and those that are with him that despised the word of the king. {15} And he prepared himself: and there went up with him a camp of the impious strong helpers, to do vengeance upon the children of Israel. {16} And they approached even as far as Bethoron: & Judas went forth to meet him with few. {17} But as they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas: How shall we a few be able to fight against so great a multitude & so strong, and we are wearied with fasting to day? {18} And Judas said: It is an easy matter for many to be inclosed in the hand of few, & there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to deliver in many, & in few {19} Because not in the multitude of the army is the victory of battle, but from heaven is the strength. {20} They come to us in an obstinate multitude, & in pride, to destroy us, & our wives, & our children, and to spoil us. {21} But we will fight for our lives, & our laws: {22} & our Lord himself will destroy them before our face, but you, fear them not. {23} And as he ceased to speak, he flew upon them suddenly: & Seron was destroyed, & his host in his sight: {24} & he pursued him in the descent of Bethoron even to the plain, & there fell of them eight hundred men, & the rest fled into the land of the Philisthiims. {25} And the fear of Judas & of his brethren, & the dread fell upon all the nations round about them. {26} And his name came to the king, & all nations told of the battles of Judas. {27} And as king Antiochus heard these words he was wrath in his mind: & he sent, & gathered the army of all his kingdom, a camp exceeding strong: {28} and he opened his treasury, and gave wages to the army for a year: and he commanded them, that they should be ready at all assyses. {29} And he saw that money failed out of his treasures, & the tributes of the region small, because of the dissension, and the plague, that he had made in the land, to take away the ordinances, that were from the first days: {30} and he feared lest he should not have as once and twice, for costs & gifts, which he had given before with a large hand: & he had abounded above the kings, that had been before him. {31} And he was exceedingly astonished in mind, and purposed to go into Persis, and to take the tributes of the regions, and to gather much silver. {32} And he left Lysias a noble man of the blood royal, over the king's affairs, from the river Euphrates even to the river of Aegypt: {33} and that he should bring up Antiochus his son, till he returned. {34} And he delivered to him half the army, and Elephants: and he gave him commandment concerning all things that he would, and concerning the inhabitants of Jurie, and Jerusalem: {35} and that he should send an army to them, to destroy and root out the power of Israel, and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away the memory of them out of the place, {36} and that he should appoint inhabitants in all their coasts, children strangers, & should by lot distribute their land. {37} And the king took the part of the army that remained, & went forth from Antioch the city of his kingdom in the year an hundred and seven and forty: and he passed over the river Euphrates, & walked through the higher countries. {38} And Lysias chose Ptolomee the son of Doryminus, and Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends. {39} And he sent with them forty thousand men, and seven thousand horsemen: that they should come into the land of Juda, and should destroy it according to the word of the king. {40} And they went forth with all their power, and came, and joined near to Emmaum in the champion country. {41} And the merchants of the countries heard the name of them: and they took silver and gold exceeding much, and servants: and they came into the camp, to take the children of Israel for slaves, & there were added to them the army of Syria, & of the land of the strangers. {42} And Judas saw, & his brethren, that the evils were multiplied, and the armies approached to their borders: and they knew the king's words, which he commanded to do to the people unto destruction and consummation: {43} and they said every one to his neighbour: Let us set up the abasing of our people, & let us fight for our people, and our holies. {44} And an assembly was gathered, that they should be ready unto battle: & that they should pray and desire mercy & miseras. {45} And Jerusalem was not inhabited, but was a desert: there was none that came in and went out of her children: and the holy place was conculed: and the children of strangers were in the castle, there was the inhabitation of the Gentiles, and pleasure was taken away from Jacob, & there failed their pipe and harp. {46} And they gathered together, and came into Maspha against Jerusalem: because the place of prayer in Israel was in Maspha before. {47} And they fasted that day, and clothed themselves with haircloths, and put ashes on their head: and they rent their garments: {48} and they laid open the books of the law, out of which the Gentiles searched the similitude of their idols: {49} and they brought the ornaments of Priests, and first-fruits, & tithes, & raised up Nazareites, that had fulfilled their days: {50} and they cried with a loud voice to heaven, saying: What shall we do with these, & whither shall we carry them? {51} And thy holies are conculed, and they are contaminated, and thy Priests are brought into mourning, & into humiliation. {52} And behold the Nations are come together against us to destroy us: thou knowest what things they intend against us. {53} How shall we be able to stand before their face, unless thou o God do help us? {54} And with trumpets they cried out with a loud voice. {55} And after these things Judas appointed captains of the people, tribunes, and centurions, and sergeants, and decurions. {56} And he said to them, that built houses, and despoiled wives, and planted vineyards, and to the fearful, that every one should return into his house, according to the law. {57} And they removed the camp, and pitched at the South of Emmaum. {58} And Judas said: Gird up your selves, and be mighty sons, and be ready against the morning, that you may fight against these nations, which are assembled against us to destroy us, and our holies, {59} because it is better for us to die in battle, than to see the evils of our nation, and of the holies: {60} but as it shall be the will in heaven, so be it done.

Gorgias with six thousand soldiers well appointed, intending suddenly to destroy the Israelite's army of three thousand not well armed. 8. is defeated: half of his men slain, the rest running away. 16. Judas staying his men from spoiling, till the enemies were out of sight, then they take rich preys; and render thanks to God. 28. The next year, Lysias with three score thousand foot, and six thousand horsemen invading Jery, Judas with ten thousand (making his prayer to God) killleth five thousand: 35. the rest flying, Lysias gathereth more soldiers. 36. Judas with his brethren, and others cleanse the temple, and renew holy things. 55. Offer Sacrifice, 58. and institute a feast of the dedication of a new Altar.

{1} AND Gorgias took five thousand men, & a thousand chosen horsemen: & they removed the camp by night, {2} that they might approach to the camp of the Jews, and might strike them suddenly: & the children that were of the castle, were their guides. {3} And Judas heard, & arose, he and the mighties to strike the power of the king's army, that were in Emmaum. {4} For as yet the army was dispersed from the camp. {5} And Gorgias came into the camp of Judas by night, and found no man, & he sought them in the mountains: because he said: These fly from us. {6} And when the day was come, Judas appeared in the field with three thousand men only, which had not harness and swords as they would: {7} and they saw the camp of the Gentiles strong, and the men in brigantines, and horsemen round about them, and these were skilful to battle. {8} And Judas said to the men that were with him: Fear not the multitude of them, & of their assault be not afraid. {9} Remember in what sort our fathers were saved in the red sea, when Pharao with a great army followed them. {10} And now let us cry towards heaven: and our Lord will have mercy on us, and will be mindful of the testament of our fathers, and will destroy this army, before our face this day: {11} and all Nations shall know that there is one that redeemeth and delivereth Israel. {12} And the aliens lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming against them. {13} And they went out of the camp into battle, and these that were with Judas, sounded with the trumpet. {14} And they met together: and the Gentiles were discomfited, and fled into the plain. {15} But all the hindmost fell by the sword, and they pursued them as far as Gezeron, and even to the plains of Idumea, and of Azotus, and of Jamnia: and there fell of them even to three thousand men. {16} And Judas returned, and his army following him. {17} And he said to the people: Covet not the spoils: because there is battle against us, {18} and Gorgias & his army are near us in the mount: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overthrow them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards secure. {19} And as Judas was speaking these words, lo a certain part appeared looking forth from the mountain. {20} And Gorgias saw that his men were turned to flight, & that they burnt the camp: for the smoke that was seen declared what was done. {21} Which things seen they feared exceedingly, beholding withal both Judas, and the army in the plain ready to battle. {22} And they did all fly into the plain of the aliens: {23} & Judas returned to the spoils of the camp, & they took much gold, and silver, and hyacinth, and purple of the sea, and great riches. {24} And turning they sung an hymn, & blessed God towards heaven, because he is good, because his mercy is for ever. {25} And great salvation was made in Israel in that day. {26} And whosoever escaped of the aliens, they came and told Lysias all things that had chanced. {27} Which when he heard being amazed he fainted in mind: that such things chanced not in Israel, as he would, & such as the king commanded. {28} And the year following Lysias gathered of chosen men three score thousand, & of horsemen five thousand, to overthrow them. {29} And they came into Jery, and pitched the camp in Bethoron, and Judas met them with ten thousand men. {30} And they saw the army strong, and he prayed, and said: Blessed art thou o saviour of Israel, which brakest the assault of the mighty by the hand of thy servant David, & didst deliver the camp of the aliens into the hand of Jonathas Saul's son, and of his esquire. {31} shut up this army in the hand of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their army and horsemen. {32} Give them fear, and consume the boldness of their strength, and let them be shaken with their contrition, {33} cast them down with the sword of them that love thee: & let all that know thy name, praise thee in hymns. {34} And they joined battle: and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men. {35} And Lysias seeing the flight of his men, and the boldness of the Jews, & that they are ready either to live or to die manfully, he went to Antioch, and chose soldiers, that being multiplied they might come again into Jery. {36} But Judas, and his brethren said: Behold our enemies are discomfited: let us go up now to cleanse the holy places, & to renew them. {37} And all the army assembled together, and they went up into mount Sion. {38} And they saw the sanctification desert, and the altar profaned, and the gates burnt, and in the courts shrubs grown up as in a forest, or on the mountains, and the chambers thrown down. {39} And they rent their garments, and lamented with a great Lamentation, and laid ashes upon their head: {40} and they fell on their face upon the earth, & cried out with trumpets of significations, & cried towards heaven. {41} Then Judas ordained men to fight against them that were in the castle, till they cleansed the holy places. {42} And he chose Priests without spot, having their will in the law of God: {43} and they cleansed the holy places, and took away the stones of contamination into an unclean place. {44} And he considered of the altar of holocausts, that was profaned, what he should do with it. {45} And good counsel came to their minds, to destroy it: lest perhaps it might be a reproach to them, because the Gentiles contaminated it, and they threw it down. {46} And they laid up the stones in the mount of the house in a place convenient, till their should come a Prophet, & give answer concerning them. {47} And they took whole stones according to the law, and builded a new altar according to that which was before: {48} and they built the holy places, and the things that were within the temple inward: and the temple, and the courts they sanctified. {49} And they made the holy vessels new, {990} and brought in the candlestick, and the altar of incenses, and the table into the temple. {50} And they put incense upon the altar, and lighted the lamps, that were upon the candlestick, and they gave light in the temple. {51} And they set loaves upon the table, and hung up the veils, and finished all the works, that they had made. {52} And before the morning they arose the five and twentieth day of the ninth month (this is the month of Casleu) of the hundred & eight and fortieth year: {53} and they offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of holocausts, which they made. {54} According to the time and according to the day, wherein the heathen contaminated it, in the same was it renewed in canticles, & harps, and lutes, and in cymbals. {55} And all the people fell on their face, and they adored toward heaven, and blessed him that prospered them. {56} And they made the dedication of the altar eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and sacrifice of salvation, and of praise. {57} And they adorned the face of the temple with gold crowns, and little shields: & they dedicated the gates, and the chambers, and hanged doors upon them. {58} And there was made exceeding great joy in the people, and the reproach of the Gentiles was turned away. {59} And Judas decreed, and his brethren, and all the Church of Israel, that the day of the dedication of the altar be kept in the times thereof from year to year for eight days, from the five & twentieth day of the month Casleu, with joy and gladness. {60} And they builded at that time mount Sion, and round about high walls, and strong towers, lest sometime the Gentiles should come, and conciliate it as they did before. {61} And he placed an army there, to keep it, & he fenced it to keep Bethsura, that the people might have a munition against the face of Idumea.

Judas and his brethren expunge their bordering enemies, 9. deliver them that were distressed. 17. Simon prospereth in Galilee, 24. Judas in Galaad, 45. taketh Ephron, and all return safe into Jerusalem. 55. Josephus and Azarias attempting ambitiously without order to fight against their enemies, are defeated. 63. And Judas hath more victories.

{1} AND it came to pass, as the Gentiles round about heard that the altar was builded up, and the sanctuary as before, they were exceeding angry: {2} and they thought to take away the stock of Jacob, that were among them, and they began to kill of the people, and to persecute. {3} And Judas fought against the children of Esau in Idumea, & them that were in Acrabathane: because they beset the Israelites round about, and he struck them with a great plague. {4} And he remembered the malice of the children of Bean, which were to the people a snare and a scandal, lying in wait for them in the way. {5} And they were shut up by him in towers, and he came near to them, and anathematized them, and burnt their towers with fire, with all that were in them. {6} And he passed to the children of Ammon, and found a strong band, and a copious people, and Timothee their captain: {7} and he made many battles with them, and they were discomfited in their sight, & he struck them: {8} and he took Gazer the city, and her daughters, and returned into Jewry. {9} And the Gentiles that are in Galaad, gathered together against the Israelites, that were in their coasts to dispatch them: and they fled into the fortress of Batheman. {10} And they sent letters to Judas, and his brethren, saying: The heathen round about are gathered together against us, to dispatch us: {11} and they prepare to come, and to occupy the fortress into which we are fled: and Timothee is the captain of their host. {12} Now therefore come, & deliver us, out of their hands, because a multitude of us is fallen. {13} And all our brethren, that were in the places of Tubin, are slain: and they led away their wives captives, and the children, and the spoils, and they have slain there almost a thousand men. {14} And the epistles were yet in reading, and lo other messengers came out of Galilee their coats rent, reporting according to these words: {991} {15} saying that there were assembled against them from Ptolemais, and Tyre, and Sidon, and all Galilee is replenished with aliens, to consume us. {16} And as Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly assembled together to consider what they should do for their brethren, that were in tribulation, and were expugned of them. {17} And Judas said to Simon his brother: Choose thee men, and go, and deliver thy brethren in Galilee: and I, and my brother Jonathas will go into the country of Galaad. {18} And he left Joseph the son of Zacharie, and Azarias, captains of the people with the residue of the army in Jurie to keep it: {19} and he commanded them, saying: Be ye over this people: & make no battle against the heathen, till we return. {20} And there were parted to Simon three thousand men, to go into Galilee: but to Judas eight thousand to go into the country of Galaad. {21} And Simon went into Galilee, & made many battles with the heathen: and the heathen were discomfited before his face, and he pursued them even to the gate of Ptolemais. {22} And there fell of the heathen almost three thousand men, & he took the spoils of them, {23} and he took them that were in Galilee & in Arbatis with their wives, and children, & all things that they had, and he brought them into Jurie with great joy. {24} And Judas Machabeus, and Jonathas his brother passed over Jordan, and went three days' journey through the desert. {25} And the Nabutheians met them, & received them peaceably, & told them all things, that had happened to their brethren in the country of Galaad, {26} and that many of them were comprehended in Barasa, and Bosor, and in Alimin, and in Casphor, & Mageth, & Carnaim, all these cities fenced, & great. {27} Yea and in the rest of the cities of Galaad they are held captive, & on the morrow they appointed to remove the army near to these cities, and to take them, & to dispatch them in one day. {28} And Judas turned & his army the way into Bosor suddenly, and took the city: and he slew every male in the edge of the sword, & took all their spoils, & burnt it with fire. {29} And they arose thence by night, & went even to the fortress. {30} And it came to pass early in the morning, when they had lifted up their eyes, & behold much people, whereof there was no number, carrying ladders, & engines to take the fortress, and they expugned them. {31} And Judas saw that the battle began and the cry of the battle ascended to heaven as a trumpet, and a great cry out of the city: {32} & he said to his host: Fight ye to day for your brethren. {33} And he came with three ranks behind them & they cried out with trumpets, & cried in prayer. {34} And the camp of Timothee understood that it was Machabeus, and they fled back from his presence: and they struck them with a great plague: and there fell of them in that day almost eight thousand men. {35} And Judas turned aside into Maspha, and expugned, & took it, and he slew every male thereof, & he took the spoils thereof, & burnt it with fire. {36} From thence he marched, and took Casbon, and Mageth, and Bosor, & the rest of the cities of Galaad. {37} But after these words Timothee gathered an other army, and camped against Raphon beyond the torrent. {38} And Judas send to view the army: and they reported unto him, saying: That all nations, that are round about us, are assembled against us, an army exceeding great: {39} and they have hired the Arabians to help them, & they have camped beyond the torrent, being ready to come unto thee into battle. And Judas went to meet them. {40} And Timothee said to the princes of his army: When Judas shall approach, & his army to the torrent of water: if he pass over unto us first, we shall not be able to sustain him: because prevailing he will prevail against us. {41} But if he be afraid to pass over, and camp without the river, let us pass over to them, and we shall prevail against them. {42} But as Judas approached to the torrent of water, he set the scribes of the people by the torrent, & commanded them, saying: Leave not a man: but let all come into the battle. {43} And he passed over to them first, & all the people after him, & all the heathen were discomfited at their presence, & they threw away their weapons, & fled to the temple, that was in Carnaim. {44} And he took the city it-self, & the temple he burnt with fire, with all things that were therein: & Carnaim was subdued, & could not stand against the face of Judas. {45} And Judas gathered together all the Israelites, that were in the country of Galaad, from the least even to the greatest, and their wives, and children, and an army exceeding great, to come into the land of Juda. {46} And they came as far as Ephron: and this city was great, situate in the entrance, fenced exceedingly, and there was no means to decline from it on the right hand or on the left, but the way was through the midst. {47} And they that were in the city, shut in themselves, and stopped the gates with stones: & Judas sent to them in peaceable words, {48} saying: Let us pass through your land, and go into our country: and no man shall hurt you, only on foot we will pass. And they would not open unto them. {49} And Judas commanded proclamation to be made in the camp, that they should approach every man in the place, wherein he was. {50} and the men of strength approached, and he assaulted that city all the day, and all the night, and the city was delivered into his hand: {51} & they slew every male in the edge of the sword, and he rooted it up, and took the spoils thereof, & passed through all the city upon the slain. {52} And they passed over Jordan in the great plain, against the face of Bethsan. {53} And Judas gathered together the hindmost, & he exhorted the people throughout all the way, till they came into the land of Juda: {54} and they went up into mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts because none of them was fallen till they returned in peace. {55} And in the days that Judas & Jonathas were in the land of Galaad, & Simon his brother in Galilee against the face of Ptolomais, {56} Joseph the son of Zacharie heard, & Azarias, the princes of the band, the things well achieved, and the battles that were made, {57} and he said: Let us also make us a name, and let us go fight against the heathen, that are round about us. {58} And he commanded them that were in his army, and they went to Jamnia. {59} And Gorgias went forth out of the city, and his men to meet them into battle. {60} And Joseph and Azarias were chased in flight even unto the borders of Jurie: and there fell that day of the people of Israel about two thousand men, and there was made a great tumult in the people: {61} because they heard not Judas, & his brethren, thinking that they should do manfully. {62} But they were not of the seed of those men by whom salvation was made in Israel. {63} And the men of Juda were magnified exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and of all nations where their name was heard. {64} And they came together unto them, with acclamations for their good success. {65} And Judas went out, and his brethren, and they expugned the children of Esau in the land, that is toward the South, and they struck Chebron, and her daughters: and the walls thereof and the towers he burnt with fire round about. {66} And he removed the camp to go into the land of the aliens, and he walked through Samaria. {67} In that day fell the Priests in battle, whilst they will do manfully, whilst they go forth without counsel into battle. {68} And Judas declined to Azotus into the land of the aliens, and he threw down their altars, and the sculptiles of their gods he burnt with fire: and he took the spoils of the cities, and returned into the land of Juda.

{1} AND king Antiochus walked through the higher countries, and he heard that there was a city Elymais in Persis, most noble, and plentiful in silver & gold, {2} and a temple therein exceeding rich: and coverings thereof gold, and brigantines, and shields, which Alexander Philip's son the king of Macedonia that reigned first in Greece left there. {3} And he came, and sought to take the city, and to spoil it, and he could not, because the word was known to them that were in the city. {4} And they rose up into battle, and he fled from thence, and departed with great sorrow, and returned into Babylonia. {5} And there came one that told him in Persis, that the camps that were in the land of Juda, were put to flight: {6} and that Lysias went with great power with the first, and was put to flight before the face of the Jews, and they grew strong with armour, and force, and many spoils: which they took out of the camps, which they destroyed: {7} and that they threw down the abomination which they had builded upon the altar that was in Jerusalem, and the sanctification they compassed about as before with high walls, yea and Bethsura his city, {8} And it came to pass as the king heard these words, he was sore afraid, and was moved exceedingly: and he lay down upon his bed, and fell into sickness for sorrow, because it was not chanced to him as he thought. {9} And he was there for many days: because there was renewed in him great sorrowfulness, and he made account to die. {10} And he called all his friends, & said to them: sleep is departed from mine eyes, and I am fallen away, and my heart is gone for pensiveness: {11} and I said in my heart: Into how great tribulation am I come, & into what waves of sorrow, wherein now I am: who was pleasant, and beloved in my power! {12} But now I remember the evils, that I have done in Jerusalem, from whence also I took away all the spoils of gold, and of silver, that were in it, and I sent to take away the inhabitants of Jewry, without cause. {13} I know therefore that for this cause have these evils found me: and lo I perish with great sorrow in a strange country. {14} And he called Philip, one of his friends, & he made him chief over all his kingdom. {15} And he gave him the crown, and his robe, and ring, that he should bring Antiochus his son, and should bring him up to reign. {16} And Antiochus the king died there in the year an hundredth forty nine. {17} And Lysias understood that the king was dead, and he appointed Antiochus his son to reign, who he brought up a young man: and he called his name Eupator. {18} And they that were in the castle, had inclosed Israel round about the holy places: and they sought them evils always, and the strengthening of the Gentiles. {19} And Judas thought to destroy them: and he called together all the people, to besiege them. {20} And they came together, and besieged them in the year an hundredth fifty, and they made balists and engines. {21} And certain of them that were besieged, went forth: and some impious men of Israel joined themselves unto them, {22} and they went to the king, & said: How long doest thou not judgements, & revengest our brethren? {23} We decreed to serve thy father, and to walk in his precepts, and obey his edicts: {24} and the children of our people for this alienated themselves from us, & whosoever were found of us, they were slain, and our inheritances were spoiled. {25} And not to us only have they extended the hand, but also into all our coasts. {26} and behold they have approached this day to the castle in Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified a fortress in Bethsura: {27} and unless thou prevent them more speedily, they will do greater things than these, and thou shalt not be able to win them. {28} And the king was angry, as he heard these things: & he called together all his friends, & the princes of his army, and them that were over the horsemen. {29} Yea and of other realms, and of the islands by the sea there came unto him hired armies. {30} And the number of his army was an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and elephants thirty two, taught to battle. {31} And they came through Idumea, and approached to Bethsura, and fought many days, and they made engines and came forth, and burnt them with fire, and fought manfully. {32} And Judas departed from the castle, & removed the camp to Bethzacaram against the king's camp. {33} And the king arose before it was light, and stirred the bands into fierceness against the way to Bethzacaram: and the armies made themselves ready to the battle, and they sounded with trumpets: {34} and to the elephants they shewed the blood of the grape, and of the mulberry, to provoke them to the battle. {35} And they divided the beasts by the legions: & there stood by every elephant a thousand men in coats of mail, and helmets of brass on their heads: and five hundred horsemen set in order were chosen for every beast. {36} These before the time wheresoever the beast was, there were they: & whither soever it went, they went, & they departed not from it. {37} Yea and upon them were strong wooden towers protecting every beast: and upon them engines, and upon every one thirty two men of strength which fought from above: and within the master of the beast. {38} And the residue of the horsemen he placed on this side and on that side into two parts, with trumpets to stir up the army, and to urge them that stood thick together in the legions thereof. {39} And as the sun did shine upon the bucklers of gold, and of brass, the mountains glistened therewith, & they glistened as lamps of fire. {40} And part of the king's army was severed by the high mountains, & an other part by the low places: & they marched warily and orderly. {41} And all the inhabitants of the land were moved at the voice of the multitude of them, and the marching of the troop, and the rattling of the armour, for it was an army exceeding great and strong. {42} And Judas approached, and his army into battle: and there fell of the king's army six hundred men. {43} And Eleazar the son of Saura saw one of the beasts harnessed with the king's harness: & it was eminent above the other beasts; & it seemed to him that the king was on it: {44} and he gave himself to deliver his people, and to get himself an everlasting name. {45} And he ran to it boldly in the midst of the legion, killing on the right hand, & on the left, and they were slain of him on this side and that side. {46} And he went under the feet of the elephant, and put himself under him, and slew him: and it fell to the ground upon him, and he died there. {47} And they seeing the king's power, and the fierceness of his army, turned themselves aside from them. {48} But the king's camp went up against them unto Jerusalem: and the king's camp approached to Jurie and mount Sion. {49} And he made peace with them that were in Bethsura: & they came forth out of the city, because there were no victuals for them there being shut up, because it was the sabbath of the land. {50} And the king took Bethsura: and he placed there a garrison to keep it. {51} And he turned the place of the sanctification many days: and he placed there arbalists, and engines, and instruments to cast fire, & pieces to cast stones, and arrows, & scorpions to shoot arrows, and slings. {52} And they also made engines against their engines, and they fought many days. {53} But there were no victuals in the city, for that it was the seventh year: and they that had remained in Jury of the Gentiles, had consumed their remains, that had been laid up. {54} And there remained in the holies few men, because famine had prevailed over them: and they were dispersed every man into his place. {55} And Lysias heard that Philip, whom king Antiochus when he lived, had appointed to bring up his son to reign, {56} was returned from Persis, and Media, and the army that went with him, and that he sought to take upon him the affairs of the kingdom: {57} and he hastened to go, and to say to the king, & to the princes of the army: We decay daily, and there is little victual for us, and the place that we besiege, is fenced, and it lieth upon us to take order for the kingdom. {58} Now therefore let us give the right hands to these men, and make peace with them, and with all their nation. {59} And let us decree for them, that they walk in their own ordinances as before. For, because of their ordinances which we despised, they have been wrath, and have done all these things. {60} And the word was liked in the sight of the king, and of the princes: and he sent unto them to make peace: and they received it. {61} And the king and the princes swore to them: & they came out of the fortress. {62} And the king entered mount Sion, and saw the munition of the place: and he brake quickly the oath which he sware, and commanded to destroy the wall round about. {63} And he departed in haste, and returned to Antioch, and found Philip ruling over the city: and he fought against him and won the city.

Demetrius commandeth to kill Antiochus and Lysias being captives. 5. Alcimus and other wicked Jews solicit the king, 8. and he sendeth a great army into Jury: appointeth Bacchides general, and Alcimus high priest. 10. Who falsely pretending peace, Judas doth not credit them, but the Assidians are deceived: 16. and many are slain. 23. Judas resisting, the persecutors depart. 26. Whereupon Nicanor is sent with an other army, fighteth, and loseth many men: 33. parteth in great rage, 39. assaulteth Bethoron, 42. is slain; and his army flying is all destroyed. 48. They celebrate that day with joy, and have peace for a while.

{1} IN the year an hundred fifty first went forth Demetrius the son of Seleucus from the city of Rome, and he ascended with few men into a city by the sea side, & reigned there. {2} And it came to pass, as he entered into the house of the kingdom of his fathers, the army took Antiochus, and Lysias, to bring them unto him. {3} And the king was known to him: & he said: Shew me not their face. {4} And the army slew them. And Demetrius sat upon the seat of his kingdom: {5} and there came to him the wicked and impious men of Israel: and Alcimus the captain of them, who would be made the Priest. {6} And they accused the people to the king, saying: Judas and his brethren have destroyed all thy friends, & us he hath destroyed out of our land. {7} Now therefore send a man, whom thou doest credit, that he may go, and see all the destruction, that he hath done to us, and to the king's countries: and let him punish all his friends, & their aiders. {8} And the king chose of his friends Bacchides, that ruled beyond the great river in the kingdom, and was faithful to the king: & he sent him {9} to see the destruction that Judas hath made: and Alcimus the impious man he appointed to the Priesthood, and gave him in commandment to make revenge upon the children of Israel. {10} And they arose, and came with a great army into the land of Juda: and they sent messengers, and spake to Judas, and his brethren with peaceable words in guile. {11} And they attended not to their words: for they saw that they came with a great army. {12} And there assembled to Alcimus and Bacchides a congregation of the scribes to require the things that are just: {13} and first, the Assideans that were in the children of Israel, and they sought peace of them. {14} for they said: A man that is a Priest of the seed of Aaron is come, he will not deceive us. {15} And he spake with them peaceable words: and he sware to them, saying: We will do you no harm, nor your friends. {16} And they believed him. And he took of them threescore men, & slew them in one day, according to the word that is written: {17} The flesh of thy saints, and the blood of them they have shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them. {18} And there fell fear, and trembling upon all the people, because they said: There is no truth and judgement in them: for they have transgressed the appointment & the oath which they sware. {19}

And Bacchides removed the camp from Jerusalem, and approached to Bethzecha: and he sent, and took many of them that were fled from him, and certain of the people he killed, & threw them into a great pit. {20} And he committed the country to Alcimus, and left with him aid to help him. And Bacchides went away to the king: {21} & Alcimus did what he could for the principality of his Priesthood: {22} and there gathered together unto him all that disturbed their people, & they obtained the land of Juda, & made a great plague in Israel. {23} And Judas saw all the evils that Alcimus did, and they that were with him, to the children of Israel, much more than the Gentiles. {24} And he went out into all the coasts of Jurie round about, & did vengeance upon the men that revolted, & they ceased to go forth any more into the country. {25} But Alcimus saw that Judas prevailed, & they that were with him: & he knew that he could not stand with them, and he went back to the king, & accused them of many crimes. {26} And the king sent Nicanor, one of his nobler princes: that practised enmities against Israel: and he commanded him to destroy the people. {27} And Nicanor came into Jerusalem with a great army, and he sent to Judas & to his brethren in peaceable words with guile, {28} saying: Let there be no fighting between me and you: I will come with few men, to see your faces with peace. {29} And he came to Judas, & they saluted one an other peaceably: & the enemies were ready to catch Judas. {30} And the thing was known to Judas that he was come with guile: and he was sore afraid of him, and would not see his face any more. {31} And Nicanor knew that his counsel was disclosed: and he went forth to Judas into battle beside Capharsalama. {32} And there fell of Nicanor's army almost five thousand men, & they fled into the city of David. {33} And after these words Nicanor went up into mount Sion: and there went forth of the Priests of the people to salute him in peace, and to shew him the holocausts, that were offered for the king. {34} And scorning he contemned them, & polluted them: and he spake proudly, {35} and sware with anger, saying: Unless Judas be delivered, & his army into my hands, incontinent when I shall return in peace I will burn this house. And he went out with great anger: {36} and the Priests entered in, and stood before the face of the altar and the temple: and weeping they said: {37} Thou o Lord hast chosen this house for thy name to be invoked therein, that it might be a house of prayer, and obsecration for thy people. {38} Take vengeance upon this man, and his army, and let them fall by the sword: remember their blasphemies, and grant not unto them to be permanent. {39} And Nicanor went out from Jerusalem, & moved the camp, near to Bethhoron: and the army of Syria met him. {40} And Judas approached in Adarsa with three thousand men: and Judas prayed, and said: {41} They that were sent by king Sennacherib, o Lord, because they blasphemed thee, an angel came forth, and struck of them an hundred eighty five thousand: {42} so destroy this army in our sight to day, and let the rest know that he hath spoken it upon the holy places: and judge thou him according to his malice. {43} And the armies joined battle the thirteenth day of the month Adar: and the camp of Nicanor was discomfited, & himself was slain first in the battle. {44} And as his army saw that Nicanor was slain, they threw away their weapons, & fled: {45} and they pursued them one day's journey from Adazer, even till ye come into Gazara, & with trumpets they sounded after them with significations. {46} And they went forth out of all the towns of Jurie round about, and they pushed them with the horns, and they turned again to them, and they were all slain with the sword, and there was not left of them so much as one. {47} And they took the spoils of them for a prey: and Nicanor's head they cut off, and his right hand, which he had proudly stretched forth, & they brought it, & hung it up against Jerusalem. {48} And the people rejoiced exceedingly, & they spent that day in great gladness. {49} And he ordained that this day should be kept every year the thirteenth of the month Adar. {50} And the land of Juda was quiet for a few days.

Judas knowing the Romans to be a most renowned nation, reciing their worthy acts, 17. sendeth Ambassadors to enter league with them: 21. Whereto they agreeing confirm a perpetual amity with mutual conditions.

{1} AND Judas heard of the name of the Romans, that they are mighty of power, and agree unto all things that are requested of them: and whosoever have come unto them, they have made amity with them, and that they are mighty of power. {2} And they heard of their battles, and goodly acts, which they did in Galatia, that they overcame them, and brought them under tribute: {3} and how great things they did in the country of Spain, & that they brought into their power the metals of silver and gold, that are there, and possessed every place by their counsel and patience: {4} and destroyed the places that were very far off from them, and the kings that came upon them from the ends of the earth, and struck them with a great plague: and the rest give them tribute every year. {5} And Philip and Perses the king of the Ceteans, & the rest that had borne weapon against them, they discomfited in battle, and overcame them: {6} and that Antiochus the great king of Asia, who made battle against them, having an hundred and twenty elephants, and horsemen, and chariots and army exceeding great was discomfited by them: {7} and that they took him alive, and appointed him that himself and they that should reign after him, should give a great tribute, and he should give hostages, and the thing appointed him. {8} and the region of the Indes, and the Medes, and the Lydians of their best countries: and the same being taken of them, they gave to Eumenes the king. {9} And that they which were in Hellada, would have gone to dispatch them: and the word was known to them, {10} and they sent unto them one captain, and they fought against them, and many of them were slain, and they led away their wives captive, and their children, and spoiled them, and possessed their land, and destroyed their walls, and brought them into bondage even until this day: {11} and the residue of kingdoms, and isles that some time had resisted them, they spoiled, and brought under their power. {12} But with their friends, and those that rested in them, they kept amity, and obtained the kingdoms, that were next, and that were far off: that whosoever heard their name, feared them. {13} But such as they would help to reign, those reigned: and whom they would, they deposed from the kingdom: and they were exalted exceedingly. {14} And in all these none bare a crown, nor was clothed with purple, to be magnified therein. {15} And that they made themselves a court, and consulted daily three hundred and twenty, that sat in counsel always for the multitude, that they might do the things that were convenient: {16} and they commit their government to one man every year to rule over all their land, and all they obey one, and there is no envy, nor emulation amongst them. {17} And Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Jacob, and Jason the son of Eleazar, & he sent them to Rome to make amity and society with them: {18} and that they should take from them the yoke of the Greeks, because they saw that they pressed the kingdom of Israel unto bondage. {19} And they went to Rome, a way exceeding great, and they entered into the court, and said: {20} Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the people of the Jews have sent us unto you to make society and peace with you, and to write us your fellows and friends. {21} And the word was liked in their sight. {22} And this is the rescript that they wrote again in tables of brass, and sent into Jerusalem, that it might be with them there a memorial of peace and society. {23} BE IT WELL TO THE ROMANS, and to the nation of the Jews by sea, and by land for ever: and sword and enemy be far from them. {24} But and if war be toward the Romans first, or all their fellows in all their dominion: {25} the nation of the Jews shall give aid, according as the time shall appoint, with full heart: {26} and to them fighting, they shall not give nor allow wheat, armour, money, ships, as it hath pleased the Romans: & they shall keep their charge, taking nothing of them. {27} In like manner also & if war shall happen first to the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help with all their heart, according as the time shall permit them: {28} & to them helping shall not be given wheat, armour, money, ships, as it hath pleased the Romans: and they shall keep their charge without guile. {29} According to these words did the Romans agree to the people of the Jews. {30} And if after these words these or they will add to these, or take away any thing, they shall do it at their pleasure: and whatsoever they shall add, or take away, shall be ratified. {31} Yea and concerning the evils, that Demetrius the king hath done against them, we have written to him, saying: Why hast thou aggravated the yoke upon our friends and fellows the Jews? {32} If therefore they come again unto us against thee, we will do judgement for them, and will fight with thee by sea and land.

Bacchides and Alcimus returning into Juri make great slaughter. 5. More than two parts of Judas' small troop flying away, he with eight hundred, setteth upon the enemy. 14. overthroweth the strongest part of their army: 16. but an other part coming at his back, with great slaughter on both parties. Judas is slain: 19. and most honourably buried. 23. Much evil increaseth in Israel. 28. Jonathas is made captain general. 36. The children of Iambric kill his brother, which he revengeth. 43. Being environed by Bacchides chaseth him away to his fenced places, killing many. 54. Alcimus beginning to deface the temple, is striken with a palsy, and dieth miserably. 57. So they have peace two years. 58. Bacchides coming with a new army: 62. Jonathas and Simon retire into Bethbessen. 65. there defend themselves, and annoy the enemy. 69. who blaming his counsellors, maketh peace, and departeth.

{1} IN the mean time as Demetrius heard that Nicanor was fallen and his army in the battle, he added to send Bacchides and Alcimus again into Juri, and the right wing with them. {2} And they went the way, that leadeth into Galgal, and camped in Masaloth, which is in Arbellis: and they won it, and slew of men many souls. {3} In the first month of the year an hundredth and fifty two they brought the army near to Jerusalem: {4} and they arose, and went into Beraea twenty thousand men, and two thousand horsemen. {5} And Judas had camped in Laisa, and three thousand chosen men with him: {6} and they saw the multitude of the army that they were many, and they feared exceedingly: and many withdrew themselves out of the camp, and there remained of them but eight hundred men. {7} And Judas saw that his army shrank away, and the battle pressed upon him, and his heart was broken: because he had not time to gather them together, and he was discouraged. {8} And he said to them that were remaining: Let us rise, and go to our adversaries, if we may be able to fight against them. {9} And they dissuaded him saying: We are not able, but let us save our lives now, and return to our brethren, and then we will fight against them: and we are few. {10} And Judas said: God forbid we should do this thing, to fly from them: & if our time be near, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our glory. {11} And the army moved out of the camp, and they stood to meet them: and the horsemen were divided into two parts, and the slingers, and the archers went before the army, & of the forward all mighty. {12} And Bacchides was in the right wing, and the legion approached on two sides, & they sounded with trumpets: {13} and they also cried out that were on Judas' side, even they also, & the earth was moved at the voice of the armies: and the battle was fought from morning even until the evening. {14} And Judas saw that the stronger part of the army was on the right hand, and all the stout of heart came together with him: {15} and the right side was discomfited of them, & he pursued them even to the mount of Azotus. {16} And they that were in the left wing, saw that the ring wing was discomfited, and they followed after Judas, and them that were with him at the back: {17} and the battle grew sore, and there fell many wounded of these and of them. {18} And Judas was slain, and the rest fled. {19} And Jonathas and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of their fathers in the city Modin. {20} And all the people of Israel lamented him with great lamentation, and they mourned many days, {21} and said: How is the mighty fallen, that saved the people of Israel! {22} And the rest of the words of Judas' battles, and of the valiant acts that he did, and of his greatness are not described: for they were exceeding many. {23} And it came to pass: after the death of Judas, there came forth the wicked men in all the coasts of Israel, & there arose all that wrought iniquity. {24} In those days was made an exceeding great famine, and all their countries with themselves yielded to Bacchides. {25} And Bacchides chose the impious men, & appointed them lords of the country: {26} and they sought out, & searched for the friends of Judas, & brought them to Bacchides, and he took revenge on them, and scorned them. {27} And there was made great tribulation in Israel, such as was not since the day, that there was no Prophet seen in Israel. {28} And all the friends of Judas gathered, & said to Jonathas: {29} Since thy brother Judas died, there is not a man like unto him, to go forth against the enemies, Bacchides, & them that are the enemies of our nation. {30} Now therefore thee have we chosen this day to be for him our prince, and captain to wage our battle. {31} And Jonathas took upon him at that time the princedom, & arose in the place of Judas his brother. {32} And Bacchides understood it, and sought to kill him. {33} And Jonathas understood it, and Simon his brother, and all that were with them: and they fled into the desert of Thecuia, and they pitched by the water of the lake Asphar. {34} And Bacchides understood it, and in the day of the Sabbaths came himself, and all his army over Jordan. {35} And Jonathas sent his brother captain of the people, to desire the Nabutheians his friends, that they would lend him their provision, which was copious. {36} And the children of Jambri issued forth of Madaba, and took John, & all things that he had, and went away having them. {37} After these words, it was told Jonathas and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri make a great marriage, & bring the bride out of Madaba, the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan with great pomp. {38} And they remembered the blood of John their brother: and they went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain. {39} And they lifted up their eyes, and saw: and lo a tumult, a great preparation: and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends, and his brethren to meet them with timbrels, and musical instruments, and many weapons. {40} And they rose upon them out of the embushment, and slew them, and there fell many wounded, & the rest fled into the mountains, and they took all the spoils of them: {41} and the marriage was turned into mourning, and the voice of their musical instruments into lamentation. {42} And they took revenge of the blood of their brother: and they returned to the bank of Jordan. {43} And Bacchides heard it, and he came on the day of the Sabbaths even to the brink of Jordan with a great power: {44} And Jonathas said to his company: Let us arise, and fight against our enemies: for it is not to day as yesterday, and the day before. {45} For lo battle directly against us, and the water of Jordan on this side and on that side, and banks, and marshes, & forests: and there is no place to turn aside. {46} Now therefore cry ye unto heaven, that you may be delivered out of the hand of your enemies. And battle was joined. {47} And Jonathas stretched forth his hand to strike Bacchides, & he turned aside from him backwards. {48} And Jonathas leapt aside, and they that were with him into Jordan, & they swam over Jordan to them: {49} and there fell of Bacchides' part that day a thousand men: and they returned into Jerusalem, {50} and built fenced cities in Juri, the fortress that was in Jericho, and in Ammaum, and in Betheron, and in Bethel, and Thammata, and Phara, and Thopo with high walls, and gates, & locks. {51} And he placed a garrison in them, that they might exercise enmities against Israel: {52} and he fenced the city Bethsura, and Gazara, and the castle, and set garrisons in them, & provision of victuals: {53} & he took the sons of the princes of the country for hostages, and put them in the castle in Jerusalem into ward. {54} And in the year an hundred fifty three, the second month, Alcimus commanded the walls of the inner holy house to be destroyed, and the works of the Prophets to be destroyed: & he began to destroy. {55} In that time was Alcimus stricken: and his works were stayed, and his mouth was stopped, and he was dissolved with the palsy, neither could he speak a word any more, and give commandment touching his house. {56} And Alcimus died at that time with great torment. {57} And Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead: and he returned to the king, & the land was quiet for two years. {58} And all the wicked thought saying: Behold Jonathas, and they that are with him, dwell in silence securely: now therefore let us bring Bacchides, and he shall take them all in one night. {59} And they went, and gave him counsel. {60} And he arose to come with a great army: and he sent secretly epistles to his fellows that were in Jurie, to take Jonathas, and them that were with him: but they could not, because their counsel was known to them. {61} And he apprehended of the men of the country, that were the principal of the mischief, fifty men, and he slew them. {62} And Jonathas retired aside, and Simon, and they that were with him into Bethbessen, which is in the desert: and he built up the ruins thereof, and they fortified it. {63} And Bacchides understood it, and gathered together all his multitude, and sent word to them that were of Jurie. {64} And he came, and camped above Bethbessen, and assaulted it many days, and made engines. {65} And Jonathas left Simon his brother in the city, and went forth into the country, & came with a number, {66} and struck Odares, and his brethren, and the children of Phaseron in their tabernacles, and he began to slay, and to grow in forces. {67} But Simon and they that were with him, went out of the city, and burnt the engines, {68} and they fought against Bacchides, & he was discomfited by them: and they afflicted him exceedingly, because his counsel, and his conflict was in vain. {69} And being angry against the wicked men, that had given him counsel to come into their country, he slew many of them: but himself thought with the rest to depart into their country. {70} And Jonathas understood it, and he sent unto him legates to make peace with him, and to render unto him the captives. {71} And he took it gladly, and did according to his words, and swore that he would do him no harm all the days of his life. {72} And he rendered unto him the captives, which he before had taken for a prey, out of the land of Juda: & returning he departed into his own country, and he added no more to come into their coasts. {73} And the sword ceased out of Israel: and Jonathas dwelt in Machmas, and Jonathas began there to judge the people, and he destroyed the impious out of Israel.

Demetrius invaded by Alexander, 3. seeketh help of Jonathas: 15. but he joineth with Alexander, a surer friend: 22. though Demetrius solicit him again, offering rewards, with remission of tributes, 31. and great privileges, 46. All which he suspecting to be feigned, persisteth with Alexander: 48. who in battle killeth Demetrius: 52. espouseth the King's daughter of Aegypt: 59. calleth Jonathas to the marriage: 62. and honoureth him as a King. 67. Demetrius (the son) coming into Syria, sendeth Apollonius against Jonathas: 70. provoketh him, 74. and is overthrown (79. notwithstanding his ambushing of a thousand horsemen) 83. Jonathas burneth Azotus, with their idol Dagon: 86. so returneth by Ascalon to Jerusalem with great glory.

{1} AND in the year an hundredth threescore came up Alexander the son of Antiochus, that was surnamed Noble: and he took Ptolemais, and they received him, and he reigned there. {2} And Demetrius the king heard it, and he gathered together an exceeding great army, and went forth to meet him into battle. {3} And Demetrius sent an epistle to Jonathas in peaceable words, to magnify him. {4} For he said: Let us prevent to make peace with him, before he make with Alexander against us: {5} for he will remember all the evils, that we have done against him, and against his brother, and against his nation. {6} And he gave him authority to gather an army, and to make weapons, and to be himself his fellow: and the hostages that were in the castle, he commanded to be delivered to him. {7} And Jonathas came into Jerusalem, and read the epistles in the hearing of all the people, and of them that were in the castle. {8} And they feared with great fear, because they heard that the king gave him authority to gather an army. {9} And the hostages were delivered to Jonathas, and he rendered them to their parents. {10} And Jonathas dwelt in Jerusalem, and began to build, & to renew the city. {11} And he spake to them that made the works, that they should build the walls, and mount Sion round about with square stones for munition: and so they did. {12} And the Aliens fled that were in the holds, which Bacchides had built: {13} and every man left his place, & departed into his own country: {14} only in Bethsura there remained some of them, that had forsaken the law, and the precepts of God: for this was for a refuge to them. {15} And Alexander the king heard of the promises, that Demetrius had promised to Jonathas: and they told him the battles, & the worthy acts that he did, and his brethren, and the labours, that they endured: {16} and he said: Why, shall we find any such man? And now we will make him a friend, and our fellow. {17} And he wrote an epistle, and sent it to him according to these words, saying: {18} KING Alexander to his brother Jonathas greeting. {19} We have heard of thee, that thou art mighty of power, and art meet to be our friend: {20} and now we make thee this day high Priest of thy nation, that thou be called the king's friend (& he sent him purple, and a crown of gold) & in our affairs thou be of one mind with us, and keep amity towards us. {21} And Jonathas put on him the holy stole the seventh month, in the year an hundredth threescore in the solemn day of Scenopegia: and he gathered an army, and made very many weapons. {22} And Demetrius heard these words, and was exceeding sorry, and said: {23} What is this that we have done, that Alexander hath prevented us to take the friendship of the Jews for his strength? {24} I also will write to them words of request, and dignities, and gifts: that they may be with me to aid me. {25} And he wrote to them in these words: KING Demetrius to the nation of the Jews greeting. {26} Because you have kept covenant towards us, and have continued in our amity, and have not joined to our enemies, we have heard of it, and are glad. {27} And now persevere still to keep fidelity towards us, & we will reward you with good things, for that you have done with us. {28} And we will remit you many charges, and will give you many gifts. {29} And now I release you, and all the Jews from tributes, & I pardon you the prices of salt, & remit the crowns, & the thirds of the seed: {30} and the half of the fruit of trees, which is my portion, I leave to you from this day forward, that it be not taken of the land of Juda, and of the three cities that are added thereto of Samaria, & Galilee from this day & for ever: {31} & let Jerusalem be holy, and free with the coasts thereof: & the tithes, & tributes be they to it. {32} I release also the authority of the castle, that is in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, to place therein men whomsoever he shall choose, that may keep it. {33} And every soul of the Jews, that is captive from the land of Juda in all my kingdom, I dismiss free for nothing, that all may be discharged also from tributes of their cattle. {34} And all the solemn days, & the sabbaths, & the new moons, & the days appointed, and three days before the solemn day, and three days after the solemn day let them all be of immunity & remission, to all the Jews that are in my kingdom: {35} & no man shall have power to do any thing, & to make businesses against any of them in any cause. {36} And let there be enrolled of the Jews in the king's army to the number of thirty thousand men: & allowance shall be given them as behoveth to all the king's bands, & of them there shall be ordained certain, that shall be in the fortresses of the great king: {37} and of these there shall be appointed over the affairs of the kingdom, {1002} that are done of trust, and let there be princes of them, and let them walk in their own laws, as the king hath commanded in the land of Juda. {38} And the three cities that are added to Jury of the country of Samaria, let them be accounted with Jury: that they may be under one, and obey no other power, but the high priest's: {39} Ptolomais, and the confines thereof, which I have given for a gift to the holies, that are in Jerusalem, to the necessary charges of the holy things. {40} And I give every year fifteen thousand sicles of silver of the king's accounts, that belong to me: {41} & all that is above which they had not rendered, that were over the affairs the years before, from this time they shall give it to the works of the house. {42} And beside these five thousand sicles of silver, which they received of the account of the holies every year: & let these pertain to the priests, that execute the ministry. {43} And whosoever fly into the temple that is in Jerusalem, and in all the coasts thereof, in the king's danger for matter, let them be dismissed, & all things, that they have in my kingdom, let them have it free. {44} And to build or repair the works of the holy places, the charges shall be given of the king's account: {45} and to build the walls in Jerusalem, and to fortify them round about, the charges shall be given of the king's account, and to build the walls in Jurie. {46} But as Jonathas, & the people heard these words, they believed them not, nor received them: because they remembered the great mischief, that he had done in Israel, and had afflicted them exceedingly. {47} And their liking was toward Alexander, because he had been the first mover of the words of peace unto them, & him they aided all days. {48} And king Alexander gathered a great army, & moved the camp near to Demetrius. {49} And the two kings joined battle, and the army of Demetrius fled, & Alexander pursued him, & urged them sore. {50} And the battle grew very sore, till the sun went down: & Demetrius was slain in that day. {51} And Alexander sent legates to Ptolomee king of Aegypt according to these words, saying: {52} BECAUSE I am returned into my Kingdom, and am set in the seat of my fathers, & have obtained the princedom, & have destroyed Demetrius, & possessed our country, {53} and have joined battle with him, and he is destroyed himself, & his camp by us, and we sit in the seat of his kingdom: {54} and now let us make amity one with an other: & give me thy daughter to wife, and I will be thy son in law, & I will give thee gifts, and to her dignity. {55} And king Ptolomee answered, saying: HAPPY is the day wherein thou art returned to the land of thy fathers, and art set in the seat of their kingdom. {56} And now I will do to thee that which thou hast written: but meet me at Ptolomais, that we may see one an other, and I may despouse her to thee as thou hast said. {57} And Ptolomee went out of Aegypt, he & Cleopatra his daughter, & he came to Ptolomais in the year an hundred threescore and two. {58} And Alexander the king met him, & he gave him Cleopatra his daughter: and he made her marriage at Ptolomais, as kings in great glory. {59} And king Alexander wrote to Jonathas, that he should come to meet him. {60} And he went with glory to Ptolomais, & he met there the two kings, & he gave them much silver, & gold, & gifts: & he found grace in their sight. {61} And there assembled against him pestilent men of Israel, wicked men soliciting against him: & the king attended not to them. {62} And he commanded Jonathas to be changed of his garments, & that he should be clothed with purple: and so they did. And the king placed him to sit with himself. {63} And he said to his princes: Go ye out with him into the midst of the city, & proclaim, that no man solicit against him for any matter, & that no man be troublesome unto him for any cause. {64} And it came to pass, as they that solicited saw his glory that was published, & him covered with purple, they all fled: {65} & the king magnified him, & wrote him amongst his chief friends, & made him Duke, & partaker of the princedom. {66} And Jonathas returned into Jerusalem with peace & joy. {67} In the year an hundredth sixty five came Demetrius the son of Demetrius from Crete into the land of his fathers. {68} And Alexander the king heard it, & he was very sorry, & returned to Antioch. {69} And Demetrius the king made Apollonius general, who was ruler of Coesiria: & he gathered a great army, & came to Jammia: & he sent Jonathas the high priest, {70} saying: Thou only resistest us, & I am brought into derision, & into reproach, because thou doest exercise power against us in the mountians. {71} Now therefore if thou trust in thy forces, come down to us in the plain, let us compare there one with an other: because with me is the force of battles. {72} Ask, & learn who I am, & the rest, that aid me, who also say that your foot can not stand before our face, because twice have thy fathers been put to flight in their own land: {73} and now how wilt thou be able to abide the horsemen, & so great an army in the plain, where is no stone, nor rock, nor place to fly? {74} But as Jonathas heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved in mind: & he chose ten thousand men, & went forth from Jerusalem, & Simon his brother met him to aid him. {75} And they moved the camp to Joppe, & it shut him out of the city: because the garrison of Apollonius was in Joppe, & he assaulted it. {76} And they that were in the city being put in great fear, opened to him, & Jonathas obtained Joppe. {77} And Apollonius heard it, & he took three thousand horsemen, & a great army. {78} And he went to Azotus as making journey, and immediately he went forth into the plain: because he had a multitude of horsemen, and he trusted in them. And Jonathas pursued him unto Azotus, and they joined battle. {79} And Apollonius left in the camp a thousand horsemen behind them secretly. {80} And Jonathas understood that there was an embuscade behind him, and they compassed his camp, and they threw darts upon the people from morning even unto evening. {81} But the people stood, as Jonathas had commanded: and their horses laboured. {82} And Simon put forth his army, and joined it against the legion: for the horsemen were wearied: and they were discomfited by him, and fled. {83} And they that were scattered by the plain, fled into Azotus, and entered into Bethdagon their idol house, there to save themselves. {84} And Jonathas burnt Azotus, and the cities that were round about it, and he took the spoils of them, and the temple of Dagon: and all that fled into it, he burnt with fire. {85} And there were slain by the sword, with these that were burnt, almost eight thousand men. {86} And Jonathas removed the camp from thence, and brought it to Ascalon: and they went out of the city to meet him in great glory. {87} And Jonathas returned into Jerusalem with his company, having many spoils. {88} And it came to pass: as Alexander the king heard these words, he added yet to glorify Jonathas. {89} And he sent him a chain of gold, as the custom is to be given to the cousins of kings. And he gave him Accaron and all the borders thereof in possession.

Ptolomeus King of Aegypt deceiptfully coming into Syria, 8. surpriseth certain cities, and taking his daughter from Alexander giveth her to Demetrius. 15. Alexander flying away. 17. is treacherously slain. 18. Ptolomeus dieth the third day, and Demetrius reingneth. 20. Jonathas besiegeth the fortress which resisted him in Jerusalem. 24. obtaineth of Demetrius remission of tributes, and other privileges. 38. Demetrius dismissing his army, the soldiers conspire with Tryphon against him. 43. Jonathas aideth him with three thousand men, who kill an hundred thousand mutineers. 53. Demetrius breaking league with Jonathas, is overthrown by Tryphon. 57. Young Antiochus reneweth league with Jonathas: as he (65. as likewise his brother Simon) prospereth: 67. in great danger prayeth and prevaleth.

{1} AND the king of Aegypt gathered an army, as the sand that is about the sea shore, and many ships: and he sought to win the kingdom of Alexander by guile, and to add it to his own kingdom. {2} And he went out into Syria with peaceable words, & they opened to him the cities, {1004} and met him: because Alexander the king had commanded them to go forth to meet him, for that he was his father in law. {3} But when Ptolomee entered the cities, he put garrisons of soldiers in every city. {4} And as he approached to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon burnt with fire, and Azotus, & the rest thereof thrown down, and the bodies cast forth, & the graves of them that were slain in the battle, which they had made near the way. {5} And they told the king that Jonathas did these things: to raise envy against him: and the king held his peace. {6} And Jonathas came to meet the king into Joppe with glory, and they saluted one an other, and they slept there. {7} And Jonathas went with the king even to the river, that was called Eleutherus, and he returned into Jerusalem. {8} And king Ptolomee obtained the dominion of the cities even to Seleucia by the sea side, and he purposed evil purposes against Alexander. {9} And sent legates to

Demetrius, saying: Come, let us make a league between us, and I will give thee my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in the kingdom of thy father. {10} For it repenteſt me that I have given him my daughter: for he hath ſought to kill me. {11} And he diſpraised him, for that he coveteth his kingdom, {12} and he took away his daughter, & gave her to Demetrius, and alienated himſelf from Alexander, and his enmities were made manifest. {13} And Ptolomee entered into Antioch, & he put two crowns upon his head, of Aegypt, & of Asia. {14} But Alexander the king was in Cilicia at that time: because they rebelled that were in those places. {15} And Alexander heard it, and came to him into battle: and Ptolomee the king brought forth an army, and met him with a ſtrong power, and put him to flight. {16} And Alexander fled into Arabia, there to be protected: and king Ptolomee was exalted. {17} And Zabdiel an Arabian took off Alexander's head, & ſent it to Ptolomee. {18} And king Ptolomee died the third day: & they that were in the fortresses, perished by them that were within the camp. {19} And Demetrius reigned the year an hundredth ſixty seven. {20} In those days Jonathas gathered together them, that were in Jurie, to win the castle in Jerusalem: and they made engines againſt it. {21} And certain that hated their own nation wicked men, went to king Demetrius, and told him that Jonathas besieged the castle. {22} And as he heard it, he was wrath: and forthwith he came to Ptolemais, and wrote to Jonathas, that he ſhould not besiege the castle, but ſhould meet him to talk together in haste. {23} But as Jonathas heard it, he bade them besiege it: and he chose of the ancients of Israel, and of the Priests, and put himſelf in hazard. {24} And he took gold, & ſilver, and raiments, & many other presents, & went to the king to Ptolemais, and he found grace in his ſight. {25} And certain wicked men of his nation ſolicited againſt him. {26} And the king did to him, as they had done to him which had been before him: and he exalted him in the ſight of all his friends, {27} and he established to him the chief Priesthood, & whatſoever other things he had before precious, & he made him the chief of his friends. {28} And Jonathas requested of the king that he would make Jury free, & the three toparchies, and Samaria, & the confines thereof: and he promised him three hundred talents. {29} And the king conſented: and he wrote to Jonathas epistles of all these things, containing this tenure. {30} KING Demetrius to his brother Jonathas greeting, and to the nation of the Jews. {31} A copy of the epiftle, which we have written to Lasthenes our parent concerning you, we have ſent to you that you might know it. {32} KING Demetrius to Lasthenes his parent greeting. {33} We have determined to do good to the nation of the Jews our friends, & that keep the things that are just with us, for their gentleness which they bear towards us. {34} We have ordained therefore unto them all the coasts of Jurie, & the three cities, Apherema, Lyda, & Ramatha, which are added to Jurie of Samaria, & all their confines, to be ſequeſtered to all them that ſacrifice in Jerusalem, for these things, which the king received of them every year, and for the fruits of the land, and of the trees. {35} And other things, that pertained to us of the tithes, and of the tributes, from this time we remit to them: & the ſalt floors, and the crowns, that were presented to us, {36} we grant all to them, & nothing of these shall be broken from this time, and for ever. {37} Now therefore provide to make a copy of these, and let it be given to Jonathas, & let it be laid in the holy mount, and in a ſolemn place. {38} And Demetrius the king ſeeing that the land was quiet in his ſight, & nothing resisted him, he diſmissed all his army, every man to his place, except the foreign army, which he brought from the iſles of the Gentiles: and all the bands of his fathers were enemies to him. {39} And there was one Tryphon of Alexander's part before: and he ſaw that all the army murmured againſt Demetrius, & he went to Emalchuel the Arabian, that brought up Antiochus the ſon of Alexander: {40} And he lay upon him, to deliver this Antiochus unto him, to reign in his father's place: and he declared unto him what great things Demetrius did, and the enmities of his hosts againſt him. And he tarried there many days. {41} And Jonathas ſent to Demetrius the king, that he would cast out them, that were in the castle in Jerusalem, and that were in the holds: because they impugned Israel. {42} And Demetrius ſent to Jonathas, ſaying: I will not only do these things for thee, & for thy nation, but with glory I will honour thee, & thy nation, when it ſhall be time convenient. {43} Now therefore thou ſhalt do well if thou wilt ſend men to help me: because all mine army is departed. {44} And Jonathas ſent him three thousand valiant men to Antioch: and they came to the king, & the king was delighted at their coming. {45} And there assembled they that were of the city, an hundred twenty thousand men, and they would have ſlain the king. {46} And the king fled into the court: & they that were of the city kept the ways of the city, and began to fight. {47} And the king called the Jews for aid: & they came together to him all at once, & they were all dispersed through the city. {48} And they ſlew in that day an hundred thousand men, & they burnt the city, & took many ſpoils in that day, & delivered the king. {49} And they that were of the city ſaw, that the Jews had obtained the city as they would: and they were discomfited in their mind, an cried to the king with petitions, ſaying: {50} Give us the right hand, and let the Jews ceafe to oppugn us & the city. {51} And they threw away their weapons, & made peace, & the Jews were glorified in the king's ſight, & were renowned in the ſight of all that were in his kingdom, & returned into Jerusalem with many ſpoils. {52} And king Demetrius ſat in the ſeat of his kingdom: and the land was at rest in his ſight. {53} And he feigned all things whatſoever he ſaid, & alienated himſelf from Jonathas, and he requited him not according to the benefits, that he had given him, and he vexed him exceedingly. {54} And after these things Tryphon returned, & with him Antiochus the young boy, who reigned, and put the crown upon him. {55} And there gathered unto him all the bands, which Demetrius had dispersed, and they fought againſt him: & he fled, and turned the back. {56} And Tryphon took the beasts, and won Antioch. {57} And Antiochus the young man wrote to Jonathas, ſaying: I appoint to thee the priesthood, & I place thee over the four cities, that thou mayſt be of the king's friends. {58} And he ſent him vessels of gold for his ſervice, and he gave him leave to drink in gold, and to be in purple, & to have a chain of gold: {59} And he appointed Simon his brother governor from the borders of Tyre even to the coasts of Aegypt. {60} And Jonathas went forth, & walked through the cities beyond the river: and all the band of Syria gathered unto him to help him, and he came to Ascalon, & they met him honourably out of the city. {61} And he went from thence to Gaza: and they that were in Gaza shut in themſelves: and he besieged it, & burnt the things that were round about the city, and he ſpoiled it. {62} And the men of Gaza besought Jonathas, and he gave them the right hand: and he took their ſons for hostages, & ſent them into Jerusalem: and he walked through the country even to Damascus. {63} And Jonathas heard that the princes of Demetrius prevaricated in Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great army meaning to remove him from the affairs of the kingdom: {64} and he went againſt them: but his brother Simon he left within the Province. {65} And Simon approached to Bethsura, and expugned it many days, and inclosed them. {66} And they requested of him to take the right hands, and he gave it them: and he cast them out from thence, and took the city, & placed therein a garrison. {67} And Jonathas and his camp approached to the water of Genesar, and before it was light they watched in the plain Asor. {68} And lo the camp of the aliens met him in the plain, and they laid embuſhments for him in the mountains: but he went againſt them. {69} And the embuſhments roſe out of their places, & they joined battle. {70} And all fled that were on Jonathas' part, and none was left of them, but Mathathias the ſon of Absolom, and Judas the ſon of Calphi, chief captain of the chivalry of the host. {71} And Jonathas rent his garments, and put earth upon his head, and prayed. {72} And Jonathas returned to them into battle, and he put them to flight, and they fought. {73} And they of his part that fled saw, and returned to him, and pursued with him even to Cades to their camp, and they came even thither. {74} And there fell of the aliens in that day three thousand men: and Jonathas returned into Jerusalem.

Jonathas confirmeth league with the Romans and Spartiates, by letters: 19. with mention of letters received before. 24. By diligent guard he defendeth the country from the enemy's invasions, putting them to flight: 31. subdueth the Arabians, and returneth by Damascus (33. Simon prospering in other places.) fortifieth Jerusalem. 39. Finally is deceived by Tryphon. 48. and all his men are slain.

{1} AND Jonathas saw that the time helped him, he chose men & sent them to Rome, to establish and to renew amity with them: {2} and to the Spartiates, & to other places he sent epistles according to the same tenure. {3} And they went to Rome, and entered into the court, and said: Jonathas the high priest, and the nation of the Jews have sent us to renew the amity and society according as before. {4} And they gave them epistles unto them by place and place, to conduct them into the land of Juda with peace. {5} And this is a copy of the epistles which Jonathas wrote to the Spartiates: {6} JONATHAS the high Priest, and the ancients of the nation, and the Priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews, to the Spartiates their brethren greeting. {7} Long ago were epistles sent to Onias the high-Priest from Arius who reigned with you, that you are our brethren, as the writing containeth, that here beneath followeth. {8} And Onias received the man that was sent with honour: and he received the epistles, wherein there was signification of the society and amity. {9} We whereas we needed none of these, having for our comfort the holy books, that are in our hands, {10} chose rather to send unto you to renew the fraternity, lest perhaps we be made aliens from you: for much time is passed, since you sent to us. {11} We therefore at all time without intermission in the solemn days, and the rest wherein we should, are mindful of you in the sacrifices, that we offer, and in the observances, as it is meet, and becometh to remember brethren. {12} We rejoice therefore of your glory. {13} But many tribulations have compassed us, and many battles, and the kings that are round about us, have impugned us. {14} We therefore would not be troublesome to you, nor to the rest our fellows & friends in these battles. {15} For we have had aid from heaven, and we are delivered, and our enemies are humbled. {16} We have chosen therefore Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, and have sent to the Romans to renew with them the old amity and society. {17} We therefore have commanded them that they come unto you also, and salute you, and deliver you our epistles, concerning the renewing of our fraternity. {18} And now you shall do well in answering us to these things. {19} And this is the rescript of the epistles, which he had sent to Onias: {20} ARIUS the king of the Spartians to Onias the grand Priest greeting. {21} It is found in scripture of the Spartians, and the Jews, that they are brethren, & that they are of the stock of Abraham. {22} And now since we understood these things, you do well in writing to us of your peace. {23} Yea and we have written again to you, Our cattle, and our possessions, are yours: and yours, ours. We therefore have commanded that these things be told you. {24} And Jonathas heard that the princes of Demetrius were come again with a great army more than before to fight against him. {25} And he went out from Jerusalem, & met them in the country of Amathis: for he gave them not space to enter into his country. {26} And he sent spies into their camp, and they returning reported that they appointed to come upon them in the night. {27} And when the sun was set, Jonathas commanded his men to watch, and to be in armour ready to fight all night, and he set watchmen round about the camp. {28} And the adversaries heard that Jonathas with his company was prepared to battle: & they feared & were afraid in their heart: and they kindled fires in their camp. {29} But Jonathas,

& they that were with him, knew it not till the morning, and they saw light burning, {30} and Jonathas followed them, & overtook them not: for they had passed the river Eleutherus. {31} And Jonathas turned aside to the Arabians, that were called Zabadeans, & he struck them, & took the spoils of them. {32} And he joined, & came to Damascus, & walked through all that country. {33} But Simon went forth, and came even to Ascalon, and to the next holds, and he declined into Joppe, and took it. {34} (For he heard that they would deliver the hold to Demetrius' part) and he put a garrison there to keep it. {35} And Jonathas returned, and called together the ancients of the people, & he consulted with them to build fortresses in Jurie, {36} & to build the walls in Jerusalem, and to rear a mount of a great height between the castle and the city, to separate it from the city, that it might be alone, and they might neither buy nor sell: {37} And they came together to build the city: and the wall fell that was upon the torrent toward the rising of the sun, and he repaired it, which is called Caphetetha: {38} and Simon built Adiada in Sephela, and fortified it, and hanged on gates & locks. {39} And when Tryphon had purposed to reign over Asia, and to take the crown, and to extend his hand against Antiochus the king: {40} fearing lest perhaps Jonathas would not permit him, but would fight against him, he sought to take him and to kill him. And rising up he went into Bethsan. {41} And Jonathas went forth to meet him with forty thousand chosen men into battle, and came to Bethsan. {42} And Tryphon saw that Jonathas came with a great army, to extend his hands upon him: and he feared: {43} and received him with honour, & commanded him to all his friends, and gave him gifts: and he commanded his hosts to obey him, as himself. {44} And he said to Jonathas: Why hast thou troubled all the people, whereas we have no war? {45} And now send them back to their houses, but choose thee a few men, that may be with thee, and come with me to Ptolomais, and I will deliver it to thee, and the other holds, and the army, and all the overseers of the affairs, and returning I will depart: for therefore I came. {46} And Jonathas believed him, and did as he said: and dismissed his army, and they departed into the land of Juda: {47} but he retained with him three thousand men: of whom he sent back two thousand into Galilee, and a thousand came with him. {48} But as Jonathas entered into Ptolomais, they of Ptolomais shut the gates of the city, and they took him, and all that had entered with him they slew with the sword. {49} And Tryphon sent an army and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain to destroy all Jonathas' fellows. {50} But they when they understood that Jonathas was taken, & was perished, and all that were with him, they encouraged themselves, and went forth ready to battle. {51} And these that had pursued, seeing that the matter stood upon their life, they returned. {52} But they came all with peace into the land of Juda. And they lamented Jonathas, & them that were with him exceedingly: and Israel mourned with great mourning. {53} And all the heathen that were round about them, sought to destroy them, for they said: {54} They have no prince, and helper: now therefore let us expugn them, and take away from men the memory of them.

Simon exhorteth the people to defend themselves, and religion: 7. is made general captain. 14. Tryphon demandeth an hundred talents of silver, and hostages for Jonathas, 17. which are sent (to satisfy the people.) Tryphon receiveth the ransom; 23. killeth Jonathas, and his sons. 25. Simon erecteth a memory to his parents and brethren. 31. Tryphon murdereth his young King. 33. Simon fortifieth the country, obtaineth peace, and liberties of Demetrius: 42. subdueth the city Gaza, and the rebellious castle within Jerusalem.

{1} AND Simon heard that Tryphon gathered a very great army, to come into the land of Juda, and to destroy it. {2} Seeing that the people was in dread, and in fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and assembled the people: {3} and exhorting he said: You know what great battles I and my brethren, and the house of my father have made for the laws, and the holies, and the distresses that we have seen: {4} by reason of these are all my brethren perished for Israel, and I only am left. {5} And now let it not fall to me to spare my life in all time of tribulation: for I am not better than my brethren. {6} I will avenge therefore my nation and the holies, our children also, and wives: because all the heathen are gathered together to destroy us of enmity. {7} And the spirit of the people was kindled as soon as they heard these words: {8} and they answered with a loud voice, saying: Thou art our captain in the place of Judas, and Jonathas thy brother: {9} fight thou our battle, and we will do all things whatsoever thou shalt say to us. {10} And gathering together all the men of war, he hastened to finish all the walls of Jerusalem, and fortified it round about. {11} And he sent Jonathas the son of Absalom, and with him a new army into Joppe, and they that were in the castle being cast out, he remained there. {12} And Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great army, to come into the land of Juda, and Jonathas with him in ward. {13} But Simon pitched in Addus against the face of the plain. {14} And as Tryphon understood that Simon was risen in the place of his brother Jonathas: and that he would join battle with him, he sent legates to him, {15} saying: For the silver, that thy brother Jonathas owed in the king's account, for the affairs which he had, we have stayed him. {16} And now send an hundred talents of silver, and his two sons for hostages, that being dismissed he fly not from us, and we will release him. {17} And Simon knew that with guile he spake with him, nevertheless he commanded the silver, and the children to be given: lest he should get great enmity with the people of Israel, saying: {18} Because he sent not the silver, and the children, therefore is he perished. {19} And he sent the children, and the hundred talents: and he lied, and dismissed not Jonathas. {20} And after these things came Tryphon within the country, to destroy it, and they compassed by the way that leadeth to Addar, and Simon, & his camp marched into every place whither soever they went. {21} And they that were in the castle sent legates to Tryphon, that he should hasten to come through the desert, and should send them victuals. {22} And Tryphon prepared all the horsemen to come that night: but there was an exceeding great snow, and he came not into the country of Galaad. {23} And when he had approached to Bascama, he slew Jonathas and his sons there. {24} And Tryphon returned, and went into his country. {25} And Simon sent and took the bones of Jonathas his brother, and buried them in Modin the city of his fathers. {26} And all Israel lamented him with great lamentation: and they mourned for him many days. {27} And Simon built over the sepulchre of his father and of his brethren a building high to behold, of stone polished behind and before: {28} and he erected seven spires one against one, to his father and mother, and to his four brethren: {29} and about these he set great pillars: and upon the pillars armour for an eternal memory: and by the armour ships graven, which might be seen of all that sailed the sea. {30} This is the sepulchre, that he made in Modin even until this day. {31} But Tryphon when he journeyed with Antiochus the king, being but a young man, by guile he slew him. {32} And he reigned in his place, & put the crown of Asia upon himself, and made a great plague in the land. {33} And Simon built the fortresses of Jurie, fortifying them with high towers, & great walls, and gates, and locks: and he put victuals in the fortresses. {34} And Simon chose men & sent to Demetrius the king, that he would make a release to the country: because all Tryphon's acts had been done by spoil. {35} And Demetrius the king according to these words answered him, and wrote an epistle in this manner: {36} KING Demetrius to Simon the High-Priest, and the friend of kings, and to the ancients, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting. {37} The crown of gold, and the bahem, which you sent, we have received: and we are ready to make with you great peace, and to write to the king's chief officers to release you the things that we have released. {38} For whatsoever things we have decreed unto you, stand in force. The holds that you have built, let them be to you. {39} We remit also the ignorances, and offences even until this day, and the crown which you owed: and if any other thing was tributary in Jerusalem, now let it not be tributary. {40} And if any of you be fit to be enrolled among ours, let them be enrolled and let there be peace between us. {41} In the year an hundredth seventy was the yoke of the Gentiles taken away from Israel. {42} And the people of Israel began to write in the tables, and public instruments. The first year under Simon the High-Priest, the great Duke, and the Prince of the Jews: {43} In these days Simon approached to Gaza, and compassed it with camps, and he made engines, and set them to the city, and he struck one tower, and took it. {44} And they that were within the engine, brake out into the city: and there was made a great stir in the city. {45} And they that were in the city went up with their wives and children upon the wall their coats rent, and they cried with a loud voice, desiring of Simon that the right hands might be given them, {46} and they said: Requite us not according to our malices, but according to thy mercies. {47} And Simon yielding destroyed them not: but yet he cast them out of the city, and cleansed the houses, wherein there had been idols, and then he entered into it with hymns blessing our Lord: {48} and all filthiness being cast out of it, he placed in it men that should do the law: and he fortified it, and made it his habitation. {49} But they that were in the castle of Jerusalem, were prohibited to go out and to come into the country, and to buy and sell: and they were exceeding hungry, and many of them perished for famine, {50} and they cried to Simon to receive the right hands, and he gave it them: and he cast them out from thence, and cleansed the castle from the contaminations: {51} and they entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month, the year an hundredth seventy one, with praise, and boughs of palm trees, and harps, and cymbals, and nables, and hymns, and canticles, because the great enemy was destroyed out of Israel. {52} And he ordained that every year these days should be kept with gladness. {53} And he fortified the mount of the temple, that was by the castle, and he dwelt there himself, & they that were with him. {54} And Simon saw John his son, that he was a valiant man of war: and he made him captain of all the hosts: and he dwelt in Gazara.

Demetrius invading Media is taken captive: 4. and Jury is in peace. 14. Simon cherisheth the godly, and punishment the wicked: 16. receiveth friendly letters from the Romans, and Spartiates: 20. Whereof the copy is recited: 24. sendeth a legate to Rome with a present. 25. And is established high priest, and governor by public consent.

{1} IN the year an hundredth seventy two, king Demetrius gathered his army, and went into Media to get him aids to expugn Trypon. {2} And Arsaces the king of Persia, and Media heard, that Demetrius was entered his confines, and he sent one of his princes to take him alive. {3} And he went, and struck the camp of Demetrius: and took him, and brought him to Arsaces, and he put him into ward. {4} And all the land of Juda was at rest all the days of Simon, and he sought good to his nation: & his power, and his glory pleased them all days. {5} And with all his glory he took Joppe for an haven, and made it an entrance unto the isles of the sea. {6} And he enlarged the borders of his nation, and obtained the country: {7} And gathered a great captivity, and had dominion of Gazara, and of Bethsura, and of the castle: and took away the uncleanness out of it, and there was none that resisted him. {8} And every man tilled his land with peace: and the land of Juda yielded her fruits, and the trees of the fields their fruit. {9} The ancients sat all in the streets, and treated of the good things of the land, and the youngmen did on them glory, and the stoles of war. {10} And he gave victuals to the cities, and he appointed them that they should be vessels of munition, till the name of his glory was renowned even to the end of the earth. {11} He made peace upon the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy. {12} And every man sat under his vine, and under his figtree: and there was none to make them afraid. {13} There was none left that impugned them upon the earth: kings were discomfited in those days. {14} And he confirmed all the humble of his people, and sought the law, & took away every wicked and evil man: {15} he glorified the holies, and multiplied the vessels of the holy places. {16} And it was heard at Rome that Jonathas was dead, & even unto the Spartiates: and they were very sorry. {17} But as they heard that Simon his brother was made the High-Priest in his place, and he obtained all the country, and the cities therein; {18} they wrote to him in brazen tables, to renew the amities and society, which they had made with Judas, & with Jonathas his brethren. {19} And they were read in the sight of the Church in Jerusalem. And this is a copy of the epistles, that the Spartiates sent. {20} THE PRINCES and the cities of the Spartans to Simon the grand Priest, & to the ancients, and the Priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews their brethren, greeting. {21} The legates, that were sent to our people, have told us of your glory, and honour, and joy: and we rejoiced at their entrance. {22} And we wrote that, which was said of them in the counsels of the people, thus: Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, legates of the Jews, came to us, renewing with us old amity. {23} And it pleased the people to receive the men gloriously, and to put a copy of their words in the severed book of the people, to be for a memory to the people of the Spartiates. And a copy of these we have written to Simon the grand Priest. {24} And after these things Simon sent Numenius to Rome, having a great buckler of gold, of the weight of thousand pounds, to establish amity with them. But when the people of Rome had heard {25} these words, they said: What thanks giving shall we render to Simon & his children? {26} For he hath restored his brethren, and hath expugned the enemies of Israel from them: and they decreed him liberty, & registered it in tables of brass, & put it in titles in mount Sion. {27} And this is a copy of the writing.
